Mabalik tayo sa agrikultura, dahil sa nakararami sa tiga Quezon ay nasa kanayunan. Ang agrikultura ay isa sa mahahalagang aspeto ng ating pambansang buhay na maapektuhan ang hangad nating pagbabago at pagkakaisa. Sinabi ko, kailangan natin reporma sa lupa, pero kailangang kasabay ang reporma sa agrikultura mismo, modernisasyon ng agrikultura. At kung nararamdaman ninyo na mas maraming farm-to-market road, irigasyon, binhi ngayon, ito ay dahil ang aking administrasyon ang tanging gumagastos ng hindi kulang sa dalawampung bilyong piso taun-taon para sa modernisasyon ng agrikultura. Ang aking administrasyon din ang gumugol nang pinakamalawak na proyekto para sa irigasyon dahil mahalaga ang patubig sa bukid.

At hindi ko pinag-uusapan lamang 'yung malalaking dam. Dito sa Quezon hindi malaking dam ang ating mga proyekto. Dito sa Quezon ang ating mga proyektong irigasyon ay 'yung mga maliliit na irrigation projects sa ibat-ibang dako ng ating kapuluan para mabilis maitayo, hindi masyadong mahal agad nakapagbibigay ng tubig. At dahil dito ay lumalawak ang produksyon. Si Cito Lorenzo ang kanyang pet project na mukhang umubra ay ang pagtanim ng hybrid rice. Bagong klaseng binhi nanggaling sa China noong ako ay nag-state visit noong 2001, inadopt dito sa Pilipinas, minudmod, at ang ating produksyon ng bigas itong third quarter ay napakataas. At ito ang isang dahilan kung bakit kaninang umaga bilang chairman ng National Economic and Development Authority naanunsyo ko na ang produksyon ng ating buong bansa, buong ekonomiya nitong nakaraang tatlong buwan ay umangat ng 4.4 percent.

Iyan ang tawag nilang GDP growth rate, pag-angat ng ating produksyon. Itong numerong ito ay mas mataas kaysa sa inaasahan natin at nadaig na natin ang Taiwan, Indonesia, Singapore at Korea sa pag-angat ng ekonomiya. At saan nanggaling itong pag-angat ng agrikultura itong last three months — ng bansa pala — galing sa agrikultura at galing sa investments, paggastos sa investments. Kaya sa inyo mga magsasaka, maraming salamat sa inyong kontribusyon sa produksyon ng ating bansa.

At isa ngang pinaggalingan nito ay ‘yung hybrid rice, kasi ‘yung mga magsasaka na gumagamit ng hybrid rice ay nagpadoble ang ani ng ating mga magsasaka na nagtanim nito.

Kaya kayo kung meron tayong mga magsasaka diyaan na meron naman kayong lugar na irrigated, kung gusto n’yong pumasok sa hybrid rice program makipag-ugnay kayo sa Department of Agriculture. Itong pagpadoble ng ani ng palay ng mga gumagamit ng hybrid rice ay tugon sa pinakamalapit sa puso kong hangarin para sa ating bansa. Hindi pa man ako pangulo sinasabi ko na ang aking ambisyon magkaroon ng pagkain sa bawat mesa. At inaasahan ko itong hybrid rice na ito — ilang kuwan na cito? 85,000 hectares? — 100,000 hectares na ang gumagamit nitong hybrid rice na ito, 100,000 hectares na ang mga magsasaka nakadoble ng ani. Inaasahan natin ito ay isang batayang reporma sa agrikultura. Gusto ko sa loob ng dalawang taon from 100,000 hectares sana 600,000 hectares na ang matamnan ng hybrid rice at sana kasama doon ‘yung mga magsasaka ng Quezon province.

Kasi treinta porsiyento ng magsasaka ng Quezon ‘di ba magsasaka pa rin ng palay? ‘Yung 60 percent naman ay magsasaka sa niyog, mangnuniyog. Para naman sa ating mga mangnuniyog, ang ginawa nga natin, gaya nang sabi ni Obet Pagdanganan, ay ‘yung coco levy funds na inaasahan. Gusto kong sabihin sa inyo na ginagamit na natin ang ilang dibidendo ng coco levy funds para sa kapakanan ng ating coconut farmers. Dahil ang pamahalaan ay patuloy naginagamit iyung pitong daang milyong pisong dibidendo ng coco levy funds na nakuha ko noong 2001 para sa ikakabuti ng ating coconut industry. Ito ay ginagawa natin habang nasa korte pa ang kaso ng coconut levy dahil binibigyan kong halaga ang kapakanan ng ating mga magsasaka at magnuniyog.

Kaya kanina meron kayo mga inaasahang proyekto. Ako ay nagpapasalamat na kayo ay mag-iimpok kusa para magbuo ng inyong puhunan. At para sa ibang kailangan pa ninyo na pautang, gusto kong ipaalam sa inyo na itong 700 million pesos na coconut levy dividend ay minamaneho ngayon ng isang komite. Ewan ko, mahaba ‘yung pangalan ng komiting ‘yon eh, pero sa akin ang short ko doon ‘yung CIIF committee. Tumatanggap sila nang proposal sa mga coconut farmers at kung maganda ‘yung proposal na ‘yon ay pinopondahan nila. Kaya ‘yung mga pinahayag nung resolution kanina, sana gawin n’yong proposal at i-submit sa CIIF committee. Hindi naman siguro mahirap na mahanap ninyo ang komiteng ‘yan kahit na napakahaba ‘yung kanyang tunay na pangalan, hindi ko tuloy maalala. Kasi sa board ng komiteng ‘yan ay may dalawang tiga-Quezon. Hanapin na lamang ninyo sila. ‘Yung isa ay si Mely Jabola, marami sa inyo ang kilala siya. Iyung isa naman ay si Marivic Gutierrez, ‘yung dating vice mayor... No, konsehal ng Lopez, Quezon. Naalala ninyo ‘yung asawa niyang police. Noong ni-raid nang NPA ‘yung Lopez dalawang namatay, ‘yung chief of police at isang policeman, si Marivic asawa niya ‘yung isa. Kaya parang tulong sa kanya at tulong na rin sa inyo, nilagay ko rin siya sa board ng CIIF committee.

Eh si Mely ay tiga-Tayabas, kaya ‘yung first and second district pwedeng pumunta kay Mely. Ayan pala si Mayor Ubana ng Quezon, ‘yung kabayan ni Marivic. ‘Yung mga third and fourth district puwede ninyong puntahan si Marivic o puwede ninyong puntahan si Mely kasi baka ang Bondoc peninsula ay mas malapit ang Tayabas. Kaya ‘yon ang gusto kong ibigay na tip para sa inyo, dalawa ang members of the board n’yo doon sa komiting ‘yon na humahawak ng 700 million pesos. Kaya kung maganda ang inyong proyekto, siguro naman makakabahagi kayo doon sa dibidendo ng coconut levy fund.

Ako naman, ano ang hinihingi ko sa inyo, sana naman tulungan ninyo ako at suportahan upang ang mga programa ng ating pamahalaan ay magtagumpay. Kasi po tagumpay nitong mga programang ito, tagumpay rin ninyo. Kung tayo ay masusugpo ang kahirapan ang ganda nang kinabukasan ng ating mga anak.

Magsasaka at taga-lungsod sa inyong lahat, maraming, maraming salamat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 1st National Convention of the PADPAO and in celebration of their 45th anniversary

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 1st National Convention of the Philippine Association of Detective and Protective Agency
Operators (PADPAO) and in celebration of their 45th anniversary

[Delivered at the Westin Philippine Plaza Hotel CCP Complex, Roxas Blvd., Manila, November 27, 2003]

Thank you very much Father.

Friends, ladies and gentlemen:

When your organizers invited me today, they said that you a me to speak about I want to be remembered for. I think that the best way to do this would be to speak on the experience I gained during my two in a half years of learning curve in the presidency. What I've learned about the deep changes in the system and the principled unity that need to be done if we are to bring our country to real political and social stability and real economic development.

While historically our economic development has been slow compared to our neighbors. I thank god that despite the difficulties we perceive in our country, during my administration as acknowledged by the APEC research secretariat we have been posting a growth rate that is number six over-all among the 21 economies of the Asia pacific!

In fact this year we are achieving our highest growth since the Asian crunch of 1997. That performance I believe no, not I believe, that performance as per our national income accounts, owed much to the increased activity in telecommunications and in retail. In telecommunications, I would like to think that one reason why it grew by leaps and bounds is partly that during my administration bandwidth became cheaper and more accessible. And as far as retail is concerned, though we see a lot of negatives in the media, the growth of retail can only reflect positive consumer confidence, as I said, despite the negatives that are expressed so loudly. Incidentally, the structure of this growth jibes with what I said way back in my first state of the nation address in 2001, that the growth sectors of our future are in the service sector.

And I would like to believe that civil society shares in the accomplishments of my administration—people like Dinky, people like Ging, people like Vicky, they have been a central part of how we have done our strategic directions. And beneath the macroeconomic growth rate that I have pointed out, beneath the obvious leading sectors of the economy telecoms and retail, lie a number of things that we are able to do in terms of addressing governance, a preferential option for the poor, and the long-festering national divisions.

On the preferential option for the poor, notwithstanding that people complain about high prices, we have been able to keep the price of what we call wage goods stable — the basic necessities bought by the poor, meaning regular milled rice, the fish of the common folk, especially tilapia, and the medicines commonly bought by the poor. For medicines bought by the poor lo, I believe we need deeper reforms so that we can really say that medicines bought by them are half the price of what we inherited in 2001.

We've been able to bring interest rates down, and small and medium enterprises have gobbled up the credit programs that we have designed for them. The stable prices of these wage goods reflect a low inflation rate, which together with the low interest rate and steady growth rate regime are a result of our macroeconomic market reforms, including keeping the budget deficit within manageable levels and improving fiscal performance through disciplined spending.

But my learning curve has taught me that we must reform the market more fundamentally to make it a market that creates enough jobs and opportunities for our vast and young population.

We must build the long term underpinnings of infrastructure, telecommunications, electric power, expanded credit and to be able to afford these, we must have deep fiscal reforms. We must broaden education to sharpen the intellectual competitiveness of our country.

I believe in investing in education reform, because I believe as I said ,way back again in my first state of the nation address, that the Philippines' greatest resource is the Filipino skill and the Filipino mind. And again I repeat what I said in my first state of the nation address about the growth sector of our future being in services. With education reform, it will be particularly in the human resource- intensive, skills intensive service sectors.

If we have been able to keep food for the poor stable in supply and in price, it is also because I believe to a large part of what my administration has done to modernize agriculture. We spend at least 20 billion pesos a year for agricultural modernization, that is an unprecedented allocation. Rice productivity has reached a new bounty with the propagation of hybrid rice, which has been doubling the harvest of farmers that they've used that hybrid rice. That hybrid rice can only grow well in irrigated areas and we have also the biggest irrigation program in history.

We've found new markets for tuna, carageenan, and tropical fruits. In fact general Victor Corpus, who is now the head of the Civil Relations Service of the Armed Forces believes that the massive propagation of carageenan in the coastal areas south of Manila –meaning Batangas, Bicol, Visayas, all the way to Mindanao will be an important answer to insurgency and secession. As a boost to agriculture, Secretary Marita Jimenez who is my Secretary for priority project in ODA has helped me to reduce the cost of food transport from Mindanao to Luzon by cutting the red tape to bring about what is call the roll-on roll-off ferry highway system. This is part of her general program to cut red tape to make sure crucial infrastructure are built.

But we must liberate the economy, the country with deeper reforms in agriculture, for it is where the keenest struggle for survival takes place. Pagkain sa bawat mesa, means not only the mesa of the people in the urban areas even the farmers themselves. No Filipino who works hard for family and country must be deprived of a decent meal.

Pagkain sa bawat mesa has always been to me if we were to have a battle cry that's been my battle cry since my senate days. It's a duty to every Filipino. A commitment that cannot be compromised no matter what. And we must put a real wealth in the hands of our farmers. We must empower the farmers by enabling them, empowering them to turn their farm land into credit-worthy assets, this is the principle of Hernando de Sotro the great Latin-American social scientist and this principle has been demonstrated successfully in many other developing countries. And they have also been applied now in countries that are doing even well , have been doing well like Thailand.

Hernando de Sotro, is a celebrated author of the principle of unlocking the mystery of capital that is locked in land. It is my inspiration for asset reform. If you want to know what deep reforms we have to make in land, I could give a separate lecture on Hernando de Sotro but I would just suggest for those who want to know please read Hernando de Sotro.

In so short a time of two in a half years of my administration also, again following that principle, we have accomplished one of the most massive housing programs undertaken by any administration. But we must do deeper reforms in our social assets, we call this asset reform and sometimes people tell me asset reform. And sometimes people tell me –asset reform please don't talk about the heads of people even businessmen don't understand asset reform . But I've got to explain it because it is so, you know it is so deep in our program of government. It is language used by Ging Deles. And what are we talking about assets ?–land, credit, minimum basic needs.

As far as land is concerned too, we have given an unprecedented number of the rural , ah, no, of the urban poor the right to buy the land they occupy. But to truly liberate the urban poor, we need deeper reforms than this. Hernando de Sotro has done this in a lot of Latin-American countries. He is doing it now in Thailand — a whole comprehensive set of reforms in the titling system dedicated by that model and I have asked him to study particularly this system for our country.

Credit is an asset and part of our asset reform in credit is microfinance. We are providing microcredit to one million asset less rural women, and being praised for it by no less than the author of the Grameen bank model itself, Dr. Yunus of Bangladesh. But one million asset less, income less rural women, when we have maybe 25 million poor families? Oh no, poor people I mean, so but beyond that, we still have to do fiscal and banking reforms that we allow us to provide again Thailand is doing, because I study other successful models. Thailand in the last two years did a one-time seed fund of P1 million Baht in microfinance per village and it doubled the growth rate of Thailand in the last two years.

When Thaksin first started to do it, and everybody made fun of him “gimmick” sabi nila. But two years later, other countries like South Korea and the Philippines are trying to replicate it.

Our programs are what we’ve done within the present system but they must graduate into fundamental reforms. But we can only do this if we work hard enough on governance reforms. Through my two and a half years of the learning curve, I have learned the complexities of the bureaucracy. The World Bank has praised our vigilant advances in fighting corruption it is acknowledged that we have been effective in our lifestyle checks and procurement reforms. The people’s dissatisfaction about government services are also being addressed. There have been dramatic changes in the land transportation office, and I’ve been inspecting surprised visits. I’ve been doing surprised visits to police stations. But once and for all, we need deep reforms to end graft and we need to do that with the mighty hand of political will and a change of values among our citizenry.

Ending corruption is not done by St. Michael coming down and slaying the dragon with one’s well, one fells swoop of his sword. It is done by, it is like, corruption is like an infected wound that must be cured by constant healing and disinfecting. Systems changed combined with prosecution.

At the same time, we must use our fiscal reforms to have a better compensated civil service. That is the key to the graft-free civil service of Singapore and Hongkong. Aside from the values, they’re well paid but the... Reform doing that again is fiscal reforms.

It is also important, and I’m glad Dr. Abueva’s here to reform our system through constitutional change. We must begin a meaningful and dispassionate debate on changes in the constitution, particularly the parliamentary and federal form of government.

To strengthen our republic, we must make it more secure.

We need to reform our protective institutions because of the imperatives of peace and order, the war against terrorism, and the vision of a drug-free Philippines by 2005.

In my administration we increased the salaries of policemen and soldiers to make it the same level as the teachers, but we need to do deeper reforms in the military and the police, towards graft-free and dedicated organizations with the tools to enforce peace and order throughout the land, and to be true protectors of the people. The Feliciano commission which includes Father Bernas of Ateneo has given me its findings, their findings on the ongoing Philippine police reform recommission’s work headed by Justice and .. Sedfrey Ordonez should be the basis of our military and police reforms.

I have said that we must do these reforms so that we can do justice to our most important resource and that is our world competitive, world-class human resources. This is a country of intelligent people. But why are we miserable? I believe it’s because we delight in the things that divide us more than the things that unite us.

There is too much negativism and conflict in our society and I attribute much of this to the social and political divisions that exist in our country today. And if we are going to make our reforms successful, we need to heal these deep divisions. While we must have justice, we must also have reconciliation. We must put a closure to our past national divisions. We must have permanent peace in Mindanao. We must end the communist insurgency. And one reason why Ging Deles is not here with us today because she is there in Oslo having exploratory talks with new people’s army.

The long-awaited judgment on the Marcos wealth has come down and that should help put martial law behind us. But most of all, and most difficult, I believe, for civil society, we must find a closure to the deep divisions between Edsa dos and Edsa tres. And in this most difficult reconciliation I will be guided by the great fathers of our church, including the theology of principled reconciliation as expounded by Father Romeo Intengan, the provincial head of the Jesuit community in the Philippines , who is himself a leading veteran of some of the great social movements of our country.

If we must survive, national unity and reconciliation are the resolution that is non-negotiable.

We must be relentless in its pursuit. No matter how impossible it looks.

Like Jesus Christ would not change his gospel no matter how many times he would be crucified and ridicule.

No fear, no resistance should distract us from our vision. Our nightmares should not distract us from our dreams.

And I hope that you leaders of civil society, young people who would be the leaders of our country's 21st century, I hope that you can work with me in building prosperity for the greatest number of our people in a strong republic that we Filipinos dream of and rightly deserve.

Thank you very much.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 29th Philippine Business Conference and Exhibition

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 29th Philippine Business Conference and Exhibition

[Delivered on November 28, 2003]

Thank you very much, Jun.

Don Emilio Yap; Samie; Mike; Dr. Lucio Tan; Robin; Francis Chua; Peter Favila; Ann Marie Periquet; members of the diplomatic corps and international organizations; members and officers of the PCCI; members and officials of local chambers; regional governors and industry associations; nominees and awardees; honored guests; my Cabinet members; other government officials; movers and shakers of commerce and industry, good morning and a happy centennial anniversary to the chamber.

This morning, I would like to begin by counting a couple of blessings: our 5.9 percent GNP growth rate; our 4.4 percent GDP growth rate; our 22 percent growth in BOI and PEZA investments. These figures are higher than expected and while historically our economic development has been slow compared to our neighbors, this time we outperformed Taiwan, Indonesia, Singapore and South Korea. In fact, in the last two and a half years of my administration, for most of that time, we have been outperforming 15 of the 21 economies of the Asia-Pacific region. Notwithstanding that there was a lot world chaos, notwithstanding that I Inherited chaos, we were able to do that in this last two and a half years. But this last reported growth — 5.9 and 4.4 — that is our highest since the Asian crisis of 1997.

Agriculture and investments spending led the way. Macroeconomic fundamentals and aggressive agricultural modernization are paying off. It was the government who worked on the macroeconomic reform and the agricultural modernization. But the one who provided the growth, the one who provided the investment, the one who led the way to these figures were you the members of the business community. And some of those who led these growth and led these investments are right here in this hall today. They are leaders and members of the PCCI. And therefore I take this opportunity to thank you for your support.

Thank you for your support. Thank you for your investments. Thank you for your production. While others may give their opinion in words, you have given your opinion in deeds and in the dollars and pesos that you put in these investments and in this production. Thank you for your vision.

One global Philippines. I agree. To be one, we need to unite as a nation. To be global, we need fundamental changes in our system of doing politics and economics. And to be Filipino we should be proud that we have world class human resources, who not only contributed to our 4.4 percent growth rate in GDP but who also contribute to the production of countries all over the world and send back their remittances that bring about the multiplier that translates our 4.4 GDP into a 5.9 percent GNP growth rate.

In the last two and a half years of my presidency, I have gone through a learning curve. This learning curve has helped me identify on the ground what are these fundamental changes we must make in order to be truly global and how to execute them.

We need five fundamental reforms that more or less — as I look very quickly at your resolutions — conform to the ten resolutions that you gave me. In terms of the five, it's reforming the market, reforming agriculture, reforming our social assets, reforming the bureaucracy, and reforming our institutions that uphold peace and order

On the first, market reforms. I am proud of our initial market reforms on the economic front. They have kept our growth on the upward path — I've just mentioned earlier during this last two and a half years — despite the chaotic conditions I inherited and despite the grave challenges that the world itself is facing today. Fiscal prudence has kept the deficit within reasonable ceilings that's why inflation and interest rates are low.

Confidence in our political stability has held steady in the face of judicious resolution of the Oakwood incident, in the face of our gains against terrorism, and in the face of the diminishing tremors of destabilization now that the electoral fever is catching on.

But let me speak about a reform that we all recognize must be done. Let me speak about crime. You can fight crime by rub outs, but the same people who will do the rubout on a kidnapper will be the same people that will do a rubout on a Bubby Dacer. It will be the same people that will do a rubout on their political enemies. And therefore, it is going to be solved not by this double-edged swords but rather by immediate medium-term and long-term reforms.

The problem of kidnapping straddles a broad spectrum of activities, ranging from deterrence to neutralization, prosecution and final conviction of kidnappers. In the last five years, including before I became president, there had been more than 400 kidnapping cases. Thirty-six have resulted in conviction. Most of these convictions were done in my time, accomplished in my administration even if the crimes were perpetuated before my time.

Nonetheless, because we want to solve these crimes in a more effective way, last month, I appointed Secretary Angelo Reyes as our anti-kidnapping czar. In the one month of his operations, he has implemented 22 campaigns targeting six active kidnap-for-ransom group. His men arrested the man who kidnapped Connie Wong way back in 2001. His men have arrested three kidnappers of Betti Chua Sy one day after the crime was perpetrated. And these are just as important as the macroeconomic fundamentals and the agricultural modernization that we are doing.

The day after the arrest of Betti Chua Sy's kidnappers, Angie's men killed the most notorious kidnap gang leader of them all, Roberto Obeles Yap, together with some of his cohorts, and arrested several other members of that gang in Bataan and Cabanatuan. His men have captured Abu Sophia kidnapper gang members in Mindanao. And his men have also been able to have several other arrests and captures that I will no longer mention because I picked the few household names just to show you how he has been catching up very quickly in one month's time.

Angie has also been conducting lectures and seminars to selected Chinese groups and communities designed to harden potential targets of kidnapping. Prominent private schools in Manila and Quezon City have also been invited to participate in this preemptive anti-kidnap drive.

I have also authorized Angie Reyes to establish additional police outposts that may double as assistance centers located in areas where, according to his study, kidnappings may occur. Policemen will be made to walk the beat in order to show police presence. Mobile and fixed checkpoints shall be conducted. Choke points going to metro manila will be watched. Heavily tinted vehicles will be checked. Armed men and uniformed men riding in civilian vehicles will be challenged. Vehicles with questionable plate numbers will be questioned. Special plates are not exempt from inspection.

We are also including kidnap-for-ransom personalities in the government rewards list for most wanted persons. I am making available 300 million pesos for these rewards. Pictures will be published in newspapers and posted in conspicuous places such as bus terminals, public schools, public markets, private schools and target communities. These are what we are doing in the immediate term, but in the medium-term we need more reforms.

In the medium-term or short and medium term, I shall certify a bill that will add more teeth to laws dealing with kidnapping. I am instructing the Department of Justice to make the witness protection program more responsive to kidnap victims. I'm also pushing for the implementation of the national id system. And of course... Yes, thank you. Thank you for agreeing. I hope the members of congress who are here will hear that — Monico Puentevella. We shall further develop our capability for intelligence.

These are short and medium term reforms. But in the longer term we need fundamentally to reform our protective institutions. We increased the salaries of policemen and military personnel to the level of teachers during my administration. And I'm very glad that in the reforms we had made in the anti-drug campaign we have achieved unprecedented success in our drive against illegal drugs. Many of those who used to be untouchable in previous supposed drug campaigns have been touched and arrested and neutralized today.

But as I said, we need to fundamentally reform the military and the police, towards graft-free and dedicated organizations with the tools to enforce peace and order throughout the land, and to be true protectors of the people.

I want to thank the leaders of the PCCI, Mike and the other leaders, Jun, Donald, the members of the federation of the Filipino-Chinese chambers, because they were active in the PNP... No, in the Feliciano Commission and also in the PNP Reform Commission that will give us the road map for police reform. And that's why I'm glad that part of the resolutions is about the governance regarding peace and order because our road map has and will have a significant institutional contribution from no less than the PCCI itself. And I thank you for that. On military reforms, our major non-NATO ally status with the United States will enable us to have a modern armed forces with less pain to the economy.

But going back to market reforms. As I said, I am proud of the initial reforms such as what we could do in two and a half years. But we need structural reforms for the government to broaden its fiscal controls and capabilities, provide the infrastructure and the education needed to leverage the nation's competitive advantages, and promote a business-friendly environment based on good governance and a strong, deep financial and banking system.

The next key area for reform is the electric power industry reform. And I am very happy to receive again the inputs of the chamber because the details of these reforms I talked about — infrastructure, education and human resource development — are things that we will put together, PCCI and the Philippine government.

Meanwhile, speaking about electric power, I am requesting the Energy Regulatory Commission to work with Meralco and the PCCI to formulate a program to speed up the ongoing consumer refund program, so that industry can benefit from refunds as well.

We achieved our growth rate this third quarter with great advances in agriculture, and that is part of our key to the future because most of poor lived there and because we need it para magkaroon ng pagkain sa bawat mesa. We must liberate the country with reforms not only in the market but in agriculture. For agricultural modernization, my administration spends at least 20 billion pesos a year on agricultural modernization. This is the highest annual allocation in our history. A great part of this is for irrigation. We have also irrigated the biggest number of hectares in history.

I see here Henry Lim, a member of your chamber. He has a great contribution to our agricultural modernization, because his rice hybrid has doubled the income... Ah, no not the income but the harvest of the farmers. We have adopted the Chinese rice hybrid system.

A hundred thousand hectares are now planted to this rice hybrid, and we can attribute that massive growth of agriculture in the third quarter to the 20 percent growth in rice production because of that rice hybrid. From the 100,000 hectares that we have been able to plant since we introduced this rice hybrid, we now want to bring it to 600,000 hectares in the next two years.

We have found new markets for tuna, Carageenan, tropical fruits. And I'm directing Secretary Cito Lorenzo here to work with Secretary Emi Boncodin for the remaining balance of the agricultural competitiveness enhancement fund. Things I have learned are important to you because of my learning curve in the last two and a half years.

As a boost to agriculture, the Ro-Ro Highway System is now reducing the cost of food transport from Mindanao to Luzon. I have noted the concern of the chamber over the 50-mile limit for cargo and handling charges for Ro-Ro users exemptions. So, in response to your concern, I have removed the 50-mile limit. That is why we now have a new Ro-Ro route from Cagayan de Oro to Dumaguete to Manila.

We must also have social reform, asset reform. Reform of our assets such as land, housing and credit. On credit, small enterprises are on a roll. They are fuelled by low interest loans and more than 16 billion pesos had been made and availed of by almost 200,000 small and medium enterprises in this year alone.

We are providing microcredit to one million assetless, incomeless rural women. And we're being praised for this microcredit program by no less than the author of the Grameen bank model himself, Dr. Yunus. But beyond that, beyond the 16 billion for SMEs, beyond the micro for one million women, if we're able to do fiscal and banking reforms, we can do even more and we can allow a one-time seed fund of one million in microfinance per barangay as proven successful in Thailand, as you all very well know, because I invited Prime Minister Thaksin to speak before you so that you will know the model I am following in the reforms that we want to make for our small, medium and micro enterprise system. And if you remember last year, I announced the passage of the law on barangay micro enterprises.

Upon the PCCI's recommendation, I am directing Secretary Joey Lina to coordinate with the agencies on the local government level for a stepped up campaign on this barangay microbusiness enterprise law. I announced it to you last year but it takes time for it to reach the barangay level. So let us work on an information campaign.

On housing. Our socialized housing program is also part of the most massive land social reform program we have had in history. And I am very happy by the repeated statement of the housing associations, they feel that our housing program is successful because my government has the most housing-friendly policies in history. That's coming from the housing sector itself not from me. And I am happy that the PCCI has taken up the advocacy of further accelerating our housing program.

These programs are such as what we could do during a learning curve period, during a period of great world instability, during a period of strife even within our country. But we can transform them and make them graduate into fundamental reforms if we work hard enough on governance reform. Again, through my two and a half years of the learning curve, I have learned the complexities of dealing with the bureaucracy. You can't learn that by theory.

The World Bank has praised our vigilant advances in fighting corruption. It has acknowledged that we have been effective in our lifestyle checks and in our procurement reforms. The government E-Procurement Law which I signed early this year is one giant step in instituting transparency. The people's dissatisfaction about day to day government services are also being addressed. There had been dramatic changes in the land transportation office. And I have been doing surprise visits to police stations.

We must end graft with the mighty hand of political will and a change of values among our citizenry. But do not believe those who will tell you that graft can be slain with one fell swoop of a sword like St. Michael slaying the dragon. Have we not forgotten how we put all our support behind Rene Bañez because he was going to use the St. Michael method to slay the dragon of corruption in the BIR. What was the result, one-half year of our achieving only one-half of our revenue targets for that 6 month period. No, fighting corruption is like an infected... Curing an infected wound that must constantly be cleansed and disinfected until it is gone. That has been the system in the BIR under Willy Parayno, it's been the system in the BOC under Titus Villanueva, and now under Tony Bernardo. And now, we are meeting our revenue targets.

At the same time, we must use our fiscal reforms to have a better compensated civil service. That is one of the most important reforms we can make in governance. And we can only do that if we can reform our fiscal programs.

We must also reform our very political system through constitutional change. And I thank the PCCI for helping me propagate that view. We must make our constitution more applicable to the challenges of the 21st century, especially because the PCCI wants the nation to be global.

But in many ways, even now we are already global. Look at our growth rates compared to our neighbors. Look at our human resources lording it over many management jobs in many parts of the world. Yes, we are a people who are world class but then, why are we so miserable?

It is because this current environment is an environment in which — and I don't blame you all here today, it's an environment I inherited — it's an environment in which we delight in the things that divide us more than the things that unite us.

There is too much negativism and conflict in our society today, and I attribute much of these to the social and political divisions that existing our nation today. We need to heal these deep divisions. While we must have justice, we must also have reconciliation. We must put a closure to our past national divisions. And I must thank the PCCI because you were one of the first to understand and support my call for reconciliation.

Because if we are to survive and even flourish in the 21st century as our comparative growth rates have shown, we can survive and flourish. National unity and reconciliation is the resolution that is non-negotiable. We must be relentless in the pursuit not only of the fundamental changes in our system of politics and economics, we must also be resolute in our pursuit of unity.

No fear, no resistance should distract us from our vision. Our nightmares, the nightmares we have gone through in the last five years, the nightmares the world is undergoing should not distract us from our dreams. Our dream of being one. Our dream of being global. Our dream of being proud Filipinos.

Thank you, PCCI for articulating these dreams.

And thank you for acting on them with your investments and your production.

Mabuhay! Happy 100th Anniversary to all of you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 4th Luzon Area Conference of the Provincial Board Members League

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 4th Luzon Area Conference of the Provincial Board Members League

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Century Park Hotel Malate, Manila, November 29, 2003]

Thank you.

Maraming salamat, President Strike Revilla. Thank you.

Salamat din Chairman Zulueta; board member Israel; board member Dominic; board member Unico; board member Conching; mga officers mula sa Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao; mga Delegado.

Batiin ko rin si Attorney Romy Macalintal, si Mrs. Manzanillaat kayong lahat, magandang umaga.

Mabuti't nakakapunta pa kayo sa komperensiya sa kabila ng lahat pulitika na ang iniisip. Thank you very much for your dedication to your work of governance.

Already, the political landscape is rife with intrigues, controversies, speculations. The people seem to be abandoned in the midst of loud and excessive politicking. I'm glad you're here not to aggravate the situation but to continue your work. I also will not aggravate the situation.

I'm resolved to make my days more useful by engaging in meaningful events of vital public interest. Perhaps one of the reforms we must pursue in our political culture is the premature hype on partisan issues very early in the day that tends to project us as a severely divided bickering nation.

Alam n'yo talagang maraming hidwaan sa ating bansa. Eh, kung ginagawa natin 'yon lumalala 'yung hidwaan. Dapat asikasuhin natin 'yung maraming mga bagay kung saan tayo nagkakaisa.

Our people are united behind democracy, civility and good governance. And these are the ideals we must carry with them not the preoccupation with heady partisan issues that is a distraction to nation-building. There will be a time for the lines to be drawn and this is more than two months away. Let's just welcome the holiday season in the spirit of reform and unity and try to help the people surmount their difficulties.

I am proud of our gains on the macroeconomic front. Our growth rate is higher than expected, higher than that of 15 of the 21 economies of the Asia-Pacific, and higher than at any time since the 1997 Asian crisis. Huwag natin pakawalan ito sa lubhang pamumulitika. The budget deficit at the national level has been kept at manageable levels. But let me tell you, at the local government level, not only is there a managed budget deficit, you have actually a budget surplus at the local levels. So congratulations to you local legislators.

The Bangko Sentral has the tools to maintain the stability of the exchange rate, and we are confident in the BSP's capacity to use these tools willfully and competently as in the past. I must warn speculators not to test the government's policy determination. In the meantime, it would help much if people can shake off the election fever and get on with more productive endeavors. Let's all team up behind political and economic stability and make a strong collective pitch for law and order and development.

Halimbawa tayo — you and your boards, me and my budget — let's together invest more in education because that is the country's greatest resource — its people.

My administration has spent on the biggest irrigation program in history. Ngayon kayo namang mga board, sana tulungan n'yo 'yung magsasaka to be able to access hybrid rice seeds so that they can use these irrigated lands and the hybrid rice seeds you can help them with, so they can more than double their harvest.

Alam n'yo kahapon sa meeting sa PCCI, kinuwento ko nga 'yung hybrid rice. At 'yung isang tumulong na dalhin 'yung hybrid rice mula sa China, si Ginoong Henry Lim, kagabi meron siyang kinuwento sa akin. Kahapon lumabas... Sabi ko, not only double he said some farmers have tripled and quadrupled. Okay, anyway, I speak... Pero sabi ko at the very least doubled.

Kagabi nakita ko siya and he was telling me a story. That one time there was a meeting in Malacañang, inimbita 'yung mga magsasakang gumamit ng hybrid. Iyon na nga doble ang kanilang ang ani nila, halos lahat at maraming triple pa at four times. 'Di ba, board member Calderon, doon din sa ano 'di ba, sa Isabela? Hindi ba ganun ang karanasan ng magsasaka doon? Okay. Anyway, 'di pumunta sila sa Malacañang 'yung mga magsasaka, 'di nakagamit nang karaniwang gamit. Eto namang negosyante parating naka-amerikana. So, siya naka-amerikana. Noong nakita niya naka-ordinaryo 'yung ibang mga magsasaka, sabi niya, "ay, I'm sorry tatanggalin ko iyung amerikana ko." sabi nung magsasaka sa kanya, "huwag mo nang tanggalin, Mr. Lim, kasi baka sa isang taon kami rin naka-amerikana na." because some of them are earning 70,000, 90,000 pesos. Things that they have never seen before, the more productive ones among them. And these are some of the reforms that we can do and we must do.

We must reform also our social assets — land, credit, minimum basic needs. In these social assets, the national government has given an unprecedented number of people the right to buy the land they occupy. It has provided an unprecedented number of incomeless, assetless rural women access to microcredit through the Grameen NGOs. It has provided an unprecedented number of the poor access to health insurance. But I want to thank you local governments. Salamat sa mga local governments dahil meron sa inyo nag-counterpart sa gastos sa land titling. Meron sa inyo naggastos sa pagpondo sa microfinance. Meron kayo... Ang dami sa inyo nag-contribute sa premium sa health insurance ng inyong mga mahihirap. Kaya itong unprecedented na sinasabi ko, magkasama tayong gumawa noon. Kaya salamat sa inyo.

Ilang taon na 'yung Local Government Code? 12, 'di ba? Naalala ko noong 12th anniversary ng Local Government Code, iyung presidente ng ULAP, si Dolfo Del Rosario, sinabi niya 'yung 12 unprecedented things I did for the LGUs. Isa doon, I have released to you in full all past LGSEF obligations including those incurred before my time. Sana sa inyong budget deliberations gamitin n'yo ang bahagi nito rin para sa microfinance kasi ang dami-daming mahihirap sa ating mga probinsiya na pag may microfinance makakakinabang sila.

The World Bank has praised our vigilant advances in fighting corruption, acknowledging that we have been effective in our lifestyle checks and procurement reforms. Kayo rin magagawa rin ninyo itong mga ordinansiya sa inyong provincial board. And this will also help very much in tying up our common efforts. We have already... Iyung ID, pwede kayong gumawa ng provincial id sa inyong provincial board. We've already several official ID systems in place such as the voters' ID, the SSS ID, driver's license, not to mention the millions of corporate ID cards and credit cards being used everyday. Our people have accepted all these instruments of political and economic facilitation. And I don't see how a national id system can be portrayed as an oppressive instrument. We are simply trying to consolidate what has been done for decades in a single, verifiable and foolproof instrument to deter criminals and terrorists and deprive them of sanctuary among our law abiding citizens. Let's pursue this program for a safer and more progressive nation. Habang hinihintay natin 'yung kongreso na i-consolidate lahat nito sa isang national ID, meron akong lang mga kilala mga local governments na gumagawa na nang id sa kanilang munisipyo — Taguig; doon sa Cebu, ano, board member? Kaya 'yon din ang isang pwede n'yong gawin. You can do a provincial resolution to provide for a provincial ID. Let's show these criminals that the law never sleeps and that they cannot escape it.

Wala ring tigil ang ating economic diplomacy na ito naman ay pinanggagalingan ng napakalaking tulong ng mga bansa para sa ating mga kaunlaran. Marami kayong may nakikitang mga ODA. Marami kayong may nakikitang mga investors na bago. In fact, 22 percent ang increase sa investments natin this year. Marami doon ay either nakumbinsi as the final decision or naenganyo as a first attraction sa aking pagbisita sa kanila.

Patuloy akong makikipag-ugnay sa inyo sa pagtaguyod ng pagbabago at pagkakaisa. And on this day, I thank you for being here, thinking of work rather than politics. And I encourage you to continue gearing your actions towards tangible and concrete results and accomplishments.

Muli, mga board members, maraming salamat sa inyong malasakit sa inyong trabaho.

Mabuhay tayong lahat!

At congratulations din sa mga nag-graduate ng Entrepreneurial Development Seminar ng labor office ng Philippine Embassy at samahang pilipino.

Gaya nang sabi ni Ambassador Siazon, nagkikita tayo every six months. This time ako ay narito upang dumalo sa Asean-Japan Summit.

Doon naman sa Pilipinas, napakaaga uminit ang kampanya. Kaya mas masaya ako rito kapiling ninyo. I leave to the opposition the task of threshing out their problems. Meanwhile, with your support, I shall forge ahead with reforms and changes in the system, and with unity and reconciliation in all aspects of our national life.

I had a very productive meeting with Prime Minister Koizumi yesterday. And as I mentioned earlier, I met Prime Minister Badawi of Malaysia today, and tonight I am meeting you, our overseas Filipinos in Japan. First and foremost, to thank you once again for the sacrifices you are making for our country.

Para sa akin — Koizumi, Badawi and you — are the people who make our country move forward. My meetings yesterday with Koizumi, my meeting today with Badawi, and my meeting with you tonight are the events that are carving forward the path of stability and progress for our nation. And I'm determined to push forward in this path even through the campaigns and elections of 2004. My priority is good governance and I shall keep at it with undeterred focus.

My pledges moving forward are based on the experience of what we have done in the past two and a half years that I have been visiting you as president: bring the deficit under control, clamp down on inflation, increase growth, increase tax revenues and expose government corruption.

‘Yung exposing government corruption, binabati ang Pilipinas ng world bank dahil sabi nila mabisa ‘yung lifestyle checks na ginagawa ng aking administrasyon. At ‘yung bagong batas na pinasa ng ating mga congressmen — ‘yung Electronic Procurement law — ay nababawasan din ang katiwalian sa ating government purchases.

‘Yon namang increase growth, nitong nakaraang quarter, ang ating ekonomiya ay nagpatala ng 4.4 percent GDP growth at 5.9 percent GNP growth, pinakamataas mula noong Asian crisis ng 1997 at ika-anim tayo sa dalawampu’t isang ekonomiya ng Asia at Pacific. alam n’yo 4.4 percent ang GDP, 5.9 percent ang GNP. Ano ba ang diperensya? Ang diperensiya ay ang inyong mga remittances. kasi ‘yung 4.4 percent na umangat, produksyon sa loob ng Pilipinas. Dinadagdag ‘yung produksyon ninyo na binibilang ang inyong remittances nadagdagan ng 1.8 percentage points ang pag-angat ng ating bansa dahil sa inyong remittances. Ibig sabihin, gumaganda ang takbo ng ating ekonomiya dahil na rin sa lumalaking remittances na pinapadala ninyo mga overseas Filipinos sa inyong mga pamilya.

Kaya nais ko kayong pasalamatang muli sa malaking tulong sa ating ekonomiya, na ang ipinadala ninyong pera sa inyong mga pamilya talagang maituturing na kayo mga overseas Filipino investors dahil ang inyong remittances ay nagsisilbing investments ninyo sa ating bansa.

Talagang malaking tulong ang inyong remittances dahil ang bansang hapon ay pangatlo sa pangunahing destination ng ating OFWs noong nakaraang taon. Number one, Saudi Arabia, one million Filipinos. Number two, Malaysia more than half a million Filipinos. Number three, ang bilang ng OFWs sa Japan ay tumaas ngayon halos 300,000 na ang overseas Filipino workers dito sa Japan. At inaasahan nating dadami pa ito sa mga sektor ng health care at information technology dahil sa usapan namin ni Prime Minister Koizumi. Gumagawa tayo ng negotiation para sa ganoon ang mga caregivers at I.T. professionals ay lalong makakapasok dito sa Japan.

Kayong mga narito na — you are champions of our country’s socioeconomic development.

Ang classrooms mula sa mga mamamayang Pilipino sa labas ay isang magandang halimbawa. Sa maikling panahon lamang ay daang-daang classrooms ang ipapatayo sa ating bansa dahil sa inyong tulong. Dito sa Japan, there are already forty pledges and donations that had been received for this project of classrooms for our people.

‘Yung tourism volunteer program rin, ito ay magandang halimbawa rin. Sa tulong ninyo ‘yung ating mga tourism volunteers, maraming turistang hapon ang patuloy na pumupunta sa ating bansa. We have already welcomed almost 300,000 Japanese visitors this year to the Philippines. And now Japan is our second largest source of tourists. Salamat sa inyong mga volunteer tourists marketers dito.

Kaya alam naman ninyo, ipinasa na ng ating mga congressmen 'yung Overseas Voting law, ganoon na rin 'yung Dual Citizenship Law, kung saan kahit na Japanese na kayo, pwede rin kayo maging Pilipino pa, pwede kayong bumili ng lupa at bahay at negosyo sa Pilipinas.

Pinasa rin ng ating mga congressmen 'yung Anti-Money Laundering law para hindi kayo mahirapan. Pag nagre-remit kayo ng pera sa Pilipinas kung hindi pumasa 'yung Anti-Money Laundering law, grabe sana, katakot-takot ang red tape na inyong pagka-remit kaya kinailangan pumasa 'yung money laundering law para sa ganun regular ang inyong remittances sa ating bansa. Kaya 'yon ay para sa inyo rin.

Pinalawak rin natin 'yung ating programang pabahay para sa mga manggagawa, para isama ang overseas Filipinos. Sana bukas bumili kayo ng bahay para sa inyong mga minamahal sa Pilipinas. Kasi nandito 'yung PAG-IBIG ngayon sa hapon upang makatulong sa inyong bumili ng bahay para sa mga kamag-anak ninyo sa Pilipinas o kaya para sa inyong retirement. Ambassador Siazon told me that paskong Pilipino is a two-day event. We have tonight and tomorrow another party. Tomorrow, there will be a housing fair and exhibit. Makikita ninyo iyung mga bahay na ang ganda-ganda ng installment kaya talagang kayang-kaya ng ating overseas Filipinos. Kaya eto ay ginagawa natin para sa inyo.

Doon naman sa Pilipinas, tuloy-tuloy ang ating laban kontra sa kahirapan at kontra sa krimen. Siguro narinig n'yo, nahuli si Kumander Robot. Ito ay isang malaking dagok sa bandidong Abu Sayyaf. We want and we shall pursue justice for the Sipadan hostages just like any other kidnapping cases. We are determined to show terrorists and criminals that such heinous crimes will not go unpunished and that there will always be an end of the road in the hands of the criminal justice system. Let the truth come out from all corners so that the public can see who deserves just retribution among the criminals and their cohorts.

Moving forward, what do I want to do for our country? I want to build the infrastructure necessary for a modern nation, from roads — halimbawa, 'yung North Expressway papuntang Pampanga; 'yung South Expressway papuntang Batangas — inaayos natin ngayon. I also want to build high-speed internet. I also want to improve health care access para lahat ng kamag-anak ninyo may Philhealth insurance. and I want to be able to raise enough resources and revenues to be able to redouble spending on education. Doon natin gagastusin ang dagdag na mga taxes na ating makokolekta sa mga bagong batas.

Ngunit kailangan rin na mahilom ang malalim na hidwaan sa ating lipunan. Dito sa Japan, maraming association pero nagkakaisa. Sa Pilipinas, ang lalim-lalim nang mga sugat sa ating bansa. May NPA, may sundalo, nag-aaway. May MILF, may mga kristiyanong takot sa muslims, nag-aaway. At higit sa lahat, may EDSA 2, may EDSA 3. Sa gitna ng NPA at sundalo, nandoon 'yung karaniwang mamamayan, ayaw na nila ng awayan, ayaw na nila ng giyera. Sa gitna naman ng mga Muslim at iyung mga anti-Muslim, nandoon din 'yung nakararami, gusto na nila ituloy na lang magnegosyo, maghanapbuhay. Sa kabila ng EDSA 2 at EDSA 3, nandoon din 'yung ating silent majority, gusto na nila ng reconciliation. At nababasa ko ang kanilang mensahe sa akin na ako ay dapat maging pangulo hindi lamang ng EDSA 2, dapat rin pangulo ng EDSA 3. Kaya sa kabila ng mga repormang kailangan para labanan ang kahirapan, labanan ang katiwalian, labanan ang krimen, kailangan din natin ang nagkakaisa at reconciliation.

Kayo kayo, aking mga kaibigan dito sa hapon, sana tulungan ninyo ako sa paghanap ng mga reporma at pagbabago sa ating mga sistema, ngunit tulungan din ninyo ako na kausapin ang inyong mga minamahal sa buhay sa Pilipinas sa ganun makakamit natin ang pagkakaisang hinahanap ninyo para sa ating mga darating na henerasyon.

Sa inyong lahat, tamang-tama pinag-uusapan ang reconciliation lalo na ngayon dahil panahon ng pasko, it is time for peace on earth to men of goodwill. Sa inyong lahat, mga minamahal kong kababayan sa Japan, it is my pleasure to be with you again on yet another Christmas party.

To you all, Merry Christmas! Minamahal kayo ng Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo to the leaders the Overseas Filipino Workers in Japan

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
To the leaders the Overseas Filipino Workers in Japan

[Delivered at Takanawa Prince Hotel, Tokyo, Japan, December 12, 2003]

OVERSEAS FILIPINO WORKERS: THE JAPAN CONNECTION

Mga leaders ng mga Filipino communities ng Tokyo, Osaka at buong Japan, iba't-ibang mga organisasyon at mga matatagumpay na mga indibidwal na binati ko na kanina, mga minamahal kong kababayan dito sa Japan, Maligayang Pasko sa inyong lahat.

Gaya nang sabi ni Ambassador Siazon, nagkikita tayo every six months. This time ako ay narito upang dumalo sa ASEAN-Japan Summit. Doon naman sa Pilipinas, napakaagang uminit ng kampanya, kaya mas masaya ako rito kapiling ninyo. I leave to the opposition the task of threshing out their problems. My pledges of moving forward are based on the experiences of what we have done in the past two and a half years when I have been visiting you as president: bring the deficit under control, clamp down on inflation, increase growth, increase tax revenues and expose government corruption.

Yaong exposing government corruption, binabati ang Pilipinas ng World Bank dahil sabi nila mabisa iyong lifestyle checks na ginagawa ng aking administrasyon. At yung bagong batas na ipinasa ng ating mga congressmen — yaong Electronic Procurement Law — ay naglalayon din na mabawasan ang katiwalian sa ating government purchases.

Iyon namang increase growth, nitong nakaraang quarter, ang ating ekonomiya ay nagtala ng 4.4 percent GDP growth at 5.9 percent GNP growth, pinakamataas mula noong Asian crisis ng 1997, at ika-anim tayo sa dalawampu't isang ekonomiya ng Asia at Pacific. Alam ninyo 4.4 percent ang GDP, 5.9 percent ang GNP, ano ba ang diperensya? Ang diperensiya ay ang inyong mga remittances. Kasi yaong 4.4 percent na umangat, produksyon sa loob ng Pilipinas. Idinadagdag 'yung produksyon ninyo na kabilang ang inyong remittances, kung kaya't nadagdagan ng 1.8 percentage points ang pag-angat ng ating bansa. Ito'y dahil sa inyong remittances. Ibig sabihin gumaganda ang takbo ng ating ekonomiya dahil na rin sa lumalaking remittances na ipinapadala ninyong mga overseas Filipinos sa inyong mga pamilya.

Kaya, nais ko kayong pasalamatang muli sa malaking tulong ninyo sa ating ekonomiya. Dahil sa mga ipinapadala ninyong pera sa inyong mga pamilya talagang maituturing na kayong mga overseas Filipino investors dahil ang inyong remittances ay nagsisilbing investments ninyo sa ating bansa.

Talagang malaking tulong ang inyong mga remittances dahil ang bansang Hapon ay pangatlo sa pangunahing destinasyon ng ating OFWs noong nakaraang taon. Ang number one ay ang Saudi Arabia na may bilang na one million Filipinos. Number two, Malaysia more than half a million Filipinos. Number three, ang bilang ng OFWs sa Japan ay tumaas ngayon halos 300,000 na ang overseas Filipino workers dito sa Japan. At inaasahan na dadami pa ito sa mga sector ng Health Care at Information Technology dahil sa usapan namin ni Prime Minister Koizumi. Gumagawa tayo ng negotiation para sa ganoon ang mga caregivers at I.T. professionals ay makapasok dito sa Japan.

Kayong mga narito na — you are champions of our country's socioeconomic development.

Ang classrooms mula sa mga mamamayang Filipino sa labas ay isang magandang halimbawa. Sa maikling panahon lamang ay daan-daang classrooms ang naipapatayo sa ating bansa dahil sa inyong tulong. Dito sa Japan, there are already forty pledges and donations that had been received for this project of classrooms for our people.

Yaong Tourism Volunteer Program, ito ay magandang halimbawa rin. Dahil sa tulong ninyo, yaong ating mga tourism volunteers, maraming turistang Hapon ang patuloy na pumupunta sa ating bansa. We have already welcomed almost 300,000 Japanese visitors to the Philippines this year. And now Japan is our second largest source of tourists. Salamat sa inyong mga volunteer tourists marketers dito.

Dahil sa inyong mga pagsisikap dito sa Japan at kabayanihan sa pagtulong sa ating pag-unlad, nais ko lamang ibalik sa inyo ang pagtulong sa pamamagitan ng mga programang mapapakinabangan ninyo at ng inyong mga mahal sa buhay sa Pilipinas.

Kaya alam naman ninyo, ipinasa na ng ating mga congressmen yaong Overseas Voting Law, ganoon din iyong Dual Citizenship Law, kung saan kahit na Japanese citizen na kayo, pwede pa rin kayong maging Pilipino, pwede kayong bumili ng lupa at bahay at negosyo sa Pilipinas.

Naipasa na rin ng ating mga congressmen yaong Anti-Money Laundering Law para hindi kayo mahirapan. Pag nagremit kayo ng pera sa Pilipinas kung hindi naipasa 'yung Anti-Money Laundering Law, grabe sana, katakut-takot ang red tape. Kaya kinailangang maipasa iyong Anti-Money Laundering Law para sa ganun regular ang inyong remittances sa ating bansa. Kaya iyon ay para sa inyo rin.

Pinalawak din natin iyong ating programang pabahay para sa mga manggagawa at maisama ang overseas Filipinos. Sana bukas bumili kayo ng bahay para sa inyong mga minamahal sa Pilipinas. Nandito ngayon ang Pag-IBIG dito sa sa Japan upang makatulong sa inyo sa pagbili ninyo ng bahay para sa mga kamag-anak ninyo sa Pilipinas o kaya para sa inyong retirement. Ambassador Siazontold me that Paskong Pilipino is a two-day event. We have tonight and tomorrow for another party. Tomorrow, there will be a housing fair and exhibit. Makikita ninyo iyung mga bahay na ang ganda-ganda ng installment kaya talagang kayang-kaya ng ating overseas Filipinos. Lahat ng ito ay ginagawa natin para sa inyo.

Doon naman sa Pilipinas, tuluy-tuloy ang ating laban kontra sa kahirapan at kontra sa krimen. Siguro narinig na ninyo na nahuli na si Kumander Robot. Ito ay isang malaking dagok sa bandidong Abu Sayyaf. We want and we shall pursue justice for the Sipadan hostages just like any other kidnapping cases. We are determined to show terrorists and criminals that such heinous crimes will not go unpunished and that there will always be an end of the road in the hands of the criminal justice system. Let the truth come out from all corners, so that the public can see who deserves just retribution among the criminals and their cohorts.

Moving forward, what do I want to do for our country? I want to build the infrastructure necessary for a modern nation, from roads: halimbawa, yaong North Expressway papuntang Pampanga; yaong South Expressway papuntang Batangas — inaayos natin ngayon. I also want to build high-speed Internet. I also want to improve health care access para lahat ng kamag-anak ninyo may PhilHealth insurance. And I want to be able to raise enough resources and revenues to be able to redouble spending on education. Doon natin gagastusin ang dagdag na mga taxes na ating makokolekta sa mga bagong batas.

Ngunit kailangan rin na mahilom ang malalim na hidwaan sa ating lipunan. Dito sa Japan, maraming associations pero nagkakaisa. Sa Pilipinas, ang lalim-lalim ng mga sugat sa ating bansa. May NPA, may sundalo, nag-aaway. May MILF, may mga Kristiyanong takot sa Muslims, nag-aaway. At higit sa lahat, may EDSA 2, may EDSA 3. Sa gitna ng NPA at sundalo, nandoon iyong mga karaniwang mamamayan. Ayaw na nila ng awayan, ayaw na nila ng giyera. Sa gitna naman ng mga Muslim at yung mga anti-Muslim, nandoon din yung nakararami, na walang ibang gusto kung hindi maipagpatuloy na lang pagnenegosyo, paghahanapbuhay. Sa kabila ng EDSA 2 at EDSA 3, nandoon din yaong ating silent majority, gusto na nila ng reconciliation. At nababasa ko ang kanilang mensahe sa akin na ako ay dapat maging pangulo hindi lamang ng EDSA 2, dapat rin pangulo ng EDSA 3. Kaya, sa kabila ng mga repormang kailangan para labanan ang kahirapan, labanan ang katiwalian, labanan ang krimen, kailangan din natin angpagkakaisa at reconciliation.

Kayo, aking mga kaibigan dito sa Hapon, sana tulungan niny

Speech of President Arroyo at the Christmas Party of OFWs in Japan

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Christmas Party of OFWs in Japan

[Main Exhibition Hall, Hong Kong International Trade and Exhibit Center Kowloon, Hong Kong, December 14, 2003]

SALUTING OVERSEAS FILIPINO WORKERS IN HONG KONG

Gusto ko magpasalamat sa I-Remit Global Remittance at Confed Properties sa kanilang pagtulong sa ating Christmas Party ngayon dahil sila 'yung nagbigay, nanggaling sa kanila 'yung dalawang lupa at pabahay na ating ipinamigay ngayon sa ating Christmas Party. Salamat kay Ginoong Bansan Choa.

I just want to greet all of you including all the religious groups at sa inyong lahat an advance Merry Christmas.

Salamat naman at ginamit ninyong day-off ang araw na ito para magbigay ng panahon sa aking pagbisita dito sa Hong Kong. Naalala ninyo noong tayo ay narito at magkasama sa HITEC, sabi ko sainyo, 'di bale, 'yung day-off n'yo gagawin nating makabuluhan. Bubuksan natin ang consulate para maglingkod sa inyo sa inyong day-off kaya ngayon tuluy-tuloy pa rin. Salamat sa mga taga-Hong Kong, salamat rin sa mga galing sa Macau dahil maaga kayong nag-ferry para makapunta sa pagtitipong ito. Saan 'yung mga taga-Macau? Ayun! Thank you, thank you.

At sa inyong lahat, salamat sa pagiging topnotcher sa registration para sa Overseas Absentee Voting. Dahil botante kayo gusto kong ipahayag lamang: I'm glad the opposition is moving towards unity so that we can get down to the business of threshing out the issues of the campaign. On my part, I've just finished a fruitful trip to Japan where I worked for a better deal for our OFWs and marked more gains for peace and development in Mindanao.

Palagay ko, dahil kayo ay OFW alam naman ninyo na ang Japan ay hindi bukas para sa OFW hindi kagaya ng Hong Kong. Ngunit nagkasundo kami ni Prime Minister Koizumi na simula sa Enero sisimulan na namin ang formal negotiations para makapasok sa Japan ang mga OFW. Ang napagkasunduan namin, sabi ko kay Prime Minister Koizumi, ang unang hiniling ko ay ang OFW na makapasok sa Japan ay 'yung caregivers. Kasi sabi ko kay Prime Minister Koizumi — at inamin naman niya — na ang Japan ay tinatawag na aging population, maraming mga matatanda na. Kulang ang batang Hapon pati nurses, pati midwives, pati caregivers. Kulang ang mga batang Hapon... na mag-aalaga sa kanila. Sabi ko ang ating mga caregivers na Pilipino kilalang-kilala sa buong mundo. Kilala sa Hong Kong, kilala sa Londres, kilala doon sa Sweden, kung saan nandoon si Vicky ngayon, kilala sa Canada. Eh, alam ko 'yung mga Hapon na matatanda, talagang gusto nila na may mag-aalagang Pilipinong caregiver sa kanila.

Isa pang ilalakad ko na makapasok sa Japan ang mga Information Technology professionals. After my meeting with you today, I shall leave for Bahrain. And in Bahrain, the meetings will also pursue the same thrusts at what I sought in Japan. We shall widen the range of our diplomacy to reinforce our domestic policies and programs to uplift the lives of our people. Yaong aking administration, ours is an administration that has been working across continents to bring the message of Filipino pride and pride in the Filipino's bright future. This is part of the reform and the changes in the system, and part of the unity and reconciliation we are seeking in our country as we bring all Filipinos worldwide, and at home together behind the sustained march for peace, progress and prosperity.

Sabi ko, change in system pagbabago sa sistema. Sa dalawang taon at kalahating pagkapangulo ko nakita ko na, naunawaan ko kung ano ang mga kailangang pagbabago sa aking sistema. Isa dito sa mga pagbabagong sistemang sinisikap kong gawin at lalo ko pang sisikapin na gawin ay gusto kong maitayo sa Pilipinas ang kagaya ng ginawang pagbabago dito sa Hong Kong, yaong itinatayong Independent Commission Against Corruption o ICAC. At sa pagbabagong inuumpisahan ko na ang preparasyon, ang aking adviser mismo ay walang iba kung di 'yung mismong unang nagtayo ng ICAC dito sa Hong Kong. At noong siya ay pumunta sa Pilipinas at tiningnan niya kung ano na ang inuumpisahan kong gawin para ihanda ito sa kanyang press conference, pinuri niya ang aking administrasyon dahil nakita niyang determinado ako na papag-ibayuhin ang sistema natin dito sa Pilipinas laban sa katiwalian.

Tungkol naman sa kapayapaan, siguro narinig na ninyo na nasugpo na at nahuli na si Kumander Robot siya ang leader ng kahiya-hiyang kidnapping incident sa Sipadan noong taong 2000. Now, all the surrounding issues of the Sipadan kidnapping can be given light through the judicial process and institutional investigations. Our priority is criminal justice and we will pursue this without being distracted by the peripheral issues. Let the light come out so the public will see the truth behind this most notorious incident in the history of crime and terrorism.

Tungkol naman sa kaunlaran, nitong nakaraang quarter, ayon sa ating mga statistics, ang ating growth rate sa Pilipinas ay number 6 sa dalawampu't isang ekonomiya sa Asia at Pacific. At sa ibabaw ng pag-angat ng produksyon sa loob ng Pilipinas na 4.4 percent — number six nga sa 21 economies dahil sa inyong remittances — 'yung 4.4 percent GDP growth rate ay naging 5.9 percent GNP growth rate dahil kasama ang remittances sa GNP. Kaya maraming salamat sa inyo, ang inyong remittances na nagkakahalaga ng mahigit 200 million U.S. dollars kada taon ay malaki ang naitutulong hindi lamang sa inyong pamilya kung hindi pati na rin sa ating bansa.

Kaya sa inyong mga nakikinig sa akin sa mga nakaraang pagpupulong natin siguro maaalala ninyo na laging sinasabi ko na kayo ay overseas Filipino workers, pero kayo na rin ay overseas Filipino investors dahil 'yung inyong remittances ay nagsisilbing investment sa edukasyon, sa pabahay, sa puhunan ng inyong mga minamahal sa buhay. Hindi ba investments ang lahat at ang lahat na ito ay galing sa inyo.

Nais ko namang ibalik sa inyo ang pagtulong sa pamamagitan ng mga programang mapapakinabangan ninyo at ng inyong mga mahal sa buhay sa Pilipinas.

Kaya sa ibabaw ng Overseas Voting Law, na hindi ba ilang taong ilang administrasyon, ilang Kongreso na ninyong hinintay at sa wakas ay naipasa sa loob ng aking administrasyon. At hindi lamang iyon, 'yung Anti-Money Laundering Law, iyon ay hindi lamang para hulihin ang mga money launderers, iyon ay para hindi tayo bigyan ng mga parusa ng international community at hindi dagdagan ang red tape ng inyong remittances. Kaya itong Anti-Money Laundering Law rin ay para sa ikabubuti ng ating mga OFWs nang sa ganun hindi kayo mahirapang magpadala ang mga inyong remittances sa ating bansa.

Pinalawak ko rin ang ating programang pabahay para sa mga manggagawa. Sa aking administrasyon, talagang sadya nating isinama ang overseas Filipinos sa ating Pabahay Program para sa mga manggagawa. At dinig ko maganda ang naging resulta ng tatlong Pag-IBIG housing fairs na ginanap dito sa Hong Kong mula noong nakaraang taon na isinama natin sadya ang OFW. Ayon sa ating Pag-IBIG office dito sa Hong Kong, umaabot na sa 78 million pesos worth of housing ang binili niyo mga overseas workers sa Hong Kong na tinanggap ng iba't-ibang housing developers na galing Pilipinas sa naturang housing fairs. Kaya nga 'yung Confed Properties, sa laki ng kanilang kita, okay na sa kanila ang mag-donate ng additional housing, kasi 78 million ang naibigay na ninyong housing revenue sa ating mga housing developers. Kaya sa mga hindi pa nakakasali sa Pag-IBIG housing fairs, may ika-apat na gagawing housing fair sa darating na Enero. Sumali kayo para naman ang inyong mga pinaghirapang sahod ay mapunta sa isang kapakipakinabang na bagay either bahay ng inyong mga kamag-anak o bahay ninyo para kung kayo ay magre-retire na sa Pilipinas.

Hindi lamang sa registration magaling ang Hong Kong, pati na rin sa pagiging miyembro ng SSS, alam ba n'yo topnotcher din kayo? Sabi sa akin ng ating SSS officer dito, 88,000 na ang SSS members sa Hong Kong. Ang dami 'no, vast majority at patuloy pa rin ang ating promosyon ng magagandang programa ng SSS dito, pati na rin sa Macau.

'Yung Provident Fund, hindi ba itinayo natin iyon para magkaloob ng social services at emergency loans sa ating mga OFWs? Mayroon na tayong mga enrollees ngayon mula sa Hong Kong pati Jeddah, Qatar, Milan at Roma.

Mabuti rin at aktibo ang marami sa inyo sa mga livelihood at skills training services na pinalawak natin. 'Yang ating programa para sa mga teachers examination at sa paghahanap ng items para sa inyo, lahat po 'yan ay utos ng Pangulo ng Republika ng Pilipinas. Ako po ang nag-utos noon. May mga umuwi, may mga gustong bumalik dito dahil nagkulang daw ang mga items. Gusto kong ipahayag sa inyo, sa 2004 budget ay meron uling dagdag na item para sa mga bagong teachers.

Alam ko na naghihirap dito sa Hong Kong. Ang Pilipinas nga mabuti pa dahil may 4.4 percent growth rate, GDP at 5.9, GNP. Ang Hong Kong, negative ang growth rate nitong taong ito. 'Yung kahirapan ng Hong Kong alam kong nararanasan din ninyong mga nagtrabaho dito. Una sa lahat 'yung SARS outbreak, nalulungkot ako na mayroon tayong mga kababayan na naging biktima dito sa Hong Kong, pati na rin sa ibang mga bansa gaya ng Singapore at Canada. Hindi natin sila kalilimutan sa ating asal at nagpapasalamat ako sa lahat ng mga nagtatrabaho sa Hong Kong hospitals dahil sa inyong sakripisyo at magpasalamat din tayo sa ating mga doktor na ipinadala ko dito — 'diba si Dr. Fajardo 'yon? — para maglingkod sa inyong lahat. Malaki ang kanyang pagsisikap noong magkaroon ng SARS para siguruhin na ang ating mga OFWs hanggang kaya ay maligtas sa epidemyang ito.

Mabuti na lang at doon sa Pilipinas ay naagapan natin ang SARS. Maliban sa dalawang namatay sa sakit na SARS — 'yung isang worker na galing sa Canada at saka 'yung tatay niya — ay hindi kumalat ang SARS. At buong mundo ay pinuri ang pamahalaang Pilipinas dahil sa ating SARS management. Iyan nga ay isang patunay na 'yung ating administrasyon ay dalubhasa na sa crisis management.

'Yung isa pang problema ng ekonomiya ng Hong Kong na kung saan pati kayo mga OFW ay nadamay ay 'yung napakalungkot napagbawas ng minimum allowable wage at ang pagpataw ng levy sa mga employer ng mga foreign domestic helpers. Ako po sa lahat ng mga pitong bansa na nagpapadala ng OFW dito ang pinakamasigasig sa lahat ng head of government na ipinaglaban ang aking mga OFW. Inalok ko pa nga 'yung ibang mga namumuno. Ipinaglaban ko kayo at inaalok ko pa ang ibang mga lider nung ibang mga bansa na may domestic helpers dito para magsama-sama tayong lahat sa pakikibakang ito at tayo ay nagsampa ng kaso. Tayo ay nag-lead doon. Pitong bansa ang nagkasama-sama pero pinakalider ang Pilipinas.

Pangalawa sa activeness ay ang Indonesia, at ayon sa ulat, naging matagumpay naman ang unang bahagi ng ating pakikibaka dito sa Hong Kong High Court tungkol sa isyung ito, bagamat may kabagalan. Alam naman ninyo sa Pilipinas akala natin ang mga korte matagal ang proseso, pati rin pala sa ibang bansa, pati rin pala dito sa Hong Kong. Ngunit ayon sa abogado na humahawak ng kaso at pati na rin sa ating konsulado, meron ng date for argumentation tungkol dito sa kasong ito. Umasa kayo na hindi ako titigil na maiparating sa mga awtoridad ng Hong Kong ang aking pakikibaka, ating pakikibaka sa kapakanan ng ating mga OFWs dito sa Hong Kong.

After all, gaya nang sabik of kayo ay mga huwaran Pilipino. Huwaran sa pagtatrabaho kaya mahal na mahal kayo ng inyong mga employers, pati sila ay ipinaglalaman kayo. Huwaran bilang mamamayan kaya kayo ang number one sa overseas voting registration. Huwaran sa paglilingkod sa ating ekonomiya dahilang dami-dami ninyong ipinapadalang remittances.

Mga Pilipino sa Hong Kong sa Macau, salamat na kayo ay mga huwaran Pilipino. Sana tuluy-tuloy ang inyong tagumpay.

Maraming salamat at Merry Christmas sa inyong lahat.

Tungkol naman sa kapayapaan, siguro narinig na ninyo nasugpo na at nahuli na si Kumander Robot, 'yan ang leader ng pinakahiya-hiyang kidnapping sa Sipadan noong taong 2000. Now, all the surrounding issues of the Sipadan kidnapping can be given light through the judicial process and institutional investigations. Our priority is criminal justice and we will pursue this without being distracted by the peripheral issues. Let the light come out so the public will see the truth behind this most notorious incident in the history of crime and terrorism.

Tungkol naman sa kaunlaran, nitong nakaraang quarter, ayon sa ating mga statistika ang ating growth rate sa Pilipinas ay number 6 sa dalawampu't isang ekonomiya sa Asia at Pacific. at sa ibabaw ng pag-angat ng produksyon sa loob ng Pilipinas na 4.4 percent — number six nga sa 21 economies dahil sa inyong remittances 4.4 percent GDP growth rate ay naging 5.9 percent GNP growth rate dahil kasama ang remittances sa GNP. Kaya maraming salamat sa inyo, ang inyong remittances na nagkakahalaga ng mahigit 200 million U.S. dollars kada taon ay malaki ang naitutulong hindi lamang sa inyong pamilya kung hindi pati na rin sa ating bansa.

Kaya sa inyong mga nakikinig sa akin sa mga nakaraang pagpupulong natin siguro maalala n'yo laging sinasabi ko kayo ay overseas Filipino workers pero kayo na rin ay overseas Filipino investors dahil 'yung inyong remittances ay nagsisilbing investments sa edukasyon, sa pabahay, sa puhunan ng inyong mga minamahal sa buhay. Hindi ba investments lahat noon at galing sa inyo.

Nais ko namang ibalik sa inyo ang pagtulong sa pamamagitan ng mga programang mapapakinabangan ninyo at ng inyong mga mahal sa buhay sa Pilipinas.

Kaya sa ibabaw ng Overseas Voting Law, na hindi ba ilang taon, ilang administrasyon, ilang kongreso na n'yong hinintay, sa wakas ay pumasa sa loob ng aking administrasyon ang Overseas Voting Law. at hindi lamang 'yon, 'yung Anti-Money Laundering Law 'yon ay hindi lamang para hulihin ang mga money launderers, 'yon ay para sa ganun hindi tayo bigyan ng mga parusa ng international community at hindi dagdagan ang red tape ng inyong remittances. Kaya itong Anti-Money Laundering Law rin ay ikinabubuti ng ating OFW para hindi kayo mahirapan ipadala ang inyong remittances sa ating bansa.

Pinalawak ko rin ang ating programang pabahay para sa mga manggagawa, sa aking administrasyon talagang sadya nating isinama ang overseas Filipinos sa ating pabahay program para sa mga manggagawa. At dinig ko maganda ang naging resulta ng tatlong pag-ibig housing fairs na ginanap sa Hong Kong mula noong nakaraang taon na ito ay isinama natin sadya ang OFW. Ayon sa ating PAG-IBIG office sa Hong Kong, umabot na sa 78 million pesos worth of housing ang binili n'yo mga overseas workers sa Hong Kong itong tinanggap ng iba't-ibang housing developers na galing Pilipinas sa naturang housing fairs. Kaya nga 'yung confed properties, sa laki ng kanilang kita, okay na sa kanila ang mag-donate ng additional housing kasi 78 million ang binigay na n'yong housing revenue sa ating mga housing developers. Kaya sa mga hindi pa nakakasali sa pag-ibig housing fairs, may ika-apat na gagawing housing fair sa darating na enero. Sumali kayo para naman ang inyong pinaghirapang sahod ay mapunta sa isang kapakipakinabangang bagay either bahay ng inyong mga kamag-anak o bahay ninyo para kayo kung kayo ay magre-retire na sa Pilipinas.

Hindi lamang sa registration magaling ang Hong Kong, pati na rin sa pagiging miyembro ng SSS, alam ba n'yo topnotcher din kayo? sabi sa akin ng ating SSS officer dito, 88,000 na ang SSS members sa Hong kong. andami 'no, vast majority at patuloy pa rin ang ating promosyon ng magagandang programa ng SSS dito, pati na rin sa Macau.

'Yung provident fund, hindi ba itinayo natin 'yon para magkaloob ng social services at emergency loans sa ating mga OFWs? Mayron na tayong mga enrollees ngayon mula sa Hong Kong pati Jeddah, Qatar, Milan at Roma.

Mabuti rin at aktibo ang mga marami sa inyo sa mga livelihood at skills training services na pinalawak natin. 'Yang ating programa para sa mga teachers sa examination at sa paghahanap ng item para sa inyo, lahat po 'yan ay utos ng pangulo ng Republika ng Pilipinas. Ako po ang nag-utos noon. may mga umuwi, may mga gustong bumalik dito dahil nagkakulang daw ng item. Gusto kong ipahayag sa inyo, sa 2004 budget ay merong uling dagdag na item para sa mga bagong teachers.

Dito sa Hong Kong alam ko na naghihirap ang Hong Kong. Ang Pilipinas nga mabuti may 4.4 percent growth rate, GDP, 5.9 GDP. Hong Kong, negative ang growth rate itong taong ito. 'Yung kahirapan ng Hong Kong alam kong nadadanas din ng paghihirap ninyo mga nagtrabaho dito sa Hong Kong. Una sa lahat 'yung SARS, nalulungkot ako kasama ninyo na mayroon tayong mga kababayan na naging biktima dito sa Hong Kong, pati na rin sa ibang mga bansa gaya ng Singapore at Canada. Hindi natin sila kalilimutan sa ating asal at nagpasalamat ako sa lahat ng mga nagtatrabaho sa Hong Kong hospitals dahil sa inyong sakripisyo at magpasalamat din tayo sa ating doktor na pinadala ko dito — 'di ba si Dr. Fajardo yuon? — para maglingkod sa inyong lahat. Malaki ang kanyang pagsisikap noong nagkaroon ng SARS para isigurado na ang ating mga OFW hanggang kaya ay ligtas sa SARS.

Mabuti na rin ay doon sa Pilipinas naagapan natin ang SARS. Maliban sa dalawang namatay sa SARS — 'yung isang worker galing sa Canada at saka 'yung tatay niya — ay hindi kumalat ang SARS. At buong mundo ay pinuri ang pamahalaang Pilipinas dahil sa ating sars management. 'yan nga ay isang binibigay na patunay na 'yung ating administrasyon ay dalubhasa na sa crisis management.

'Yung isa pang problema ng ekonomiya ng Hong Kong na kung saan pati kayo mga OFW ay nadamay ay 'yung napakalungkot na pagbawas ng allowable wage at... Minimum allowable wage at ang pagpataw ng levy sa mga employer ng mga foreign domestic helpers. Ako po sa lahat ng mga pitong bansa na nagpapadala ng OFW dito, ako po ang pinakamasigasig sa lahat ng head of government na ipinaglaban ang aking mga OFW. inalok ko, inalok ko pa nga 'yung ibang mga namumuno. Ipinaglaban ko kayo at inaalok ko pa ang ibang mga lider nung ibang bansa na may domestic helper dito para magsama-sama tayong lahat sa pakikipagbakang ito at tayo ay nagsampa ng kaso. Tayo ay naglead doon. Pitong bansa ang nagkasama pero ang pinakalider ang Pilipinas.

Pangalawa sa activeness ay ang Indonesia, at ayon sa ulat, naging matagumpay naman ang unang bahagi ng ating pakikibaka dito sa Hong Kong high court tungkol sa isyung ito bagamat may kabagalan. Alam naman n'yo sa Pilipinas akala natin ang korte matagal ang kanyang proseso, pati sa ibang bansa, pati na rin sa Hong Kong. Ngunit ayon sa abogado na humahawak ng kaso at pati na rin sa ating konsulado meron ng date for argumentation tungkol dito sa kasong ito. umasa kayo na hindi ako titigil na iparating sa mga awtoridad ng Hong Kong ang aking pakikibaka, ating pakikibaka sa kapakanan ng ating mga OFW dito sa Hong Kong.

After all, gaya nang sabi ko, kayo ay huwarang Pilipino. huwaran sa pagtatrabaho kaya mahal na mahal kayo ng inyong mga employers pati sila ay ipinaglalaban kayo. huwaran bilang mamamayan kaya kayo ang number one sa Overseas Voting Registration. huwaran sa paglilingkod sa ating ekonomiya dahil ang dami- dami n'yong pinapadalang remittances.

Mga Pilipino sa Hong Kong, sa Macau, salamat na kayo ay huwarang Pilipino. Sana tuloy-tuloy ang inyong tagumpay.

Maraming salamat at merry Christmas sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during a meeting with the Filipino Community in the Kingdom of Bahrain

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a meeting with the Filipino Community in the Kingdom of Bahrain

[Delivered at the Shaikh Hamad Palace Manama, Bahrain, December 15, 2003]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas. Salamat sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin. Salamat sa iyong pag-alaga ng Manggagawang Pilipino maging sa Pilipinas o sa ibayong dagat. At salamat din sa pinagmamalaki namin tungkol sa inyo dahil gusto ko ipaalam sa ating manggagawa dito sa Bahrain na si Pat Sto. Tomas in charge hindi lamang sa manggagawang Pilipino kung hindi manggagawa ng buong mundo dahil siya rin ay pangulo ng International Labor Organization.

Ako ay nagpapasalamat din sa magandang mga sinabi ni Ambassador Maglaya at mabuti naalala niya yung aking bilin sa kanya, gawa nang nung si President Ramos ay nanggaling dito, pag-uwi niya sa Pilipinas ay agad binigyan niya ako nang memo tungkol sa mga problema gaya nang sabi ni Ambassador maglaya hindi sa problema ng community, problema ng Embahada. Inaasahan ko na naayos na yon at akoy nagpapasalamat na nagkakaisa ang Embahada at ang Philippine Community dito sa Bahrain.

Gusto kong ipakilala ko yung ibat-ibang kasama ko dito sa ating delegation. Narito ang aking Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process, si Secretary Ging Deles siya ay narito dahil sa napakalaking papel ang ginaganap ng Bahrain para tumulong sa ating usapang kapayapaan sa MILF; nandito rin ang aking Presidential Spokesman, si Secretary Toting Bunye narito rin ang Gobernador ng isang probinsyang muslim, although hindi bahagi ng Autonomous Region, Governor ng probinsya ng Sultan Kudarat, si Governor Datu Pax Mangudadatu at dahil yung kanyang probinsya ay malayo, mahirap, yung donation ho ninyong mga school buildings isa doon ay pupunta sa probinsya ni Governor Mangudadatu sa Sultan Kudarat; palagay ko kilala ninyo ito, dahil pinadala ko siya dito sa Middle East noong kainitan noong Iraq war para isigurado niya na ang mga Filipinos ay out of harms way, si Ambassador Roy Cimat; then dagiti kakailayak ti bangir ko nga Ilocano addadtoy ti maysa nga importante nga personalidad diay amianan ay ang aking Presidential Adviser for the North Luzon Growth Quadrangle, si former Governor ng Ilocos Sur Chavit Singson; at isang dahilan kung bakit napalapit tayong husto sa mga pinuno ng Bahrain ay dahil sa kanyang magandang hospitality pinapakita sa kanila pag nagbisita sa Pilipinas, ito na nga yung nagsalita kanina, salamat sa iyung mga pangdagdag muli na scholarship, si Ambassador King Aguiluz. Binabati ko rin si Ambassador King Aguiluz dahil sa kanyang magandang AMA University dito sa Bahrain. Sabi ko nga sa mga Bahraini businessmen kaninang umaga noong nagkamiting kami, aba, nag-invest na si Ambassador Aguiluz dito sa Bahrain, kayo naman ang dapat mag-invest sa Pilipinas, sabi ko sa kanila.

Kinakatawan ang Secretary of Department of Foreign Affairs dahil malungkot tayo na papunta dito si Secretary Blas Ople nagkaroon ng heart attack at yumao kaya ang kumakatawan ngayon ng DFA dito sa aking biyahe ay si Undersecretary Rafael Seguis. palagay ko kilala siya nitong ating delegation from Saudi Arabia dahil dati siyang Ambassador to Saudi Arabia; kinakatawan naman ng ating Trade and Industry, si Undersecretary Tomas Aquino; kinakatawan naman yung ating Department of Tourism, si Undersecretary Evelyn Pantig; at yung nagbibigay sa inyo ng mga serbisyo mula sa Overseas Workers Welfare Administration, si Administrator Ver Angelo; at nagkaroon tayo kanina ng kasunduan sa Bahrain tungkol sa training, pagsasanay sa ibat-ibang mga kakayahan kaya nandito ang Director General ng TESDA, si Alcestis Guiang; at dahil tuloy-tuloy ang construction sa Bahrain meron na naman tayong bagong... Meron na naman silang bagong reclamation na naman sa North Bahrain. Importante na tayo ay kasama doon sa ibat-ibang mga ganung klaseng pagnenegosyo kaya nandito ang pinuno ng Construction Industry Authority of the Philippines, si Catherine Josephine dela Cruz; meron tayong business delegation at dalawa sa kanila ay narito. Nandito ang isa sa mga higante sa ating construction sector, si FF Cruz or Felipe Cruz; at doon sa negosyo ng packaging nandito rin si Ginoong Mason Ang.

Gusto kong batiin ang ibat-ibang leader ng community dito sa Bahrain. Una sa lahat ang Acting President ng Filipino Club, si Ibrahim Concepcion; ang sports coordinator naman, si Roland Bayubay; ang Professional Group Coordinator, si Tony Ocuenco; ang Artist Group at si Robert Paraan; ang Hairdresser Group, Acelito Culaban; ang Volleyball Group at si Cecille Ignalaga; ang Bowlers, si Lyn Fiel. Salamat ha sa inyong donations, so kayo ang unang nag-donate sa lima. Kaya yon ang ibibigay natin kay Governor Pax Mangudadatu; ang AFAEAT sa pamumuno ni Ramon Anghel; ang TASCOT lalo na si Noni Elario; ang Safety and Order Group, si Ric Tabanao; ang Media, si Luz Refe; ang Arts, si Ofelia Baptista; at saka donor, si Bobby Calimoso; at lahat-lahat na narito mula sa Bahrain maging mula sa Saudi Arabia, magandang hapon sa inyong lahat at Merry Christmas mga minamahal kong kababayan.

Karing Caracal a Cabalen kung kapampangan, mayap a katpanapun pu que congan. ken manen dagiti kakailiak ti bangir ni mamang ko, naimbag nga rabii kadakayo amin. sa mga taga-Mindanao asa ko nidako, maayong gabii kaninyong tanan. Assalaamu Alaikum sa mga kapatid nating Muslim. Sa mga kasimanwa sang akong bana nga Ilonggo, maayong gabii sa inyo nga tanan and I heard a greeting from somebody from Zamboanga, buenas noches!

Alam nyo dito sa Bahrain nararamdaman ko ang pagmamahal ng mga namumuno rito para sa mga Pilipino at para sa Pilipinas. Paumanhin nyong nahuli ako ngayon dahil dinala pa ako ng Prime Minister sa kaniyang isla. At doon sa kaniyang isla maging doon sa kaniyang hotel ang dami-daming Pilipinong nagtatrabaho maraming Pilipinong nagtatrabaho sa kanila at matatagal na yung ilan doon — 10 years, 20 years — kaya tuloy nakilala nila ang Pilipinas sa pamamagitan ng mga Pilipinong nagtatrabaho sa kanila at napamahal sa kanila. kaya kuwento ng Prime Minister, noong minsan siya ay nasa Bali sa isang meeting, gawa ng ang daming nagtatrabaho sa kaniyang Pilipino naging curious siya, gusto siya pumunta sa Pilipinas. Last minute, nagpunta siya sa Pilipinas, na-asign naman si King Aguiluz mag-alaga sa kanya. Ang galing-galing naman ni King Aguiluz mag-alaga at mula noon nagka-love affair na ang Prime Minister sa ating bansang Pilipinas. kaya madalas magbisita sila sa Pilipinas, hindi lamang siya maging mga pinsan niya. Talagang nagtuturista sila sa Pilipinas. Mahal na mahal nila ang Pilipinas. In fact, officially sa aking administrasyon, dalawang beses na pumunta ang Prime Minister doon. Eh, nakakahiya naman mag-imbata ng pangatlong beses hanggang hindi ako pumunta rito. Kaya isa rin yon ang dahilan kung bakit ako ay pumunta rito para sana man hindi naman siya mahiyang pumunta muli for the third time in my administration.

At napakagandang pagkakataon, pinili ko nga itong panahong ito para makapag-Merry Christmas naman tayo sa isat-isa. Alam nyo panginoon talaga ang pumipili ng petsa. Supposed to be noong isang buwan pupunta ako dito. Kaniya lamang nagkaroon tayo nang ilang mga kinailangan asikasuhin ko sa Pilipinas. Ten-day trip yon eh, hinati ko sa five days at pinostpone ko yung aking pagbiyahe sa Bahrain sa araw na ito. Eh, tingnan nyo naman ang nangyari kahapon sa aking pagdating, nadagdagan ang kabuluhan ng aking pagbisita sa Middle East dahil sa pagbagsak ni Saddam Hussein since day one we were with the International Coalition for the Liberation and Reconstruction of Iraq, and this event is a major milestone in that historic effort. We had deployed our peacemakers and humanitarian workers in that country, kaya nandito pa rin si Ambassador Cimatang hanggang ngayon. Noong araw yung civilian ang inaalagaan niya, ngayon inaalagaan niya yung ating humanitarian mission.

And we shall continue to stand beside the Iraqi people in their quest for democracy and prosperity. The late Secretary Ople was one of the stalwarts of our Iraqi policy, and he led both the effort to keep our nationals in the Middle East out of harms way during the crisis, na malaking papel ang ginanap ni Ambassador Cimatang na nandito siya nakapuwesto mismo sa middle east, and also in our effort to help the Iraqi people rise from the crisis.

The nation mourns the death of a great Filipino. We were awed by the vision and indomitable wit of Secretary Blas Ople. He was an architect of Philippine Foreign policy in the finest tradition of enlightened and pragmatic diplomacy. A champion of peace, human rights, collective security and the rule of law. We will miss him and the world will miss him.

Si Secretary Ople ay nandito nga noong isang buwan, noong akoy hindi nakarating. Siya ay katulong ko sa paghiling sa tulong ng Bahrain sa kapayapaan sa Mindanao. Yon nga dati-dati ang inaasahan natin sa Mindanao — Malaysia, Indonesia, Brunei, Libya — ngunit gawa ng kadalasan ang pagbisita ni Prime Minister sa Pilipinas dahil naging kaibigan na rin ni Ambassador Aguiluz. At sinabi niya ano nga baga ang gusto nyong gawin ng Bahrain para tumulong sa inyong paghahanap ng kapayapaan sa Mindanao. Eh sabi ko ang Bahrain sana ay maging isa sa apat na bansang magbabantay sa kapayapaan. yung peace... Ah, yung Ceasefire Monitoring Team kasama doon ang Bahrain at dahil nga doon abot kaya na ang kapayapaan sa Mindanao.

Hindi ako nagugulat sa interest ng Bahrain sa mga ganung bagay dahil kayang-kaya naman niya. Ang Bahrain ay isang modernong Financial Center sa Middle East. At ang Bahrain ay ang pinakamalayang ekonomiya sa buong Arab World, the freest economy in the Arab World. At hindi lamang yon, ayon sa United Nations, sa buong Arab world rin ang Bahrain ay siyang merong pinakamataas na human development index, na siya ang sukat ng longevity. Measure of health, per capita income and also literacy rate. Kaya kayong mga Pilipinong nakatira rito sa Bahrain, siyempre namamahagi rin kayo diyan sa mataas na standard of living. Kaya binabati ko kayo at talagang mapalad na kayo ay narito. Mapalad hindi lamang dahil nakikibagay kayo sa standard of living nila kung hindi na rin dahil sa kanilang kakayahan at pagmamahal sa inyo sila ay tumutulong din sa Pilipinas. Halimbawa, kanina, nandoon nga ako nakipag-usap sa mga negosyante, nakipag-usap kay prime minister at sa kaniyang Cabinet, nakipag-usap sa kanilang hari, na ang laking karangalang binigay dahil kahapon dumating kami, ang hari mismo ang nagsalubong sa airport.

Napakagandang pahayag ng pagmamahal sa Pilipinas. At nung sinasabi ko nga sa mga negosyante kanina ay kung si Ambassador Aguiluz nag-invest na dito, dapat kayo rin mag-invest sa Pilipinas. At kinukuwento ko kay prime minister na doon sa Pilipinas... Dito kasi sa Bahrain, ito ay financial center at sentro ng tinatawag na Islamic Banking. Yung Islamic bank nila dito ay nagpapahiram ng pera dito sa ating Makati-based institutions hindi lamang sa mga Muslim institutions. Ngunit sabi ko sa kanila kami sa Pilipinas meron din kaming Islamic bank na maliit, ang tawag Al Amanah Bank. Kanya lang medyo palpak, siguro dahil hindi tayo marunong magpatakbo ng Islamic bank. Eh, yung mga bangkong iba naman sabi ko matagumpay. So hindi dahil masama ang ekonomiya na pumapalpak yung Islamic Bank, hindi kami talaga marunong magpatakbo ng Islamic Bank.

At dadating ang isang mission, pupunta dito mula sa Central Bank para mag-aaral kung papano magpatakbo ng Islamic Bank. Pero sabi ko sa ibabaw noon dahil free enterprise economy naman ang Bahrain, sabi ko sana naman kayo mga bangkero dito, mga Islamic Bankers, bat hindi rin nyo tignan ang aming Al Amanah bank. Bat hindi na lang ninyo bilhin at irehabilitate ninyo? Aba, kanina sinabi ni Prime Minister sa akin, sino ang kakausapin dahil nagbigay na siya nang instruction na irehabilitate nila ang ating al Amanah Bank.

Kaya bagay na bagay ang pagmamahal sa inyo at yung pagmamahal sa Pilipinas ng mga namumuno dito sa Bahrain. At mabuti naman dahil kailangan din natin ang ganitong klaseng pagkakaibigan para sa ating kaunlaran.

Matagal nang nahuhuli ang ating bansa sa mga karatig-bansa sa kaunlaran. Mabuti na lamang na sa aking administrasyon ang ating growth rate ngayon ay number 6 na sa dalawampu't isang ekonomiya ng Asia-Pacific region Ang ating growth rate ngayon ay mas mabilis na kaysa doon sa mas mayamang ekonomiya kagaya ng Singapore, Hongkong, Taiwan, Korea. Isang dahilan kung bakit sa kabila ng asian crisis our global slowdown ng 2001, 2002 at 2003, isang dahilan kung bakit tumatatag pa rin tayo ay yung inyong mga remittances. kaya maraming salamat.

Talagang kayo ay maituturing kayo ay Overseas Filipino Workers. Pero sa ibabaw noon kayo rin ay Overseas Filipino Investors dahil walong bilyong dollars ang ini-invest nyo sa Pilipinas taun-taon. Yung pinapadala nyong remittances nagagamit sa pabahay, sa pag-aaral — edukasyon, sa mga puhunan ng inyong mga kamag-anak, hindi ba investment yon? Eh kaya naman gusto namin, gusto kong isukli sa inyo naman ang inyong pagmamahal sa ating bansa.

Ito ay isang dahilan kung bakit sa haba ng mga Kongreso na hindi pumapasa ang Overseas Voting Law, sa aking administrasyon napilit pumasa ang Overseas Voting Law. hindi lang yon, yung Anti-Money Laundering Law pinilit ko rin na pumasa, bakit? Isang dahilan ay kung hindi yon ipapasa yung mga International Bankers pagpadala ninyo ng inyong mga remittances magdadagdag sila ng red tape kung hindi natin ipapasa yon. Kaya para maiwasan kayong mahirapan na ipadala ang inyong remittances sa Pilipinas ay pinilit ko rin na mapasa yung Anti-Money-Laundering Law.

Pinalawak ko rin ang programa ng pabahay. Sa loob ng dalawa at kalahating taon ng aking pamumuno, nagkaroon ang Pilipinas ng pinakamalawak na programang pabahay sa kasaysayan ng ating bansa. At isang dahilan ay dahil maraming bumibili ng pabahay sa mga OFW. Sana kayo ay bumili rin. Hinihimok ko kayo na ilagay ang inyong naimpok na pera sa mga makabuluhang bagay kagaya ng pabahay. Makipag-ugnay kayo sa mga Embahada kung paano pumasok sa programa ng pabahay ng Pag-ibig Fund. Doon sa Saudi Arabia masigasig na masigasig ang pag-ibig, maraming bumibili nang mga bahay, mga OFW. Sana dito rin sa Bahrain.

At salamat muli sa inyong kontribusyon doon sa limang classroom para sa mga parte ng bansa na kulang ng silid-aralan. At binabati ko rin ang inyong Embahada sa mga skills development programs. Para sa mga gusto magkaroon nang mga bagong kakayahan lalo na doon sa mga makauwi na para maging mabilis ang reintegration program sa Pilipinas.

Sana mga kaibigan ipagpatuloy ninyo ang huwarang gawaing na inyong pinagkaka-abalahan dito sa Bahrain. Magtuloy-tuloy harinawa ang tagumpay ninyo at ang tagumpay ng ating sambayanang Pilipino saan man tayo naroroon.

Sa inyong lahat maraming salamat sa mga remittances. Maraming salamat sa magandang reputasyon na binibigay nyo sa Pilipinas. Maraming salamat sa tuloy na pagmamahal ninyo sa ating bansa. At Merry Christmas, minamahal kayo ng bansang Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo at the National Federation of Filipino-American Association Convention
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the National Federation of Filipino-American Association Convention

[Delivered at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang December 17, 2003]

MOVING UP THE VALUE CHAIN

Thank you very much, Dick Gordon for that 'wow' introduction. And thank you and your colleagues in the Department of Tourism, Convention Bureau, their attaches because I understand they were working up to three o'clock in the morning just to make the National Federation of Filipino-American Association Convention a success.

It is really with great pleasure and heartfelt emotion that I welcome the officers and members of this second global Filipino networking convention. I would like to greet all of you, magandang araw sa inyong lahat mga minamahal kong kababayan at Maligayang Pasko, tamang-tama.

This global convention of Filipinos is a celebration. It is a celebration because it's near Christmastime. But it is also a celebration and a recognition that the best and most competitive resource of our country are the Filipinos themselves.

Sometimes I hear them say the Philippines is rich in natural resources. Maybe Sonny Alvarez and I won't totally agree with that because many of our mines are depleted, many of our forests are depleted, many of our seas are depleted. Maybe we had bountiful natural resources thirty, fifty years ago, but not today. What we have a bounty of, is the talent of the Filipinos.

The quality represented in this convention certainly proves that the country is not short of talents. That there is a generous pool of competent scientists, engineers, I.T. workers, communication technologists, senior managers, doctors, nurses, caregivers, educators, artists and many other professionals and workers. And aside from the 80 million talented Filipinos here, we have you, the eight million talented Filipinos outside our country.

We are the third largest English-speaking nation in the world. And that is one of the reasons why we are so accepted and competitive. But it is not just our English skill – though that is indeed a very important factor – I must say that, we are also a country with the best and largest pool of knowledge and technology workers. We are also the people who probably exhibit the fastest learning curves in the world.

You know, one of the things that I did in Japan, and continuously did this past weekend, was to work with Prime Minister Koizumi on opening the Japanese market for Philippine human resources. And we will begin with caregivers and I.T. professionals. I was being asked by the Japanese, "Okay, we may open our market to your workers with our laws but will your workers be able to compete with the language barrier present there?" And I said, you are underestimating the learning curve of the Filipino. Our Filipinos in the United States, of course, speak English very well, our Filipinos in Italy speak Italian. Our Filipinos in Hong Kong speak Chinese, and they will learn Japanese and whatever they have to learn in terms of technology, just to be successful as you have shown that you can learn whatever you need to learn to succeed and to compete because you, wherever you are, -are always among the highest paid ethnic groups in your host economies.

You gave me a set of resolutions. I often attend conventions that are highlighted by presentation of resolutions. But most of the time in other conventions, the resolution is talking about what the government should do for the members of the convention. In the six resolutions that you gave, I couldn't help but think that the Filipinos, are characterized by the wish of John F. Kennedy that would characterize Americans — that you ask not what the country can do for you, but you have been deciding among yourselves what you can do for the country, the Philippines.

Nonetheless, I recognize that we do have a role to play in your lives. We do have an obligation to you, who help make our economy run. You, who make us proud in your host economies.

The role of the government in your lives would be, I guess, twofold: one is to promote the rights of our overseas Filipinos; and, the other one is to help you move even forward, even higher into the value chain. To move you higher in the value chain, the platform of my administration is to invest in education and training, to challenge the private sector to also make that similar commitment, and to entice our investors to work with us in the development of human capital. For instance, we have seen that there is a very big demand for our nurses today, because of the aging population in many of the countries that practiced population control a generation ago.

Therefore, there is a rapid deployment of our nurses, and rather than stop that — though we realize that it causes some temporary shortage of nurses here — what has happened is that, we had been able to make the market begin to respond to that. Because we administer a free enterprise economy and the government is not the one that makes the business decisions, the market itself provided now 40 new nursing schools, so that we can produce more supply to meet the demand abroad. And it was providential that just as this 40 new nursing schools cropped up responding to the market, responding to the world demand for Philippine nurses, our Congress was able to pass a law to make the nursing board bigger, more specialized. And therefore now, there are more nursing board members who can go and supervise the 40 new nursing schools, to make sure that the quality of the new nursing schools is at least the same as the quality of the old nursing schools, that produced those nurses that are so much demand in the world today.

That is part of what we mean by helping “move up the value chain,” investing in education and challenging and encouraging the private sector to do that, protecting the rights of overseas Filipinos, as you have celebrated and mentioned through the active support of the overseas Filipino community. Finally, in the short two and a half years of my administration, we were able to pass the much-awaited Overseas Voting Act and the much-awaited Dual Citizenship Law.

I remember when Sonny and I were in the Senate, and we both authored the Overseas Voting Bill. Each version is different or similar in many ways. But it never passed the committee level. So when I became President — and you were visiting me many times — I would say, I’m so proud, at last for the first time the Overseas Voting Bill has passed the committee and is now on the floor for deliberation. And then another visit of yours, I said, I am so glad that for the first time not only the bill passed the House, it has passed the Senate and it is now in the floor for deliberation. Each time we were able to reach a stage that we had not reached before in previous Congresses — until finally the bill became law, not one bill but the two bills that you were asking for.

But it’s not only those two bills that we passed for your sake. You might have heard about the Anti-Money Laundering Law that we also passed. We passed the Anti-Money Laundering Law with the primary motive of making sure that we are not sanctioned by the international banking community, and, because we do not want your remittances to have additional red tape and expenses when you send them back to the Philippines.

I remember the way we would brag to you and to ourselves, everytime the Overseas Voting Law and the Dual Citizenship Law went a stage further than it used to in previous administrations. It was also the same bragging that we did with regards to the veterans rights in the United States. I remember Dick said -the first time we went to the U.S. and in the White House, we had a meeting with the officials of the United States, the Veterans Affairs, even Colonel de Ocampo was there and he said he’s gonna tell all the veterans how I made “taray” to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs. Because, I told them, “How can you not make this an administration measure, after all the sacrifices that we’ve done for you in the Second World War, and not only that, all the sacrifices that we did to be your first foreign ally, Asian ally, in the war against terrorism.”

And so, it happened that the bill moved faster than in previous administrations. The bill got passed in Congress, and it was the first time. It went to the Senate for the first time, and it slept for awhile in the Committee on Budget. But in the next Congress, we worked for it again, and your work and our work, and the many times that I see President Bush, or Secretary Condoleezza Rice, usually many times my goodbye is “Don’t forget our veterans.” That’s how I say goodbye to them many times.

And it did, indeed, because I was so proud that the Overseas Voting Bill passed the committee. But it did more than that, it was passed into law. I was also proud that the Veterans Equity Rights... or the Veterans Expanded Rights reached the Senate. Now it’s more than that, it get passed into law. And following your own resolution and your own strong recommendation, my next step will be to work for an equity law and the budget to support it for veterans rights here in the Philippines.

In the past, when I was asking the Bush Administration for veterans rights in the Philippines, they responded from the administration or executive capability, they have been supporting the Veterans Hospital here in the Philippines. But this time it is in Congress, and I will ask Secretary Alvarez, Who is my Presidential Adviser for Overseas Filipinos, to draft a letter for me to the U.S. supporting the Inouye Bill, asking the executive to prepare the budget when the Inouye Bill is passed into law. So, please Sonny, you’ll do that job for me.

So this is my next step, a General Equity Bill for Filipinos living in the Philippines, not only in the United States. As I work to pass these long- awaited laws, the three long-awaited laws in the country, our country: the Overseas Voting Bill, the Dual Citizenship, and also the Anti-Money Laundering Law, the Expanded Veterans Bill or Law in the United States – as I work for that in the last two and a half years and was able to bring those things further than many, many years in the past. I also in the process, gained the experience necessary to understand what we need to do in order to change our society, in a way that leads to economic development and the elimination of poverty. Our historic problem has been the need for economic development to fight poverty. Historically, our economic development has been slow compared to our neighbors. We were doing one percent growth, 0 percent growth at a time when our Asian neighbors became the new tigers growing double digit.

Ngunit mabuti na lamang at dito sa kasalukuyang administrasyon, two and a half years, ang ating growth rate ngayon ay panganim sa dalawampu’t isang ekonomiya ng Asia-Pacific Region. Ito ay higit pa sa growth rate ng mga mas mayayamang ekonomiya kagaya ng Singapore, Hong Kong, Taiwan, at Korea. Sila’y halos nag-negative sa growth rate dahil sa kahirapan ng ating Asian crisis, pero tayo 4.4 percent ang GDP, 5.9 percent ang GNP. Ano ang diperensiya ng 4.4 percent GDP at 5.9 percent GNP? The GNP includes your remittances, the GDP does not. Kaya ‘yang 5.9 percent growth rate natin dalawa ang pinanggagalingan: isa ‘yung double digit growth ng ating agriculture ngayon. At ito ay hindi aksidente, ito ay dahil ginawa natin ang pinakamalawak na irrigation hectarage sa kasaysayan ng Pilipinas. At dahil nakahanap tayo, sa aking karanasan nakahanap sa China ng isang binhi ng palay na nagdo-doble ang ani. Not an accident but really looking, working and therefore making dreams come true.

And the other source of growth is the overseas remittances of our overseas Filipinos. Thank you very much for the eight billion dollars that you are sending our country.

Kaya parating sinasabi ko mga overseas Filipinos, maging overseas contract workers o maging green card holders or dual citizenships...the dual citizens talagang maituturing na investors dahil ang inyong remittances sa inyong pamilya ay mga investments sa edukasyon, pabahay, puhunan. Eh hindi ba investments yaong mga ‘yon. Bilangin pa natin ‘yung resolution ninyo na mag-iinvest ng 60,000 dollars sa ospital, sa PGH. Iyan ay infrastructure, physical capital na inilalagay ninyo, kaya talagang whether you’re a businessman or you’re a contract worker, you are an overseas Filipino investors.

Kami naman dito, we are trying to make your investments worthwhile. We are trying to give you a government that governs properly, so that you will not be afraid of where your money will go. The World Bank is praising us for our moves against corruption. They say our lifestyle check has been successful that is why, we have been able to surpass our targets for BIR and Customs collections. In fact, our Customs collections now are the highest in the history of our country. And also, they have said that our new Government Procurement Law that we passed alongside those three important laws, for the overseas Filipinos has also contributed much to increasing transparency and reducing corruption in government purchases.

My next reform is to organize — and we need a law again for this — the graft fighting agencies into an independent commission against corruption just like the I.C.A.C. in Hong Kong.

I am being advised by no less than the one who established the I.C.A.C. itself in Hong Kong. And we are learning, taking lessons from the experience of Hong Kong. And one of the important things I learned is that inspite the work of the I.C.A.C, inspite of the big budget they started with, inspite of the fact that they are only dealing with one city state — even smaller than Olongapo, it took them seven years to be able to have Hong Kong considered a graft-free country.

The lesson here is that I can understand the impatience of our people, two and a half years of fighting graft, how come there's still corruption? I am impatient too, but if Hong Kong, a small country with plenty of resources, it took seven years to be able to defeat corruption, the lesson we are learning there is that, you don't fight corruption by braggodoccio or bravura or claiming to come with a... St. Michael, who with one swish of the sword and slaying the dragon, no. Fighting corruption is like healing an infected wound, constantly cleansing, disinfecting through enforcement like the lifestyle checks, and through systems changes like the Procurement Law and I hope the I.C.A.C.

At ito ang sinisikap naming gawin para naman karapat-dapat ang patuloy na tulong ng overseas Filipinos sa ating bansa. Kayo naman doon sa ibang bansa, we are so proud of you because talking about integrity, competence, 'yan ang reputasyon ng Filipino all over the world. You are competent, you are trustworthy, you are loved by the host economies in which you work, and you are loved by the people you lived and worked with.

Kaya ang huling masasabi ko, ipagpatuloy ninyo ang mga huwarang gawain. Maging tuluy-tuloy harinawa ang tagumpay ninyo, dahil ang tagumpay ninyo ay tagumpay ng inyong Inang Bansang Pilipinas. Maraming salamat and Merry Christmas to all of you.

The President's radio address to the nation

January 3, 2004

Mga kababayan, Manigong Bagong Taon sa inyong lahat. Ayon sa isang kilalang survey group, ang karamihan ng ating mga kababayan ay sinalubong ang Bagong Taon na tigib ng pag-asa, salamat sa Panginoon. Sana ito ay senyas ng malakas na simulang nagawa ko sa maikling panahon ng aking pagkapangulo. Napaikot natin ang ekonomiya at napatatag ang kaguluhang minana natin.

Ipinaglalaman ko ang pagbabago para sa karaniwang Pilipino. Maging ang kalakasan ng aking foreign policy ay nagbibigay ng kumpiyansa sa mga bansang namuhunan sa ating bansa para lumikha ng trabaho at maitaas ang suweldo ng karaniwang Pilipino. Senyas ng kalakasan ng ating foreign policy na ginagamit natin para lumikha ng trabaho ang Pilipino ay nakuha natin ang isang puwesto sa United Nations Security Council. At ang pinakamakapangyarihang lider ng mundo, ang Pangulo ng Amerika, ay nagbisita rito. Ginawa tayong isang pangunahing kakampi ng Amerika.

to ay nagbibigay rin ng higit na proteksiyon para sa ating mga OFWs. Halimbawa, Hinarap natin ang giyera sa Iraq sa pamamagitan ng pagbubukas ng linya ng komunikasyon sa mga pamilya upang sila ay makapag-usap at mabawasan ang pangamba. Ngayon at nahuli na si Saddam Hussein, sa madaling panahon puwede na itayo muli ang ekonomiya ng Iraq at mga kakampi kagaya ng Pilipinas ay makikinabang sa dagdag na trabahong malilikha dito.

Sa maikling panahon din ng aking pagkapangulo nakamit natin ang wala pang kapantay sa pagsulong sa pabahay, laban sa katiwalian, at kalinga ng kalusugan. Nagtayo tayo ng depensa laban sa SARS sa pamamagitan ng pangangalaga sa bawa't Pilipino sa loob at labas ng bansa, at ng pagtulong sa isa't isa upang mapigilan ang paglaganap ng karamdaman. Sa ating pagpalawak ng Phil-Health ngayon nakararami na sa ating pamilyang Pilipino ay sakop na ng health insurance. Ito ay down payment at hindi ako kuntento, dapat universal health insurance o lahat ng pamilya sakop sa Phil-Health sa mga darating na taon.

Ganoon din ang presyo ng gamot. Nahati natin ang presyo ng maraming gamot na karaniwang binibili ng mahihirap na binibenta sa mga ospital ng pamahalaan. Ito rin ay pawang down payment, hindi ako kuntento dapat lahat ng gamot na karaniwang binibili ng mga mahihirap ay nabibili sa nahating presyo kahit na saan. At ito ay gusto nating mangyari sa mga darating na panahon.

Kailangan din ang political will at liderato upang makaraos sa mga puwersang gustong hatiin tayo. Nasupil natin ang tangkang kudeta ng wala pang isang araw, gamit ang bisa ng batas na suportado ng kagustuhan ng nakararami, o popular will. Nilutas natin ang nakaambang krisis konstitusyonal mula sa impeachment case laban sa Chief Justice sa pamamagitan ng pagkakasundo ng mga institusyon sa demokratikong paraan.

Ang ating laban po sa terorismo ay maraming nagawa na hindi mapapantayan. Ang ating kampanya laban sa droga at kidnapping ay nakapagdulot ng mga resulta na nagbalik sa pananalig sa batas ng mga Pilipino mula sa iba't ibang antas ng lipunan.

Ang mga Pilipino ay sumikat sa mga natatangi at dakilang paraan. Si Manny Pacquiao ay nanalo sa kanyang kampeonato. Nagwagi tayo ng halos dalawang daang medalya sa Southeast Asian Games. Sinundan ang napakarami ring medalya sa Asian Games. Nakuha ni CJ Suarez ang Bowling World Cup. Ang ating mga kababaihan at kabataang golpista ay sikat din sa mga pananalito. Mga atleta, manunulat, lider ng simbahan. Guro, sundalo at maraming iba pang magigiting na kababayan ang bumuo sa tapestry ng kahusayan nitong nagdaang taon na nagbigay dahilan upang tayo ay magmalaki at magpasalamat na maging Pilipino.

Ang mga relief workers sa Southern Leyte ay kinaligtaan na ang Pasko kasama ng kanilang mga pamilya, kagaya rin ng ating peacekeeping team sa Iraq at milyun – milyong overseas workers, gayundin ang sundalo sa larangan ng labanan at mga pulis na nagbabantay sa checkpoints sa lahat ng oras.

Ang taong 2004 ay may pangako ng pag-asa, at ang ating mga downpayment na pagbabago ay dapat masundan ng installment na wala pang kapantay na pagbabago na gawin tayong higit na ligtas at palakasin ang ating mga pamilya at pupuksain ang katiwalian.

Ako ay nagpapasalamat sa ating mga natamasa sa mga nakalipas na taon. Inilalagay sa kamay ng Panginoon ang bukas para sa pamilya at bansang Pilipino. At humihingi ng grasyang gawin ang utos ng Diyos sa aking tungkulin.

Bagong Taon, bagong kinabukasan... Ipaglaban natin ang dapat... wakasan ang paghihirap.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Proclamation Program of all Pro-administration Party Candidates

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Proclamation Program of all Pro-administration Party Candidates

[Delivered at the Plaza Roma, Intramuros, Manila, January 5, 2004]

Maraming salamat, Mayor Lito Atienza. At salamat sa kababaihang maynila na naaasahan parati.

Kagalang-galang na pangulong ramos, kagalang-galang na Speaker de Venecia, mga kababayan, pagpalain nawa tayo ng Maykapal sa natatanging araw na ito.

I am married to our country. Kasama n'yo, ating sambayanan, ipinaglalaman natin ang pagbabago para sa karaniwang Pilipino para magkaroon ng pagkain sa bawat mesa, tiyak na tahanan, kalusugan, magandang edukasyon. Nagkaroon tayo ng magandang panimula sa maikling panahon lamang. Napaikot ang ekonomiya, napatatag ang kaguluhang namana, nakamit ang wala pang kapantay na pagsulong sa palupa — kaya andami na nga nakatanggap ng lupa na narito ngayon — nakaabot ang health insurance sa nakararaming pamilya, nakalagay ng murang gamot sa mga botika ng pamahalaan, nakalagay ng mga sistema laban sa katiwalian.

We used our foreign policy to bring in investments para maglikha ng trabaho at paibayuhin ang sweldo, para magtayo ng imprastruktura at itulak ang frontiers ng edukasyon, job training, ibang gamit para magtagumpay ang tao.

Ang mga ito ay downpayment. Subalit kailangan pa ng dagdag na installment. Marami pa ang kailangan nating gawin.

Ngayon, kasama natin ang ilang makakatulong sa walang humpay na paglaban tungo sa pagbabago. Pakilala ko ang ilan sa kanila.

Nauna nag-file at tumuloy na sa Surigao para makiramay sa kaniyang mga kalalawigan sa oras ng sakuna, si Bobby Barbers. Narito 'yung kanyang kasing-guwapong anak, si Dean Barbers. Oo, dahil si Bobby ay nasa Mindanao, nauna nang mag-file, pumunta sa Mindanao pero kilala na naman ninyo dahil hinalal n'yo siya six years ago, son of Mindanao – the Philippines' food basket — Mr. Law and Order, author of one of the toughest drug laws in the world, Senator Bobby Barbers.

Si Pong Biazon. Ipinaglalaman ang kapakanan ng mga sundalo. Ipinaglalaman ang pabahay. Ipinaglalaman ang mga sektor na nanganganib sa globalisasyon — 'yan si Pong Biazon.

Pia Cayetano. Compañera, kabataan, young professional with brains and heart, anak ng yumaong Senador Rene Cayetano. Noon may Compañero tayo, ngayon may Compañera, si Pia Cayetano.

Dick Gordon, Mr. "WOW Philippines." lumikha ng napakaraming trabaho at kabuhayan dahil sa paglaganap ng turismo. Nagkaroon tayo ng SARS, tumaas pa rin... Ay, hindi tayo nagkaroon ng SARS. Nagkaroon ng SARS ang mundo, tumaas pa rin ang turismo sa Pilipinas — "WOW" Dick Gordon.

Parouk Hussin. Rebeldeng nagbalik-loob sa pamahalaan. Tunay na simbolo ng ating sinseridad sa proseso ng kapayapaan, simbolo ng ating pagtupad sa ating mga peace agreements dahil ang dating MNLF ay ngayon gobernador ng Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao. Kampiyon ng mga Muslim para sa kapayapaan at kaunlaran — Dr. Parouk Hussin.

Kinakatawan ang kaniyang anak si Dudut, si Sonny Jaworski. Bida ng makadiyos na diwa sa loob ng disiplinadong katawan. Sa ingles, fighter for a sound mind in a sound body, on and off the court — Bobby Jaworski. Baka maboto si Dudut sa Senado, ha?

Lito Lapid. Naku! Halatang-halatang sikat nga gobernador ng Pampanga. Katulong ng masa sa oras ng krisis — Lito Lapid.

Orly Mercado. Kapwa ko, mahal ko. At baka hindi n'yo alam matagal nang tumutulong sa aking pamahalaan sa mapayapang pag-aalaga ng mga manggagawa — Orly Mercado.

Sonny Osmeña. Sa batas n'yang ginawa, ginawang madali ang paggamit ng cell phone, kaya tuloy ang Pilipinas ay text capital of the world, salamat kay Sonny Osmeña.

Bong Revilla. Tagapangalaga ng pelikulang Pinoy, kilabot ng mga pirata ng vcd — Bong Revilla. Mar Roxas. Mr. Palengke. Ama ng presyong abot-kaya. Kampiyon ng mamimili. Kampiyon ng maliliit na negosyante — Mar Roxas.

At ang ating kandidatong pagka-bise presidente, si Noli “Kabayan” de Castro, the most famous television commentator. Pinalalawak ang kaalaman ng masa, ipinaglalaban ang karapatan ng masa, Mr. Public Service himself — Noli De Castro.

Kami ang k4 — Koalisyon ng Katapatan at Karanasan sa Kinabukasan.

It will take time and resolve to overcome the strong forces trying to divide us. But K4 stands for resolve, K4 stands for clout, K4 stands for the experience to change the economy. To do the unprecedented changes that will make us more secure, that will strengthen our families, that will stamp out corruption. K4 can do it for the future of the average Filipino.

We have made progress, but we will need your support to get the job done for the fundamental change in our political system. Ipaglalaban ng K4 na tayo ay magkaroon ng parliamentary at federal form of government. Ipaglalaban ng K4 na palitan ang kultura ng katiwalian. Ipaglalaban ng K4 na pigilin ang salot ng droga. Ipaglalaban ng K4 na ubusin ang terorismo. Ang K4 ay ipapaabot sa lahat na pamilya ang health insurance, lahat ng pamilyang Pilipino. Ang K4 ay paparamihin ang pabahay. Ang K4 ay papalawakin ang karapatang panlupa. Ang K4 ay lilikha ng higit na trabaho at mas mataas na sweldo. Magkakaroon tayo ng malinis na tubig at malinis na pamahalaan.

Karapatan at karanasan sa kinabukasan. Mabuhay ang K4!

Mabuhay ang sambayanang Pilipino!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Vin d'Honneur 2004

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the Vin d' Honneur 2004

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, January 9, 2004]

MOVING FORWARD ON THE PATH OF GROWTH

Once again, we gather at the start of a new year to wish one another well, and to take stock of the year just past and the year just beginning.

This is both a happy and a challenging task.

Happy, because we can reaffirm our fundamental solidarity as a community, a peace loving nation in the country and a community of peace loving nations in the world, committed to the betterment of human life in our country and all around the world.

Challenging, because we must continue to address the most urgent issues of our times—mass poverty, terrorism, environmental degradation, social injustice.

But it is these challenges that give our lives and our community and our offices their purpose and meaning. You and I are bound by solemn pledge of service to our peoples and our nations. Our respective peoples, our respective nations and the world. Ours is a special fraternity—those who pass through our work in diplomacy, must represent humanity at its best, but must also act to save humanity from its own worst tendencies. That is also what politicians must do, and that is also what the armed forces and the police must do.

Here in the Philippines, 2004 is shaping up to be a year fraught with both challenge and opportunity. Our resolve to stay the course of the downpayment that we had put in, in reform and reconciliation will be put to the test. But this is a test we face with confidence and enthusiasm.

We have no choice, but to move forward on this path of growth. Like many of the countries represented in this hall today, the Philippines is caught between the claims of its feudal past and the imperatives of the global future. We must complete the revolution that our forebears began more than a century ago and take the mission to uplift the life of every Filipino to the global stage.

During the short time that I had been President, I have been fighting in behalf of our people and our nation to make a strong, secure and respected. I have been fighting to improve the image, respect and clout of the Philippines abroad in order to aid our quality of life here at home. I have been fighting to secure the rights and privileges of our overseas Filipinos in order to aid their friends and families here at home. I have been fighting for peace in Mindanao with our allies abroad in order to bring stability, unity, and prosperity to our Muslims and Christian peoples here at home. I am happy reviewing what we have been able to do in the short time of my Presidency.

No longer is the Philippines an isolated nation from the modern world. And we thank Divine Providence. We thank you the members of the diplomatic corps, we thank my fellow policy makers, we thank our law enforcers and keepers of the peace for helping us restore the luster of the nation and the respect of the world. We thank Divine Providence and you, dear friends, for being together with me in the fight against terrorism and for peace in Mindanao. We thank Divine Providence, the government officials of the Philippines and the governments of the diplomats represented here that for the first time in a generation we're Asia's representative through the Security Council of the United Nations.

We have aligned our foreign policy to gain the respect of the nation on the world stage in order to champion the common man at home.

I have harnessed the goodwill of you, our allies to lift up the poor at home as a result of our pursuit of economic justice here in the Philippines and the pursuit of our rightful role abroad.

As we enter the New Year, we take hope and thank god for a better future.

In that spirit, I wish you all a Happy New Year and invite you to join me in a toast to the good health of the people and government of the republic of the Philippines and the good health of the people of the countries who are with representatives to our diplomatic corps in the Philippines.

Mabuhay and Happy New Year!

Speech of President Arroyo at the launching of the “Safe 4 SR – Safe for Sure” Program

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the launching of the “Safe 4 SR-Safe for Sure” Program

[Delivered at the Araneta Coliseum, Quezon City, January 27, 2004]

EDUCATION FOR A STRONG REPUBLIC

Hindi na ako magliliguy-ligoy, maikli lamang ang aking sasabihin dahil tayong lahat inip sa mga mahahabang diskurso. Gusto natin, hinahanap natin salita. Hindi salita, hinahanap natin salita na maikli pero gawa na mahaba at magaling.

Kaya direktong tayo sa paglulunsad nitong programang “Safe 4 SR – Safe for Sure” ang ating linulunsad ngayon ay programang tulong sa mga napipilitang tumigil sa pag-aaral, kung kailan patapos na dahil sa kakulangan ng pera.

In my going around the country with people, I have found that many students and their families spend time and money for three or four years of college, only to run out of resources on the final lap. Ilang beses ako nakatagpo ng hindi makakuha ng clearance sa graduation o kumuha ng final exam dahil ‘yung utang niya nung first year pa ay hindi pa nababayaran o ‘yung last leg nakapusan ng pera, kasi sa ordinaryong Pilipino kailangan matugunan muna ang mga pangunahing pangangailangan ng pamilya kagaya ng pagkain. Kaya maraming nahihirapan tustusan ang pag-aaral sa kolehiyo, lalo na kung konti na ang natitirang pondo ng pamilya.

Nauunawaan ko itong problemang ito dahil ito ang istorya ng aking tatay, si dating pangulong Diosdado Macapagal, na nagsimula ng kaniyang law school, tapos hindi makatuloy dahil nagkasakit, hindi na pwede magtrabaho, ‘di na pwede maging working student. Sabi ng doctor sakanya kasi nagka-tuberculosis: “either you stop working or you stop studying.” but if he had to stop working, he had to stop studying, kasi wala na siyang pera. Salamat may Don Honorio Ventura na nagpatuloy ng kaniyang huling pangangailangan. At dahil nakatuloy siya sa tulong ng isang mabait na tao, naging Bar topnotcher, narating ang kaniyang tagumpay sa pagpupunyagi niyang makatapos ng pag-aaral sa kabila ng kanilang kahirapan. Eh, kayo, ‘yung mga estudyante na nagsimula na tapos hindi makatapos dahil nakapusan ng pondo gaya nang nangyari sa tatay ko, eh, hindi na man lahat kayo makakahanap ng Don Honorio Ventura na indibidwal kaya nagpasya akong kumilos upang lutasin ‘yung problema ng mga Diosdado Macapagal sa kasalukuyang henerasyon.

Nalaman ko meron tayong four hundred thousand scholarship programs sa ating bansa pero kulang ito. Napag-alaman ko na ang scholarship at student loan programs ng CHED ay hindi nakaka-abot sa lahat ng mga nais nating tulungan. Ito ay nakakaabot sa 20 percent ng mga estudyante sa private schools pero ang estudyante sa private schools ay konti rin lamang haming sa estudyante ng buong bansa natin. At hindi lamang ‘yon, ‘yung scholarship na ‘yon, kung nakakaabot man sa four hundred thousand students, ang kanilang naipagkakaloob ay hindi sapat to cover the whole cost of college education. Now, the 2004 budget will give the biggest funding support to education and scholarship in our history.

Ito ang ating linulunsad ngayon, interest-free student loan program na ating hinahandog ngayon, ‘yung mga kinakapos na 3rd year, 4th year at graduating college students ay hindi na mag-iisip kung saan kukuha ng pantustos sa inyong pag-aaral. Maaring umutang kada semester hanggang 8,000 pesos ang isang estudyante. Babayaran, two years after graduation. Kung kayo ay umutang ng less than 4,000, babayaran ito sa loob ng five years. Kung kayo naman ay umutang ng mas malaki, beyond 4,000, babayaran n'yo sa loob ng ten years.

'Yan ang talagang 'Study Now, Pay Later' get your degree, get a job, and then repay your loan.

This is our fight for education for the average Filipino. Sana ang ilan sa inyong nakakapos ng pondo para magpatuloy ay makapagtapos dahil dito. At sana magkakaroon sa ilan sa mga estudyanteng ito ang mga susunod rin na pangulo ng republika ng Pilipinas sa inyong henerasyon.

Congratulations, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

[Delivered at the Araneta Coliseum, Cubao, Quezon City, January 27, 2004]

Thank you very much, Brother Rolly Dizon, former president of La Salle University and now chairman of the Commission on Higher Education.

Kanina noong ako ay pumapasok ang nag-e-emcee naman, gusto kong batiin rin siya, si chairman ng National Youth Commission, si Bambam Aquino; at tayo ay nandito ngayon sa Araneta Coliseum sa kagandahang loob ni Mar Araneta Roxas. Thank you very much, Mr. Palengke and future senator; gusto ko rin batiin ang project manager itong ating ginagawa ngayon, ang aking bagong assistant for student affairs, si Dennis Cunanan; nandito rin ang namamahala ng mga pulis sa buong Metro Manila, si General Dick De Leon; gusto kong batiin ang dating... Ang isa sa minamahal sa eskwelahan kung saan ako nanggaling, sa Assumption, si Sister Luz Soriano; at isang guwapung-guwapong congressman, si Migs Zubiri; mga estudyante, mga teacher, mga kasapi ng National Youth Commission.

Kaya diresto na tayo sa paglulunsad nitong programang “Safe 4 SR – Safe for Sure.” ang ating linulunsad ngayon ay programang tulong sa mga napipilitang tumigil sa pag-aaral, kung kailan patapos na dahil sa kakulangan ng pera.

In my going around the country with people, I have found that many students and their families spend time and money for three or four years of college, only to run out of resources on the final lap. Ilang beses ako nakatagpo ng hindi makakuha ng clearance sa graduation o kumuha ng final exam dahil ‘yung utang niya nung first year pa ay hindi pa nababayaran o ‘yung last leg nakapusan ng pera, kasi sa ordinaryong Pilipino kailangan matugunan muna ang mga pangunahing pangangailangan ng pamilya kagaya ng pagkain. Kaya maraming nahihirapan tustusan ang pag-aaral sa kolehiyo, lalo na kung konti na ang natitirang pondo ng pamilya.

Nauunawaan ko itong problemang ito dahil ito ang istorya ng aking tatay, si dating pangulong Diosdado Macapagal, na nagsimula ng kaniyang law school, tapos hindi makatuloy dahil nagkasakit, hindi na pwede magtrabaho, ‘di na pwede maging working student. Sabi ng doktor sa kanya, kasi nagka-tuberculosis: “either you stop working or you stop studying.” but if he had to stop working, he had to stop studying, kasi wala na siyang pera. Salamat may Don Honorio Ventura na nagpatuloy ng kaniyang huling pangangailangan. At dahil nakatuloy siya sa tulong ng isang mabait na tao, naging bar topnotcher, narating ang kaniyang tagumpay sa pagpupunyagi niyang makatapos ng pag-aaral sa kabila ng kanilang kahirapan. Eh, kayo, ‘yung mga estudyante na nagsimula na tapos hindi makatapos dahil nakapusan ng pondo gaya nang nangyari sa tatay ko, eh, hindi naman lahat kayo makakahanap ng Don Honorio Ventura na indibidwal kaya nagpasya akong kumilos upang lutasin ‘yung problema ng mga Diosdado Macapagal sa kasalukuyang henerasyon.

Nalaman ko meron tayong four hundred thousand scholarship programs sa ating bansa pero kulang ito. Napag-alaman ko na ang scholarship at student loan programs ng CHED ay hindi nakaka-abot sa lahat ng mga nais nating tulungan. Ito ay nakakaabot sa 20 percent ng mga estudyante sa private schools pero ang estudyante sa private schools ay konti rin lamang haming sa estudyante ng buong bansa natin. At hindi lamang ‘yon, ‘yung scholarship na ‘yon, kung nakakaabot man sa four hundred thousand students, ang kanilang naipagkakaloob ay hindi sapat to cover the whole cost of college education. Now, the 2004 budget will give the biggest funding support to education and scholarship in our history.

Ito ang ating linulunsad ngayon, interest-free student loan program na ating hinahandog ngayon, 'yung mga kinakapos na 3rd year, 4th year at graduating college students ay hindi na mag-iisip kung saan kukuha ng pantustos sa inyong pag-aaral. Maaring umutang kada semester hanggang 8,000 pesos ang isang estudyante. Babayaran, two years after graduation. Kung kayo ay umutang ng less than 4,000, babayaran ito sa loob ng five years. Kung kayo naman ay umutang ng mas malaki, beyond 4,000, babayaran n'yo sa loob ng ten years.

'Yan ang talagang 'study now, pay later.' get your degree, get a job, and then repay your loan.

This is our fight for education for the average Filipino. Sana ang ilan sa inyong nakakapos ng pondo para magpatuloy ay makapagtapos dahil dito. At sana magkakaroon sa ilan sa mga estudyanteng ito ang mga susunod rin na pangulo ng republika ng Pilipinas sa inyong henerasyon.

Congratulations, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Joint Membership Meeting and Induction of Newly-Elected Officers of Private Business Organizations

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Joint Membership Meeting and Induction of Newly-Elected Officers of Private Business Organizations

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, January 28, 2004]

Thank you. Thank you very much.

Thank you very much to my new and very worthy Secretary of Trade and Industry, Cesar Purisima.

I would like to greet the leaders of the organizations whom we inducted into office today. Congratulations, President Noemi Saludo. Congratulations, Jun Ortiz Luis. Congratulations, Mike Varela. Congratulations, Oscar Brillo. Congratulations, Rene Soriano. Congratulations to the officers of your organizations. Congratulations also to the other organizations whom I inducted into office though their presidents are not seated here in the front row.

I would also like to acknowledge, a future senator of the republic of the Philippines, ARMM Governor Parouk Hussin. Maraming salamat rin Don Emilio Yap na itong inyong magandang lugar ay pinagamit ninyo sa amin. The newly-inducted officers of the different associations, members of the business community, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen:

Napakaganda nga na ang dami-dami ninyong narito. Sabi nga ni Noemi, sa dami ng pumunta rito mula sa iba't-ibang mga chapter at iba't-ibang mga association, para naging Philippine Business Conference all over again.

And indeed, it is an important time for the cross section of the business community to be together once again because the nation is at a crossroads — whether to move forward toward a modern progressive nation or fall backward to the old formulas that led to the chaos that we inherited.

I, for one, am optimistic about our future. I think my secretary of Trade and Industry is optimistic about our future. For him to retire as chairman of SGV to join me in my administration at this time is a gesture of optimism about the future.

I believe we must seize the moment and offer the hope, the change and the direction that the nation and its people that we all want. We all want change. And as I go around and talk to the average Filipino, I see that the change wished for is in terms of a better life, particularly in economic terms such as jobs, prices, livelihood, and all the things mentioned by Jun Ortiz Luis and Noemi Saludo in their speeches. I have been fighting for change for the ordinary Filipino. I want to bring us together as we move forward in forging a modern nation.

As the business leaders of this nation, I know you share my hope and my concern. You have a clear choice. You can help unify the nation around sound economic leadership, a concern for the average Filipino, and enhanced standing in the international community. Or you can take a gamble on untested leadership, failed governance and the prospects of the Philippines once again being the laughing stock of the world.

We can continue to have the confidence of international countries and companies that have resulted in investment of billions of pesos, or hundreds of millions of dollars, and millions of high-paying jobs here in the Philippines. Or we can lose that confidence, we can lose the allies, and we can lose the jobs that came with them.

The upcoming election is not about me — it is about you. It is about not going back to the past. It is about once and for all moving the Philippine nation and the life and livelihood of the average Filipino ahead.

This past short tenure of my presidency was rocked by sieges on the government and global economic constraints, but the vision of EDSA Dos lives on. We have made a strong start in a short time.

Our GDP expansion of 2003 was the fastest since the Asian crisis, and it is the fifth highest among the 21 economies of the Asia-Pacific. Foreign investment is surging, the highest in many years at 23 percent increase in 2003. Inflation at 3.1 percent is the lowest in a generation that helps you grow your business, that helps the average Filipino keep prices down.

The jobs: more than three million jobs were created under my watch compared to only one million in the whole three years before my tenure. And workers given training for jobs surged to almost a million a year. Wages improved 11.2 percent even adjusted for inflation, and that is without imposing minimum wage legislation. It is because the market under my administration created better paying jobs. Strikes have been cut by one-half, the lowest number in about 20 years. And among the poorest families, the number of household heads earning a living doubled in this period of my tenure.

We have made important down payments on health care, clean water, more housing and a better education system. But these are only a start, we must do better, and we will do better.

We have rescued the economy from the precipice and stabilized the mess we inherited. And once again, the Philippines deals from a position of strength and respect in the international community. We are no longer a lap dog. We have a rightful place at the table in Asia and in the world.

And let me be very clear: the average Filipino and the Filipino family are my primary concern. They form the backbone of this nation and they deserve the fundamental change that we all aspire for them. I am impatient for this fundamental change. You should be impatient, too.

I will fight to change the culture of corruption. Today, you saw in the papers another result of our lifestyle check. I will stop the scourge of drugs and wipe out terrorism.

I thank Noemi for recognizing that we have lend out an unprecedented more than 20 billion pesos in just ten months to small and medium enterprises. I thank her for acknowledging the transport cost of products from Mindanao to Luzon have gone down in many cases by 30 percent because of the Strong Republic Nautical Highway. And my friends from Mindanao are applauding in affirmation.

I thank Jun Ortiz Luis for spending as much time on the accomplishments on kidnapping as I spent during the Philippine Business Conference on what we would do to solve the scourge of kidnapping.

You know, yesterday, I crossed out again the picture of another one of the ten most wanted kidnappers. Five of the top 10 have been neutralized. Angie Reyes and his team have expanded that list to 17. I came early to this meeting today because I have to leave early because I have to receive number 15 in that list of 17 kidnappers because he has been arrested.

And as we work on fighting the scourge of criminality with these successes, I will lead this nation to modernity, to economic strength, and to serving the needs of the average Filipino with a chance for a better life.

Change will not come easily. We're already seeing how the forces of the past are holding the nation hostage and exploiting the fears of the masses. They are not fighting for change. They are fighting to reverse the course of history.

I will fight every day to ensure that we move forward, not backward. And to ensure that government fulfills its basic promise that the average Filipino should enjoy dignity and prosperity.

I will fight to lift millions out of poverty by creating 6 million new jobs in the next 6 years. High-paying jobs built on bringing international investments to the Philippines, making the Filipino entrepreneur strong enough and courageous enough to put his money to in this high-paying investments. Making investments in people such as training and education, and opening up markets for Philippine products around the world

I will fight to provide full enrollment in the national health insurance program. We can aim for that now because during my short tenure as president we have been able to bring health insurance to the majority of the Filipino families today. After all, without good health, how can we expect our citizens to have a good job and provide for their families?

I will fight to build a 150,000 houses a year for our poorest and most deserving, and to continue to increase opportunities for all Filipinos to be able to buy the land they're occupying or to pay regular rent and not be squatters. Without a roof over your head, how can we expect our citizens to do a good job and provide for the well-being of their families?

I will fight to ensure that every community has access to clean water. If we can't have clean water, how can we expect to bring the dignity deserved by our average Filipino who deserves better?

I will fight to bring electricity service to a 1,500 barangays a year which in three years will provide electricity to every barangay in the nation, because during my short tenure, we were able to achieve a 90 percent barangay electrification rate. And now for the first time the majority of the poor households have electricity.

I will fight the corrosive impact of corruption by making government contracts even more transparent for the public to view, because after all in my administration, after many long years of waiting, finally, we were able to pass the E-Procurement Law and now we are beginning to implement it. This is part of the fight to broaden the use of corruption checks as what you have seen in the papers today that identify any government official who attempts to profit illegally from their positions.

And i will fight for continuing to strengthen our economic fundamentals that will set us on a path to economic transformation: balancing the budget, bringing in foreign and domestic investment, bolstering our banking laws, and erasing corruption as an obstacle to growth, prosperity and fundamental fairness.

So today, we find our nation poised for success, and I am ready to lead from a position of strength and experience. There is no room for half-measures, for fence sitting, for equivocation. Too much is at stake. It's time to stand up and be counted. I believe with your help, we will move forward and modernize the nation and improve the lives of the average Filipino.

We could just as easily fall backward to a time when fewer jobs were created — one million jobs for three years? When investment was stifled, when corruption dominated our politics. Our standing in the world was low, and our nation was torn apart by disunity and strife.

My challenge to you, the business leaders, my challenge to you today is to think hard about the kind of Philippines you want, and join me in the fight for change that I have started.

I need you, the business leaders of our country. I need you to invest in the Philippines of tomorrow, not in the failed governance of yesterday.

The choice is yours.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Opening Ceremonies of the 25th Annual Convention of the Philippine Association of Water Districts Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During The Opening Ceremonies of the 25th Annual Convention of the Philippine Association of Water Districts (PAWD)

[Delivered at the World Trade Center, Pasay City, January 28, 2004]

Maraming salamat. Thank you very much.

Thank you very much, Engineer Feliciano sa inyong pag-welcome at pagpakilala sa inyong lingkod.

Gusto ko rin batiin si Chairman Eduardo Mangayan at saka si Attorney Laureles, Secretary Debangko at lahat ng mga delegado na nandito itong araw na ito. At siyempre ay si Ginoong Villason din ang vice chairman ng PAWD; at siyempre ‘yung aking kasamahan sa pamahalaan, si Larry Jamora, ang administrator; si General Dumpit, ang chairman at sa inyong lahat, welcome. Karing Cabalen kong kapampangan, Mayap Abac Queca Yungan.

Dagiti kakailayak ti bangir ni mamang ko, naimbag nga bigat yo amin, apo. Sa mga taga-Mindanao asa ko nidako, maayong pag-abot kaninyong tanan kaupod, kauban na ang mga taga-Visayas. Sa mga kasimanwa sang akong bana nga Ilonggo, maayong aga sa inyo nga tanan. Sa mga taga-Eastern Visayas, maupay nga aga ha iyo tanan. And to our big delegation from Zamboanga, buenos dias. To our Muslim brothers, Assalam Alaikum. At sa inyong lahat, binabati ko kayo.

Ako ay masayang kasama kayo dahil kayo ay kabalikat ko sa paglilingkod sa karaniwang Pilipino. Kasi ang karaniwang Pilipino sa aking paglilibot, nauunawaan ko na ang batayang kailangan ng karaniwang pilipino ay pagkain sa bawat mesa at saka kalusugan. Ang malinis na tubig ay importante bilang pagkain. Kapag ikaw ay karaniwang Pilipinong pamilya, ano’ng kinakain ninyo, ano ang nasa mesa ninyo? Kanin, isda, siyempre tubig — pwede bang kakain ng walang tubig na iniinom. Ang tubig ay importante rin sa kalusugan. Pag walang tubig o marumi ang tubig, nagkakasakit, lumalaki ang gastos sa paggamot. Kaya hamon natin lahat, mga kabalikat, na magdala ng malinis na tubig sa karaniwang pamilyang Pilipino.

Ang mga water districts ay mga water districts sa labas ng Metro Manila. Dahil sa Metro Manila at sa ilan diyang mga malalaking lungsod ay merong franchise holders. Ganunpaman, gusto ko lang ipakuwento sa inyo ‘yung aking mga karanasan sa problema ng malinis na tubig dito sa Metro Manila. Kasi dito sa Metro Manila lamang sa aking paglilibot noong nakaraang taon, nalaman ko na sa Metro Manila alone may 160,000 households — eh times five ‘yan to cover the number of people — ito ay ‘yung wala pa silang malinis na tubig kahit na sila ay sakop ng Manila Water at Maynilad.

Kaya ang ginawa ko naglunsad ako ng isang malawakang programang malinis na tubig sa kamaynilaan. Kinulit ko ‘yung maynilad at saka Manila Water na bilisan ang koneksyon. At ‘yung mga physically mahirap magawa ‘yung koneksyon sa maikling panahon sa year 2003 or early 2004, sila ay naglalagay ng tangke o nagdadala araw-araw ng truck ng tubig at nagbukas ng mga gripo sa publiko.

Ginawa kong tagasubaybay nitong proyektong ito ay ‘yung MWSS at saka ‘yung PAGCOR. Kasi doon sa mga walang tubig na koneksyon, ang ginagawa nila ay bumibili ng tubig sa malayo — 200 pesos per cubic meter. Pag may koneksyon, 20 pesos na lamang, one-tenth na lamang ang presyo. Pero sabi ko, habang wala pa ‘yung koneksyon kailangan magdala sila ng tangke o truck ng tubig at ‘yon ay para mapabilisan ‘yung koneksyon, libre muna. Pambayad doon sa ilang taong nagdudusa ang taong bayan na nagbabayad ng 200 pesos per cubic meter.

Ngayon, natupad na itong 160,000 families na nahanap na walang malinis na tubig. Meron na silang access whether ‘yung direct connection na pinabilis o ‘yung tangke ng tubig na malinis o ‘yung water truck o ‘yung barangay community faucet. Ito ay kasalukuyang pinapalawak rin natin sa mga bahagi ng Rizal at Cavite na sakop din ng Manila Water at Maynilad.

Kung dito sa kamaynilaan ay kinukulit natin ang franchise holders — Manila Water at Maynilad — na bumilis ang kilos, sa labas naman ng kamaynilaan iba naman ang ating approach. Kagaya ng kuryente sa manila at malalaking mga lungsod may franchise holder, pero sa kanayunan ay may electric cooperatives. Ganun din ang tubig sa maynila at saka sa malalaking lungsod, may mga franchise holders o concessionaires. Doon naman sa kanayunan at maraming mga lungsod na nasa probinsiya ay water district naman. At dito naman sa labas ng kamaynilaan, sa probinsiya, ang ating patakaran ay palakasin ang water district. Palakasin kayo. Doon sa... Kasi talagang very comparable ang karanasan ng water at saka karanasan ng kuryente kung kaya siyempre ang importante ay 'yung mabuting pagmamaneho, management. Kaya kinuha ko bilang pinuno ng LWUA, administration ng LWUA ay isang magaling na negosyante ng Iloilo, si Ginoong Larry Jamora.

Alam n'yo 'yang business district ng Iloilo, palagay ko kalahati ng lupa doon ang may-ari 'yung Jamora family. At kaya dahil magaling sila sa pagpapatakbo ng negosyo, kinuha ko siya para magdala ng modern management sa LWUA sa pagmamaneho ng importanteng problema ng malinis na tubig. At binabati ko siya at kaniyang mga kasama sa LWUA dahil sa nagdala sila ng dagdag na malinis na tubig sa tatlong daang libong Pilipino – kasi 60,000 families, that's 300,000 additional Filipinos — dahil nagtayo ng halos limampung malalaking water supply projects na ito ang gastos ay mahigit sa half a billion pesos. 'Yon ho ang ginawang mga bagong dagdag na malinis na tubig ang lwua. Ngunit kailangan ang mga water districts ay gamitin n'yo 'yung inyong mga kita para sa ganun ay nakaka-expand kayo.

Ako ay nasisiyahan na malaman na nubenta porsiyento ng mga water districts ay ngayon operating on a 24-hour, seven-day basis. Congratulations sa inyong malasakit.

Kaya inaasahan natin na tuloy-tuloy ang pag-iibayo ng pagmamaneho ng water district para sa ganun ay 'yung problema, 'yung hangarin ng karaniwang Pilipino magkaroon ng malinis na tubig ay matutupad.

Bukod pa po doon sa problema ng malinis na tubig sa Metro Manila nandiyan din po 'yung problema ng malinis na tubig sa mahigit isang daang bayan pa rin. At ano ang unang hinihingi bago magkaroon ng malinis na tubig? Magtayo ng water district o mag-expand 'yung water district sa susunod na pinakamalapit na malaking bayan.

Sana po ito ay mabigyan natin ng pansin. At gusto kong malaman din ninyo na 'yung isang programa ko nga para sa mga mahihirap 'yung KALAHI (Kabalikat Laban sa Kahirapan), ito na nga din ay nagkaron ng pagkapatnership sa mga foundation para nga mahanapan ng pondo 'yung maglalagay ng tubig dito sa more than 100 waterless municipalities.

Sana ang hinihingi ko kay Larry ay ipagsama niya 'yung mga water district at saka 'yung mga foundation na kausap ng kalahi para may kumbinasyon ng pondo mula sa foundation at management mula sa water district para lagyan ng malinis na tubig itong more than 100 waterless municipalities.

Magagawa ni Larry 'yan eh kasi kasama na kayo bilang water district at kilala naman niya 'yang iba't-ibang mga negosyante na may malalaking foundation na tumutulong dito. Alam n'yo si Larry nino-nominate 'yan eh for mayor of Iloilo City. Pero tinanggihan niya 'yung nomination kasi gusto niyang maglingkod sa ating hangarin magkaroon ng malinis na tubig ang kapwa karaniwang Pilipino.

Isang importanteng gawin din natin sana, hindi lang kakulangan ng pondo ang problema kasi ng tubig eh talagang kakulangan ng tubig na nanggagaling sa kalikasan. In the last October and December, lalo na sa Luzon, nagkulang ang ulan. Sinisikap natin na magkaroon ng cloud seeding pag maganda 'yung ulap. Pero ang importante rin sana dahil marami kayong sakop, marami kayong kausap, magtulungan tayo para sa water conservation.

Alam n'yo 'yung isang ale doon sa Payatas, nung ako ay naghatid ng water tank, 'yung moving water tank, 'yung araw-araw na pumupunta doon ay kinuwento niya sa akin, kasi 'yung bahagi ng Payatas na 'yon ay matagal na, ilang taon nang walang tubig. Kaya bumibili sila ng 200 pesos per cubic meter, kaya talagang kailangan mag-conserve sila. At kinekuwento niya sa akin kung papano siya nagco-conserve ng tubig. Sabi niya pag siya ay naliligo, siyempre tabo kasi 'yung tubig binibili lang nila, walang running water. Pero nakatungtong siya sa palangana. Kaya 'yung tabo na ginagamit, 'yung tubig sa tabo naiipon sa palangana at 'yon ang ginagamit niyang unang pangkuskos ng kanyang labada. Pagkatapos noon 'yung tubig na 'yon na kinuskusan niya ng unang kuskos ng labada ang ginagamit naman para i-flush 'yung kanyang kasilyas.

Biro n'yo isang tubig tatlong paggamit. At natutunan niya 'yan dahil mahal na mahal ang tubig. Sana sa mga ibang lugar kahit na hindi mahal na mahal ang tubig siguro kayo mga water district pwede n'yong ikuwento itong magandang halimbawa ng isang ale sa payatas na marunong magmalasakit at maging responsableng gumagamit ng malinis na tubig.

Kaya ang dami nating kailangang gawin. Kailangang bigyan ng tubig. We must have clean water and clean government. 'Yan ang napakamagandang simbolo or slogan — 'yung clean water bilang sagisag ng essential services; 'yung clean government bilang sagisag ng pamamahala na hinihintay ng lahat ng karaniwang pilipino, kasama kayo at kasama ako.

Itong araw na ito siguro nabasa n'yo sa peryodiko may ilang mga official ng gobyerno, ng bir at customs na lumagpak sa lifestyle checks. Iyan ho ay isang masasabi nating pinupuri tungkol sa Pilipinas ng ibang mga institusyon kasi ngayon lang natin ginagamit itong lifestyle check para mahuli 'yung mga official na tiwali. Kasi kailangan ginagamit natin 'yung mga mabibisang teknolohiya para mag-investigate. At inaasahan ko na dito sa buong pagpapatakbo ng water district ay hindi lamang clean water kung hindi clean governance din ang ating ibibigay sa ating mamamayang pinaglilingkuran.

Sa inyong lahat, congratulations!

Happy anniversary! And may you have a successful convention.

Maraming salamat po.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 13th Anniversary of the Philippine National Police (PNP)

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 13th Anniversary of the Philippine National Police (PNP)

[Delivered at the Grandstand, Camp Crame, Quezon City, January 29, 2004]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Joey Lina sa iyung napakagandang pagpakilala sa akin.

Troop commander General Delfin give “Tikas Pahinga.”

His Excellency former president and former chief PNP, President Fidel Ramos; General Ebdane and Mrs. Ebdane, and the other officers of the PNP; former chiefs of the Philippine National Police; AFP Chief of Staff, General Abaya and the other officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; members of the Cabinet; excellencies of the diplomatic corps; officers, men and women of the Philippine National Police; ladies and gentlemen:

Sabi nga ni General Ebdane lucky 13th. What I can say is as protectors of the people, I have much to congratulate you for today.

Teaming up with other NAKTF units, you closed down an unprecedented number of clandestine laboratories and warehouse, with a total drug haul of an unprecedented amount of billions. You have an unprecedented achievement in the fight against drugs. Congratulations to you!

You have made more than 20,000 arrests among drug lords, big and small, but including the biggest drug lord of them all, the number one lord, William Gan.

Aside from your fantastic achievements in the fight against drugs, you have made equally spectacular achievements on the anti-kidnapping front. Because of you and your other partners in the anti-kidnapping task force, headed by General Reyes, Secretary Reyes, the top kidnap gangs have fallen. Congratulations for the spectacular achievement!

That is why despite all the sound and fury of the political season, even despite the misadventure of some military captains, our nation is safe. The AFP Chief of Staff is on top of the situation as far as the latest AFP incident is concerned. That incident is an isolated incident. No untoward developments have been monitored, and a widespread plot is not indicated. This is another case of partisan exploitation of military adventurism. The AFP will impose the commensurate level of discipline against its err members, and the Department of Justice shall file charges against those found culpable. We will deal sternly with violations of the chain of command. This administration upholds military and police professionalism.

Binabati ko ang pulis dahil sa pinagkaisa ninyong pagtanggol ang republika hindi lamang kontra sa mga terorista, kidnapper, drug lords, kundi na rin kontra sa mga nag-aadventure na lumaban sa pamahalaan kagaya nung magandang ginawa n’yo nung nagkaroon ng oakwood mutiny. Maraming salamat sa inyong katapatan.

Alam ko na ang karaniwang pulis ay karaniwang Pilipino na gusto maging propesyonal sa inyong kilos. Alam ko na habang sinisikap ninyo na maging napakagaling na propesyonal sa inyong trabaho, kayo naman ay nag-aabala bilang karaniwang pilipino sa hanapbuhay. Kaya nga maaga pa sa aking panguluhan ay hinanap ko na ang pondo para maging pareho ang sweldo ng pulis sa mga sweldo ng mga teacher.

Sulit naman ang pagtaas ng inyong sweldo because of the great strides we have made during the short time I have been president in fighting kidnappers, drug lords and terrorists.

Ngunit ito ay down payment lamang. Much more remains to be done. And that is why I formed a PNP Reform Commission last year made up of non-PNP government personnel, private sector personnel and PNP officers. And they will be submitting their recommendations soon regarding the fundamental reforms we need to make in the police institution.

Nagsama-sama tayo sa maraming hrap at maraming pagsubok. Nagsama-sama rin tayo sa pagtamo ng maraming tagumpay. Magsama-sama tayo ngayon upang tunay na ipag-ibayo ang institusyon ng kapulisan. Sundan natin ang down payment. Gumawa tayo ng magandang susunod na installment para sa magandang kinabukasan ng kapulisan maging ng buong sambayanang Pilipino dahil ang kapayapaan at paglilingkod na hinahandog n'yo sa karaniwang Pilipino ang siyang magbibigay ng ginhawa ng kalooban.

Maraming salamat.

Mabuhay ang kapulisan! Congratulations!

Thank you very much.

Thank you, Dr. Veja; Ambassador Yuchengco, thank you for this wonderful honor. But more than that, thank you for bringing honor to our country because when you were ambassador to the United Nations, my Ambassador to the United Nations, you were the one who got our votes to get into the U.N. Security Council of 2004; Mrs. Helen Dee, thank you, too; Prime Minister Virata; Secretary Navarro; Dr. Torres; Mr. Lim Sim; Mr. Santos; Dr. Biglete; Dr. Valisno; deans and officers of the administration; parents; graduates; ladies and gentlemen:

I am happy to be here with the Mapua of the 21st century. Mapua has long been synonymous with quality engineering. It is among the institutions that has done us Filipinos proud. Aside from being the choice of Ambassador Yuchengco for his educational innovations for the 21st century, Mapua is also the alma mater of Dado Nanatao, the Filipino Bill Gates.

And so it is fitting today that among the many graduating students of Mapua that we congratulate, we also congratulate the first batch of computer science graduates. May there be more Dado Banataos among you. And may there be Alfonso Yuchengcos among you also in the future.

I congratulate you for graduating. There are many young people, other young people who are unable to graduate. Baka sa mga underclassmen ninyo may mga nanganganib na baka hindi maka-graduate. Hindi dahil kulang sila sa utak kung hindi baka kulang sila sa pondo. Marami pa ngang napipilitang tumigil sa pag-aaral, kung kailan patapos na, dahil sa kakulangan ng pera.

In my going around among the people, I have found that many students and their families spend time and money for college, especially a good private college like Mapua, only to run out of resources on the final lap. Sa karaniwang Pilipino kailangan matugunan muna ang ilang pangunahing pangangailangan ng pamilya, tulad ng pagkain at iba pang gastos. Kaya madalas nahhirapan tustusan ang pag-aaral sa kolehiyo, lalo na kung kukonti na ang natitirang pondo.

Nauunawaan ko ang problemang ito. Ito ay kasaysayan ng aking ama, si dating pangulong Diosdado Macapagal. Siyanga pala, si Diosdado Macapagal ay isang matalik na kaibigan ni Don Alfonso Yuchengco. Every fifth jubilee of my father, Ambassador Yuchengco would give a dinner, a birthday dinner in his honor. Halimbawa, 65th birthday, 70th birthday, 75th birthday, 80th birthday. Minsan, nagkamali ako, nasabi ko kay Dr. Yuchengco na mag e-eighty five na 'yung aking tatay. So, he gave him a dinner. Mag e-eighty four palang pala, nagkamali. But it was providential, he gave a dinner on his 84th birthday but on the 85th birthday of my father, he was already too sick to have been the guest of honor in yet another jubilee celebration. And so it was providential. And I'm very grateful that on the last possible birthday my father could celebrate physically, Ambassador Yuchengco was his host.

Pag-usapan ko 'yung aking tatay. Siya ay nagsimula mag-aral sa abogasiya. Kagaya ng marami sa inyo nakapag-aral at nagtapos sa karera. Nagsimula siya sa abogasiya, mahirap lamang siya kaya siya ay woking student. Ngunit dahil mahirap siya, mahina ang kanyang katawan. Working student, nagtatrabaho, nag-aaral, naglalakad mula sa eskwela hanggang trabaho o trabaho hanggang eskwela hanggang tahanan. Nagkaroon tuloy ng tuberculosis. Sabi ng kaniyang doktor, "kailangan tumigil ka magtatrabaho o tumigil ka mag-aral. Hindi pwede 'yung dalawa." ngunit papano naman siya mag-aaral kung titigil ng trabaho dahil mahirap lamang sila. Wala nang pang-tuition, kaya tumigil nagtatrabaho, tumigil rin mag-aral. Mabuti na lamang ay may Don Honorio Ventura na isang mayaman pero bachelor. Nalaman ang kalagayan niya, binayaran 'yung kaniyang pagpapatuloy ng pag-aaral. Kaya naging bar topnotcher siya tuloy at narating ang kaniyang tagumpay sa pagpupunyagi niyang matapos ang pag-aral.

Eh hindi lahat ng nakakapos ang estudyante ay nakakahanap ng kanilang don Honorio Ventura. Ni hindi lahat ay nakakahanap ng kanilang Don Alfonso Yuchengco. Kaya nagpasya ako na kumilos upang ang mga problema ng mga estudyanteng ganito ay malutas.

Napag-alaman ko na totoo may scholarship program at student loan program ang CHED, ngunit hindi ito nakakabot sa lahat ng mga nais nating tulungan. Siguro merong ilan sa inyo ay natulungan, hindi ko alam dahil alam ko meron mga 400,000 students ang natutulungan sa scholarship. Bukod dito, ang kanilang mga... 'Yung CHED 'yung naipagkakaloob ay hindi sapat para sakupin lahat ng gastos ng college education. Baka mabayaran ang tuition, baka hindi mo mababayad 'yung ibang miscellaneous fees. But now in the 2004 budget, because we have been able to manage our budget deficit ceiling, we've been able to do appropriate fiscal policy, we've been able to generate more revenues than we targetted, the 2004 budget will give the biggest funding support for the education of deserving students.

Ngayon sa 2004, sa pamamagitan ng interest-free student loan program, ang mga kinakapos ng 3rd year, 4th year at graduating students ay hindi na mag-iisip kung saan kukuha nang pantustos sa kanilang pag-aaral. Dahil maaaring umutang kada semestre kapag kapos ang isang estudyante hanggang 8,000 pesos, at ito ay magsisimulang bayaran two years after graduation. Kung ang utang ay menos sa 4,000 pesos ito ay payable sa loob ng limang taon. Kung ang utang naman ay mas mataas sa 4,000 pesos hanggang 8,000 pesos ito ay sampung taon para bayaran.

And I have already released the initial 200 million pesos for the student loan program. Eto ang tunay na "Study Now, Pay Later." get your degree, get a job within two years, then repay your loan. This is an important component of our fight for education for the average Filipino.

We Filipinos have always valued education. I'm sure the parents here are testimony to that. I'm sure many of your parents have sacrificed so that you can be in this hall today graduating. And thanks to your parents concern. Thanks for the value that the average Filipino gives to education, our country is ranked very highly. It is ranked number one in terms of the number of knowledge workers being produced. Many of these knowledge workers involved engineering, many of them involved information technology. And I congratulate Mapua under the leadership of Ambassador Yuchengco for this thrust of strengthening engineering but also computer science and information technology. Thus, the Mapua of the 21st century occupies a pivotal role in the knowledge society that our country is becoming known for. Information technology and its related industries, they are the growth sector of our future.

We have invested in the infrastructure here. During my administration, we were able to improve the bandwidth in the interconnectivity. So that today, it is only one-third of the cost of what it used to be before i was president.

And with Mapua producing graduates as what we are honoring today, we are also working on the human resources. Thus, we are producing the infrastructure and the human resources necessary for the development of information technology as the growth sector of our future.

Call centers and other back office operations which are — if you talk about I.T. in the range of skills, where on the one hand, you have software development at the highest range, and you have call centers at you would say relatively the lowest requirement of skills.

Let's talk about call centers alone and back office operations. They grew from 2,000 jobs before I became president to now unexpected 40,000 jobs this year in 2004. And these jobs are growing every year.

This is not by accident. At the start of my tenure, I declared that technology will be the basis of our development. And it is becoming true in such a short tenure of my presidency. We can make technology work for and serve the average Filipino.

And I am very proud to be here and honored to be here to acknowledge that Mapua is playing a leading role in creating a modern and progressive Philippines.

To you, the fortunate products of Mapua, and its role in the knowledge society of the 21st century, congratulations!

Congratulations to this great institution. And congratulations to you, our graduates — the hope of the Philippines for the 21st century.

Thank you.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Rotary International Presidential Celebration on Poverty Alleviation

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Rotary International Presidential Celebration on Poverty Alleviation

[Delivered at the Rizal Ballroom, Shangri-la Hotel, Makati City, January 31, 2004]

Thank you very much.

Thank you Undersecretary Joc-joc Bolante for your introduction.

Welcome to the Philippines, President of Rotary International Jonathan Majiyagbe

And I would like to greet the icons of rotary in the Philippines – Herman Gamboa, Paen Hechanova, Mr. John Thorne welcome also. Other international and local rotary delegates, guests, ladies and gentlemen.

What a great honor for the Philippines to be one of only fifteen rotary areas to have this “Presidential celebration”. A hundred sixty Rotary clubs all over the world, fifteen are hosting this presidential celebration. Thank you rotary international for giving the Philippines the honor.

And I congratulate Rotary International Jonathan for this big idea and I welcome all Rotarians who are championing it.

When I was coming down the aisle or at the aisle, Jonathan notices that I greeted so many people by their first names. And he said. “Do you remember all the Rotarians by their first names?” I said, a lot of them because before I became a Senator or Vice President or President fighting for poverty alleviation. I was a Rotarian fighting for poverty alleviation. And I am happy to be able to see many of those Rotarians that we used to work together with here in this hall today.

And because, I was a very active Rotarian President, My husband was a multi-awarded Rotary Club President. Rotary has also become a partner of my administration in fighting for change for the average Filipino in fighting for poverty alleviation. In my moving around the country and talking to the average Filipino, I can see that the change wished for indeed is in terms of poverty alleviation. In terms of a better life such as jobs, prices, livelihood, food on every table, shelter security, health, education.

On jobs, the strength of my foreign policy gives confidence to nations to invest in our nation. And because I was a Rotarian before I became a public official, rotary international has come to comprise that part of the international relationships I have developed as an economist. Senator, trade official and President, to run this country and attract huge investments needed to modernize our nation.

I have many beautiful memories of attending international rotary conferences with our Club in Makati Central. With the other Rotarians, with the Rotarians, I remember being in Taiwan, being Osaka, being in Florida together bonding with my club members and their.....But also getting to know and developing that international network that have been able to help the Philippines attain this stature of being a welcoming place for investments.

The people to people international network that I have been able to develop – thanks to Rotary International – is also paralleled by our relationship on the official level with the us and other developed countries that is also part of the network of international relationships. For instance, our strong relationship with the U.S. has resulted during the short time that I have been President in an economic and security relationship worth 6 billion dollars, including American investments like Intel, which has expanded to 1 billion dollars during my administration. Sunpower Solar Cells 330 million dollars investment. Texas Instruments about 70 million dollars and a Car Assembly Plant of Ford 50 million dollars, and numerous Call Centers and other business process outsourcing investments that are becoming the growth sector of our future. Call Centers and business process outsourcing employment in the Philippines have grown from 2,000 seats before I became President to a projected 40,000 seats this year. And doubling every year.

On May here, I called up the Administrator of the Economic Zone Lilia De Lima because I wanted to check with her the figure of Texas Instruments. And she said, I also like to add that this January, Lilia said, in the economic zones we approved almost 10 billion pesos worth of investments compared to only 1.8 billion in January last year.

We want of course, to make the Philippines a safe place for investments, for the average Filipino. For the poor Filipino who has no means to provide to pay for his own security. And even on the security relationship, with the U.S. for instance when I first became President, I inherited a military assistance commitment from the United States worth 1.9 million dollars and counting. Including a giant naval cyclone boat that is arriving of February 23rd worth 30 million dollars just for one naval ship.

In terms of this assistance, military assistance, the Philippines is NO. 1 in East Asia. No. 4 worldwide, with more to come because we have been declared a major non-NATO ally of the U.S.

Last year we increase foreign investment in the Philippines by about 23 percent. In fact, in the short period of my Presidency we created more than 3 million jobs, compared to only 1 million created in the previous 3 years.

I have been talking about investments because the best way to fight poverty is to create jobs, spread wealth which rotary does a lot and give the peoples the tools they need to succeed, which rotary also does a lot of.

Many decades ago, when my father was President of the Philippines, we were one of Asia's most progressive economies. But after that, when the other economies around the Philippines were growing double digit during the East Asian economic miracle. Somehow the Philippines failed to fight for the fundamental reforms we needed to sustain our growth and our place in that community of economies in Southeast Asia.

That is why, I have started to fight for these fundamental reforms that we should have done a long time ago.

The result stability and robust economy—among Asia's best performers as far as growth is concerned. For 2003, GNP grew 5.5 percent compared to an average of 2.9 percent in the three years before I became President. These have defied all expectations and a 3.1 percent inflation rate is the lowest in a generation. Again, this is just a down payment.

I will fight for an unprecedented change that makes us more secure. Strengthen our families, stamp out corruption because these are what we need to fight poverty. I will fight to change the culture of corruption, stop the scourge of drugs and wipe out terrorism because we need an environment that does not have these things in order to fight poverty. And directly for poverty alleviation, I will expand health coverage to all, bring more housing, expand property rights and create more jobs that attract higher wages. We will have clean water and clean government.

I am aware that you Rotarians share many of the same goals and values I cherish. Your programs to promote micro lending to improve farm productivity, your Gawad Kalinga program with the couples for Christ. All of these attest to your commitment to positive social change.

And so I ask you to fight with me, to fight for a change, to be the average Filipinos champion.

Earlier I mentioned, we would have clean water and clean government. A symbol of governance and essential services. You know how to fight for a clean government because you are leaders in the community, you are active in electoral exercises, you are active as watchdogs of the community. And in your weekly rotary meetings, you make public officials accountable to you, to the people with their explanations of what they are doing to serve the people. Your polio class is a very important contribution to the health of the nation which you served. Clean water is also crucial for health.

I specifically mention clean water because I have found in going around the people and even going around Metro Manila that, that still a crying need. In 2003, I did a survey of how many families in Metro Manila have access to clean water and have to go out and buy very expensive water, a 160,000 families in Rizal, I did a survey, a similar survey. 50,000 families. And in the countryside, because Rizal we don't really considered that countryside anymore, it's very urban. In the countryside, more than a hundred municipalities still don't have access to clean water.

This is a major poverty alleviation effort that I am seeking, I am fighting to address. And I am very happy that my project manager for this is a Rotarian, Ram Agoncillo.

And so I ask you Rotarians, if there is something you would like to add that special for the year 2004. Yes! Go on fighting for clean government because we have elections coming up. But help me too, to fight for clean water, an essential element in poverty alleviation.

I thank you all for having helped me before I became President, before I became politician, and helping me even today. And to all our Rotarians from all over the world, thank you for helping your communities and thank you too for helping the Philippines in the international brotherhood of Rotary.

Thank you and welcome once again and to all of you, and Mabuhay.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Launching of Philippine Universal Health Insurance

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Launching of Philippine Universal Health Insurance

[Delivered at the PICC, Roxas Blvd. Pasay City, February 2, 2004]

Maraming salamat Secretary Dayrit. Nakita ko yata si Secretary Pagdanganan kanina, Secretary Pagdanganan, Cesar Jaime, the president of AFP-RASBS, Winston Garcia, the president of GSIS, naku! Winston, marami ka palang kaibigan dito, Elmo Juridico, the PHILSA Vice Chairman and ECC Executive Director, uy! Marami rin. Miru Kimlo, president of HDMF, Honeygirl De Leon, chairman of PCSO, Cora Dela Paz, president of SSS, our moving spirit behind the Universal Health Insurance, Congressman Boboy Syjuco, speakers and resource persons led by Mr. Warner Blenk, the sub-regional director of ILO, other members, participants of this first National PHILSA Convention, distinguished guest, ladies and gentlemen.

Ang pagtitipon nating ito ay kumakatawan sa mga pangarap ng karaniwang Filipino. Para sa isang mas mabuting buhay, isang buhay na walang pangamba, walang katiyakan, walang pagdurusa, walang kawalan ng pag-asa. Iyan ang hinahanap ng social security. Ang social security ay tumutugon sa mahalagang isyu ng kahirapan kung saan ang mahihirap ay tinutulungan masalapi. Ang matatanda ay tinutulungan ng bata at ang may sakit ay tinutulungan ng may mabuting kalusugan.

Nakararami sa pamilyang Filipino ay sakop na ng Philhealth, ng health insurance, congratulations to Philhealth. Ang Employees Compensation Commission naman ay nabawasan na ang processing time, sa pagdesisyon ng kaso mula 70 araw hanggang 45 araw, congratulations ECC. Oh, totoo ba iyon? Bakit may murmur?

Ang GSIS ay kinumputerized (computerized) ang sistema ng pamamahala ng pension at pantang, goodluck. Sana sa madaling panahon, itong computerization ay makatulong na maubos ang backlog. Iyong PAG-IBIG, itinaas ang halagang maaring pantang mula sa P500,000 hanggang 2 million para sa pabahay, congratulations. Ang RSBS, noong una ako ay umupo bilang pangulo, ang bigat ng lusing namana ko. Ngunit sa maikling bagong panguluhan, nakapagtala na ng tang 39 million pesos, congratulations.

And today, I would like to announce the launching of the SSS Pensioners Day. This is a project to reach out to always a million social security and employees compensation pensioners. Kasi habang hinihintay natin na maayos ng SSS iyon kanilang actuarial soundness pagkatapos ng mga masasamang investments na minana natin ay ito ay ang tulong sa mga pensiyonado.

The pensioners day project provides free medical and social services to SSS pensioners. For now, it is once a month. It started last Friday and it will be held at the SSS head office every last Friday of the month and will soon be replicated in all the other halves of the system. Kapag ito ay matagumpay at binibigyan ng halaga ang ating mga pensiyonado puwede natin siguro itong gawing mas madalas.

Today, kaya salamat SSS na kahit inaayos pa ninyo ang actuarial soundness nakahanap kayo ng paraan tumulong sa ating mga pensiyonado.

And today, everybody knows about this. We are also launching a new service for the Filipino family, Universal Family Health Insurance.

Kasi sa aking maikling panguluhan, nakaabot tayo ng majority of the families covered by health insurance. Di siyempre iyan ay downpayment. Ang kasunod na installment, we will try now to make it universal. We go for universal. Bakit? Kasi marami sa ating kababayan ay nananatili na may sakit, dahil wala silang pambayad sa pagpapagamot, pang-ospital, lalung-lalo na hindi sila makabayad ng downpayment sa hospital. So, maraming hindi sila tinatanggap. At para sa puno ng pamilya, isang araw na pagkakasakit ay isang araw na walang pagkain ang pamilya. Nangungutang tayo sa kapitbahay upang bayaran ang ospital, gamot, at doktor. Kung kailangan ang operasyon kadalasan inuuwi na lamang sa bahay ang pasyente kung walang pambayad. Hindi dapat ganito. Hangarin ng karaniwang Pilipino ay kalusugan. Kaya pinirmahan ko ang Executive Order 276 na nag-uutos sa Philhealth, sa PCSO. Kaya nandito si Honey Girl, kahit na hindi siya insurance company. DBM, DILG, at iba pang kawanihan upang magtulung-tulong sa pagtukoy ng mga mahihirap na pamilyang maaaring mapasama sa programa.

Lahat ng sakop ng family health insurance or Philhealth ay mabibigyan ng, either libre or sinubsidize na pag-ospital. Depende kung gaano kalaki iyong gastos. Kasama na rito ang bayad sa kuwarto, doktor, gamot, laboratoryo, x-ray, hanggang operasyon kung kinakailangan, para sikapin nating mag-graduate mula sa majority coverage, hanggang universal coverage ay lalagyan natin ito ng pondong P3 bilyong. Kalahati ay galing sa pcso. Kaya si Honey Girl, hindi organizer ito, guest of honor. Iyong kalahati naman galing sa national government na may budgetary outlay na papalawakin natin sa 2004, iyong tinatawag na financial assistance to local government units, bilang subsidy, as subsidy for the health insurance premium of indigents. The truth is hard to face about the lack of availability or access to health services, but now, we are now facing it squarely.

Eto, gaya ng sabi natin ay downpayment sa pagbabago ng lipunan. Pero, dapat nating sundan ito ng ilan pang installment upang mabuo. And the best way of helping the poor through social security will be by shoring up the finances of all the social security agencies. And how do we do that? By pursuing our investment and employment programs so that more employees can pay the premium. We have made a strong start in just a short period of my presidency.

To undo the economic and political mess that we inherited. But I am happy to report that now we have made a strong start. Just last year 2003, foreign investments surged 23 percent. And this last month of January 2004, investments in the economic zones, surged 400 percent. P1.8 billion on January 2003, P.5 billion January 2004. A strong positive support of our economic platform. Sa mga darating na buwan at taon, ito ay magbibigay ng maraming trabaho. Kaya maraming makakabayad ng premium. Tapos darating ang araw, sana hindi matagal na iyong actuarial soundness ay makakadagdag ng benepisyo. Ngunit ngayon pa lamang dapat na nating agapan ang mga pangangailangan ng karaniwang pilipino. Dapat dalhin ang health insurance sa lahat ng pamilya.

In this, I hope to be able to count on your support health insurance, and other social security agencies and human resources of our country. And in turn, you can count on my support as well. Together, let us secure the future of the average Filipino.

Sa inyong lahat, congratulations sa magandang ginawa. Good luck, sa magandang binabalak na gawin. Tayong lahat kung magtatagumpay sa inyong programa, ito ay tagumpay ng karaniwang pamilyang Pilipino.

Maraming salamat, congratulation sa inyong lahat.

Maraming salamat. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Cito Lorenzo.

Batiin ko na rin ang iba't-ibang kasama ko sa pamahalaan. At binabati ko siyempre kayo mga pribadong sektor. Salamat, Chairman Danilo Garcia ng PGIC. Salamat sa inyong binigay sa aking manifesto ng suporta galing sa buong konseho at salamat sa grecon dahil magbibigay kayo ng 50 centavos discount sa mga mahihirap na bumibili ng bigas pag meron silang card na ito.

Nagpapasalamat din ako kay Raul Montemayor, ang pangulo ng Philippine Farmers Advisory Board. Naalala ko noong si Raul ay nag-graduate ng valedictorian sa Ateneo. Doon din ako nag-graduate ng masters ko, di ba Raul? At ako'y nasisiyahan na ginamit niya ang kaniyang kagalingan para sa ikinabubuti ng ating mga magsasaka.

Salamat, Mr. Joji Co, matagal ko nang kilala na lider ng Confederation of Grains Association. Salamat at narito ka muli. Salamat tayo'y nagkakaisa. Sa mga taga-Mindanao asa ko nidako, maayong pag-abot kaninyong tanan. Sa mga Ilonggo, kasimanwa sang akong bana, maayong hapon sa inyo nga tanan. yung mga taga-katagalugan, lalo na yung number one Outstanding Hybrid Rice Farmer, si Ginoong Pablo ng Mindoro Occidental, congratulations! Sa inyong lahat salamat dahil tayong lahat magkabalikat sa hangarin ng karaniwang Pilipino magkaroon nang pagkain sa bawat mesa. At alam ko na kayo ay hindi pa kumakain ng tanghalian, kaya hindi ako magtatagal ng aking diskurso kasi biro nyo kayo ang nagpapakain sa sambayanang Pilipino, kayo ay hindi pa kumakain ng tanghalian. Tatalapayag na ni Cito Lorenzo ang ating mga programa, gusto ko lang bigyang diin na tayo ay sa Marso magsisimula pa ng isa pang bagong programa para sa ating magsasaka, at yan ay programang murang fertilizer at equipment mula sa China.

Bahagi ito... Kasunod ito ng hybrid rice, bahagi ito sa 60 billion pesos na ginastos ng aking administrasyon para sa modernisasyon ng agrikultura. Wala pang gumagastos ng ganun kalaki sa mga nakaraang panahon. At gusto ko rin ipaabot sa inyong lahat, dahil nga sa ating modernization, dahil sa unprecedented irrigation, dahil sa hybrid rice na napatunayan ng ating magsasakang outstanding kung papano nadodoble, natitriple ang ani. Huwag kayong mag-alala na baka walang bibili ng inyong palay. Dati-dati one billion pesos ang pondo ng NFA para bumuli ng palay, itong taon, itataas natin sa four billion pesos procurement program.

Kaya siguro yon na lang para makakain na rin kayo. Alam ko nagbreakfast kayo ng ten o'clock pero mag-aalauna y media na rin.

Kaya salamat, salamat sa retailers, salamat sa millers. At bahagi sa ating milling program yung binigay na tseke kanina ng DBP. Yon ang una sa mga pautang ng DBP para sa rehabilitation at modernization ng ating milling facilities.

Kaya mula sa magsasaka hanggang sa millers, hanggang sa retailers tayong lahat magkasama parati dapat tayo magkasama para magkaroon ng pagkain sa bawat mesa.

Maraming salamat at ngayon kumain na tayo ng ating tanghalian.

President of the Philippines

At the launching of the Social Security System (SSS) Pensioners Day

[Delivered at the Philippine International Convention Center, Roxas Blvd., Pasay City, February 2, 2004]

HEALTH INSURANCE FOR ALL

Ang pagtitipon nating ito ay kumakatawan sa mga pangarap ng karaniwang Filipino. Para sa isang mas mabuting buhay, isang buhay na walang pangamba, walang katiyakan, walang pagdurusa, walang kawalan ng pag-asa. Iyan ang hinahanap ng social security. Ang social security ay tumutugon sa mahalagang isyu ng kahirapan kung saan ang mahihirap ay tinutulungan masalapi. Ang matatanda ay tinutulungan ng bata at ang may sakit ay tinutulungan ng may mabuting kalusugan.

Nakararamisa pamilyang Filipino ay sakop na ng Philhealth, ng health insurance, congratulations to Philhealth. Ang Employees Compensation Commission naman ay nabawasan na ang processing time, sa pagdesisyon ng kaso mula 70 araw hanggang 45 araw, congratulations ECC. Oh, totoo ba iyon? Bakit may murmur?

Ang GSIS ay kinumputerized (computerized) ang sistema ng pamamahala ng pension at pautang, goodluck. Sana sa medaling panahon, itong computerization ay makatulong na maubos ang backlog. Iyong PAG-IBIG, itinaas ang halagang maaring mautang mula sa P500,000 hanggang 2 million para sa pabahay, congratulations. Ang RSBS, noong una ako ay umupo bilang pangulo, ang bigat ng laging namana ko. Ngunit sa maikling bagong panguluhan, nakapagtala na ng tang 39 million pesos, congratulations.

And today, I would like to announce the launching of the SSS Pensioners Day. This is a project to reach out to always a million social security and employees compensation pensioners. Kasi habang hinihintay natin na maayos ng SSS iyon kanilang actuarial soundness pagkatapos ng mga masasamang investments na minana natin ay ito ay ang tulong sa mga pensiyonado.

The pensioners day project provides free medical and social services to SSS pensioners. For now, it is once a month. It started last Friday and it will be held at the SSS head office every last Friday of the month and will soon be replicated in all the other halves of the system. Kapag ito ay matagumpay at binibigyan ng halaga ang ating mga pensiyonado puwede natin siguro itong gawing mas madalas.

Today, kaya salamat SSS na kahit inaayos pa ninyo ang actuarial soundness nakahanap kayo ng paraan tumulong sa ating mga pensiyonado.

And today, everybody knows about this. We are also launching a new service for the Filipino family, Universal Family Health Insurance.

Kasi sa a king maikling panguluhan, nakaabot tayo ng majority of the families covered by health insurance. Di siyempre iyan ay downpayment. Ang kasunod na installment, we will try now to make it universal. We go for universal. Bakit? Kasi marami sa ating kababayan ay nananatili na may sakit, dahil wala silang pambayad sa pagpapagamot, pang-ospital, lalung-lalo na hindisila makabayad ng downpayment sa hospital. So, maraming hindi sila tinatanggap. At para sa puno ng pamilya, isang araw na pagkakasakit ay isang araw na walang pagkain ang pamilya. Nangungutang tayo sa kapitbahay upang bayaran ang ospital, gamot, at doktor. Kung kailangan ang operasyon kadalasan inuuwi na lamang sa bahay ang pasyente kung walang pambayad. Hindi dapat ganito. Hangarin ng karaniwang Pilipino ay kalusugan. Kaya pinirmahan ko ang Executive Order 276 na nag-uutos sa Philhealth, sa PCSO. Kaya nand ito si Honey Girl, kahit na hindi siya insurance company. DBM, DILG, at iba pang kawanihan upang magtulung-tulong sa pagtukoy ng mga mahihirap na pamilyang maaaring mapasama sa programa.

Lahat ng sakop ng family health insurance or Philhealth ay mabibigyan ng, either libre or sinubsidize na pag-oospital. Depende kung gaano kalaki iyong gastos. Kasama na rito ang bayad sa kuwarta, doktor, gamot, laboratoryo, x-ray, hanggang operasyon kung kinakailangan, para sikapin nating mag-graduate mula sa majority coverage, hanggang universal coverage ay lalagyan natin ito ng pondong P3 bilyong. Kalahati ay galing sa pcsa. Kaya si Honey Girl, hindi organizer ito, guest of honor. Iyong kalahati naman galing sa national government na may budgetary outlay na papalawakin natin sa 2004, iyong tinatawag na financial assistance to local government units, bilang subsidy, as subsidy for the health insurance premium of indigents. The truth is hard to face about the lack of availability or access to health services, but now, we are now facing it squarely.

Eto, gaya ng sabi natin ay downpayment sa pagbabago ng lipunan. Pero, dapat nating sundan ito ng ilan pang installment upang mabuo. And the best way of helping the poor through social security will be by shoring up the finances of all the social security agencies. And how do we do that? By pursuing our investment and employment programs so that more employees can pay the premium. We have made a strong start in just a short period of my presidency.

To undo the economic and political mess that we inherited. But I am happy to report that now we have made a strong start. Just last year 2003, foreign investments surged 23 percent. And this last month of January 2004, investments in the economic zones, surged 400 percent. P1.8 billion on January 2003, P.5 billion January 2004. A strong positive support of our economic platform. Sa mga darating na buwan at taon, ito ay magbibigay ng maraming trabaho. Kaya maraming makakabayad ng premium. Tapos darating ang araw, sana hindi matagal na iyong actuarial soundness ay makakadagdag ng benepisyo. Ngunit ngayon pa lamang dapat na nating agapan ang mga pangangailangan ng karaniwang Pilipino. Dapat dalhin ang health insurance sa lahat ng pamilya.

In this, I hope to be able to count on your support health insurance, and other social security agencies and human resources of our country. And in turn, you can count on my support as well. Together, let us secure the future of the average Filipino.

Sa inyong lahat, congratulations sa magandang ginawa. Good luck, sa magandang binabalak na gawin. Tayong lahat kung magtatagumpay sa inyong programa, ito ay tagumpay ng karaniwang pamilyang Pilipino.

Maraming salamat, congratulation sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 6th National Assembly of the Philippine Councilors League (PCL)
[Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Ika-6 na National Assembly ng Philippine Councilors League (PCL)

[Ipinahayag sa World Trade Center, Lungsod ng Pasay, ika 6 ng Pebrero, 2004]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Konsehal Melendrez, Chairman ng PCL sa iyung napaka... nakakatabang pusong pagpakilala sa akin. At maraming salamat din na ikaw na mag-gagrade na ngayon bilang konsehal ay tumutulong pa rin sa aking pamahalaan bilang kasapi ng ating peace panel. Salamat sa iyung tulong.

Salamat rin Konsehal Pangilinan ng Makati, pangulo ng PCL, aking pinsan. Ikaw ay mag-gagrade na rin bilang konsehal. Bahagi sa dalawang libong konsehal na ga-graduate itong taon na ito at binibigyan natin ng espesyal na parangal.

Batiin ko na rin si Konsehal Jose Alejandro. Batiin ko rin at magpasalamat dahil napakalawak at napakalalim ang kaniyang suporta sa akin. Dating konsehal at ngayon pangulo ng Mayors League ng Metro Manila, Mayor Lito Atienza. Meron tayong dalawang kasama itong araw na ito, aking kasamahan at gusto kong bigyang diin ang aking pagpakilala sa kanila, dating senador at siguradong magse-senador muli, ang ating dalubhasa sa Constitutional law, Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago. At marami sa ating mga taga-Mindanao kilalang-kilala siya, at siya ay magiging karapat-dapat na representante ng mga Muslim sa ating Senado, ang gobernador ng Autonomous Region ng Muslim Mindanao, si Dr. Parouk Hussin.

Batiin ko rin yung dating konsehal, dati pa nga siyang pangulo ng PCL at nag-graduate, kayong mga nag-gagrade bilang konsehal, palagay siya ang isang modelo ninyo dahil siya ay isang napakamagaling na city vice mayor at hindi lamang yon ay siya ang naging chairman ng napaka-successful na Sinulog Festival sa Cebu na kakaganap lamang, si Vice Mayor Michael Rama. Nandito rin ang ilang officials ng PCL: ang auditor, si Wilhelmina Lindo; ang treasurer, si Corazon Del Mundo; ang P.R.O., si Joseph Ortiz. Hindi ko na babanggitin lahat, batiin ko kayong lahat, caring konsehal a capampangan mayap a gatpanapun quecongan. Dagiti kakailyak nga konsehal ti bangir ni mamang ko naggapo Ilocos, Pangasinan, naimbag nga malem yo amin.

Sa mga nagikan sa Cebu, sa Visayas ug Mindanao asa ko nidako, maayong hapon kaninyong tanan. Kasama na yung mga kababayan ni Michael Rama. Sa mga kasimanwa ni Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago kag kasimanwa sang akong bana nga Ilonggo, maayong hapon sa inyo nga tanan. Sa mga kapatid natin, kapatid ni Parouk Hussin, assalaamu alaikum pagariya. Sa inyong lahat welcome!

At bilang pangulo karangalan kong buksan muli itong meeting ng Philippine Councilors League.

Taun-taon, tayoy nagsasama-sama sa isa't-isa mula pa noong ako ay senador. Nagkakasama na rin tayo sa inyong mga meeting, 1992 ako naging senador, biro nyo labing dalawang taon na tayong nagtutulongan sa isat-isa. At 1992 nagsimula yung pagkabisa ng Local Government Code, kaya noong isang taon ay tayo ay nagdiriwang ng 12th anniversary ng Local Government Code. At naalala ko noon si Governor Dolfo del Rosario, ang pangulo ng Union of Local Authorities of the Philippines, ay nagpahayag siya ng labing dalawang bagay na ginawa ng inyong lingkod para bigyan nang mas malawak na kapangyarihan ang ating local government units.

Hindi ko na babanggitin lahat nito. Ngunit gaya nang sabi ni Mayor Lito Atienza, ang local government, kayong mga konsehal, kayong gumagawa ng mga batas sa inyong local government unit, kayo rin ang gumagawa ng budget ng inyong local government unit. Ang pagkabisa ng inyong pamamahala, ang pagkabisa ng inyong tsansa rin na mahalal muli bilang konsehal o ma-promote kung kayo ay nag-graduate na o naghahanap ng ibang hangarin ay kung papano nyo nagamit yung inyong bahagi ng internal revenue allotment.

Kaya ako, gaya nang sabi ni lito, sa ating labing dalawang taong magkasama, nauunawaan ko ang sitwasyon at pangangailangan ng local government units. Kasama na rin ako na naging malungkot kagaya ninyo na noong 1999 nagkaroon ng Executive Order 189 na beinte porsiyento ng I.R.A. ng local government units ay hindi ibibigay sa inyo. Siyempre nung nabawasan kayo ng beinte porsiyento ng inyong I.R.A., nabawasan din ang inyong kapangyarihan at kakayahan na tumulong sa ating mga kababayan. Palagay ko yang nawalang kapangyarihan sa inyo ay bahagi na rin kung bakit nung mga panahong yon ang nalilikhang trabaho lamang ay nag-average ng 350,000 new jobs net a year.

Noong ako ay naging pangulo, isa sa unang ginawa ko ay ni-repeal ko ang Executive Order 189. Gaya nang sabi ni Lito Atienza binigay ko ng buo and on time yung inyong internal revenue allotment. Hindi lamang yon, binayaran ko pa yung utang noong mga nakaraang taon.

At palagay ko dahil kayo ay nakuha nyong buo ang I.R.A. at nakuha pa ninyo yung utang ng nakaraan kaya mas malaki ang nakuha nyo taun-taon kaysa sa I.R.A. ninyo ng taong yon ay tayo magkasama lahat sa pagbibigay ng pinakahangarin ng karaniwang Pilipino — ang pangkabuhayan, ang trabaho. Dahil tayong lahat, dahil sa inyong ginamit ang inyong I.R.A. pati yung utang ng dating nakaraang panahon, ginamit ninyo ang inyong I.R.A. sa magandang mga allocation, tayong lahat nakapaglikha tayo sa ating ekonomiya nitong maikling panahon na tayoy magkasama. Itong ating termino ngayong 2001 to 2004 nakalikha tayo ng three million na bagong trabaho. Tayong lahat magkasama doon.

Kaya hindi ako masyadong magtatagal sa aking pag-uusap. Ang aking trabaho ay magbukas nitong inyong pagpupulong. Ako ay sumasama sa inyong mga opisyal na nagbigay ng welcome sa inyo. Ako ay sumasama kay Mayor Lito Atienza na nagbigay ng welcome. Ako ay nagpapasalamat lalo na sa magandang sinabi nila tungkol sa akin, kaya hindi na ako magdadagdag tungkol doon.

Sa inyong lahat, gamitin natin tong huling pagpupulong bago magsimula ang halalan. Isipin kung papano natin maiibayo pa ang ating paglilingkod sa taong bayan.

Maikli na lamang ang panahon na nalalabi ngunit meron akong isang gustong ipahayag sa inyo na puwede pa nating magawa para maglingkod pandagdag sa taong bayan.

Sa loob ng aking maikling panguluhan, sa dami ng mga mahihirap na naisama natin sa Philippine Health Insurance, nakaabot na tayo ngayon ng majority ng pamilya ay sakop na sa Philippine Health Insurance. Salamat na rin sa in-allocate nyong premium sa mga mahihirap nating kababayan. Kaya kasama kayo doon sa achievement na yon.

Dagdagan natin ang ating ambisyon dahil majority ng pamilya ay sakop na ng Philhealth, sikapin nating gawing universal, sikapin nating lahat ng pamilyang Pilipino ay mapasok sa Philippine Health Insurance. Kung makakaya pa ng inyong konseho, sana mag-allocate pa kayo ng dagdag na pondo na puwede mag-counterpart ang PCSO. Ngunit kung iniisip nyo na nahihirapan ang inyong konseho na magdagdag pa ng premium sa dagdag na makapapasok sa Philhealth, sabihin ninyo sa PCSO na abunohan na muna ang kabuuan ng premium. Ibigay nyo sa philhealth ang listahan ng mga mahihirap sa inyong mga bayan na wala pang health insurance. Sikapin natin na sila lahat ay mapasok dahil karaniwang Pilipino hinahanap ang kalusugan, hinahanap ang murang pagamot. Tayong lahat gawin natin ito para sa ganun karaniwang Pilipino dahil sa ating mas pagsasamang pagtatrabaho ay may trabaho, may kalusugan nakakamit ang karaniwang pangangailangan.

Kayo mga konsehal ang napakalapit sa karaniwang Pilipino, alam nyo ito ang hinahangad ng ating karaniwang mamamayan. Huwag nating sayangin ang nalalabing panahon ng ating termino sa pulitika lamang. Gamitin natin itong panahon makakadag pa tayo ng paglilingkod para sa karaniwang Pilipino.

Yan ang transformational politics. At sana itong mga araw ng inyong pagmimiting ay makamit natin ang mga resolusyon, ang mga desisyon, ang mga commitment na patuloy pa rin itong magandang pagsisimula para sa hangarin ng karaniwang Pilipino.

I declare this convention open!

Welcome! Congratulations!

Good luck sa inyong lahat!

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the signing into law of Republic Act No. 9239 or the Optical Media Act of 2003 [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pagsasabatas ng Batas Pambansa Blg. 9239 o Optical Media Act ng 2003

[Ipinahayag sa National Arts Center, Mt. Makiling Los Baños, Laguna, ika 10 ng Pebrero, 2004]

Maraming salamat sa Chairman ng Videogram Regulatory Board, na ngayon dahil sa ating bagong batas ay magiging Chairman naman ng Optical Media Regulatory Board, Edu Manzano.

Gusto kong batiin ang ating mga senador at congressmen na nagtupad nitong batas na pinirmahan ko ngayon sa pamumuno ni Senate President Franklin Drilon at saka kay Speaker De Venecia. Gamitin ko na rin ang pagkakataon na batiin yung mga magiging kasama ni Senate President Franklin Drilon sa susunod na Senado. Meron tayong apat na reelektionistang senador: si Senator Bobby Barbers; si Senator Pong Biazon; si Senator Bobby Jaworski; si Senator John Osmeña.

Meron tayong dalawang dating senador: si Senator Orly Mercado; si Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago.

Meron tayong dalawang Cabinet member: si future senator, Dick Gordon; si future senator, Mar Roxas.

Galing sa Muslim Mindanao, si Governor Parouk Hussin; galing sa local governments, Gobernador ng Pampanga, Lito Lapid; dating Gobernador ng Cavite at dating Chairman ng Videogram Regulatory Board, si Bong Revilla; at kinatawan ng mga kabataang propesyonal at kababaihan, si Attorney Pia Compañera Cayetano.

At batiin ko ang magiging... hindi, ang iiwan na kay Frank Drilon sa Senado pero siya ay magiging Vice President na ng Pilipinas, si Noli De Castro.

Gusto kong batiin ang ating mga nag-host na mga opisyal dito sa lalawigan ng Laguna sa pangunguna ni Governor Ningning Lazaro; sa mga ating host dito sa bayan ng Los Baños sa pamumuno ni Mayor Cesar Perez; at narito rin yung mga iba't-ibang mga mayor ng lalawigan ng Laguna.

Gusto ko ring batiin ang ating mga bituin, producer, writer ng showbusiness. Salamat sa mga bituin ng showbusiness sa inyong pagsuporta sa akin.

Gusto kong batiin at inimbata kong maging audience ng inyong palatuntunan ngayon, ang mga mamamayan na pinagkaloob na ng lupa ng Camp Eldridge.

Una, kausapin ko muna ang mga bituin ng showbiz. Salamat mga showbusiness stars na kinikilala ninyo, gaya nang sabi ni Edu, ni Vic, ni Leo, ni Laurice, iba pang nagsalita, na sa kasaysayan ng ating bansa, ako, sa lahat ng pangulo, ang pinakamaraming natulong sa industriya ng showbusiness. Sorry to say this, daig pa yung pinunong nanggaling sa showbusiness.

Yung pagbaba ng amusement tax, yung 50 million na suporta sa mga sine sa film festival, at meron pang parating, iyung rehabilitation ng Metropolitan Theater, yung paglaban sa film piracy at iba pa, lalo na ngayon yung pagtalaga ng Opti-Media Law na mas lalo pang palalakasin ang laban sa piracy.

Hindi lamang yon, gusto ipaalala sa akin ni future senator Mar Roxas na nung ako'y pumunta sa Amerika sa state visit, sa harap ni Mar Roxas, sinabi ko kay President Bush, President Bush, sa Ingles, inaasahan ko na pag pumasa ang Optical Media Bill sa Pilipinas, ang mga Pilipinong artista ay magkakaroon ng mas malaking pagkakataon doon sa Amerika mismo.

Ginawa ko ang lahat ng ito dahil ako ay movie fan na movie fan noong maliit pa ako. Eh, maliit pa ako hanggang ngayon, kaya movie fan pa rin ako hanggang ngayon.

Noon ho ay batang maliit ako sa Iligan kung saan ginanap ang malaking bahagi ng aking pagbabata, 1950s pa yon. Maliit na bayan lamang ang Iligan. Sa paligid ng kanayunan, sinehan lamang ang aming tanging aliwan, kaya lahat ng sineng dumarating, tagalog movies silang lahat, pinapanood namin, lola ko, driver ko na si Romeo, at ako. Kami triple date parati nanonood ng sine.

At nung yung tatay ko ay isang batang Congressman, dito naman sa Maynila, laging dinadala kami ng nanay ko sa Times Theater para manood ng double program na sine. Kaya sanay na sanay akong manood ng sine, kaya alam ko kung gaano kaimportante ang sine sa karaniwang mamamayang Pilipino. Mahilig sa sine ang karaniwang Pilipino. Mahilig sa singers, kagaya ng mga nagkanta kanina, at mahilig din magkaroon ng tiyak na sariling tahanan, lupang tinitirikan.

Kaya sa araw na ito, bukod sa ating pagpirma ng Opti-Media Law, inimbita ko ang ilan sa mga nakatira sa Camp Eldridge para sa dalawang bagay: para makita nila ang ilan sa mga paborito nilang mga showbiz stars, at para matanggap ang proklamasyon kong nagbibigay ng kapangyarihang bilhin ang lupang tinitirikan. Para klarohin, ang mga Camp Eldridge ay taga-barangay Lalakay, Bambang, Timugan. Kayo mga taga-barangay Lalakay, kasama kayo doon. Kayo ay hindi na squatter sa sariling bayan.

Itong dalawang ginagawa natin ngayon: ang Opti-Media Law; ang proklamasyon ng Camp Eldridge ay halimbawa sa pagbabagong hangad ng maliliit na mamamayan tungkol sa pangkabuhayan, gaya ng trabaho at tahanan.

Trabaho — ang showbiz hindi lang pinanggagalingan ng aliw para sa ating mga karaniwang mamamayan. Ito rin ay pinanggagalingan ng maraming trabaho. Sa tatlong taon bago ako naging pangulo, isang milyong trabaho lamang ang nalikha. Kaya namana ko ang higit apat na milyong walang trabaho. At alam ko na kasama sa mga nawalang trabaho sa mga panahong yon ay taga sa showbusiness dahil laganap ang film piracy at mataas ang amusement tax.

Ngunit sa aking maikling panguluhan, dahil nakita ko, naunawaan ko kung ano ang kailangan ninyo: ibaba ang amusement tax, pigilin ang film piracy at iba pang mga kailangang gawin, haming sa isang milyong nalikhang trabaho, sa tatlong taon bago ako naging pangulo, sa aking maikling panguluhan, higit sa tatlong milyong trabaho ang ating nalikha. Palagay ko nakasagip tayo ng maraming trabaho nang binaba ang amusement tax, nang sinubsidize ang sine ng film festival, at nang linakas ni Bong Revilla ang laban sa film piracy.

Kaya mga kaibigan, tungkol naman sa tahanan. Ang binibiyayaan natin ngayon sa Camp Eldridge ay bahagi ng pinakamalawak na palupang binigyang kapangyarihan bilhin ng squatters ang lupang tinitirikan, kaya tuloy ang mahigit tatlong daang libong pamilya ay hindi na squatters kungdi homeowners na ngayon. Kaya nga mismo yung low-cost housing developers na nagtatayo ng pabahay para sa manggagawa sinabi na pinaka-housing friendly ang mga patakaran ng pangulong gloriang administrasyon sa buong kasaysayan ng ating bansa. Eto ay down payment lamang. Sa Mayo, hinihingi ko sa inyong lahat — dahil hindi naman ako naglingkod ng isang buong termino — bigyan ng pagkakataon na magbuo ng susunod na installment si Pangulong Gloria kasama ni Vice President Noli, ang ating mga senador: Bobby Barbers, Pong Biazon, Bobby Jaworski, at sino yung pang-apat na reelectionist, si John O, ang ama ng cellphone industry. Kasama ni Orly Mercado, Miriam Defensor-Santiago, Mar Roxas, Dick Gordon, Parouk Hussin, Lito Lapid, Bong Revilla, Pia Cayetano, at lahat ng kandidato ng K-4 (Koalisyon ng Katapatan at Karanasan para sa Kinabukasan). Para sa kinabukasan, walang kapantay, walang kapalit ang karanasan, at iyan ang ating hinahandog sa inyong lahat.

Maraming salamat, mga kaibigan ng Laguna.

Maraming salamat, mga showbiz personalities.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Sama-Pagkat Daupang-Puso ng Batayang Sektor [Filipino]

ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Sama-Pagkat Daupang-Puso ng Batayang Sektor

[Ipinahayag noong ika 12 ng Pebrero, 2004]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Dinky Soliman sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Maraming salamat din Oca Francisco sa maganda mong pagpaliwanag kung bakit dapat iboto ng People's Organizations si Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo.

Maraming salamat, mga kasama ko sa pamahalaan. Maraming salamat, mga leaders ng NGO at P.O. na aktibong-aktibo sa National Anti-Poverty Commission.

Narinig ni Oca sa radyo na nawalaan ako ng boses sa kampanya kanina. So, hindi na ako magpapatagal ng aking diskurso.

Gusto ko magpasalamat sa inyong lahat. Sabi nga ni Oca, itong ating 7,000 na narito ngayon, kayo po ay kumbinsido nang magkampanya para kay Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo na tumatakbo bilang pangulo.

Kaya po, ako, na si Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo na tumatakbo bilang pangulo ay ang gagawin ko hindi ko ho hihingiin ang tulong ninyong bumoto sa akin, hihingiin ko na tulungan nyo akong magpaliwanag sa taong bayan din kung bakit sila ay dapat bumoto sa akin.

Kanina sa aking paglilibot doon sa Rizal, ang dami nagsabi, ay! Gloria, Gloria, sa iyo kami! Meron din akong naririnig, ay! Si Gloria pala yon. Ang liit-liit pala. Pero ang sagot ko doon, maliit nga ako kaya siguro alam ko ang damdamin ng mga maliliit. At sa ating pamahalaan ang maliliit ang talagang tinig ay yung dumadaan sa National Anti-Poverty Commission. Alam ko, kasi ako ang pangunahing author ng Anti-Poverty Law noong ako ay senador pa.

Kaya sa aking maikling panguluhan, tayong lahat kasama ko kayo, nagsimula tayo ng mga pagbabagong hangad ng maliliit tungkol sa pangkabuhayan gaya ng presyo, trabaho, hanapbuhay, tahanan, kalusugan, edukasyon, kalinga sa ibat-ibang sektor na madalas iniwan ng lipunan.

Tungkol sa trabaho, sana tulungan nyo akong magpaliwanag na sa tatlong taon bago ako naging pangulo, isang milyong trabaho lamang ang nalikha. Kaya naman, ang namana natin noong ako ay naging pangulo ay higit apat na milyong walang trabaho. Ngunit sa aking maikling panguluhan, sa ating maikling panahon at tunay na nag-organize ang National Anti-Poverty Commission, nakalikha tayo ng higit tatlong milyong trabaho.

Tungkol sa presyo. Nanatiling matatag ang supply at presyo ng pangunahing pinaggagastusan ng mahihirap. At ito ang karaniwang bigas, isda, lalo na ang tilapia, at pasahe sa jeepney at bus. Ang mga ito ay nanatiling matatag sa panahon ng ating administrasyon.

Tungkol sa hanapbuhay. Bahagi na rin ng Anti-Poverty Commission, nakapagpahiram ang microfinance sa isang milyong kababaihan. At sa nakaraang sampung buwan, nakapagpahiram pa ng di pa napapantayan na 21 billion pesos sa mga maliliit na negosyante sa resonableng interest.

Tungkol naman sa tahanan. Pinakamalawak — alam nyo yon kasi ang mga urban poor alam nyo marami dito kayo ang tumulong na makamit — pinakamalawak na palupang binigyang kapangyarihan bilhin ng squatters, na kaya dahil doon ay hindi na squatters kung hindi homeowners na.

At para sa manggagawa. Pinaka-housing friendly na mga patakaran sa buong kasaysayan, sabi na mismo ng mga developers na gumagawa ng bahay na abot- kaya ng mga manggagawa.

Tungkol sa kalusugan lalo na ating mga senior citizens. Sa milyun-milyong mahihirap na binigyan ng Philhealth, karamihan ngayon ng pamilyang Pilipino ay meron ng health insurance. At lalo na sa kinabubuti ng ating senior citizens. Sinimula rin nating magbenta ng kinalahating presyong gamot sa halos sandaang botika ng pamahalaang ospital.

Tungkol sa edukasyon. Pinaibayo ang math, science at ingles para makakumpitensya ang ating manggagawa ng kinabukasan, ang ating mga kabataan sa mga hamon ng siglo beinte uno. Pinaabot ang mga paaralan sa mga liblib na barangay. At ngayon tinutulungan ang patapos na estudyante para hindi magdrop-out bago mag-graduate.

Pero mga down payment pa lamang ito. Down payment at karanasan na mabunga. Ngunit kailangan marami pang dapat gawin. Kaya nga sabi ni Oca, paano kung mawala na ako. Kailangan ang mga batayang reporma na makakapaglikha ng anim na milyong trabaho sa susunod na anim na taon kung ako ay hindi mawala.

Batayang repormang makakatanim ng sapat na palay upang hindi na tayo kailangan mag-angkat at ang ating magsasaka ang magpapakain sa ating sambayanang Pilipino.

Batayang reporma na makakaabot ng isang milyong pisong pautang sa maliliit na negosyo sa bawat barangay. Nagawa ito sa Thailand, gagawin natin sa pilipinas sa susunod na anim na taon.

Mga batayang reporma na makakapaglawak ng karapatan sa lupa upang itong lupa ay magagamit ng mga maliliit bilang puhunan at makakanegosyo tuloy ang ating urban at rural poor.

Batayang reporma na makakaabot ng health insurance sa lahat ng pamilyang Pilipino at murang gamot sa lahat ng bayan at barangay.

At batayang reporma na makababago ng kultura kontra sa katiwalian sa pamamagitan ng makabuluhang edukasyon.

Kaya, ito ang ilan sa mga gusto nating gawin para sa karaniwang Pilipino sa darating na panahon maliban sa mga binanggit ni Oca Francisco na espesyal na programa para sa ibat-ibang naghihirap na sektor at naghihirap na lugar.

Siguro naman po, sa itong mga nagawa, sa itong karanasan at sa itong klarong-klarong plataporma natin sa karaniwang Pilipino, kayo na mga nanggaling sa mga espesyal na sektor, na kayo ay nakumbinsido na na magkampanya para sa akin kahit na lumabas kayo sa inyong sektor, kahit na pumunta kayo sa ordinaryong Pilipino na hindi bahagi ng inyong sektor, siguro naman mapapaliwanag ninyo na dapat talaga hindi mawala ang ating magandang nasimulaan.

Kaya, salamat na kayo ay magkakampanya. Salamat sa one million votes minimum na sabi ni Oca maitutulong nyo sa ating darating na halalan.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 38th National Conference of the Innerwheel Clubs of the Philippines (IWCPI)

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 38th National Conference of the Innerwheel Clubs of the Philippines (IWCPI)

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, February 16, 2004]

Thank you.

Thank you very much. Thank you very much, baby for your very nice introduction. And its campaign time so it was not wrong of you to give me an endorsement. Thank you for your endorsement.

I would like to greet and congratulate all the officers and members of the National Innerwheel headed by Aida Vera Cruz. Thank you for your beautiful report and I take this opportunity to greet her husband, my former presidential assistant for Western Mindanao, Boyet Vera Cruz.

And of course, speaking of VIP's on the floor, past president and now congresswoman, Congresswoman Nining, thank you very much, Nining Nicolas, very nice to see you here.

I would like to also greet the president of the Innerwheel foundation, Mrs. Carmen Santillan. Thank you for your donation to our health program. And of course, the only Filipina who has become president of Innerwheel Rotary, Ms. Ester Vibal.

How nice to be here among empowered and empowering women. You are empowered because you are leaders but you also empower because of your concern for the communities and the families in the communities. Congratulations for your good work.

I didn't hesitate to say yes when baby invited me to be with you today. Notwithstanding, that for us national candidates during this time, our schedule is usually dictated by the campaign manager. But I ask my campaign managers, make sure that I am in Manila when the Innerwheel has its convention.

Because being a rotary arm, I know how Filipino Rotarians and Rotary arms, I know how the Innerwheel clubs have initiated all the good things that Aida told us about over the last 38 years and I am especially very appreciative of the programs that you have initiated for peace, for the alleviation of hunger for literacy for the youth and volunteerism. You do this because you want to be agents of change. And you are women leaders in the community, you have the power to be agents of change and you use that power.

Yes, we all want change and speaking woman-to-woman, I know that the change, that we women want are those that will make life better for the average Filipino family. We are women, we are family-oriented, and even if we are community-oriented, even if we are nation-oriented, it is still the family in the community, it is the family in the nation that is what we want to help make life better for. That is why you are working on things like alleviation of poverty especially, therefore, food on every table, because that is the bottom line as far as poverty is concerned. That is why you are working for peace because our families want to have safety and security. That's why you're working for youth projects, for education projects, for literacy, because we know that education is the key to the improvement of the life of the ordinary Filipino.

Well, on the one hand, I thought that since the campaign was gonna start before your convention, there was a need to make sure that my schedule didn't clash with the campaign. But on the other hand, I think it is also God-given that I would be able to speak with you during the campaign period so that I can take this opportunity to say and to ask you to tell all of the many people you influence, in all of the many communities in which you work that among the candidates, Gloria Arroyo is in the best position to achieve the changes we want. Why? Because I have gained the clout and the experience to turn the economy around.

In a short time I have made a strong start. I have turned the economy around and stabilized the mess we inherited. I guess the best way, the shortest way to describe the mess that we inherited is that in the three years before EDSA 2 made me president, our economy was only able to create one million jobs. That's why when I became president at EDSA 2, I inherited more than four million unemployed Filipinos. But in a short time, we have created now, in my short administration more than three million jobs.

Indeed, the most important thing, if we want to have food on every table, if we want to alleviate hunger is to create jobs, to create investments and to have people like the Innerwheel helping take care of the marginalized families and the poorest of the poor.

Literacy and youth, indeed, we have in our short administration worked for the betterment of our education system. We are in the 21st century and there are challenges of competitiveness in the 21st century that our educational system must be able to meet and that is why during the short period of my presidency we have improved math and science and English in order to make our young more competitive in the 21st century. And I thank the Innerwheel because again you helped the government, not necessarily on a government-to-Innerwheel kind of partnership but because you helped the young and you helped to increase literacy in the communities, and I thank you for that because what you do is volunteerism.

I thank you in your work, in your programs for peace because I know that you know, we all know as mothers, as family members that we want safety and security for the family. And in my administration, being a mother and now a grandmother who wants to have our families live in peace in the community, I have done unprecedented things in order to fight terrorism, fight kidnapping, fight the scourge of drugs, fight the corruption that makes public officials and law enforcement officers tied up with the syndicates that perpetrate these crimes.

Ang dapat nasa preso ay yung mga kidnappers at saka yung mga druglords. At yan ang ginawa natin kasama si Ning Nicholas doon sa paggawa ng matigas na batas kontra sa droga. Kaya ngayon, doon nga sa inyong distrito, ning, kakahuli lang natin ng 1.5 billion pesos worth of shabu. Kasama na yon sa napakaraming na-raid na mga drug laboratories, drug syndicates, yung mga drug smuggling pati na rin yung mga druglords na noong araw nakakaiwas sa batas, dahil mahina yung batas nakakapagpiyansa. Ngayon, ang dami-dami nating mga druglords na nasa preso, including the number one drug lord of them all, William Gan, at yung nahuli doon sa Meycauayan sa Bulacan, nahuli pati yung kasabwat na sindikato sa China. Dahil dito sa kalakasan ng ating foreign policy, preso sila sa China, preso yung mga nandito sa Pilipinas at dahil sa malakas na batas na napagawa sa ating administrasyon, kung ikaw ay druglord, panghabangbuhay kang nasa preso. Gaya nang sabi ko, ang dapat nasa preso, siksik na siksik na yung ating mga preso dahil sa dami ng druglords na nahuhuli at kidnappers. Dapat ang nasa preso druglord at kidnapper, at hindi iyung ating matatandang more than 70 years old.

Kaya noong yung Innerwheel Club ay nilakad itong ating dalawang lola, matatanda doon sa Women's Correctional, more than 70 years old, iyan ang pangunahing dahilan na ako ay pumayag na mabigyan sila ng patawad sa kanilang kasalanan. Kasi ang ating paniniwala, ang preso sa 21st century ay hindi para sa benggansa, ito ay para sa rehabilitation. Siguro naman, by the time they are 70 years old, and so many years in the Women's Correctional, rehabilitated na sila. So, its time for them, more than... Oh, its already overdue for them to enjoy the comfort and company of their family. Kaya patakaran ko ito, basta hindi sila druglord at hindi sila kidnapper, pag more than 70 years old, mag-recommend kayo at ipa-pardon ko rin sila.

Nagpapasalamat ako sa inyong mga programa tungkol sa kalusugan, kaya nandito si Undersecretary Galon, tinanggap yung inyong kontribusyon, 5,000 pesos yon bawat lalagyan. Thank you for your support. At mabuti na rin na si Baby Golez, ang National Conference Chairman, gayundin ang kaniyang anak na si Tony Golez, na aking inaanak, ay siya ang head executive assistant ng Secretary of Health. So, bagay na bagay ang partnership ng Innerwheel Club at Department of Health.

Alam mo si Tony Golez una ko nakilala, dahil siya ay isang lider nung tinatawag na lingkod E.R. estudyante pa siya, medical student at nagtutulong sila bilang intern doon sa emergency room ng U.S.T. tapos nakita nila ang mga pangangailangan, mga kakulangan, kaya nagtayo sila ng lingkod E.R. para makakuha ng kontribusyon para matakpan yung mga pangangailangan sa emergency room. Pero yung mga bagay na yan ay puwede nating mapagtulungan pa sa isa't-isa.

Noong ako ay senador, may batas na ipinasa — National Health Insurance. Ibig sabihin noon, supposed to be lahat ng pamilya ay matatakpan, masasakop sa health insurance. Kanya lamang noong akoy naging pangulo, nakita ko na hindi pala natutupad yon. yung may health insurance lamang pala halos ay yung mga GSIS at SSS members. In other words, yung mga employed formally. yung mga unemployed or informal workers wala. Sa batas pag sila ay mahihirap dapat yung local government ang nagko-contribute ng premium nila, pero maraming local government, siyempre lalo na yung mga mahihirap na local government, mayroon silang ibang mga priorities hindi nila kaya bayaran yung mga premium na yon. Kaya noong akoy naging pangulo, para naman yung mga emergency room kagaya ng U.S.T. lalo na kung mako-confine sila sa hospital ay hindi na kailangan maghahanap-hanap pa ng kontribusyon, puwedeng bayaran ng National Health Insurance. Ang ginawa ko ay pinalawak yung programa ng health insurance. Iyung mga mahihirap, tapos yung local government ay mahirap, ay nag-partner ang PCSO at saka ang local government para bayaran ang kanilang premium. Milyung-milyong Pilipino ang naipasok natin dito, kaya ngayon ay majority na ng pamilyang pilipino ay sakop na ng National Health Insurance.

Pero down payment lamang yan. Kasi kung nagawa nating majority ay sakop ng health insurance, our next ambition, lahat masakop ng health insurance. Kaya sabi ko sa PCSO, pag yung local government ay hindi kaya iyung kaniyang counterpart — sinabi ko rin sa DBM dahil mayroon din siyang subsidy portion para sa health insurance — akuin na ninyo yung buong premium para lahat ay maipasok.

Kaya ito naman ang aking hiling sa ating mga Innerwheel dahil ang dami nyong mga pinaglilingkuran na mga community, pamayanan, kung doon sa mga pinaglilingkuran ninyo ay meron kayong matagpuan na mahihirap na wala pa silang Philhealth — nandiyan naman si Baby eh, nandiyan naman si Tony — siguro, Tony, Baby, lets have a program whereby the Innerwheel can submit the application forms of the indigents who are not yet covered by health insurance to the DOH through Tony para sa ganun pag nahospital yung mga mahihirap na pinaglilingkuran ninyo, hindi na kayo ang maglalabas sa inyong bulsa para mabigyan sila ng bayad sa kanilang hospitalization, yung health insurance na ang babayad.

Ang dami-dami nating puwedeng magawa na magkasama sa isa't-isa. At ako ay nasisiyahan na talagang sinabi ninyo na ako ang gusto ninyong guest of honor itong araw na ito. Salamat sa pagkakataon dahil tayo mga kababaihan, siyempre tayo ay dapat na magkasama para alagaan, hindi lamang ang ating mga pamilya dahil halos lahat ng mga innerwheel naman ay mayroon namang kakayahang pag alagaan ang inyong pamilya kaya pamilya ng pamayanan na pinipili ninyo ang inyong alagaan.

Magsama-sama tayo. Congratulations on your 38th years of serving the Filipino family.

Let us be together for the next six years and serve the Filipino family of the 21st century.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of Manibela Kontra Droga (MAKONDROGA) [Filipino]

ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa seremonya ng paglulunsad ng Manibela Kontra Droga (MAKONDROGA)

[Ipinahayag sa Amoranto Station, A. Roces Ave., Lungsod ng Quezon, ika 16 ng Pebrero, 2004]

Maraming salamat.

Aking mga Cabinet members — hindi ko na babanggitin yung hindi kandidato kasi baka maboto pa ninyo sila — batiin ko na lamang ang ating senador at siguradong senador muli, ang kamandag, ang kinatatakutan ng druglords, si Bobby Barbers. Banggitin ko na rin ang Most Outstanding Mayor of the Philippines, Sonny Belmonte. Congratulations Sonny sa napakagandang Amoranto Stadium. Noong araw bulok na bulok ang itsura nito, ngayon ang ganda-ganda na kaya ginagamit pati ng mga international competition.

Batiin ko rin ang Anti-drug Czar ng Quezon City, si Vice Mayor Bistek Bautista. Batiin ko na rin yung mga konsehal ng Quezon City na narito: si Councilor Beth Delarmente at saka si Councilor Ariel Inton.

At kayo naman, mabuhay ang mga driver!

Mabuhay ang mga operator!

Mabuhay ang inyong mga pamilya! Dahil ginagawa natin ito para sa kapakanan ng inyong mga pamilya para masaya-saya sa inyo.

Mabuhay ang mga lumalaban sa droga!

Ako ay labis na nagagalak na nagtitipon-tipon tayo ngayon upang palakasin ang pagbabagong hinahangad nating lahat para sa kapakanan ng pamilyang Pilipino. Durugin ang droga! Sugpuin ang iligal na droga!

Gaya nang sabi ni Secretary Joey Lina, bago ako umupo sa pagkapangulo, napakasama, napakahina ang laban sa iligal na droga, lalo nat napakahina ng batas kontra sa droga. Bago ka makulong kailangan dalawang daang gramo ng shabu ang mahuli sa iyo. Sa higit libong nahuling mga pushers, dalawa lamang ang nakakulong, lahat nakakapagpiyansa. At hanggat may droga sa ating pamayanan hindi ligtas ang ating mga pamilya. Hanggat may nagbebenta at may gumagamit ng iligal na droga hindi ligtas ang inyong mga anak, inyong mga asawa. Ano yung pinagtatawanan natin diyan? Baka may nagdo-droga diyan?

Kayat nang ako ay umupo bilang pangulo hiningi ko sa Kongreso at Senado na ipasa ang mas mabagsik na batas kontra sa droga. At doon nga sa Senado si Senator Bobby Barbers ay gumawa ng batas na ngayon ay isa sa pinakamabagsik na batas kontra sa droga sa buong mundo.

Kaya tuloy ngayon ang dami na nating nahuling bigtime drug pusher na matagal nung araw nakakaiwas sa batas, kasama pa nga ang number one drug pusher sa kanilang lahat, si William Gan. Now, William Gan is gone, nasa preso na. Ang daming na-raid na laboratoryo at pabrika ng shabu, ang daming nakumpiskang shabu. At ang ginagawa dito sa nakukumpiskang shabu, lingu-linggo sa harap ng publiko at NGO ay sinusunog itong shabu para hindi na ma-recycle.

Ang dami ring smuggled na shabu ay nahuli na rin. Noong isang linggo lamang, doon sa Valenzuela, bulacan mahigit tatlong daang kilo ng shabu na halagang 1.5 billion pesos ang nakumpiska ng mga operatiba ng PDEA doon sa raid sa Bulacan. Karugtong ito ng ating nabuong pakikipagtulungan sa pagitan ng Pilipinas at China sa pagsugpo ng international drug trade. Nakapagpatayo tayo ng mas maraming rehabilitation centers para ang dating gumagamit ay hindi muling malulong sa bisyo. At kung ikaw ay drug pusher, kulong ka habangbuhay.

Lahat nito ay kasama sa ipinaglalaban kong pagbabago para sa karaniwang Pilipino. Itong nagawa natin sa maikling panahon pinalakas ang enforcement ngunit kailangan ko kayo mga drayber, mga operator dito sa laban kontra sa bawal na gamot.

Unang-una, sana kayo mismo ang magbigay ng magandang halimbawa. Kanina sabi ni Jun Magno, o kayo diyan ha, baka lumagpak sa drug test? Pinaliwanag nga ni Manolet Dayrit yung tukso na umaabot sa mga drayber. Kasi ang istraktura ng transportation industry kung minsan 24 hours kayong diretsong nagtatrabaho, nagmamaneho. Kaya para manatiling gising nagdodroga na lamang. Yan ang isang kailangan nating mapalitan ang kultura. Kayo mismo ang kailangan para mapapalitan ang kultura. Kayo mismo ang inaasahan nating magbibigay ng magandang halimbawa. Kayo mismo ang unang-unang magpapa-drug test sana. At para kayo ay maenganyo na unang magpa-drug test, yung unang sampung libong driver na voluntarily magpapa-drug test, libre ang inyong drug test, hindi kayo ikukobra. Kaya lang milyon kayo. Yung iba pagkatapos ng 10,000 hindi na libre, pero gagawing mura ang drug test para sa mga drayber ng mga public utility.

Inaasahan rin natin na kayo pag merong mukhang high na high na sasakay sa inyong sasakyan hindi nyo sila papayagang sumakay sa inyong taxi, sa inyong bus, sa inyong jeep, sa inyong FX. At kayo namang mga taxi driver, inaasahan na pag may naihahatid kayo, nalalalaman ninyong laboratoryo, pabrika ng droga kayo ang magsusumbong, tatawag kayo doon sa line 117.

Ang daming kailangan na tulong ninyo, mga driver, mga operator, kaya tayong lahat magkasama sa manibela kontra sa droga!

Itong malakas na ginawa natin pagsugpo sa droga, pagsugpo sa kidnapper, pagsugpo sa terorista gaya nang sabi ni Larry Mendoza, wala na silang mai-issue sa atin tungkol sa peace and order.

Ngunit down payment pa lamang yan, sa susunod na installment, tayong lahat drug free 2010 ang ating hangarin.

Mabuhay ang Manibela Kontra sa Droga!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Conferment Ceremony of the Ceres Medal by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Conferment Ceremony of the Ceres Medal by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization represented by FAO Director General Jacques Diouf

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, February 20, 2004]

His Excellency, Dr. Jacques Diouf, United Nations Fao Director General; other officials of the United Nations who are here today; Secretary Romulo; Secretary Lorenzo; other colleagues in government; Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps; mga kasama sa trabaho: sa D.A., attached agencies, DFA, U.N. Manila Office at attached agencies, ladies and gentlemen:

I accept this honor, which is the woman's equivalent of the Nobel Prize or the Oscar awards for food and agriculture. I accept it with great pride as well as with deep humility.

I am humbled as well to be in the company of such luminaries who previously received this award like the late Mother Teresa, Queen Sirikit of Thailand, Prime Minister Helen Clark of New Zealand, Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina of Bangladesh, and Prime Minister Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka, among others.

And I have asked Dr. Diouf — because this is an award I am receiving for the sake of the Filipino farmers who provide food on the table, for the sake of our government workers who helped the farmers provide food on the table — I have asked him to deliver... Permission to deliver a large part of my acceptance speech in our own native language.

Tinatanggap ko itong parangal na ito sa ngalan ng 'di mabilang na kabalikat nating nagmamalasakit para makasigurado na may pagkain sa bawat mesa.

Sa aking maikling panguluhan, ipinaglaban ko, kasama ninyo, ang pagbabago para nga masiguro ang adhikain ng karaniwang Pilipino na may pagkain sa kanyang mesa. Ngayon lamang gumagastos ang pamahalaan ng dalawampung bilyong piso bawat taon para sa modernisasyon ng agrikultura. Kasama na rito ang wala pang kapantay na paglawak ng irigasyon. Ang minana ko ay isang milyong ektaryang may irigasyon. Sa pamamagitan ng pagtayo ng mga bagong proyekto, pagtatapos ng mga proyektong nakabinbin, at pagsasaayos ng mga sistema kailangan ng rehabilitasyon, nadagdagan natin ng kalahating milyong ektarya may irigasyon. Ito ay down payment pa lamang. Kung bibigyan ako ng pagkakaton na maglingkod ng isang buong termino bilang pangulo, kayang-kaya nating mairiga ang nalalabing kalahating milyong ektarya sa susunod na anim na taon.

Nagdala rin tayo sa magsasaka ng bagong rice hybrid na tinatawag nilang Gloria rice. Ito ay bunga ng ating magandang foreign policy. Noong ako ay gumawa ng state visit sa Tsina noong nobyembre ng 2001, dahil alam ng mga opisyal ng Tsina na ako ay isa sa mga nagtayo ng Association for Philippines-China understanding noon pang 1970s kahit wala pa tayong relasyon diplomatiko sa China noon, isa sa tulong na binigay ni Premier Zhu Ronghi ay binahagi sa atin 'yung kanilang trade secret na rice hybrid. Sinubukan natin ito sa tatlumpu't limang ektarya noong 2002, at nagtagumpay naman. Kaya pinalawak natin sa sandaang ektarya noong 2003, at lalo pang nagtagumpay. Kung noong wala pang gloria rice, ang karaniwang ani ay walumpung kaban bawat ektarya. Ang topnotcher sa Gloria rice sa Mindoro itong 2003 ay naka-ani ng 290 cavans bawat ektarya. At ang karaniwang ani ay doble sa dati. Ngunit gaya nang sabi ko, ito ay down payment pa lamang. Gusto kong maging self-sufficient tayo sa bigas. Kaya itong taon dadalhin natin ang gloria rice sa limang daang libong ektarya.

Mayroon mga nagtatanong, kung biglang dadami ang ani, baka naman hindi mabili sa mabuting presyo. Kaya inatasan ko ang NFA, na sa halip na isang bilyong piso ang nakahanda para bumili ng palay, maghanda ng apat na bilyong piso. At bilang tulong sa mga magsasakang tataya sa Gloria rice, bibilhin ang ani hindi sa siyam na piso kung hindi sa sampung piso.

Ang mga ito at iba pang pagbabago sa agrikultura ay bahagi ng ating laban sa kahirapan dahil ang nakararami sa ating mahihirap ay nasa kanayunan.

Apat ang batayang bahagi ng ating laban sa kahirapan: una, ang paglikha ng trabaho; pangalawa, ang modernisasyon ng agrikultura sa anyong maka-magsasaka kasama ng reporma sa lupa; pangatlo, ang direktang tulong sa mga mahihirap; at pang-apat, ang mabuting pamamahala.

Tungkol sa trabaho. Sa panahon ni Pangulong Estrada, kalahating milyong trabaho lamang ang nalikha. Kaya kasama sa kaguluhang namana ko ay higit apat na milyong Pilipinong walang trabaho. Ngunit sa aking maikling panguluhan, higit tatlong milyong trabaho ang ating nalikha. Gawa na rin dahil umakyat ng beinte seis porsiyento ang foreign investment sa ating bansa. ngunit ulitin ko, down payment pa lamang ito. Mayroon pang isang milyong walang trabahong namana sa dating administrasyon, at mayroon pang pumapasok na bago sa labor force. Pero napatunayan naman natin kaya nating lumikha ng isang milyong trabaho bawat taon pag may karanasan at karunungan ang namumuno. Kaya kung bibigyan na naman ng pagkakataon, sa susunod na anim na taon, makakalikha tayo ng anim na milyong trabaho para mabura ang malawak na kawalang trabaho sa ating bansa.

Tungkol sa direktang tulong sa mga mahihirap. Walang kapantay na palupa ng agrikultura, siyudad at ancestral domain. Walang kapantay ang pagtayo ng eskwela sa liblib na lugar. Walang kapantay na pabahay. Walang kapantay na health insurance. Walang kapantay pa na microfinance ang nakamit sa ating maikling panguluhan. Ngunit muli, down payment ‘yan.

Sa susunod na anim na taon, papalawakin natin ang karapatang palupa, pabahay, paaralan sa liblib. Papaabutin sa lahat ng pamilya ang health insurance. Papaabutin ang kalahating presyong gamot at microfinance sa bawat barangay. Magkakaroon ang lahat ng malinis na tubig at malinis na pamamahala.

Dahil nahuli natin ang maraming big fish sa pamahalaan: huwes, undersecretary, bureau director, regional director, at iba pang presidential appointee, maganda, napaganda natin ang ating pagkubra ng buwis noong nakaraang taon. Kaya magagamit itong koleksyon sa mas malawak na tulong ngayon sa mga magsasaka, sa mas malawak na imprastraktura para dumami ang namumuhunang magbibigay ng trabaho, mas maraming direktang tulong sa mahihirap.

And so, ladies and gentlemen, our friends from the international community, I humbly accept this award as a form of recognition for our efforts to fight poverty, to provide food on every table. An honor I share with the many good women and men of my administration.

Again, I thank the FAO for this award. And you have my solemn pledge, in return, that I will continue to do what’s right, to do my best to help eliminate hunger and mass poverty in my country, in our region, in the world.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the inauguration of 3 Angels Broadcasting Network

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the inauguration of 3 Angels Broadcasting Network

[Delivered at the PICC Plenary Hall, CCP Complex, Roxas Blvd., Pasay City, February 21, 2004]

Thank you. Thank you very much.

Thank you very much, Ambassador Tejano.

I will confirm that I did recall many political ambassadors because I promised the career foreign service that I would increase the percentage of career officials in the ambassadors position. But I made an exception of Ambassador Tejano because of my great respect for the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Officers of 3 ABN headed by President Danny Shelton and Mrs. Linda Shelton. Thank you for your very kind words, they make up for the many words I cannot say tonight because my voice is bad. Officers of Southern Asia-Pacific division headed by Pastor Albert Gulopan; officers of North Philippines headed by Pastor Nestor Dayson; Officers of the Central Philippines headed by Hemuel Tolidanes; officers of the South Philippines headed by Pastor Ultimino Rivera; officers of Manila Adventist Medical Center headed by Bibbly Macaya; officers of Mountain Provinces Mission Mr. Manny Villones, franchise owner; Pastor Larry Faire, Communications Director; mga minamahal kong Seventh Day Adventists, Happy Sabbath evening to all of you!

I am very pleased to be able to join you this wonderful evening for the inauguration of the 3 ABN in the Philippines. This is the beginning of what will be surely yet another of your valuable and significant contributions to Philippine culture. Through your programs on health, education, community service, science and technology, family counseling and Christian ministry, you offer Filipinos what we need most— a healthy mind in a healthy body anchored on faith in god.

I am personally an admirer of your health ministry. When I was a young girl growing up in Iligan City — Adunay Tiga-Iliganon Diri? Okay, maayong pag-abot kaninyong tanan — anyway, when I was a young girl growing up in Iligan City, one day we were having summer vacation in my grandmother's house in Timoga, together with my Brother Arthur who was then fourteen years old. Apparently, in the middle of the night, my Brother Arthur was sleepwalking and fell from the second floor of my Grandmother's house all the way to the landing. But this was in the middle of the night and no one of us knew about it when it happened. At dawn, the first household helper woke up and she saw my brother on the landing of the stairs, his mouth frothing, his eyes opened without the pupils. Surely that meant that his fall caused him brain injury. She rushed all of us to wake up, and what we did was we rushed him to Iligan sanitarium. And we are very grateful that after his emergency treatment in Iligan sanitarium, later followed by brain surgery, he is now a very successful businessman. No damage to his brain at all. Praise god!

And so my family knows what it is like to be grateful to the Seventh Day Adventist Church for a sound mind in a sound body. A healthy body anchored on faith in God.

And now, as public servant, I have always emphasized the moral component in our campaign of reform. And I always emphasized that we can build a better society by fighting poverty and engendering economic growth not just for a few but for the many as the Seventh Day Adventist Church does.

I thank you for your support to me, and I would like to believe that with the grace of God I have been worthy of your support. In a very short time as president, I've made a strong start. I've turned the economy around and stabilized the mess we inherited including more than four million unemployed that I inherited because sad to say in the administration of President Estrada only half a million jobs were created. But in my short presidency we created more than three million jobs. I have likewise made unprecedented gains in housing, in health care and anti-corruption. It is a down payment, but it is not good enough. I'm not satisfied, more has to be done. It will take resolve and leadership to overcome the forces trying to divide us. And I know the Seventh Day Adventist Church and your programming will provide for more unity rather than for more division.

I will fight for unprecedented change that makes us more secure, strengthens our families and stamps out corruption. We have made progress but I need a mandate from the people for fundamental change. I will fight to change the culture of corruption, stop the scourge of drugs and wipe out terrorism. I will expand health coverage to all Filipinos, bring more housing, expand property rights, create more jobs with higher wages. We will have clean water and clean government.

I am fighting for not just change from without but also change from within. And in this we are united. I deeply appreciate your own efforts to nurture hope and faith among our people.

With God's guidance and with your help. With the beautiful things that you would be spreading in 3 ABN, we will win this battle for change.

And again, I thank you all for your support and congratulations! And good luck to 3 ABN!

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Lakbay Kontra Droga 2004 and Grand Culmination Rally [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Lakbay Kontra Droga 2004 at Grand Culmination Rally

[Ipinahayag sa Liwasang Ipil-Ipil, CCP Complex, Pasay, ika 22 ng Pebrero, 2004]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Joey Lina, mabuhay ang buong DILG!

Ako ay nagpapasalamat na ang dami-dami nating narito. Ang dami-daming mga opisyal. Ang dami-daming mga barangay officials. Ang dami-daming mga NGO at gusto kong batiin ang ilan sa kanila. Unang-una po nandito ang ating Chairman ng MMDA, si Bayani Fernando. Maraming nagagawa si Bayani Fernando. Linilinis ang kalye sa basura. Linilinis ang kalye sa droga. Kaya mabuhay si Chairman Bayani Fernando!

Gusto kong batiin ang ating Mayor ng Maynila, Mayor Lito Atienza. Batiin ko rin ang Manila youth, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. Nandito rin si Mrs. Beng Atienza. Nandito yung kanilang manugang si Miles Roces, di ba?

Alam nyo, mabuti at nandito si Mrs. Beng Atienza. Kasi hindi lamang laban sa droga ang dinadala natin sa barangay, dinadala din natin sa barangay ang family values. Kaya nagkakaisa kami ni Mayor Lito Atienza. Eto yung ating ibat-ibang magagaling na mayor, narito sila: ang mayor ng Caloocan, si mayor Rey Malonzo. Si mayor Rey Malonzo malapit nang malagyan ng equipment yung kanyang ospital, siguro Rey, maglalagay tayo ng konting drug rehab facilities doon.

Nakikita ko rin yung magaling na mayor ng Valenzuela, si Bobbit Carlos. Alam nyo ba, doon sa mga barangay ni Bobbit — hindi ba Bobbit may nahuhuli tayong mga shabu factory? Bakit natin nahuhuli? Dahil yung mga barangay information network ay nagsusumbong tungkol dito sa mga drug pushers. Kaya maraming salamat, talagang doon sa Valenzuela kitang-kita natin na ang laban sa droga ay dalang-dala sa barangay. Congratulations, mayor ng Valenzuela, Bobbit Carlos.

Nakita ko rin ang City Mayor ng Sorsogon, si Sally Lee. Mga kasama nyo sa Sorsogon, Dios para marhay nga banggi sa indo gabos. Saan sila? At saka ang dami nating mga appointive officials na narito, hindi ko na sila babanggitin lahat dahil magkasama kami. Kaya pag nandito ako, kasama na rin sila. Pag dinala ko ang laban sa barangay, sila rin. Ngunit gusto kong batiin yung ilang mga nakita ko dito. Doon sa mga ngo nakikita ko dito yung VACC — Volunteers Against Crime and Corruption — at sila ay talagang — nabasa ko doon sa isang SWS survey — number one most credible NGO. Congratulations! Kaya kung sila Dante Jimenez, kung sila Kapitan Diño, kung si Rose Bud ay kasama natin sa laban kontra sa droga, talagang magtatagumpay tayo.

Yang si Rose Bud, ang dami nyang binulgar tungkol sa mga laban sa mga droga, kaya ang dami nating pinanimulaan. Yan si Kapitan Diño ay tumutulong hindi lamang sa droga, kung hindi na rin siya yung nagtatanggol sa mga biktima ng mga nangangahasa.

Kaya itong laban kontra sa droga na dinadala natin sa barangay bahagi lamang yan sa mga laban na dinadala natin sa barangay. Sa barangay nandiyan ang laban sa droga. Sa barangay nandiyan ang laban sa kahirapan. Kaya naman nung ako ay naging pangulo binaliktad ko yung Executive Order na ginawa ni Pangulong Estrada na nagkaltas ng beinte porsyento sa inyong IRA. Kaya buong-buo ang inyong IRA para kayo na ang lalaban sa kahirapan sa inyong sariling barangay.

Laban sa droga, laban sa krimen, laban sa kahirapan, laban para sa mga gustong manira ng mga magandang asal ng pamilya. Lahat ito ang labang dinadala natin sa mga barangay.

Kaya mga kaibigan, mga kabataan, mga tiga-barangay tulungan nyo ako sa lahat ng mga laban na ito. Magkaisa tayo, mabuhay ang mga barangay! Mabuhay ang mga kabataan! Mabuhay ang mga lumalaban sa droga!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo at the 43rd anniversary of family physicians

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 43rd anniversary of family physicians

[Delivered at the PICC Reception Hall, Roxas Blvd., Pasay City, February 26, 2004]

FOR THE GOOD OF THE FILIPINO FAMILY

Family physicians are those that the family feels comfortable with. Family physicians become friends rather than just professionals servicing us. And so I'm very happy to be here with all of you.

I take this opportunity also to commend Ddr. Sanchez for calling to my attention — sometimes directly but many times through other physicians who know me — about the concerns of the doctors of the Philippines. And it is because of your feedback to me. It is because I have so many doctors who are friends and also who are professionals, family physicians and specialists, whom I consult for my own health. It was because of this that I encouraged the exemption of physicians from coverage of the VAT law. It is also because of the text messages of many of the physicians to me protesting the 20 percent withholding tax scheme that I called up Parayno, BIR, to have a dialogue with you. And Parayno reported to me that it is not 20 percent, it is now 15 percent for those earning 720,000 and 10 percent for those earning below. And Dr. Sanchez just reported to me that you had opposed the requirement for a notarized declaration of your earnings under oath. That you want a simple declaration in a form issued by the BIR, and he reported to me that Parayno — because I talked to him on the phone — has agreed to your demand.

I congratulate you, family physicians on your 43rd anniversary. Your commitment to the progress of your profession helps transform the lives of so many of our fellow men.

You and I are kin in leadership and practice. In doing our respective jobs, we have to do it well because our work affects deeply the lives of people.

Like you, I have been fighting and working for the good of the Filipino family especially the poor and the average Filipino family for they form the backbone of the Filipino nation.

Lahat tayo pati kayo may pamilya rin. Yung mga pamilyang inaalagaan ninyo pati na rin yung inyong sariling pamilya, lahat tayong mga pamilyang Pilipino gusto ng pagbabago. At ang pagbabagong hinahangad ay tungkol sa pangkabuhayan, trabaho, presyo, hanapbuhay, kalusugan. Kalaban ng karaniwang Pilipino ay kahirapan, gutom, sakit, patina rin ang moral decay.

At dahil nga pati kayo na mga professionals hanapbuhay importante sa inyo kaya nga sana itong VAT exemption ay makatulong sa inyo. Yung mga kalabang kahirapan, gutom, sakit, pag yung decay ng moral values ng pamilya nilalabanan ko itong mga kalabang ito. Ipinaglalaban ko ang pagbabago. Sa aking maikling panguluhan, gumawa ako ng malakas na panimula galing sa kaguluhang naman ako. Si dating Pangulong Estrada nakalikha ng kalahating milyong trabaho lamang. Kaya higit apat na milyon ang ating minanang walang trabaho. In a short time, we made a strong start in cleaning up the mess we inherited. We were able to turn the economy around. Sa aking maikling panguluhan, nakalikha tayo ng mahigit tatlong milyong trabaho. How? Because we now have one of the highest growth rates in the Asia-Pacific — 5.5 percent. Ang lampas lang sa atin dito China, Vietnam, pareho tayo sa Malaysia. Lahat ng iba naiwan na natin sa growth rate.

And we have the lowest inflation rate in a generation, help along by the good work of many of our pharmaceuticals including Unilab, Glaxo, and many of the members of the Pharmaceutical and Health Care Association of the Philippines who had been bringing to the market a lot of medicines with lower prices.

We've also had a 26 percent inflow of foreign investment. And in the past two months alone since the Christmas season — ito alam nyong importante dahil alam nyo ang importantsya ng tubig sa kalusugan — I brought clean water to more than 600,000 families in Metro Manila, Rizal and Cavite. We brought health insurance during my short period of the presidency to more than 8 million indigents, so that today the majority of Filipino families, to include the SSS and GSIS members, are covered by health insurance. But these are all just a down payment. Dapat mayroon pang susunod na installment para sa karaniwang pamilyang Pilipino.

And you and I must be there to help them. Tatal panahon ng kampanya hindi labag sa batas kung imbes na nandoon ako ngayon sa Mindanao humihingi tulong, nandito ako ngayon sa inyo humihingi ng tulong ninyo sa susunod na installment.

We will have clean water and clean government. Just recently we launched a program to achieve universal health insurance coverage. And I'm not here just to ask for your support in the elections, I'm here to ask for your support in governance — help me find the remaining indigents who still do not have health insurance. I know that many of you served poor families. You know whether they have health insurance or not. So, I hope you can work with my Philhealth President, Dr. Pingkoy Duque, to enroll the indigents that you take care of. So that if you have to endorse them for hospitalization, you will not feel so bad and have a heavy heart, because the state will help take care of the medical and hospital bills.

Yes, I will fight for unprecedented change that makes us more secure in our health, strengthens our families, and stamps out corruption, to gain for all Filipino families the kind of respect that our doctors and others in the medical profession have earned all around the world.

Yon din ang isang dahilan kung bakit ang inyong propesyon ay importante, hind lamang sa akin na anak ng doktora, hind lamang sa aking pamilya, kundi na rin sa pamilya ng ating bansa. Kasi yung kauna-una — hindi ba mga yon tawag nila the Filipino worker is world class. Pero sino ang kauna-unang Filipino worker na kinilala sa buong mundo? — the Filipino doctor. Kayo, you blaze the trail for other Filipino professionals all over the world.

Your profession serves our whole country because of your good reputation all over the world and because of the work that you directly do for the people of the Philippines. And you, the family physicians particularly serve the family. We are alike in that. It is your mission to serve the family my mission to keep the family whole and thriving in a world of formidable challenges.

For the family that we serve, for the families that we serve, lets join hands and win the future.

Kasi kalusugan ang inaalagaan ninyo ngunit dahil sa napakalaking impluwensiya ninyo sa mga pamilya na naging kaibigan na rin ninyo, ang laki rin ng inyong influence sa kanilang mga asal, sa kanilang family values. Kaya ang dami nyong magagawa para sa pagbabago ng ating lipunan. Hindi lamang sa larangan ng kalusugan mismo ng katawan kundi na rin sa larangan ng kalusugan ng pag-iisip ng pamilyang Pilipino, kalusugan ng ating bansa. Congratulations!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 25th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA) Tagapagsangalang Class 2004

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 25th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA)
Tagapagsangalang Class 2004

[Delivered at the Camp Gen. Mariano N. Castañeda Parade Grounds, Silang, Cavite, March 2, 2004]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Joey Lina sa iyung parating napakagandang pagpakilala sa akin.

Police Superintendent Salvacion, Director ng Philippine National Academy; Undersecretary Corpuz, OIC ng Philippine Public Safety College; General Ebdane and namumuno ng Philippine National Police; lahat ng officers ng Philippine National Police na narito ngayon; gusto ko ring batiin ang mayor ng Silang, si Mayor Madlansacay; ganun na rin ang pangulo ng City Mayors ng buong Pilipinas, Mayor Francis Tolentino; at ang maybahay ng ating Speaker of the House of Representatives, Mrs. Gina de Venecia; yung inyong magiging boss batiin ko rin bukod kay General Ebdane, si Fire Chief Superintendent Francisco Senot at saka si Jail Chief Superintendent Arturo Alit.

At yung tumutulong mag-alaga ng inyong kapakanan ang pangulo ng PNP Alumni Association, si General Pete Bulaong; mga magulang; kapatid; kaibigan ng ating mga graduating students ngayon; mga miyembro ng PNPA Class 2004 tagapagsangalang tanggapin ninyo ang aking taos-pusong pagbati sa inyong pagtatapos.

Binabati ko rin especially si Cadet Decena at yung top ten. At nasisiyahan ako na sa top ten, anim ay kababaihan. Espesyal ang Class 2004 sa akin kasi kayo ay nagtraining sa PSG.

And, therefore, let me also take this opportunity to commend the Class of 2004, who, as part of your training with the PSG or part of the security force that did an admirable job of ensuring the safety of U.S. President George Bush during his state visit to the Philippines last year.

Siya nga pala, tikas pahinga.

Kasabay ng aking pagbati ay ang aking malugod na pagtanggap sa inyo bilang kasapi ng Philippine National Police, Bureau of Fire Protection, at Bureau of Jail Management and Penology.

You are now my fellow agents of change. Lahat tayo gusto natin ng pagbabago. Ang pagbabagong hinahangad ay tungkol sa mas mabuting buhay, kasama na rito ang pangkabuhayan at kaligtasan.

Maski pulis, bumbero, bantay sa preso ay karaniwang Pilipinong humahangad ng mas mabuting buhay. Kaya gaya nang sinabi ni Secretary Lina nung ako ay naging pangulo, tinaas ko ang sweldo ng mga pulis at ginawang kapantay ng mga sweldo ng mga guro. At hinihintay ko na lamang dumating sa aking desk mula sa Kongreso — salamat kay Speaker de Venecia at kay Senate President Franklin Drilon, at lahat ng Congressmen at Senator — hinihintay ko na lamang dumating sa desk ko para mapirmahan ko yung pagtaas ng sweldo ng bumbero at bantay sa preso. Gusto ko nga sana pirmahan ko itong araw na ito eh, pero hindi pa dumadating sa aking desk. May proseso yon. Pagkatapos pinapasa, dumadaan sa Office ng Speaker, Senate President, na-enroll tapos ita-transmit sa Malacañang. Kahapon trinansmit, dadaan sa Legislative Office, titingnan nung... Ritual, titingnan nung ano, nung legislative lawyer kung dapat ipirma o i-veto o i-let lapse into law tapos ibibigay sa akin. Pero nandiyan na yan, dumating na sa malaca, ang, kaya darating na yan. Pagkatapos, pagkatapos nahambing na ang sweldo ng pulis at mga teacher, ang susunod naman ay pwede na nating itaas na muli ang sweldo ng mga guro at iba pang kawani ng pamahalaan. Yan ang ating susunod na plataporma pagbalik natin sa Kongreso pagkatapos ng halalan.

Sa mga nagtatapos ngayon, samahan ninyo ako sa aking ipinaglalabang pagbabago para sa karaniwang Pilipino. Sa maikling panahon, nakagawa tayo ng malakas na panimula. Napatatag natin ang kaguluhang minana natin. Nakagawa tayo ng di pa napapantayang sulong sa pabahay kasama na ang pabahay para sa mga pulis. Dito sa aking maikling panguluhan nakapagtayo tayo ng halos tatlong daang libong pabahay para sa manggagawa at kasama dito pabahay para sa pulis.

Para naman sa inyong mga pangkabuhayan bukod sa pagtaas ng sweldo alam ko na marami kayong pangangailangan. Yung inyong alumni association ay merong foundation na tinatawag kampilan multi-purpose cooperative of the PNP Alumni Association para tinutulungan yung mga alumni na may bukod na pangangailangan. Kaya itong araw na ito, dagdag na rin sa tulong sa karaniwang pulis ay magdadagdag ako ng seed fund sa kanilang one million pesos, ibibigay ko kay General Bulaong, ang pangulo ng inyong alumni association.

Nakasulong tayo laban sa katiwalian, kasama na ang crackdown sa mga tiwaling pulis. Kaya naman malakas ang ating laban kontra sa mga krimen lalo na kontra sa droga. Higit dalawampung libong drug lords at drug pushers ay naaresto, kasama na ang number one na si william gan. Halos dalawampung bilyong halagang droga ay nakumpiska natin.

At sinugod natin ang mga terorista. Sa kauna-unang pagkakataon mula noong pangyayari sa Sipadan, patakbo ang mga Abu Sayyaf. Ang mga sikat na terorista gaya ni Abu Sabaya, Robot, Al-Ghozi, Global ay napatay o nabilanggo.

Ngunit ang mga ito ay down payment lamang. Kailangan pa ng susunod na installment. Kailangan lalo na ang desididong liderato upang masugpo ang mga pwersang sumisikap hatiin tayo.

Kaya kayo ay kailangan ko, mga nag-gagraduate dito sa PNPA. Ipinaglalaban ko ang hindi pa napapantayang pagbabago na gagawin tayong mas ligtas, palalakasin ang ating mga pamilya, at buburahin ang katiwalian. Lalaban ko para palitan ang kultura ng katiwalian, pigilin ang salot ng droga, at burahin ang terorismo.

Papalawakin natin ang pabahay para sa mga pulis.

Inaasahan ko na kayo mga bagong public safety officers, tayo mga naglilingkod sa pamahalaan, at lahat tayong pilipino ay magtutulong-tulungan upang magapi ang kahirapan, masugpo ang kriminalidad, at makamit ang katahimikan sa buong bansa.

Sa inyo ang aking payo, mga bagong pulis, bagong firemen and women, bagong bantay sa mga preso — be exemplars of public service.

Let us unite in being each one of us an agent of possible social transformation and lasting progress.

Hangad ko ang inyong pakikiisa sa aking layuning mabigyan ng isang mainam na pamumuhay ang bawat Pilipino.

Again, to my special Class of 2004, congratulations to the graduates, their parents and their teachers.

Maraming salamat. Mabuhay tayong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Mindanao Cooperative Conference

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Mindanao Cooperative Conference

[Delivered at the Grand Caprice Restaurant, Limketkai Center, Cagayan de Oro City, Misamis Oriental, March 6, 2004]

Thank you very much, Chairman Ruben Conti for your introduction. Thank you also for your innovations as a cooperative movement.

Binabati ko rin ang dating Chairman ng Cooperative Development Authority na siya ang bagong Secretary ng Tourism, si Secretary Obet Pagdanganan. Binabati ko rin pero parating gusto niya nasa backstage siya, ang ating Secretary of Housing, si Mike Defensor. Nasa backstage.

Ipaabot ko sab ang akong pag-abe-abe sa akong usa sa mga daghang mga Cabinet members gikan sa Mindanao ang... Si Secretary Cito Lorenzo, apil na ang iyang kanhi nga company ang Del Monte tungod kay ang Del Monte Cooperative ang nakadaog ug... A Hall of Fame awardee nga katunay na Outstanding Cooperative. Ang akong pag-abe-abe sab sa mga uban nga awardees karong tuig.

Sa atong mga officers and officials diri sa Cagayan De Oro ug Misamis Oriental, ang atong host mayor, Mayor Dongco Emano; ang atong Congressman, Congressman Oca Moreno; ug gusto ko sab ipaabot ang akong greetings sa usa ka anak ug Cagayan De Oro nga dako kaayo ang nahimo alang sa aton mga cooperative farmers ug laing uban nga farmers, ang head sa National Irrigation Administration, si Jess Paras ng Cagayan de Oro; si Cito ug si Jess ubos sa akong administrasyon, aking diutay nga tiyempo isip presidente nakahuman, nakakumpleto, naka-repair sa half-a-million hectares sa irrigation systems.

Ang atong na... ang nabilin... Ang atong naabutan nga irrigation one million hectares. Sa ating diutay, gamay nga tiyempo isip presidente half-a-million hectares ang nabilin na ra na dili pa irrigated half-a-million hectares na ra. Kon sa akong diutay, gamay, kadyot nga tiyempo isip presidente nakahuman kita ug half-a-million hectares, pa unsa pa ang anum na taon nga masunod nga administrasyon. Anim nga tuig, I mean.

Kaninyong tanan, mga Cooperative Development Authority Board and administrations officers, cooperative leaders sa tibuok Mindanao, maayong buntag mga kooperatiba sa Mindanao.

Hibalo ko nga naa kamo mga hangyo sama sa ingon ug atong speaker kagangina sama sa pag-register ug electric cooperative sa CDA, usa sa mga issue, ang akong prinsipyo diri depende kon asa mamenos ang electric bill sa mga consumers. Sama... Mao sab ang akong tuyo niadto gi-condone ko ang bilyun-bilyon nga utang ug mga electric cooperative. Unta dili nakalimot nga gi-condone ko ang utang ninyo. Asa mga electric cooperative diri? Wala kamo. Okay, kay dili sila apil sa electric cooperative. Mao ang atong problema ug ang atong murag ang atong controversy diri o issue gikan sa nagkalain-laing interpretasyon sa tax exemption sa coops busa gina-instruct ko karon ang Secretary of Justice agi kan ruben — tiga-saan ka ba Ruben? Ay Batangas, magtatagalog ako sa kanya — Ruben, sabihin mo sa Secretary of Justice, kay Mercy Gutierrez, na gumawa na nang opinyon tungkol sa tax exemption ng cooperatives na kailangan susundan at kung anong ginawang opinyon ni Secretary of Justice Mercy Gutierrez kailangan sumunod ang BIR at ang CDA. So, kakausapin mo mamaya.

Kagangina sab ingon ng inyong speaker nga mahimuon ta mandatory ang Municipal Cooperative Local Government of... Ug ang inyong gusto, ang hangyo ninyo na mga local government mabutang ug Municipal Cooperative Development officer. Karon kung gusto naton nga mandatory kinahanglan balaod. Apan karon adlaw ang aton mahimo kung gusto nato nga sa masunod nga administrasyon i-amend na nato ang Local Government Code. Tingali amendahan naton ang konstitusyon aron na ang federal form of government ang atong nasod. Unya sa federal government diri sa Mindanao ang Kongreso ang legislative body sa Mindanao ang makabutang ug Municipal Cooperative Development officers diri.

But in the meantime na wala pang balaod o wala pang bag-o nga federal constitution makahangyo kita, dili kita makamanda, makahangyo kita sa mga local government na unta mabutang nini officer. Ako kausab sa inyong hangyo labi na sa akong administrasyon gihatag kong intero nga ira sa mga local governments dili parehas ni Estrada na 20 percent ang iyang gi-retain agi sa usa ka Executive Order. Ako gi-repeal ko ang Executive Order, tanan ira naadto sa mga local governments, gibayad ko pa ang utang ni President Estrada sa IRA. Busa, kauban ako sa inyong hangyo sa ila, dili mandato apan hangyo nga mabutang ug Municipal Cooperative officer. Naa kamo sab hangyo sa Land Bank, labi na ang atong Agrarian Reform Beneficiaries Cooperatives, asa kamo? Agrarian Reform Beneficiaries, wala? Kamo. Kay hibaw ko nga Agrarian Reform Beneficiaries naa pa kamo adjustment no gikan sa mga landlord. So, daghan pa ang utang and arrears sa Land Bank. So, Ruben Conti, again, tatagalugin ko, sabihin mo sa... Ah, ayaw kalimti bago ko mag-instruct sa iya, ayaw kalimti — unsay tuig man na when we had the... Two years ago, 2002. Sa akong instruction ang Land Bank gitagaan kamo ug moratorium sa inyohang past due interest and penalty. Karon wa ko hibaw kung nano na ang request gihapon. So, anyway... Ay si Cito Member sa board sa Land Bank. Okay, so kan ito na ta mag-instruct, dili na kan Ruben kay dili man siya member sa Land Bank ug dili sab anak ug Mindanao. Cito, member sa Land Bank, anak sa Mindanao ug maka-instruct ako kanimo sa binisaya. Ikaw na Cito ang maingon sa Land Bank nga sa gihapon tabangan ang mga land reform borrowers sa ilahang past due penalties sa aton mga mang-uuma sa Land Bank.

Ang penalty sa mga utang sa aton mga mang-uuma sa land reform tungod kay naa pa sila adjustment nga nawala na ng landlord na kaniadto makatabang sa ila. Importante gyud ang espesyal nga pagtrato sa mga kabos nga sektor. Mao gyud ang usa sa aton mga prinsipyo sa akong administrasyon. Sama sa microfinance, sa mga kabos nga nakapautang ta sa akong diutay, gamay, kadyot nga tiyempo isip presidente usa ka milyon nga kababainan naka-benefit na sa atong microfinance. Ug kauban na diri ang 4,000 nga pamilya diri sa Misamis Oriental. Tingali si Congressman Oca Moreno mangita asa ining mga 4,000 nga natabangan nato aron matabang sab sila kan Oca Moreno kag kan Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo kag ang aton mga kauban sa K4.

Karon sa iyahang launching nakita nato — ay, itatagalog ko ulit kasi si Ruben — okay, yung gma sa kooperatiba ng CDA nakakatulong dito lalo na yung CDA National Livelihood Support Program for the Urban and Rural Poor. Kauban diri ang Quedancor, our very good president of Quedancor, si Nelson Buenaflor, aniya karon daghan na mang-uuma ang gitabangan ni Buenaflor karon naa espesyal nga project kasama ang Cooperative Development Authority. Espesyal para kaninyo, aton mga kooperatiba diri sa Mindanao.

Maoy kauban sa mga kusog na pagsugod sa aton kadyot nga tiyempo isip presidente alang sa bag-o sa ordinaryo ka pilipino. Kay daghan sa atong ordinaryo nga pilipino maoy miyembro gyud sa mga kooperatiba. Apan maoy down payment pa ra busa aron mahimo nato ang masunod nga installment nining mga uban nga mga fundamental reforms nga apil sa inyohang mga position papers karon. Kay nakita na ninyo naa na ta down payment sa inyohang mga kinahanglan alang sa kauswagan sa cooperative movement sa Mindanao ug sa tibuok Pilipinas unta palihog tabangi ko ninyo.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Ipagdiwang, Gloria ng Kababaihan [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pagdiriwang ng International Women's Day

[Ipinahayag sa Cuneta Astrodome, Lungsod ng Pasay, ika 8 ng Marso, 2004]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Ging Deles sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin, although magkakilala na tayong lahat, di ba? Ay! Si Secretary Dinky Soliman pala yon. Parati kong pinagkakamalian yung dalawa, kambal sa pag-iisip. Sorry, mabuti para hindi nyo narinig na si Ging Deles ang in-address ko.

Maraming salamat Secretary Dinky Soliman sa iyong pagpapakilala sa akin. At gusto kong batiin ang lahat ng narito ngunit kanina binanggit na yata ang lahat ng pangalan nila sa mga mahahabang mga talumpati. Meron lamang akong isang hindi narinig na binanggit, si Mayor Pewee Trinidad, na siya ang ating host. Hindi ako kasi mahilig sa mahahabang talumpati at napakarami tayong big shots na narito ngayon — of all parties and all shades — dahil itong araw na ito kahit na panahon ng kampanya nagkaisa ang lahat ng panig para sa kababaihan.

At dahil sinabi na ni Oyo De Dios, sinabi na ni Amelo Reyes ang ating mga nagawa at balak pang gawin para sa kababaihan hindi ko na uulitin yung sinabi nila. Papaalala ko na lamang ang ating tatlong pinakapatakaran para sa kababaihan — pagsulong ng karapatang ekonomiya, pagtanggol ng karapatang pantao ng kababaihan, at tulong ng kababaihan sa magandang pamamahala.

Doon po sa... Una sa lahat, sa magandang pamamahala — gender sensitive governance. Ngayon pa lang nangyari na kalahati sa ating gabinete ay kababaihan. Patunay, sinu-sino sila? Number one, Secretary of the DBM, Emi Boncodin; number two, Secretary of Finance, Nitz Amaton; number three, Secretary of Justice, Mercy Gutierrez; number four, Secretary of DOLE, Pat Sto. Tomas. Mukhang Pat Sto. Tomas for Senator 2007 yata ito ah; number five, Secretary of Social Welfare, Dinky Soliman; number six, Secretary of Science and Technology, Nina Alabastro. Number seven, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Delia Albert; number eight, Secretary of Anti-Poverty, si Veronica Villavicencio; number nine, Secretary of Environment Bebet Gozun. Number ten, Secretary of the Peace Process, Ging Deles; number eleven, Secretary for Priority Programs and O.D.A., Mai Jimenez.

Labing-isa yon, hindi pa kasama yung mga Executive offices na constitutionally independent: Chairman ng Civil Service, si Karina David; Chairman ng PCGG, si Haydee Yorac; Chairman ng Human Rights, si Puring Quisumbing. Yan ang bahagi ng ating kontribusyon ng kababaihan sa mabuting pamamahala. Hindi pa kasama yung napakaraming babaing namumuno sa ahensya, sa ating mga ibat-ibang ahensya. Sabi nga nila, if you need somebody to do the work of two men, find one woman.

Tungkol doon sa karapatang pantao ng kababaihan, pagkatapos nang matagal na matagal na tayo ay naghintay. In fact, itong mga batas na ito ay ini-author ko nung ako ay senador pa. Ginawang administration measure — ay, mga Senado. Naabutan ko kayo noon, di ba? Nice to see you girls — dalawang administration measure sa wakas ay napasa, pino-proteksyunan ang karapatang pantao ng kababaihan — yung Anti-Trafficking Law at yung Domestic Violence Law. Salamat kay Senate President Drilon, kay Speaker De Venecia at lahat ng Senador at Congressmen at Congresswomen, yung mga narito at yung wala dito na nagtrabahong overtime para sa wakas dumating na itong mga batas para sa ating kababaihan.

Yung karapatang pangkabuhayan, mahaba ang kinuwento ni Oyi at ni Amelo sa ibat-ibang mga bahaging nagawa — pabahay, etc. Pero para sa akin ang aking favorite ay nakaabot tayo ng microfinance or maliliit na pantang sa isang milyong kababaihan sa ating bansa. Saan yung mga bahagi nila na narito ngayon? Entre-Pinay, Pasig City, salamat. SEA-K at iba pa, yun! — hindi, Napolcom. Hindi naman yan microfinance — yun mga SEA-K ng parang, Parañaque. Kasama kayo sa isang milyong kababaihan nagkaroon ng bagong buhay dahil binigyan natin nang pansin ang karapatang pangkabuhayan ng ating kababaihan.

Kaya tatlo lamang kontribusyon ng babae sa mabuting pamamahala —karapatang pantao ng kababaihan, karapatang pangkabuhayan ng kababaihan. Marami pa tayong dapat sabihin.

Mabuhay ang kababaihan! Happy Women's day sa inyong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo during the International Women's Day celebration [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Ipagdiwang, Gloria ng Kababaihan sa pagdiriwang ng International Women's Day

[Ipinahayag sa Baluarte de Dilao, Intramuros, Manila, ika 8 ng Marso, 2004]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Dinky Soliman. Nagkakamalian silang dalawa dahil magkakambal sa pag-iisip pero ang pag-iisip nila ay ang dami na ring nahawa ako sa kanilang pag-iisip.

Gusto kong batiin kayong lahat. Gusto kong batiin ang mga convenors, itong mga nagtayo o nagbuo nitong ating miting itong araw na ito. Una, yung mga convenors ng kagabay ni Glo, nandiyan si Imelda Nicolas, siya rin ang aking lider sa Sorsogon. Nandiyan si evelyn kilayko, siya rin ang lider ng Concerned Women of the Philippines, siya rin ang doon ang chairman ng napakaraming mga NGO.

Gusto kong batiin si Mrs. Conchitina Bernardo, siya ay dating vice mayor ng Makati. Ang aking balae, si Mrs. Charito Montenegro. Gusto kong batiin ang Lets Glow! Nandiyaan ang kumakatawan sa inyo sa entablado, si Gloria Golez. Sabi ko nga, si Gloria Golez, sana alagaan din niya para sa akin ang mga coconut traders para mapaliwanag nila sa lahat ng mga coconut farmers ano na ang nagawa ng administrasyong Pangulong Gloria para sa ating mangnyuniyog.

Gusto ko ring batiin si Mrs... Miss Maruhita Palabrika. Hi! Maruhita, maraming salamat, thank you for being here. Sila ang kumakatawan sa entablado ng Let's Glow!

Ngayon naman, yung sama pagkat kababaihan, nandiyan si Beth yang ng Abanse Pinay! Mabuhay, Abanse Pinay! Nandiyan si Badette Lingo. Ayun! Ng aba ako. Mabuhay! Aba ako.

Yon namang Pro-Gloria Women, maraming salamat na kayo ay narito. At saka gusto ko ring batiin ang mga nagsusuporta sa mga kababaihan, yung mga lalaking nagmamahal at gumagabay, sumusuporta, nagrerespeto sa karapatang kababaihan, nandito, kinakatawan sila sa ating entablado ni Secretary Sonny Alvarez.

Kayong lahat, anim na libong kababaihan na narito ngayon, ako ay nagpapasalamat na kayo ay nagpresentang magkakaroon tayo ng launching ng mga kababaihang lider na magkakampanya para kay Pangulong Gloria at ating mga kandidato.

Ang hihingiin ko sa inyo — kalahati ng botante natin ay kababaihan — ipaliwanag sa ating kabakababaihan kung papaano natin itaguyod ang kapakanan ng kababaihan sa ating maikling panguluhan.

Tatlo ang masasabi ko na nagawa natin. Meron tayong 12-point agenda, di ba? Yan na nga ang ating agenda. At yang ating agendang yan ay gaya nang sabi kanina, marami na diyan ay malakas nang nasimulaan at yang labingdalawang punto ay puwede nating ma-cluster, mabuo-buo sa tatlong bahagi.

Una, yung tinatawag na women's participation o yung pagsasali ng kababaihan sa mga importanteng desisyon na may kinalaman sa kapakanan ng kababaihan at ng lipunan. At puwede nyo maikuwento sa loob ng ating administrasyon ano pa ang pinakaimportanteng simbolo ng women's participation kung hindi labing-isa ang Cabinet members, kalahati ng Cabinet ay kababaihan.

Bilang patunay, papangalan ko sila, isa-isa:

Number one, Foreign Affairs — Delia Albert. Number two, Finance — Nitz Amatong, taga-Zamboanga Del Norte. Number three, Justice — Mercy Gutierrez, taga-Bataan. Number four, Labor — Pat Sto. Tomas, taga-Mindoro at Davao. Number five, DSWD — Dinky Soliman. Number six, Cebuana, DENR — Bebet Gozun. Number seven, nandito siya, Science and Technology — Nina Alabastro. Number eight, Budget — Emi Boncodin, taga-Iriga. Number nine, Priority Projects and ODA, taga-Mindoro at Cavite — Mai Jimenez. Number ten, Peace Process — Ging Deles. Number Eleven, pinakabago, Anti-Poverty Commission — si Veronica Villavicencio.

Yan ang mga simbolo ng women's participation sa maikling panguluhan, unang panguluhan ni Pangulong Gloria. Ano pa kayat kung meron pa tayong anim na taon na mag-recruit pa ng napakarami pang kababaihan sa ating pamahalaan at ibang mga katawan na nagdedesisyon sa ating kinabukasan.

Pangalawa, bahagi sa labindalawang punto ng ating plataporma, proteksyon sa karapatang pantao ng ating kababaihan. Sa aking maikling panguluhan ay dalawang batas na matagal na matagal nang hinihintay. Sa wakas, napasa sa aking maikling panguluhan, yung batas kontra sa trafficking at saka yung batas kontra sa domestic violence. Kung yung dekadang hinihintay ay nagawa sa ating maikling panguluhan, ano pat yung ibang punto ng karapatang pantao ang matutupad natin sa darating na susunod nating administrasyon sa tulong ng kababaihan kay Pangulong Gloria at ating mga ibang kandidato.

Pangatlo, karapatang pangkabuhayan. Maraming nabanggit sa 12-point program, yung karapatang pangkabuhayan, ang pinaka-down payment natin diyan ang microfinance napaabot natin sa isang milyong kababaihan ng Pilipinas.

Kayo, mga anim na libong mga kababaihan dito na magkakampanya para sa atin, ang hinihiling ko sa inyo, hanapin nyo itong isang milyong kababaihan. Ikuwento nyo sa kanila kung bakit sila nakabiyaya ng pangkabuhayan sa unang pagkakataon dahil dati-rati sila ay incomeless, assetless. Ngayon, may income, may asset, may kinabukasan.

Kaya, mga kaibigan, huwag nyong kalilimutan, ipagkampanya ang babae sa kapwa babae. Magaling magkampanya ang kababaihan. Sabi nga nila, at last — kasi si Nina Alabastro DOST — at last, science has discovered what can do the work of two men — one woman.

Maraming salamat, mabuhay ang kababaihan!

Happy Women's Day sa ating lahat.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the commissioning and blessing of the newly acquired Cyclone Class Navy Vessel, BRP General Mariano Alvarez (PS38)

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the commissioning and blessing of the newly acquired Cyclone Class Navy Vessel, BRP General
Mariano Alvarez (PS38)

[Delivered at the Philippine Navy Headquarters, Roxas Blvd., Manila, March 8, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary Ed Ermita. Thank you.

Vice Admiral Ernie De Leon, happy first anniversary of being FOIC; General Narciso Abaya; our major service commanders who are here today: General Santillan and General Abu; Honorable Mussomeli, Chief... Charge d Affaires of the United States and the other members of the diplomatic corps who are here this afternoon with us; the family of General Mariano Alvarez; Captain Edgardo Abogado, the Commanding Officer of PS38; our congressmen: Congressman James Gordon and Congressman Solis. I must add that Congressman Gordon is the brother of my senatorial candidate Dick Gordon; officers, men and women of the Philippine Navy; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen, good afternoon.

This is a very important day for me, for us. Not just because its the first anniversary of Admiral de Leon, whom we must remember as the man who brought down Abu Sabaya. But because as Charge d Affaires Mussomeli said, today we bear fruit, maybe the single most dramatic fruit of the good defense relationship between the Philippines and the U.S., which in turn is one of two aspects of the good relationship within our two countries — one being security and the other being defense.

Yes, 2001 November, I visited Washington. Before I went to Washington... In fact, when I first became president, I inherited a military commitment of the United States of 1.8 million dollars. This boat alone is worth 30 million U.S. dollars. In other words, from 1.8 million dollars, as I entered the presidency, our security relationship with the United States today is worth about 400 million dollars and still counting.

Still counting because we are now a major non-NATO ally of the U.S. and other assistance and priorities go with that. Still counting because as we do our own reforms in our armed forces, there is a commitment from the United States to give their appropriate counterpart.

As far as our fundamental reforms of the armed forces are concerned, we have two main documents to serve as our guide. One is the joint defense assessment with the U.S. Armed Forces, and I have Presidential assistant Ernie Carolina, who is here working with me to make sure that that is carried out. The other is the finding of the Feliciano Commission. And I have with me also — though she's not here today — Presidential Adviser Carolina Hernandez to make sure that those reforms are carried out.

That would be the next installment of our modernization and increasing professionalization of our Armed Forces.

But today is a great day, because today we have the most modern and capable boat in our Philippine Navy. This boat is our fastest naval boat and also it has the most accurate gun power. It also has a rubber auxiliary boat that can deploy our swag very quickly to their area of assigned operation.

Truly, this will go a long way in increasing the fighting and even rescuing capability of our Philippine Navy.

I congratulate the Philippine Navy for all the work that they have done all these years even before this increase capability came about. I mentioned the bringing down of Abu Sabaya. Today, we had the award to our naval forces who helped in the rescue and now the recovery of the victims of the Super Ferry tragedy.

I remember getting a text message from some of the families of the missing and they said, please ask the Balikatan to help look for our relatives or at least their remains. and I could send a text back to them, I said, even before you ask for my help, Balikatan has already been there helping out. and that is part of the blessings of our good relationship with the United States.

The other side of our relationship with the United States, the bigger side in fact, is the economic relationship — the official development assistance and the investments coming from American companies. I am very happy that next week I will be inaugurating a 330-million dollar investment from Sunpower, an American company who also made its commitment to invest in the Philippines during my last state visit to the United States.

This 330-million dollar investment is only a part of the six-billion dollar economic relationship that we now enjoy with the United States.

And so, ladies and gentlemen of the Philippine Navy, the Philippine Armed Forces, the defense establishments, our friends from the United States, our friends from the international community. I am here not only to welcome a new modern fast boat, I'm here to celebrate the blessings of a correct foreign policy and I hope that we will have a chance to make sure that this foreign policy in the years to come will bring about the deep reforms in our armed forces, the deep reforms in our economic investment climate that will truly help the ordinary Filipino overcome the age-old problem of mass poverty in our country.

And now, by the power vested in me, as president of the Republic of the Philippines and as Commander in Chief of all Armed Forces, I hereby Commission Barko ng Republika ng Pilipinas, General Mariano Alvarez, into the naval service and designate her with bough number PS38.

And may I give, and having been said that, may I give my special respect to the family of the late General Mariano Alvarez who are here with us today.

To you, congratulations! To all of us, congratulations! And thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Commencement Exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA Class 2004) Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
During the Commencement Exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA Class 2004)

Thank you, Defense Secretary Ermita. Thank you. You may sit down. AFP Chief of Staff General Abaya and Mrs. Abaya, PMA Superintendent General Adan and Mrs. Adan, the host city of PMA, may I greet Baguio City Mayor, Bernie Vergara, Baguio City Congressman, Mauricio Domogan, Governor Raul Molintas and Mrs. Molintas and I also see Congressman Felino Roman. I would like to greet the general staff and major service commanders and members of the diplomatic corps, the AFP and PNP officers and their ladies, the PMA faculty, I would like to greet you especially. The first time I see you now, especially the civilians now in your toga and I hope that you are happy that I have approved the merit system that was proposed to me by General Adan.

PMA Maliyab Class 2004, ang kanilang mga magulang, mga kamag-anak, mga kaibigan, pati iyong mga Cadet girls, dahil doon sa diskurso ni Lieutenant Joaquin, ang iyong mga cadet girls, iyon iyong mga sweethearts ng mga cadet who end up really marrying them afterwards, iyon ang mga cadet girls, congratulations also to all of you. Distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen, PMA Maliyab Class 2004, binabati ko kayo lalo na ang inyong mga honor students, iyong Baron, iyong topnotcher. Gusto kong dalhin iyong special na pagbati kay Lieutenant Rolly Joaquin, dahil kagabi dumaan ako sa Aguilar, Pangasinan patungo dito. Kanina ay pinapanuod ko si Mrs. Joaquin, napapaiyak noong nagdidiskurso iyong kaniyang anak. Kagabi dumaan lamang ako at bumaba doon, maraming tao sa kalsada tapos sabi nila sa akin, kasi alam nila na pupunta ako sa PMA. "Ma'am, valedictorian ninyo bukas, taga amin sa Aguilar." Congratulations to you, they are very proud of you.

Mga Cabalen doon mismo ang nagpaalaala sa akin, ang number 1 sa PMA ay taga-Aguilar. That shows how important it is to be a product of PMA and an outstanding product of PMA at that. Congratulations to you, congratulations to all the hometowns where you come from. Lalo na itong klaseng ito na napakahirap nang dinanas ninyo. Sabi ni General Adan, from your original class only 21% are now here graduating. And if your own valedictorian almost dropout in the first year, imagine the pressure the others must have gone through. That is why indeed it is fitting to salute the parents for their moral support, even some financial support. Though I am glad that today that the cadets are very well aware that the government spends more than 2 million pesos per each one of you. And you have to return it to strengthen the country not to weaken our democracy.

Your parents give you financial support, your parents give you moral support especially, your mentors give you their moral support. But, they also give you excellent academic training. In fact, some say the academics has been too tough in terms of math, science and engineering subjects that is why there is a very big dropout rate and some of the alumni tell me on hindsight they might have done in the little less math and engineering and more on English and communications and humanities because being a soldier is not just fighting a war and doing calculations of accuracy. It is also winning the hearts and mind of the people in the communities in, which you operate. And your mentors gave you that, academic training and character education for your roles, for your future roles, your roles beginning today as custodians of the nations defense and its peace.

Today, graduates, young second lieutenants, you will be sent off to all corners of the country on different assignments with varying degrees of difficulty and danger. As often stated, "the price of freedom is perpetual vigilance." The world and the Philippines have to live with the threat of terror as ever present anywhere. The security of our communities as well as of our means of livelihood and our public good is the business of every citizen. But, especially the business of our soldiers. Working together, we have reduced the threat of terror, but we cannot let our guard down. The tragedy in Madrid is another wake up call that democracy must be defended nationally and globally. We are working in our shores and with other nations on this universal task. We have not hesitated in employing our Advantages, a superior force training and equipment in dealing with those who take up arms to destroy our society or do harm to our citizens and their local government. In fact, our graduating students of today will be able to enter the armed forces with much better equipment, facing better training, yet, in the years to come, better force protection than those who graduated four years before you or those who received you when you were pledged. Better training, better equipment, better force protection, more arms, and even better pay. Because all of these were done during the short period of my presidency. At the same time, I believed, that the war on insurgency and secessionism that we are waging, waging can yet be settled on the negotiating table. This is one reason why I asked when General Reyes submitted his resignation and he is now doing a great job fighting the kidnapping syndicate and now the smuggling syndicate, I chose as his replacement, the man who had been waging peace, that peace becomes an integral part of the defense policy, Secretary Ed Ermita.

I think we are doing well on the national security front especially in Mindanao where the overall level of conflict has subsided. As part of the peace negotiations, we are persistently pushing for concrete measures at the ground level and to detectively isolate terrorist elements from the guerilla bases of the MILF even as we constantly found at the lairs of the Abu Sayyaf largely as One of your outstanding graduate is from Pikit and as he passed, I told him “help me take care of Buliok. Help me take care of enforcing the peace. Help me take care of bringing about true development that will bring about lasting peace in your area.”

The peace talks to the NDF are also moving forward. My administration has demonstrated that it has the fortitude to risk war, but also the courage to seek peace. We are fighting a war on two fronts, one front is made up of those who seek harm to our democratic law abiding way of life, the other front is poverty upon which the agents of desperate and lawless acts are recruited. Many students themselves from PMA come from families of modest means. And if we are going to look at the PMA graduates who are now on the stage, we know that PMA has been to many the gateway to a better life, a fulfilling, rewarding career, whether in the military or outside leadership. And it is a way not only out of poverty; it is a way towards leadership. Therefore, PMA is many things to many people. It is soldiery, it is leadership, and it is graduation to a better way of life. Indeed, we all must make a strong start in fighting for change in the lives of ordinary Filipinos. PMA has helped do that, but not everybody can be in PMA. In my short presidency, I fought hard for change. Change from the economic and political mess that I inherited. I guess the best way to point it out is that I created more than 3 million jobs in my short presidency compared to only half a million created during the Estrada administration. That is part of the war we are waging against poverty. Indeed, because we wage the war on two fronts, we wage the war with two hands, the right hand to defeat the enemy on the battlefield, the left hand to fight poverty so that the enemy will not find too many allies.

Class 2004, new officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, as your superintendent, General Adan said “carpe diem” – seize the moment, seize the day, be my right hand, be my left hand. Let’s fight the enemy. Let’s fight poverty. Let us take the Philippines to a better place in the 21st century.

Congratulations and thank you.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on a choice between two futures

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On a choice between two futures

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, March 18, 2004]

A CHOICE BETWEEN TWO FUTURES

Historically, our economic development has been slow compared to our neighbors especially starting in the 1970s. Our historic problem has been the need for economic development to fight poverty.

As I move about among the people and converse with them, I can see that the change that we all want is in terms of a better life, particularly in economic terms such as jobs, prices, livelihood, and so on. In fact, as I often summarize it – pagkain sa bawat mesa.

I have been fighting for change for the average Filipino.

In a short time, I have made a strong start. This is not a report for the end of a term because I have not served a full term. This is a report on a strong start I have made in a short period of time. In this short period of time of my presidency, I have turned the economy around and stabilized the mess we inherited.

My fight for change has revolved around four components: the first, an economic philosophy of free enterprise appropriate to the 21st century. The second, a modernized agricultural sector founded on social equity. The third, a social bias toward the disadvantaged to balance our economic development plan. And the fourth, to raise the moral standards of government and society and enhance the rule of law.

On the first, which is to promote free enterprise to create jobs, I've been using my clout and experience to turn the economy around and create jobs with better wages. I've made a strong start in reforming the power sector, cutting red tape, modernizing agriculture, creating jobs, promoting information and communication technology. The bottomline is job creation.

President Estrada created half a million jobs, I created more than three million jobs. The strength of my foreign policy has given confidence to nations to invest in our nation. I am attracting huge investments needed to modernize our nation.

Last year foreign investments increased by 26 percent, including Intel's expansion to one billion dollars, Matsushita's 230 million-dollar air-condition factory, Texas instruments' 100 million-dollar expansion, Ford's 50 million-dollar car assembly, early this year, national steel's reopening which will eventually cost it one billion dollars for the investor, and the call centers and business processing outsources centers which have increased their number of seats from 2,000 before I became president to 60,000 this year.

To prepare our youth to be the next generation of knowledge workers and workers in high tech industries and services, we are upgrading math and science teaching in basic education, engaging in a massive school building program, and bringing distance learning to the hardship barangays where many teachers don't dare to tread.

This afternoon I will inaugurate a 330 million-dollar Sunpower Solar panel investment, one of the fruits of my state visit to the United States. Last February, the economic zones registered a more than 300 percent increase in investments over last year.

To grow exports we have found new markets for tuna, carrageenan, tropical fruits, software and I.T. Services, and vehicles like ford and even our jeepneys.

But aside from huge investments, more than at any time in our economic history, we have made billions available for small and medium enterprises that employ millions of people. In the last ten months alone, 20 billion pesos have been made available for small and medium enterprises.

We are closing the infrastructure gap to bring in these investments. Our power grids are being modernized to prevent massive and prolonged brownouts. New power generation capacity is being built to meet rising demand. Malampaya went into operation, making the Philippines more than 50 percent self-sufficient in energy.

The road users tax is giving us now a first-class national road system. And to bring our people closer and move them faster, we are upgrading our rail system, expanding mass transport in Metro Manila, and we have completed in record time a nautical highway system that now links our farthest islands. Within Metro Manila, we have increased travel speed from 14 kilometers per hour to 22 on the railroad – no, not on the railroad first – on the roads.

We have expanded the north expressway and started a south expressway expansion after a long, long wait. The new Davao International Airport has been opened, the Iloilo international airport contract has been signed, the NAIA 3 airport case has been won in the Supreme Court. The Batangas International Port is now operating as an alternative for the CALABARZON factories who don't want to wade through the traffic to Manila. China will finance our north railroad, Korea will finance our south railroad, and the first of the Mindanao railroad agreements will be signed hopefully next month.

The cost of internet connections is one third of what it used to be, spurring I.T. industry development.

On agricultural modernization, thanks to investments in irrigation, hybrid crops and improved transport systems, our agriculture has begun to modernize by spending an unprecedented 20 billion pesos a year on agricultural modernization, we've been able to irrigate an unprecedented 600,000 hectares of land through the new and rehabilitated systems.

Thus, in my administration, we've been able to maintain stable supply – no, not stable – increasing supply and stable prices for regular milled rice for the poor. In fact, I think, I'm the only president in history that has not been attacked for an acute rice shortage.

Because of rice productivity, we have cut down our rice Importation from one million metric tons as I inherited it, to only half a million now. And we will be self-sufficient within two years if current policies are maintained.

Because of the stable price of regular milled rice, we had been able to achieve last year a 3.1 percent inflation rate, the lowest in 16 years. Throughout my term in fact, prices have stayed around 17 pesos for regular milled rice, around 27 for sugar, around 8 for sardines, around 9 for toyo, around 9 for patis, around 5 for iodized salt. Even as farmgate prices for corn and coconut have now increased to the betterment of our farmers. We have propagated tilapia as the more nutritious and more reliably available and therefore, more stable priced common man's fish than galunggong which either comes from our overfished waters or needs to be imported.

On the social bias, I have made unprecedented gains in housing and healthcare. A housing program unprecedented in its scale is underway and has provided so far 300,000 houses for the working class and a 100,000 for the poorest of the poor compared with the time that I inherited, a time when nobody was building houses among the developers. We have distributed over one million hectares of agricultural, urban, and ancestral domain land more than at any other time.

Health insurance for the first time has reached the majority of the families, our next goal is for us to let it reach all the families. Half-priced medicines bought by the poor are now available in national and regional hospitals, and because we started this through a 100 million-peso fund for importing from India where medicines are cheaper, now the private sector is beginning to build their facilities and producing this low-priced medicine such as Unilab and Glaxo.

For the first time, majority of the poor families had electricity because of unprecedented barangay electrification at 2,000 per year – per year? No, more than that.

We have protected our overseas Filipinos as well. The anti-money laundering law not just improves the business climate by increasing confidence in our banking system, it has also protected workers' remittances. We've obtained also the commitment of the U.S., Korea, Israel, Malaysia and Italy on the legalization of undocumented Filipinos.

On improving moral standards and upholding the rule of law, we are cracking down hard on corruption through more efficient procurement procedures because at last we've been able to get the administration measure on e-procurement pass into law and also on strict lifestyle checks on high government officials. Through these lifestyle checks and other means, we've fired big fish and filed cases at the levels of Undersecretary, Deputy Customs Commissioner, Customs Collector, Assistant BIR Commissioner, Regional Director, BIR collection agents, BIR Supervising Examiner, Judge, and Prosecutor. Because we were able to do the competent investigation that found, for instance, assets worth 92 million pesos belonging to an official with a 25,000 pesos salary.

We have strengthened the arm of the law. We've decimated and neutralized our most pernicious enemies on the terrorism front. Major terrorists like Robot, Abu Sabaya, Al-Ghozi, global have been killed or arrested.

In my short time as president, we've confiscated and destroyed billions of pesos of illegal drugs, and smashed international drug syndicates, not to mention the big kidnapping syndicates. Thirteen of the 21 most wanted have already been brought into behind bars or even neutralized and killed in an encounter. Back to drugs, we've arrested more than 20,000 drug pushers including the no. 1 drug lord William Gan, who many times was able to avoid the force of the law.

We are continuing to reform and professionalize our police organization so that it can better protect our citizens against both organized and petty crime. That is one hand the enforcement of the law. But on the other hand, peace looms closer.

Earnest negotiations have brought us to the brink of a historic political settlement with the Moro Islamic liberation front. I'm happy to see our friends here from Malaysia, from Libya, from Brunei, from Indonesia, from Bangladesh, from the OIC – friends who have helped us to move the peace process to a point where it is actually working. We are keeping the door open to a negotiated settlement with the communist left.

All this – and I should say more but it took what, 30 lectures to be able to say more. So I have just picked on some of these just to highlight the things that we have done in a short period of time. All this and what my colleagues have explained to you are but a down payment and certainly, I agree that it's not good enough. A next installment must be done.

It will take resolve and leadership to overcome the forces trying to divide us. For I did a strong start in the midst of coming into power on the crest of great division in our society. A division that still continues today, even as we reach out our hand in reconciliation to every one who is willing to accept a principled reconciliation.

We have begun to recover strongly from the devastation brought about by the Asian financial crisis of 1997. Despite the odds, we managed to maintain impressive economic growth and began to recover strongly from the devastation brought about indeed by that crisis of 1997. But while during my short presidency we did better than many of our neighbors in terms of growth rates, with the region now starting to recover, our neighbors are starting to accelerate their growth again. This time we cannot afford to be left behind.

I will fight for unprecedented change that makes us more secure, strengthens our families, and stamps out corruption. We've made progress, but I need a mandate from the people for fundamental change in our political system. I will fight to change the culture of corruption through a reform of the institutions and also through the educational system. I will stop the scourge of drugs and wipe out terrorism I will expand health coverage to all, bring more housing, expand property rights and create more jobs and better wages. We will have clean water and clean government.

I want to create 6 million jobs in six years. I want to expand health care to all families. I want to expand property rights to 12 million Filipinos. I want to build 3 million new housing units. I want to enhance the protection of our OFWs. I want to stamp out corruption. I want to ensure clean water in every barangay in the country.

To achieve these changes which are end results, we need a reform agenda for the next installment. Our reform agenda for the next installment covers five major areas of concern:

First, government reform. We have to turn the behemoth of the bureaucracy into a modern, streamlined, and efficient organization. We have to review our Constitution – and I hope Dr. Abueva will help me there – to review our Constitution in order to make the correct transition of our country towards a parliamentary and federal form of government.

Second, market reform. By 2010, we should use market reform to see the poverty rate cut in half. We can only achieve this halving of our poverty rate by maintaining a high rate of economic growth. And this can only be made possible by opening opportunities for our small and medium enterprises through low interest rates and an even lower inflation rate, through fiscal policies that ensure the stability of our currency and by encouraging more intensive trade with the rest of the world.

We will continue to support private enterprise and free them from bureaucratic red tape and bureaucratic corruption to unleash the creativity of our people and our nation.

Third, asset reform. You know, even the most sophisticated businessmen tell me when I say asset for... What, what's that? And they say please speak in plain English. Anyway, asset reform... What are assets – land, capital, those are assets. Therefore, agrarian reform is one such asset reform, together with urban land reform and ancestral domain reform, and this must be completed within this decade.

The Supreme Court's final ruling on the Marcos Swiss accounts will provide us with the finances to accelerate agrarian reform. Also, I launched a massive program to provide small entrepreneurs with capital. And aside from what I mentioned earlier about small enterprise with the micro-enterprise where a million women have availed of micro-enterprise loans today, but we want that micro-enterprise system to reach every barangay in our country.

Fourth, agricultural reform. In my short term as president, I focused on raising the funds so as to have been able to make a strong start for agricultural modernization. But we need to do more than pump more capital into agriculture. We need to raise productivity, as we have done in about a hundred hectares of riceland. But we have to do that in 500 hectares of riceland more with hybrid rice and 2 million hectares of irrigable and irrigated land where we had irrigated half a million in addition to the one million I inherited, only half a million more of irrigation to go – half a million hectares. We will encourage our farmers to shift to more productive varieties of rice like this hybrid rice and more high value added crops.

And fifth, we will talk also in our agenda and work on it criminal justice reform. We must continue to reform and to transform the AFP and the PNP as well into loyal, dedicated, and efficient organizations with the modern means to enforce the law, and to be true protectors of our people, especially the weakest against crime, against terrorism, against all forms of political and criminal violence.

We also support judicial reform. That's why in my administration, we've been able to pass three important measures on judicial reform – the judges, the prosecutors, and soon I will sign the mechanism for mediation. These will help us strengthen the pillars of justice in our society.

Yes, we have had our strong start based on the four components: creating jobs through free enterprise, modernizing agriculture, having a bias for the poor, and improving moral standard and the rule of law. And over the next years we have these five basic areas of reform.

In the next few years, we can take bolder steps forward, given the time, a full term, and the opportunity to complete the strong start we have begun.

That opportunity is what I seek in the presidency of this republic.

Today, as we stand on the threshold of our first presidential election in this new century, many seem to be distracted by the siren song of the same politics and the same politicians we'd resolutely rejected in 1986 and again in 2001.

These coming elections will be a test of our political maturity, of our resolve to stay the course of stability and growth against the seduction of populist demagoguery, and against the fleeting thrill of flirting with the untested and the unknown.

The May election will be much more than a battle of personalities. It is rather a contest between competing ideologies, between the old politics and the new, between inspiration and desperation, between experience and amateurism serving as the mask of those who want us to go back to the dark ages that we threw away in the EDSAs.

The presidency is no easy job. It requires great vision, yes. But many can talk about a vision but it also requires the willingness to work hard, it requires the experience to mind the thousand details of national housekeeping.

It requires managing a large, diverse and complex bureaucracy of 1.2 million civil servants. It requires representing the nation in international dialogues and explaining our national interest in the emerging global issues of the day.

So they will have the confidence of their businessmen to invest with us and their officials to do their best in assisting us in our own development. It requires the highest quality of judgment on a universe of issues that need executive attention every single day.

If my immediate predecessor failed in some of these respects to the extent that Edsa 2 happened, it can only serve as a lesson for those of us after him. We cannot and must not repeat those mistakes.

As a person, I feel it only fair to treat former president Estrada with respect and dignity. But treating them on the one hand with respect and dignity, on the other hand I have to be clear that on issues of governance and in the best interest of the nation, we must do differently and do better than the previous dispensation. And reject those who would simply return us to the same old politics, in fact, the same old politicians of cronyism and corruption.

Indeed, our people's primary concern is food on the table. I have said as much myself many, many times, but it takes much more than talk, much more than a beautiful slogan, much more than a simple recipe to get things done. To go by this analogy of food on every table, we need a cook, who's cooked before, who knows his job or her job, who can offer more than leftovers or scraps of ideas from discredited politicians.

During the short period of my presidency, I've tried my best to lead by example: through hard work, personal integrity, dedication to the task of lifting our people from poverty, and a commitment to improving governance.

I have learned much on the job. Added to what I have learned in my U.P. Education as Doctor of Economics, to what I have learned in my stint as undersecretary of Trade and Industry, to what I have learned as a senator doing all the legislation in the early... From 1992 to 1998 that have brought about the beginning of our economic reform, to that I have learned my execution as president.

I offer to our people a road map to prosperity, these five areas of government reforms based on a government that performs.

What they can only promise, we have made a strong start on.

And once more, together, we who have survived the worst of the past can make the best of the future through our program of fundamental reform to build on the strong start we have made.

Our nation has a clear choice: between tested and experienced leadership on the one hand, and gambling on inexperience and uncertainty on the other. We can move forward and realize our destiny as a modern nation or make a U-turn back to the midnight kitchenomics of the past.

It is a choice not just between politicians and personalities. It is a choice between two futures.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 107th Anniversary of the Philippine Army

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 107th Anniversary of the Philippine Army

[Delivered at Fort Bonifacio, Makati City, March 22, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary Eduardo Ermita. And other Cabinet member, Secretary Romulo.

Troop commander, give tikas pahinga.

Senator Magsaysay and other elective officials; General Abaya and the other officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; General Ebdane and the other officers and members of the allied Armed Forces, the Philippine National Police; Mr. Lina, Doctor Gonzales and the other partners of the Philippine Army in serving the people and serving our soldiers; distinguished guests, officers, men and women of the Philippine Army, happy anniversary to us!

Today is also the anniversary of the Office of the President because the presidency and the Philippine Army were born on the same day a hundred seven years ago.

Congratulations too, to our awardees. They remind us of great moments in the history of the Philippine Army. They remind us of great battles like the battle of Buliok. They remind us of the ferocious battles in the fight against insurgency. They remind us of the gains that we have made in our anti-kidnapping drive with the great support of the Armed Forces and the Philippine Army. They remind us of what the Philippine Army has done in order to preserve the integrity of the armed forces in great tests of constitutionality such as the moments in Oakwood.

And I'm very glad to remind everyone to be remembered, to be reminded that at that time during the difficult days of Oakwood, the commander of the task force who enforced the deadline was none other than now, the incumbent chief of the Philippine Army, General Efren Abu.

These awards also remind us that the Philippine Army is not just about fighting. It is also about the protection of human rights. It is also about not enforcing just the right hand of the law but extending the left hand of peace and reconciliation and service to our people, to the building of school buildings in the conflict areas through working with the peace and service NGOs who helped promote internal security.

One hundred seven years ago, the Philippine Revolutionary Army came into existence when the Filipino patriot mustered the will to fight for freedom and to secure the future with a few thousand bolos, rifles, rounds of ammunition and whatever armaments could be found and wielded, undeterred by the superior force of the colonial powers.

Today, it is important not to be 19th century, not even to be 20th century about our weapons and our capabilities but to be truly a part of the 21st century.

And in this 21st century today, no goals are more immediate for us than to end the decades of struggle against insurgency and secessionism and at the same time to post lasting victories and prevail over the new threats of terrorism and the continuing threats of criminality and lawlessness.

And it is for bringing our Philippine Army from the 19th century to the 20th century, to the 21st century that I have devoted much of my clout, even in international affairs to the program of modernization of the armed forces by upgrading our force capabilities, both in weapons and equipment in the organization, by training, by professionalism, by increasing the pay of our soldiers to the same level as that of teachers.

And I asked about the one hundred million pesos worth of boots that I said we should provide our soldiers. And General Abaya reports that the bidding has been completed, awarded, and soon, the boots will finally be delivered.

I think it simply shows that we still have to work on many areas of organization and procurement so that we can bring the needs of the soldiers to them much faster.

It takes resolve and leadership to work on organizational improvements. It takes resolve and leadership as well to overcome the forces trying to divide us.

In Mindanao, the overall level of conflict has subsided, the ceasefire has held well and the international monitoring team will be arriving today in a very calm and peaceful environment.

The terrorist networks, which have now been considerably weakened, must however not be underestimated. The recent bombings in Madrid and the continuing assaults in Iraq remind us of the imperative of collective and perpetual vigilance in this greatest threat of the 21st century. They remind us that terrorism can strike anytime, anywhere in an ally of the coalition like Madrid, or even in somebody who is uncomfortable with the coalition like Bali.

Therefore, I have instructed the Cabinet Oversight Committee on Internal Security, which is headed by Secretary Romulo, to put together an Anti-Terrorism Task Force composed but not limited to elements of the military, police, NBI, NICA, and an eminent retired general. And I shall be asking, as I've already asked President Ramos, Senate President Drilon, Speaker De Venecia to act as advisers to this task force. I have informed Secretary Ermita that I am appointing him as the anti-terrorism coordinator.

Through the Anti-Terrorism Task Force — congratulations, Secretary Ermita! Or is it condolence? — through the anti-terrorism task force, we shall further combine and consolidate all the resources and expertise we need to fight terror.

We shall connect the grassroots to the national and transnational efforts. It is good we have an anti-terrorism coordinator because the European union has also appointed its own anti-terrorism coordinator. We have so far succeeded in our vigilance and we shall gather the people to protect our gains and our durable security.

But along with our military and anti-terrorism campaigns, we continue to carry out a peace process designed to bring the warring and disaffected elements of society to the negotiating table.

This quest for peace is counterbalanced, of course, by the need to fight against terrorism. As part of the peace negotiations with the MILF, we are persistently pushing for concrete measures that would effectively isolate terrorist elements from the MILF guerrilla bases.

And while the peace talks with the NDF are moving forward, the armed forces will certainly punish terroristic attacks, especially attempts to blackmail candidates and to violate the peaceful, democratic atmosphere necessary for clean and honest elections.

And if by enhancing our national security we improve the economy and the lives of the people, we make the Philippine Army's job of securing peace and order many times easier.

This indeed makes for an army that as you have adopted in your theme for this year: an army that is relevant, professional, people-oriented, and caring. relevant because you have made gains in the fight against insurgency, secessionism, terrorism, kidnapping. Relevant and also caring because you protect human rights, you build school buildings, you conduct missions together with civil society to make life better for the communities in which you serve.

Indeed, I am very proud of the Philippine Army that has truly become relevant, working to continue to become more professional than ever. One that is truly people-oriented, and one that is caring.

Let us march forward together to the brighter future we all deserve.

Once again, happy anniversary!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Ceremony for the Commencement of the Topping Works of the P300-million Batangas Port Livelihood Center

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Ceremony for the Commencement of the Topping Works of the P300-million Batangas Port Livelihood Center

[Delivered at the Batangas International Port, Brgy. Sta. Clara Batangas City, Batangas, March 25, 2004]

Governor Dodo Mandanas, happy birthday sa iyo at salamat ikaw ang nagbigay ng birthday gift sa akin imbes ako ang nag-birthday gift sa yo inindorso mo ako sa mga Batangueño bilang iyong kandidato sa pangulo ng republika ng Pilipinas.

At alam ko naman ang Batangueño may isang salita. Patunayan itong ating productivity livelihood center ng probinsiya ng Batangas at Philippine Ports Authority. Alam nyo kasi itong international port ng Batangas bahagi po yan sa Calabarzon project, kasi ang Calabarzon ay nagsimula nung ako pa ay Undersecretary of Trade and Industry at ako ang gumagawa ng plano ng Calabarzon. Noong panahong yon, panahon pa noon ako ay DTI pa, alam ko na, nauunawaan ko na na may problema yung mga nakatira sa Santa Clara yung natatakot na — kayo yon — yung nanganganib na mawawalaan ng tahanan kung itong pantalan ay gagawing international port. Kanya lamang kailangang-kailangan ang international port sa Calabarzon at itong maliit na pantalan, na ang daming mga alaala ni Kabayan Noli de Castro na taga-Mindoro nung siya ay nagfe-ferry papunta sa Batangas Port, ang liit-liit pa, ang pangit-pangit pa, ang lubak-lubak pa ng kalsada. Ngayon, ang plano natin ay gawin ngang international port.

Noong ako ay senador, si Dodo Mandanas ay lider ng NGO, dinadala na niya ako dito sa Batangas. At isa rin sa pinag-uusapan natin papano aalagaan ang mga mawawalang tahanan dito sa barangay Santa Clara.

Noong ako ay naging pangulo, nakita ko hindi pa pala napapatayo yung Batangas port. Kaya nung ako ay naging pangulo, pinabilis ko ang papeles, pinabilis ko ang bidding, pinabilis ko ang right-of-way, one year after Edsa 2 started, January 16, 2002, na-inaugurate natin ang International Batangas Port. Noong araw na yon, tinanong ko kay Dodo Mandanas, Dodo, papano naman yung mga nawawalaan, baka mawalaan ng hanapbuhay at saka tahanan. sabi niya, ang probinsiya na ang bahala sa kanila. at eto, itong productivity livelihood center ng probinsiya at ppa ang sagot ni Dodo Mandanas sa pangako niya sa akin na siya ang bahala sa mga taga-barangay Santa Clara at inyong pangkabuhayan, kayo. Kaya ito si Dodo ang mamamahala dito para may magandang pangkabuhayan ang mga nanganganib maisasantabi sa kaunlaran ng Batangas.

Ang Batangas Port at ang kalsada patungong Batangas mula sa Maynila kailangang-kailangan kung gusto natin ng maraming trabaho sa Batangas at saka sa Calabarzon, kung gusto natin ng maraming pangangalakal, kung gusto nating gumanda ang presyo ng mga bilihan.

Kaya akoy nasisiyahan na si Dodo Mandanas ay tumatakbo na walang kalaban, kasi ibig sabihin, meron siyang maibibigay na buong pagkakataon na ituloy ang kanyang trabaho bilang gobernador kahit na siya ay nagkakandidatong congressman dahil marami pa siyang kailangang gawin para sa lalawigan ng batangas bago siya magbitiw sa a-treinta ng hunyo para maging congressman.

Una nga, tatapusin nito na magbibigay ng hanapbuhay sa ating mga kapatid sa barangay Santa Clara.

Pangalawa, hiningi ko siya, hinihingi ko sa kanya na siya ang maging project manager nung ating kalsada, yung expressway mula maynila hanggang sa Batangas International port para meron tayong magandang kalsada na magpapaaliwalas ng biyahe.

Pangatlo, yung Board of Liquidators, kasi ito ppa property ito, sa kabila naman ng pantalan ng Batangas port ay merong property ng Board of Liquidators, national government din ang may-ari, gaya nito, nasa government ang may-ari pero itinu-turnover sa provincial government para gagawa rin si Dodo Mandanas doon sa kabila ng proyekto magbibigay ng trabaho sa karaniwang Batangueño.

Kaya isa pa, si Dodo Mandanas doon sa lipa ay magdadala ng private investor sa ating air base para gagawing commercial and military airport and industrial complex. Ang dami pang gagawin ni Dodo Mandanas bago siya magbitiw bilang gobernador sa a-treinta at bago magsimula ng trabaho niya bilang congressman.

Kaya akoy nagpapasalamat na sa kanyang paniniwala para matuloy itong mga magandang nasimulaan niya, nasimulaan natin ang kailangan niyang pangulo ay yung nakakaunawa sa pangangailangan ng kaunlaran ng Batangas, yung mga nakakaunawa sa mga damdamin ng mga ordinaryong Batangueño at kaya naman ako'y nagpapasalamat na sa araw ng kanyang kaarawan ay sinabi niya sa inyo, minamahal niyang mga batangueño, ang dami-dami ninyong almusal nasa loob ng gusali, na ang kanyang kandidato bilang pangulo ay si Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo.

Sa inyong lahat mga kaibigan, ako ay nagpapasalamat at sana nga pagkatapos ng a-treinta ng hunyo, itong mga malakas na sinimulan natin — productivity center, Batangas port, B-O-L property at saka yung expressway to the south — ay magagawa natin, sama-sama tayo, governor today, congressman tomorrow, kayo mga mamamayan ng Batangas, kasama kayo sa ating ginagawa at sana kasama tayo sa kaunlaran ng Batangas at ng buong Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat, happy birthday governor and future Congressman Dodo Mandanas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong suporta.

Kanta tayo, happy birthday. Kanta, kanta.

Message of President Arroyo on Lent (Filipino)

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Lent (Filipino)

[Delivered on April 7, 2004]

Ang Semana Santa ay panahon ng pagninilay. Si Panginoong Hesukristo ay naghandog ng Kanyang buhay upang tubusin tayo sa ating mga kasalanan. Tiniis Niya ang lahat ng pasakit, para patunayan kung gaano Niya tayo kamahal. Bilang pasasalamat, gawin nating makabuluhan ang paggunita sa Kanyang pagdurusa at Kanyang kamatayan.

Pag-isipan nating mabuti kung ano pa ang ating magagawa bilang pagsunod sa Kanyang mga utos at aral. Kailangan din nating pasanin ang ating sariling krus. Kailangan din nating magmalasakit at dumamay sa ating kapwa. Kailangan nating mag-alay bawat isa ng tulong para sa kapakanan ng ating bayan.

Sa maikling panahon ng aking pagiging Pangulo, inihandog ko ang aking sarili para ipaglaban ang pagbabago para sa karaniwang Pilipino. Wala akong tanging hangad kundi ang tapusin ang aking nasimulan at wakasan ang kahirapan.

Tulad ng pagkamatay ni Hesus sa krus, ang bawat isa sa atin ay dapat ding maghandog ng sarili nating sakripisyo. Magtulungan tayo para sa kapayapaan at kaunlaran ng ating bansa. Magkaisa tayo para sa maginhawang pamumuhay nating lahat. At tulad din ng Kanyang muling pagkabuhay, ang ating mga pagsisikap ay maghahatid sa atin ng isang magandang bukas.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Araw ng Kagitingan Rites

[Delivered at the Dambana ng Kagitingan, Mt. Samat, Pilar, Bataan, April 7, 2004]

THANK you very much Secretary Ermita, other officials of the national government, Governor Leonardo Roman, Congressman Antonino Roman, Mayor Abet Garcia of Balanga City, Mayor Estrella Santos of Pilar, Mayor Nelson David and the other mayors of the province of Bataan, Vice Governor Rogelio Roque. I would also like to greet the leaders of our veterans, Colonel De Ocampo, Colonel Estrada, Ambassador Guidaya, the members of the diplomatic corps headed by Joseph Musomelli of the United States, Akio Egawa of the Japanese Embassy and Ambassador whose people were also here during the war in Bataan. Members of the Cabinet, Monsignor Antonio Dumawal, General Garcia and the other major service commanders of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. I already greeted Balanga Mayor Abet Garcia, Mayor Estrella Santos and Limay Mayor Nelson David. I would also like to greet Dinalupihan Mayor Jose Payumo, Samal Mayor Teodorico Albelda and we also have SBMA Chairman Tong Payumo. Members of the visiting delegation from the United States and Japan at higit sa lahat, ang ating mga minamahal na beterano at kanilang mga anak at kamag-anak, minamahal kong mga kababayan.

Itong araw na ito higit sa lahat, Araw ng Kagitingan ay araw para sa ating mga beterano. Ang mga beterano ng Bataan ay nanatiling tanglaw sa landas na tinatahak nating lahat. Dakilain natin ang araw na ito. Ang ating mga bayani. Maraming salamat sa inyo, beteranong Pilipino. Papurihan din natin ang bansang samahan ng mga beterano sa pangunguna ni Colonel Emmanuel de Ocampo. Noong siya ay bata pa. Siya ang Deputy ng Emergency Employment Administration ng aking tatay. Iyong trabaho niya, ang trabaho ni Adeveso isa pang beterano sa Emergency Employment Administration, iyon ang naging inspirasyon ko sa ating “Kalsada Natin, Alagaan Natin” at nandito ang nakakuha ng trabaho sa proyektong iyon. Sa napakaraming taon kasama nila Colonel Estrada, Ambassador Guidaya at iba’t iba pang veterans’ groups na narito ngayon. Si Colonel De Ocampo ay naging malakas na tinig ng mga beterano at kanilang mga pamilya. Dahil sa kanya lumakas ang impluwensiya ng mga dating kawal sa policy making forum ng aking pamahalaan. Dahil dito sa ilalim ng aking administrasyon malakas nating simulan ang pag-ayos ng sistema ng Philippine Veteran Affairs Office para mapabilis ang pagpapadala ng pensiyon sa mga beterano. Ngayon, mahigit 70 percent ng mga pensiyon ay tinatanggap sa pamamagitan ng direct bank remittances mas mabilis at ligtas kumpara sa koreyo. Inutusan natin ang PVAO na pabilisin ang proseso at agad tapusin ang mga nakabinbing application para sa mga benepisyo ng mga beterano. Binuo nating muli ang military service board para magproseso ng mahigit 100,000 application para patunayan ang kanilang serbisyo noong World War II. Inatasan din ng PVAO na linisin ang kanilang listahan ng mga beterano at siguraduhin na mga tunay na beterano lamang ang makakatanggap ng benepisyo at pensiyon. Dahil sa kanilang data cleansing halos 7,000 pangalan ang natanggal sa listahan. Kahit na nagtitipid ang ating pamahalaan para mabawasan ang ating budget deficit, naglaan tayo ng mas malaking halaga para sa benepisyo ng mga beterano. Noong panahon ng nakaraang administrasyon, 31 billion lamang ang bayad sa pensiyon at iba pang benepisyo. Sa aking maikling Panguluhan ay nakapaglaan tayo ng halos 40 bilyong piso para sa bayad sa higit na 260,000 na pensiyonado. Naitaas natin ang old-aged pension, nabayaran din natin ang halos 20,000 na educational benefits, 20,000 na burial assistance at halos 4,000 hospitalization benefits. Ganoon din, itong nakaraang taon lamang, pinag-igting ng PVAO ang pagsasagawa ng mga libreng dental at medical mission para sa mga beterano sa mga probinsya. Dito, halos 20,000 ng mga beterano at pamilya nila ang nakinabang. Hindi lang dito sa Pilipinas ang ating paglilingkod sa beterano. Maging ang aking foreign policy at pakikipag-kaibigan sa America ginamit ko rin para matulungan ang ating mga beterano. After my visit to the United States, President Bush gave medical equipment worth about more than $50 million to the Veterans Memorial Hospital to take care of our veterans here in the Philippines also. After my state visit to the United States, President Bush signed two laws increasing the health care benefits and other privileges of our Filipino veterans living in the United States to the tune of $20 million every year.

Ito ay bunga ng ating malakas na foreign policy na nagbabalik ng respeto sa ating bansa. Iyan mismong respetong iyan ay hindi lamang nagpalawak ng ating benepisyo sa ating mga beterano. Ito rin ang nagbigay ng kompiyansang mamuhunan ang ibang bansa sa ating bansa kaya tayo ay nakalikha ng 1 milyong trabaho mahigit bawat taon. Tinignan ko iyong pag-aaral ng mga ekonomista kagaya ni Congressman Joey Salceda. Siya ang pinakamataas na kumikitang financial analyst sa ating stock exchange bago siya naging Kongresista. Sa kanyang analysis, naipakita niya na iyong aking administrasyon na may 1.1 million jobs a year ang nalilikha, ito ang pinakamaraming employment na nalikha sa buong kasaysayan ng Pilipinas. Dahil ngayon lamang umabot sa 1 million jobs a year ang trabahong nalilikha natin. Malungkot man sabihin kailangan na ihambing natin ito sa panahon ni Pangulong Estrada kung saan taun-taon, ang trabahong nalikha niya ay 135,000 lamang. Huwag tayong bumalik sa mga panahong ganoon. Ngayon, para sa ating mga beterano, dahil gumanda na ang ating relasyon sa America. Nilalakad ko naman kay Pangulong Bush ang panukalang batas na magbibigay ng pensiyon sa mga beteranong nakatira dito sa Pilipinas. Dito naman sa Pilipinas, kapag bukas na ang Kongreso, magsisertipika ako na ipasa ang isang batas na magbibigay ng franking privileges sa Veterans Federation of the Philippines. Ito ay kasama sa aking malakas na pag-umpisa ng pagbabago mula sa kaguluhang minana ko.

Kagaya ng sinabi ng mga nagsalita kanina, ganoon na rin pati iyong ating nagdasal, si Monsignor Dumawal, ang kaaway natin ngayon ay hindi na mga banyaga. In fact, iyong Hapon na dating kaaway noong panahon ng Bataan ay ang pinakamalaking pinanggagalingan ng foreign assistance at ilang mga investments din na nagbibigay ng napakaraming trabaho. Kailan lang ay nagbukas ako ng bagong investment na naman ng isang Hapon, iyong Yasakitores na pinalawak sa bilyung-bilyong piso ang kanilang investment sa Pilipinas at pinalawak sa libu-libong mga manggagawa ang bibigyan ng trabaho. Hindi banyaga ang ating kalaban ngayon. Ang kaaway natin ngayon ay ang ating sarili. Ang kaaway ay hindi ang estranghero kung hindi ang kapwa Pilipino na ang hanap ay sariling interes, hindi pambansang malasakit. Ang hanap ay personal na kaunlaran, hindi ang kabutihan ng lahat. Tulungan ninyo akong harapin itong bagong hamon at bagong panganib sa ating paligid. Tulungan ninyo ako sa aking ipinaglalaban na pagbabago. Hindi lamang pagbabago ng lipunan o pamahalaan, kung hindi ang pagbabago ng sarili, ng sariling diwa, ng sariling puso, ng sariling kaluluwa, lalo na itong taon ang tunay na Araw ng kagitingan ay isa rin ang Mahal na Araw. Sama-sama nating bigyan ng inspirasyon ang ating mga, kababayan maging ang mga bayani at martir. Bayani, hindi sa digmaan, kung hindi sa buhay. Martir hindi sa pagbuhos ng dugo, kung hindi sa pagbuhos ng pawis para sa kapwa. Iisa lamang ang ating bansa. Iisa lamang ang ating kapalaran. Iisa lamang ang ating hinaharap. Uunlad tayo o lulugmok tayo ng samasama. Kaya mga beterano at mga kasalukuyang henerasyon, ang aking hinihingi sa inyo sa Araw ng Kagitingan at sa Mahal na Araw ng ating pananam-palataya, tulungan ninyo akong magkaroon tayo ng bagong pagkakaisa. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.]

Message of President Arroyo on Easter [Filipino]

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Easter [Filipino]

[Delivered on April 10, 2004]

Ang Linggo ng Pagkabuhay ay ang pinakamahalagang pagdiriwang sa daigdig ng Kristiyanismo. Sa araw na ito, bigyan natin ng halaga ang pagsibol ng bagong buhay at bagong pag-asa na tinubos ng mga pasakit at pinag-alayan ng buhay ng ating Panginoong Hesukristo dahil sa ating mga kasalanan.

Gawin nating inspirasyon ang bagong buhay at bagong pag-asa para masiguro ang mgandang kinabukassan ng ating mga anak. Tayo man ay dapat na magpakasakit at magsakripisyo upang abutin natin ang mithiing kapayapaan at kaunlaran na ipinamana natin sa kanila. Sa Romano 12:12 ng Banal na Kasulatan, hinihingi ng Panginoon na ialay sa kanya ang ating mga katawan bilang buhay na sakripisyo. Ang ating mga sakripisyo ngayon ang magdadala sa atin upang maisakatuparan ang ating pangarap na magandang bukas.

Ang pagkamatay at pagkabuhay ng Panginoong Hesukristo ay patunay na sa kabila ng kahirapan ay ginhawa. Magpasalamat tayo sa pag-asang ipinagkaloob ng Diyos sa atin. Nawa'y maghari ang pag-asang ito upang sa pagkakaisa, sama-sama nating makamit ang makabuluhang pagbabagong hinahangad nating lahat.

Maligayang Linggo ng Pagkabuhay sa ating lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo on poverty

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On poverty

[Delivered at the Hotel Intercontinental, Makati City, April 14, 2004]

THE FIGHT VERSUS POVERTY CONTINUES

Our historic problem has been the need for economic development to fight poverty. Since martial law our economic development has been slow compared to our neighbors.

I am fighting for a change for the average Filipino. Together, you and I, we have made a strong start in a short time. Together with you, I have stabilized the mess we inherited. We now have low inflation, high growth and a surge of foreign investment.

And for the first time in the nation's history, we have a money laundering program that combats corruption and terrorists money laundering.

I have brought millions of books to schoolchildren, healthcare to the majority of the people, clean water to over 4 million people, and new housing to over two million of our most needy.

And I have cracked down on drug kingpins and thrown the book at corrupt bureaucrats, we have worked with our allies and security forces here at home to eliminate terrorism and protect our homeland from violence.

Yes, I'm glad that Dick remembers what I told the club two years ago. And indeed in accordance with the goals I set out even before I became President before the Makati Business Club at the height of the EDSA 2 controversies. And early in my term, in accordance with what I said then, I developed a three-pronged economic strategy to make the free enterprise system work and undo the neglect of the previous administration.

First, increase investments that provide people with the education and training they need to get high-wage work, including more scholarships, English as the prime teaching language, and scores of other practical investments for equipping our people;

Second, strengthen our international ties and regain the confidence of international investors. And our efforts have resulted in a 26 percent increase in direct foreign investment and are directly responsible for millions of new jobs as a result of investments from companies like Intel, Toyota, Ford, P & G, Federal express and UPS, to name a few;

And finally, a major increase in support for the self-employed and small and medium-sized businesses that really are the backbone of our economy. But, we have a long way to go. These accomplishments are a mere down payment on what is needed.

In the next six years, I pledge a pro-poor agenda to end poverty and as quoted by Dick, unite the nation. This is not an idle promise. I have the experience to deliver on my pledges.

The challenge I make to you today is this: we cannot continue with a nation divided, a nation divided between rich and poor. We must unify our economic and social divisions if we are to lift all boats on a tide of equality and prosperity.

We must invest in our nation and our people if we are to succeed. The hard-working Filipino is the central pillar of the nation. The working poor deserve the right to a rising standard of living, fair access to the courts, clean water, affordable energy, a good education, high-wage jobs and economic incentives for our self-employed and entrepreneurial class.

We must tackle the problems of the poor with compassion, specific solutions and aggressive economic expansion.

I am proposing a new Philippine nationalism based on championing our most valuable asset, the people of the Philippines, who work hard and play by the rules every day.

Well, Dick alluded to it earlier. It's not enough to have an affinity for the poor. A leader must present a specific platform for how to break the cycle of poverty and cynicism that pervades the nation. That means a leader must have a specific plan of action and the experience to carry it out – I am that candidate.

In behalf of the poor of this nation, I intend to lead the Philippines to a new era of unity and prosperity. I intend to make the hard decisions and to provide the new specific ideas to mark the beginning of the end of poverty as we know it. I intend to unite the nation based on respect for rich and poor alike. We are all in this together and must sink or swim together.

In the next six years:

I pledge to triple loans to self-employed and small business owners;

I pledge to build 3,000 new schools, grant a college or voctech scholarship to every qualified poor family and put a computer in every school;

I pledge to bring electricity to 1,500 barangays a year and reduce the cost to become the lowest in the region;

I pledge to bring clean water to all 45,000 barangays;

I pledge to reduce by half the price of commonly used medicine; and

I pledge to create one million new jobs every year I am in office.

And I will do so with fiscal discipline. Through the reforms I have made – and will continue to make – I will continue to increase revenue collection; clamp down on tax cheats; and cut waste, fraud and abuse in our government.

I further pledge to continue to fight for self-sufficiency in rice production; to fight for more roads, for new roads, bridges and highways to link our great nation; and to fight for more property rights and more legal rights for our people; and most importantly, I will fight for the people who have no voice.

This election isn't about my family or me. This election isn't about personalities or politics. This election is about the people. And the people are demanding answers – specific answers to their problems.

They don't want slogans, they want results; they don't want talks, they want action; they don't want big rallies, they want a big paycheck.

Yes, we need to provide breakfast, lunch and dinner. But that won't be accomplished by leaders and their backroom advisers who instead only provide a steady diet of political attack and lawsuits.

In these challenging times, the country has a clear choice between two candidates: to move forward with an experienced, hands-on leader who has a specific platform for change; or take a risk on an inexperienced actor who is too reliant on advisors to make important decisions.

The choice is clear: you can build on the strong start we have made with our pro-poor platform that is brimming with new ideas for the future; or the Philippines can start all over again with a cynical platform empty of ideas and stuck in the past.

The choice is clear: you can vote for a six-point plan of action and a record of accomplishment; or vote for someone who has no plan for education, no plan for clean water, no plan for job creation, no plan for healthcare, no plan for energy, and no plan for international relations.

Much is at stake in this election. I'm a hopeful person and remain very optimistic about our people and our nation. We must offer hope, not fear; sunlight, not darkness. We must take the hopes and dreams of the poor seriously. The poor of this nation deserve no less. We ignore them at our own peril.

I challenge you today to join me to work together to unite the nation – as Dick said earlier in my first talk with the u.s. About unity, healing – unite the nation around a platform that is pro-poor, fiscally responsible and forward thinking.

Movers and shakers of the business community, the future is in your hands, our hands. Let's all secure that future together.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 113th Foundation Day of the Philippine Bar Association

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 113th Foundation Day of the Philippine Bar Association

[Delivered on April 16, 2004]

I would like to greet the members of the Board, the past presidents, the different VIPs, the presiding justice of the Court of Appeals, the Associate Justices of the Sandiganbayan, the members of the Judicial and Bar Council, most of whom, if not all, were my appointee.

Well, I am glad to see all of you here tonight. And I am glad to see the faces of many of the Philippine Bar Association, leaders and members, so that, in my next term with your support, I know whom to appoint in the Supreme Court. Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps — I should have mentioned also the RTC judges — the recipients of the award, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen, a few days ago, I unveiled my pro-poor agenda to the next six years to end poverty and unite the nation.

In the next six years, I pledge to triple loans to self-employed and small business owners. I pledge to build 3,000 new schools, grant college scholarships to every qualified poor family, and give a computer in every school. I pledge to (COVERAGE CUT) — rogue and abused in our government.

I further pledge to continue to fight for self-sufficiency in rice production. To fight for new roads, bridges and highways to link our great nation. And to fight for more property rights and more legal rights for our people.

Legal rights. Ang katarungan ay ang bukal ng isang demokrasya. Justice is a bedrock of democracy. Without justice, there can be no democracy. Ang isang lipinang kulang sa hustisya ay isang diktatorya, isang sistema ng pasismo.

In my short presidency, with the support of many of you — kanina nga nabanggit ang halos lahat ng aking presidential appointees, pero hindi pa nabanggit si Nonong Cruz at si Joey Peñafrancia, is Attorney Acosta, and I remember to mention them because they are among those who have been helping me in my administration's making a strong part in judicial reform. Thank you, Ding, the filing of cases against corrupt judges and prosecutors, but more in general and more positively, the adjustment of the judges and prosecutors' pay. The package of institutional strengthening of the judiciary funded by the World Bank and the Mediation Law.

Sa susunod kong administrasyon, sa tulong ninyo, we will build on this strong start. Kasama ng Korte Suprema, lilinisin pa natin ang ating hudikatura, ang ating mga korte at ang mga taong nagsisilbing anay sa loob at labas ng hukuman. Gagamitin ko ang aking impluwensiya upang ang ating hudikatura ay may pantay-pantay na paglapat ng hustisya sa lahat ng Pilipino, mahirap o mayaman. Hahabulin natin at ipapakulong ang mga bumabaluktot sa batas sa loob at labas ng hukuman. Lilipulin natin iyong mga sinabi ng ating mga kasapi ng diplomatic corps who I am greeting tonight, iyong tinatawag nga nilang mga hoodlums in robes, na sila ang nagiging sagabal sa investments na pumunta rito.

At kayo namang magagaling na abogado ng Philippine Bar Association, hihimukin ko ang mga abogadong nagmamalasakit sa bayan, kagaya ninyo, na palawigin pa ninyo ang inyong pro-bono service para sa kapakanan ng mga dukha at walang kapangyarihan sa buhay.

If my complete term, as this one — it is only half a term — I also intend to share political power as broadly as possible. I will reach out to all parties, to all groups, to all communities to identify their best, brightest and most honest to serve in our government. Sa ilalim ng susunod kong damistrasyon, magkakaroon nang tunay na national unity government.

Aanyayahan ko ang oposisyon, ang kontra partido, ang naging kalaban na kalimutan na ang pulitika at ipadala ang kanilang pinakamagaling na kinatawan sa ating pamahalaan kung saan ay may naghihintay na mataas na tanggapan sa kanila.

Ang aking pamahalaan ay magiging isang tunay na salamin. Kapag itinaas ninyo ang salamin na ito at makikita ninyo ang larawan ng bansa.

Ang aking pamahalaan ay isang tunay na pamilya ng lahi. Kasama rito ang mga kinatwan ng kabataan, kababaihan, cultural communities, senior citizens, partido ng oposisyon.

It is time we detoxify our political system. Let us rid politics of its pernicious poison.

It is time we employ the blessing of civility to heal a wounded society. Civility is the glue that will bind Filipinos together.

Tulungan ninyo akong magkaroon tayo ng bagong pagkakaisa. Mabubuhay muli ang puwersa, ang disiplina sa batas kung mangingibabaw ang pambansang interes sa sariling kapakanan.

Members of this oldest lawyer's association, you are the cream of the crop of our legal profession. Kung mayroon mang makakatulong sa akin sa mga hamon ng reporma at rekonsilasyon sa darating na panahon, kayo na nga iyon. Tulungan ninyo akol

Maraming salamat.

Speech of President Arroyo on coco diesel Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On coco diesel

[Delivered in San Pablo City, Laguna, April 21, 2004]

COCO DIESEL: A SOLUTION TO OUR ENERGY WOES

Labis kong iginagalak ang mainit ninyong pagtanggap sa akin itong hapon na ito. Itong ginagawa natin ay tungkol sa enerhiya. Ang enerhiya as isang mahalagang bahaging Economic at Social Reform Agenda ng aking administrasyon.

Ang aking pagdalo dito, ang aking pagdalo dito ay para ipaliwanang sa inyo kung gaano kaimportante itong ginagawa nating coco diesel.

Tatlo ho ang pagkaimportansya nitong coco diesel na inilulunsad natin itong araw na ito.

Una nga yung binanggit ng ating mga nagsalita ngayon, ito ay tumutulong upang tumaas ang kita ng ating mga taga-copra. Kasi nga, nagkaroon tayo ng mga bagong gamit ng ating copra. Dati-dati nong ako ay batang maliit doon po sa Iligan, ang lola ko po, ang kanyang taniman ay copra rin. At nong panahong yun ang ginagamit na copra na binebenta sa buong mundo ay para sa make-up at mga ganong bagay pero ngayon, ginagamit na rin para sa enerhiya.

At tayo, yung ibang bansa, nauna na sa atin. Ngayon, ginagawa natin sa ating bansa upang siguradong may bibili ng produkto ng ating mga magniniyog.

Pangalawang dahilan kung bakit importante itong coco diesel, maliban sa ito ay nagpapataas ng kita ng ating magniniyog, ay ito ay nagpapalinis sa ating kalikasan. Ito ay pagpapatupad sa Clean Air Act dahil ang sabi ni Claire, mula nong ini-ekperimento ng mga bus operators itong paggamit ng coco diesel ay nabawasan na ang pollution sa Metro Manila.

At pangatlo, dahil ginagamit na natin ang niyog para sa enerhiya, nababawasan tuloy ang ating dependence sa imported oil. At yun ay isang makakatulong sa atin para bumaba ang presyo ng kuryente.

Kasi po, isang dahilan kung bakit tumataas ang presyo ng kuryente ay tuwing tumataas ang presyo ng langis na binibli natin sa ibang bansa, tumataas ang presyo ng kuryente. Ganunpaman, pinapangako ko bilang isa sa aking anim na pangako para sa ating mga mahihirap, sa susunod na anim na taon ay magdadala ng kuryente sa lahat ng barangay ng ating bansa at gagawin pinakamura ang ating kuryente sa buong rehiyon.

Itong hapon ito, gagamitin ko ang pagkakataon para mapaliwanag sa inyo papano natin ibababa ang presyo ng kuryente sa mga darating na taon. Ito ay magiging bunga ng ating reporma ng kuryente na sinimulan natin noon pang 2001, pero syempre maikli ang aking panguluhan, ang mga batayang reporma ay di nagagawa sa isa o dalawa o tatlong taon. At ito nga gaya ng sabi ko, ang repormang batayan lalo na sa kuryente ng maraming konstruksiyon ang gagawin, maraming bagong rules ang gagawin, maraming bagong pabrika ang gagawin kagaya nitong ating ginawang coco diesel oil, ilang taon kailangan. Pero kung bibigyan niyo ng pagkakataon for me to build up on the strong start I have made, matutupad ang mga bunga ng sinimulaan nating electric power reform sa ating susunod na administrasyon.

Bago ako naging pangulo, ang Pilipinas ay pangalawa lamang sa Japan sa pinakamahal na presyo ng kuryente. Ngayon, number 7 na lang tayo sa ibang region. Bakit? Why is electric power more expensive, cheaper in the other countries than in the Philippines? Ang dahilan ay una, they have their own plenty indigenous energy resources or they resort to using Nuclear Energy but that is prohibited by the Philippine Constitution.

Ako, kailangan ko ng mandato ninyo sa Mayo to build on what we have started. I need a mandate from the people to undertake the more strategic measures para matugunan natin yung problema ng industriya ng kuryente.

Kami ni Vince at mga kasamahan niya sa Department of Energy ay gumuhit ng isang pangmatagalang energy program na isisigurado ang rasonableng gastos at eficiente, mabisang serbisyo ng kuryente para sa lahat.

Una, maghahanap pa tayo, naghahanap pa tayo ng dagdag na Malampaya. Ngayon, mayron tayong kasunduan sa China. Mayroon tayong joint exploration doon sa area ng spratly. Kaysa nag-aaway tayo kung sino may ari non, ginamit natin ang ating foreign policy para magkaroon ng joint exploration. At pag nakadiskubre na tayo ng langis o natural gas sharing tayo sa bunga kaysa pag-aawayan ito.

Also we are developing more geothermal resources. Tayo ay pangalawa sa buong mundo sa nasimulaan na ay magbunga at yung mga planta ay magbibigay na sa atin ng kuryente, we'll be number one geothermal power in the whole world.

Ano ang kagandahan nitong geothermal energy? Ito ay likas na Pilipino at mas malinis na panggagalingan ng enerhiya.

Mapalad ang Laguna dahil dito sa Laguna, meron kayong geothermal power na nanggagaling sa Mt. Makiling. Yan ang dahilan kung bakit ginawa ko itong palatuntunan dito. At yung hydro power, mapalad din ang Laguna dahil ay may hydro power na nanggagaling sa Caliraya, Botocan at Kalayaan.

Suyo ng isa, itong sinimulaan na natin na maghanap pa ng mga additional resources sa dagat kasama ng China, kasama ng Shell ng U.K.

Pangalawa, yung ating sariling gamit, yung geothermal. Isa pa tutuparin nating ang privatization ng transmission at generation assets ng NAPOCOR para tumaas ang efficiency at permanenteng bumaba ang presyo ng kuryente.

Isa pa, kumpetisyon, nagawa nating kumpetisyon sa eroplano at saka sa telecommunication. In fact, yan ang dahilan kung bakit nong hindi pa ako pangulo, limang milyon lamang ang cellphone. Ngayon, 25 million na ang cellphone sa ating bansa. At mas mura na ang gamit. Kaya ang daming can afford sa ating cellphone.

Kung ano ang ginawa natin sa eroplano at saka sa telecommunications, gagawin natin sa wholesale power generation sa pamamagitan ng wholesale electricity spot market na magsisimula sa susunod na taon.

Eh medyo mahirap pag-usapan itong mga ito, kasi mga ekonomista at mga enhiniyero ang may alam nito, pero siguro sisikapin kong paliwanagin although hindi accurate pero more or less maiintindihan ng layman.

Hindi ba yung stock market, dahil nakasulat lahat ng presyo, alam mo kaagad ang presyo, alam mo kung bibili ka o hindi. At ngayon yung magsasaka, dahil sa cellphone, nakakatawag na sila ngayon, alam na nila yung presyo. Kung tumaas ang presyo ng produkto, nagtatakbo na sila sa palengke at ibebenta na yun. Kung babagsak ang presyo, ilalagay muna nila sa refrigerator.

Ganon ang gagawin natin sa presyo ng kuryente, yan din. Ang tawag diyan as WESM, Wholesale Electricity Spot Market.

At isa pa, magdala tayo ng investments para magtayo pa ng mas efficient na power plant na who will cater for the increasing demand for electricity.

Isang dahilan kung bakit nagmura rin yung cellular, kasi ngayon, pilit na yung telephone companies na mag-interconnect sa isat-isa. Kaya kabit na Globe ang tawag mo, tatawag ka sa Smart, makakakonekta ka at hindi mahal. Pinilit natin ang interconnection.

Gagawin din natin yan sa kuryente. We will implement the efficient and reliable, interconnection of the transmission system. Ibig sabihin non, kahit na nandito manggagaling ang kuryente kung mas mura ang ibinebenta niya, yun ang bibilhin ng taga-Cebu, kung mas mura yung dito kaysa yung nanggagaling sa Visayas dahil interconnected na lahat.

Our electric distribution utilities also should perform efficiently as encourage the sector to have a “cost-plus: orientation towards a “cost-efficient regime”. Ito ay gawain ng Energy Regulatory Commission. Again, magjargon muna ako. They are moving towards a performance-based rate making methodology for distribution utilities rather than the current “cost-plus” orientation that we inherited from the traditional system.

Ano ang ibig sabihin nito? Ngayon, kapag ang isang utility gaya ng MERALCO o yung Laguna Electric Cooperative ay mag-a-apply ng pagtaas ng rate, ang isa-submit niya, sabihin ito ang gastos naming. Ito ang allowed kaming rate of investment kaya dapat ito ang icha-charge naming, cost-plus kaya mas malaki ang gastos, mas malaki icha-charge. So, walang incentive na maging efficient kasi total, tuwing tumataas ang gastos, kahit na galing sa inefficiency, tumataas ang kuryente.

Ang gagawin nating performance-based, gumagawa ng benchmark yung Energy Regulatory Commission. Yung magagalin na company dito at sa ibang bansa. Magkano ang ginagastos nila para sa operation na ito? Magkano ang ginagastos sa overhead? Magkano ginagastos sa rent? Magkano ginagastos sa kanilang transmission losses? Dapat, yung ating mga kompanya ay ganon din ang ratio, para bang sa gobyerno or sa local government units sabihin – itong IRA ninyo pero hindi kayo puwedeng lumampas ng 50% na suweldo. Ganon na lang ang gagawin sa kuryente. Hindi kayo puwedeng lumampas ng so much percent para sa inyong system loss. Kung hindi, hindi nyo puwedeng i-charge yun sa ating mga consumers. Yan ang tinatawag na performance-based. At yung Energy Regulatory Commission ay ginagawa... o nagawa na? Ginagawa na nila yung rules ang regulations for performance-based rather than cost-plus.

Isa pa, dito naman sa probinsya, nabanggit ko ang mga probinsiya, nagtagumpay tayo sa pagbaba ng systems loss ng Electric Cooperatives sa pamamagitan ng aking Executive Order 119 na pinaayos ang pagpapatakbo ng operasyon ng mga electric cooperative. Halimbawa yung Aklan Electric Cooperative, bumaba ang systems losses. Nong araw, 23 percent, ngayon 13 percent na lamang. Nabayaran pa nila ang kanilang utang sa NAPOCOR na P70 million.

Yan ang ginagawa rin natin dito sa Laguna. Hindi ba Governor Lingling, tinutulungan natin ang Laguna? The DOE – energy and the NEA – National Electrification Administration are helping Laguna reduce its systems losses. Hindi ba kanina, Governor Lingling, nong nag usap tayo don sa iyong headquarters, sinabi nong isang Mayor, pinaalala sa atin na patawaran ang Laguna Electric Cooperative ng utang na P200 million at ang kondisyon ay binaba and presyo ng kuryente na tsina-charge nitong kooperatibang ito.

Kaya nagawa natin yan ditto, gagawin natin yan sa buong Pilipinas, sa lahat ng Electric Cooperative.

In the reform of the electric power sector, there will be new players, such as supplier/aggregators to help promote competition.

Halimbawa na naman, kasi jargon ito eh. Vince sorry kung hindi ako accurate technically. Pero hindiba kapag maliit-liit yung mga nagbebenta ng halimbawa produkto – garments? Bawat isa, mahal ang pasahe sa barko. Pero kung mayrong company na ibubuhos nila lahat. Isang container lang, mas mura so ganon din sa kuryente, magkakaroon tayo ng mga supplier/aggregators, tama ba yung sinabi ko? So, ganon ang gagawin natin.

So yan ang mga hakbang para maibaba natin ang presyo ng kuryente at gagawin nating pinakamababa sa buong rehiyon sa ating susunod na administrasyon.

Mahirap bang maintindihan, syempre, inhenyero, ekonomista, abogado-kailangan sa lahat mga bagay na ito. Kailangan din ng karanasan. Eh, sana naman, itong repormang inumpisahan natin, huwag nating ipapaubaya sa walang karanasan at hindi maintindihan itong mga gagawin.

Yun naman ating sinabi kong kuryente sa lahat ng barangay. Kasi yung pangako natin sa mga mahihirap, gagawing pinakamura, at dadalhin natin.

Ang kuryente sa lahat ng barangay ng Pilipinas. By the year 2006, lahat ng barangay ay meron ng kuryente. Bakit ko sinasabi ito? Kasi para makumpleto lahat ng barangay na may kuryente, kailangan na lamang ipaiiaw natin ang 1,000 barangay bawat taon mula ngayon. At dito rin, may karanasan na rin ako dahil nagawa ko na ito sa aking maikling panguluhan, nakadala ng ilaw sa 4,200 na barangay sa aking maikling panguluhan.

Kaya kasama na rito yung 160 barangays sa Laguna at Quezon kung saan marami ang ating magsasaka ay nanggaling ngayon. In fact, itong mga lugar na ito Vince, hindi ba ay 100% electrified na.

Laguna, 100 percent electrified na at ito Vince, hindi ba natupad sa ating maikling panguluhan.

Kaya uulitin ko bilang pagtapos, ang aking anim na pangako sa mahihirap ng ating bansa para sa susunod na anim na taon:

Una, magdadala ng kuryente sa 1,500 barangays bawat taon at ibababa ang kuryente sa pinakamababa sa rehiyon;

Pangalawa, lilikha tayong isang milyong bagong trabaho bawat taon kasama yung iiral na coco diesel industry.

Salamat nga pala sa mga tumupad sa ating hangaring ma-develop ang coco-diesel industry. Nabanggit ko na si Ginoong Carlos, si Ginoong Santos na taga Lucena, si Ginoong Lao, nabanggit na natin si Claire at yung IMMBOA. Gusto kong magpasalamat sa Toyota Motors Philippines dahil sila ay nangangako na meron silang convertible gasoline tank, puwedeng gamitin ng diesel at puwedeng gamitin ang coco diesel.

Pangatlong pangako, titiyakin natin na may malinis na tubig ang lahat ng 4,000 45,000 barangays sa buong bansa. Itong araw na ito nga, ang PAGCOR ay nakikipag-usap kay Mayor Aquino para magdala ng malinis na tubig sa kanyang barangay na wala pang malinis na tubig.

Pang-apat, ibababa natin sa kalahati ang presyo ng madalas gamiting gamut;

Panglima, magpapatayo tayo ng tatlung libong bagong paaralan, magbibigay ng college o voc-tech scholarship sa bawat pamilyang mahirap at isang computer sa bawat eskwelahan. Yung scholarships, sinimulan natin dito sa Biñan para sa 100 pamilya ng Laguna.

At pang-anim, tri-triplehin natin ang pautang sa mga self-employed at may maliliit na negosyo kagaya ng mga nagba-banana cue at kagaya ng ating mga magni-niyog na mayrong mga sariling mga negosyo.

Mga kababayan, itong halalan ay tungkol sa inyo, hindi tungkol sa akin. Ang taumbayan ay may karapatang marining mula sa mga kandidato kung ano ang kanilang gagawin. Ang aking kampanya ay tungkol sa isyu, hindi sa personalidad. Itong halalan ay tungkol sa pagresolba ng iyong mga problema, hindi tungkol sa akin. Dapat sama-sama tayong sumulong, magkaisa sa solusyon ng ating kapwang problema.

Kaya mga taga San Pablo, taga Laguna, taga Quezon, mga magni-niyog, mga transportasyon, mga gumagawa ng mga pabrika ng coco-diesel, sama-sama tayo sa solusyon ng problema ng kahirapan, magkaisa tayo.

Mabuhay ang coco-diesel, mabuhay ang magniniyog, mabuhay ang transportasyon.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 25th National Conference of Employers

[Delivered at the Westin Philippine Plaza, April 22, 2004]

FORGING WINNING SOCIAL PARTNERSHIPS FOR GLOBAL COMPETITIVENESS

Let me extend my warmest greetings to all the participants of this 25th National Conference of Employers. And my greeting to the labor leaders who were one with them in the social partnership. I share in your conviction that, working together, the Filipino worker and the Filipino manager can excel and join the ranks of the best achievers in the world.

You could not have chosen a more timely and appropriate theme for your silver conference, “Forging Winning Social Partnerships for Global Competitiveness.”

In a way, this theme a partnership has been the general guide for my administration since Edsa II, when I came to the presidency on the crest of a popular wave of change. I am fighting for change for the average Filipino.

Sa kagustuhan ng tao at ng Diyos, ako’y nanungkulan bilang presidente sa nakaraang maikling panahon.

Kaguluhan ang namana ko. Mahirap ang pinagdaanan, hindi lamang sa Pilipinas kundi ng buong rehiyon ng Asya at ng buong mundo.

Ngunit buong katapatan kong masasabi sa inyo na naitawid ho natin ng matiwasay at matagumpay ang ating bayan because of our social partnership.

Together we have made a strong start in a short time. Together we stabilized the mess we inherited. Together in our social partnership. Today we have low inflation and high growth. We have huge new foreign investment, foreign investments have surged by 26 percent.

We have brought clean water and health care to millions. We have brought, you have brought new housing to hundreds of thousands. We have books in schools.

We have cracked down on crime and drug kingpins. By Tessie Ang See’s own accounting, we now have the lowest kidnapping rate in the last 11 years. We have thrown the books at corrupt official.

We created, you and I, more than three million new jobs – in the call centers and business process outsourcing that Rene Soriano was talking about, in the new investments of the likes of Intel, Sunpower Solar Panels, Matsushita Electric, Texas Instruments, Ford which has a table of its own right here, National Steel, other investments from some in the crowd that I see today like for instance, Yazaki Torres. And many of the others, the bio-diesel of Itto Carlos, and many investments that many of you right here in this hall have put in place. And today, anticipating what you will giving me later because I have been keeping track of your discussions, I am happy with your proposal that industry and government sit down to draw up a strategic IT/ICT plan for the nation so that we can consolidate and broaden our IT/ICT niches such as electronics assembly, business process process outsourcing and software development. After all way back in 2001 in my first State of the Nation Address, I already said that the growth sector of our future will be the skills intensive service sectors like ICT and tourism: Speaking of tourism, so that we can enhance our tourism industry, the other growth sector of the future aside from ICT, I have instructed our airport officials to stop requiring the removal of shoes as an inspection mechanism except for those going to the countries who themselves require this kind of inspection.

Because of your commitment to a social partnership, wages, minimum wages have improved by 11.2 percent above inflation, which helped foster prolonged industrial peace. Tell me if I'm wrong Pat but from my figures, average mining and non-agricultural wages went up 29 percent to 271 pesos per day under our administration. From 210 pesos under President Estrada. Average agricultural wages went up 19.6 percent. Agricultural minimum wages to 238 pesos from P199 under Estrada. That is average minimum wages. If we talked about average wages, it would be even more because the new jobs created by the new investments in my administration have been the higher paying jobs. Because of our social partnership, the number of strikes has been cut in half and again, correct me if I'm wrong Pat. They are now the lowest in more than two decades.

Thanks to our unprecedented 20 billion peso expenditure a year on agricultural modernization, we have invested in irrigation, hybrid crops and Henry Lim can attest to this. And improve transport systems, and therefore, our agriculture has grown by leaps and bounds. As a result farm incomes have improved dramatically. For instance, copra was P2.50 per kilo when I inherited the presidency, now it is P22.50 per kilo.

And as coconut farmers incomes go up, you have very big indices going up of consumer spending like beer sales going up ten percent. And also, enrollment in schools. For instance in Luzon Province, in far away Infanta, coconut country. The bishop of Infanta, Emeritus, Bishop Labayan said, that copra prices determine the enrollment in schools, and now, there is a big enrollment in the schools, in the far away places of Quezon Province.

As a result also, of the spending that we have made on the agricultural modernization, again I'm sure Henry will attest to this that what I'm saying is true. We will be self-sufficient again in rice within two years. That is of course, if I'm still president. So that I can build on the policies that gave us such a strong start for change in modernization in agriculture.

In the next six years I pledge a pro-poor agenda. Working together we can and poverty and unite the nation. My pro-poor plan to unite the nation as I have been repeating over this past days consists of six pledges:

First, together with you create a million new jobs every year that I'm in office. And to protect our jobs as has been mentioned by Mike and the other speakers today. We have adjusted upwards the tariffs of 1,000 tariff lines, out of 5,600 total tariff lines, to give our locals a fighting chance against imports. In September last year under my direction, we were one among 21 developing countries which said "no" to a new WTO Agreement until the developed countries reform their system of subsidies for agriculture, and also because we reject the developed countries imposing their advanced standards on our procurement and investment rules. I have also ordered the abolition of several hundred general merchandise bonded warehousing units that in the past serve as bodegas of smuggled goods. And I appointed General Angelo Reyes who brought down our kidnapping rate to its lowest in 11 years, to head the task force against smuggling.

Second pledge, bring clean water to all 45,000 barangays.

Third pledge, bring electricity to 1,500 barangays a year and reduce the cost of electricity to make us even more competitive in this part of the world.

In preparation for this, again anticipating what you will submit to me later, I am prepared to consider industry-government cooperation in addressing some of your concerns about the power sector and the water issue. But I can tell you there will never be a power crisis or a water crisis under a Gloria administration.

Fourth pledge, reduce by half the price of commonly used medicines.

Fifth, build 3,000 new classrooms, grant a college or vocational scholarship to every poor family, and a computer to every school.

Number six pledge, triple loans to the self-employed and small business owners.

These are what we pledge in election. This election is about you, not about me. The people have a right to hear from their candidates what a candidate will do. I am running a campaign on the issues. Not personalities. This election is about solving your problems, not about me. We must move forward together, be united in solving our common problems.

I call on you to hold me accountable for my pledges.

In the meantime, the question now is will simply throw these gains in our strong start out the window – by gambling on inexperienced and untested leadership without a clear vision or platform in the May elections. Or shall we hold hands in a social partnership in consolidating the strong start we have made and building on that strong start and realizing our dream of a vibrant economy able to compete with the best in Asia and provide jobs for our people?

The crucial choice we face today is a choice between moving forward to stability and prosperity, or making a U-turn back to crony capitalism and the midnight kitchenomics of the past.

I trust that you, ECOP. You the leaders and shakers of the business community, You, their partners in the business, Not only in the business but in the labor sector. I trust that you will lead our people in making the right and the responsible choice. And I thank you all for your support.

Mabuhay ang ECOP. Mabuhay ang Pilipinas!

Speech of President Arroyo at the 18th Commencement Exercises of AMA Education System

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 18th Commencement Exercises of AMA Education System

[Delivered at the Araneta Coliseum, Cubao, Quezon City, May 3, 2004]

Maraming salamat Chairman Emeritus King Aguiluz. Napakaganda naman ng mga sinabi mo tungkol sa akin. Maraming salamat. I would also like to greet his son, President Amable Aguiluz IX and the rest of the AMA family. I would like to greet our foreign guests, siyempre iyong ating mga gra-graduate itong hapon na ito, mga magulang nila at mga guro. Narito na naman ako muli sa graduation ng AMA. Suki ako ng ama dahil ilang beses na akong naging commencement speaker. Bakit parati akong balik ng balik dito sa AMA? Mayroon akong tatlong rason na puwedeng maibigay. Unang-una, sentimental family reasons. Ang tatay ko at ang tatay ni King Aguiluz ay matalik na magkaibigan at magkasama sa pamahalaan. The late Amable Aguiluz I, held many sensitive positions in the administration of my father, the late president Diosdado Macapagal. Kasama na rito, siya ang namuno ng COA noong panahon ng tatay ko. Pangalawang dahilan kung bakit ako ay parating nasisiyahan na maging graduation speaker sa AMA ay dahil sa aking paghanga kay Ambassador King Aguiluz.

Si King Aguiluz ang pioneer ng information technology and information technology education sa ating bansa. Wala pa tayo sa information age, twenty-four years ago, 1980, nag-specialized na si King sa computer education. Naalaala ko noong panahon ng 1980, ako ay nag-aaral ng aking Phd sa economics. Inihahanda ko iyong aking doctoral desertation, dahil sa economics grabe iyong mga computations na kailangang gawin. Kailangan ay patunayan mo iyong mga hypothesis sa pamamagitan ng mga formula. Lalagyan mo ng data at statistics para mapatunayan. Napilitan akong mag-aral ng computer programming. Sa pahahong iyon, iyon palang ang application ng computer. Iyong nagsusolusyon sa mga komplikadong formula at saka sa engineering. Ang ginamit ko para gawin iyong aking programming ay iyong keypunch cards ganoon pa ang computers noon. Noong panahong iyon ay wala pang masyadong application ng computer pero nagsimula na si King Aguiluz sa computer science and computer education. Ngayon, twenty-four years later, parang propeta si King. Tayo ay nasa information technology age na. Siguro, puwede nating sabihin na si King Aguiluz ay ang Bill Gates ng Pilipinas. Pero, hindi lamang Bill Gates ang ginagawa ni king para sa akin. Ang laki-laki na rin ng tulong niya sa aking administrasyon sa relasyon natin sa saudi arabia at iba pang mga bansa sa Middle East na kung saan mahigit 1 milyong Pilipino ay nagtrabaho. Noong huling state visit ko na ginanap sa Bahrain, nag-groundbreak pa kami ng computer college ng AMA sa Bahrain na pinatayo sa lupang bigay ng pamilya ng Bahrain.

Ngayong gabi, pagkatapos ng graduation, si King ay tatakbo sa airport para pumunta sa Oman. Isa na namang gagawin sa akin bilang aking ambassador special envoy to the Middle East ang ilalakad niya doon ay tatanggalin iyong ban sa pagtrabaho ng mga Pilipino doon sa sultanate ng Oman. It is no wonder that back here in the Philippines, AMA is the first and only computer school to have been granted university status by the Commissioner on Higher Education. This is the first computer school to receive the ISO Certification of Excellence. At nakita natin kanina na kinikilala ang ating graduates ng ama sa Pilipinas bilang graduate din doon sa Inglatera na kinikilala naman ang kanilang degree sa buong Europe. Indeed, AMA has lived by the high standards of prestige and excellence that has come to be known in all Philippine cities and in many cities abroad. Pangatlong dahilan kung bakit gustong-gusto ko na maging commencement speaker sa AMA ay dahil hanga ako sa inyong mga estudyante ng AMA. Kayo ang kinabukasan ng ating bansa. Kayo ay simbolo ng henerasyon ng information technology.

Iyong napakagandang sinabi ng ating valedictorian kanina, iyong napakagandang kasaysayan ng kanyang buhay. Si Theresa Varsaga, siya ay simbolo ng buhay ng bagong pilipino, pilipino ng ating kinabukasan. Ipinagmamalaki ko siya kasi siya ay isa sa mga scholars na tinawag ni King Aguiluz na “gloria macapagal-arroyo scholars” na hinandog sa inyong lingkod. Ipinagmamalaki ko kayong lahat ngunit sigurado ako na lalong ipinagmamalaki kayo ng inyong mga magulang, kaibigan, guro at kamag-anak. Lahat kami ay umaasa sa maliwanag na kinabukasan para sa lahat sa inyo.

Naalaala ko tuloy iyong aking graduation. Naalaala ko rin ang aking buhay sa kolehiyo. Kanina, pinag-usapan ng inyong valedictorian ang mga magulang, mga guro, mga kaibigan. Ako rin ay maraming mga magagandang alaala sa aking buhay sa kolehiyo lalong-lalo na dahil sa mga matatag na pagkakaibigang nahubog noon na hanggang ngayon ay importante pa rin. Kaya, mga gra-graduate ngayon, gaya ng ipinahayag na damdamin ni Ms. Varsaga, alam kong tatandaan ninyo ang inyong mga kaklase. Sila ang magiging mga kaibigan ninyo habang-buhay, sila ang mananatili sa inyo sa mga hamon ng panahon. And she paid tribute also to your mentors, the teachers or moderators who took time out not only to impart knowledge but values as well. Your teachers, they were the ones who recognized your talents whether in computer, math, writing, singing and they nurtured your talents and skills as well as your values and ethics. Sigurado akong tatandaan ninyo ang inyong mga magulang. Kagaya ng kuwento ni Theresa Varsaga, tinulad nila kayong gawin ang inyong pinakamagaling, naghirap kasama ninyo at humangad ng inyong tagumpay. Lahat ng magulang ay mga silent martyrs para sa kanilang mga anak. Humahangad ng mas mabuting buhay para sa atin kaysa sa kanilang buhay. Napag-usapan natin ang mga magulang, magulang ni King, magulang ko, ang dalawa naming mga tatay. Ang aming dalawang tatay ay magkapit-bahay sa Lubao, Pampanga, kapwa mahihirap. Parehong hinangad sa kanilang kahirapan sa pamamagitan ng edukasyon. Ang tatay ko, kagaya ni Theresa Varsaga ay nakapag-college dahil nakahanap ng scholarship. Si Theresa ay naging valedictorian, ang tatay ko naman ay naging bar topnotcher, doctor of laws, doctor of economics at dahil dito, naging congressman, vice-president, pagkatapos ay pangulo. Iyong pangulo ng inyong alumni association, nakita natin, mamahalin ang kanyang business suit, kasi mataas na opisyal ng Hewlett Packard. Edukasyon talaga ang susi para sa magandang kinabukasan. Ang tatay ko, ang aking inspirasyon tungkol sa pag-aaral, pagtuturo at paglilingkod sa taumbayan. Dahil galing siya sa mahirap na pamilya gaya ng sabi ko, kung hindi siya nakapagtapos ng eskuwela, hindi sana siya nagkaroon ng magandang trabahong nakaabot hanggang sa pagka-pangulo kung hindi siya nag-aral. Kaya, talagang ang edukasyon ay susi sa kinabukasan, susi sa trabaho. Usually, sa karaniwang graduation, ang karaniwang mga naggra-graduate ay iniisip, salamat magulang, guro, at mga kaibigan. Pero, iniisip din. Saan kaya ako hahanap ng trabaho? Karaniwang mga graduating students, ang karamihan ng pag-iisip ay para makakuha ng trabaho. Pero kayo, puwede ninyo nang pag-isipan iyong inyong graduation party. Kasi, siguradong mayroon na kayong trabaho mula sa Convergys. At gusto ko naman sabihin gaya ng sabihin ng Philippine CEO ng Convergys. Ang Convergys ay itinayo sa Pilipinas noong isang taon, 2003, kasama na rin dahil sa pag-alok ko na mag-invest dito ng mga call centers at iba pang foreign investments.

Dahil sa maikling panahon ng aking panguluhan, aking pinagtuunan ng pansin ay lumikha ng maraming trabaho. Malungkot sabihin na bahagi ng kaguluhang namana ko ay dahil noong panahon ni Pangulong Estrada, 150,000 jobs a year lamang ang nalikhang trabaho. Sa aking maikling panguluhan, for the first time in history, taun-taon ay nakakalikha tayo ng higit 1 milyong trabaho. Saan itong mga trabahong ito? Kagaya ng sinabi ni King Aguiluz, marami ay nasa information technology lalo na iyong mga call centers na bahagi ng tinatawag nating industriya ng “business process outsourcing” na siyang espesyalidad na rin ng AMA. Noong hindi pa ako pangulo, iyong mga call centers kagaya ng sabi ni King, isa pa lang I.T part sa Pilipinas. Wala pang 2,000 ang nagtrabaho sa call centers. Ngayon, sa aking maikling panguluhan, aabot na sa 60,000 ang nagtrabaho sa call centers nitong taong 2004, call centers at iba pang business process outsourcing. Kasama na rito iyong 6,000 na manggagaling sa AMA Computer University System. Biruin ninyo sa 60,000 na trabaho itong taon, 10% ay manggagaling sa computer university system, ganoon kagaling ang computer university system, ganoon kasuwerte kayong gra-graduate dito sa 2004. Ang Convergys ay kasama sa mga foreign investments na pumasok noong isang taon na tumaas ng 26% dahil naniniwala ang mga bansa sa ating magagaling na graduates, kagaya ng mga gra-graduate ngayon sa AMA. At dahil sa ating tamang foreign policy kung saan malaki rin ang naitulong sa akin ni King Aguiluz. Kaya, kahit na ako ay mahalal sa susunod na anim na taon, kung gusto ni King, taun-taon ay commencement speaker ako, pupunta ako rito. Kasi, ang kinabukasan ng ating bansa kagaya ng sinabi ko noong 2001, kinabukasan natin ay information technology at kung gusto nating maraming trabaho, kailangan ay tamang foreign policy para maraming foreign investments. Sa dalawang sinabi ko, sa information technology education, sa foreign policy kapwa katulong ko si King Aguiluz. Kaya, ako ay nagpapasalamat sa kanya, tayong lahat ay magpasalamat sa kanya, magpasalamat kayong mga graduating students sa magandang edukasyon at sa magandang trabahong naghihintay sa inyo paglabas sa inyong graduation exercises.

Once more, my congratulations to all of you. Mabuhay ang Batch 2004 ng AMA Computer University System. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Gathering of Mothers for Clean and Honest Elections

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Gathering of Mothers for Clean and Honest Elections

[Delivered at the Miriam College, Quezon City, May 3, 2004]

Cory Aquino na kayo ay narito sa ating panalangin. Sa inyong lahat mga kapwa ina, magandang hapon. Kayong lahat, kumusta na kayo? Sana patnubayan tayo ng Panginoon.

Nagtipun-tipon tayo ngayon dito, tayong mga ina at kababaihang Pilipino sa pamumuno ng ating minamahal na dating Pangulo, si Tita Cory Aquino upang manalangin, ang sabi ng panalangin niya, “prayer for peaceful and credible election”. Panalangin para sa isang mapayapa at kapani-paniwalang halalan.

Isang linggo na lamang at libu-libong mga puwesto ng buong gobyerno ay pagpipilian ng mga botante. Tayong mga ina, tayong mga tagapagbigay at tagapag-alaga ng buhay ang dapat manguna sa pagdarasal para sa mapayapa at kapani-paniwalang halalan. Dahil dito, tayo ang tagapagluwal at tagapagkalinga ng kinabukasan, kaya kagaya ng sabi ni Kris, iyong kanyang anak na si Josh, tayo ay may interest sa kinabukasan ng ating mga anak, tayo ay dapat mangunguna sa magandang dasal sa magandang halalan. Sa halip ng init ng ulo o tulak ng dugo, nasa atin ang hinahon at linaw ng kaisipan upang lutasin ang anumang suliranin.

Napatunayan na nating mga kababaihan na kung sa atin ipauubaya ang pamamahala ng bayan, magiging maayos ang takbo ng ating ekonomiya at lipunan. Narito ang dakilang halimbawa, ang ating role model sa magandang pamamahala ng kababaihan, si Tita Cory Aquino, ang ating role model. Si Pangulong Aquino ay hindi lamang isang bantayog ng katapangan at kagitingan, siya rin ang tumiyak sa kaayusan ng halalang humirang sa kanyang kapalit noong 1992. At ngayon hinimok ko na hindi lang si Tita Cory ang simbolo ng mapayapa at kapani-paniwalang halalan, kung hindi, kayong lahat rin at iba’t ibang mga sektor ng ating lipunan at pamahalaan na tumulong upang tiyakin ang mapayapa at kapani-paniwalang halalan.

Ipanalangin natin ang papel ng mga volunteer, halimbawa kagaya ng NAMFREL at ang tulong ng iba’t ibang mga NGO na nanunumpang sisiguraduhin ang malinis na halalan at nais rin nilang ipakita sa buong mundo na ang demokrasiya sa Pilipinas ay matatag at matibay. Ito ang dahilan kung bakit nag-imbata tayo ng mga foreign observers upang saksihan ang eleksiyon sa Mayo 10 at ilan sa kanila nagmula sa Estados Unidos, dumating sila noong nakaraang linggo para paghandaan ang kanilang gagawin.

Ngayong araw ay inatasan ko ang Secretary of Foreign Affairs, si Delia Albert na isa ring nanay na mag-imbata rin ng mga observers mula sa European Union at ASEAN bilang indibidwal o sa pamamagitan ng kanilang organisasyon.

Hinahamon ko ang oposisyon na samahan ako sa imbitasyong ito para sa mga demokratikong bansa ng mundo na saksihan ang ating election upang ang mga bali-balita tungkol sa panlilinlang at pandaraya ay mapatunayang walang katotohanan.

Sa buong panahon ng kampanya, tiniis ko ang mga paninira at pagbatikos sa akin, upang maiwasan ang anumang kaguluhan at upang manatiling mataas ang antas ng ating kampanya at ipako sa isyu, sa kuwalipikasyon, sa karanasan, sa kinabukasan. Subalit, hindang-hindi ko mapapayagan ang lantarang karahasan na mangyayari. Binubuo ko muli ang Presidential Commission on Human Rights sa pamumuno ng Kalihim ng Katarungan, si Mercy Gutierrez na isa ring ina na masusing imbestigahan ang mga nababalitang pagpatay at pagdukot sa mga miyembro ng ilang mga partido.

Sa kabilang dako naman, tinitiyak ko na ang mga terorista ay hindi madadaig ang mga istriktong hakbang ng siguridad na tinutupad ng mga awtoridad. Ang taumbayan ay dapat manatiling kalmante ngunit alerto patungo sa mapayapa at matagumpay na pagpapatupad ng demokrasya.

Hindi tayo lumaban sa diktaturya at hindi tayo nag-martsa sa dalawang Edsa upang isuko lamang ang ating mga karapatan sa mga nagkakalat ng lagim o magtatanggal ng tiwala sa halalan at demokrasiya. Wala nang mas malaki pang tagumpay sa tagumpay ng tunay na pagpapasya ng taumbayan.

Nawa ay patnubayan tayong lahat ng Panginoon upang matiyak natin na mananaig sa darating na halalan ang tunay na tinig ng taumbayan. Mga kapwa nanay, manalangin tayo, mga kapwa nanay salamat nagka-interest tayo sa kinabukasan ng ating mga anak, ng ating bansa. Mga nanay, manalangin tayo sa kinabukasan ng ating mga anak, manalangin tayo sa mapayapa at kapani-paniwalang halalan.

Maraming salamat at mabuhay tayong lahat.

Message of President Arroyo on the eve of May 10 Elections, May 9, 2004

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the eve of May 10 Elections

[Delivered on May 9, 2004]

Mga Kababayan:

Ako ay nagsasalita sa inyo bilang Pangulo at hindi bilang kandidato sa pagka-Pangulo.

Ang mahabang panahon ng kampanya ay tapos na, halalan na bukas at ang taumbayan ay pagpapasiyahan na ang kapalaran ng ating bansa. Ito naman ang dapat talagang mangyari.

Kaninang umaga nagdaos tayo ng isang sama-samang panalangin para sa pagkakaisa.

Isinantabi na ang mga armas ng pulitika at pinalitan ng palaspas ng kapayapaan. Sama-sama tayong dumalangin upang ang ating bansa ay magkaisa.

Ngayon, nasa pagpapala ng Diyos at sa kagustuhan ng sambayanan ang desisyon kung sino ang mamumuno sa ating bayan.

Mahaba na ang landas na ating tinahak. Tayo ay isang dakilang lahi na may dakilang kasaysayan. Marami tayong mga pagsubok na nalampasan.

Sa EDSA 1 at EDSA 2, ang kapangyarihan ng mamamayan ay lumantad sa mga lansangan upang patatagin ang ating demokrasya.

Nangibabaw ang sambayanan.

Dapat nating ipagmalaki ang ating pinagdaanan. Bilang unang demokrasya sa Asya, nanguna tayo sa rehiyon bilang huwaran ng masiglang demokrasya at lumalagong ekonomiya.

Ang eleksyon ay may kapangyarihang gunitain ang urna ng balota bilang wastong paraan ng pagpapahayag ng ating kalayaang pulitikal. Sa pamamagitan ng mapayapa at kapani-paniwalang halalan, mapairal natin ang dignidad sa ating demokrasya at dangal sa bawat mamamayan na tumutupad sa kanilang tungkuling iboto ang bansang kanilang hinahangad.

Habang ako ay nagsasalita ngayon, libu-libo nating mga kababayan ang nakahandang maging tagamasid ng eleksiyon sa bawat lalawigan hanggang sa bawat barangay, upang tiyakin na ang halalan ay magiging mapayapa at kapani-paniwala. At ngayong gabi, mahigit sa isandaang foreign observers na aking inimbitahan ay naririto na upang tiyaking ang ating eleksiyon ay makikilala sa loob at labas ng ating bansa bilang makatarungan, walang daya at magandang halimbawa ng buhay na demokrasya.

Habang ang lahat ng mga partido ay nagsama-sama ngayong araw upang manalangin para sa kinabukasan ng ating bansa, ako naman ay nananawagan na gampanan ang inyong tungkulin at bumoto sa mapayapang paraan. Ang kapangyarihan ay nas aloob ng urna ng balota, hindi sa karahasan, panggugulo at pananakot sa presinto.

Ang presinto ng botohan ay isang sagradong lugar tulad ng simbahan. Kaya, dapat tayong magbantay laban sa mga nagnanais na tanggalin ang tiwala sa kabanalan ng presinto at ng ritwal ng pagboto.

Nananawagan ako sa bawat makabayang mamamayan na manalig sa kahalagahan ng inyong karapatang bumoto, at nananawagan ako sa bawat taong may karahasang balak na pakaisipin na ang eleksiyon ay para sa kapakanan ng taumbayan at hindi dapat guluhin.

Magkakaroon tayo ng malaya, mapayapa at kapani-paniwalang halalan.

Sa bisperas ng dakilang araw na ito, ako ay nagpapasalamat sa inyong pagtanggap sa akin sa inyong mga tahanan upang pag-usapan natin ang papel na dapat gampanan para manatiling matatag ang ating demokrasya at buo ang ating damdamin.

Patnubayan nawa ng Diyos ang Pilipinas. Maraming salamat.

Speech of President Arroyo on Independence Day

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Independence Day

[Delivered at the Quirino Grandstand, June 12, 2004]

CELEBRATING HUNDRED YEARS OF INDEPENDENCE

Ang halalan ay naganap isang buwan na ang nakaraan.

Nitong mga nakaraang linggo ay taimtim akong dumadalangin na nawa'y pagkalooban ng liwanag ng Diyos hindi lamang ako kundi maging ang taumbayan at ating mga lider.

Patuloy pa rin akong dumadalangin para sa pagkakaisa at pagsasamahan.

At para sa hinihingi ng ating panahon – isang mabilis na bilangan, isang makabatas na kapasiyahan.

Lahat tayo ay naghahangad ang nakaraang halalan ay magdadala sa atin sa kapayapaan at katatagan.

Huwag nating payagan na ang bilangan ay magsilbing pagkakataon upang maantala, hadlangan o ilihis ang demokratikong proseso mula sa tamang landas.

Tayo pa naman ang kinikilalang hiyas ng kasarinlan at demokrasya sa Asya. Subalit ang labis-labis nating pamumulitika at hidwaan ay unti-unting inaagnas ang tibay ng ating bansa.

Tayo ay isang dakilang lahi na may marangal na kasaysayan.

Marami tayong mga pagsubok na nalampasan bilang isang lahi, bilang isang bansa.

Ngayon tayo ay muling nahaharap na lumikha ng kasaysayan at tahakin ang isang naiibang landas.

Dapat nating ipagmalaki ang landas na ating pinagdaanan.

Ngayon, muli tayong nakahanda para sa tagumpay, buong pagmamalaking nakatayo sa sariling mga paa, kasali na naman sa paligsahan, patungo sa isang magandang kinabukasan.

Ang paglago ng ekonomiya ay mataas, ang inflation ay mababa, ang koleksiyon ng buwis ay lumalaki, ang agrikultura ay masagana.

Nakamit natin ang lahat ng ito sa pamamagitan ng disiplina sa pananalapi at matapat na pamamahala – sa kabila ng kawalangkatiyakang umiiralsa mundo.

Ang eleksiyon ay nagbigay sa atin ng pagkakataong ilagay ang bansa para matatag na tahakin ang tamang landas tungo sa pagkakaisa ng sambayanan, pag-ahon sa kahirapan, paghilom ng ating mga hidwaan sa lipunan at relihiyon, at pag-unlad ng ekonomiya.

Sinimulan na natin ang bagong paglalakbay na ito nang ibinalik natin ang demokrasya sa mga tao sa pamamagitan ng kapang-yarihan ng balota at hindi ng lansangan.

Dahil sa mapayapa at kapani-paniwalang halalan, napalakas natin ang dangal ng ating demokrasya at dignidad sa bawat mamamayang bumoto.

Sa ngalan ng ating sambayanan, pinasasalamat ko ang libo-libong boluntaryo sa bawat probinsiya at bawat barangay ng ating bansa na nagtrabaho nang husto upang tiyakin ang malinis, tunay, tapat, at malayang eleksiyon.

Ipinaa-abot ko rin ang aking pasasalamat sa 125 foreign observers na nakibahagi sa ating demokratikong proseso; kinilala nila na ang ating eleksiyon ay malinis at matapat sa pangkahalatan bilang huwaran ng isang buhay na demokrasya.

Buo ang aking tiwala sa ating mga kababayan na gumawa ng tamang desisyon.

Bagamat may ilang walang konsensiyang pulitikong hindi titigil hanggat hindi nila naipapanalo ang eleksiyon kahit sa anumang paraan.

Tunay na nakatayo tayo ngayon sa sangandaan ng kasaysayan.

Mahigit sandaang taon na ang ating mga ninuno ay nakipaglaban upang itayo ang isang bansa na nagpupunyaging makawala sa pananakop ng dayuhan.

Ngayon, nahaharap tayo sa isang bagong siglo na nagsisikap pagsamahin ang lahat ng ating lakas sa isang bagong kalakaran ng mundo.

Ang kolonyalismo ay isa na lamang alaala ng panahong lumipas. Ang Cold War ay wala nang katuturan. Tayong lahat ay bahagi ng sangkatauhang walang hangganan na naghahangad ng kapayapaan para sa lahat.

Ganyan din ang ating bansa.

Kung ating titingnan sa malaking larawan ng mabilis na nagbabagong daigdig, ang paligsahan sa panguluhan na nagaganap sa bulwagan ng ating kongreso ay isang napakaliit na imahe lamang sa pangkahalatang anyo ng mga bagay-bagay.

Sa tuwing makikinig ako sa karaniwang Pilipino, nakakakuha ako ng inspirasyon mula sa kanilang pangarap at pagasa. Palagi kong sinasabi sa kanila, ang eleksiyon ito ay para sa inyo, at hindi sa akin.

Ito ay tungkol sa paglaban sa pagbabago at pagpapabuti ng ating ekonomiya, ng ating bansa at ng ating katayuan sa buhay.

Ang mga mamamayan ang puso at diwa ng ating bansa. Hindi natin sila dapat biguin.

Maraming salamat sa inyong pagdalo upang makipagdiwang sa atin. Maraming salamat sa inyong suporta.

Mabuhay ang Pilipinas!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Vin D' Honneur

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, June 12, 2004]

Their Excellencies, President Ramos, President Aquino; Senate President and Mrs. Drilon; Chief Justice Davide; Archbishop Franco; Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps; Acting Secretary Sonia Brady; Secretary Romulo; other Officials of the Philippine Government; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen:

One hundred six years ago today, the voice of Philippine democracy and freedom was heard throughout Asia and the rest of the world.

Today, we witness a Philippines maturing in its democratic traditions and fully engaged in the global neighborhood.

Today, we are president of the Security Council at the United Nations. In that role, the Philippines has the honor of presiding over the resolution of vital issues surrounding the looming handover of sovereignty in Iraq.

We stand beside the world for democracy and we shall work alongside all freedom-loving peoples to ensure that democracy does not fail.

And speaking of democracy, I thank you all for your support for the recently held elections in our country, in which more than a hundred international observers were involved to see democracy in action.

In those elections, for the first time in history, thousands of overseas Filipinos cast their votes in their countries of residence. The exercise of suffrage even from distant shores is an affirmation of their love for democracy and the political will to move our nation forward.

Our economy is pushing along a steady pace, taking in more substance and (stability from a healthy spirit of enterprise among Filipinos here and around the world.

Growth is high, inflation is low, revenues are on the rise, agriculture is on a roll. We achieved all these with fiscal discipline and good governance — despite an atmosphere of global uncertainty.

Democracy also means the courage and the daring to transcend barriers of race and creed, to clasp hands in solidarity, and to fight for freedom.

Terrorism continues to be a threat to freedom, a threat to the human individual and the human family as it is a danger to the security and progress of nations.

We resist terror by refusing to be overcome by evil, and by overcoming evil with good.

Today, eight million Filipinos in a hundred nations shine in their excellence as workers, entrepreneurs, leaders of industry and governance.

I express my gratitude to all nations hosting the great Filipino worker, whose brand of excellence is unsullied in many fields.

I shall continue to deploy the resources we can muster to keep Filipinos out of harm's way, to protect their rights, and to ensure justice.

Last month, I ordered the immediate repatriation of our Filipino workers from camp anaconda in Iraq. By the end of May this year, 215 OFWs had safely returned to their homes and loved ones in the Philippines.

We are committed to the democratic reconstruction in Iraq and we shall back up this commitment by shepherding a powerful consensus in the U.N. Security Council where, as I said earlier, we have the honor of presiding.

Throughout this century, our common ideals shall live on.

Three years ago, I defined the eight pillars of our foreign policy. These pillars still stand in the crossover to the new millennium.

First — China, Japan and the United States and their relationships, will be an overriding influence in the security and economy of East Asia.

Second — more and more Philippine foreign policy decisions will be driven by the collective security and economic interests of ASEAN.

Third — the International Islamic Community will continue to be important for the Philippines.

Fourth — we recognize the growing importance of multilateral and inter-regional organizations bound by common interests, such as the European Union, APEC and FEALAC.

Fifth — we shall sustain the defense of our sovereignty and the protection of our environment along the strong assertion of our maritime territorial rights under international statutes.

Sixth — our economic growth will continue to recognize the importance of foreign investment.

Seventh — we shall step up, from day to day, the benefits derived from international tourism.

And eighth — Overseas Filipino Workers will keep their critical role in our country's economic and social stability.

I have brought foreign policy to bear on promoting the welfare of the ordinary Filipino. The strength of our foreign policy gives credence to nations to invest in our nation, so that during my administration we have been able to create more than a million jobs a year.

I have brought foreign policy to bear on improving the image, respect and clout of the Philippines abroad in order to aid our quality of life here at home; to secure the rights and privileges of our overseas workers in order to aid their friends and families here at home; to fight for peace in Mindanao with our allies abroad in order to bring stability, unity and prosperity to our Muslim and Christian peoples here at home.

The strength of our foreign policy has strengthened our alliances not only on terrorism but also on the war against crime, local and transnational: drugs and prohibited substances, human trafficking and smuggling, money laundering, and the exploitation of women and children.

I am bringing foreign policy to bear on the fight for unprecedented change that makes us more secure, strengthens our families, and stamps out corruption.

In all my personal diplomatic efforts, I have consciously and earnestly strengthened bilateral relations with a view to opening up world market for Philippine products, promoting investments and tourism and tapping resources of Philippine development assistance.

I am bringing foreign policy to bear on lifting up the poor at home as a result of pursuing economic justice and our rightful role abroad.

Our presidency at the United Nations Security Council is marked and guided by our national interests as well as the common desire of all nations to maintain peace and stability, prevent conflict and promote the rule of law.

Much is still to be done. And you have been steadfast allies and partners, for which we are grateful.

May I propose a toast to all the nations and all the peoples of the world represented here, that we may all continue to reap the peace, prosperity and harmony we all desire.

Mabuhay!

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Cebu Business Month Festival and the 9th Grand Chamber Awards 2004 of the Cebu Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Inc.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Cebu Business Month Festival and the 9th Grand Chamber Awards 2004 of the Cebu Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Inc.

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Waterfront Hotel Lahug Cebu City, Cebu, June 19, 2004]

Thank you.

Thank you. Thank you, Cebu.

Thank you, president go for your introduction. And thank you for inviting me to be here once again with the Cebu business community.

Tonight, I'm here with my husband Mike and my daughter Luli.

I'd like to also greet the people of Cebu City headed by Mayor Tommy Osmeña and Congressman Raul Del Mar, and to thank the congressmen of Cebu for their defense of the Cebu vote in the canvassing. Thank you, Raul.

Ambassador Hwan and our friends from Korea; my Cabinet members who are here tonight, three of them; our three Taipans whom we are honoring tonight: Mr. Lucio Tan, Mr. John Gokongwei, Mr. Andrew Gotianun; the past officials of the chamber; Mr. Han Joon-Ho, chairman of Kepco; officers and members of the Cebu chamber; all the officials of the Philippine government who are here with me tonight; movers and shakers of the Cebu business community, maayong gabii kaninyong tanan.

Earlier, I thank the congressmen, represented here by Congressman Raul Del Mar, for defending the vote of Cebu. But I must thank all of you because there is a vote to defend to begin with.

So let me begin by thanking you all for giving me the largest margin of votes in the whole country last May. Thank you also for your unswerving support for me through the years. You gave me a big vote in '92, '95, '98 and 2001 to my senatorial candidates, and now the biggest vote in 2004. Daghan salamat gikan sa akong kasing-kasing kaninyong tanan.

And I join the leaders of both houses of Congress in congratulating the chairs and members of the canvassing committee for their eminent work in the cause of democracy. A valiant fight was fought and both sides are to be commended. I'm not taking Congress for granted as the proclamation has to be hurdled amidst expected contentious debates. I will wait patiently and let the constitutional process run its course. But I thank the people, especially the people of Cebu for your support, forbearance and vigilance. I thank the large Cebu delegation who sat it out all day and all night for several days and nights in the Congress while waiting for the Cebu vote to be canvassed.

And now that the canvassing is over, the committee report is being prepared for presentation to Congress, let me assure you that we will combine the rule of law and the reconciliation process to consolidate our nation and prepare to meet the tough times ahead. The Filipino people have spoken and the loudest voice came from the province and City of Cebu.

Now it is time for us to give room for unity and solidarity. Politics is over. Let's get together. Let's join hands. Let's work together towards greater prosperity.

And that's why it's so fitting that on the day after the end of canvass, I'm here with you tonight to honor three men whom we can rely on in working for that prosperity. John Gokongwei and Andrew Gotianun are members of the renowned 'Go' clan of Cebu. And Lucio Tan spent many years of his childhood in Daan Bantayan in northern Cebu. Indeed, therefore, they can be considered Cebuaños contribution to the entire Philippine community, and that's why they so very well deserve the grand chamber awards. Congratulations to the three of them!

We can count on them not only to be the leaders of our work towards prosperity in the country as a whole, but also to make Cebu — what I said when I came here during the campaign time — “not only an international industrial center, not only a tourism center of the region, but also a maritime capital and a hub of information technology.

In order to be all these — industrial center, maritime center, tourism center, I.T. center — the most critical infrastructure requirement in Cebu is electric power. That's why a short while ago, my administration provided you, the people of Cebu, with a power generator set in Bantayan. And tonight... Earlier, what was that little ceremony we had? That was an announcement that Korea Electric Power Corporation or Kepco, whose CEO is here with us tonight, will invest 250 million dollars to build a 200-megawatt environment-friendly power plant here in Cebu province. Two hundred megawatts will be sufficient to cover the power requirements of the Visayan islands. But if necessary, Kepco is prepared to expand their plant to 400 megawatts.

Let me tell you a little something about Kepco. I was privileged to attend the inauguration of Kepco, of their plant in Batangas two years ago. And I'm happy to let you know that that Kepco plant in Ilijan, in Batangas has now been cited as one of the twelve most efficient power plants in the whole world. On top of that Kepco is also committed to contribute 200 barangays to my campaign promise of electrifying 1,500 barangays per year. I asked them to prioritize the unelectrified barangays of the province of Cebu.

Vince Perez would also like me to let you know — members of the Cebu chamber, members of the Cebu business community — about other activities we're doing to ensure that Visayas will not have a power crisis. One is the announcement that Transco is beefing up the Leyte-Cebu interconnection upgrading project that will add 200 megawatts to an existing link. He also wants me to announce the Cebu-Mactan interconnection to ensure power for Mandaue and Cebu, and the Cebu-Negros interconnection that will increase the transfer capacity between these islands, make transmission more efficient because we need all these efficient power supply and efficient power transmission in order to truly continue and enhance the role of Cebu as an industrial, tourism, I.T. and maritime center in the country.

To make sure that Cebu will indeed be a maritime center in our region of the world, Larry Mendoza is here to let the Cebu chamber know and the Cebu business community that we will make, we have made the July 1 deadline for compliance with the international ship and port facility security code. Right, Larry?

To comply with this code, Cebu Ports Authority has finished its security plan, 148 Philippine vessels have submitted ship security assessments and 78 of them have been issued international ship security certificates. I made sure that Larry would be here to give you the good news because I have kept my ear open to the anxiousness of our Cebu business community about this compliance.

I listen to the Cebu business community. I listen to the people of Cebu. And I thank you for listening back and supporting me in the last elections.

You know, it's quite significant that Kepco is a Korean company. And it's because Korea is our fastest growing tourism market. And Cebu is a favorite of Korean tourists, especially the honeymooners. So Kepco is doing this not only for the industrial requirements of Cebu, but to make sure that its Korean tourists will be very... Feeling very convenient with no interruption of power in the resorts and other places they go to.

Indeed, Cebu-Bohol compete with metro manila in being the number one tourism destination in our country. You remember that I have announced to you that we will transfer the Department of Tourism to Cebu.

Secretary Pagdanganan is here to let you know that he has already started planning this move. Now I want to let you know that I will also set up no less than a Malacanang in the south right here in Cebu. It's the least I can do because Cebu made me president of the republic of the Philippines.

Thank you, Cebu for making me president. Thank you Cebu for adopting me as your daughter by Sanggunian Panlalawigan Resolution. And thank you also for the political maturity and sobriety you are showing the nation and for standing by me.

Let us stand together for the progress of Cebu. The progress of Cebu is the progress of the Philippines.

Mabuhì kamong tanan!

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Blessing and Inauguration of the Newly Installed Regional Office VII Payroll Services Unit (PSU) of the Department of Education Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Blessing and Inauguration of the Newly Installed Regional Office VII Payroll Services Unit (PSU) of the Department of Education

[Delivered at the DepEd Regional Office, Ecotech Compound Lahug, Cebu City, Cebu, June 22, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary De Jesus and congratulations on implementing the vision of the bill of Congressman Gullas whom I'm also greeting today.

I would like to greet the officials of the province of Cebu headed by Governor Pabling Garcia and also to wish Governor Garcia once again a happy 50th anniversary. I would like to greet as well the other officials of Cebu like Congresswoman Neris soon-Ruiz who's here and Talisay mayor, Mayor Gullas. of course, the people of Cebu City headed by Mayor Tommy Osmeña and Congressman Raul Del Mar who is actually our host congressman in this district. And all the officials of the Department of Education including our very respected and beloved teachers for whom this payroll system is being implemented. And all the appointive officials of the national government who are here with us today.

I am happy to have the opportunity to be here in the first implementation of this regional payroll system. And in honor of the author of the bill on regional payroll systems, Congressman Gullas, the first regionalized payroll today will be given to the teachers of Carcar who belong to his district.

I thank the teachers, as Undersecretary Luz said, this convenient system will hopefully make it easier for the teachers and the DepEd to do your work with greater speed, greater convenience, less expense because teachers bear so much of a burden not only teaching our young the values they need to be good citizens but even counting votes in an election which is so tedious.

I hope that just as we have been able now to computerized and therefore regionalized the payroll system here in region vii, next time we'll be able to computerize elections as well so you won't have such a difficult time.

And speaking of elections, may I take this opportunity once again to thank the people of Cebu for the overwhelming mandate you gave me to be president of the Philippines as well.

The Filipino people were the real winners in this election. And in the name of the people, I reach out for unity, healing and reconciliation. We have had enough of hatred and recrimination for the past months and it's time to mend fences and move forward.

The people not only clamor for statesmanship, they demand it. Let the buoyancy of the moment bring our hearts and minds together in the service of a common and noble cause. Let's heal the wounds of the body politic, unite the country, and fight for change together.

Now is the time for all leaders to stand proud for democracy and to demonstrate that they are worthy of the peoples' trust, durable trust, respect and loyalty.

Sa gihapon kaninyong tanan, akong mga ginigugma nga mga taga-Cebu, maayong buntag ug daghan salamat sa inyong suporta.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Luneta Grandstand

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Luneta Grandstand

[Delivered in Manila, June 30, 2004]

TOGETHER, WE WILL PREVAIL!

This ceremony never fails to impress. It invests the highest official of the land with the chief care of the nation, and the principal responsibility of leaving it better than when she took it in hand.

Let me speak plainly. When I step down six years from now this will be my 10-point legacy. I shall have created more than 6 million jobs, perhaps, even 10 million jobs. Mahigit anim na milyong trabaho, kung maaari sampung milyong trabaho. I shall have supported 3 million entrepreneurs by giving them loans and helping them become good managers. That way, we shall be establishing a deep foundation for a broad middle class.

I shall have developed 1 million hectares, if possible 2 million of agribusiness land by making them productive and transporting their products to the markets efficiently. Everyone of school age will be in school in an uncrowded classroom, in surroundings conducive to learning. Hangad kong makapasok sa eskuwela ang bawat bata. Mayroong sapat na lugar sa silid-aralan at may computer sa bawat aralan.

I shall have balanced the budget by collecting the right revenues and spending on the right things. The network of transport and digital infrastructure on which my government embarked in the last 3 years will have linked the entire country.

Power and water will be regularly provided to all barangays. Kuryente at tubig para sa lahat ng barangay.

Metro Manila will be decongested with economic activity growing and spreading to new centers of government business and community in Luzon, in the Visayas and in Mindanao. The Subic-Clark corridor will be the most competitive international service and logistic center in the Southeast Asian Region.

Elections. Elections will no longer raise a single doubt about their integrity. The electoral process will be completely computerized. Tama na ang manu-manong pagsusuma ng boto. And long before that, peace will have come to Mindanao. All insurgence shall have turned their swords into plowshares. They will have become so absorbed into one society that the struggles of the past will be just a stuff of legend.

The divisive issues generated by EDSA I, II and III will also be just memories shared by friends from every side in those upheavals. Only the lessons of unity, courage and a just closure left alive in their hearts. Dapat wakasan na sa makatarungang paraan ang hidwaang bunsod ng EDSA I, II at III. Higit ang nagbubuklod kaysa naghahati sa atin bilang isang bansa. Masiglang bayan tayo. Buhay ang demokrasya. Maalab ang puso ng sambayanan. Nasa pusod ng pagkatao natin ang sipag at tiyaga, pananampalataya sa Diyos at pagmamahal sa pamilya. Kilala ang Pilipino sa buong daigdig. Kilala sa matapat na asal, marangal na kalooban at matatag na pagkatao. We fight for what we believed in. The last election clearly saw this fighting Filipino spirit at its best. Roco, Lacson, Villanueva and Poe all fought with conviction. If only we could now fight together with the same energy and conviction to preserve our freedoms and advance our nation's progress.

We know now what we can do when we set our minds to it. We know now how well we can unite the people around our respective causes. Can we not work together to rally the nation behind the paramount objective of its salvation? Upang magtagumpay at matamo ang ating pangarap kailangan magbuklod-buklod tayo. Magbaba ng mga hadlang na naghahati sa ating bansa. Magtaguyod ng kabuhayan para sa maralita. Katarungan para sa lahat. Iyan ang saligan ng tunay na pagkakaisa. Our unity as a people will be defined by a strong vision for the nation built on common values of hard work, shared sacrifice and love of country. The unity we seek is not one of conformity but unwavering respect for the rules and institutions of democracy, a modern country founded on social justice enjoying economic prosperity. To achieve a united country, we need to face the deep divisions of our nation squarely, not only the truth but also the solution. That solution must engage all segments of society in a new government of political reform and economic change.

Our nation must embrace a vision of economic opportunity, social cohesion and always and ever democratic faith. I offer my hand and I hope it will be taken with the same faith. Unity is not measured by how many political parties are able to achieve the accommodation of narrow self-interest, rather it is achieved by the harmony of the sincere convictions based on our agreement on the basic requirements for achieving the national good.

Hindi tayo hanay lamang ng mga islang paligid ng tubig kundi bayang pinagdurugtong ng karagatan at nagkakaisa sa mayamang katangian ng iba't ibang bahagi ng sambayanan. Hindi tayo pinaghihiwalay ng sawing pag-asa kung hindi pinagbubuklod ng kaunlaran nating pinapangarap. Our ability to unify will be judged by our ability to come together under a common vision that will erase the divisions that hold us back as a nation. The government must make tough choices, but this I promised they will be tougher on those who have it easy than on those who have it tough already. In this way alone lies unity and not exploitation and division. Dapat kalahok sa nilalayon ng bayan ang pag-asa at pangarap ng pinakadukhang mamamayan nang hindi tayo mabigong lahat.

Imoral ang walang sawang pagtatamasa ng mayaman at makapangyarihan habang paunti nang paunti ang itinitira sa dukha. Imoral ang pagkamanhid at katiwalian ng pamahalaan samantalang kinakapos ang mahirap sa gamot, paaralan, tirahan at tubig. Imoral na pabayaang ang mga kaaway ng ating demokrasya na takutin ang ating mga anak, paralisahin ang ekonomiya at ipahamak ang ating kinabukasan dahil ang pinaka nahihirapan sa lahat ng ito ay ang mga maralita. Kaya narito ako ngayon taglay ang takda ng taumbayan upang pagbuklurin ang sambayanan at makibaka para sa bagong bukas para sa ating lahat.

I come to you today with a mandate to govern by the clear call of the sovereign people. I pledge to bring you a pro-poor agenda that will lift up our poorest brothers and sisters, invest them with dignity imbue them with hope. I pledge to you a government that will live within its means and put every spare peso to real work. I pledge to reduce spending where government does not work and increase spending where a government can make a difference for better. And while I am doing that, I will crack-down on wasteful and abusive officials and influenced peddlers. I pledge to collect taxes mandated by law even as I stop extortion masquerading as tax collection. Pay your taxes; don't pretend to be innocent when you are caught. I will crack-down on tax cheats. And I pledge to do everything necessary to expand the economy, engage it in the world of commerce and advance the interests of our country and our people the world over.

Ngunit para magawa ko ang lahat ng ito, kailangan ko kayo. Hindi ko magagawa ang lahat ng mag-isa. Kailangan ko ang bawat Pilipino upang magka-isa, makiisa at isa-isang lunasan ang mga sugat ng kahapon. Kailangan ko ang bawat Pilipino upang lumakas ang sambayanan para sa mga hamon ng bukas. I challenge our business community to rise to the occasion and embrace selfless nationalism. Invest in our people and our country instead of giving excuses for keeping your money abroad where it cannot put our people to work.

I challenge our young men and women; there is a role to play in the re-creation of our nation, some in honest public service, most in productive private endeavor. Whatever it is you decide to do let the greater part of it be for our country. It is personal patriotism not impersonal free markets that makes nation strong and great.

I look up to Congress to seize this moment in history. It's like it will not come again. All eyes are on us. You have it within your power to transform the nation with laws. Laws that modernize our banking, laws that reform our bureaucracy, laws that strengthen the independence and honesty of our judges, laws that invest in our country and secure to our people the promise blessings of democracy which are a life worth living, liberty worth having, happiness within everyone's grasp.

Now, is our time to march forward as one. I seek your wisdom and I trust in your commitment to the common good, to the swift actions you will take. And finally, I challenge myself, and our government to live up to the highest standards of honesty and competence in the public service.

Araw-araw, gigising ako at kakayod para sa inyo. Gagawin ko ang tama at magaling sa ikakagaling ng lahat at hindi bilang pagmamagaling. I shall make good and I shall do good for the good of all and not just for the cameras. Palibhasa, tapos na ang canvassing for public attention. Inaasahan kong babangon kayo araw-araw upang tiyakin na tutuparin ko ang aking tungkulin bilang pinuno ng walang pagkukubli. Gagamitin ko ang tungkulin ng Pangulo upang itaguyod ang katotohanan at katarungan. Iniaalay ko ang aking buhay at yaman sa pagtupad sa katungkulang inyong itinakda.

Tupdin ninyo ang inyong tungkulin, gagampanan ko ang akin. United, how can we lose? Together, we will prevail! Magsama-sama tayong magsikap. Magkasama tayong magtatagumpay. Mabuhay ang Pilipinas. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Long live the Filipino nation!

My sincerest thanks to all of my beloved countrymen, to our democracy, to God Almighty.

This ceremony never fails to impress. It invests the highest official of the land with the chief care of the nation, and the principal responsibility of leaving it better than when she took it in hand.

Let me speak plainly.

When I step down six years from now this will be my 10-point legacy.

Power and water will be regularly provided to all barangays.

Metro Manila will be decongested, with economic activity growing and spreading to new centers of government, business and community in Luzon, in the Visayas and in Mindanao.

The Subic-Clark corridor will be the most competitive international service and logistic center in the Southeast Asian region.

Elections will no longer raise a single doubt about their integrity. The electoral process will be completely computerized. Enough of the manual counting of votes.

And long before that, peace will have come to Mindanao. All insurgents shall have turned their swords into plowshares. They will have become so absorbed into one society that the struggles of the past will be just the stuff of legend.

The divisive issues generated by EDSA 1, 2 and 3 will also be just memories shared by friends from every side in those upheavals. Only the lessons of unity, courage and a just closure kept alive in their hearts.

We must end with justice the conflict brought about by EDSA 1, 2 and 3. There are more things that bind rather than tear us apart as a nation. We are a vibrant country with a lively democracy and fervor burning in our hearts. Industry, patience, fear of God and love for family are common values we hold dear.

The Filipino is known worldwide for his honesty, honor and dignity. We fight for what we believe in.

The last election clearly saw this fighting Filipino spirit at its best. Roco, Lacson, Villanueva and Poe all fought with conviction.

If only we could now fight together, with the same energy and conviction, to preserve our freedoms and advance our nation's progress.

We know now what we can do when we set our minds to it. We know now how well we can unite the people around our respective causes. Can we not work together to rally the nation behind the paramount objective of its salvation?

To win and realize our dream, we must all unite. We must come together by tearing down the barriers of social division and building up economic opportunity for the poor and establishing justice for all. This is the foundation of genuine unity.

Our unity as a people will be defined by a strong vision of a nation built on common values of hard work, shared sacrifice and love of country.

The unity we seek is not one of conformity but unwavering respect for the rules and institutions of democracy. A modern country founded on social justice, enjoying economic prosperity.

To achieve a united country, we need to face the deep divisions of our nation squarely, not only the truth but also the solution. That solution must engage all segments of society in a new government of political reform and economic change.

Our nation must embrace a vision of economic opportunity, social cohesion and, always and ever, democratic faith. I offer my hand and I hope it will be taken with the same faith.

Unity is not measured by how many political parties are able to achieve the accommodation of narrow self-interests. Rather, it is achieved by the harmony of sincere convictions based on our agreement on the basic requirements for achieving the national good.

We are not merely a group of islands surrounded by water but a country linked by the sea and unified by a rich heritage. We are not an archipelago of false hopes but a nation joined together by the progress we seek.

Our ability to unify will be judged by our ability to come together under a common vision that will erase the divisions that hold us back as a nation.

The government must make tough choices, but this I promise: they will be tougher on those who have it easy than on those who have it tough already. In this way alone lies unity and not exploitation and division. We must include in our national goals the hopes and dreams of our poorest citizens in order for us to succeed.

It is immoral for the rich and powerful to keep taking more and more, leaving the poor with less and less.

It is immoral for the government to grow unresponsive, even corrupt, while leaving the poor without health care, without shelter, without clean water.

It is immoral for the foes of democracy to terrorize our children, paralyze our economy and jeopardize our future as the poorest among us bear the heaviest burden.

Therefore, I come to you today with a mandate from the people to unite the nation and fight for change. I come to you today with a mandate to govern by the clear call of the sovereign people.

I pledge to bring you a pro-poor agenda that will lift up our poorest brothers and sisters, invest them with dignity and imbue them with hope.

I pledge to you a government that will live within its means and put every spare peso to real work. I pledge to reduce spending where government does not work and increase spending where a government can make a difference for better.

And while I am doing that, I will crack down on wasteful and abusive officials and influenced peddlers.

I pledge to collect taxes mandated by law even as I stop extortion masquerading as tax collection. Pay your taxes; do not pretend to be innocent when you are caught. I will crack down on tax cheats.

And I pledge to do everything necessary to expand the economy, engage it deeper in the world of commerce and advance the interests of our country and our people the world over.

But for me to do all these, I need you. I cannot do these alone.

I will need every single Filipino to come together, get involved and help us bind the wounds of the past. I will need every single Filipino to get our nation healthy for tomorrow.

I challenge our business community to rise to the occasion and embrace selfless nationalism. Invest in our people and our country instead of giving excuses for keeping your money abroad where it cannot put our people to work.

I challenge our young men and women: there is a role to play in the re-creation of our nation, some in honest public service, most in productive private endeavor. And finally, I challenge myself and our government to live up to the highest standards of honesty and competence in the public service.

Everyday, I shall get up and work for you. I shall make good and I shall do good for the good of all and not just for the cameras. The canvassing for public attention is over. I expect you to get up everyday to hold me accountable, in the full glare of transparent leadership. I shall wield the power of the Presidency to uphold truth and justice.

I devote my life and treasure to serving your mandate. Do your responsibility and I shall do mine.

United, how can we lose? Together, we will prevail!

We will strive together. We will triumph together.

Mabuhay ang Pilipinas!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Thank you Ric. Thank you for the introduction. And I'd like to congratulate you, I just learned this morning about your very active involvement in environmental conflict resolution. Congratulations, that's a very good work of the BBC in what you've been doing.

Archbishop Lagdameo and the other bishops who are leaders and active members of the BBC, Lani Nañagas and the other lay leaders of the BBC, and I would like to mention some of them Ping Jaime, Joe Concepcion and Tito Carlos. And I would like to mention some of the other leading bishops, Bishop De Dios Pueblos and all of you who are here today.

To all of you, I would like to begin by thanking your flock and your clients in the part of the businessmen and your workers and the people in general, once again, for my new mandate as President.

I have been attending the Bishops-Businessmen's Conference every year. And I think it is very important for me to attend this gathering, because it is important that we remember that whether we are Church members or doing our work in the secular world, everything must be done according to the Divine Will.

This is what I have always tried to do both in my private life and in my public life. During the half-term that I served as President in my last administration, I believe, it was with the great support of the Church and the business community that we were able to make a strong start in fighting for change.

We turned the economy around and stabilized the mess we inherited. We made gains, unprecedented gains in housing, in health care, and we made gains in anti-corruption. Among our gains in anti-corruption in my previous tenure, the World Bank has especially acknowledge our lifestyle checks and our procurement reforms.

I would like to greet Secretary Bert Romulo and the other members of the Cabinet who are here. The Cabinet, the Business Community, the Church, helped me in covering good ground, in good legislation, not only the procurement reforms but also the anti-money laundering law. A good law which we hope to be able to implement properly to get our seal of good housekeeping by using the law to catch the big fish in corruption.

The Bureau of Customs and the Internal Revenue have chalked up steady gains in collection. Much of this, of course, is due to the increased economic activity and increased imports therefore and earnings, but some of it at least its also due to the reduction of graft. But all this was just a downpayment in my previous administration. It was not good enough I am not satisfied and more must be done.

In my inaugural address last June 30, I said, immoral ang pagkamanhid at katiwalian ng pamahalaan samantalang kinakapos ang mahirap sa gamut, paaralan, tirahan at tubig. I also said that I will crack-down on wasteful and abusive officials and influence peddlers.

In that speech, I pledged to collect taxes mandated by law even as I said I would stop extortion masquerading as tax collection. I ask you the businessmen to pay your taxes. I ask you not to pretend to be innocent when you are caught.

I told you I will crack-down on tax cheats. And finally, in that speech, I ended it by challenging myself, and our government to live up to the highest standards of honesty and competence in public service.

Integrity is not only an important aid to the success of a development program. It is part of the good life that we seek for our people. In a wholesome society, there should be integrity in the government and among the people.

I received a letter from Joe Concepcion last Friday, and since he used to be my boss in the DTI, I always listen to what he has to say. In his letter he said: that the general view among the bishops is that graft and corruption is the main cause of poverty in our country.

And as I said in my speech, talagang immoral ang katiwalian habang nagkukulang ang taumbayan sa mga saligang pangangailangan. Iyon nga ang isang pinanggagalingan ng pagkukulang ng taumbayan sa batayang pangangailangan.

Joe Concepcion also said that the anti-corruption campaign in the belief of the Bishops-Businessmen's Conference is indispensable to poverty alleviation and I agree with you.

I will work diligently in the next 6 years to fight corruption. But as I spoke plainly in my inaugural address, I would also like to speak plainly today. I have no illusions, I know that fighting corruption is an up hill battle. Grafters are not easy prey. They have accessed expert legal assistance. They maybe in cahoots with rogue elements in the criminal justice system from compromised law enforcers, prosecutors to judges and justices. That is why I need earnest partners in what could otherwise be a lonely battle against corruption. And I am glad that as we start a new beginning, I can count on your partnership to fight for unprecedented change that stamps out corruption.

I expect the Cabinet to work closely with the Bishop-Business Conference to crack enforceable doable not motherhood anti-corruption programs. Again,along the salient points in Joe Concepcion's letter:

One, the need for specially trained prosecutors and investigators to act on all cases of graft and corruption.

Two, the need to involve all sectors at all levels to scrutinize projects that are willfully made transparent so that the people especially the poor can actually see the benefits accruing to them from governance.

I remember in an earlier BBC meeting that I attended , you were going to form watchdog groups to look at the actual implementation of projects to see whether there were ghosts projects or not, to see whether there was cheating in the specifications or not, I think, that we should revive this.

When I was Secretary of DSWD, I deliberately put the NGOs doing social work as part of the bidding committee for whatever small purchases or big purchases the DSWD was making during my watch. I hope that we can work on that together in this new beginning.

A third item that was pointed out by Joe Concepcion is that the terms of bidding of government funded projects and all other contracts or agreements of government with the private sector should be made clear and available for public scrutiny without exception unless national security is involved. I think, that was part of the controversy of PIATCO, the terms of the original contract were never made public and I would not want that to happen in this administration.

Fourth, in general, ensuring transparency, accountability, participation and communication as a vehicle for good governance.

Today, is an important occasion for communication. Indeed, it is important that we work together for good governance. And I would not want to think that I am the one that can conceptualize everything that must be done. That is why I thank the Bishop Businessmen's Conference, I thank Joe Concepcion for summarizing your thoughts as a body and presenting them as concrete doable proposals. And I would like my Cabinet to work with you on carrying out these proposals.

We have here Secretary Romulo who has been the model of what shall I call the personification of integrity in my administration. We have here Bobie Tiglao who as my Chief of Staff has been overseeing the much applauded by the World Bank lifestyle checks and other measures with regard to working on improving transparency in government, in fact, he heads the transparency group. And so, I am asking them to quarter back our collaboration with the Bishop Businessmen's Conference on these four items that I summarized from the letter of Secretary Joe Concepcion.

It is important that we work together and it is important that we plod and be bold in our resolve. I recognized that graft in government can not be crushed in a single stroke, as a dragon could be killed with a swing of Saint Michael's sword.

I realized that graft cannot be washed away in one sweep like dirty stables with Herculean douse of water. What I have learned is that graft and corruption can be addressed and cured like a fowl infected wound. It must be healed by patient, constant, steady disinfecting, scraping and cleansing. Because graft and corruption in government and in society have been a serious problem for the Philippines for a long time. It tends to aggravate as politicians and officials have increasingly converted politics and public office into a business. In fact, graft and corruption are part of the symptoms of a weak state that they want to transform into a strong Republic. The weak state that our generation of Filipinos have inherited including a large gap between rich and poor, a gap that has been exploited many times for political ends. A weak state includes a political system based on patronage and ultimately corruption to support patronage. But the greatest ally of graft is our own complacency and sense of utility, the belief that graft is undefeatable and therefore not worthy of our fullest sacrifice.

It is no longer the mere threat of corruption that bothers us but the ominous culture of corruption that has gripped our institutions. Changing a culture or eradicating it is by no means a walk in the park or a short trip. It takes time methodical persistence and collective determination to succeed.

When I was waiting for the canvassing to be over, I spent a lot of time in prayer. I spent a lot of time in many convents, but of course I also did governance work. One time in one of the trips that combined my governance work and my cloistered prayer, I mentioned to the nuns in the convent where I was, that I was going to a particular very very poor town, far away town in that province because I was going to bring a package of community development and social programs funded by the World Bank. And the sister told me, Oh! I know that town. That town has island barangays. And those island barangays have no religious instruction. And when the girls moved to the city and worked in households, because they have no religious instruction they are immoral and they steal. Well, I said sister, if they are poor they will enter a household and steal. And if they become more educated they will enter the government and they will also steal. It is part of the problem of our culture.

When I was a young girl we used to teach catechism to the students in the public schools. We were high school, they were grade school, preparing them for their first communion, they would teach catechism surely we had no heresies because the catechism was cut and dried and somehow at least there was that daily or weekly those of thinking about the divinity and therefore about morality. I understand that is been gone for the last 30 years. And I think one of the things we must revive is values formation in our basic education.

So, in that little town with a little island barangays where there is no religious instruction, I instructed one of the government corporations earning surplus money to fund a values formation, education program in the barangay days care centers that I have set up as part of that community development program. That is one set of barangays out of 45,000 barangays in our country. It is a tall order a long long lists and I hope the businessmen and the bishops could put together that values formation program that we can bring back to our youth. So that when they become members of society, whether they work in a household or in a business firm, whether they work in government they will not bring a culture of corruption, not bring a culture of immorality, but rather bring a culture of fear of God and care for the good values of our society. That I think is one of the challenges of the Bishop-Businessmen's Conference, because we must put God back into the secular world.

The confluence of this spiritual realm and the realm of enterprise in this gathering, augurs well for your fitting team. New beginnings, new hope constant faith.

The partnership of the Church, business and government is indispensable in the fight for change. And so, now that I am here once again, but for a new beginning, I look forward to the bishops, the businessmen and our bureaucracy to fight together to change the culture of corruption. Let us make that our mission for the next six years for the good of the future generations of Filipinos.

Thank you and congratulations.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Overseas Employment Summit Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Overseas Employment Summit

[Delivered at the PICC, CCP Complex, Pasay City, July 9, 2004]

OFWs AND GOVERNMENT: TOWARD A BRIGHTER FUTURE

This overseas employment summit is a fitting tribute to our overseas Filipino workers who are truly our contemporary heroes.

I thank them, too. Pwede bang gamitin ko itong pagkakataon sa kauna-unang panahon makipag-usap sa kanila sa pamamagitan ninyo na magpasalamat sa kanila for the overwhelming mandate they gave me in the last elections. This historic mandate from our OFWs for me shall not be treated lightly.

Like all Filipinos, my heart grieves for our countrymen whose lives are at risk in foreign lands. Let's pray for the safe and immediate release of one of our workers who has been abducted in Iraq. Ambassador Roy Cimatú is in Baghdad to do what is humanly possible to secure the release of our kababayan. In the meantime, I have ordered the suspension in the deployment of Filipino workers to that country.

I shall not comment about the situation at this most crucial and sensitive point in time when we have to withhold information on our moves to ensure the safety of the hostage. I ask the media not to fan speculation or hysteria. A higher interest is involved in this matter. I leave it to our Iraq team to do what has to be done in coordination with the transition government of Iraq and our allies to get the hostage home safely.

We have to pursue a worldwide doctrine of security for Filipinos. The government itself must immerse in the task of keeping Filipinos safe from terror in their places of stay and work. I am directing the DFA – Chito is here – and the DOLE to train and deploy more experts in collective security planning for worker communities, and security coordination with foreign governments and transnational firms employing large numbers of Filipinos.

We have to keep ahead of threats to Filipino lives and families everywhere, just as we must create more jobs at home, 10 million jobs in the next 6 years so that they will have reason to stay in the Philippines.

Yet, as we strive to create these jobs, many will still be drawn to greener pastures in other lands. And that is the important work of our recruitment industry. This is an inevitable result of the globalized regime where labor, capital, many resources and many goods move from one frontier to another. This is not necessarily bad, as long as we adhere to common standards of treatment and compensation, and as long as desperation is not exploited for nefarious ends. And that is part of what this summit is all about – how to stop and prevent exploitation of desperation for nefarious needs.

We know the enemy well. You identified them in your declaration – the illegal recruiters.

Duped by sweet talk about dollars to be earned, many innocent Filipinos because of these illegal recruiters ended up in jail or suffered abuse in the hands of unfit employers.

The meeting that I had with Mrs. Hizon and many of you or several of you in the industry and the NGOs occurred soon after three Filipino domestic workers in Lebanon fell to their death while trying to escape from their employers' apartments. And while we're talking here about the industry as a whole, I would like to give the order that their recruiters must not remain scot-free.

How to execute that order? In your declaration you proposed an executive order creating the Presidential Task Force Against Illegal Recruitment. I signed this Executive Order last night. And I asked to be invited to this meeting, the fearless former police captain Reynaldo Jaylo whom I am appointing to lead this Task Force. Jaylo shall hunt down these illegal recruiters and make them pay for their crimes. I am giving you an initial budget of 10 million to do your job.

Well, the law is clear – although I don't know if that's part of what you want to amend because you want to amend the law – but the law says that those who have illegally recruited three or more persons are engaged in economic sabotage, a non-bailable offense that carries with it a life sentence.

Jaylo's Task Force shall also take down the syndicates that issue fake passports, secure fake visas and shepherd our women like cattle to nightclubs.

In your declaration, you identified the last line of defense for the victims of illegal recruitment. As per your declaration, they can be found in major exit points. They can be found in your declaration identified illegal recruiters relying on corrupt officials, immigration or airport personnel, to bend the rules so that undocumented workers could leave.

So I instruct, again, Jaylo – para isa na lang ang kausap ninyo – I instruct, again the Task Force and the pertinent agencies that he will work with to unmask these corrupt airport and immigration personnel. Relieve them and prosecute them.

To strengthen our welfare mechanisms for OFWs – again, part of your recommendations – I am asking the DFA to aggressively pursue negotiations for new bilateral agreements in cooperation with DOLE and the private sector. Hindi ko na babanggitin kung aling mga bansa ang ipapa-prioritize kasi binanggit na ninyo. So, susunod na lang tayo sa inyong panukala sa inyong declaration. We must encourage more diplomatic missions to stamp work visas here in Manila as a preventive measure against human trafficking.

Sinu-sino 'yung mga foreign countries na 'yon? – ay! Nandiyan pala ang mister ni Lita, si Congressman Joey Hizon. Good morning. Hindi ko nakita – sinu-sino 'yung mga foreign missions na gusto natin dito na sila maggawa ng visa. Hindi ko na rin babanggitin ngayon dahil sinabi na rin sa akin ng industry leaders. So, alam na ng DFA kung sino 'yon.

Now, as far as the Foreign Service Office is concern, meron din kayong mga panukala diyaan. So, I again instruct the DFA, represented here by Undersecretary Chito Brillantes, our diplomats' manner of serving the Filipino migrant worker when abroad must be a major consideration in the DFA's promotion system. Our friends in the NGOs and the private sector should be a part of the monitoring system to ensure that our Foreign Service Corps is service-oriented.

May mga bansa ang importante intellectual – negotiations. May mga bansa naman lalo na 'yung napakaraming Pilipino, mas importante 'yung marunong makiramay – 'yung may empathy. So, iba't-ibang bahagi ng talento ang kailangan sa iba't-ibang bahagi ng mga assignment. And for those where there are very big OFW populations, I invite your industry to help monitor the performance of the Foreign Service Corps.

Papano n'yo gagawin ito? Pinanukala n'yo na rin 'yung paraan. I welcome the idea to set up the tripartite consultative council under the DOLE-POEA to institutionalize the OFW and private sector participation in overseas employment. And habang ito ay DOLE, I would like DFA to link up with it because that will be the avenue for officially giving the evaluation on the empathy skills of our foreign service officers who work in areas where there are many Filipinos.

Kasi ayaw ko 'yung mga bulong-bulong. Pupunta sa akin dito, "ay si ambassador walang kwenta 'yan." hindi. Pag-usapan ng industriya para hindi na 'yung isang tao ang nagsasabi sa akin, 'yon pala meron lang s'yang personal na galit, hindi ba? Dapat nandoon sa tripartite council.

Ngayon – again, based on some of your initial feedback to me – hindi lang ‘yung DOLE, hindi lang ‘yung DFA ang importante, ‘yung DOJ, well, lalo na ‘yung Bureau of Immigration. And – wala dito si Al Fernandez, ‘no? – pero I will just ask Pat Sto. Tomas to convey to him my instruction to exempt POEA-accredited foreign principals who visit Manila for job interviews from securing a special work permit.

Kanina meron kayong objection sa decking system. Ewan ko kung ito na rin ‘yon pero nung pinag-aaralan ko ‘yung mga hiling n’yo ang nakita ko ay nagdadaing kayo tungkol doon sa rebates, the industry practice of getting rebates. Hindi ba yon? From accredited OFW medical clinics. Okay ‘yon sa inyo? But this one you’re also objecting but more the decking system. Okay. So, I thought it was because these rebates were adding to the cost of getting a medical certificate. Okay. So ang sasabihin natin doon sa DOH hindi ‘yung rebate kung hindi ‘yung decking system.

So, Pat ikaw na magpapaliwanag sa DOH dahil – ay! Eto nandito ang ating DOH, president ng Philhealth – dahil naiintindihan mo kung ano ibig sabihin nung decking system which pat explained to me just now.

And I would like the DOLE also to come up – eto naman, it takes two to tango, ‘di ba? – I would like the DOLE to come up with a performance appraisal of all licensed agencies. And those who deployed a high number of persons who became runaways afterwards must be closely monitored if not suspended.

The POEA and OWWA should also intensify country-specific orientation seminars for OFWs. Siyempre mga lugar kagaya ng Hongkong, kagaya ng Italy siguro hindi masyadong kailangang matindi ‘yung seminar dahil maganda ‘yung mga batas nila. Pero may mga lugar diyan na talagang kailangan paghahandaan. And that’s why it has to be country-specific, hindi pareho-pareho ang mga batas, hindi pare-pareho ang proteksiyon sa mga manggagawa. Before they depart and until they return, our OFWs must be able to consistently feel government’s presence in their lives. Until they return including the re-integration program.

Kayo, mga industry representatives, you know the ins and outs of overseas employment. And I am glad that we are here today upon your recommendation. I hope this summit gives you and all stakeholders in overseas employment, as mentioned earlier in the speech, a fresh start in building strong partnerships. Pero hindi lang kayo, hindi lang ‘yung gobyerno, hindi lang ‘yung OFWs mismo, hindi lang ‘yung NGOs, dapat kasama rin ‘yung mga anak ng mga OFW. Because the children of OFWs have emotional trauma that should be of great concern to all sectors. Ito rin ang hinihingi ko sa inyo.

Nung aking first term si Pat nag-organize ng mga pamilya ng OFW. Sana sa inyong tripartite council makakagawa din kayo ng mga paraan to be able to reach out to the children of these OFWs.

This fresh start is appropriate and ominous, tough times are ahead at home and abroad. So, let’s take this opportunity to close ranks to build a brighter future for our people.

Maraming salamat. Thank you.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Romulo.

Secretary Pat Sto. Okay — Administrator Angelo ng OWWA; Mrs. Hizon, maraming salamat at ikaw ang nagbigay sa akin ng panukala na magkaroon tayo ng Overseas Employment Summit; Ginoong Josue; mga namumuno, kinatawan ng iba't-ibang mga ahensiya; mga opisina, industriya ng overseas recruitment; mga NGOs; mga piling panauhin, mga minamahal kong kababayan.

Men and women of the Philippine National Police, awardees of different plaques of merits and recognition, government officials, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen. Pati na rin ‘yung mga, ating mga elected officials especially our vice mayors.

Taos-puso kong binabati ang Philippine National Police Anti-Illegal Drugs Special Operations Task Force sa pagdiriwang ng inyong unang anibersaryo at ang ating awardees ngayong araw sa pangunguna ng ating minamahal na Cardinal, His Eminence Cardinal Vidal. Hindi matatawaran ang inyong dedikasyon sa pagganap ng inyong tungkulin na nagbunga ng maraming tagumpay sa napakaikling panahon.

We saw in the presentation of General Aglipay your outstanding accomplishments. Well, I’m want to repeat all of them but just to point out how successful you were in taking down 239 local drug groups since last year. Congratulations for a job well done. Along with these, big manufacturers and distributors have been put out of business. Victims have been rehabilitated. And all these, within the rule of law. The rule of law is indispensable to our fight for change. And I’m glad to be able to come here and face you today with the fresh mandate and the will to confront all crimes and forces that threaten our political and economic security.

We have brought together critical government agencies at all levels to do the job. The interlocking web of drug syndicates cannot withstand your resolve.

The theme of your anniversary, “Ang bayang iwas droga, bida sa matatag nga republika,” points the way indeed to a drug-free Philippines in the year 2010. I instruct you gentlemen and ladies of the task force optimize your consolidated capacity, exploit all opportunities, go beyond traditional approaches but all is within legal bounds, and pursue seamless operations. With what you are doing, let us aim that drug syndicates will live in an environment of zero tolerance. Not only within the Philippines but also internationally, we will secure our shores and borders against the entry of illegal drugs not only by direct interception at sea and in the airports, but by strengthening the vigilance of our local government units.

We must work together with the LGUs and I’m glad to have the vice mayors of Metro Manila here, we must work together to strike at the source of illegal drugs, not only in our localities but also in other parts of the world. We must work together therefore with our friends in China and India. We must also enable, through close operational liaison, to carry out our agreements with Myanmar, Laos and Iran against the illicit traffic in drugs. And I'm glad that you have elicited the support of the NGOs civil society. We will sustain our partnership with civil society in drug abuse, prevention, education and rehabilitation.

Because though driven deep underground, drug laboratories, clandestine laboratories and chemical warehouses continue still to mix the deadly brew, drug dealers and pushers continue still to ply the deadly trade. And we want to have a moral society, we must address this. It is immoral for any society to stand by while the agents of ruin terrorize our youth, undermine our political stability and jeopardize the social order. The root causes of illegal drugs are well known — poverty and corruption — corruption both public and private — as well as other socio-economic dislocations and dysfunctions that rend social cohesion and family life.

In this light, therefore, relevant to our drug campaign is the pro poor agenda that I have pledged to lift up our poorest and provide them with dignity and hope which are the best antidotes to drug abuse.

When I was vice president of the Philippines, I couldn't help but sympathize and feel so sorry for the little streetchildren who were all sniffing the rugby. And I asked them why are you doing that, because they said, one peso worth of rugby can kill the hunger the one peso or more or ten pesos worth of, or twenty pesos worth of a sandwich can do which they cannot afford. It's also important for our youth that they learn again the values that they need to learn nor to live life as adults. I have found out in my going around the country and putting up daycare centers, etcetera that we no longer have religious instruction in schools. When I was in high school, I used to teach religion, catechism to the grade school children. But now that system is gone supposedly in the name of the separation of church and state. I don't think that's the meaning of the separation of church and state.

And that is why, I would like to instruct our department of education to allow NGOs of various religions to teach values formation once again in our public schools.

To all of you, ladies and gentlemen of the task force, you have my full support and I shall continue to drive the momentum you have created.

Congratulations! Salamat at mabuhay! Thank you.

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Fourth State of the Nation Address, July 26, 2004

Fourth State of the Nation Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the 1st Regular Session of the 13th Congress

[Delivered at the Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City, on July 26, 2004]

Thank you Speaker De Venecia; Vice President Noli de Castro; President Fidel Ramos; Senate President Drilon; Chief Justice Davide and the Justices of the Supreme Court; honorable members of the Senate and the House of Representatives; His Excellency Archbishop Franco and the excellencies of the diplomatic corps; members of the Cabinet; commanders of the Armed Forces; officers and members of the Philippine National Police; fellow workers in government; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Angelo de la Cruz is home.

We did it! Congratulations to the Filipino people. [Applause]

Samakatuwid, ipabatid sa lahat, mula sa pook at panahong ito, sa bawat Pilipino, saan man naroroon...

You have a government—indeed, you have a country—that cares. Your life is held more dearly than international acclaim. [Applause] And you have a President who is your friend. [Applause]

Why was Angelo de la Cruz saved? Because I stuck to my oath. Since I first became President in 2001, my declared foreign policy focus has been to protect the vital interests of the nation, including our 8 million overseas Filipinos.

And I cannot apologize for being a protector of my people. [Applause]

The difference of a few weeks, for a pullout already decided on, could not justify sacrifice of a human life.

Sacrificing Angelo de la Cruz would have been a pointless provocation; it would have put the lives of a million and a half Filipinos in the Middle East at risk, by making them part of the war.

Wars are for combatants. As I speak soldiers are being held hostage by communist insurgents, but they don't expect to be released except by the compassion of their captors or a military operation.

We have been fighting the longest-running communist insurgency in history. We have been coming to grips with fundamentalist terrorism long before 9/11.

As the leader of the nation, I say in behalf of the Filipino people to the world: We are strong and principled believers in democracy. Four generations of fighting Filipinos have ceaselessly struggled against totalitarians and terrorists for our freedom, for the freedom of our people and the people of the world.

We have fought the enemy, and taken as good as we gave—not from a safe distance but in close quarters. Bataan and Corregidor, Korea and Vietnam, East Timor, Kosovo, Liberia, to name a few.

When I opted to save Angelo de la Cruz, I was reflecting whether one life should be sacrificed for no pressing reason or saved by accelerating an ongoing pullout.

I did not sacrifice policy to save a human life. I applied policy for that purpose. [Applause] The Philippines has no policy that demands sacrifice of human lives.

Ask yourselves this: If Angelo de la Cruz had been sacrificed, what would change for the better in Iraq today?

Having saved one Filipino from a painful and pointless death, we must seize the unity we attained to improve our government and save our economy. [Applause]

Pinapangako ko ang isang bagong direksyon: mamamayan muna. Ang taong bayan ang pinakamalaki nating yaman. Ngunit madalas, kaunti lang ang atensyon na binibigay sa kanilang pag-unlad. Di tuloy matawid ang agwat ng mayaman at mahirap. Di tuloy mapa-abot sa lahat ang biyaya ng demokrasya.

I want to create economic opportunity at home and abroad. I don't want just one or the other. I want both.

But it can only be done with focus, with energy, and with a common purpose to do that which still lies within our power: put our economic house back in working order [applause] before it finds itself beyond hope of repair and doomed to share the fate of failed nations.

We made a head start in the last three years; we must take bolder steps forward in the next six.

Inflation is under control. The ordinary housewife has been buying her rice and fish at stable prices.

New investments, foreign and, better yet, domestic, were made. Three million more of our people found jobs in the last three years compared to half a million in the three years before that.

Malaki ang pag-unlad sa pangunahing pangangailangan—malinis na tubig, health insurance, tirahan, paaralan, aklat.

We beat down crime, we are breaking up the drug and kidnapping syndicates, we are mopping up the stragglers. The people are safer in the streets, in their homes, and in their places of work.

Every government in the world is at war with its own corruption; we have made lifestyle checks a lethal weapon, and adopted procurement reforms to take the fight forward.

Thanks to many of you, I emerged from the last election with more votes than any previous president. [Applause]

As a further sign of the people's overwhelming support, they gave me a huge majority in Congress, and a huge majority among the local governments.

This is a new day, with a new direction, and a renewed confidence in what we can achieve together.

I am determined to prove that this tremendous show of faith and confidence is well deserved.

The season of bitter partisanship is over; the season of service is upon us all—majority, minority, opposition, administration.

In my inaugural address, I laid down a 10-point agenda for the next six years—not utopia but something practical we can achieve and accomplish on time.

What I did promise was that my term would be the irreversible turning point.

Ipinangangako ko—iiwanan na natin ang ligalig at alinlangan.

At the end of my term, the question will not longer be whether we can compete but where else in the world shall we take an indisputable competitive advantage.

The next six years, we hope, is when we finally get things right.

Is there something about that goal we cannot all agree on? Is there a reason we cannot all work together?

All that's needed is to clear away a couple of obstacles, as I intend to do with five key reform packages: (1) job creation through economic growth; (2) anticorruption through good government; (3) social justice and basic needs; (4) education and youth opportunity; and (5) energy independence and savings.

Tough decisions will have to be made. It's going to be tough love from hereon. It must be tougher on those who've had it easy than on those who've had it tough already.

Humarap din sa problema ang mga karatig bansa.

Ang kanilang sikreto'y pagkakaisa ng mamamayan, suporta sa liderato, at sakripisyo ng bawat isa.

We must bear the pain and share the pain to enjoy the gain together.

Those with more must sacrifice more; those with less are already living lives of self-sacrifice.

Maraming magsasabi: matagal na silang nagsasakripisyo. Ngunit hinihingi ko sa inyo: konti pang sakripisyo.

We must wait with patience for the reforms to work. In the meantime, we must work more productively because world competition is keen and we want the jobs not only to come, but to stay.

Our most urgent problem is the budget deficit. Sometimes it's unavoidable; but chronic deficits are always bad.

Sometimes stamping out deficits too vigorously can slow down growth. But ignoring them can kill the economy. It sends the wrong signal that we don't understand our fiscal predicament and will not help ourselves. This will drive away investments, exacerbate the deficit, and hurt job growth.

Chronic deficits drastically reduce government's ability to make those infrastructure investments that business needs to grow and create jobs.

Chronic deficits mean undertaking less social services that private charity will never provide but without which social war is inevitable. This is a surefire formula for national failure.

So, we must raise revenues, expand government services, yet cut costs—all at the same time. It boils down to right priorities.

The beauty of the fiscal problem is that all the solutions are known, though applying the right ones is tricky.

All the solutions require: toughness on the part of government, cooperation on the part of business, patience on the part of our people, and active support on the part of Congress.

All the solutions require profound, even personal, changes. Politicians will need to focus on the job at hand rather than on their prospect of re-election.

The worst offender yet the hardest to pin down is corporate corruption. Businessmen must adopt an attitude of tax acceptance not tax avoidance. They must stop trying to outrun the tax collector. They must recognize that only a fiscally stronger government can create a more congenial business environment: [applause] greater security, better infrastructure, cheaper credit, more business.

My administration will undertake reforms to raise or save P100 billion. [Applause] I ask Congress to pass eight revenue measures that will collect P80 billion more.

Alam kong maaasahan ko ang mga mambabatas upang burahin ang deficit, upang ituloy ang magandang trabaho, at upang itaguyod ang saligan ng matapat na gobyerno at malakas na ekonomiya.

Investments in infrastructure and energy provide the greatest multiplier effect for growth and job creation. ‘Pag maganda ang imprastraktura gaya ng kalsada, tulay, pantalan, telepono, kuryente, maraming mamumuhunan. Maraming magkakaroon ng trabaho.

We must achieve sufficient, efficient, cheap energy in the near term. We must be sure to have the capacity to meet the demands of a growing economy, so as not to choke off growth when it comes, and thereby lose the opportunities that may not come again.

To this end, NAPOCOR power-generating plants and transmission lines must be privatized but not in a fire sale. [Applause] Delivering electricity to virtually an entire country as big as ours cannot possibly be worth nothing but the trouble of running it.

NAPOCOR’s transmission systems will be sold on terms that recognize the lucrative monopoly of its transmission grid. I ask Congress to pass the Transco bill that already passed the House in the 12th Congress. [Applause]

Our investments in social justice and basic needs are as vital to our future as fiscal and macroeconomic reforms. A nation deeply divided will not stand. And it certainly will not move forward.

Our nation is divided by social and economic faultlines. The tectonic plates may shift with unthinkable consequences.

Some say that is it cheaper to die than to get well from an illness, that it is impossible to find clean water in this rainfall country, that in this modern day and age, part of the country still sits in darkness. This is a terrible waste and a terrible shame.

Kaya ang aking agenda para sa maralita ay hanapbuhay; reporma sa lupa; tubig, gamot, at kuryente; pagtatanggol at kapangyarihan para sa mahina.

In fact, we will now be able to bring clean water to the entire country because during my previous term, you, Congress finally passed the Clean Water Act; because in my first days as president in 2001 I signed the Solid Waste Act—thank you also for giving me that opportunity—and because we are reforesting our watersheds.

The place to start now is livelihood, for 10 million Filipinos.

The growing industrial, service, and microenterprise sectors will take care of some, a thriving agribusiness sector will keep more in the countryside rather than burdening a Metro Manila that is already cracking under the weight of overpopulation.

Land reform covers agrarian reform, urban land reform, and ancestral domain land reform. I ask Congress to qualify farmland as bank collateral and reform the system of urban land titles.

Ang kapangyarihan ng taong bayan ay puso ng demokrasya. Dapat kasama sila sa paghugis ng kanilang kapalaran.

Dadalhin ko ang aking mga reporma sa taong bayan. Ako'y magpapaliwanag, ako'y makikinig.

I have shown that government does care even for a single Filipino life. Now we must show that we care for the rest of the Filipino people, especially the weakest among us. [Applause]

To adapt the words of Adam Smith to the information age, "The greatest improvement in the productive powers of labor seems to have been the effects of a modern education."

Economies have exhausted the possibilities of the division of labor; the way further forward now is a better-educated, more adaptable workforce.

We need to start early. And we need to maintain the highest educational standards. I ask Congress to legislate an extra year of studies not by adding a fifth year of high school but by standardizing what is taught in the barangay day care centers. [Applause]

To expand youth opportunity, we need to focus on technical and vocational education; on strengthening English, Science and Technology, and love of country. [Applause] As I said in my inaugural: It is not free markets but patriotism that makes countries strong. [Applause]

There is a sense in which as a society we have failed the youth in their formative years, in growing up normally and productively, in getting a good education, in learning the habits of honesty and citizenship and civic discipline.

I ask the educational system, the parents, the church, and pillars of the community to help shape a new culture of honesty, patriotism, respect, discipline, and service for young Filipinos. [Applause]

The roof cannot collapse when the value pillars of government and society are sound and strong.

I fervently support the judicial reforms being carried out by our Supreme Court. [Applause]

I ask Congress for a law making the ombudsman's function as effective as Hong Kong's independent commission against corruption. [Applause]

Bureaucratic corruption with its numerous leakages is bad. So is government incompetence. Unlike in the private sector, where the free market punishes mistakes, government incompetence punishes only the public.

We have to tear away layers of inefficiency piled on by decades of political accommodation: redundancy in the national service, waste in local governments, and pointless procedures for getting done what isn't needed anyway to secure the public welfare. Just how does paying off the health inspector banish bacteria from a dirty kitchen? [Applause]

By definition, public services are what the private sector will not do except for a price the public cannot pay.

Where the private sector can do it better and cheaper, government may have to step aside. [Applause] But the watchwords are better and cheaper. Where privatization only spells public pillage, government will continue to do the work. [Applause]

But that's no reason to spare public services from the test of competitive performance.

We will simplify procedures to eliminate fixers.

We will downsize the government, motivate excess employees to become entrepreneurs, and increase the pay of a lean and mean bureaucracy. [Applause]

I have abolished 80 offices under the Office of the President. I will abolish 30 more.

I ask Congress to pass a law on government reengineering, with silver parachutes for redundant offices.

Once we have proved to our people that we have done what we can within the present structure of government, we can move on to changing the system to one that enhances our freedom and flexibility to do more.

I expect that next year, Congress will start considering the resolutions for charter change. [Applause]

No one has a monopoly on right ideas. I am reaching out to all segments of society and all parties, be they with me or against me, to join me in those things that should be everyone's concern because they rise above politics to the level of patriotism. [Applause]

I do not want a honeymoon period after which we can forget the country and go after each other again. I want a marriage not of convenience but of conviction, across the spectrum of parties and groups, encompassing the range of intelligent political, religious, and economic views. [Applause] I want a marriage for at least the life of this Congress. [Applause]

I do not ask for unprincipled support because it will not hold.

I do ask for an end to unprincipled obstructionism because that always succeeds in defeating our best efforts. [Applause]

Tunay nga na kahirapan at kawalan ng katarungan ang sagabal sa ating pag-unlad. Ngunit ang mga nagsusulsol sa mahihirap para manggulo ang sumisira sa ating kinabukasan. [Applause]

So this must stop.

We must put a stop to that.

Every year, every President tells Congress that it is the last chance for meaningful change.

This time I will say it again, adding only that past presidents were right. And that each time change doesn't happen, makes change harder and less likely to happen the next time around.

The time for change is well past due.

This time, let me say, let's just do it!

Mabuhay ang Pilipino!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. [Applause] [Standing ovation]

Mabuhay ang Pilipino! Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Joint Business Meeting (Pre-SONA Gathering)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During during the Joint Business Meeting (Pre-SONA Gathering)

[Delivered at the Rizal Ballroom, Shangri-la Manila, Makati City, July 22, 2004]

Thank you, Secretary Purisima.

President Ramos, Cabinet members, members of Congress, movers and shakers of the Philippine business community, friends from the international community, ladies and gentlemen:

Thank you for joining this Pre-State of the Nation Address gathering.

Sometime ago, Noemi Saludo sent me letter that the business organizations wanted to host a victory party for me. I sent word to her, I am not holding any victory parties. I did not even hold an inaugural ball. I don't want to hit the ground dancing, I want to hit the ground running, and I want you to run with me.

So, instead of a victory party organized by the business community, I asked for this pre-SONA gathering.

I'm here to underscore the notion that the economy must be pulled by the twin horses of market power and political leadership, and it's not a matter of which comes first.

In this last election where many of you supported me — and I'm very grateful for that — I campaigned on a platform of change. So, when you voted for me you voted for change, and change we will have. Change in our economic system. Change in our social structure. Change in our priorities.

I ran on a platform of economic experience, political reform and a commitment to make the investments needed to raise our poor into a new middle-class.

I've been focused this past weeks on developing a comprehensive set of economic proposals that will cut waste, raise revenue and invest in the economy.

With the State of the Nation Address just a few days away, I wanted you, the business leaders, our partners to have a preview of my economic plans, many of which require legislative action.

I'm glad to see that we have two eminent members of the legislature here today. Our number one Senator Mar Roxas, and I see Jesli Lapus' name here so I hope he is somewhere here in the audience.

In any case, at no time in history has passage of legislation and enactment of reform been more vital to the Philippines. Congress I believe has a huge stake in the economic success of the nation. And so do you, of course, the business community.

In the State of the Nation Address, I will lay out a broad agenda of change that will tackle the issues of poverty, corruption, social justice and economic reform. These are issues I championed as a candidate, these are issues I will fight to enact now that I have been elected president.

The agenda will be organized around five reform packages: the job creation and economic growth package; the anti-corruption and good governance package; the social justice and basic needs package; the education improvement and youth opportunity package; and the energy independence and savings package.

Yesterday, at a meeting of public school educators, I introduced my education improvement and youth opportunity package.

Today, I'm here to introduce the job creation and economic growth package. This package of measures when fully implemented will be the most ambitious economic reform agenda in a generation.

The package is driven by a desire to jumpstart the economy and generate sustainable momentum for faster growth. But it will require sacrifice from all to achieve success for all.

It will require painful choices in insisting on the highest performance from government officials but it will also call on the wealthy to pay more taxes. And it will demand the resolve of the nation to tighten our belts as we invest in vital infrastructure necessary to create a stronger nation today and for generations to come.

This package of legislation is just the beginning of a full legislative and public interest consultation process I aim to undertake in the weeks ahead. I do not have a lock on good ideas, and remain completely open to congress, members of the business community and our citizens to have a say in the legislation as it develops.

But let me also be clear: while the consultative process is wide open, it is not open-ended. We must and we will move quickly to involve the best minds and ideas from K-4 and our opposition, to build a package that will move the nation forward but I will not allow in-fighting to derail legislation for the sake of scoring political points.

Everyone is for economic reform until the details are revealed. But let me be clear when I say that we are no longer at a point where we can step back from our responsibility and say "the package is not perfect." It is time to bite the bullet and take fundamental action on the economy. We cannot let the perfect be the enemy of the good. We cannot keep composing a masterpiece that can never be played because it was not a perfect masterpiece. We have to move with what we have very, very quickly.

Now, quite simply, our macro-economic policies will be directed at achieving a balanced budget in 6 years; reducing the consolidated public sector deficit to 3% of GDP, also in 6 years; develop a self-sufficient power sector; create a strong, and stable financial and banking sector; and, promote and generate greater investments, entrepreneurship and trade.

My economic team, who are here today, and I believe that we can do these by focusing on programs that address the following economic imperatives:

- sustaining macro-economic stability
- restructuring and reforming the power sector
- restructuring and reforming the financial sector
- increasing infrastructure , investments, exports and employment.

These imperatives have been drawn to address the core of the diseases that have been plaguing the Philippine economy for generations and threaten to pull our country back into recession, if ignored. The imperatives are directed at eliminating the root causes of our slow economic progress.

In 2003, our GDP was 4.5%; our GNP, about 5%. And we can achieve a 5% GDP growth this year, that is, if we are successful in getting congressional, business and public support for our economic reform agenda. And hopefully, move into a stage where we can achieve 7% for 7 years because that is what will bring us sustainable growth.

Because higher economic growth numbers are achievable and coupled with a reformed investment climate, they will create jobs, attract investors and enable us to meet the goals of my economic development and pro-poor empowerment agenda.

The job creation package addresses one of our most formidable challenges, which is consolidating our government budget. It comprises a set of revenue generation and spending reduction initiatives, both legislative and administrative, that will enable the government to eventually balance its budget and reduce the drain on government finances.

I am asking Congress, as a first iteration in our joint fashioning of our economic agenda, to consider 8 tax measures designed to increase revenues by broadening the tax base and improving collection efficiency. They include:

- A gross income tax system;
- the repeal of the VAT to be replaced by a tax that is simpler to administer and increases compliance;
- a tax on windfall telecom's income;
- increasing tax revenues from sin products and from petroleum products;
- rationalization of fiscal incentives;
- the use of a targeted tax amnesty;
- and the creation of a performance-driven system for revenue agencies.

The administrative actions in this package, on the other hand, are designed to maximize the efficient utilization of the nation's resources, reduce costs, increase specific fees, charges and the duty on petroleum products, and capturing more of the revenue potential of selected government-owned and controlled corporations.

We are targeting measures that can generate additional annual revenues of over 80 billion pesos and administrative reforms to generate savings of over a hundred billion pesos.

As we continue to achieve our fiscal objectives, we aim to create a strong momentum in fostering business confidence, the cornerstone of domestic and foreign investments; and consequently, in generating more jobs for the Filipino worker.

Another integral part of the package, therefore, is to heighten our promotional efforts for trade and investments. And just as important, begin to develop infrastructure through a program coordinated by my team at the Department of Trade and Industry. That initiative is a resourceful innovative approach to managing government resources. We aim to fast track the implementation and approval of ongoing or pipeline infrastructure projects through a new Philippine infrastructure corporation.

By accelerating our infrastructure projects, we achieve three important economic goals: the first is providing vital infrastructure that will open up the arteries of new economic activities in areas outside of metro manila; second, is pump priming the economy through job creation and growth generation in the high-multiplier sectors of construction especially housing, agribusiness and mining; and third, is raising the revenue base of the government.

We want to revitalize the mining sector by enhancing the industry road map, streamlining its start-up process, privatizing government assets in mining, and by intensifying oil and gas exploration.

We also have the goal of positioning the Philippines, particularly Subic and Clark, as the best transport and logistics hub in the region. Distinct advantages that make the Philippines uniquely positioned to flourish quickly in this area are well-known to you but unfortunately not yet to the rest of the world. They include: the country's location at the heart of Asia, the availability of young and skilled personnel, excellent airport and related facilities, and eventually, modern port facilities. We are also fortunate to have the three largest air cargo operators, UPS, FedEx and DHL using the Philippines as their regional hub.

I'm instructing DTI Secretary Purisima also to institutionalize public-private sector partnerships to help us meet our employment and income targets. It will be private sector-driven and government-enabled. We must work together to develop real strategies to unlock the tremendous advantages we have. For instance, in health care services, I.T. services including BPO, as well as logistics and distribution.

I mentioned health care services. Health care services for non-residents is a perfect example of an industry that can and should flourish in our nation. In Thailand, "medical tourism" is already a 600 million-dollar industry. Given our rich base of qualified health professionals and ideal settings such as Subic and Clark, located a short distance from most Asian capitals, we could be in the forefront of a billion dollar industry within a few years.

While we address the requirement for large projects, we also want to mobilize capital at the grassroots level by continuing to promote entrepreneurship and the development of small and medium-scale enterprises. This is central to our struggling working class, who have the entrepreneurial zeal but who need a boost to move into the middle-class. By focusing on this activity, we aim to generate one to two additional jobs per enterprise per year. Mind you, there are currently over 800,000 SMEs scattered all over the country. As such, resources and efforts directed to enlarge them and the micro-enterprises will certainly make a meaningful impact on the economy.

We are also fast tracking the promotion of trade agreements to set the stage for a more competitive Philippines in the external sector. We aim to conclude the Japan-Philippine economic partnership agreement, the Asean pip, and the Asean-China agreements by next year.

In the weeks ahead, I will be introducing other packages to address the remaining economic and social policy imperatives that we must tackle. These packages will comprehensively address the fundamental issues that need to be fixed in a manner that is direct and resolute.

They will include restructuring and reforming the financial sector, promoting social justice and provision of basic needs, and restructuring and reforming the power sector. They will also address the importance of anti-corruption and transparency.

On that last note, let me be clear: economic reform must be accompanied by stringent reforms to force corruption out of the system. It doesn't make economic sense to cut cost and raise revenue if corruption continues unabated. I believe we've made a good start, and my new package as will all my economic reform packages, will address even deeper issues that are necessary to slay the dragon of corruption.

In conclusion, I need your support if we are to get the legislative actions included in these packages passed by Congress. And I also need your support to ensure that the Philippine and international business communities truly understand that these are serious reform measures designed to meet the very serious challenges confronting the economy.

Once the packages have been introduced in Congress, I will be taking our campaign to the people to get their help in promoting early passage of those measures. We hope that we will be able to count on your unwavering support in that process.

I fully intend to use my new mandate to promote the change demanded by the voters. I believe that mandate can create a new economic environment in the Philippines and ensure that all Filipinos are able to enjoy a better quality of life.

You, in this room, in this hall, are the principal leaders of our business community and your view are, therefore, important to a government concerned with building confidence for its partners in its nation building. We are also well aware that confidence emanates from a sound regulatory environment and a vibrant, dynamic economy.

We do not have the luxury of time. We must move forward by making the tough choices, or slip backwards into mediocrity.

I am very hopeful and optimistic that we will unite around social and economic reform once and for all, and make the Philippines the nation we all know it can be.

Thank you.

[Delivered at the DFA Bldg., Roxas Blvd., Pasay City, July 23, 2004]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Albert. And thank you to the whole DFA team for your excellent handling of the Angelo De la Cruz hostage crisis. Our Iraq team, the undersecretaries, assistant secretaries, all the officers and staff of the department, ladies and gentlemen:

Happy anniversary! Indeed, it's a happy anniversary, isn't it?

And it's appropriate that we hold your foundation day on the birth anniversary of Apolinario Mabini. As we all know, he was the conscience of the revolution at a time of great decisions for the future of the Philippine republic. We remember him today as the political mind that help shape the directions of a nascent nation at a time of historic change.

A time of historic change, much like our foreign relations today are immersed in the shifting tides of a challenging world. Much like the challenges that demand sacrifice and courage among Filipino statesmen and leaders of this millennium.

Apolinario Mabini was considered the brains of the revolution that's why he became the secretary of foreign affairs. It requires the best brains in the country. And you, the DFA personnel have in fact time and again over my last three years as president, over the last three weeks, and even during the previous times when I was not yet president that I interacted with you, you have shown, indeed, that you have among the best brains in the country. Congratulations to all of you!

Of course, I couldn't expect you to campaign for me but let me thank those who voted for me in the last elections.

I was elected to protect the interest of the Philippines. And as I declared way back in January 2001 when I first became president, and many of you were in that audience, my foreign policy consists in protecting the interest of the Philippines by responding to eight realities in the global and regional environment. Let us take the opportunity today to update ourselves on those eight realities that shape our foreign policy.

The first reality is that China, Japan and the United States have a determining influence in the security situation and economic evolution of East Asia. I wont talk much about China and Japan today, some other time, but today I'll talk about the third powering East Asia — the United States.

By virtue of its dominant military and economic power, the United States will continue to be an important factor in the affairs of the region and of the nation. Moreover, the Philippines has had enduring historical, cultural and economic ties with the United States.

The last three years in particular saw a close partnership between the Philippines and the United States. I'm pleased that the Philippines and the U.S. embarked on broad security cooperation to address the issues of terrorism, illegal narcotics trade, human trafficking and other transnational crimes. Despite the domestic problems that it sometimes causes, the security alliance with the United States is on the average a strategic asset for the Philippines.

The second reality that shapes our foreign policy is that more and more Philippine foreign policy decisions have to be made in the context of Asean.

Third, the international Islamic community will become more and more important to the Philippines. We saw that in this crisis when we could turn to friends from Syria, from Bahrain, from the U.A.E. to help us through.

Fourth, the coming years will see the redefinition of the role of multilateral and inter-regional organizations in promoting common interests. Organizations like the U.N., the WTO, APEC, ASEM, ASEAN.

Fifth, the defense of the nation's sovereignty, the protection of its environment and natural resources can be carried out only to the extent that we get others to respect our rights over our maritime territory.

Sixth, the country's economic growth will continue to require direct foreign investment.

Seventh, a country like the Philippines can benefit most quickly from international tourism.

And eighth, Filipino overseas will continue to play a critical role in the country's economic and social stability.

The Philippine economy for the foreseeable future will continue to be dependent to a very large extent, at least 8 billion dollars on overseas worker remittances. On the basis of their contribution but even aside from that, on the basis of our nation's humanitarian responsibility to our people wherever they are, our government works doubly hard to strengthen our overseas workers' protection — protection from the deprivations of domestic recruiters as well as of overseas employers, agents and officials, and protection from physical harm.

In response to these eight realities, abroad my focus has been to protect the vital interest of the nation, including our eight million overseas Filipinos. Our government deeply cares for our Filipinos overseas and their families and will do all it can to keep them from harm.

Therefore, on this score, on this day that we have dedicated not only to Apolinario Mabini, not only to the founding of the Foreign Affairs, but on this day for this year thanksgiving for the safe return of Angelo de la Cruz. I would like to address two global realities — the reality of the United States and the reality of overseas Filipinos — as an issue of foreign policy that I know is on the minds of people in the Philippines and around the world. The issue of our recent actions in Iraq to free one of our countrymen from the hands of kidnappers.

The Philippines has felt the pain of terrorism in our country for too many years. Ambassador Cimatú knows that. He once fought those terrorists in our southern Philippines in my behalf. And the people who are most often terrorized are the poorest among us.

I committed our nation to join the fight against global terrorism that erupted as a result of the 9/11 tragedy in the United States. Together with all countries of the United Nations in accordance with the U.N. Security Council Resolution, I did so with the full support of the Filipino people, knowing our people's sense of outrage and sense of justice.

My commitment and the commitment of the Philippines does not waver in the face of terrorism at home or abroad. We fully support the world community and our allies including the United States in our coordinated fight.

Our fight has been successful. Recent captures of terrorists in our shores have continued to decimate their underground cells. And they know their days are numbered, because we will be coming after them every day I am in this office until the last one is driven from our islands and we return to peace, order and stability.

Now, concerning Iraq. You know very well that we committed a small humanitarian and peacekeeping force of originally a 100 persons in Iraq to help in its post-war reconstruction. I'm proud of the work we've done and the courage and determination displayed by our troops and workers there.

But proud as I am of the work they have done, neither do I regret having our contingent come home a few days early to protect our broader interest including the life of Angelo Dela Cruz.

Once the transfer of sovereignty in Iraq was completed last June 28, the mission of our remaining 43-man contingent — not 51 but 43 — was done. They were ready for home when the hostage incident interrupted their departure.

And, after all is said and done, I trust that our allies will come to understand that the Philippines is in a special circumstance. Unlike the U.S., Australia, Bulgaria and other countries, we have 1.5 million Filipinos who live and work in the Middle East and 4,000 are working in Iraq today. This is the largest contingent of private foreign workers in Iraq. These workers are driving trucks, building bridges, providing medical treatment and other vital services to Iraqis in need. The life and livelihood of these courageous OFWs is hazardous enough without the threat of being held as a political pawn in some terrorists chess game.

Arguably, the 4,000 private workers are more valuable to Iraq than the 100 and then the 51 and the 43 peacekeepers, notwithstanding the fine work our troops performed in Iraq. I took that into consideration.

Truck drivers and construction workers are highly vulnerable to terrorist attacks. In contrast, combat troops of other coalition members are by definition not as vulnerable. Our people, our OFWs are vulnerable.

That vulnerability, that threat has now been relieved as a result of anyway previously authorized departure of our Philippine troops. And while we are thankful for the release of Angelo, we must unite around our resolve to wipe out terrorism especially in the Philippines but also in accordance with the international commitments especially under the United Nations and our alliances with our friends abroad. And I have braced the Filipino people for the prospect that we may not always have such a happy ending when it comes to terrorist situations.

To put out of harm's way some 4,000 OFWs in Iraq, we have made representations with the camp commanders, with the coalition camp commanders to enhance security measures for civilian workers inside their bases. We have also advised our workers to stay inside the protection of the camp's they're working in, exercise vigilance and keep in mind emergency procedures. And most importantly, we would continue not to allow deployment of Filipino workers in Iraq outside secured and established bases such as truck drivers, hotel and household staff, workers in oil refineries, power plants and other infrastructures.

Secretary Albert has also issued directives to all our missions bordering Iraq to request their respective host governments not to allow Filipino truck drivers to cross into Iraq from their borders.

Notwithstanding all these, because there are many ways to show our commitment, our Filipino people and our nation remain committed to our friends and allies abroad while remaining true to our convictions here at home. We share the same goal but do not always walk on the same path.

And let me set the record straight on exaggerated claims by critics and in the media that there is a break in our strategic partnership with the United States — that is not the case.

The Philippines and the United States have century's-old bonds, tightened by a common political tradition, by world wars fought together, by tens of thousands of brave soldiers dying in the battlefield of freedom. That is a relationship between two peoples. No president can break that bond because it is held together by a permanent history. Our partnership for a better world is stronger than ever.

Here in the Philippines, I enjoy a cordial and direct relationship with Ambassador Ricciardone and value his role in helping the Philippines. The same is true with our relations with the Bush administration. Therefore, I want to emphasize that our Philippine foreign policy has not changed. It is shaped, it has been shaped, it will be shaped and driven by the supreme interest of the Filipino people.

The Filipino people, the average Filipino people, average people like the family of Angelo de la Cruz — eight kids and a wife — who have to let go of a father and husband to drive for a transnational company halfway around the globe across firefights and trenches.

That we have to bring Angelo home safely is only incidental to my message to his kin and all others in the same grim situation. I have to look them in the eye and tell them I will fight for their better future.

This is not a tale about politics. It is about human survival and diaspora, about poverty and families being torn apart, and our will and resolve to bring food to every table.

And as Angelo has come home, i am not about to bare a bleeding heart to defend my position. What I have said to you today, it won't take more than three lines to summarize, and let me say these three lines:

One, I take sole responsibility.

Two, I make no apologies.

Three, I stuck to my oath.

But I could do that because I have you, the brave men and women of the DFA.

So today, I would like to thank all the men and women of the foreign service, those who held the line of duty in Iraq. And I'm glad some of them are here today, especially those who manned their posts during the hostage saga. Oh, there. I should point here also not only there. There were those who braved great danger to complete the mission, and many more others who assisted the overall effort from the sidelines, from here, from this building, from Malacañang throughout the middle east and here at home. I am grateful to you all.

This afternoon I shall hear mass with Angelo in the grotto of our lady of Rosales in Pangasinan. I have sought our lady's intercession many times and once again this time she interceded for a defining decision in my presidency and in my life as a Filipino.

I thank the Lord and the Filipino on this day of prayer and thanksgiving. I thank the Lord that we have a wonderful brave, heroic and excellent Department of Foreign Affairs.

Happy anniversary! And thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo on the Philippine foreign policy

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On the Philippine foreign policy

[Delivered at the Hotel Intercontinental, Makati City, August 6, 2004]

REITERATING RP's FOREIGN POLICY

Tonight, being a night with overseas media, and because we have so many members of the diplomatic corps here tonight, I want to reiterate my foreign policy. I say reiterate because – oh, Ambassador Adam knows this – way back in early 2001 when I first became president of the Philippines, I already said my foreign policy that, and I say it again, that my foreign policy consists in protecting the interest of the Philippines by responding to eight realities in the global and regional environment. The DFA has heard this two times, but of course they have to repeat my foreign policy, so it's good for them to hear it a third time.

The first reality is that the United States, China and Japan have a determining influence in the security situation and economic evolution of East Asia.

The second reality is that more and more, Philippine foreign policy decisions have to be made in the context of ASEAN.

Third, the international Islamic community becomes more and more important to the Philippines.

Fourth, the coming years will see the redefinition of the role of multilateral and inter-regional organizations like WTO in promoting common interests.

Fifth, the defense of the nation's sovereignty and the protection of its environment and natural resources can be carried out to the extent that it gets others to respect its rights over maritime territory.

Number six, the country's economic growth will continue to require a lot of direct foreign investment.

Number seven, a country as beautiful as the Philippines can benefit most quickly from international tourism.

And eighth, our overseas Filipinos will continue to play a critical role in the country's economic and social stability.

Tonight, I want to elaborate on an aspect of that foreign policy that is now hugging the front pages – our relationship with the United States. As I said this is an issue of foreign policy that is frequently on the front pages these days.

For the region as a whole, the United States continues to be an important factor because of its dominant military and economic power. But for the Philippines the importance of the United States is much more than that. Our people's have enduring historical, cultural and economic ties with America personified by the three million Filipinos who live in the United States. No president can break those bonds because they are held together by a permanent history. They are more than a century-old bond, tightened by common political tradition, by world wars fought together, by tens of thousands of brave soldiers who died in the battlefield of freedom.

After 9/11 those bonds became even stronger. I committed our nation to join the fight against global terrorism that erupted as a result of the 9/11 tragedy in the United States. And I did so with the full support of the Filipino people, knowing our people's sense of outrage and sense of justice.

The Filipino people supported me because the Philippines has felt the pain of terrorism in our country for too many years. And the people who are most often terrorized are the poorest among us. Why then did I bring our Filipino troops back home from Iraq? I trust that our allies will come to understand that the Philippines is in a special circumstance unlike the U.S. or Australia or Bulgaria and other countries. Eight million Filipinos live and work abroad – 1.5 million Filipinos live and work in the Middle East 4,000 Filipinos are working in Iraq today.

The special anguish of Flor Contemplacion for our countrymen and the fact that the Philippines gets one-tenth of its GNP from overseas workers indeed is one of the eight realities of our foreign policy. Many of these workers in fact are in the Middle East. So, that resonates throughout our foreign policy.

The Filipinos in Iraq are the largest contingent of private foreign workers. They are driving trucks, building bridges, providing medical treatment and other vital services to Iraqis in need rather than working in a comfortable, air conditioned office indoors.

The life and livelihood of these courageous OFWs is hazardous enough without the threat of being held as a pawn in some terrorists' chess game. Truck drivers and construction workers are highly vulnerable to terrorists' attacks. In contrast, combat troops of other coalition members are by definition not as vulnerable. They're armed, they stay in camps. Our people, our OFWs are vulnerable. I sought to reduce that vulnerability by authorizing the departure for Philippine troops after the turnover of sovereignty to the Iraqi people last June 28th.

The abduction of Angelo de la Cruz merely accelerated the timetable. But the decision had been made beforehand. I've taken responsibility, I've no apologies, I stuck to my oath but let me emphasize that our people and our nation remain committed to our friends and allies abroad even as we remain true to our convictions here at home.

We enjoy a strong relationship with the Bush administration, and we value its role in helping the Philippines. We share the same goal even if we will not always walk on the same path. There are other perhaps even more meaningful ways to strengthen our strategic relationship with the United States. We shall always work to keep the relationship firm in propelling the common commitment to fight terrorism domestically, regionally and worldwide.

My highest priority for our country is economic growth and job creation – that drives our foreign policy. And to achieve economic growth and job creation, we need to come to terms with the Mindanao problem.

The importance of the Philippine fight against terrorism in Mindanao overshadows whatever the country could contribute to a 'Coalition of the Willing' in Iraq itself. Anything distracting our administration from getting its act together for the struggle for Mindanao needs to be put aside. And if our country is divided over the issue of Angelo de la Cruz, we will not be able to effectively address the Mindanao problem. I took that into consideration.

The 4,000 private workers in Iraq are more valuable to Iraq than the 100 peace keepers, notwithstanding the fine work they have performed in Iraq, they are less valuable. One hundred peace keepers are less valuable than 4,000 civilian workers. On the other hand, there is that struggle for Mindanao, that is of the essence. It is one of the most important fronts in the war on terror. It is a substantive war. It is a substantive struggle, not a symbolic one. Even as I speak now, American troops are in joint training with our own troops in Carmen, North Cotabato. They're also conducting medical services among the poorest communities in Mindanao where the recruits of terrorism are bred.

This partnership between the Philippines and the U.S. to share fighting skills and intelligence as well as humanitarian services has been going on for the past two years. Aid from the United States has also spurred livelihood for former rebels of the MNLF. Ambassador Ricciardone has been instrumental in all these endeavors. Thank you, Frank for your passion. I've been witness to that passion. Ambassador Ricciardone grabs the chance to go with me whenever I go to those difficult places in Mindanao. He was with me along with the other Muslim ambassadors in Abubakar. And because my car was right behind his car, I saw his car gets stuck in the mud in a raging storm, in a raging river with the boulders, big, big boulders threatening to come down anytime to crush his car into pieces. But thank God he was able to get out of that river on time. These gestures cement Philippine-American friendship and they push forward our common fight against terror.

In the midst of all these, we're also sharing intelligence and operational information with our allies in Indonesia and Malaysia to curtail the movements of the JI and the Al Qaeda cells in the region. There is worldwide interest in the terrorists enclave suspected to be building up in Southeast Asia. We are not denying its potential, but we are doing our share in destroying it and our gains have been both far-reaching and deep.

We have crippled the Abu Sayyaf, JI cells are falling one by one, and not one man passes that we are able to get one or two of their operatives and capture their deadly explosives.

Yes, we are committed to the war against terrorism and this is neither lip service nor posturing. Filipino soldiers and Filipino civilians have given up their lives beside Americans in this fight. And this fight will last as long as our shared democratic traditions and love for freedom hold.

This fight is true for the Philippines, it is true for the rest of the world.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 25th Annual General Membership Meeting and Silver Anniversary of the Philippine Rural Electric Cooperatives Association, Inc. (PHILRECA)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 25th Annual General Membership Meeting and Silver Anniversary of the Philippine Rural Electric Cooperatives Association, Inc. (PHILRECA)

[Delivered at the Philippine Trade Training Center (PTTC), Pasay City, August 6, 2004]

Maraming salamat. Maraming salamat, Secretary Vince Perez, President Villena, the first representative of the Electric Cooperatives to the board of NEA; Administrator Bueno from the Career Service; Father Pacquing who continues to advise me on Rural Electrification; Roger Murga, Allan Ortiz, Paul Aquino, Pedrito Bacullo, officers and members of PHILRECA, guests, ladies and gentlemen.

First of all, A Happy Silver Anniversary to all of you! Second, to our awardees, especially the Hall of Famers, the most outstanding electric cooperatives and managers, and the most improved cooperatives, congratulations!

Congratulations! Also for winning three seats through APEC. And thank you for supporting me all the way in the last elections. Also for the steady power throughout the elections, thank you. and because we have not had a system-wide blackout in Luzon for the past two years, congratulations! To the Luzon Electric Cooperatives.

Well, as Father Silva recounted, in my last administration, we made a strong start in the power industry. And among things that we've been able to do together was to bring electricity to more barangays than in any other administration. Again, as Father Silva referred to, in my inaugural address, I said that one of the ten points of my legacy will be to bring power to the entire country. Let's do it together.

In my State of the Nation Address last July, I announced five reform packages: economic growth and job creation, anti-corruption through good government, education and youth opportunity, social justice and basic needs, and energy independence and savings. Before the SONA, I explained to a group of public school educator leaders the education and youth opportunity package. And before a group of business leaders, I explained the economic growth and job creation package.

Today, because I'm before the leaders of your industry, I would like to explain our energy independence and savings package.

Gaya nang sabi ni Vince, ni Father Pacquing, isusulong natin ang pagsusuri at pagsasagawa ng reporma sa kuryente, upang masiguro ang sapat at maka-aasang elektrisidad para sa mga pamayanan at industriya. The reform program was initiated in 2001, the first year of my first administration, with the passage of the Electric Power Industry Reform Act after a delay of seven years. Studies from the Asian Development Bank and Financial and Technical Advisers indicate that we will need an additional 6,000 megawatts of generating capacity over the next 10 years, if we are to avoid shortages. It takes three years lead time from planning to construction to operation to establish a power plant. Thus, our power industry needs to act now.

Studies also showed that we will need 400 billion pesos in order to finance these power plants, as well as the supporting transmission and distribution facilities of which you're part. Historically, the main companies providing these power-related assets have been the Napocor for power generation, the Napocor and now the transmission company for power transmission, and Meralco and you the electric coops for power distribution. All these sectors I inherited in 2001 in bad financial shape. So, the challenge was: how can all of these including you finance our future needs?

In my State of the Nation Address last July, I called on our people to be prepared for tough decisions ahead. Yet tough decisions have already been made by our electric cooperatives for the past two years. I thank you for giving the example. I said tough decisions that includes downsizing the bureaucracy. NEA already made the tough decision, from seven hundred, as Father Silva said, to three hundred sixty. So, we have a lean and mean NEA bureaucracy, a model for the others to follow. As for the coop sector itself, AKELCO, BOHECO II, SAMELCO, CASURECO IV, you made the tough decisions and you made a tremendous turnaround. You did it, congratulations!

Now, we have to deal with the rest.

Take the case of Napocor. In the past six years, Napocor has incurred losses of almost a hundred billion pesos and from several decades debts of almost 10 billion dollars. On top of these losses and borrowings, the level of service of Napocor has been complained about, has been unreliable. And in the course of its operations, we have heard accusations of inefficiency and corruption.

The country cannot forever be saddled by Napocor's debts, nor should our people forever be overburdened with the high cost of electricity. That's why we have to reform the power sector. We have to privatize Napocor's transmission and generation assets. That's why I have asked congress — and I hope our three APEC representatives will help us — I've asked Congress for the immediate passage of the Transco Bill to help us plug the public sector deficit.

The PSALM and the DOE will fast-track privatization of at least 70 percent of the generating assets in Luzon and the Visayas by 2005. I would also like to see the opening of at least ten island provinces to private sector participation.

But the first key to privatization is to create an investment climate that is attractive to both domestic and foreign investors. The second key is to create a privatization process that is transparent and free of corruption.

And I'm also asking for more efficiency among you our electric cooperatives. You've already done so much. Now, I ask you, let's go for a single-digit systems loss percentage by 2010 to make our cooperatives globally competitive. And I know you can do it.

We need a reform package industrywide of energy savings and independence because we've always been dependent on imported energy and therefore vulnerable to the vagaries of global politics and economics, particularly events bearing on oil supply such as war, terrorism and currency fluctuations. We should not be held hostage to these conditions.

I'm, therefore, setting the policy directions and announcing them today towards our goal of energy independence and savings:

First, we need to increase our reserves of indigenous oil and gas. We must develop and actively promote oil and gas exploration.

The PNOC will search for indigenous energy resources. The PNOC-EDC Geothermal Company will ally with the private sector to become a regional geothermal player. And not only that, not only the region, we aim to become the number one producer of geothermal energy in the whole world. In line with that early this year, we launched the first ever international geothermal bid round to invite private sector investment in ten geothermal fields located throughout the country. Several major Japanese companies have already indicated their interest.

PNOC-EC will be upgraded to improve success rates in discovering new oil and gas reserves.

PNOC-Petrochemical Company will be given a key role in the revival and strengthening of the country's midstream petrochemical industry and eventually establish a Naptha Cracker Plant.

PNOC shipping will modernize its fleet through strategic alliances with the private sector to ensure that petroleum products will be delivered to the remotest islands. So, that's the first.

Second, we need to aggressively develop our renewable energy potential such as biomass, solar, wind and ocean resources.

For example, there are opportunities for the development, utilization and commercialization of 16 wind power areas in the country.

Third, we will increase the use of alternative fuels.

We can significantly reduce our dependence on oil imports by making natural gas our fuel of choice. It's not only indigenous, it's also cleaner fuel.

We introduced natural gas in public transport vehicles early this year. Now the government will ensure that natural gas-powered buses will start plying the major routes of Metro Manila up to Calamba, Laguna by 2005.

In 2010, we expect 60 percent of the targetted 1,500 buses plying the Metro Manila route to run on natural gas.

Inactive power plants such as Sucat, Limay, Malaya and the Bataan Nuclear Plant should also be converted into gas-fired plants in 2005 to ensure that additional capacity will be in place in Luzon by 2008, certainly by the time I step down in 2010.

The program for coco-diesel as an alternative fuel for vehicles should be accelerated. I've ordered all government vehicles to use a one percent blend in their diesel requirements.

A nationwide implementation of one to five percent coco-biodiesel to be implemented by 2006 to 2014 would decrease imported fuel dependency by three percent. The use of coco fuel as an alternative to diesel fuel will create more jobs and income for coconut farmers and improve air quality.

I'm proposing that any new taxes on petroleum products shall allocate a portion to develop alternative transport fuel in the country.

Also, in the DBP, there is a hardly used window for loans for the environment. So, I urge the private sector who want to work on the cleaner natural gas and coco diesel to avail of this environment loan in the Development Bank of the Philippines.

Fourth, energy independence also comes in the form of strategic alliances with other countries, particularly our long-time energy partners like Saudi Arabia, our Asean neighbors, China, and our new partner, Russia.

For instance, the Philippines and Thailand are arranging for the use of the former U.S. naval fuel storage facility in Subic such as to make it a regional facility. I think Prime Minister Thaksin and I will both be in China first week of September. So, Vince, arrange for a meeting between us so we can find out how far we've gone on this arrangement.

And finally, number five, we must save on energy through the implementation of strong efficiency and conservation programs.

I'm directing the DOE to spearhead a nationwide energy efficiency and conservation program. All these initiatives will significantly reduce our energy importation that will lead to 60 percent energy self-sufficiency for the Philippines by 2010.

I have laid down this framework upon which future leaders can build. We must brace for more work ahead of us. But I can tell the whole Philippines before our pioneering electric coops, our electric cooperatives have been able to do it. Now, the rest of the country can do it in the future.

To you, coops congratulations!

To the rest of the country, let's follow the good example that our cooperatives have given in the last three years.

Congratulations! And thank you.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Manila Overseas Press Club (MOPC) “The President’s Night”

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Manila Overseas Press Club (MOPC) “The President’s Night”

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Intercontinental, Makati City, August 6, 2004]

Thank you.

Thank you very much. Thank you very much to a man that I like to call my Uncle Max. Yes, because I was still a child and he was meeting with my father, then vice president, opposition vice president Diosdado Macapagal. So, thank you, Max for your support way back for my father when he ran for president.

I’d like to greet also Tony Lopez, MPC president. And I thank Tony for telling me the story of MOPC. I was surprised to hear that MOPC is the oldest press club in the country as Max said. And I said, Tony is that true? Older than the National Press Club? and Tony said, ‘yes, actually the National Press Club is a daughter of the Manila Overseas Press Club.’ Tony said that the press club was founded during the time of General MacArthur by the reporters covering his beat. I think that’s very appropriate to our subject matter tonight.

I would like to greet also Emil Jurado, vice president. And I would like to tell him that I think his observation is very well taken that PAGCOR should not be put under the supervision and control of the Department of Finance. See, I read columnists and I follow their advice when their advice is wise and sound and objective.

Past president Dong Puno, thank you for emceeding tonight. And thank you for having me on previous nights of MOPC. Officers and members of the Manila Overseas Press Club. I’d like to greet some of our distinguished guests who are here. I see the name of Senator Fred Lim. And I would like to greet the members of the diplomatic corps, thank you for being here. Max... When Max brought me in he said, ‘you know, Ricciardone is here.’ what a gesture of friendship, thank you very much for the gesture of friendship.

And of course, the Cabinet members led by Executive Secretary Bert Romulo. As well as the other officials of the Philippine government.

And to you, the MOPC, thank you for once again giving me this opportunity to speak with the overseas press corps. And as I said earlier, it’s also an opportunity to acknowledge once again Max, not only Uncle Max but for his stature in Philippine policy-making. And to let him know that not only do I appreciate his supporting my father when my father ran for president in 1961 but to let him know that in my private surveys, after that ‘Impact’ interview we had shortly before elections, my ratings went up significantly. So, thank you, Max for contributing to my victory in the last elections.

Tonight, being a night with overseas media, and because we have so many members of the diplomatic corps here tonight, I want to reiterate my foreign policy. I say reiterate because — oh, Ambassador Adam knows this — way back in early 2001 when I first became president of the Philippines, I already said my foreign policy that, and I say it again, that my foreign policy consists in protecting the interest of the Philippines by responding to eight realities in the global and regional environment. The DFA has heard this two times, but of course they have to repeat my foreign policy, so it's good for them to hear it a third time.

The first reality is that the United States, China and Japan have a determining influence in the security situation and economic evolution of East Asia.

The second reality is that more and more, Philippine foreign policy decisions have to be made in the context of ASEAN.

Third, the international Islamic community becomes more and more important to the Philippines.

Fourth, the coming years will see the redefinition of the role of multilateral and inter-regional organizations like WTO in promoting common interests.

Fifth, the defense of the nation's sovereignty and the protection of its environment and natural resources can be carried out to the extent that it gets others to respect its rights over maritime territory.

Number six, the country's economic growth will continue to require a lot of direct foreign investment.

Number seven, a country as beautiful as the Philippines can benefit most quickly from international tourism.

And eighth, our overseas Filipinos will continue to play a critical role in the country's economic and social stability.

Tonight, I want to elaborate on an aspect of that foreign policy that is now hugging the front pages — our relationship with the United States. As I said this is an issue of foreign policy that is frequently on the front pages these days.

For the region as a whole, the United States continues to be an important factor because of its dominant military and economic power. But for the Philippines the importance of the United States is much more than that. Our people's have enduring historical, cultural and economic ties with America personified by the three million Filipinos who live in the United States. No president can break those bonds because they are held together by a permanent history. They are more than a century-old bond, tightened by common political tradition, by world wars fought together, by tens of thousands of brave soldiers who died in the battlefield of freedom.

After 9/11 those bonds became even stronger. I committed our nation to join the fight against global terrorism that erupted as a result of the 9/11 tragedy in the United States. And I did so with the full support of the Filipino people, knowing our people's sense of outrage and sense of justice.

The Filipino people supported me because the Philippines has felt the pain of terrorism in our country for too many years. And the people who are most often terrorized are the poorest among us. Why then did I bring our Filipino troops back home from Iraq? I trust that our allies will come to understand that the Philippines is in a special circumstance unlike the U.S. or Australia or Bulgaria and other countries. Eight million Filipinos live and work abroad — 1.5 million Filipinos live and work in the Middle East, 4,000 Filipinos are working in Iraq today.

The special anguish of Flor Contemplacion for our countrymen and the fact that the Philippines gets one-tenth of its GNP from overseas workers indeed is one of the eight realities of our foreign policy. Many of these workers in fact are in the Middle East. So, that resonates throughout our foreign policy.

The Filipinos in Iraq are the largest contingent of private foreign workers. They are driving trucks, building bridges, providing medical treatment and other vital services to Iraqis in need rather than working in a comfortable, air conditioned office indoors.

The life and livelihood of these courageous OFWs is hazardous enough without the threat of being held as a pawn in some terrorists' chess game. Truck drivers and construction workers are highly vulnerable to terrorists' attacks. In contrast, combat troops of other coalition members are by definition not as vulnerable. They're armed, they stay in camps. Our people, our OFWs are vulnerable. I sought to reduce that vulnerability by authorizing the departure for Philippine troops after the turnover of sovereignty to the Iraqi people last June 28th.

The abduction of Angelo de la Cruz merely accelerated the timetable. But the decision had been made beforehand. I've taken responsibility, I've no apologies, I stuck to my oath but let me emphasize that our people and our nation remain committed to our friends and allies abroad even as we remain true to our convictions here at home.

We enjoy a strong relationship with the Bush administration, and we value its role in helping the Philippines. We share the same goal even if we will not always walk on the same path. There are other perhaps even more meaningful ways to strengthen our strategic relationship with the United States. We shall always work to keep the relationship firm in propelling the common commitment to fight terrorism domestically, regionally and worldwide.

My highest priority for our country is economic growth and job creation — that drives our foreign policy. And to achieve economic growth and job creation, we need to come to terms with the Mindanao problem.

The importance of the Philippine fight against terrorism in Mindanao overshadows whatever the country could contribute to a 'Coalition of the Willing' in Iraq itself. Anything distracting our administration from getting its act together for the struggle for Mindanao needs to be put aside. And if our country is divided over the issue of Angelo de la Cruz, we will not be able to effectively address the Mindanao problem. I took that into consideration.

The 4,000 private workers in Iraq are more valuable to Iraq than the 100 peace keepers, notwithstanding the fine work they have performed in Iraq, they are less valuable. One hundred peace keepers are less valuable than 4,000 civilian workers. On the other hand, there is that struggle for Mindanao, that is of the essence. It is one of the most important fronts in the war on terror. It is a substantive war. It is a substantive struggle, not a symbolic one. Even as I speak now, American troops are in joint training with our own troops in Carmen, North Cotabato. They're also conducting medical services among the poorest communities in Mindanao where the recruits of terrorism are bred.

This partnership between the Philippines and the U.S. to share fighting skills and intelligence as well as humanitarian services has been going on for the past two years. Aid from the United States has also spurred livelihood for former rebels of the MNLF. Ambassador Ricciardone has been instrumental in all these endeavors. Thank you, Frank for your passion. I've been witness to that passion. Ambassador Ricciardone grabs the chance to go with me whenever I go to those difficult places in Mindanao. He was with me along with the other Muslim ambassadors in Abubakar. And because my car was right behind his car, I saw his car gets stuck in the mud in a raging storm, in a raging river with the boulders, big, big boulders threatening to come down anytime to crush his car into pieces. But thank God he was able to get out of that river on time. These gestures cement Philippine-American friendship and they push forward our common fight against terror.

In the midst of all these, we're also sharing intelligence and operational information with our allies in Indonesia and Malaysia to curtail the movements of the JI and the Al Qaeda cells in the region. There is worldwide interest in the terrorists enclave suspected to be building up in Southeast Asia. We are not denying its potential, but we are doing our share in destroying it and our gains have been both far-reaching and deep.

We have crippled the Abu Sayyaf, JI cells are falling one by one, and not one man passes that we are able to get one or two of their operatives and capture their deadly explosives.

Yes, we are committed to the war against terrorism and this is neither lip service nor posturing. Filipino soldiers and Filipino civilians have given up their lives beside Americans in this fight. And this fight will last as long as our shared democratic traditions and love for freedom hold.

This fight is true for the Philippines, it is true for the rest of the world.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) Heads of States

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines To the ASEAN Heads of States

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, August 13, 2004]

DREAMING “MADE IN ASEAN”

When you have the first ASEAN-BIS last year in Bali, all of us, the region’s heads of state signed the historic Bali II Accord, which set ASEAN’s directions for the future and addressed our collective economic, security and socio-cultural aspirations – the three pillars of ASEAN regional cooperation.

That summit in Bali last year, and the next one to be held in Vientianne when the leaders convene for the 10th ASEAN Summit, will continue to provide the stepping stones for our formidable aspirations – a single market and production base, enveloped in the free flow of goods, service and investment and skilled labor among us, and the freer flow of capital by the year 2020

I’m happy that you are here preparatory to Vientianne because the commitment to ASEAN is a cornerstone of Philippine foreign policy.

We, the ASEAN governments, have the vision, but we can have all the vision we want but it can only be fulfilled depending on you the private sector.

The private sector is the engine of our region’s unprecedented growth. We the governments have the duty to provide the environment for business to thrive but it is you the private sector that carries out the transactions that actually create wealth.

We’re conscious of this. We are conscious of this in pushing ASEAN. We are conscious of this in the face of global and national crisis like, for instance, today the unprecedented increase in the world price of oil.

Let me go to the price of oil. We’re experiencing this in the Philippines, ASEAN is experiencing this, the world is experiencing this. And so, we are on a round the clock alert on consumer prices. We call on all players – and many of them are here – in the supply and distribution chain of goods and services to try to hold off increases, to calibrate these in smaller increments over time while the government spreads out more extensive safety nets for the most affected sectors if they cannot avoid the price increases. The concerned agencies are exercising strict vigilance against profiteers, but we thank the manufacturers and the traders who are exercising restraint in keeping the lid on prices.

Yes, the private sector must be an integral part of meeting the crises of the moment like the oil price increase the world is suffering as it must be an integral part of our long-term strategic aspirations like ASEAN cooperation and even ASEAN decision-making.

The market has always been the foundation of our economic if not political stability and progress. In this environment, the ASEAN leaders created the ASEAN Business Advisory Council or ASEAN-BAC soon after they agreed to establish an ASEAN economic community. As I said earlier while they created the vision and put the government machinery to work to provide the legal and regulatory framework they realized they needed a partner to make things happen on the ground, and that is the business community.

Governments and business must work together to multiply the purchasing power of our peoples and to create jobs at speed.

In the Philippines, on our part we've already identified two focal sectors in which we will advance with regards to ASEAN – agriculture and tourism.

Putting agriculture at the frontline combines the premium of food and jobs. It attacks poverty squarely. Our department of agriculture has already given the ASEAN-BAC a bill of particulars for consideration but in the end, it's the private business sector that will decide whether you will respond.

Putting tourism beside agriculture is important as a start-off enterprise because people first visit the country in which they later engage in business. Tourism is the midwife of business.

On tourism, we're already up 30 percent from our arrivals a year ago. Thank you, ASEAN neighbors for visiting the Philippines more. But we are driving more investments into the country under the concept of tourism enterprise zones. If we have industrial estates, we now have I.T. estates, we now have tourism estates. And we are addressing the infrastructure demands and encouraging investments in hotel facilities to promote our tourism hubs namely Metro Manila to Tagaytay, Cebu-Bohol-Siargao, Davao, Cordillera, Clark-Subic, Ilocos and Palawan.

Our regional airports are being internationalized. We are providing more seats for direct flights to the Philippines by way of liberalizing the airline industry. And in this, since 9/11 travel has been more regional than long-haul. Intra-ASEAN travel has been a key to our tourism, it is also a key to integration. The Philippines will continue supporting the common effort to promote ASEAN as a single destination. Those long-hauls will only work if they're going to go to more than one destination.

But there is more to the apps than agriculture and tourism. Under the APPS, we plan to identify feasible projects for indigenous ASEAN companies that could grow into ASEAN multinational companies. And Secretary Concepcion told me that they're all set to present the proposals in Laos during the summit.

I look towards that day when we shall enjoy an ASEAN common market, ASEAN brands, and the proud concept of "Made in ASEAN."

The competitive pressures of globalization have set the pace of economic integration, marked by the establishment of production bases where the cost of doing business is lowest, and outsourcing inputs from countries that can supply them at least cost.

Much of the exports of ASEAN like garments and electronics are intended for markets across the Pacific. We can be more competitive if we build a network of industrial zones linked to one another across borders.

Member nations can specialize in their segments of the supply chain and pass on their output to the next stage of production located in neighboring countries.

The Philippines can provide the final link towards the ultimate delivery of consumers across the Pacific and along the coasts of Northeast Asia. We offer Clark-Subic as logistics and service centers.

I'm glad that several items in my economic agenda – including making Clark-Subic as the competitive hub of the region – I'm glad that many of them fall squarely into the mold we are creating for regional integration and prosperity.

Our job creation, for instance, our initiatives are dovetailed in the prime attention placed upon SMEs, which is a very ASEAN concept. In this light, our financial institutions are building expertise and experience in retail lending. We can all team up on this effort to uplift and empower the broad masses of our people.

Another field is education where we can share basic commonalities. I encourage the ASEAN-BAC to consider joint ventures in tertiary and especially in the specialized technical education institutions.

Also, in line with our common concern for decentralization of economic growth, I invite ASEAN consortia to participate in ports development and shipping, as well as basic infrastructure services for power and water supply development in the Philippines.

And I'm aware that in the high end of the housing sector, a number of ASEAN firms are offering their products in the market. But we can initiate commercial ventures that will use ASEAN design and ASEAN materials integrated across the region to provide affordable housing to our citizens.

Yes, all of these are examples to show that ASEAN has created and continues to offer opportunities for economic consolidation. And so I look forward to the Philippine business proposals for ASEAN joint venture, ASEAN supply chain arrangements. I look forward to those proposals in Laos. I look forward to meeting you all in Laos after a fruitful dialogue here.

Once again, welcome to the Philippines! Welcome to Malacañang! Bon appetit.

Speech

During a Dialogue with the 10th ASEAN Business Advisory Council (ASEAN-BAC)

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, August 13, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary Purisima.

Secretary Romulo and other members of the Philippine Cabinet; Mr. Chairman Oudet Souvannavong and the other leaders of the ASEAN Business Advisory Council especially our member, former secretary Jose Concepcion; excellencies of the diplomatic corps; distinguished guests; heads and delegates to the 10th meeting of the ASEAN Business Advisory Council, ladies and gentlemen:

First of all, welcome to the Philippines! And welcome to Malacañang!

Over the period of your existence, you've established your group as a key component in our common endeavor to create an integrated and competitive regional economy in ASEAN. Therefore, I welcome this opportunity to dialogue with you as a group and to Joe Concepcion for making this possible, thank you very much.

I thank all of you and I have noted your agenda and I see that you have a full plate beginning with discussions on your two most important accomplishments to date — the ASEAN Business and Investment Summit or ASEAN-BIS and the ASEAN Pioneer Projects Scheme or APPS.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 51st Annual Convention of the Philippine Sugar Technologists Association (PHILSUTECH)

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 51st Annual Convention of the Philippine Sugar Technologists Association (PHILSUTECH)

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Waterfront Hotel Lahug, Cebu City, August 18, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary Arty Yap.

Chairman Muñoz, President Echaus, all the leaders of the sugar industry, my fellow government officials, Secretary Pagdanganan, Limcaoco, Bunye, ladies and gentlemen.

Maayong hapon sa mga Cebuano. Sa mga kasimanwa sang akon bana nga Ilonggo, maayong hapon naman. And to all the rest of you, good afternoon.

Thank you for inviting me to participate in your discussion of the Philippine Sugar Industry. And thank you for the nice words you said President Echaus. And thank you Arty for calling me a friend of the sugar industry. Let me say that I also appreciate you because the sugar industry has been a friend of mine all these years, thank you.

Indeed, I avoid speaking engagements but I'm making an exception for PHILSUTECH because I want to use this occasion to thank the industry once again for supporting me in '92, '95, '98, my candidates in 2001, and again in the last elections. Salamat gid, daghan salamat, dactal a salamat mga sugar farmers sa Pampanga.

Indeed, the sugar industry is very close to my heart starting from my father whom you supported since he first ran for senator in 1955, '57, '61, '65. And I inherited something from my father — a habit. He in his time and I in my time, we always have two teaspoons of sugar in our coffee. One for us and one for the industry. My father came from a sugar province Pampanga. And he was supported by the sugar provinces all his career including especially Negros Oriental.

My husband's family for generations has derived their income from sugar farms, so I can truly say I am part of the sugar industry.

And so I'm happy that it is before the sugar industry that I am speaking for the first time before any agricultural sector since the may elections. Let me therefore begin not just with sugar but with my strategic policy for agriculture for the next six years.

First, agriculture is a source of jobs for our people. I've said in my inaugural address that we shall try to create six to ten million jobs in the next six years. I also said that one of the major ways to create ten million jobs is to develop two million hectares of agri-business land.

Second, agriculture is a source of food. And because you want to be competitive, we want our people not to spend too much on their food so that they won't always ask for higher wages. That's why we must reduce the cost of rice, corn, sugar and the other crops that we call wage goods through greater productivity and efficient transport and logistics. I won't spend too much time about transport and logistics today but greater productivity, that's where PHILSUTECH comes in. Your work is technology transfer for greater productivity.

I've been with you three times. And in 2001 as a new president I was with you, we crafted a road map for the sugar industry. That road map continues to pave our way forward. In 2001, we released 600 million pesos from the ACEF fund for sugar agricultural competitiveness to build small dams and roads as well as to purchase farm equipment and other things to improve productivity. And I'm glad that this contributed indeed to your productivity.

In 2001, when we were together, you were producing 1.8 million metric tons. Now, you are producing 2.3 million metric tons. Congratulations!

In 2001, when we started our road map, the average sugar production per farmer was 98 bags per hectare. Today, it is 115 bags per hectare. Congratulations! Once again.

One of the reasons is that we're using hybrid cane just as in the more general knowledge of the Filipinos we're using hybrid rice for our rice farmers. We used to import sugar. This year, we exported some 59,000 metric tons and next year, we expect to export around 230 metric tons to our neighbors in Asia on top of our sugar quotas to our traditional markets like the United States.

This outstanding production of the industry during the time, the period of our common road map, was very good for three years. It brought up domestic supply and prices stayed good for three years. But early this year, we all were very sad because then the prices went down. At that time — and this is one reason why he's D.A. Secretary today — I ordered NFA administrator Arty Yap to buy sugar at 700 to 720 per bag to provide temporary relief to the industry. And now, we're having better times. I also issued EO 295 and Memo Order 134 to stop the smuggling of sugar-containing products and to regulate prices.

Today, reports continued to reach me about sugar smuggling. As I said earlier, if the price goes down because of economic factors like competition, well, the answer is to be competitive. But if the price goes down because of smuggling as well then that's not fair and we have to stop smuggling. Reports reaching me indicate that some imported products are being shielded from my directives through the device of tariff reclassification. In fact, the memo that President Echaus gave me earlier, I glanced at it very quickly before I came in, that's one of the issues that you have raised.

So, I am — Arty, tell the Tariff Commission this — I'm directing the Tariff Commission to review its classification regulations for sugar-based imports to ensure that my directives are not circumvented.

I also asked George Jereos, the new commissioner of customs to come here today with me, because I'm ordering the Bureau of Customs to stop the smugglers on their tracks. That's why I brought him with me so that he can hear my instructions in front of the sugar industry. We met earlier in a private meeting. And I also gave special instructions to the Cebu collector of customs, Billy Bibit. And I told them that I shall give them two months to give significant results against sugar smuggling. But that's on the part of customs.

On the part of the sugar industry the challenge is how to remain profitable while consumers enjoy lower sugar prices. The answer is, as I said earlier — productivity and efficient transport and logistics. Our goal is to be able to bring down production costs to be competitive with Thailand, Australia, South Africa or even Brazil. I've instructed PHILSUCOR to help finance the importation of urea as proposed by one of our sugar cooperatives. This should help bring down fertilizer prices which is one of the reasons for the high cost of production.

And in the memo that was given to me by President Echaus, you've asked to have sugar designated as a special product in the Doha round of the World Trade Organization. Without making any promises, I will help you achieve this the best I can, best effort, best effort basis.

And I want to acknowledge not only your gains in productivity, I want to acknowledge your highly relevant efforts to produce ethanol from sugar cane and to generate electricity from boiler steam. These fall squarely in line with our energy independence program. We were trying to draw out every competitive advantage we can get from indigenous sources and technologies. Ethanol as a gasoline additive is both renewable and environment-friendly.

Brazil has taken the lead. And Thailand will soon use a five percent ethanol blend which we are aiming for.

And I told the leaders of the industry, for this purpose, you might want to top the DBP's lending window for loans for the environment.

I also look forward to the groundbreaking in 2005 of the joint venture with the first farmers mill and Talisay bioenergy for a new Bagas-fired boiler. This will generate a surplus of 20 megawatts to be sold to the Central Negros Electric Cooperative. The environmental compliance certificate for this project I understand has just been approved. It's another boon to our people who are struggling for clean, stable power. Congratulations, first farmers!

With all these uses for energy and power coming from sugar. In fact, I hope the day will come when the sugar that I put in my coffee, the two teaspoons, will be just one of the many products coming out of our sugar plantation. I hope the day will come when sugar will be so diversified as far as its products are concerned — food, power, energy — that indeed, will be the dawn, the new dawn of our industry.

I can't forget when I was a brand-new senator, there was the fear that sugar would be a sunset industry. Well, we've worked together all these years — I became senator in 1992, it's 2004 now — twelve years later, we haven't seen the sunset. Let's see the dawn. Let's make sure that our industry will never see the sunset but rather be united. Keep our industry forever in the new sunshine.

Congratulations! And thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Philippine National Police Change of Command Ceremony of PNP Director General Edgardo B. Aglipay, Vice Director General Hermogenes Ebdane, Jr. (Ret.)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Philippine National Police Change of Command Ceremony of PNP Director General Edgardo B. Aglipay, Vice Director General Hermogenes Ebdane, Jr. (Ret.)

[Delivered at Camp Crame, Quezon City, August 23, 2004]

Thank you, Secretary Reyes.

Commander General Razon, give our troops Tikas Pahinga.

My new National Security Adviser, General Ebdane (retired); the new Chief PNP, General Aglipay and the other officers and members of the Philippine National Police; Senator Richard Gordon and the other elective officials; members of the diplomatic corps; General Abaya and the other appointive officials; former chiefs of the PNP; ladies and gentlemen:

I'd also like to take this opportunity to greet former Prime Minister Cesar Virata.

I preside over this turnover ceremony with a deep sense of gladness and satisfaction.

I congratulate Jun Ebdane as he leaves, after being one of the longest serving chiefs of the Philippine National Police. Congratulations! Jun. Jun Ebdane leaves a legacy of many things that he mentioned in his speech but I would like to add what I have observed, he leaves a legacy of the most extensive personal intelligence network in the country. He built this extensive intelligence network not during the two years that he was chief of the PNP but over the many years since his days as junior officer. You've all watched spy movies, James Bond and on. Intelligence networks do not attach to a position, they attach to a person. They come from interpersonal relationships and respect for individual expertise. This vast network that Jun was able to accumulate over his many years in the police is one reason why terrorism has been contained. It is one reason why kidnapping is at an all time low, especially with the excellent teamwork between Secretary Reyes and General Ebdane. This vast network of Jun has also been an important guide for my decisions regarding our peace process especially with our Muslim brothers. Congratulations! Jun for that unique and significant accomplishment of your police career.

I don't want that vast network to go to waste, to fade into the sunset, and so I have asked Jun to carry this legacy to the office of the National Security Adviser where policy and international linkages mark the name of the game. And so it is fitting, as Jun reminds us, that he's also been the leader of the ASEAN chiefs of national police.

I take this opportunity to prod him about his ASEAN connections, develop them some more even as we thank him for his leadership within ASEAN during his tenure as chief of the Philippine National Police.

I take this opportunity to express to our ASEAN neighbors and especially the people of Malaysia the appreciation of the Filipino people for their help in our peace process. I thank Malaysia for facilitating the GRP-MILF peace process, and this has strengthened mutual trust and confidence across the negotiating table. We shall continue to forge peace in Mindanao through third party facilitation, through the deployment of an international monitoring team to seal stability on the ground and the sustained deployment of multilateral development partnerships. All these can also be done through the work of our National Security Adviser. Because of the help of the whole world including our ASEAN neighbors, especially our ASEAN neighbors, things are looking up. Almost all displaced persons have gone home and normalcy has returned under the aegis of tolerance and harmony. We will carry this process, this peace process forward as a major component of our political stability and economic development.

I thank General Aglipay for putting the services of the police at the disposal of our ten-point legacy.

A recent survey of the Bangko Sentral says that business confidence is rising in the post-election period. One of the main reasons for this is our peaceful and credible elections reflecting the true mandate of the people. And let me take this opportunity to thank all of you, the men and women of the Philippine National Police, for your role in the peaceful and credible elections, and your devotion to democracy. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. The other reason for business confidence is that our business leaders, our business community know that we do not deceive the people on the economy. We tell it like it is, because the solution cannot begin unless the problem is recognized.

We are already in the midst of a fiscal crisis and we have to face it squarely — wielding our courage, resourcefulness and solidarity as a people and nation. I appreciate the concern and suggestions being put forth by well-meaning quarters to resolve this crisis, and I take this as a sign of concern that must be translated into deeper public awareness and action.

Average Filipinos are already taking the brunt of sacrifices but we have to gather round again as one national community to take stock of the future. I'm glad that General Ebdane said that he will not require a sacrifice on anyone that he is not willing to do himself, and that is reflective of government policy. This government will not exact sacrifices that we ourselves are not willing to take. It will not exact sacrifices that we ourselves are not willing to enforce among those who can afford it. The pain is imminent but it will be shared fairly and without putting one over the other. I'm working with Congress — and I'm glad we have a number of legislators here today — on the strategies to get the budget in place, and we are hoping to work this out with public support and openness to sacrifice.

I shall rely much on my National Security Adviser to link up law enforcement to the imperatives of economic development and political stability. But I also shall rely just as much on our new chief of the PNP to bring law enforcement to, as Secretary Reyes said, new heights of achievement and professionalism.

General Aglipay comes in with a sterling record of operational achievements especially in fighting drugs and destabilizers.

When he gave his acceptance address, Egay thanked God for answering his prayers, thanked me for appointing him. But I think number three, he should thank General Ebdane for retiring early to give a chance for Egay to be chief PNP.

But I believe that Egay does deserve to be chief PNP. Because I know what must be done in the PNP in the next six years, having the benefit of my experience in the last three years, and I know that Egay will be a good man to start the reforms I want to have in the PNP.

What are these reforms? What are my guidelines for directions for the PNP? When I was campaigning for the presidency early this year, I said that I will fight for unprecedented change that makes us more secure, that strengthens our families, that stamps out corruption. I said that I will change the culture of corruption, stop the scourge of drugs and wipe out terrorism. These were my campaign platform and these are now my marching orders for the Philippine National Police under the new leadership of General Edgar Aglipay.

As Egay said in his speech, we will need more police visibility even as I say we must stake out the syndicates. We must institutionalize that seamless weave of intelligence, enforcement, negotiation. I've seen that in General Aglipay. I've seen him amiably persuading angry demonstrators to back off from the line and head for home. He usually succeeds because he knows how to deal with people. he did that when he was chief of the police in the national capital region, I know he will succeed as head of the whole police.

I mentioned among my campaign pledges, strengthening our families. Of course, the PNP is not the chief institution responsible for strengthening families, but the police can contribute much to this goal by stopping the scourge of drugs which destroys families and helping the out-of-school, out-of-work Metro Manila youth, the Kanto boys, find meaning in their lives. General Aglipay as we all know has been spectacularly successful as head of the PNP Anti-Drug Task Force. Under his leadership the battle against drugs was half won. I'm sure he will even be more successful as head of the whole PNP.

And I ask him not only to work on drug enforcement but also on prevention by helping our out-of-school, out-of-work youth find solace in something meaningful rather than in drugs, rather than resorting to crime to finance their habit. Why do I ask the police to handle this? Because these Kanto boys are tough guys. They are not the youth the type that will listen to our sweet social workers to change their behavior. They respect toughness, they respect machismo, they respect the neighborhood police. Therefore, I want to reiterate an instruction I gave three years ago, that the community relations service of the police should be the one to implement the emergency employment program for the out-of-school, out-of-work metro manila youth under the technical direction of the Metro Manila Development Authority and with the support of the national road board. We will have a program of maintenance of metro manila infrastructure through labor-intensive rather than capital-intensive methods and direct the work opportunities towards the out-of-school, out-of-work youth. The neighborhood cop will be the main point, will be the frontliner for these young people for this project.

I said that the youth respect the police when the policeman they come across is tough but honest. And I'm sad when I see reports that people still perceive the police to be one of the five most corrupt institutions in our country. We must address this through punitive and preventive actions. As Aglipay said, put Kotong' cops in jail. Not only that, transfer superior officers who have become too chummy with their subordinates to be able to discipline them. and also stop the practice of allowances from vice lords. And also propagate values formation within the institution.

Finally, as we have been able to contain and control terrorism, the marching orders for the Philippine National Police under this new administration are — wipe out terrorism. I'm sure Egay will be equal to this task, with his lawyer's ability to put together an organized framework of action as I have seen him do in many assignments I've given him to handle, including the assignment to solve the terrorist bombings in Davao that have now become — thank God! — and hopefully to continue a thing of the past.

Yes, these are the marching orders of the Philippine National Police under my new administration. To be able to accomplish them we need to consolidate and integrate law enforcement, provide linkages between law enforcement and all areas of national security, strengthen criminal justice and place it with the overall framework of economic and political stability. I believe having a lawyer, like General Aglipay, at the helm of the Philippine National Police can do much in professionalization and institutionalization of our reforms.

For this reason, I am extending the term of the PNP chief to serve for a period of at least six months. this will enable him to get our plans off the ground, institutionalize our gains in law enforcement, and have a strong start in the things that have to be done to truly professionalize our police force.

To reiterate, ladies and gentlemen of the Philippine National Police these are my marching orders: make us more secure, help strengthen our families, stamp out the culture of corruption, stop the scourge of drugs, wipe out terrorism. I have confidence in the able leadership of General Aglipay to carry these orders out.

Congratulations! Egay.

And thank you to all of you.

Speech of President Arroyo at a conference hosted by the People's Republic of China

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At a conference hosted by the People's Republic of China

[Delivered at the Beijing Hotel, People's Republic of China, September 3, 2004]

ON ASEAN EXCHANGE, COOPERATION AND DEVELOPMENT

We meet here in the great People's Republic of China, the new and giant market economy that is surely a determining influence in the economic evolution of Asia. We meet today, emulating China, our host country. We meet in the spirit of the market, the spirit of economic democracy, the spirit of openness to one another, the spirit that will build prosperity and end conflict, and the spirit that will bring about change and win the battle against poverty in our Asian region.

We thank China, especially the Communist Party of China, for the formidable and splendid preparations for this conference, not only in its amenities but in the representation and attendance by the officials of this great country. This hosting by the Communist Party of China cannot but enhance the international status of "the emerging economic center of gravity of Asia and the world."

China is the largest growing economy in the world. Its entry into the World Trade Organization and its determined emergence as a market economy makes it a major export sector for all our various economies in Asia and in the world for that matter.

But this hosting by the Communist Party of China projects not only China's determining influence in the economic situation of the region. It also showcases China's enlightened approach to economic democratization and gives us all a chance to witness how it has transformed itself into a market economy. Most of all, it highlights China's role as a friend and neighbor to all of us.

It is auspicious that we gather today in this great city, in this great country, to celebrate the political parties of Asia.

Here in this hall we neither acknowledge ideological lines nor seek alignments. As our distinguished vice president of the People's Republic of China states our basic principles are independence, complete equality mutual respect and non-interference in each other's internal affairs. From Manila to Bangkok, and now here we have carried these principles. We bring these principles from Manila and Bangkok to Beijing because we believe that a large part of our future of our respective countries lies here. We exceeded the previous two conferences not only in terms of size, but in terms of the breadth of our vision and the strength of our spirit.

Our theme is "Exchange, Cooperation and Development."

Exchange. Exchange of ideas, exchange of experiences, exchange of best practices. Exchange for the purpose of learning, exchange for the purpose of synthesis, especially for those of us, like in the Philippines, who are fighting for change. For those of us fighting for change, we need this kind of exchange provided by the political parties in this conference

As China has done with great success, we aim to forge a synthesis of ideology and party to liberate our people from economic deprivation and bring security to those who are still living in fear. As political parties of Asia, we are the hope of Asia.

Our delegation from the Philippines is a microcosm of the parties that make up this conference. For Philippine politics is a descendant of the same ideological lines that divided Asia decades ago. And in the same way that other nations have done, we have drawn the extreme points of ideological conflict towards the center.

In the Philippines, we have former military rebels of the right engaged in the political mainstream, just as we have representatives of the left engaged in both the regular and party list system of our legislature.

Politics, indeed, is the art of the possible. And it does this through exchange, through cooperation. Through exchange, politics collects the wisdom of past experience, sheds off the unworkable dogmas, and symbolizes new and bold directions for nations and societies.

And when contemporary politicians meet, as in our gathering today, through exchange, the world shifts from the monochromatic framework of the cold war to the full glory and color of the ideological richness of the new millennium.

For countries like mine fighting for change we need this ideological richness to be able to carve out which formula or which combination of formulas will work best for our country.

On my part, I hope to learn from the experience of the political parties of Asia as I advocate for the transition of our country to a federal-parliamentary state.

As I envision it, but I have much to learn from all of you, federalism is not merely a political form. It will have substantive implications on the political economy of the nation. Therefore, we must address the issue of economic viability and the preparedness of component states.

From our present situation as an archipelago, the next transition is now to gear towards a wider distribution of economic zones such as those pioneered successfully right here in China, then towards autonomy, and then to statehood.

As for the shift to the parliamentary form of government, it must be spearheaded I believe – and again, I have much to learn from this assembly – it must be spearheaded by meaningful political reforms, particularly a law on political parties that would spur the rehabilitation of our societal organizations and mass movements, and cleaning up of our electoral processes. This could include measures to subsidize political parties in the margins of competition, so as to diminish the influence of moneyed power brokers in the electoral process. This will also assist the parties in advocating public issues and offering reasonable options for a nation's future.

I have said this to the Filipino people often enough: we must change the character of our politics in order to create the fertile ground for true reforms. The politics of personality and patronage must give way to a new politics of party programs and a process of institutionalized consultation with the people.

Party-to-party, state-to-state, people-to-people, this is the way we strive to build the ramparts of regional cooperation. As cooperation, aside from exchange and development is our theme for this conference.

Cooperation. We are determined to strengthen our culture of cooperation among Asia's political parties with a view towards formulating a common strategy for development for Asia in the next 25 years.

Heads of state cannot do it alone. Political parties must be the partners of the government of every nation in finding appropriate responses to our common problems. The linkages of this conference, the cooperation, will contribute much to the realization of our regional aspirations – transforming the region from a region of conflict to a region of cooperation, molding economic fragments in a region into one integrated whole, finding security in creative partnerships that transcend historical animosity and strife.

For every meeting we have, for every handshake we extend across the leadership of Asia, we come closer to the regional neighborhood that binds our common aspirations.

Today, our exchanges are no longer the stale ideological debate of the past, but a genuine and vibrant discourse on shared peace and prosperity because prosperity and peace are what development is all about. And development is the third element of our theme in this conference aside from exchange and cooperation.

In mutual respect of one another's beliefs, we hope to make the best out of a troubled and uncertain world. And in trying to make the best out of what we have today much has already been taking place towards exchange, cooperation and development in the institutional realm. We have APEC, ASEAN, ASEAN plus three, our declaration of conduct of parties in the South China Sea, various accords against terrorism, the six-nation talks on the Korean peninsula, Nam, ASEM, and many more institutions and accords – all for the transformation of Asia into a zone of freedom, peace and prosperity.

Political parties, I call on you, let us further enrich these institutions by the force of our political ideas that respond to the demands of this century.

Political parties, I call on you, let us join hands once more to bring our political parties, the political parties of Asia into the service of a peaceful and prosperous world, into the world of development for our region.

To all of you, congratulations! And thank you.

During the 3rd International Conference of Asian Political Parties (ICAPP)

[Delivered at the Beijing Hotel, People's Republic of China, September 3, 2004]

Vice President Zeng Qing Hong and the other officials of the People's Republic of China and the Communist Party of China; Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra; Prime Minister Hun Sen; Speaker Gutierrez Lulu; our leader from Syria; excellencies of the diplomatic corps; fellow delegates to the 3rd ICAPP, especially our last night elected chairman of the standing committee. And I'd like to remind everybody, the founder of this International Conference of Asian Political Parties, Philippine Speaker Jose De Venecia.

As the president of the country in which this conference was founded in the year 2000 when Speaker De Venecia and I were still in the opposition, I would like to greet all of you today and to express my happiness about how this conference has grown to be so important. Speech of President Arroyo during the 13th Mindanao Business Conference (MINBIZCON)

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 13th Mindanao Business Conference (MINBIZCON)

[Delivered at the Ballroom, Davao Convention and Trade Center, Davao City, Davao Del Sur, September 16, 2004]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Secretary Cesar Purisima.

Mayor Rudy Duterte, thank you for agreeing once again to be the Chairman of the Regional Peace and Order Council. Rudy was already declining the nomination because he said he had served many years as Chairman of the RPOC maybe there should be new blood. When I found out about it, I called up Rudy long distance, and then I said, "Rudy, are you really not accepting the RPOC chairmanship?" "ma'am, sana gusto ko nang ibigay sa iba. Pero eh kung kayo ang nagsabi sa akin wala akong choice, tatanggapin ko." Thank you very much, Rudy.

I would like to greet also, of course, our reelected, reappointed Chairman of the Regional Development Council, Chito Ayala, senior businessman of region XI. And with my reappointment to Chito comes my commitment to continue to support the Davao integrated development plan.

I would like to greet also Noemi Saludo and all of the officers of the PCCI whether from here in Davao or from Mindanao or from the Philippines, and there are many of you here who are not from Mindanao. And our host, MBC Chairman Antonio Santos, who was introducing himself to me earlier, "ma'am, ako si Tony Santos 'yung sa Sentosa." I keep staying there all the time and I keep seeing... Of course, Tony I remember you because Sen is named after your wife, Anise Antonio and son is Santos. So who can ever forget that Antonio Santos and his wife are the owners of Sentosa, successful businessmen in Cotabato City.

And I thank you for submitting to me today this action agenda which I will ask Cesar Purisma as your opposite number in the government to be in- charge of taking care of with regard to the recommended actions for the government.

And now, before anything else, let me thank you. Thank you for inviting me to be here with you today once again. Thank you for your hospitality. Thank you for this very clear action agenda. And thank for your affection and confidence. Thank you for making me win in Mindanao in the last elections.

Today, we are called upon to close ranks, to stick together, to work harder, to endure more sacrifices and muster greater courage to face a rough road ahead.

We need to come to terms with our past and present obligations, and resolve to win back national stability and future growth.

I thank you for always talking about my ten points in my inaugural address. If anything, I realized that everybody remembers that. In my inaugural address last June, I outlined my legacy for national stability and future growth in ten points. And you all know there are ten points. But to remember what these ten points are as a memory aid, I use the acronym "BEAT THE ODDS" — B-E-A-T T-H-E O-doble D- S.

B is for a balanced budget. And that's what I'll talk about today. E is for education for all. A is for automated elections. T is for transport and digital infrastructure to connect the entire country. That's why we have our roll on/roll off ferry system and nautical highways specifically intended to bring the products of Mindanao to Luzon. That's B-E-A-T for "BEAT."

Now, the T-H-E. T is for terminate the MILF and NPA conflicts — peace. And I'm glad that your agenda is for just, equitable and lasting peace. And that is the second 'T' of my ten-point agenda. H is for healing the wounds of EDSA. E is for electricity and water for the entire country. That's e, T-H-E "THE."

And finally, "ODDS." O-doble D-S. O is for opportunities for 10 million jobs. And this ten million jobs I'm hoping that three million will come from SMEs and with the two billion Quedancor arrangement today for Mindanao, I hope a lot of those three million jobs from the SMEs and micro enterprises will come from Mindanao. The other one is agri-business and I'll talk about that in awhile. D is for decongesting Metro Manila by developing new centers for government, business and housing in Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao. Ds is for the tenth, it's for develop Subic-Clark. That's my "BEAT THE ODDS," my acronym, my battlecry. And I hope it will be your battlecry as well. Let's "BEAT THE ODDS."

For those of you who were at Luneta and for those of you who watched TV, I think you noticed that when I talked about the ten points in my legacy agenda, I specifically mentioned Mindanao when I talked about developing new centers for government, business and housing. Though of course the SMEs, the transport infrastructure, the MILF peace process, all of those are very much related and involved in Mindanao. But let me talk about this new government centers. The center for government that I have put in Mindanao is the Department of Agriculture. And Arthur Yap is here, isn't he? He was... Okay. He's going to spend the night here because he has to sleep in Mindanao because his wife already likes Mindanao. You gotta stay here because Mindanao is going to be the center for agriculture. Why? Because Mindanao is the food basket of the country.

But we're developing other centers as well: tourism in Cebu, land reform in Iloilo, transportation in Clark. And to integrate all of these, however, I have chosen a Mindanaoan, a Davaonon to be my Presidential Adviser for new government centers, and that's none other than former Governor Dolfo Del Rosario. Together with him in the Cabinet is the Secretary for Mindanao Economic Development. MEDCO has been elevated to the rank of Cabinet member and that's headed by Secretary Jess Dureza. So, we have Secretary Dolfo Del Rosario and Secretary Jess Dureza ably representing Mindanao in our Cabinet. And they both come from Davao. Davao imperialism within Mindanao. But in any case, it's just a recognition that Davao is indeed a member of economic development in Mindanao. And even Mindanao being a food basket is most fully developed in this area. And we hope that the expertise of these two gentlemen will help spread that food basket role of Mindanao to the rest of the island.

The most recent high-profile example of Mindanao as food basket is yesterday's tie-up between Davao's Nenita quality food corporation and the Pampanga meat processors. For Nenita to supply at least 10 tons of boxed frozen meat cuts weekly to Pampanga meat processors. This will open up a new market for Mindanao's hog raisers while it lessens Pampanga's dependence on imported meat. You see, Pampanga was going to import meat because it was running out of raw materials for its processing industry. But there is a surplus in Mindanao, and this is what we mean by a transport and digital infrastructure that links the entire country. This is what we mean by Mindanao being the food basket of the rest of the country. So, to the Nenita people here, congratulations! On this exemplary achievement. By the way, being a Capampangan I'm glad about this exchange between Pampanga and Davao. But earlier this morning I witnessed another exchange between Pampanga and Davao — Cyber City. Ah, let me go to that later. Let me just say that as far as the Nenita is concerned, we need more of these highways of trade and cooperation across the archipelago.

Because Mindanao is the food basket of the country, I'd like to develop Mindanao as the agri-business center of the country. In my inauguration I said, that I want to develop two million hectares of agri-business land. And I want a lot of those two million hectares to be right here in Mindanao. As for housing, I shall rely on the private sector to respond to the housing policies that I put in place during my first term, which the housing industry says are the most housing-friendly policies in our history.

Now, to go back to what I was saying about Mindanao, Davao and Pampanga. I'm happy that earlier this morning, I inaugurated the first call center in Mindanao, right here in Davao City. That first call center is an expansion of Cyber City Corporation based in Clark. So it is another major action, commercial transaction between Pampanga and Davao. I'm especially proud that that call center has been set up here in Davao, the first in Mindanao.

Before I became President, there were less than 2,000 Filipinos employed in call centers and other business process outsourcing, which is part of the ICT industry. This year, there will be 60,000. From 2,000 to 60,000 in three and half years. That's how much the ICT industry grew in our administration. ICT is the growth sector of the future together with other skills intensive, labor intensive service sectors like tourism. And I'm very glad, speaking of tourism, that Davao is one of the eight top tourist attractions in the Philippines.

Davao is one of the eight top tourist attractions in the Philippines because, of course, there's the natural beauty. There are the beautiful resorts and hotels already here, so there's carrying capacity. There's a beautiful airport and there is peace and order. Thank you Rudy. The airport is beautiful but a beautiful airport is not enough. It's got to be well run and well maintained. Unfortunately, for our beautiful airport here it's been a losing proposition. Not to fret but there are only two income-earning airports in the whole country to begin with. It's only the Manila International Airport and the Cebu International Airport. So what I agreed with Rudy when we were discussing in the car today was that I will put the Davao international airport under the jurisdiction of the NAIA international airport so that NAIA's surplus income can be used to finance some of the maintenance and improvement requirements of Davao International Airport. We really need to link the entire country even as we continue to work for a federal form of government.

For the economy as a whole, I'm glad that we have posted — and congratulations to Cesar Purisima — an impressive growth in investments of 493 percent over the last seven months, more or less that Cesar has been the secretary of trade and industry. And we have posted a GDP growth of 6.2 percent in the last quarter. There are very few countries in the region that grew faster than that. Maybe only India and China and Vietnam, or China, India and Vietnam in that order. Laos is just about the same or less, lower than us.

Our fiscal position in the first half of this year, like 2001 and 2003 — not 2002, that was awful — was within our targeted deficit ceiling. But we must all recognize that the situation can deteriorate as fast as we are building on our precious and hard-earned gains.

Yes, there is hope for our country. Our growth rate says so. Our investment rate says so. But it must be fueled by the fullest commitment to sacrifice.

Our gains can only be institutionalized by greater enterprise and discipline. For instance, to develop Mindanao as the food basket of the country requires productivity and efficient transport and logistics. These require huge investments in infrastructure, in electric power — some headlines today talked about an impending power crisis in Mindanao if we don't invest in it now. And in knowledge, it requires over huge expenditures for other basic government services. And so we need funding, but the government cannot keep borrowing and borrowing to finance infrastructure and services. And Napocor in particular cannot keep borrowing and borrowing to provide the electric power needed to support our growth requirements.

Yes, we feel that access to local and foreign financial markets, and this indicate that investor confidence is still there but it doesn't mean that we should grab all the offers of those who want to lend to us because every borrowing we make is an increase in our deficit. Every borrowing we make must still be budgetted. In other words, if you talk about a budget of a trillion pesos, of that budget, 800 billion will be financed by taxes, 200 billion will be financed by borrowing. So, it still has to be in a budget.

I say this because I was reading a column the other day saying that I presented my projects for Mindanao. But it turns out that they're actually from ODA. But even if they're from ODA they must be in the budget unless they're grant. And every expenditure that's financed by borrowing is a contribution to increasing our deficit. And we cannot grow based on borrowed funds all the time because it will catch up with us. The interest payments will catch up with us. The time will come, as it is coming, that we're using our budget to pay interest rather than to build infrastructure — to build roads, ports, airports, and other requirements like power plants.

It's my duty to bring forth the truth and the reality we must all face today, that our economy cannot endure for long without getting revenues, not from borrowing but from those who can most afford it.

Our external debt-to-GDP ratio at 71 percent is the third highest in Asia, while our ratio to GDP... Revenue-to-GDP at 4.1 percent is the second lowest. BIR's collection-to-GDP ratio for 2004 was a meager 10 percent.

So, we need to bridge the gap to finance our growth requirements, so that the world will take us seriously and continue to pitch in for our future growth. Because once written off by the world — and we are not there yet, thank God! — once written off by the world, we write off our own future. So, let's face it now and not be in denial before the world imposes the truth upon us.

We need to raise over a 180 billion pesos by prudent paring of expenditures, a better plug on financial leaks, and a more rational, equitable and effective system of collecting revenues.

We cannot tarry and we cannot postpone the pain. Better to have some pain now and feel the gain two years from now than postpone the pain now and have debt throes two years from now.

Our nation can sustain and even expand its growth, but only by the balm of national solidarity and collective responsibility. I know no traditional politician would ever state the challenge in this manner, or even dare to ask the people to sacrifice more at a time when they feel that they're already suffering. But as President, if I'm to be an honest President, I must do so in all candor because our people deserve no less than the truth from their leader.

The worst thing I can do under the circumstances is to perpetuate complacency over an issue of national survival. On this score, I know the pain of suffering the brunt of public disappointment and displeasure. I am not a stranger to unpopularity.

But I cannot shrink from the responsibility of prescribing the bitter pill. I'm responsible for informing you, the people, of all vital matters affecting your lives.

My economic managers headed by Cesar have presented a package of measures to generate 80 billion pesos in revenues. And we are working on executive reforms to raise or save a 100 billion pesos, marking the start of our earnest journey to permanent economic stability.

New revenues are needed not to overcome not just our economic challenges — you know for growth, investment, infrastructure — but to overcome the poverty that keeps millions of Filipinos living in sub-standard conditions that shame us all, especially in Muslim Mindanao which is the poorest region in our country.

And because we must remember that we need these revenues not only for growth but for fighting poverty, I'm prepared to work with congress on a system under which identified new revenue sources can be earmarked for the most vital pro-poor programs such as health, housing and education.

The money raised through new revenue must be spent wisely, that's why the government is working to root out waste. I'm personally leading efforts to cut government expenditures without reducing the quality and quantity of basic services. We're making every peso of taxpayers' money work where it counts most. You know, I've been spending my time reading the small print in the annexes of DPWH, DOTC, DepEd to make sure that every road, every port, every schoolbuilding is being spent on in accordance with the highest priority, not something that's in the middle of priorities.

Fiscal discipline, austerity, rationalization — these are the bywords in the cabinet. As for the GOCC's they are being pruned and whipped into line.

We're sharpening collection efficiency, expanding our revenue army and moving decisively against those found cheating. The unpatriotic who engage in corporate and governmental corruption will be identified, publicized, punished. The time for avoiding taxes is over.

And as I pledged in my inaugural address and in my state of the nation address, the revenue drive will be tougher on those who have had it easy than on those who have already had it tough.

We are prepared to begin by using friendly persuasion. That's why I'm glad congress first bill passed into the committee report is on the amnesty. On the part of the executive, our friendly persuasion will consist in inviting the top 50,000 corporate and individual taxpayers to add a million pesos more to what they are paying in a bid to have a strong start. I tell you some of those 50,000 are in this room today.

This is a time of shared goals and shared burdens. But let me take this opportunity to say that I'm proud of the Filipinos who have shown a deeper sense of community, starting from the alumni of Silliman University in Negros Oriental, who donated their jewelry during their homecoming, followed by government employees of several agencies. And I don't want the agency heads to make their employees do it. It has to be totally voluntary.

I'm proud also and thankful to the businessmen — some of whom are here today — who contributed to what has become the "Bayanihan fund." I'm proud of the OFWs worldwide. Like the ones in Brunei who gave me specific schools that they will build schoolbuildings for. And I must say I'm grateful to the members of congress who have offered meaningful sacrifices in the spirit of mutual determination to bite the bullet and move forward. All this indicates a groundswell of patriotic fervor and unity. And I thank everybody for that fervor. And of course, I'm grateful not only for those who're doing it today but for those who've done it all these years.

I treasure the patriotism of those who through all these years with utmost diligence and constancy have paid their share of taxes. These are the taxpayers who truly live for the nation and dedicate their lives and work towards it, work for it, who cast their stone in the edifice of the republic beyond the pale of fanfare or glory.

To these honest taxpayers, I say:

Akong mga ginigugmang kaiguonon, hibalo ko pa unsa kamo nagagastos sa tiyempo ug talento alang sa pamilya. Busa, nagapasalamat ako kaayo nga nagagastos sab kamo alang naman sa atong nasod.

Oo gyud nga naa pa katong mga abusado, mga cheaters, apan gamay na ra ang ilahang mga adlaw. Ang importante mao'y naa parehas kaninyo nga nagagugma sa atong nasod.

Kinahanglan ug atong nasod ang inyohang tabang karon aron padayon kitang makatindog.

Daghan salamat gyud sa inyong generosity.

Ang aton mga taxes mao'y alang sa manindot nga kaugmaon sa aton mga anak, sa atong nasod nga ginikanan. And so, to the members of the very dynamic Davao business community, the very promising Mindanao business community, to all of you, thank you for this action agenda. Thank you for your willingness to beat the odds and build prosperity for the greatest number of Mindanaonons and Filipinos.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 50th Anniversary Celebration of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Inc. (FFCCCII)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 50th Anniversary Celebration of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Inc. (FFCCCII)

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavillon, Manila Hotel, September 17, 2004]

Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Robin Sy and the other officials of the federation; Senate President Drilon and the other Cabinet officials who are here tonight; Ambassador Wu and our other friends from all over the world; the Taipans who are here in the head table; ladies and gentlemen.

And to all of you from the federation, a happy golden anniversary to a golden association, the great Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce.

For fifty years, the federation has been investing in our economy, creating jobs, building classrooms, saving lives.

And your civic action is not seasonal. You have made the Philippines your home, both for good times and bad times. Thank you and congratulations!

Thank you for building all those school buildings that Robin Sy talked about. Frank Drilon tells me that in his project, you built already 666 buildings with more than 300 to go for a total of almost a thousand of the 3,000 school buildings you've been building all these years.

And on top of that, thank you for building them at half the price of public works. I know you are able to do this because you subsidize the project, but also because you have a practical design. And I have instructed the DPWH and DepEd to adopt the specs, the design of the federation for our public classrooms. Mr. Robin Sy was there when I gave the instructions. And he heard me extol the virtues of the classroom program of the FFCCCII.

I've seen your other superlative projects — from fire rescue operations to relief efforts, to fund raising for charity, to job fairs, like the one you recently held at the federation center in Binondo, where more than 4,000 applicants showed up to apply for the 12,000 vacancies you offered. I'm instructing the Department of Labor to continue that effort to find qualified applicants for the remaining 8,000 vacancies that you have offered.

I've said many times that we must recognize that we are a multi-ethnic society in which Christian or Muslim, Cebuano or Tagalog, Mestizo or Chinese, all answer to the name Filipino. and that is a wondrous tribute to the richness and diversity of our culture. And our multi-ethnic society must be characterized by social justice for all and institutionalized accommodation of ethnic traditions.

The federation has contributed much to social justice — and we always thank you for that — in terms of your school building, your charitable contributions. But you have also much to contribute in terms of the traditions and values that are identified with the Chinese race like business acumen, thrift, hard work, humility. And I hope that our children will be able to absorb these values so well-associated with the Chinese members of our community.

These are the same values that have propelled China as the economic powerhouse of our time. Thrift, hard work, discipline, humility — these are but a few of the virtues, the values that have propelled the Chinese community in the Philippines as well to the very top of our economic ladder. You, the Filipino-Chinese leaders of the business community, are the personification as well of the thousand years old bonds between the Philippines and the People's Republic of China.

These bonds which you personify were the backdrop of my state visit to China, in which the federation contributed a very large business delegation. You were there. In fact, some of you were responsible for the credit and investment agreements that were signed during that visit worth about one billion U.S. dollars. Congratulations! And thank you for that.

During the state visit, you witnessed President Hu Jintao remarking that the agreement we made the last time to increase our trade with each other from practically nothing to 10 billion dollars has been fulfilled. And you were there, we made another agreement, this time to increase total trade to 20 billion dollars in the next five years.

You were also there when we agreed that the millions of Chinese tourists will be 'a major, the major target market whom both sides will encourage to visit the Philippines.

You were also there when we made a breakthrough in our relationship with China by adding defense and security to the many dimensions of our satisfactory relationship.

And to further symbolize that close relationship, next year, President Hu Jintao will be our special state guest in the 30th anniversary of the celebration of Philippines-China diplomatic relations. I will count on you, leaders of the federation, to help make that return state visit a success, just as I count on you to help make my administration a success.

Indeed, many of you helped get me elected president. Thank you for that. and now it's my obligation to you to lead with honesty. It's my obligation to you not to sugarcoat the truth about our economy in which you have been such valuable leaders. If we're in a crisis today, it's because in the past, political sentiments have long overruled dispassionate requirements of governance. Now the past is catching up with us. And, therefore, I say to you leaders of the business community — 'let the truth prevail and let us keep our house in economic order.'

Because you are not strangers to business success, you all know that economic miracles don't happen overnight. In openly acknowledging that we are in the midst of a great fiscal problem, I was not sounding out the alarm for failure. In fact, I was challenging Philippine society to draw from its wellspring of great values in order to bring our country to the prosperity it deserves.

Whether as heads of business conglomerates, like many of you are, or street sweepers, we can be heroes in our own way. But let's start by throwing away cynicism and being optimists for the country, even if it is guarded optimism. There is much to be hopeful for, as our recent GNP and investment figures indicate.

And you yourselves, the Chinese community, have told me that the country's peace and order situation is looking up, that kidnapping is down, that narcotic supply has been cut in half, one reason why I promoted General Aglipay to chief PNP. He's not here tonight, you see. now, I want to let you know that I ordered him and his immediate boss, Secretary Angelo Reyes to send the 'kotong cops' specifically of Manila to oblivion. especially the 'kotong cops' in Binondo, right Angie?

Our ceasefire in Mindanao has been working for the past 14 months and the peace talks are about to start in an atmosphere of confidence. But I'm not fully satisfied. And I know neither are you fully satisfied. There is still much we have to do in the next six months, in the next six years.

To strengthen our financial position, my economic managers — who are here tonight — have proposed to Congress — who are also here tonight. There's Frank and Kiko. Mar Roxas was here earlier. And I see a number of congressmen here — my economic managers have submitted to Congress vital tax measures intended to raise at least 80 billion pesos following their passage, 80 billion pesos a year.

I'm aware that there's a wall of resistance to these measures. But beyond that wall is our country's redemption from the yoke of poverty. And while we clean up our finances, we shall also rid society of its dregs and misfits.

Yes, kidnapping is down. Thank you, for telling me to make Angie Reyes the head of the task force. Now, let's make it zero-kidnapping.

And let's zero in also once again on smuggling. I gave the new customs commissioner two months to do his thing against smuggling. If after two months you, the business community, are not yet satisfied then we will revive the inter-agency anti-smuggling task force. There can be no... You tell me and you agree I'm sure that there can be no sacred cows in the fight against smugglers. Smugglers corrupt our bureaucracy, weaken your industries and deprive the treasury of much needed funds.

Therefore, I look forward to the members of the FFCCCI to help me fight smuggling, also to help me fight tax evasion, to serve as role models to our people, to pay the right taxes, to make it easier for our people to find employment, to serve as mentors to our OFWs and their families who wish to put up businesses of their own, to help fight corruption, to report the fixers and grafters in government, to identify the drug lords and the kidnappers that threaten your safety, to invest in the Philippines rather than abroad, to bring back our dollar exchange rate to 50 pesos to the dollar.

Our actions now will shape our future. Our sacrifices now will mean fewer sacrifices for our children and grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Our heroes, many of them Filipino-Chinese led by Jose Rizal himself, and many others. Our heroes fought two wars for freedom. We must find the inner strength, the moral and political will to fight for economic liberty. The kind of liberty that defeats the grinding poverty around us. The kind of liberty that will give our families the future that they deserve.

Let us rally around the flag that has been draped numerous times in the past over the coffins of our soldiers, our heroes, our patriots. And let us be vigilant against those who wish to bring this beloved nation of ours down.

I am confident you will continue to rise to the challenge.

Congratulations on the last 50 years! My best wishes for the next 50 years.

Xie xie.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Landbank Plaza

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the Landbank Plaza

[Delivered in Malate, Manila, September 23, 2004]

ONCE AGAIN, LET US BEAT THE ODDS!

How providential that this hall in which we're holding this workshop is named after my father. That's why his picture is there. It's his birthday next week, and I'm asking him to pray for us from his home in heaven, because aside from having been president like me, he was also Congressman like you. In fact, as president he was the "Father of Land Reform" and the "Father of the Land Bank". That's why this hall was named after him.

But this month we remember not only my father's birthday. We also remember that 32 years ago, martial law was declared. That was what the meeting of the National Security Council Joe de Venecia talked about was all about. Since that time, when martial law was declared 32 years ago the nation has been struck with ideological strife that has now combined with the partisan strife arising from three successive extraordinary upheavals in political leadership.

When I called the National Security Council on that day September 21 as Joe said, my message was— it is now time to begin to heal the wounds of EDSA one, two, and three, for those of you who listened to my inauguration address you will remember that this is one of the ten legacy points that I declared in that address last June 30th.

By the way, let me take this opportunity to say that if I was able to make an inaugural address at all last June, it was because the vast majority of you, the Congressmen supported me in the last elections, thank you so much for that support.

And now I will need your support again this time in fulfilling the ten-point legacy agenda that I talked about in that inaugural address amidst the difficulties that our nation is encountering. I thank you Joe for the twelve-point program that you, Raul and Gerry gave me and it is very much a part of my ten-points, for example, reviving the mining industry, your number one, is part of my number one point to create ten million jobs. Mobilize investments of the Mt. Diwalwal gold mine the same thing. Explore and develop more oil and gas wells, is part also of the creation of ten million jobs. And so, these are, I'm very grateful that you have this summary because Romy Neri is now putting together under my very close direction or medium term plan and we will find a place for this paragraphs in our medium term plan in the appropriate chapters.

I have a very meaningful acronym for my ten-point legacy agenda. Many of you know about this already. It's beat the odds:

B for a balanced budget,

E for education for all,

A for automated elections, and

T for transportation to connect the whole country. That's b-e-a-t, beat. Then t is for terminate the hostilities with the NPA and the MILF;

H is for heal the wounds of EDSA

E is electricity and water for the whole country. T-h-e, the.

For odds,

O is for opportunities for 10 million jobs

D is decongest Manila. And

Ds is for develop Subic-Clark. B-e-a-t-t-h-e-o-d-d-s, beat the odds.

If you in Congress support me the way you supported me in the last elections, we can beat the odds.

We can beat the odds even as our nation faces the threat of a grave economic crisis. Those are the odds. If we act on time and in tandem. Our national survival rests on whatever patriotic consensus we can build. That's why I'm glad we have this workshop.

In my State of the Nation Address last July, I told you of the five reform packages I need to achieve my 10-point legacy: the economic growth and job creation package of which a lot of this is there. The energy independence package, that's why I'm very glad that we have this exploring and developing more oil and gas wells. The social justice and basic needs package, the education and youth opportunity package, and the anti-corruption and good governance package.

To promote good governance, I asked you to enact a government re-engineering law that will give a silver parachute for early retirement so that the payroll savings can fund a better-paid, lean and mean bureaucracy.

To promote education, I asked you to enact a law that will standardize day care teaching to provide one extra year of education instead of a fifth year of high school.

To promote social justice, I asked you to enact a law qualifying farm land as collateral and other laws on land titling that constitute what the world calls the De Soto reforms. In fact, because we're in this hall I might add my father was the father of land reform. Now, with these new reforms it will be the new land reform.

To promote energy independence, I asked you to pass a franchise law for Transco so that, its privatization can fetch a good price and help reduce Napocor's huge deficit.

And to promote economic growth, I asked you to pass eight revenue measures that we need to finance our growth without resorting to so much borrowing.

Of the eight revenue measures, I thank you for assuring me that you can pass at least four this year. And of the four, may I say that the most urgent is the indexation of taxes on alcohol and cigarettes.

I understand that the committee on ways and means chaired by Jing Lapuz over there has already sponsored the tax amnesty and lateral attrition bills. I congratulate and thank Jing, but I also congratulate and thank Tito Miniong, Gary's father... Avier, Eric Singson and the other members of the committee for your swift response to our request. I also appreciate the dedication and perseverance of Junie Cua, chair of the house committee on trade and Danny Suarez whom I saw walked in. There you are Danny, oh! There is Eric. Thank you Eric of the oversight committee, Blue Boy Nepomuceno, chair of the civil service committee and Nonoy Andaya, chair of the appropriations committee. I must of course acknowledge, the Speaker Joe and all the members many of you who are here today who have consistently shown your full support for the revenue and other crucial measures.

I also want to take this opportunity to thank the several of your members who have donated personal funds to the Bayanihan fund. Thank you. and to the many of you who have acknowledged the need for transparency and commonality of purpose in the allocation of your Congressional funds.

I wish we didn't have to enact taxes at a time of hardships for the poor. But it is time to act now rather than when it is too late. It's time to act now or we're still credit worthy in the eyes of our creditors, it's time to act now or we can still grow at 6.2 percent as we did in the last quarter.

This growth was been financed by borrowings because we are still credit-worthy, but we cannot sustain growth based on borrowings. We must finance growth with our own resources.

Our fiscal problem is a cumulative result of incessant borrowings in lieu of generating the proper level of revenues to meet the needs of our people. As our national debt grew from one billion pesos in my father's time to 30 billion pesos on the eve of martial law and exponentially growing. So, did the amount of interest payments we needed to pay grow.

And aside from these interest payments, the national government is also saddled with financial obligations to our LGUs. From 1992 to 2004, the IRA share of local government units has more than doubled. In terms of the percentage of the budget seven percent in 1992 to 16 percent in 2004.

The net result of these combined increases in interest rates and LGU shares has been the reduction of capital spending and other vital expenditures.

For 2004, our interest payments stood at 32 percent IRA 16 percent. Personal services ate up an even bigger share, leaving us with only six percent of the national budget for infrastructure and economic growth.

This creeping trend has reached a precarious threshold. And I'm glad that Congress agrees that we should not wait until we reach a point when the entire budget could be solely devoted to debt payments and IRA and personnel.

Our external debt to GDP ratio at 71 percent is the third highest in Asia, when our ratio of revenue to GDP at 14 percent is the second lowest in Asia.

We must act now to bridge that gap.

And as the source of revenue laws, you, the Congressmen have it in your hands to bridge this huge gap and allow our nation to ride out the tide of the crisis without imposing too great a burden upon the poorest and the grandchildren of the poorest who live in the margins of the economy.

We in the executive branch, on the other hand, will remain vigorous in going after tax cheats, in enforcing fiscal discipline and sharpening tax collection efficiency. I am instructing the BIR to use all the powers in its command, including the power to garnish bank accounts of notorious tax evaders as soon as their assessments are final.

And I have just signed an executive order giving the commissioner of customs the powers that used to be exercised by the defunct economic intelligence and investigation bureau in order to combat smuggling. Next Tuesday, I will call a command conference of the Bureau of Customs to examine the performance of each collector.

I have read the riot act to my appointees in the GOCCs. The board members who are unable to accept the burden of sacrifice must surrender their positions now. while I've said it's only realistic that for those executives where we have a danger of losing them to the private sector must be paid their highest price.... already acknowledged Rey David who's coming in with a cut in pay. Today, I want to acknowledge Gary Teves who's also voluntarily reducing his pay.

If we work together to beat the odds, we also have a better chance not just for beating the odds but for unprecedented growth: these things that Joe sent me they were part of his 747.

And indeed, if we work together to beat the odds eventually not this year, maybe not next year but eventually we will get to the stage of growing seven percent for seven years would your sustained prosperity for the greatest number of our people.

Indeed, the economic crisis we are facing now constitutes the odds. But it's the proper venue, and here's to gather together our shared dreams and aspirations for this great nation.

Our people's salvation depends on the cooperation of its leaders with the people and with one another. With a collective heave of great political will, we will break the yoke of mounting debt and free our people from the vicious cycle of poverty.

This is the time for sterner yet greater days, when action takes precedence over words.

This is the time for unity. This is the time for patriotic fervor. And I join the rest of the people in wishing you Congress, all the best in your valiant efforts to do your essential and crucial part to build prosperity for the greatest number of our people.

Together, let us beat the odds. Thank you.

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Legislative Agenda Planning Workshop

[Delivered at the Diosdado Macapagal Hall Landbank Plaza, Malate, Manila, September 23, 2004]

Thank you very much, Speaker Joe de Venecia, thank you for inviting me here. And thank you for organizing this workshop, as always, to arrive at consensus. Joe de Venecia is the master of the win-win solution congratulations. Deputy Speaker Raul del Mar; Deputy Speaker Gerry Salapuddin, our host in this building Cito Lorenzo and Gary Teves, my Cabinet members who are here, Deborah ...who financed this meeting so that there's no cost to the Philippine government. members of the house, civil society leaders, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

But this month we remember not only my father's birthday. We also remember that 32 years ago, martial law was declared. That was what the meeting of the National Security Council Joe de Venecia talked about was all about. Since that time, when martial law was declared 32 years ago the nation has been struck with ideological strife that has now combined with the partisan strife arising from three successive extraordinary upheavals in political leadership.

When I called the national security council on that day September 21 as Joe said, my message was— it is now time to begin to heal the wounds of EDSA one, two, and three. for those of you who listened to my inauguration address you will remember that this is one of the ten legacy points that I declared in that address last June 30th.

By the way, let me take this opportunity to say that if I was able to make an inaugural address at all last June, it was because the vast majority of you, the congressmen supported me in the last elections, thank you so much for that support.

And now I will need your support again this time in fulfilling the ten-point legacy agenda that I talked about in that inaugural address amidst the difficulties that our nation is encountering. I thank you Joe for the twelve -point program that you, Raul and Gerry gave me and it is very much a part of my ten-points, for example, reviving the mining industry, your number one, is part of my number one point to create ten million jobs. Mobilize investments of the Mt. Diwalwal gold mine the same thing. Explore and develop more oil and gas wells, is part also of the creation of ten million jobs. And so, these are, I'm very grateful that you have this summary because Romy Neri is now putting together under my very close direction or medium term plan and we will find a place for this paragraphs in our medium term plan in the appropriate chapters.

I have a very meaningful acronym for my ten-point legacy agenda-many of you know about this already. It's beat the odds:

B for a balanced budget,

E for education for all,

A for automated elections, and

T for transportation to connect the whole country. That's b-e-a-t, beat.

Then t is for terminate the hostilities with the NPA and the MILF,

H is for heal the wounds of EDSA,

E is electricity and water for the whole country. T-h-e, the.

For odds, o is for opportunities for 10 million jobs.

D is decongest Manila. And

Ds is for develop Subic-Clark. B-e-a-t-t-h-e-o-d-d-s, beat the odds.

If you in Congress support me the way you supported me in the last elections, we can beat the odds.

We can beat the odds even as our nation faces the threat of a grave economic crisis. Those are the odds. If we act on time and in tandem. Our national survival rests on whatever patriotic consensus we can build. That's why I'm glad we have this workshop.

In my state of the nation address last July, I told you of the five reform packages I need to achieve my 10-point legacy: the economic growth and job creation package of which a lot of this is there. The energy independence package, that's why I'm very glad that we have this exploring and developing more oil and gas wells. The social justice and basic needs package, the education and youth opportunity package, and the anti-corruption and good governance package.

To promote good governance, I asked you to enact a government re-engineering law that will give a silver parachute for early retirement so that the payroll savings can fund a better-paid, lean and mean bureaucracy.

To promote education, I asked you to enact a law that will standardize day care teaching to provide one extra year of education instead of a fifth year of high school.

To promote social justice, I asked you to enact a law qualifying farm land as collateral and other laws on land titling that constitute what the world calls the de SOTO reforms. In fact, because we're in this hall I might add my father was the father of land reform. Now, with this new reforms it will be the new land reform.

To promote energy independence, I asked you to pass a franchise law for Transco so that, its privatization can fetch a good price and help reduce Napocor's huge deficit.

And to promote economic growth, I asked you to pass eight revenue measures that we need to finance our growth without resorting to so much borrowing.

Of the eight revenue measures, I thank you for assuring me that you can pass at least four this year. And of the four, may I say that the most urgent is the indexation of taxes on alcohol and cigarettes.

I understand that the committee on ways and means chaired by Jing Lapuz over there has already sponsored the tax amnesty and lateral attrition bills. I congratulate and thank Jing, but I also congratulate and thank Tito Miniong, Gary's father ... Avier, Eric Singson and the other members of the committee for your swift response to our request.

I also appreciate the dedication and perseverance of Junie Cua, chair of the house committee on trade and Danny Suarez whom I saw walked in. There you are Danny, oh! There is Eric. Thank you Eric of the oversight committee, Blue Boy Nepomuceno, chair of the civil service committee and Nonoy Andaya, chair of the appropriations committee. I must of course acknowledge, the Speaker Joe and all the members many of you who are here today who have consistently shown your full support for the revenue and other crucial measures.

I also want to take this opportunity to thank the several of your members who have donated personal funds to the Bayanihan fund. Thank you. and to the many of you who have acknowledged the need for transparency and commonality of purpose in the allocation of your congressional funds.

I wish we didn't have to enact taxes at a time of hardships for the poor. But it is time to act now rather than when it is too late. It's time to act now or we're still credit worthy in the eyes of our creditors, it's time to act now or we can still grow at 6.2 percent as we did in the last quarter.

This growth was been financed by borrowings because we are still credit-worthy, but we cannot sustain growth based on borrowings. We must finance growth with our own resources.

Our fiscal problem is a cumulative result of incessant borrowings in lieu of generating the proper level of revenues to meet the needs of our people. As our national debt grew from one billion pesos in my father's time to 30 billion pesos on the eve of martial law and exponentially growing. So, did the amount of interest payments we needed to pay grow.

And aside from these interest payments, the national government is also saddled with financial obligations to our LGUs. From 1992 to 2004, the IRA share of local government units has more than doubled. In terms of the percentage of the budget seven percent in 1992 to 16 percent in 2004.

The net result of these combined increases in interest rates and LGU shares has been the reduction of capital spending and other vital expenditures.

For 2004, our interest payments stood at 32 percent IRA 16 percent. Personal services ate up an even bigger share, leaving us with only six percent of the national budget for infrastructure and economic growth.

This creeping trend has reached a precarious threshold. And I'm glad that congress agrees that we should not wait until we reach a point when the entire budget could be solely devoted to debt payments and IRA and personnel.

Our external debt to GDP ratio at 71 percent is the third highest in Asia, when our ratio of revenue to GDP at 14 percent is the second lowest in Asia.

We must act now to bridge that gap.

And as the source of revenue laws, you, the congressmen have it in your hands to bridge this huge gap and allow our nation to ride out the tide of the crisis without imposing too great a burden upon the poorest and the grandchildren of the poorest who live in the margins of the economy.

We in the executive branch, on the other hand, will remain vigorous in going after tax cheats, in enforcing fiscal discipline and sharpening tax collection efficiency. I am instructing the BIR to use all the powers in its command, including the power to garnish bank accounts of notorious tax evaders as soon as their assessments are final.

And I have just signed an executive order giving the commissioner of customs the powers that used to be exercised by the defunct economic intelligence and investigation bureau in order to combat smuggling. next Tuesday, I will call a command conference of the Bureau of Customs to examine the performance of each collector.

I have read the riot act to my appointees in the GOCCs. The board members who are unable to accept the burden of sacrifice must surrender their positions now. while I've said it's only realistic that for those executives where we have a danger of losing them to the private sector must be paid their highest price. ... already acknowledged Rey David who's coming in with a cut in pay. Today, I want to acknowledge Gary Teves who's also voluntarily reducing his pay.

If we work together to beat the odds, we also have a better chance not just for beating the odds but for unprecedented growth: these things that Joe sent me they were part of his 747.

And indeed, if we work together to beat the odds eventually not this year, maybe not next year but eventually we will get to the stage of growing seven percent for seven years would your sustained prosperity for the greatest number of our people.

Indeed, the economic crisis we are facing now constitutes the odds. But it's the proper venue, and here's to gather together our shared dreams and aspirations for this great nation.

Our people's salvation depends on the cooperation of its leaders with the people and with one another. With a collective heave of great political will, we will break the yoke of mounting debt and free our people from the vicious cycle of poverty.

This is the time for sterner yet greater days, when action takes precedence over words.

This is the time for unity. This is the time for patriotic fervor. And I join the rest of the people in wishing you Congress, all the best in your valiant efforts to do your essential and crucial part to build prosperity for the greatest number of our people.

Together, let us beat the odds. Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 30th Philippine Business Conference and Exhibition

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 30th Philippine Business Conference and Exhibition

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, Manila, October 6, 2004]

Thank you, Secretary Romulo, for your introduction and congratulations! May I congratulate you for your excellent performance in the United Nations as my new Secretary of Foreign Affairs. Noemi, Bing, Cerge, Mike, Sammy, Robin, all of you, leaders of the Chamber, congratulations on your 30th anniversary.

I would like to greet Don Emilio Yap and all of the awardees in tonight's honors. I would like to greet also my Cabinet members and the members of the Diplomatic Corps, the local governments who are here especially because they received recognition for their business-friendliness from the Chamber.

And thank you, Noemi, thank you to the whole Chamber for inviting me once again to be here. And, Noemi, congratulations for having Dr. Mahathir as your date yesterday.

Foreign Prime Minister Mahathir was invited by you because he left Malaysia with a legacy of a modernized economy. But over and above that, he is dear to us, to me, because he made a leading contribution to our peace process in Mindanao. And I think, he was happy to hear that, perhaps, because he was the keynote speaker of the first day, Mindanao's delegation to this business conference is the biggest in history.

Thank you to Noemi for calling on all the PCCI members to pay the correct taxes and to help my administration resolve the fiscal problem. You see, we, in Malacañang, read your website. That is how highly we value the opinion of the PCCI. Truly, the PCCI is the voice of Philippine business.

And so, I hear you when you call on your members to do their share by paying the correct taxes, but I also hear you when you call on the government to reduce the red tape that stifles business initiatives.

And once again, I am instructing our government regulators, many of whom are here, to simplify and reduce the rules and regulations imposed on business and industry. Reduce them instead of multiplying them. I am also instructing my regulators to make it easier, rather than make it more difficult to do business in the Philippines. And I am instructing my regulators to encourage business, instead of discouraging investors.

These instructions are especially crucial today when we are at the crossroads. Whether to move forward, toward a modern progressive nation, like Malaysia, or fall backward to the failed policies of populist governance.

I, for one, am optimistic about our future, and so are many others who matter. Last Sunday, I was reading the Business Bulletin, and I read that a survey conducted by Jetro showed that the diffusion index, which is a measure of business sentiment among Japanese companies, declined in all countries in ASEAN and North Asia this September from the previous month, except for the Philippines. And the case of the Philippines that business index sentiment rose from 20.3 to 22.9.

Strikes have gone down to almost zero. And last Monday, some of your leaders through ECOP and three giant labor federations representing two-thirds of unionized workers in our country signed a "No Strike, No Retrenchment" agreement.

The IMF has raised its growth forecast for the Philippines. And the stock market, two days ago, surged to its highest level in nearly five years. Our GDP growth rate of 6.3 percent is our fastest since the Asian crisis, and one of the fastest today in the region. All these — GNP, stock market, “No Strike, No Retrenchment” — all of these are because of your work, the business community. Congratulations to you!

And now, may I ask you, help me to bring the exchange rate back to 50 to 1.

Tough odds, but many of you are already familiar with the acronym for my ten-point legacy agenda : BEAT THE ODDS.

B is for balanced budget. E is for Education for all. A is for automated elections. T is for transport and digital infrastructure to connect the entire country.

T is for termination of the conflicts with the NPA and the MILF. H is for healing the wounds of EDSA. E is for Electricity and water for the whole nation.

O is for opportunities for 10 million jobs. D is for decongesting Manila. And DS is for developing Subic-Clark. BEAT THE ODDS!

This legacy is the starting point of the Philippine development plan for the period 2004 to 2010, which Romy Neri will unveil this coming Monday. That is why he is not here tonight. He has to be there, writing it out.

The basic task of this Medium Term Philippine Development Plan that will be unveiled by Romy on Monday is to fight poverty and build prosperity for the greatest number of the people. We will focus on strategic measures and activities which will spur economic growth and create jobs.

In spite of what I mentioned earlier, that should give us room for optimism, we must face the fact that the underlying growth components of our country while respectable have not been so robust. National savings, for example, hovered at 23.4 percent in the first quarter of 2004, not high enough to finance the investment required for the 7 percent growth rate that we would like to achieve towards the end of my administration.

Unemployment has stayed out the historical levels because even if I created more than a million jobs a year, I had inherited 4 million jobless, mainly, due to the fact that previous to my term, only a hundred-fifty thousand jobs were being created a year.

Thus, in my administration, creating one million jobs, which is what we did together, was like running on a treadmill. The pace is just enough to stay in place. So, we have got to run faster. Our inflation rate is up from the very low rates of my previous tenure, mainly because of the oil price crisis and because the budget deficit accumulated over many years is catching up with us.

Stiff global competition affects our exports in employment, and you know that even more than I do. And you know even more than I do that we must bring down the cost of doing business. That we must find ways to increase government funding for infrastructure project which we need to increase global competitiveness. The quality of infrastructure is perennially sighted as the main problem in the Philippines' global competitiveness.

Mahathir was here. Many of you have traveled to Kuala Lumpur. You have seen how infrastructure has developed during the administration of Prime Minister Mahathir.

Meantime, the global economy especially our major trading partners like the U.S. and Japan, are showing signs of recovery. China's strong growth is becoming a driving force for countries in the East Asia Pacific Region and it has been buying a lot from the Philippines. We must seize these opportunities, we must expand our market shares and attract more investments.

We want to increase the investment rate from 19% of GDP to 28% in the next two years. We want to increase spending on public infrastructure and private infrastructure, both of us, by an incremental hundred billion a year. We want to increase exports from $39 billion to $50 billion in the next two years. We want to support 3 million entrepreneurs, that is something close to the heart of PCCI. To do that, we want to triple loans to self-employed and small business owners.

To strengthen and sustain our global competitiveness and create 10 million jobs, we will focus on five strategic measures.

One, make food plentiful at reasonable prices to make our labor costs globally competitive.

Two, reduce the cost of electricity; to make the cost of running our machine and manufacturing process regionally competitive.

Three, modernize the physical infrastructure and logistic system at least cost to ensure efficient movement of goods and people.

Four, mobilize and disseminate knowledge to upgrade our technologies and increase our people's productivity.

And, five, as you have said in your survey, reduce red tape in all government agencies to reduce transaction cost.

Our job creation thrusts are the following: high skill jobs in ICT like soft ware, BPO and call centers, fashion garments, Dina jewelry, Josie, medical services, automotive, electronics, health care – St. Luke's award is great for that environment – also medium skill jobs in agri-business, mining, tourism – meaning hotels and restaurants -, and entertainment. And simple skill jobs in construction, SMEs, and micro enterprise.

Thus, we shall promote investments in agri-business, in entrepreneurship, and small and medium enterprise development, also energy independence, and investments in infrastructure as well as investments in exports.

We mention agri business and I am glad to hear from Raul Hernandez that that's a major thrust of PCCI as well. Agri business is a leading element in our action plan to create ten million jobs. Agriculture accounts for 20 percent of the Gross National Product, one-fifth of the economy, one-third of the population is in agriculture or agriculture-related industries. During the past three years we saw the consistent growth of the agriculture sector. It created 1.87 million jobs or 623,000 per year of the 1 million jobs per year during the first Arroyo Administration.

This time we want to develop 2 million of hectares of land for agri business in order to contribute 2 million to the 10 million jobs targeted as my legacy by 2010. We want to reduce the cost of rice, corn, sugar and other wage goods through productivity and efficient transport and logistics. We will continue to promote and expand the roll-on, roll-off ferry logistic system for a more efficient transport of agricultural goods from Mindanao to Luzon. We will promote – good thing we have the Mindanaoans here, Jodi – Southern Mindanao as a Halal food production area and create a new class of farmers and fishermen.

How will we do that, create a new class of farmers and fishermen? We will organize a large-scale program of non-traditional high-value crops in farms and fisheries. The high-value farm crops, vegetables and fruits, have a much, much higher yield than the traditional staple crops of rice and corn. A program of aquaculture in the coastal areas including carrageenan and in the waters with thousands of fish cages in the seas of Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao, growing and culturing sea bass, grouper, pompano, milk fish, cobia, freshwater and saline tilapia, red snapper, etc. These fish have assured markets in the frozen and live fish markets of China, Hong Kong, Japan, Taiwan, Singapore, the U.S. and Europe with significant foreign exchange earnings, high-profit, and of course, job-creating potential.

Another major element in our plan to create 10 million jobs is entrepreneurship. Together with you, we will provide credit, technology and marketing support for three million micro, small and medium enterprises. We will also empower existing SMEs to generate additional employment through increased lending and the promotion of the big brother-small brother program initiated by former president of DBP, Mon Paterno, which I hope – I've instructed the new president Rey David — to continue. We would like to tap returning OFWs as sources of capital and continue product development as part of technology support.

For exports, we will draw up a more focused — has to be focused because of the budget deficit — a more focused incentives package with priority on the areas I mentioned earlier: ICT, automotive, electronics, mining, health care, tourism, shipbuilding, garments, jewelry and agribusiness. We will conclude trade agreements with Japan, Asean and China, and consider a trade agreement with the U.S., and strengthen our economic relationship with Europe. Tomorrow, I leave for the Asia-Europe summit in Hanoi, where I hope to tighten our economic partnership in Europe without going to so many countries in Europe because they'll all be there in Hanoi.

After all, Europe has already overtaken Japan and the United States as the Philippines top source of foreign direct investments. The largest single investment in the Philippines is the British-Dutch development of Malampaya offshore gas, which is expected to provide the government with an estimated revenue of 10 billion dollars over the next 20 years. We hope to have more investments from Europe, for instance, in the field of ICT.

But, we can only finance the infrastructure required by these investors including you and the credit needed by the SMEs for investments from the fiscal position of fiscal strength.

As you can see from the road to fiscal strength for fighting poverty that I asked to be distributed here today, for over two decades, the Philippine government has been operating on a fiscal deficit except in the years 1994 to 1997. But even then the budget surpluses we posted in those years were mainly attributable to privatization proceeds. And since then, our total expenditures, including our debt payments, have been more than the revenues we could raise.

The government very soon could no longer afford to subsist on borrowed funds. Any government expenditure that's financed by borrowing is a contribution to the budget deficit. For instance, I often go somewhere and I inaugurate a road and then they say, 'eh pero yung kalsada naman yan galing sa World Bank.'

But when we say a road or a port is financed by ODA — yes, we should be happy we're still creditworthy for the soft loans. Better payment terms, better interest — but we should also be sad that that road or port is contributing to the deficit because every project financed by a loan contributes to the deficit. On the other hand, we have no choice right now but to borrow for those roads and bridges, and therefore increase our deficit as long as our tax collections are less than our expenditures. And if we persist in sustaining national growth through relentless borrowings from foreign and domestic creditors, the interest payments will eat up a bigger and bigger share of the budget. And if this keeps happening, public services and social reforms, as we know them, would slow down or even come to a full stop.

That's why we are determined to put our fiscal house in order. And the fiscal road map that I have distributed tonight or today here in your conference is part of our medium-term plan that Romy will unveil on Monday.

This fiscal road map has three policy objectives: one, balance the national government budget in six years; two, reduce the ratio of the consolidated public sector deficit to GDP from 6.8 percent to 3 percent for the same period; and three, reduce the ratio of public sector debt to GDP from a 136.5 percent last year to 90 percent by 2010. The legislative and executive actions needed to obtain these objectives are part of the medium-term plan that Romy will unveil on Monday.

Our objective to balance the budget within six years requires a gradual reduction of our deficits every year until we reach zero in 2010.

Fiscal discipline, austerity, rationalization, these are the by-words in the executive branch of government. The country's fiscal problem requires sharing not only of goals but of burdens. It cannot be denied that in undertaking fiscal discipline while generating revenues, sacrifices will have to be made by both the public and the private sectors. And I'm glad your theme is 'beyond business' because business is supposed to be the profit motive — sacrifice for the good of the country and the future of the climate is beyond business.

We must do better, and we will. I thank you that you, the chamber, have thought hard about the kind of Philippines you want. And I thank you for, as Digna and Noemi said, joining me in the fight for change. I need you, the business leaders of our country to invest today in the Philippines of tomorrow. That is being one, being global, being Filipino, being together. One global Filipino, together we will beat the odds.

Thank you.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo at the Gridiron Night with the Press

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Gridiron Night with the Press

[Delivered at the Manila Hotel, October 11, 2004]

GOVERNMENT AND THE PRESS: PARTNERS IN REFORMS

On my way here, I just could not believe what I heard about our newsmen being an endangered specie. For as long as they can keep their sense of humor, I firmly believe that they will not only survive, but will outlive even the ancient crocodile.

If they could keep their noses close to the grindstone and be able to enjoy and laugh at themselves, newsmen will go on, outlasting many of the institutions they are reporting on. I was told by a former newsman, that you have to be a little out of the ordinary, if not a little crazy, to earn a living by ferreting out the truth and peddling them to the public. It is not a job for the fainthearted.

I therefore tip my hat for that genius that invented the Gridiron. Over the years it has become a tradition, one that makes newsmen feel like newsmen by their capacity to make fun and laugh at themselves. By making light of even our most difficult problems, and making us laugh at our antics, sparing not even the President of the Republic, we somehow make it easy to accept that we may not be the closest of friends, but we are not enemies, and that we can approach our individual and collective responsibilities in a more joyous and generous spirit.

I came here in that spirit, eager to share with you the fun and merriment of this Gridiron, without of course forgetting that while laughter is the best medicine and should make us feel better in dealing with our problems, laughter by itself will not make our problems go away. Of course, when I come home from this dinner after hearing the best jokes of the night, I would not want to be like the man, who when asked what he felt after painfully stubbing a foot, said, "I felt too old to cry, but it hurt so much for me to laugh." I also came here to congratulate you for doing your work, which Joseph Pulitzer aptly described as "comforting the afflicted and afflicting the comfortable."

The first 100 days of my administration have come and gone, but I have to remind you before this night is over that we have yet to have our honeymoon. I would not accuse you of not doing your work, but our first 100 days together was short of being a honeymoon. Perhaps we were too riveted on our problems not to pay much attention to the fact that cure is on the way.

By practice, this so-called honeymoon between the press and the new administration comes from a feeling that a new president has to be given the benefit of the doubt, a small window to set the tone and direction for his or her government, and to recognize that it is inevitable that being new, he or she can commit mistakes, that the new President has yet to find his or her sea legs. Thus the press is inclined to be more generous in its comments, to be more constructive and helpful in a way, to make this period more like a wait-and-see period until clarity is achieved in public policy.

Perhaps the reason lies in the fact that this is not an entirely new administration, but a continuation of my first three years in government. As we have said, we have made a down payment in the past three years to correct what was wrong in our country, and the next six years will see us paying the balance until our goals are achieved. Perhaps, the press felt there was no need for me to enjoy the bliss of another honeymoon, because I was not a newcomer but an old pro.

The truth is, we have had a new beginning. In this fast-changing world, we have had to deal with our problems with a plethora of new ideas, initiatives and new directions. When you come to think of it the only thing that remains constant is change. And to bring this about, and to make sure that change will be our friend rather than an enemy, we have to summon what is basically good and positive in our people to keep our country on the move. Perhaps, our honeymoon will come later.

All of us, I believe, are for change in general. But many of us are against change in particular, especially if it involves change in ourselves, if it means a dose of our own medicine.

It has been little noticed and largely unexplained, but in the past 100 days, we have reaffirmed an old ethos of more opportunity for all and more responsibility from all. We have called on our countrymen, especially those who are better off, to help us strengthen our sense of community and mutual obligation, by getting to be more willing to give than to receive, in thinking not only of ourselves but of others, too. Again, we tried to impress upon every citizen that any personal pursuit cannot be separate of the needs of others.

Without much fanfare, we are pushing change in the area where it is most needed in these critical times – within ourselves. Perhaps we have to reimagine ourselves as capable of dealing with our problems, that we are to compete in this harsh and competitive world, that we are in this together as one nation and one people. Only then, can our best-laid plans to eliminate poverty be fulfilled. If we can only assume our responsibilities as citizens, we need not make “sacrifices” for our country; it would be sufficient for each to contribute commensurate to our ability and means.

A change in values takes time and requires patience. Its clarity and meaning comes only after months and years. However, when I announced that we are facing a fiscal crisis, I knew that we do not have the luxury of time. We need brave hearts and the resolution to change now if we are to cope with the problems at hand.

In making our people more hopeful of their future, more confident of their ability to survive and prevail, and to remain confident of their capacity to make themselves a part of a larger community, we have to have a sympathetic press that can and will understand not only the difficulties that stand in the way of their success, but will have them believe in themselves. This the press can do by giving scope to their accomplishments, to their seemingly small and insignificant victories in the daily struggle for survival.

I know that in a nation like ours that is riddled with pockets of deprivation, it is not easy to give space for those small victories that taken together constitute nation building. I must repeat that I am not here to blame the press for the cynicism that is rampant in our society. But it is in the power of the press to dispel so much of the indifference and skepticisms that have often held back even the most dynamic and vigorous of societies.

What I ask the press is a modicum of fairness, a nudge in the angle of the news, an ounce of objectivity in the run of opinion to reflect the big picture – that of a nation coping with a crisis and winning the battle against poverty, of a people valiantly fighting for change and beating the odds.

This request assumes critical proportion when we consider that certain quarters are bent on using media not as an instrument of truth, but as a tool to twist the truth like a pretzel. These are the people who would not rest in turning the people against their government, at every opportunity, with slogans of hate and conspiracies to deceive or to inculcate fear.

There is no substitute for leveling with the people especially on questions that directly affect their lives. I told the truth about our fiscal situation, saying the people deserve to know how High the bar that is set before them. As President, I feel it was my duty to tell the people what they ought to know.

I also invite the media to remain vigilant against those with self-serving interests who would mislead our people with lies dressed as legitimate news.

Needless to say, I am foursquare behind a free and independent press. I will be the first to be disappointed by a cloying press and a press with no backbone. But the government and the press can also be partners in pushing those reforms needed to change society.

In the task of making people feel proud of their accomplishments, in highlighting their positive nature, in helping them prepare for the future with hope and confidence, and helping voice their desire for good government, there is no quarrel between the government and the press have no quarrel. They can very well share the same objectives. Otherwise, we either have a bad government or a bad press.

Thank you.

During the 2nd Union Network International-Asia Pacific Regional Organization (UNI-APRO) Four Sector Conference (finance, telecom, commerce and postal)

[Delivered at the Cebu City Sports Club, Cebu Business Park, Cebu City, October 13, 2004]

Thank you very much, Undersecretary Imson, for helping to host this very important conference.

Mr. De Bruyn, President, thank you very much for choosing to have the Conference here in the Philippines. And may I also greet my compadre, compadre Dejon, the Philippine Chairman. Thank you for giving me your speaking time tonight. Mr. Jennings and the other officials: Mr. Ng, Mr. Boil, Mr. Murishima, Mr. Blantorn, Mr. Komoda, Mr. Omimoto.

I'd like to greet also, together with me, two of my Cabinet Members, Secretary Bert Gonzales and Secretary Dodi Limcaoco; Mr. Umali, Secretary General; I have Mike Rama in the list, are you here Mike? There you are Mike, good, good, good; participants to the 2nd Union Network International-Asia Pacific Regional Organization Four-Sector Conference, ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you for choosing the Philippines and thank you for choosing Cebu as your venue for this international conference.

Congratulations to Uni-Philippines for being able to host this... As has been said before by Mr. Umali, this is a first that the Philippines should host so many labor union leaders from 27 countries. It just goes to show that the Philippine labor movement is now a global class labor movement.

I agree with your theme that we put people first. In fact that was my... that was my campaign slogan, you know. It was 'mamamayan muna' which means people first and that we must protect their welfare against the rippling tide of globalization.

Putting people first — to me, when I campaigned on the platform of putting people first, I explained that to mean giving them jobs. And because the people of the Philippines elected me on that platform of people first, I aim to stake my leadership, as mentioned earlier by our international guests, on the creation of six to ten million jobs within the next six years.

Our goal is to optimize job creation in at least five sectors, namely: medium, small and micro enterprises; agribusiness; mining; tourism; and information and communications technology and exports. These sectors represent 80 percent of the source of current employment.

In generating jobs, we are not going to fall into the treadmill trap where we continue to gather speed yet end up always in the same place. Yesterday, I had a cabinet meeting to focus on fundamental interventions to remove us from this proverbial treadmill, where we keep running just to stay in place, into a more expansive and verdant employment landscape.

In that meeting, we agreed on strategic measures to make it easier for the private sector and our exporters, many of whom are in Cebu, to create new jobs. Some of these concrete measures include:

Extending more support to pump-prime export-oriented industries;

Allocating at least 2 million hectares for agri-business ventures including such things as seaweed farming; and adding government scholarships for master's and doctoral degrees to promote technical competency particularly among ICT professionals and also professionals in electronics.

Discussing jobs makes your choice of venue for this meeting very appropriate. Cebu provides the right setting and atmosphere for such a critical agenda because it stands out as a world-class economic enclave, where productivity and profit rule. Congratulations! Cebu.

The timing of your conference is also impeccable. Our country is now in the grip of self renewal. We've come to realize that national complacency must give way to fiscal discipline and therefore a more austere lifestyle.

I'm grateful to the response of organized labor and the employer sector to my call for greater sacrifices and unity as we put our economic houses in order.

Last week, the trade union congress of the Philippines, to which Mr. Dejon belongs, together with other organized labor groups representing two-thirds of our organized labor, signed a social accord with the employers confederation of the Philippines for a 'no strike, no lay-off' agreement.

This historic pact does not in any way preclude our workers basic right to fight for a decent wage or humane labor standards. It's a voluntary agreement between labor and employers to settle disputes amicably in the spirit of cooperation and fraternity in awareness of the national exigencies involved.

Our banking industry, which is represented here by Mr. Umali and the others that greeted me earlier, and its employees subscribe to the social dialogue for industrial peace. We have a banking industry tripartite council where the labor and finance departments as well as the Central Bank represent government; the Bankers' Association of the Philippines represents employers; and sitting for the labor is the national union of bank employees headed by UNI's secretary-general, Jun Umali. Congratulations! Jun.

The spirit of dialogue instead of confrontation has driven the lowest record of strikes in the Philippines in the last 21 years. Since September ended, the labor department has only recorded 19 strikes over this whole year. Labor and management have jointly come of age as an enlightened force for political and economic stability.

To be able to compete in a fast-moving, globalized regime, one must have capital, the right technology, adequate modern infrastructure and transport systems, and a skilled and hard-working work force.

We have the solid work force. We're now working on the transport systems as well as the physical and digital infrastructure to move ahead. We're constrained in capital and technology but working hard on these fronts. At the same time, we've also teamed up with the developing world in a struggle for a level global playing field.

I've never held back my sentiments on the kind of development we want. On the one hand, we believe only an enterprise economy can attract the investments and unleash the creative productive forces we need to fight poverty and attain welfare-enhancing growth. On the other hand, we believe that liberalization cannot be pushed without a clear sense of social responsibility.

As the UNDP puts it, globalization has enormous capacity to create wealth for all, but it also has the same enormous potential to perpetuate a highly unequal and deeply polarized world. We need and demand social and labor rules that distribute wealth and opportunities fairly.

In Cancun last year, the Philippines opposed the further liberalization of trade in agriculture and other sectors if there are no reforms in the trade-distorting subsidies provided by developing countries to their domestic producers.

When farm subsidies in the developed world reach one billion dollars a day while the poorest in the developing world are barely surviving on one dollar a day — fair deals in trade are impossible.

And I shall continue to fight for special safeguards for socially sensitive products. We cannot allow our staple crops such as rice and corn to be wiped out in the name of trade liberalization.

These special products represent the livelihood and jobs of a great number of our people. They also represent a way of life and part of our national culture.

We need a global consensus on how the core social, environmental and labor standards can be blended and harmonized to serve the imperatives of human survival and dignity. Yet to many Filipinos, globalization is a passport with a working visa and a free ticket to high-paying job overseas.

Eight million Filipinos live abroad. Two million of them reside in the United States, or work in the United States rather, half a million in the European Union and hundreds of thousands in Japan, Korea and the Middle East. Incidentally, may I congratulate Japan for being the biggest delegation to this conference. We even have 1,000 Filipinos working in the fishing processing plants of Iceland.

In the Province of Cavite, which is just next door to Manila, we have our own little Italy, our little 'Italian Village' where entire neighborhoods have relatives working as domestic helpers in Italy. We also have seafarers subdivisions that are home to the spouses and children of about 200,000 Filipino seafarers.

Overseas workers shore up our economy through their remittances, and I thank you that one of your goals is to have more efficient, faster and cheaper remittance. But there is a high social cost we pay for fragmented families. I want to create more jobs here and bring in the foreign capital and technology needed so more Filipinos could have the option to stay. Going abroad should be an option not a necessity.

In the medium-term development program our government presented to the public last Monday, we identified several strategies to keep our workers home:

Make food plentiful at reasonable prices to make labor cost globally competitive;

Reduce the cost of electricity through power sector reforms;

Modernize infrastructure and logistics to lower transport costs;

Mobilize and disseminate knowledge to make workers and manufacturing processes more productive; and Reduce red tape in all government agencies to bring down the cost of doing business.

We have a fiscal road map to improve economic stability, and a ten-point legacy agenda, which... The agenda for my legacy to the Filipino people, to fight poverty and spur growth.

Every effort is now being made to manage our debts better. To promote fiscal discipline, we've set an annual ceiling for our government deficit as well as a debt cap to prevent further unnecessary foreign borrowings.

We are pushing for tax measures that would levy more from those who can afford to pay.

Our foreign policy is driven by economic diplomacy. My first state visit, in fact only state visit this year, was to China where I witnessed the signing of agreements that would bring in a total of one billion U.S. dollars in investments and credits to the Philippines.

The Philippines is also a leading advocate for the protection of migrant workers. And I thank you that you took up migration in this conference. Towards this end, we hope to work with UNI-PRO or UNI-APRO in promoting an agenda to safeguard the rights of all migrant workers.

Our law enforcers are working with our neighbors to constrict the trafficking of women and children across borders.

Just yesterday, we signed an agreement with the U.S. government regarding that. Our embassies abroad have rescued Filipino women workers who were illegally recruited and sent to nightclubs in Asia, Africa and Europe.

A presidential task force against illegal recruitment and human trafficking has been created to obliterate this illegal and immoral human trade.

Sadly, the fight against poverty has been left behind by the march of globalization. As the chasm between the rich and poor nations widen, the poor end up in an abyss of disillusion and despair.

As a dynamic network of labor unions across Asia and the Pacific, your group is in a unique position to rectify the situation. Your theme is already in the right direction.

A few months ago, an overseas Filipino worker in Iraq was caught in a conflict, not of his making. He was released after a crisis team was able to negotiate his release with the hostage-takers.

That worker is Angelo Dela Cruz, a truck driver from my home province of Pampanga. Angelo is now home, safe, and leading a quiet life with his family because we in the Philippines do put people first.

I hope that you will continue to consider and alleviate the plight of vulnerable workers such as Angelo Dela Cruz in your advocacy to put people first in the global agenda.

Thank you.

Message of President Arroyo on the Holy Month of Ramadhan

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the Holy Month of Ramadhan

[Delivered on October 15, 2004]

ASSALAMU ALAIKUM WARAMATULLAHI WABARAKATUHU...

I greet the Muslim Ummah on the occasion of the observance of the Holy Month of Ramadhan. I join the Muslim Filipino community in marking this month of sacrifice and self-denial. This is a timely event in an era of challenge, renewal and reform.

Ultimately, the message of the season is that of Peace, Hope and Unity. It is a message addressed to all Filipinos and to all mankind, at a time of strife and conflict in many land.

The Muslim Ummah's aspiration for peace and unity is one we hold dearly and will incessantly seek. It is enshrined in my Ten-point Agenda for governance over the next six years. Our dreams for our Muslim brothers is for each and everyone to attain their aspirations for peace and a better life. This shall be my government's unflagging goal.

This year's fasting season impresses upon us the urgency to respond to the growing needs of the poor and depressed communities. It provides us the opportunity to share a part of ourselves, and a portion of our sacrifices, to serve our less fortunate countrymen.

In Mindanao, peace is at hand. We have a ceasefire that is working and one which both sides in the conflict assiduously strive to maintain. The people of Mindanao no longer hear the cracking of the guns, secure in the thought of the instruments of war being locked up and happy in knowing that restraint is being sincerely exercised by both parties to the conflict.

Across the negotiating table, we must pursue a comprehensive and durable solution to the problems of Mindanao, a land of promise but whose promise had never been fulfilled. I shall strive to fulfill that promise.

Let us share with our Muslim brothers and sisters the collective sense of self-abnegation, sacrifice, and cleansing – and link arms to achieve the ultimate prize of peace.

May this Holy month of Ramadhan bring peace and prosperity to our country and people. Ramadhan Kareem!

Speech of President Arroyo during the 30th Anniversary of the Leyte Gulf Landing

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 30th Anniversary of the Leyte Gulf Landing

[Delivered at the Memorial National Park, Palo, Leyte, October 20, 2004]

Thank you Dick for your very kind introduction and for your beautiful words. Thank you for introducing me in behalf of your co-chairman Secretary Alberto Romulo. Si Secretary Bert Romulo po sana ang magpapakilala sa akin ngayon, ngunit ipinadala ko siya sa Indonesia, dahil iyong ibang bansa ng ASEAN pumunta iyong mga pinuno nila sa Indonesia dahil ito ang unang malawak na halalan mula noong giyera at importanteng panahon ito para sa Indonesia. Ngunit hindi ako makapunta doon dahil ito ay mahalagang panahon para sa ating bansa dito sa Leyte.

Governor Petilla, Congresswoman Petilla and the other officials of Region 8, including our host mayor, Mayor Cerilla of Palo, Reverend Dian, Archbishop, Former First Lady Mrs. Marcos, representatives of our allied forces, Ambassador Richard Ricciardone, thank you for the kind message from President Bush. Minister of State Douglas Alexander, thank you for coming all the way here and for the greetings. Our friends from Australia and New Zealand, Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps, our beloved gallant Veterans of the Philippines, America, Australia; members of the Cabinet, other presidential appointees, General Abaya and our other men in uniform, ladies and gentlemen. Maupay nga aga sa inyo na tanan. (Good morning to all of you.)

Sixty years ago today, the largest naval battle in the Pacific was fought and won here in Leyte. It marked the beginning of the end of all wars in our shores. And as patriots and allies marched forward and freedom surged across the place of Luzon, the coast of the Visayas and the jungles of Mindanao, 738 allied ships landed, 200,000 troops in the beaches of Leyte.

President Sergio Osmeña, General Douglas MacArthur, General Carlos P. Romulo and other heroes waded into shore in a dramatic moment captured buy the lens of history and now by our beautiful art work here in Palo.

Allies returned as promised in a saga of a brotherhood sealed in blood between fighters across the Pacific. General MacArthur was said to have 3 K's during the Leyte landing Vice Admiral Thomas Kinkaid, Lieutenant General Walter Krueger and Commander Kenny. But as Dick Gordon says, adding the Philippine perspective and interpretation of history, we must say he actually had a fourth K, the fourth being Colonel Kangleon, the Filipino resistance movement hero.

The Leyte area command under Colonel Kangleon gave MacArthur up to the minute intelligence on enemy ship movements, the weather and mine fields intelligence that greatly reduced war casualties. The Leyte landing therefore remind us of the valor not only of our allies, some of whom are still with us and have come back to celebrate with us today , but also the valor of our own war veterans.

If you are our grandfathers today, but most of you veterans were barely out of puberty when called upon to serve and fight. I salute you our war veterans and with the support of allies in the Senate like Dick Gordon, vow my utmost to find the means to enhance your rights and promote your welfare.

The valor of our war veterans continues to surge in the veins of the Filipino soldiers today. Their primarily war today is not a foreign invader, but rather the enemy within, especially the communist insurgents and other terrorists. In this war against the insurgents and other terrorists were bravely assisted by a continuing partnership with the allies of the Leyte landing, especially the United States.

With the United States, we continue to conduct Joint Military Exercises and Training to further hone our team capabilities against terrorism. With the United States we are working together to ensure the safety and security of our ports and the transport of passengers and cargo. As a result of this enhanced capability, the PNP and the AFP working with their allies have arrested suspected terrorists, defeated the leaders of the Abu Sayyaf, and preemptively seized bombing devices and explosives men to kill thousands of innocent people.

Within 6 months from now, 30 helicopters accompanied by spareparts will arrive in the Philippines from the United States. And the medium term, the U.S. for the next six years of my administration, the U.S. is assisting the Philippines in a wide ranging type of defense reforms worth about P4 billion. The historic bond between Filipinos and Americans forged 60 years ago in the flames of war lives on. U.S.A. idea seized Mindanao and other regions, particularly in education, human trafficking, women and children's rights and counter terrorism. It is releasing over $20 million in additional development assistance for the conflict within areas in Mindanao even before the signing of our final peace accord.

We have bilateral cooperation efforts against money laundering even after the U.S. government is helping put together, a system to make it easier and cheaper for Filipinos abroad to remit their money to their families back home. The Philippines is on the list of recipients of development funding from the millennium challenge account and in an amicable resolution of a hard profile case between the Philippines' biggest and inherited telecommunications companies and American companies, the U.S. busy court of Hawaii has nullified subpoena served on several Filipino businessmen. That bond forged in the flames of war yet lives on in our security and economic partnership with America.

It also lives on in a grand alliance of aspirations with the former enemy, Japan, now the leading source of official development assistance to the Philippines and a leading source of investment in tourism. It is a bond that includes very strongly other countries like Australia whose 5,000 soldiers also took part in the Leyte landing and which is now home to thousands of migrant Filipinos as well as being a strong supporter of the Mindanao Peace Agenda. It is a partnership that includes Great Britain, the source of the biggest single investment in the Philippines, namely, Shell natural gas investment. It includes New Zealand, which is very well known in Mindanao for a model Reforestation Program. Yes, the Philippines, the United States, Japan and other countries like Australia, Great Britain and New Zealand today believe in the same ideals, uphold common virtues and fight for the righteous cause. As vanguards of freedom, we derive mutual benefit from the relationship shared by a historic past, and blossoming in a challenging present.

More recently, the early return of our contingent from Iraq caused some frictions in our relationship with the United States and even with our other allies. The American government and even some of the other governments disagreed with our decision to put the life of a Filipino truck driver first before the exigencies of the diplomacy.

But, we do all that freedom to decide our national interests to the bloodshed by Filipinos, Americans and Australians in the Second World War. And we do appreciate that the controversy has ended and we have arrived at a higher kind of maturity in our strategic partnership.

As Dick said and as Minister Alexander acknowledged, our commitments to freedom and the war against terror are unplugging and they will be as unplugging in our determination to seek a just and honorable peace with rebels and insurgents. We will put down terrorists by the sword; at the same time that we seek to turn, the rebel swords into plow shares.

But again, as Dick said, let us also remember the civilians, the grandparents of many of those who are here with us today, the brave civilians to whom we owe our enduring tradition of democracy. Sixty years ago today, the ordinary Filipino is an epitome of sacrifice and courage, of resiliency and great fortitude. The late Carlos P. Romulo, incidentally my ninong, was with Mac Arthur in the landings has a story, that on the first few hours of the siege, a Filipino – weak and frail with hunger approached him and asked, "What can we do to help?" That frail and weak Filipino did not ask for food, for clothes, for anything at all, what he asked was what can could he do to help win the war.

That is the Filipino. Such selflessness and bravery are innate in the Filipino. And these are the qualities I still see today as we struggle against strong currents of fiscal crisis, as we ride the undertow of debt that we have gotten used to as a source of our development because it has been for generations, politically easier to borrow than to impose taxes. Decades of borrowing to finance our growth are catching up with us. Our budget goes to interest payments rather than to roads and bridges or to a more grandiose celebration that we could have today if we did not have to spend so much on interest payments or schools and medicines and our poor will suffer more if we fail in the eyes of our creditors, our American creditors, British creditors, Australian creditors, New Zealand creditors and then failing in their credit rating, find out that without borrowing from them, we have no more money of our own to fund our growth.

Political rhetoric will not save the poor, only a purposeful agenda carried out with strong resolve to reduce our debt and finance our development from our own resources, our own taxes, only these can liberate the Filipino from poverty and economic crisis. Let us therefore fight for the future of this country with all our mights. Let us emerge from this painful but necessary period of sacrifice and self-renewal, stronger and more united than before. We must honor the sacrifices of our heroes and the flag that waves above us would be for courage and solidarity.

The road ahead is tough, but we are tougher. History has taught us that freedom is a just reward of the believer, not just military freedom but economic freedom. Last September, the U.S.-ASEAN Business Council organized a business mission to the Philippines. Speaking in behalf of the Council, their President Walter Lowman (?) wrote me last week and may I quote, "Business interest is growing. This is the largest visiting business delegation we have ever had in the Philippines. This is a reflection of confidence in your leadership and commitment to reform. For our part, we are committed to work and complementing your leadership with private sector support." Ambassador Ricciardone, please give my thanks but also to President Bush, for all our brave American veterans but also to our friends, the American businessmen.

Sixty years ago, MacArthur came back to fulfill a promise, that promise led to our military liberation. Today, let us make a promise; let us make a new pact with history to win back our economic freedom and to correct the moral and economic deficits of the past.

Fellow Filipinos, this is the most important war today. This is the most important promise we can make today. Let us make this promise now on these hallowed grounds where our patriots fought one of the greatest battles of all time. Let us do right by our veterans. Let us make life better for them. Let us make life better for their grandchildren and all their descendants.

To all of you, to all of us, our friends, our allies, our veterans, our citizens, thank the Lord for the Leyte landing.

Damo salamat. Thank you very much. Maupay nga aga sa inyo tanan. (Good morning to all of you.)

Speech of President Arroyo during the Breakfast Forum with the Foreign Correspondents Association of the Philippines (FOCAP) Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Breakfast Forum with the Foreign Correspondents Association of the Philippines (FOCAP)

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Mandarin Oriental Hotel, Makati City, October 25, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary Bunye.

President Galvez and the other officers and members of FOCAP; excellencies of the diplomatic corps; ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you FOCAP for inviting me to be with you today. Well, you said you want me to be there next year in your anniversary. So, I told Twink, 'okay', let that be our meeting for next year, may 2005.

In any case, I welcome this opportunity to bring some of the most crucial issues into our discussion this morning.

My tenure in the presidency has gotten me used to facing crisis. The world is in constant flux, and the Philippines rides the tide of travails and uncertainties.

But mark my words, at the outset, the prognosis of doomsayers for the Philippines will not happen, not under my watch. And if we're able to do the reforms that I have planned out for the medium-term, not even in our lifetime.

The Filipino shall move forward, and I for the next six years will provide the leadership for the struggle to beat the odds.

The price for me will be steep. My ratings will continue to slump as we suffer transient constraints and take the bitter pill to cure structural poverty and clean up the fiscal and economic and political mess we inherited. But I'm prepared to suffer the consequences of unpopular decisions needed to finance our development from our own resources to strengthen the bureaucracy and to demand fair and legitimate sacrifices so early in my term.

We will prevail in the end, as we push hard on change and reform rather than to surrender to the status quo, as we meet our challenges headstrong rather than sweep this under the rug as we take on the short- term sacrifices that we need for long-term gain.

Our obstacles are steep but not insurmountable. The Philippines will pass the test.

Confidence in our economy shall be bolstered by an earnest executive- legislative partnership to pass fiscal reform measures. We're working to moderate the temporary dislocations affecting the poorest Filipinos that result from economic pressures or socioeconomic pressures, by safety nets which shall be put in place by the national and local governments working in teamwork.

Well, I'm glad we have some representatives of the military here. I asked Nonong Cruz to catch up.

Reform, professional loyalty, honor, discipline and morale shall be sustained by an Armed Forces engaged in its share of sacrifices and acts of redemption. The spirit of change shall be driven from within.

My administration shall not be... Will not be hobbled by reactionary forces or political has-beens out to exploit economic problems to foment social instability. I will deal with these destabilizers with an iron fist, even as I hold out an open hand and an open mind for those who are open to a just and dignified reconciliation.

The Filipinos shall rise to the apex of our potential as a nation through sacrifice and peaceful action. There are fundamentals in place. GDP grew by 6.3 percent this semester, up from 4.5 percent in the same semester last year and from last year's whole 5.6 percent.

Tourism arrivals are higher by 28 percent compared to the same period last year. For the first eight months of 2004, OFW remittances reached 5.5 billion dollars, 9.42 percent higher than the same period last year.

This semester, foreign investments jumped by more than 800 percent of the same period last year. The stock market rebounded to its highest level in... Since year 2000, and interest in NAPOCOR privatization is sparking business confidence.

The atmosphere of law and order is setting firmly. I congratulate the gentlemen in uniform who are seated there — the officers of the Philippine National Police. We have cut street crimes by almost half. We've shut down the operations of the largest shabu laboratory in the country found in Cebu. Terrorists continue to fall into the security dragnet and the remnants of kidnapping gangs have lain low.

The court martial of Major General Garcia will soon start. I have given instructions to General Abaya that he should start it before he retires this Friday.

The honor of the Filipino soldier is at stake, and I'm confident that the judges in uniform will conduct themselves in absolute fealty to the constitution, the people and the command.

To cast the graft dragnet farther and wider, the military Ombudsman's budget has been augmented so it can hire 25 new lawyers. An independent internal affairs office has been created to look into the procurement and financial systems of the military, and to receive grievances and complaints directly from the soldiers. We are vigorously carrying out the recommendations of the Feliciano Commission. I'm glad Rex Robles is here and I thank him for his contributions to that commission.

There shall be no whitewash in the investigation and prosecution of anomalies in the Armed Forces of the Philippines, RSBS and any other investigation for that matter.

The campaign against corruption is matched by more services and benefits to our soldiers. In my first term, I raised the salaries of soldiers and policemen to equal that of teachers. The allocation for the AFP housing program has been increased — that's for the common soldiers and young officers. On the other hand, we are removing overstaying retired military personnel in military housing facilities and all privately-owned quarters in military bases. We're also upgrading the state of AFP medical services and we've brought this nearer to the frontlines.

On the civilian side — but of course including also the military side because it encompasses all my presidential appointees — I'm transforming the Presidential Anti-Graft Commission into an effective institution similar to the Hong Kong's independent commission against corruption with the help of no less than the founder of ICAC himself, Tony Kwok. To give PAGC, the Office of the Ombudsman and even the military ombudsman more resources to fight corruption, I've approved an increase in their respective budget allocations.

I have no sympathy at all for grafters and their lame excuses, but on the other hand, I will not allow the terrorist insurgents and their fronts and grandstanders to be my hiring and firing committee. And for the majority of the workers in our government, I have tremendous respect and sympathy. For the majority of public servants who toil in anonymous dedication while being exposed to the grim hardships faced by our people. I shall derive my strength from them.

Our collection agencies, for instance, are on the march. The garnishment of properties and bank accounts of tax cheats continues. This year's tax collection may prove to be one of the highest in our nation's history.

We've also made significant gains in the anti-smuggling campaign. Importers, brokers and customs personnel are being held under tight monitoring for unlawful conduct. The Bureau of Customs has a smugglers order of battle composed of 200 or more names under team surveillance not only from the customs police but from the AFP, the PNP and the Philippine Coast Guard because I empowered the Commissioner of Customs to be able to get assistance from this other law enforcement agencies.

In Mindanao, things are looking up. The main contingent of the international monitoring team arrived last October 9 from Malaysia. A ten-person contingent from Brunei also arrived last October 20th. We expect a total of about 50 members of the multi-nation monitoring team when it's completed.

And while we continue to negotiate peace, the international donor community, the World Bank and the U.N. development program, are poised to implement various projects under the Mindanao trust fund once an accord is signed. Guns will be turned into plowshares in erstwhile conflict-affected communities. The U.S. is not waiting for the peace accord to be signed. They've started to provide the peace dividend even now. We are carrying the economy forward to the targets of our medium-term development plan. Let me spell out some of what we intend to get done by the time I end my term in 2010:

GDP growth accelerating to 7 percent;

A balanced budget;

Ten million jobs created;

Poverty incidence reduced to below 20 percent. Hopefully, 17.

We will create wealth by facilitating investments in sustainable mining, oil and gas exploration, the re-launching of massive reclamation projects and the development of the Clark-Subic corridor as the best logistics hub in the region.

We can create jobs by developing two million hectares of new lands for agri-business and promoting three million micro, small and medium enterprises.

We also aim:

To make food plentiful at reasonable prices to make labor costs globally competitive;

To reduce the cost of electricity through power sector reforms;

To modernize infrastructure and logistics to make transport and related costs efficient;

Mobilize and disseminate knowledge to make our workers and manufacturing processes more productive; and Reduce red tape especially for small enterprises, exports and the average driver of his own car or his own jeepney.

These are clearly defined and attainable goals. Our economic plan which was unveiled last October 11 is plainly understood and attainable.

It can be done — but not through endless bickerings or empty political grandstanding. The only way we can reach the apex of our potential as a nation is to discard defeatism and summon the courage to embrace change and reform — not as a passing fashion but as a way life.

The Filipino spirit is indestructible. Our history is replete with natural and political calamities overcome by our abiding faith in god and our innate sense of nationhood.

But for too long, politics and government have been the focus of our lives. This too has to change. It's time to 'outsource' public service as a duty of all Filipinos, not only of those in government. Government is not everyone's fairy godmother. Its powers to transform lives are nowhere as strong as the collective will of the people to take their destiny into their own hands.

All Filipinos must recognize and fight for our own true worth as a people and a nation. I take this as a challenge that my leadership must address.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the AFP Change of Command Ceremony

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the AFP Change of Command Ceremony

[Delivered at the Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, October 29, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary Cruz.

Troop commander give “tikas pahinga.”

Vice President Noli de Castro; former President Fidel Ramos and other former Chiefs of Staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; Speaker Jose de Venecia and other elected officials; Excellencies of the diplomatic corps; our new Chief of Staff, General Efren Abu; our former Chief of Staff, General Narciso Abaya, Former Chief of Staff and incoming president of the Bases Conversion and Development Authority; members of the Cabinet and other civilian appointees; Major service commanders; Vice Admiral de Leon; Vice Admiral Delos Reyes; Lieutenant General Adan; Lieutenant General Jose Reyes; and the incoming General of the Philippine Army, Lieutenant General Generoso Senga; Bishop Arguelles; and the other distinguished guests from the private sector; ladies and gentlemen:

It is my pleasure to bid General Abaya a proud farewell but only as a soldier. as you have applauded, I welcome him to the ranks of civilian public servants. When General Abaya made his valedictory, I could feel his pain as he spoke about being scorned, but I do not believe and I don't think any of you believe that general scorned except by a few, by the many, he continues to be admired. In fact, his outstanding academic record, his sterling military achievements and his personal refutation for integrity were what made the private sector recommend to me that he should be the president of an important government corporation.

It is also my pleasure to welcome our 33rd Chief of Staff general Efren Abu. Twice in the past two decades the armed forces of the Philippines came to the fore front of extra political change.

President Ramos was a leader of that first change and an icon in that second change. Beside our flag, the uniform took a new and great meaning, positive change and transformation, service above self.

We had a first wave of reform in 1986 immediately following the EDSA revolution, the second followed the Davide commission of 1990, the third followed the Feliciano commission of 2003 but as general Abaya very comprehensively analyzed in his valedictory much still needs to be done.

We must be immerse in the Filipino soldier as a fighter and agent of transformation and change.

In the last 18 months, I made two important strategic decisions to drive reform deeper in the armed forces. One was the appointment of General Abaya as Chief of Staff, again because of his academic achievements, his military record and his personal integrity I felt and I'm satisfied that he had the moral ascendancy to undertake those reforms.

The other measure that I took in order to drive reform in one deeper in the armed forces was the appointment of a civilian with no career ties to the military to serve as a Secretary of National Defense, Secretary Nonong Cruz. Secretary Nonong Cruz emphasizes the civilian character of a Department of National Defense and many of the reforms still left to be done as pointed out by General Abaya are not really something that we must expect to be done by the AFP Chief of Staff but rather by a civilian Secretary of Defense and Nonong Cruz is the man to lead those reforms.

Going back to General Abaya and his moral ascendancy to undertake reforms, his theme when I swore in as Chief of Staff was, "is reform in the AFP possible?" He posed that question when he took his oath as Chief of the Armed Forces and answered it throughout his term with an eloquence of action beyond the pale of fanfare and glory.

I don't have to enumerate the reforms he made, he enumerated many of them, let me just point out that as a result of those reforms under his watch, the military went on to score major victories against terrorists and criminal elements. Several notorious terrorists were killed or captured during his watch, among them Hamsiraji Salih, Commander Robot and very recently the bombers of Jemaah Islamiyah. Under his watch largely because of those reforms, peace has dawned in Mindanao.

And upon my instructions, he created the single bids and awards committee and the enhanced AFP grievance system, as well as implemented austerity measures in several sections to finance the full implementation of our soldiers' pay increase, he is right and I thank him. But even if he had to take a special new campaign upon my instructions, he never asked me for additional and he has succeeded in those campaigns living within the means provided the AFP by the General Appropriations Act.

His austerity measures enabled us to raise the salaries of the soldiers in accordance with the law that I asked Congress to enact and I thank the congressmen and senators who enacted that law. And because of this austerity measures done by the armed forces, I can assure our soldiers contrary to those who are trying to drive a wedge between you and me, that your implementation of your salary increases will continue to be carried out. The efforts undertaken by General Abaya to clean up the military bureaucracy indeed are matched by initiatives to improve the benefits of our soldiers.

So I did two things to make there will be reforms, a man with great moral ascendancy to do reforms that must be done within the AFP, and a civilian with no baggage to carry out the defense reforms that must be done over and above the efforts of the AFP.

My third equally important measure for reform has been to choose General Efren Abu as the next Chief of Staff. I don't know how well the public knows General Abu as of now, but the soldiers know him well, his exploits in the field, from Mindanao in the 1970s to a light armor brigade, to EDSA Dos, to Malacañang's Task Force Libra in 2002 and Makati's Oakwood counter operations in 2003 were all sterling and triumphant.

Now the wait of promulgating military justice bears heavily on the soldiers of the new Chief of Staff. He will oversee the court martial of Major General Garcia as well as the investigation of other officers similarly suspected of graft. But we have heard in his acceptance speech how committed General Abu is to fight corruption whether it be enforcement against specific individuals or reforms in the system itself like the abolition of J-6.

Indeed you have a heavy task General Abu, in this heavy task you have my full support.

Like all Filipinos I demand to know the truth about corruption, whether in the military or outside the military. But like General Abaya so emotionally appealed, neither will I allow the entire AFP to be dishonored, I can tell you that officers and soldiers because I know this to be true, the majority of our soldiers and officers are men and women of courage, integrity and devotion to duty. I am proud of the Filipino soldier.

And I am optimistic about our nation and our people. But to fight poverty and grow our economy. We purge the system of corruption, whether inside or outside the military. We must eliminate government waste, as Abaya has shown, it can be done in the military.

We must increase tax collection and invest in our nation through revenue increases dedicated to job creation, education and health care. We are moving closer to achieving our goals we have set in stabilizing our economy.

The interest payments we are making this month are lower than projected. And we acknowledge the key role played by Congress on the tax measures. Thank you very much Speaker De Venecia and the congressmen who are here today.

I appreciate the support of the House of Representatives and I am confident this will be reinforced in equal measures by the patriotism of the Senate. Thank you in advance to the senators who are here today.

Our revenue agenda to move resources to generate jobs, improve education, push health programs and broaden social reforms will continue to be propelled by multipartisan unity and a shared determination among our nation's leaders to shed off personal and party interest and to serve the supreme welfare of the people.

I'm glad General Abaya reminded, that was one of the recommendations of the Davide commission. As I said earlier, not all the recommendations are the responsibility of the AFP. As General Abaya said, one of the strong recommendations that General Abaya ended his speech with, is that there must unity between the administration and the opposition. Not a unity that stifles debate on issues but a unity such as what we saw in the passage of the tax on alcohol beverages and cigarettes. A unity such as what we are seeing in some of our talks with leaders of the Senate.

The root cause of our situation today is festering entrenched culture of corruption, like a cancer it must be cut out if the patient is to survive. And I'm glad that Abu gave words as strong as that.

We must collect stolen riches and put people on trial for their criminal behavior, whoever they are, wherever they work and live.

We cannot ask the people to sacrifice if the government and the rich get away with crimes that hurt the people and the nation. We are all part of the cycle of corruption and despair. And we must join hands to root out this evil that is strangling our nation. The nation will grow and prosper tomorrow for the tough decisions we make today.

General Abu, you have, as we have seen in your stint as head of the army and in your previous commands, you have the political will and the decisiveness. And now you have the singular mission of transforming the insidious attempts to besmirch the command into an opportunity to execute our fresh wave of sweeping reforms.

As I congratulate you, I urge you: Maintain that steady and straight line behind the flag.

And to Gen. Abaya, you have served well, may you continue to serve well. Mabuhay ang Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the oath taking of officers of the League of Provinces of the Philippines-Union of Local Authorities of the Philippines (LPP-ULAP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the oath taking of officers of the League of Provinces of the Philippines-Union of Local Authorities of the Philippines (LPP-ULAP)

[Delivered at the Century Park Ballroom, Century Park Sheraton Hotel, Manila, November 8, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary Dolfo del Rosario and former ULAP President.

Our honorees tonight — Dolfo, Joey and Al, who's on the way here represented by Alvin — our very important leaders of the Union of Local Authorities: Ric Aumentado, Monching Guico, Leo Bustamante, Jerry Treñas, Allan Zulueta, Carlo Fortuna, Bistek Bautista, James Marty Lim, Marianne Villegas; the different leaders of the local governments; our guests, the leaders of the business community, ladies and gentlemen.

Last week, my office, the office of the president, received a donation from two children, Zeus and Raya Soriano of Tiaong, Quezon, who sent one-half of their savings from each of their piggy banks.

Allow me to read my reply to Zeus who sent me P683.45 which I turned over to the National Treasury:

Mahal kong Zeus,

Dinadakila ko sa aking puso ang iyong taos-pusong pagmamahal sa bayan at pagmamalasakit sa kapwa sa kabila ng iyong kabataan.

Sana ay magsilbi kang halimbawa sa higit na nakakatanda sa iyo, lalo na doon sa mga ayaw magbayad ng buwis o kaya'y gumagawa ng katiwalian sa gobyerno.

Makakaasa ka na ang kalahati ng iyong naipon na umaabot sa P683.45 ay mapupunta sa ating Bureau of the Treasury na siyang tagapangasiwa ng kayamanan ng ating bansa.

Muli, maraming salamat at isang malaking karangalan para sa akin ang tanggapin ang iyong tulong para sa ating pamahalaan.

In the same manner, I also asked the business community tonight to be here, to thank them also because a few months ago, soon after I announced the fiscal crisis, they came up with the Bayanihan fund. Thank you very much for your support. And in the same manner, I thank you, my friends in the LGUs for also responding to the fiscal crisis that I announced three months ago.

I'm grateful for your support for our comprehensive tax reforms, the one that you... The manifesto that you presented to the Senate today, the manifesto that you will present to the house tomorrow because these tax reforms are the road out of the crisis.

And I am grateful that you even offered different formulas for deferring or freezing or... Your IRA as a contribution to the economy and the national interest. Whether I will need to take you up on your offer depends on many things.

But if indeed we get to pass those eight tax measures, and after all the IRA is the vested and legal right of the local governments, hopefully we will not have to go that far. But I am grateful for your commitment — deferment or no deferment, freezing or no freezing — for your commitment to reorient your development funds to support my 10-point legacy agenda. Thank you for that.

I'm also informed that there is a circular to mayors not to issue business permits unless applicants are certified by the BIR to have paid all their taxes, tama 'yon Monching? Thank you very much for that. And I'm glad the business community is here to hear that.

Three months ago, I was heavily criticized when I declared a fiscal crisis. But the people have a right to know, and the people have a right also to hear the boundaries of that crisis: it is a crisis if we persist in financing our needs through relentless borrowings, because soon the bulk of our budget will end up servicing our debt.

And if we keep doing that the poor, many of whom are your very own constituents, will suffer in greater numbers and deeper magnitudes.

Not that the solutions are now all being implemented, but a few days ago, I informed the public that while we still have a problem, the solutions are in sight, including the commitment from the business community, the local governments, the legislature, and the ordinary citizens, and congress. Therefore, we have passed the most critical stage. It's a crisis when you feel that there's no end in sight. But it becomes just a problem when you recognize it but you know where you're going and the end is in sight.

Again I was criticized. Too early, some said. But this turnaround towards a solution is not the handiwork of the presidency alone. It was the accumulation of positive responses, the call to patriotism swiftly answered by various institutions and sectors, the ones I mentioned earlier — oh, there's Julius Herrera, I was looking for him, President of the Vice Governors League. Good evening, Julius — which resulted in visible moves towards accomplishments that now spark our confidence in our capacity to solve the problem.

The synergy of actions after that declaration I made was a spontaneous, exuberant response by the people, the Congress, the Senate, the local governments, the executive branch.

And in turn, I acknowledge your call for assistance. You want assistance in the promotion of investments, you want assistance in tourism, you want assistance in special economic zones, you want assistance in agriculture. And here is the business community to listen to that call.

As local leaders, you do know that business goes where it feels most welcome not only by prospective clients but also by the community at large. The challenge is how you can convert your provinces, your cities, your municipalities, your barangays into highly competitive and attractive business hubs.

As I said, here, I have several of our business leaders. I asked Secretary Purisima to invite them, and I invited them so that they can interact with you and also because I want to repeat before you, the local authorities, and before you, the business leaders, what I said a few days ago in Iloilo before the pro-poor NGOs and the religious leaders: "I'm optimistic about our nation and our people. But to fight poverty and grow our economy, we must purge the system of corruption, we must eliminate government waste, we must increase tax collection, we must invest in our nation through revenue increases dedicated to job creation, education and health care."

The root cause of our situation today is a festering, entrenched culture of corruption. Like a cancer, it must be cut out if the patient is to survive.

We must collect stolen riches and put corrupt officials on trial for their criminal behavior whoever they are, whoever they work and live.

We cannot ask for the people to sacrifice if the government and the rich get away with crimes that hurt the people and their nation.

We're all part of the cycle of corruption and despair and must join hands to root out this evil that is strangling our nation.

The nation will grow and prosper tomorrow for the tough decisions we make today.

As we raise new taxes, we need to be assured that the rich pay their fair share.

People who owe their taxes need to pay their taxes. And I ask the business leaders to come here tonight because I want to thank you, business leaders, for helping bring an end to the era of dodging our obligation to the nation.

Of course, many people still don't pay their fair share of taxes today, either because they are tax evading or because loopholes in the law allow them to avoid taxes.

The government is making sure that all these tax evaders and tax avoiders pay their taxes and meet their obligation to the nation through executive action and legislative action.

Through executive action, the government is increasing the efficiency of its collections and modernizing its technology to collect more taxes.

The people also deserve to know that their money, their tax money is well-spent, and that any new tax money goes to real projects to help the people in education, job creation and health care.

I therefore want to emphasize that all new taxes will be designated funds or dedicated funds or earmarked funds, whatever term you want to use, and they will go straight to dedicated projects for the people so that they can't be diverted by politicians and bureaucrats and misspent or used to line their pockets through corruption.

We need new revenue to build up the nation and get our economy on solid footing. Without the new funds, we will not be able to invest in our pro-poor agenda and make it a reality.

Dedicated tax increases are merely one element of righting the country and must go hand in hand with measures to weed out corruption and increase revenue collection.

So, where will the taxes go? They will be dedicated, earmarked for job creation, for education and for health. That's where all new taxes will go.

We are severing our ties to a decadent past where government spending resulted from largely political rather than economic decisions. And together with ULAP, I'm confident we can make government work and serve the people instead of the other way around.

We are all in this together.

Raya and Zeus wrote me because they felt responsible for their country's future. From these young patriots, we see the future and it is luminous in its prospects.

From a fiscal crisis three months ago — because nobody wanted to face it, that's why I have to point it out — to a fiscal problem because now we are all facing it, the fiscal turnaround is in sight.

And our partnership will move the Philippines forward from a realm of poverty into a realm of prosperity and dignity, you and I, local officials.

You and I, local officials together with the business community, the legislature and the small citizens, you and I, will go through this historic journey as partners for political stability and unprecedented economic growth.

To you all, congratulations! And thank you.

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the U.P. College of Law General Alumni Homecoming

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the U.P. College of Law General Alumni Homecoming

[Delivered at the Rizal Ballroom, Shangri-la Hotel, Makati City, November 12, 2004]

Thank you very much Joey, class '79 and my former Secretary of Local Government, now more prosperous as President of Manila Hotel. Senate President Frank Drilon; Gabby Villareal, class '79 also, but to me fondly known as the son of my father's speaker of the House of the Representatives Cony Villareal; Attorney Villaluz; Boy Regino, Chairman; and of course our very illustrious Ombudsman Sonny Marcelo also class '79; members of all classes of the U.P. law school; Ladies and Gentlemen:

Thank you for inviting me once again to your homecoming. It's always an important occasion for me to be able to talk to you. And to listen to you afterwards when we're having our socials.

I value your talent and your contribution to the Philippines—Four presidents and twelve Chief Justices of the Supreme Court including our much admired Chief Justice Davide walked through the portals of your institution.

Senate President Drilon leads your alumni in the upper chamber in the legislative solutions to our fiscal problems, they're so many of them dwell from U.P. Law of School: Kiko Pangilinan, Miriam Defensor-Santiago, Pia Cayetano, Ed Angara, Johnny Ponce Enrile, Dick Gordon and Joker Arroyo.

And a good number of Associate Justices of the Supreme Court and the other Appellate Courts and the Regional Trial Courts and members of the House are your colleagues I see here —Louie Villafuerte, and Sim Datumanong, and I'm told that somewhere here is also also Congressman Edcel Lagman.

I have a number of appointees—I don't want to mention all of them because.. the whole night but we can point out among the distinguished alumni of U.P. Law School that I appointed: Ramon Magsaysay Awardee and PCGG Chairperson Haydee Yorac, then of course Sonny Marcelo, the cutting edge against corruption, and I'm happy to let you know that the World Bank and many others including our budget officers are working to strengthen the investigative capability of the Ombudsman because everybody believes Sonny Marcelo. I see Mario Bautista though he is not an appointee, I'd like to congratulate him too, class of '79 would also be proud of him.

Now, outside of class '79, class '77, right? He is not here tonight, is Nonong Cruz, our truly civilian Defense Secretary. He will undertake Philippine Defense reforms, only a civilian secretary conduit with the aid of the U.S. government over the next five years. He is not here because I send him to China as a follow up of the unprecedented security and defense alliance we're entering into with the People's Republic of China. But I'm also happy to let you know that for Nonong's defense reform program which the U.S. will assist for the next five years we've met our Philippine counterpart funding. So, I think many of the reforms that we are all looking for in the defense can be done by U.P. Law Alumnus Nonong Cruz.

Well, I've already talked about, I've already mentioned the Mario Bautista, although he is not my appointee he helped turn the tide of history as private prosecutor, when he presented Clarissa Ocampo as a key witness in the trial of the century. Congratulations to Mario. Thanks for your contribution to EDSA II.

Truly, from the class of '79 our host, we have so many of you who are serving not only the government, you are serving in the private sector, serving to improve transparency and fight graft and corruption whether in government or in the private sector. I am truly happy to be here tonight and I pointed out what your colleagues have been doing, your alumni have been doing about the fiscal problem and also in the fight against corruption, because the starting point in our effort to address our fiscal problem begins with the acknowledgement that the root cause of our problems in our nation today is an entrenched culture of corruption.

Too many people and companies in the Philippines do not pay their fair share of taxes. They are aided and abetted by a system of inadequate tax laws and government corruption. What we're doing is to make sure that tax dodgers and corrupt officials are caught and that the taxes and ill-gotten gains are used for the public good. I have ordered the release of 100 million pesos to bolster our anti-smuggling campaign.

And as part of our efforts of the fruits of our efforts in fighting graft with the executive branch, I'm glad that revenue has grown to P516.4 billion in the first nine months of this year, up by 13.1% over the same period last year, and higher than this year's target of P501 billion. How did we overshoot the target? Mostly due to stronger enforcement of tax and the use by our BIR revenue of information technology systems that help track tax dodgers.

We have prosecuted over two dozen ranking officials whose corrupt practices were identified through our lifestyle checks and other investigation programs. And in that celebrated case you all knew about I have instructed the military to be resolute in the case against their former comptroller General Garcia. He shall be dealt with to the fullest extent of the law. I hear a murmur. I'm wording, I'm wording my speech very carefully so that you will not use anything I say to follow that deal in his behalf. Are we making an example of General Garcia? Sorry Attorney but you bet, but the example is not just meant for his fellow military officers, it's meant for everyone in government.

We must tackle corruption wherever it may be found, be it the military, civilian government, or the private sector. And if we are to restore any sense of fairness in the system we must do that.

The Philippines is at a crossroads and there is only one path to take if we are to turn the country around: the path of fiscal discipline, the generation of new revenue and the rooting out of corruption in government.

We have made progress, but we need real momentum. Many generations of slow growth and years of government promises and malfeasance have left our people very deeply cynical. Because of this, success in achieving the 10-point legacy agenda I outlined in my Presidential Inaugural Address will be based on restoring faith in our institutions of government and making real progress in the fight against poverty. But in order to do this, I need Congress. I need the Senate.

We need to generate increased levels of revenue to support our goal of a balanced budget by 2010 and not perpetuate inaction. I remember when I was a Senator I would be visited by credit-rating agencies nagging me about indexation of alcohol and cigarette taxes, nagging me about expanding VAT and those are still the same challenges we have today.

Of course we are not close to the situation faced by Argentina because our debts have a long-term scheduling. Our international debt obligations. Nevertheless, our fiscal challenge is to balance our national budget by 2010, reduce our consolidated public sector deficit, and reduce our debt stock. Because we have such a large debt stock, servicing costs are immensely draining and they take valuable resources away from public investments that would otherwise be used to expand economic opportunity for our people.

That's why we the executive and the legislative branches of government are actively working together on the structural reforms that will address this situation.

I'm heartened that the House of Representatives has approved the most difficult of my eight proposed tax measures, the excise tax on alcohol and cigarettes, and other tobacco products. And Frank tells me that the committee report in the Senate has been prepared and the Senate will begin floor debate on an even more stringent version early next week.

The House worked also until 2 a.m. Yesterday morning to pass the second of those tax measures, the lateral attrition bill. Thank you Louie, thank you Sim, thank you Edcel if you're somewhere here. The passage of this law will set out both incentives for performance and penalties for government officials who're not doing their job to support our revenue collection efforts. This addresses a basic failing of our civil service code and is expected to generate new levels of revenue.

Early next week, as the Senate begins deliberating the more stringent version of the alcohol and the cigarette taxes the House will begin to deliberate the fiscal, incentives bill, it will be on the floor of the House of Representatives.

And when I receive these three bills on my desk, and I'm assured by the congressional leaders that they'll be on my desk well before the year ends, I look forward to their fetching about P30 billion of the P80 billion tax increment that we want to finance development and balance our budget by 2010.

So, in spite of the numerous challenges we face, we're living within our deficit ceiling. Our deficit reached only P141.9 billion in the first nine months of this year, compared to the allowed ceiling of P143.3 billion for the period. So, it's not our current deficit that's really the problem, it's our big debt stock that keeps eating up into our budget as far as interest expenses are concerned.

But we are making breakthroughs in solving our near-term fiscal problems, so that we can lay down the foundation for robust economic growth in the coming years. And I took that opportunity, I grabbed the opportunity to accept the invitation that you sent me to be with you tonight because you are such important leaders of the profession. And I need you if we are to have national solidarity. This is the time for national solidarity for fiscal reform and against corruption wherever it can be found—in government, in our courts, even in the at bus stops and dimly lit corners where you have, had mulcting cops awaiting the hurried commuter or driver.

The rule of law can release this nation from the stranglehold of poverty and corruption. And you, the U.P. Law Alumni, you are exemplars of wisdom and justice. And you will, beyond reasonable doubt, forge a society of laws, and not of men.

Yes you are leaders of the country, of the executive branch, the legislative branch, the judiciary, the private profession.

So, I need you all to help me lead this nation to prosperity. Thank you. And happy alumni welcome!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Filipino-Chinese General Chamber of Commerce Centennial Anniversary

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Filipino-Chinese General Chamber of Commerce Centennial Anniversary

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, November 15, 2004]

Thank you very much, Dante for your kind introduction.

Doctor Dy and the other officers of the General Chamber; Don Emilio Yap, our host here in Manila Hotel; members of the diplomatic corps; Dick Gordon, Senator Dick Gordon and the other legislators who are here tonight; members of the Cabinet; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen:

Good evening and happy centennial anniversary to the General Chamber!

I'm so pleased to see so many of you tonight, and so many who have been my supporters for over so many years, thank you for your support. and, of course, congratulations for 100 years of significant contribution to the growth and development of trade, commerce and industry in the country.

I would also like to give a special thanks to Doctor James Dy. In the film showing, you saw a Memorandum of Agreement with the Malacañang Press Corps. I want to thank Doctor Dy for his valuable assistance to the working press which covers Malacañang.

Toting Bunye told me that Doctor Dy who is also the chair of the Chinese General Hospital has renewed for the second year your Memorandum of Agreement with the Malacanang Press Corps. The MOA guarantees to bonafide reporters, TV crew and photographers covering the Malacañang beat, the following:

Immediate admission of media men and their immediate relatives in case of emergency;

50 percent discount on professional fees;

30 percent discount on direct hospital expenses.

Thank you for your generosity, Doctor Dy.

And to all the members of the General Chamber, thank you also for your various manifestations of generosity shown over the past century. And thank you, too, for enriching our country with the Chinese values of thrift, humility, hard work, discipline and sacrifice, and showing how these values can bring about great success. We need these values, not only for the success of individual entrepreneurs but also as a nation to solve our fiscal problem.

The country needed a wake-up call on the importance of getting our fiscal house in order. I think I've achieved that since last August. Now, there is a renewed sense of shared determination among you, the business community, among the legislators to put aside personal and party interest and work together in the best interests of the nation. You can see this in the congressmen staying up until dawn to pass the Alcohol and Cigarette Tax and the lateral attrition measure. You can see this in the senators who have resolved that they will pass an even more stringent version of the Alcohol and Cigarette Tax. You can see this in the active dialogue taking place regarding all our reform measures.

We have had always positive dialogue, including with you, the business community and also even with the credit rating agencies. As far as the credit rating agencies is concerned, I can surmise that their concern has as much to do with the timing of our reform measures as the measures themselves. That said, no one feels the urgency more than I and that is why, today, the legislative and the executive branches of government have been working hand in hand.

Let me also state, that we all realize, senators, congressmen and the executive, that we must pass significant legislation in the coming months, and not just one or two bills. Our united focus is the following:

The reform of NAPOCOR which will significantly reduce the consolidated public sector deficit next year because NAPOCOR is our biggest source of the national deficit;

Raise revenues through the enactment of at least three new tax measures;

Further tax collection efficiency and expenditure control;

Reduction in the consolidated public sector deficit.

But we realize that the root cause of our situation today is a festering, entrenched culture of corruption. And like a cancer, it must be cut out if the patient is to survive. Many people don't pay their fair share of taxes today and they are aided and abetted by corruption in government. We're making sure that these corrupt officials and tax dodgers are caught, ill-gotten gains and taxes collected, and that collections move up substantially.

In 2004 alone, we've already filed two dozen cases against government officials whose corrupt practices were identified through our lifestyle check and other programs because we must tackle corruption wherever it may be found, be it in our ports of entry, or the private sector, or the government, or the military, if we are to restore any sense of fairness in the system.

I have instructed the Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces to surrender General Carlos Garcia to the Sandiganbayan, but because his warrant for arrest... His warrants for arrest in the Sandiganbayan is for bailable offenses, I've also instructed that once he bails himself out of the civilian jail, he must be returned to military detention.

The war against corruption also requires a war against smuggling. And this war against smuggling is being threatened... Strengthened in all our major ports and retail outlets, and I ask you, the officers and members of the General Chamber, to cooperate with me in that war.

We need all this to be able to fix our fiscal house. We have set a target date for a balanced budget by 2010. But to achieve it by 2010 we must begin today. Our resolve for fiscal restraint and economic reform begins now. Our economic plan has had solid results. Strong economic growth including robust stock market gains. In fact last year, portfolio investment... No, not last year. In October, portfolio investments in the stock market went up 29 percent over the previous year. And as a result of Dick Gordon's reforms when he was still in dot, tourism has gone up 27 percent this year. we've increased revenue collections by 13 percent. And now a singular pursuit of deep reforms in energy and other areas is what we're going to do.

We are on track as you can see with our fiscal targets this year, even overshooting our revenue projections. And we are doing everything we can — catching tax dodgers, firing corrupt revenue officials, keeping an eye on austerity to ensure that we have a more successful repeat performance in the years to come.

By the end of the year, moving into early 2005, the head of my economic team, Secretary Cesar Purisima — and mind you he's a top rate auditor and accountant — estimates that about 60 billion pesos will be removed from our deficit: P40 billion will come from the adjustment in power rates, because I said NAPOCOR is the biggest source of our deficit; P5 billion will come from the 2 percent tariff on fuel that we've imposed; and at least P7.5 billion will come from the alcohol and cigarette taxes; and P10 billion will come from the lateral attrition law.

Why am I so confident or why is Cesar so confident that the lateral attrition law will bring in at least 10 billion? Because even now by tax mapping alone, without using performance incentives, the BIR has been able to raise an additional 6 billion pesos. Can you imagine once the incentives provided by the lateral attrition law cut in, we can double this amount.

At the same time, our TRANSCO assets will be sold for an anticipated 110 billion pesos. This should be sufficient to keep us on track with our deficit reduction program next year.

By the end of 2005, we expect to raise 70 billion pesos from the tax measures that we sent to Congress because Speaker De Venecia expects — he told me today that he believes — he expects that by the end of 2005, seven of the eight tax measures in our fiscal program will be passed.

So you see, we are very serious about putting our fiscal house in order. We're not only balancing a budget, but balancing the interests of the people, because any new revenues will go to job creation, education and health.

This is a government that takes its fiscal responsibilities seriously. And time will demonstrate our commitment and I'm confident we will prove to you and to everyone who cares about our country our political will to reform and direct our resources to investment in our nation.

I thank the business community at large, because you have been so supportive of our efforts. And tonight I thank, in particular, the General Chamber for your support. I thank you for your help in addressing the fiscal problem. And I ask you to stay the course until the turnaround.

On that score, may I ask that everyone join me in a toast: to the Filipino-Chinese General Chamber of Commerce in building our nation over the last 100 years and to your success in the next 100 years.

Mabuhay!

[Delivered in San Francisco, California, USA, November 18, 2004]

A TOAST TO PINOY EXPATS

I 'm truly proud of the Bay Area Filipino community. You're always proving that the Filipinos stand tall no matter what job needs to be accomplished, no matter how difficult the challenges may seem.

You honor our country with your sense of nationhood and vibrant community spirit even as you have been deepening your involvement in the political processes of your adopted nation. As far as that's concerned, I refer here to a distinguished list of Filipino-Americans now serving in high level positions like Dennis Normandy, president, Public Utilities Commission. The mayor said Dennis Normandy handles about what? 35 billion dollars worth of assets, public utilities in San Francisco. And then there's Jackie Lingad Ricci, who not only organized this but she's president of the juvenile probation commission, congratulations Jackie. And the newest high level appointee, Agnes Briones, director, small business administration. I don't know if she's here but she was earlier here with me at the University of San Francisco.

May I repeat my congratulations to those who won in the recent elections led by Joe Estevez, Frank Batara, Ruth Asmundson, and I will add Rodel Rodis – I don't see him, I'm sure he's somewhere here – who gained a seat as a trustee of the San Francisco community college district.

I also want to thank you, Filipino community; for successfully lobbying for the retention of the Philippines as a worthy investment country of Calpers, America's largest pension fund. I gave a special award to Ambassador del Rosario for that but I wanna be here to thank all of you. And may I have a special thanks to the veterans who traveled to Sacramento for rising once again to our country's defense in the twilight of your years. I'm going to give a special mention about you once again to President Bush when I see him in Santiago.

And even as I speak of the Filipino-American veterans, congratulations to the American Legion War Memorial Commission for hosting the commemoration of the 60th anniversary of the Leyte landing right here in the Bay Area.

Speaking of President Bush. Last week, he called me up, and we both agreed that we must keep our friendship strong.

There is new leadership in Southeast Asia. In Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia, and of course, because of your support, with me again in the Philippines. There is renewed leadership in America after President Bush's reelection. We look for America to reengage with Asia, to inspire confidence through multilateral action and work hand in hand with the Asian region and the Philippines toward greater understanding.

America under President Bush has a unique opportunity to strengthen international relationships and work with traditional friends like the Philippines. Because you know cause you're always in touch with your relatives. We know in the Philippines, America remains a strong ally and a friend of our people. And we know that there are always ways to enhance our historic relationship.

Early this week, 21 economies unanimously elected the Philippines to head APEC's counter-terrorism task force. This honor affirms the international community's trust and confidence in our capability and earnestness to fight terror. We want to move forward with President Bush on this. We want to move forward too with him on the quest for peace in Mindanao and for broader global cooperation in trade and economic issues.

I'm glad that the new mayor of San Francisco will soon be leading a trade delegation to the Philippines.

Also last week, the U.N. General Assembly unanimously approved a resolution initiated by the Philippines on inter-faith dialogue. This is also a moral and diplomatic victory for all Filipinos who share a deep abiding faith in the lord. But I am aware and you're aware that the Philippines is at a critical juncture and there's only one path to take if we are to turn the country around: the path of fiscal restraint, the generation of new revenue, and rooting out of corruption in government.

I am undertaking these efforts and they are geared to building confidence in our markets and attracting investments, and expanding our international reserves so that i can create more jobs.

Ninety five percent of you voted for me, and therefore you elected me in may on a very issue-specific platform of economic reform, pro-poor investments and the political will to change the system. You know Lupita Kashiwahara was my personal campaign manager. I chose the campaign on a very specific platform because so many years of broken dreams have left the nation politically cynical and economically frustrated.

Because of this I see that success in achieving my goals will be based on restoring faith in our institutions of government and making real progress in poverty alleviation. However, in order to do this we need Congress to pass the economic reforms and we must tackle corruption wherever it may be found, be it in the military, on the civilian government, on the private sector if we are to restore any sense of fairness in the system.

I want to assure you that we are not close to the situation faced by Argentina because of a very well-managed maturity profile of our international debt obligations. Less than thirteen percent of our debts are due this coming five years. Nonetheless, our fiscal challenge is one that must be addressed because the total debt level is very high.

And I mentioned our Congressmen here, because I thank them for passing the bill raising the excise tax on alcohol, cigarettes and tobacco products and the lateral attrition bill – kind of hard to understand what that is. So boy, I decided to give a new name to the lateral attrition bill, something self-explanatory – the accountability reform bill. They were recently passed by the lower house. What is this lateral transition bill that's why I'm calling it now the accountability reform bill because it sets out both incentives for tax collection performance for those revenue agents who collect more than the targets but it sanctions and remove from their position those government officials who fail to meet their revenue targets.

The alcohol and cigarette tax, well, that's self-explanatory. It's now on second reading in the Senate, and the senate said that they will pass an even more stringent version than the House of Representatives.

These are the two pieces of legislation of eight that I am asking Congress to pass on revenues, and of course this two will not be enough to address our deficit challenge. So these... Our Congressmen had committed to bring the same pressure to bear on Congress with the remaining six legislative measures that are included in our tax program. Daghan salamat, dako gid nga salamat, aton mga Congressmen.

And while we're taking steps on a number of fronts to generate more revenue, we're also focused on reining in spending. In fact, we're optimistic that we'll be able to stay within our full year fiscal deficit ceiling, but controlling the deficit is not enough. The starting point in our effort to address our fiscal problem begins with the acknowledgment that the root cause of our situation today is an entrenched culture of corruption.

Incidentally, I was greeting former mayor of Milpitas. I had to greet the former mayor of Daly City, Mike Guingona, whom I also saw earlier.

Anyway, speaking of corruption in the Philippines. Many people and in companies in the Philippines still don't pay their fair share of taxes, and much of this is because they are aided and abetted by a system of inadequate tax revenue regulations and government corruption. That's why we're making sure that both corrupt officials and tax dodgers are caught and their ill-gotten gains and taxes collected and used for the public good.

Because of all these that we're doing, I anticipate that in the first quarter of 2005 tax collection efforts will continue to improve. And I am let me tell you, optimistic about our country and our people. When I see you I become even more optimistic. Your regular remittances play a major role in keeping our domestic economy from sliding down. Thank you. Ito ay isang malaking bagay hindi lamang para sa inyong mga pamilya kundi para sa bawat Pilipino.

And while your continuous remittances indeed serve well to keep our economy afloat, I encourage our overseas Filipinos to make additional efforts to overcome the massive challenge that our country faces today.

I know that the Filipino-Americans make up one-third of our overseas Filipinos but you send two-thirds of our remittances home. And can you imagine what an additional 20 dollars a month remittance can do from you to further uplift our nation. Sa karagdagang 20 dollars na remittance ng bawat is a sa pitong milyong Pilipinong nasa abroad kada buwan, ito ay aabot sa higit na 140 million dollars. Our 1.68 billion-dollar sa isang taon ito ay higit kumulang 100 billion pesos sa pera natin. Siguradong makakatulong ito sa inaasam nating tuloy-tuloy na pagsulong ng ating bayan.

And so, I appeal to you, let's help each other. Help your relatives more. Go beyond the call of duty because in the end these concerted efforts will benefit an entire race from which a new generation of Filipinos will emerge to carry on a legacy of love for family, love for country, love for life.

And finally... Finally, I would like to greet all of you the best of the holiday season. May you be blessed with the gifts of love, peace and joy this Christmas.

Maraming salamat, dactal nga salamat, dios agngina unay, daghan salamat damo gid nga salamat.

Mabuhay ang bawat Pilipino.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 69th Anniversary Celebration of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 69th Anniversary Celebration of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP)

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, November 21, 2004]

Thank you very much, Secretary Cruz.

Please sit down.

Secretary Ermita and the other officials — I heard everybody calling him Lieutenant General Abu earlier today. Let me be the first to call him General Abu— and the major service commanders, recipients of the military honors and distinctions in this year's anniversary celebration, men and women of the Armed Forces as well as their relatives and friends, other guests, ladies and gentlemen: good morning and happy anniversary to the AFP.

Military service is the epitome of national service. It's a profession reserved for the brave but also for the selfless.

In my years as commander-in-chief I've seen the Armed Forces as a hand of steel in a velvet glove.

I've seen this in the terrible fight against terror in Basilan. I've seen this in the rescue operations in Quezon. And I see this again today that you have done away with the parade on AFP day and put the money in the kitty for disaster victims shows the leadership of General Abu as being sensitive to the call of the times.

Indeed, no one should test the sensitivity of the Filipino soldier to the feelings of the Filipino people. And no one should question the loyalty of the soldier to our people. All the conspiracies that have attempted to withdraw the allegiance of the Armed Forces from my government have miserably failed. And I thank you once again for your loyalty.

Today, our Armed Forces face the most formidable challenge. But it's a challenge not only to the Armed Forces, it is a challenge that our national culture itself faces, and that is the challenge of self-redemption.

As General Abu said, some have disgraced the command, they must be tried and punished. But those who have stained the uniform are not the real AFP.

Today, we honor the real AFP. today, we recognize the valor and excellence of the troops. The medal of valor: Lieutenant Colonel Noel Buan and Staff Sergeant Leopoldo Diokno, Jr., Two scout rangers who took on the Abu Sayyaf in a close quarter firefight — tawag nila doon sa tagalog mano-mano — that killed the entire group of the enemies including Hamsiraji Sali, one of the most notorious terrorist leaders in history.

The distinguished service star, the gold cross medal, the Philippine legion of honor for bravery in combat, military management reforms, successful peace negotiations, gallantry in action, and exceptionally meritorious and valuable leadership, respectively — this represent the real AFP.

The men who died in the line of duty will be remembered as our vanguards of peace and security in a world of growing challenges. And the many other worthy non-military individuals and institutions like the Kapuso Foundation that are being bestowed awards today have been equally gallant and noble for our people. Thank you for your service to our people.

When January kicks in, we are in for a formidable test of performance and delivery of results in all areas of national concern. After all, the best defense against military adventurism is sound governance founded on moral leadership.

2005 is a year for urgent change in the Philippines. To get the economy back on track, we will improve tax collection, pass a budget that will support our ten-point legacy plan and pro-poor agenda and take executive action to break the culture of corruption. I expect you the soldiers to be by my side, to man the flanks by keeping all threats to national security at bay.

I bid you to stand beside me in the quest for peace, with honor, dignity and justice for all Filipinos.

The work, the struggle, the fight will be hard on the soldiery. But I am consistently committed to the goal of a quality of life for the Filipino soldier that measures up to the job and the burdens of the soldier's family.

Buo ang aking tiwala sa kakayahan at paninindigan ni Fernal Abu na isulong ang reporma sa AFP. At buong-buo ang aking tiwala na ang kawal ay tapat na naglilingkod at maaasahan sa makabuluhang pagbabago.

On this day, I salute you. It should be a proud day for the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Mabuhay kayo!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo on the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) economic integration

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On the ASEAN economic integration

[Delivered at the Don Chan Palace Hotel, Vientiane, Laos, November 28, 2004]

THE FUTURE OF EXPANDED ASEAN ECONOMIC INTEGRATION

The first ASEAN vision was to have an ASEAN community enlivened by the free flow of goods, services, investments and skilled labor and the freer flow of capital. This is the reason we established three years ago, in our summit meeting in Brunei, the ASEAN business advisory council which would convene annual ASEAN business summit meetings in conjunction with the annual ASEAN summit meeting.

We saw the ASEAN BAC as a vehicle to provide private sector feedback on the implementation of ASEAN economic cooperation and to identify priority areas for our consideration as a means of making ASEAN more economically integrated and regionally competitive. I'm very glad that the business community has taken the initial step to realize the ASEAN economic community with the institutionalization of the ASEAN pioneer project scheme under ASEAN BAC where your developing business projects that will be undertaken with the participation of, two or more ASEAN countries. For instance, you've already started to work, isn't it, Joe on tourism and agriculture? And I'm glad to hear that you had a very productive workshop on tourism this morning.

Now, the vision is becoming even grander as it expanded to include Japan, South Korea and China. In a region where poverty is a common enemy in the midst of rapid but uneven growth, ASEAN's response is the full integration of East Asia and strong linkages with the rest of the world.

The only way we can spread the benefits of development more evenly and rapidly among us, and also to stand on our own is through expanded ASEAN economic integration.

For the past decades, the exceptional growth in this part of the world has been due in large part to the export markets afforded to us by North America and Europe. Growth has also been driven to some degree by the ability of Asians to do what has been called "reverse engineering" taking apart an existing product from the U.S. or Europe, reproducing it cheaply or making a better product, and selling it back to where it came from.

But now, amidst the economic tensions of East and West, this business model is now becoming untenable. There are now economic tensions between East and West because to ensure their economic growth, there has emerged among the developed countries of the West a growing resistance to the Asian business model. Therefore, we can no longer continue to rely on that market. We can only see one way out, and that is not by looking West but rather by looking inward.

The prospects are formidable if the inward includes the three developed ASEAN countries. The prospects include a single market of almost two billion people integrated by a synergy of interests within the haves and the have-nots, strengthened by the responsibility of the developed members to assist the others to increase their capacity and overall purchasing power.

An enlarged East Asian bloc can secure not only the future of the developing and less-developed countries of ASEAN, but also the future of China, Japan and Korea as economic leaders in the Pacific century.

Therefore, they must actively participate, and we must all participate towards the formation of an East Asian regional economic bloc.

The innate strength and potential of an economically integrated East Asia, however, will depend not only on governments but more heavily on their entrepreneurs and businessmen, and how you, the businessmen embrace the larger universe of trade.

We can always talk about landing rights in government but it is you, the businessmen who will get into the joint ventures among the airlines who will use those landing rights. As the agenda of ASEAN economic integration expands into an East Asian economic integration, the active involvement of the private sector and industry stakeholders – being the driving force of the economy, indeed – will become more and more crucial.

You, the business community should welcome expanded ASEAN economic integration because it will give more developed countries in the ASEAN +3 bloc, namely: Japan, Korea, Singapore, Brunei, Malaysia and Thailand, the responsibility to help improve the quality of life of less-developed and developing countries by increasing per capita income all over ASEAN, which will enhance the purchasing power of all citizens in the ASEAN community and thus effect in turn a larger market for the products and services of these more developed countries. How far have we gone on the expanded ASEAN + 3? We've gone quite far as far as china is concerned.

We've launched the early harvest program for ASEAN integration with China. In the Philippines we're now fast-tracking our efforts to make our agricultural sector competitive because we are entering into this free trade agreement as is the rest of ASEAN with china earlier than originally envisioned.

But as far as Japan and Korea are concerned many of you businessmen feel that the fifteen remaining years to realize vision 2020 as the integrated world of expanded ASEAN is necessary so that business, industry and agriculture will be able to develop the capacity to meet the challenges of the very developed economies of Japan and Korea. Though I must say that while in general the businessmen of ASEAN especially the less developed countries of ASEAN need a full fifteen years to be able to compete successfully with Japan and Korea. For the Philippines, we have found it convenient to get into bilaterally an economic partnership agreement with Japan mainly because there is a very strong complementarity that we must take advantage of between Japan and the Philippines. And that is on the one hand, Japan has an aging population which needs health care and on the other, the Philippines has an abundance of human resources in the health sector.

If ASEAN realizes the single market by AFTA in advance, this will lead to the birth of a mega-market which can be said to be the second China and become the foundation by which the new division-of-work relation is developed in East Asia.

In other words, if we're going to use fifteen years so that by the end of fifteen years we are integrated with China, Japan and Korea, we must be integrated first within ASEAN during those fifteen years, so that we can now work with the richer economies on the division of labor among us.

In the words of my distinguished colleague, Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra of Thailand, and I quote: "there is no time for complacency, no time to waste and no time to delay. ASEAN should quickly shift its gear into offensive mode for economic integration. Integration surely within ASEAN so that we will be ready for integration in the East Asian area."

Therefore, we must constantly monitor the vision of expanded ASEAN integration so that we don't lose track of our total commitment and arrive at this objective in 15 years. There will be industries among our countries that will say, "no, we're not ready for AFTA. We have to delay it. My industry isn't ready." But the more we delay AFTA, the less we will be competitive in the East Asian economic integration. And it is really important that in fifteen years this will happen because in addition to the ASEAN +3, there is the emerging ASEAN +3+India, and that will be a formidable regional grouping that can negotiate then with the European Union, the Americas, Africa and such regional economic groupings.

We have the capacity to form the largest economic grouping vis-a-vis America, Africa, Europe, but we must make sure that it happens. We must make sure that Japan, China and Korea will find it more convenient to be in our economic bloc than in that economic bloc with other more progressive and more developed trading partners. I know that for the Philippines a successful East Asian economic integration where we would have been prepared first through our own competitiveness then through a big bloc with AFTA, or we will be prepared... I know this would mean more jobs, huge business opportunities especially for small and medium enterprises, more exports and a big tourist market.

Thus, we, in the Philippines aim to be a strong member of the East-Asia team. To become a strong member of the East-Asia team, the Philippines is healing itself through democratic reform, economic restructuring and peaceful resolution of some of our long simmering conflicts.

We've aggressively engaged in building our institutions of government to eliminate corruption, slay the deficit dragon, and bring new jobs and prosperity to our nation's poor.

We bring these efforts into the context of our meeting today and in the days to come as we strive to expand the frontiers of trade and investment, of regional stability and security, and most of all, to build upon our common aspirations of peace, harmony and prosperity.

In moving forward together, government and business must use the same set of values and priorities to understand and to relate to each other, especially in the socio-economic dimension. Because beyond the economic issues, there is a challenge to our heart and conscience to build a more caring and compassionate world, where decent men and women work together not only in quest of profit but also for the benefit of the poor.

Therefore, leaders of the ASEAN business community, I enjoin all of you now to step up to the expectations of and rise to the challenge of expanded regional integration.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 14th General Assembly of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines (LMP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 14th General Assembly of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines (LMP)

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, Manila, December 2, 2004]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Ermita.

Mayor Guico and the other officers of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines, friends of the LMP, mayors, ladies and gentlemen, good morning.

Let me begin by thanking the mayors who supported me in the last elections. Daghang salamat, salamat gid, dactal a salamat, dios mabalos, dios ti angina unay, maraming salamat, thank you.

Secondly, let me thank the mayors who offered to defer 50 percent of your IRA to help solve our fiscal problem. This is purely voluntary, but for those who will help us in this way, in return you will spend this one million, as Monching said in your manifesto, to help fulfill my 10-point legacy agenda.

I also want to thank the mayors who've been going to the congressmen and the senators that you helped get elected to fast-track the revenue measures needed by our country. Because you have been campaigning with them, and because of their own sense of urgency and patriotism, I'm confident that Congress will pass the revenue measures we forwarded which will mean that hopefully your towns may not need to take the IRA cuts after all.

I would also like to congratulate the League for your other proposals, as mentioned by Monching in his statement, that reflect the goodwill of our mayors to cut across party lines in pushing economic development, and as was said in the prayers of Cora, I offer my condolences to the families and the mayors of the towns stricken by the rush of typhoons in the past three weeks.

At the moment, we have teams working to save lives and teams planning out the infusion of resources to where these are most needed. Calamity funds will be applied quickly to basic needs such as food and medicine. Our local disaster coordinating councils headed by the mayors were quick to respond, in coordination with the military and the police and to the mayors who responded quickly, congratulations and thank you.

The painful lessons have come to full light. We are enforcing a crack down on illegal loggers and the reassessment of logging permits in potentially hazardous areas.

There is also a big stake for national security in this effort, as many of you who know your own localities have noticed, that these accidents lately in this last typhoons and storms where the logs went down and killed the people. I've been informed that the New People's Army has been involved heavily in illegal logging activities in those areas.

In this regard, I am appointing retired General Victor Corpus not only as the principal overseer of all reforestation programs of the government nationwide in his capacity as chairman of the National Resources Development Corporation but in addition to this being in charge of reforestation, I am also making him the principal executive to lay out and implement a special operational plan with the full support of the Armed Forces as I have just instructed General Abu to do to stop the illegal logging activities especially of the NPA and to take all their cohorts into account. The insurgents should not be allowed to plunder our forests to raise funds to undermine our democracy.

This is a matter of ecological balance as well as national security. I call for national solidarity of the highest order and with deepest conscience.

But misfortune has been balanced by a stroke of good news. Yesterday, the Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the mining act. This is act of statesmanship done in the national interest. We are now poised for an investment take of never seen in the recent past. The rural infrastructure under you will take a new shape.

You know, I have just been to a mining country. While I have just interacted with the prime ministers of mining countries. Canada, and Australia. Do you realize that we have the potential to be the fifth largest mining power in the world. We shouldn't be poor. Globally, we rank number three in gold, number four in copper, number five in nickel, number six in chromite deposits.

Our mining potential is ten times our annual gross national product. It can easily wipe out our foreign debt and yet leave more for future generations, mining will even mitigate the deadliest of disasters because the poor will not have to ravage the forests to survive and this time we will fully enforce responsible and environmentally sound mining practices.

We are now in the 21st century and all these new mining technology will certainly make our mining sustainable.

And the more relevant part as far as you the mayors are concerned is this, the provision in the mining act is for mining companies to pay specific percentage of taxes and other duties to the host communities from the provincial down to barangay level. In addition to what it pays the national government.

I have another piece of good news for the nation. Yesterday, we were able to sell, on the best terms, the Masinloc coal plant in Zambales for 561 million U.S. dollars, way above the House estimate capitalization, we were hoping to get 300 million dollars, we're getting 561 million dollars. I congratulate the Department of Energy and its agencies for the success of the bidding.

Today, I join you with a vision of a better Philippines and a better world.

I just come back from APEC and the ASEAN summits where the new leadership in Asia, the newly-elected leaders of Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore and the Philippines reached out across a renewed leadership in the United States and move forward the dream of an East Asian Economic Bloc that will drive the energies and hopes of millions within ASEAN, Japan and Korea.

I have concluded an economic partnership with the prime minister of Japan on fair, liberalized trade arrangements. Prior to this agreement our nurses and our caregivers were not allowed to go to Japan. Now, with this agreement Japan is opening its doors to our nurses and caregivers, as well as I.T. workers and even agricultural products which is still not doing for other countries in Southeast Asia.

But economic prosperity is the handiwork not only of economists and diplomats or high functionaries, economic prosperity is built, first and foremost, in vibrant, enterprising and self-reliant communities for instance, Japan is opening its doors to a very wide range of Philippine agricultural products, but it is you the mayors who will have these products planted in your communities.

In this spirit, I thank the mayors for your faith in our common ideals.

Ngayon, uuwi kayo, meron ngang kailangan umuwi noon pa, kagabi pa para mag-asikaso sa mga sakuna sa inyong mga lugar. Dito rin sinabi ko kay Secretary Ermita ianunsyo natin na kalahating araw lamang ang opisina itong araw na ito para paghandaan naitn itong napakalakas na thphoon “Yoyong” na dumarating. Ang mananatili sa mga opisina ay yung mga gumagawa ng batayang serbisyo.

Magtulungan tayo sa kinabubuti ng ating bansa at pamayanan. Magtulungan tyao sa itong mga oras at araw ng hira ng ating mga bayan-bayan. Magtulungan tayo bukas sa kinabukasan, gawin nating tunay, masigasig ang ating kaunlaran para sa wakes ay matalo na natin ang problemang matagal nang hinaharap ng ating bansa.

Maraming salamat, Mayors.

Mabuhay and thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo at the 1st National Information Communication Technology in Basic Education Congress

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 1st National Information Communication Technology in Basic Education Congress

[Delivered at the Pacific Grand Ballroom, Waterfront Hotel, Lahug, Cebu City, December 6, 2004]

AN INVITATION TO A GREAT VISION

Because you represent the whole country, let me begin by expressing my gratefulness for the response of the entire country in the face of the suffering that you have seen and felt in Eastern Luzon.

I'm awed by the outpouring of unity and solidarity to ease the pain of misfortune. I'd like to acknowledge of presence of Ambassador Sagaz of Spain. Also, the President of the Mayors League of the Philippines, Mayor Ramon Guico of Binalonan. I would also like to thank Spain and the many other countries and multilateral institutions that have generously poured out their support for our relief and rehabilitation efforts.

The least we can do to repay all the solidarity and generosity is to exercise the political will to change the political social and economic landscape so that our people will no longer be exposed to this horrible fate in the hands of nature, and so that extreme poverty will never again take the people down the road to perdition. Whether it concerns the environment, our politics or our economy, we cannot leave our fate to chance. We must learn to live by the law and the standards of civility and commonality or we all perish.

I say this today, as we face multiple challenges and as we put our fiscal house in order and grow our economy to create jobs and build infrastructure. Before coming to this meeting... Well, before attending to the calamities, I was away. As Yoyong was about to come, I was in a meeting of the leaders of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations in Laos a week ago. And there, the leaders of ASEAN agreed to fast-track the integration of eleven priority sectors into a regional market. And among these priorities is E-Asean which falls squarely into the concerns of those attending this Congress. I.C.T. has become an economic lifeline to thousands of Filipino families. Just before coming here earlier this morning, I came from the inauguration of Telecare, the most awarded call center company in the world and the biggest Asia-based call center company. It was set up in the I.T. park called Asia Town. Last year, Asia Town did not exist. Today, a year later, Asia Town has within its premises one hundred million a month in salaries and wages. This is what I.C.T. can mean to our people.

Today, the Filipino diaspora is eight million in number. It has served as a steady fulcrum of our economy. But as we embraced the speed of new technology — yes, we will see more of our people working for overseas employers but not there — they'll be working right here in our homeland. In a reversal of roles, we shall attract foreign companies to pour their investments and share the technology within our territorial boundaries. And we already see it happening in Telecare, in Asia Town, and that's only Cebu. We've seen it happening in Eastwood, in Pasig, in Clark, in Davao, in Negros Oriental, all over the country.

Before I became president in 2001, there were only 1,500 call center seats. Today, there are already almost 60,000 BPO and call center agents and counting, waiting for the educational system to produce them through you.

And even as we lay the groundwork for regional economic integration, for instance, Japan has already shown remarkable interest in our country's potential as Asia's best site for business outsourcing. A few days ago, five big Japanese I.C.T. firms firmed up their plans to locate their offshore operations in the Philippines. The owners of these companies are convinced that the skills of our knowledge workers produced by you, our teachers, especially in computer programming and web page proficiency will add to their competitiveness and profits.

And we too as a country will profit as the Philippines strengthens its niche in business outsourcing as more Japanese, European and American firms turn to Filipino knowledge workers. We gain 118 percent growth in I.T. and electronic investments in the first 10 months of this year alone. These investments in this 10 months will create 25,000 jobs and a multiplier of 175,000 more, part of what we want to achieve to create 6 to 10 million jobs over the next 6 years.

For business process outsourcing, we have the potential to capture half of all the call center of regions in the world in the next five years, but it all depends on you, our dear teachers, because you must keep churning out the supply of knowledge workers to fulfill this potential.

The most daunting challenge facing our teachers and schools today is not only to produce all these knowledge workers of which there's a great demand but also to ensure that educational system itself drives the great future of I.C.T. in the Philippines.

Our children must acquire the knowledge, the skills, the attitudes required by the knowledge economy on a broader and deeper scale. To do all these, we must work as a team. Our teachers are the key. The life of the knowledge economy begins in the classroom. You, the teachers, must be in the frontline of innovation, continually seeking out new and better ways of teaching. You must continually seek new technology, befriend it and not be caught in a time warp of traditional but outdated modes of instruction.

To the education administrators, local government officials, parent-teacher associations and other I.C.T. institutions, you must sustain your initiatives to integrate information technology in basic education. And I encourage higher educational institutions and NGOs to continue forming partnerships with schools in basic education and schools in higher education, schools in the skills educational institutions to create more professional development opportunities for teachers and education administrators to facilitate the sharing of learning resources and to push I.C.T. innovation in classrooms.

I ask Butch Abaci, "do we have a lot of NGOs doing what fit-Ed is doing?" Yes, he said we do have a lot of NGOs working on I.C.T. education but we have to upgrade the level of service that they're doing and to integrate them all. And that is why I commend all of you for organizing this Congress and setting the directions for the implementation of the restructured basic education curriculum.

I'm so happy to be here because I see being put into motion three things I said in my inaugural address. In my inaugural address, I described a vision that would be my legacy. I said that by the end of my presidency, there'll be 6 to 10 million new jobs, many of those will come from I.C.T., BPO, call centers. I said that by the end of my term, everyone of school age will be in school in an uncrowded classrooms, in surroundings conducive to learning. What do we mean by surrounding conducive to learning? This includes computers in every public high school and increase in the number of schools with internet access.

In my inaugural address, I also said that the network of digital infrastructure on which my government embarked in the last three years will have linked the entire country. And to make sure that this is so, I have constructed the Commission on I.C.T. to draw a clear road map to connect the whole country including high speed broadband transmission services, local exchange telephone services, cellular mobile telephone services, and yes, I.C.T. education from basic education, high school, tertiary education and post-secondary education.

Ten million jobs, surroundings conducive to learning, digital infrastructure to link the entire country — this is part, a great part of my vision for the 21 st century. I invite you to be a part of this vision.

Congratulations! Mabuhay!

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the International Human Rights Week celebration

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the International Human Rights Week celebration

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, December 8, 2004]

Thank you Karina, CSC chairperson.

Chairperson Quisumbing, Mr. Naka, Mary Ann, members of the Cabinet, excellencies of the diplomatic corps, justices, officials and staff of the human rights commission, guests, ladies and gentlemen.

Our nation joins the rest of the world in observing international human rights week. And on this occasion, I enjoin all Filipinos to be conscious of our rights as well as our responsibilities as citizens.

The theme of your celebration, our celebration is “good governance is human rights.” but in what you submitted to me, there are ten other themes. And I like one of the themes especially “people’s rights first in the realization of millennium development goals.”

Health, education, a sustainable environment dwell in human rights as well as in shared prosperity.

The millennium development goals fall squarely beside the 10-point agenda of my administration that Chairperson Quisumbing mentioned. Human rights are imperative for human survival and in the pursuit of the millennium development goals.

Illegal loggers are violators of the right to a sustainable environment. This morning I gave Secretary Mike Defensor, General Victor Corpus and Secretary Raul Gonzalez one month to identify, investigate and prosecute the big-time illegal loggers, starting from the hardest hit disaster areas. I am very grateful for their quick response. This morning, they filed cases against those that they caught in seven pre-dawn raids on illegal logging establishments in Mauban, in Quezon.

We shall prosecute the wrongdoers and restore the dignity of victims of oppression. Not only in the case of illegal logging but in the classic human rights violations cases as referred to by Chairperson Quisumbing.

One of my priority legislative agenda is precisely to exact just compensation for human rights victims during the martial law years. We cannot claim to be a just and compassionate society if we can’t indemnify those who suffered during the darkest days of our country’s history.

Also fresh in our people’s minds are the recent killings of journalists. This, too, is about human rights.

Suspects in recent cases have fallen. Six of the eight cases that happened during the term of General Aglipay have already been solved. But we will not stop until we bring the murderers of the journalists to justice.

The labor department is doing its best to obtain a fair and peaceful settlement of the Hacienda Luisita dispute. Labor problems must be solved at the negotiating table. All parties must act responsibly so that tragedies can be averted.

I commend the commission on human rights and the armed forces for their quiet but unrelenting cooperation in the human rights education of our military personnel.

Two years ago in 2002, we also celebrated human right day here. And on that occasion we celebrated human rights with the memorandum of understanding between the Human Rights Commission and the Armed Forces of the Philippines on human rights education. Ging Deles, the head of our peace process is not here, but she tells me and also the visiting experts on transitional justice tell me that they are so impressed with how our soldiers have internalized the matter of human rights.

No wonder as Karina pointed out, in the list of supposed violators of human rights, there's hardly any case that's been filed against anybody in the military. I congratulate everyone for that effort.

On another plane, there should also be a proper mechanism to receive and process complaints of human rights abuses against insurgents and terrorists. Human rights propaganda leans heavily on our soldiers and policemen, when we all know that the worst violators belong to the New People's Army.

While they extol human rights by words, they engage in illegal logging, cultivate marijuana, push drugs, burn buses and murder civilians. And that is what we must also address when we are celebrating, commemorating human rights.

The spirit of the constitutional provision guaranteeing full respect for human rights lies within us. We must unite in preserving a universal framework of human decency and social justice that guarantees political and economic security.

Human rights are worth fighting for, they are even worth dying for. These are the rights that make us different from the terrorists hiding in the trenches; from the loggers that wreak havoc on our environment; from the corruptors that wield patronage and ill-gotten wealth to exploit and oppress the weak.

On this special day, I call on all our people to exercise vigilance against those who run roughshod over the ramparts of our democratic way of life.

Our future depends on how strong we uphold our freedom, unify our nation and fight poverty.

So I thank the human rights commission for reminding us that good governance is human rights. And we must remind everyone and ourselves that if we want to reach development in the early part of this millennium then we must also respect and recognize human rights.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the National Convention of Government Employees and the 59th Anniversary of the Philippine Government Employees Association (PGEA)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the National Convention of Government Employees and the 59th Anniversary of the Philippine Government Employees Association (PGEA)

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, December 9, 2004]

Secretary Duque — where are you? — of PhilHealth, Winston Garcia, Mero Quimbo, Espie Ocampo, my colleagues in government service, friends of the PGEA, ladies and gentlemen, good afternoon and happy anniversary to PGEA.

Before anything else, let me share a miracle with you, not as government employees but as caring Filipinos. Maybe you remember about ten days ago, there was a report of a building in a remote Barangay of real that collapsed.

Today, a team of soldiers, DENR employees, rescue operators, volunteers from the Chamber of Mines landed... No, they did not land. The helicopter did not land. They jumped off the helicopter onto the beach because there was no place to land. Walked two kilometers to that collapsed building and found twelve people alive after more than ten days.

We must believe in miracles. And to me PGEA is a miracle.

I've been attending your anniversary for a long time now, remember? Even before I became President. And because I know you, I know your work, I'd like to commend you on the work you've been doing making government employees aware not only of their rights but also of their responsibilities. And I'd like to congratulate you for your work in promoting a culture of integrity among government employees. That's the miracle that I was talking about.

For instance, thank you for your initiative in the "Dulugan ng Bayan" — the workplace-based employee-initiated anti-corruption program. Thank you for recognizing that corruption is the bane of our political and economic security. We have to fight corruption as earnestly as we're fighting to put our fiscal house in order.

I was just with Speaker de Venecia before coming here, that's why I'm sorry to be a little late. He brought members of the Saudi Arabian parliament to meet with me. And I gave him the message that we acknowledge the determination of congress to pass the national budget, which will be the cutting edge of political and economic stability and social reform. Our solid partnership with the legislature in the passage of vital revenue measures, in forging the budget and in protecting the environment demonstrates the effectiveness of our political institutions including our bureaucracy to uphold the national interest, and should continue to spur our economic gains. Confidence is firm and will continue to drive the economy across difficult straits to a new horizon of growth and vibrance. We have struck upon the right formula of institutional teamwork — the officialdom, the bureaucracy, the legislative, the judiciary. Teamwork and national solidarity to fight corruption, cut waste, save the environment and grow investments to create jobs.

The legislative-executive partnership for putting our house in fiscal order is just as strong in protecting the environment and safeguarding our economic security. We appreciate the immediate response of the house to the common goal of saving our forests, and we'll match this development with the relentless push to arrest illegal logging and to gather communities and families around a massive reforestation program. The continued outpouring of international assistance is also something for which the Filipino is grateful. We shall never forget the wanton loss of lives as a result of the recent calamity, and we will be constantly reminded to rekindle the solidarity of our people and not to allow this misfortune to happen again.

Indeed, much remains to be done. Of course, many are still driven by the dark forces of greed, and worse, many have become indifferent to it. But PGEA has been an important force in the effort to change this attitude. To do justice to the work of PGEA — as what you're doing at employee level — we must do the same at the level of agency heads.

Next week, we will have good government practitioners from several countries, including the founder of Hongkong's renowned independent commission against corruption, to hold a series of top level seminars with government executives in Manila.

And I am instructing the agency heads to make sure that all contracts their agencies enter into are exposed to the scrutiny of the public by publishing them on their web pages or in the internet. Confidence in the Philippines must be founded on good governance. And I rely on PGEA to help me carry that out.

I'm glad to be meeting with you today even as we've spent much time praising the anonymous public servant for the good work they've been doing in the disaster operations. At times we tend to gloss over the role of public servants — you are such unsung heroes of our country.

But we've seen during the calamity soldiers trudge by foot across dangerous mudflows to bring food and supplies to the victims. In fact, most civil servants who have formed the core of the relief and rehabilitation efforts are faceless and unnamed. And we thank you for that. And even as you serve the people we realize that the worthy public servant must also be served. And that is why you have your association.

I commend the “Angat Kabuhayan” program of PGEA in partnership with the PCSO and ITDI-DOST. I also commend you for your team up with DOST, DBM, TLRC, CDA and Smart Telecoms in conducting the “Negosyo Forum.”

And I commend PGEA for the 21 housing task forces established nationwide through your partnership with HDMF. And lately, most recently, I congratulate you on your agreement with PhilHealth, Pag-Ibig and the GSIS to help monitor and report timely remittances of premium contributions.

I ask you to continue to close ranks in purging the system of corruption, eliminating government waste, increasing tax collection, and investing in our nation through revenue increases dedicated to job creation, education and health care.

The sense of bayanihan and pakikiramay the nation experienced in the past weeks demonstrate what we can collectively achieve in the face of crisis.

It makes me optimistic that we can emerge victorious from our quest to rise above disunity and despair, break the cycle of corruption, and establish the prosperous and strong republic that we all deserve.

I shall continue to rely on PGEA to persevere in excellence and honesty. Let's leave the wayward few by the wayside and move on to our vital tasks. You know, just recently, I got a letter from Espie regarding the announced merger between NLSF and PCFC. It was an appeal that was very analytical, devoid of any emotion, and because I felt that it was coming from an association like yours that has only the best interest of the country at heart, I told the ones doing the reorganization to proceed only after consulting with PGEA.

I have the greatest respect for your association whom I've known for many years now. And I look forward that as we have the remaining five years, a little over five years of my administration, I look forward for us continuing to work together for the good of the Filipino public servant and the public that we all serve.

Happy anniversary! Congratulations! Maraming salamat.

Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint Press Conference with Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong of Singapore

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Joint Press Conference with Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong of Singapore

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, December 10, 2004]

Thank you.

I'd like to welcome Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong to the Philippines. He's my seatmate in the ASEAN summit, and I'm truly impressed by the breadth and depth of his world view. Prime Minister Lee represents a new consensus in Asia, a fresh start in the world. There is indeed new leadership in Southeast Asia. Not only Singapore and the Philippines but Indonesia, Malaysia, and the new leadership can bring about a strong Asia and a united world.

The visit of Prime Minister Lee to the Philippines gives this new leadership the opportunity to renew the multifaceted relationship between the Philippines and Singapore and to strengthen it.

Singapore was the first developed ASEAN country, and continues to be the Philippines' largest trading partner in ASEAN. We have invited Singapore, which has no agriculture, to source more agricultural products from the Philippines.

We also invite more Singapore tourists to visit the Philippines. And for this purpose, we shall give frequencies to Singaporean budget airlines under a reviewed air agreement.

Singapore has large investments in the Philippines, like Singtel, Kei Pei, Filipinas Palm Oil, Development Bank of Singapore and Club Panoly. Singpower is also a bidder in the privatization of our transmission company. We are inviting Singaporean businessmen to invest in airport, logistics, agro-fishery, health care, and small and medium enterprises. In order to reduce red tape for Singaporean and other investors, I have instructed the revival of the one-stop for investments that I established when I was still Undersecretary of Trade and Industry but which the previous administration abolished.

Singapore has another facet of the relationship with the Philippines and that is it hosts 80,000 Filipinos ranging from company CEOs – like Vince Perez used to be in Singapore – to I.T. specialists, to nurses who were the heroes of Singapore during the SARS crisis and to domestic helpers. We thank the government of Singapore for its continuing support to the Bayanihan Center which is the Filipino worker's clubhouse in Singapore.

Singapore and the Philippines also cooperate actively against terrorism. Singaporean intelligence was among the sources that led to the arrest of Fathur Al Khozi in the Philippines and Philippine intelligence has likewise also helped lead to the arrest of international terrorist elements in Singapore. I shall count on Singapore's support in the Philippines' work as chairman of the APEC Counter-Terrorism Task Force.

Singapore is a technology giant even if its population is small its dynamic I.T. community complements the abundant I.T. manpower of the Philippines. We look forward to working out a mechanism with Singapore for the mutual recognition of standard for I.T. and I.T. related services including animation.

The Philippines looks towards Singapore, the high-tech giant, for cooperation in technology to overcome the gap in education, the crush of poverty and the threat of instability in parts of Asia of course. We recognize technology is not enough to overcome all these. Economic promise must become economic reality. And here again, the Philippines looks towards Singapore, the most-developed county in ASEAN – though Prime Minister Lee said, they don't want to call themselves the most-developed country but the high-income developing country – we look to them for cooperation in this field.

Finally, I thank the Prime Minister and the people of Singapore for their sympathy for the calamity victims that have suffered this past few weeks in the Philippines.

And once again, Mr. Prime Minister, welcome! And I give you the floor.

Speech of President Arroyo on modern Filipino heroes

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On modern Filipino heroes

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, December 15, 2004]

CELEBRATING OUR MODERN FILIPINO HEROES

Tonight, once again, we celebrate our modern Filipino heroes.

For both the Philippines and your host countries, you are examples of fortitude and sacrifice and love. You carry the Filipino heritage that flows in your veins and made you who you are.

Through these awards, our nation honors you for wide-ranging achievements. All of your accomplishments and more have earned you an accolade that will live on in the hearts of our people.

Last year, I signed three empowering laws for overseas Filipinos: namely, the Overseas Absentee Voting Act, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act, and the Dual Citizenship Law.

Well, first of all, let me thank you because when you used your power to vote for the first time, you gave me a landslide overseas. Thank you for your support.

But we must increase the number of absentee voter registrants so that by 2007, the voice of Filipinos overseas will carry even more democratic weight.

Oh, let me acknowledge Tony Cuenco as well as Governor Tommy Josen.

Well, we have a new chairman of the Commission on Overseas Filipinos which has now become part of the Office of the President. And I'd like to task the Commission on Overseas Filipinos, now part of the Office of the President, to work closely with Filipino leaders and communities abroad on attractive retirement and investment packages for those who intend to remain home. Because we're very proud of you bringing laurels to the Philippines while you do what you do abroad that made you get these awards but in the end, we'd like you to come back home to your loved ones when you're ready to rest.

We must take our efforts a step higher than at present. Yes, we are now doing projects for returning Filipinos especially those who are overseas Filipino workers to make sure that they have something to come home to. But whether you come from places where you have contract jobs or whether you come from places where you have green cards, we hope you will come back home to something attractive as well. And we need to do this through the joint efforts of the Commission on Overseas Filipinos, the DOLE, the Department of Trade and Industry and the DFA.

You're abroad and you hear news about the Philippines. Travel advisories and media reports sometimes paint a grim, unfair picture of conditions in the Philippines. But I'd like to tell you that things are looking up in the economy. The nation has shown solidarity and stubborn resiliency.

Our exports grew by 12.3 percent last October. And in 2001, there were only 1,500 call centers. Today, there are already more than 35,000 employing at least 56,000 agents.

We have a 6.3 percent GDP growth and we will push that higher and do better in 2005.

Through the support, you Filipinos overseas have been giving me, I'm able to have the political will to add to my experience to fight to improve the lives of the average Filipino. Which is what many of you got awards from for tonight — improving the lives of the average Filipino.

My experience tells me that nothing is more central to social justice, economic opportunity and the elimination of poverty than the fight against the long-standing culture of corruption. Corruption saps the strength of the country and must be cut out like a cancer if the patient is to survive.

Today, a two-star general is facing court-martial for graft. The military has a proud tradition of serving the nation. President Ramos comes from the military, Secretary Ermita comes from the military, its honor must be restored.

As commander-in-chief, I have ordered key personal changes not only in the armed forces but even among the undersecretaries, assistant secretaries and directors in the Department of National Defense in order to set an example and usher in a new day. But corruption is bigger than the military and must be weeded out across all sectors.

The nation needs revenue to pay for schools, improve health care, provide clean water and create jobs.

And I am very grateful to the senators for passing the tax on alcohol and cigarettes last night, as I'm grateful to the Congressmen for passing four revenue measures. Even as we speak, the House and the Senate are in bicameral conference committee so that they can rush to vote on this very important landmark revenue legislation tonight.

We have to work hard in legislation. We also have to work hard in the executive. It's a crime against the people when pesos go to line pockets of corrupt officials and not to the needs of the people.

We must restore the faith of the people in their government against officials who betray the public trust.

There are so many things we have to do — restore faith, promote peace. We must have peace to strengthen the faith of our people in the national future. And it is important for the government to be the one who is magnanimous to stretch out the hand of peace.

Therefore, I'd like to take this opportunity today, tonight to announce a unilateral ceasefire by the Armed Forces of the Philippines in the war against the NPA starting tomorrow, which is the beginning of the Christmas season. It will last from December 16 to January 5th.

Going back to the war against corruption — not just the war against the NPA — money for investigating corrupt officials has increased along with more investigators. Passage of the electronic procurement law has reduced discretion, corruption and the cost of supplies.

The passage of new legislation, which is part of what the house has already passed and what we hope will be passed in the senate too after the tax on alcohol and cigarettes, is what is called the lateral attrition law or maybe better described as the accountability reform law. It will hold civil servants accountable for the revenue they raise — or they will lose their positions.

Private contractors, however, are often part of the corruption axis. They will not escape prosecution. By executive order, I'd like to let you know that I will ban all government contractors who have not paid their taxes or who have been implicated in corruption. Contractors can run but can't hide from the wrath of

You, who live in advanced countries, in mature democracies know how important it is for the private sector to be as honest as you expect the public sector to be.

I invite all overseas Filipinos to welcome these initiatives that I have been describing towards national self-renewal with pride. I ask that you do what you can, from where you are, to help us keep confidence in the Philippines.

Tell your friends and associates abroad about our reform agenda to clean up government, to cut red tape, to reduce crime, to promote a friendly and predictable business climate, to have an atmosphere for a lasting and just peace.

I'm instructing the Commission on Overseas Filipinos and our embassies and consulates abroad — some of you are here — to help you spread the good news and to help you spread the news about our firm commitments.

With unity of purpose, our national spirit is fortified. The choice is ours to make. And I look upon you not only as heroes but also as partners for a secure and prosperous nation.

Once again, to our overseas Filipinos, our outstanding overseas Filipinos, who continue to love the Philippines, congratulations to all!

And thank you.

President of the Philippines
At the Vin D'Honneur 2005

[Held at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, January 7, 2005]

MOVING FORWARD WITH DECISIVE ACTION

I begin this year with a sense of urgency, but also a deep sense of hope and renewed purpose. The nation is at a crossroads, and must move forward with decisive action in Congress, the unity of the people, and a clear direction from your elected leadership.

As President of this great nation, I will provide that leadership and direction in 2005.

While it won't be easy — nothing worth fighting for ever is — it must be done. Simply put, we must enact vital legislation to increase revenues, pass a budget that invests in our 10-point, pro-poor program; and take executive action towards wiping out corruption.

The economy is the foundation of our hope and the creation of jobs the central organizing principle of my government. My pledge to the people of the Philippines in my election campaign of just six months ago was to create jobs, bring fresh water and electricity to those who have none, and build new classrooms and equip schools with modern technology.

I further pledged to build vital infrastructure, bring unity to our social divisions and restore peace between Muslim and Christian in our war torn south.

And I will do it. But it will take the support of every single person in this room and resolve amongst our political and business leadership, pulling together, in the same boat, to move this nation in the right direction.

We must work together as a people and as a nation, to solve our problems. Church, state, military, civilian; rich and poor; we all have a stake in the future of our nation. Collectively and as individuals, we must employ every fabric of our being to bring about the kind of community and bring the hope that the people yearn for and deserve.

I can't do it alone, nor even with the full weight of the government by my side. We need to harness the power of the nation and spark the individual power of each soul that makes up this nation, if we are to forge a new Philippines.

What lies ahead is exciting; I welcome the challenge and remain ever so hopeful that we will prevail. 2005 will be a year of transformation and change that will move the nation forward.

And after the year we had in 2004, we need a brighter day ahead.

What a year it was. We faced a contested election and, just recently, the loss of the nation's loved FPJ. We came face-to-face with the far flung responsibilities of securing the lives of our OFWs, personified in Angelo De La Cruz, the Filipino everyman.

And most importantly, we must focus on how the year came to a close: with great typhoons here in the Philippines that in the end seemed dwarfed by the tsunami which struck our South and SouthEast Asian neighbors. Each caused grief of unimaginable proportions.

And for life itself we should be thankful.

Tonight we must all take a moment to once again reflect on the power of nature and the good fortune of life itself, as we send our prayers to our loved ones, friends and neighbors here at home and abroad, who don't come with us into the New Year.

The death and destruction of nature is a humble reminder of our own vulnerability. And shame on us, as leaders, if we inflict our own political tsunami upon this great nation of ours if we don't come together and take the hold steps necessary to get our nation hack on track.

We can and must start fresh with the New Year. And it must start with the powers that he that make up the leadership of this nation. Leaders in business, government, the media, civil society.

I ask you to join me to eliminate waste, fraud and abuse in government.

I ask you to help me in fighting corruption, to stop illegal logging and identify tax cheats.

I ask you to help me pass legislation in Congress to strengthen our finances and the institutions that govern us.

I ask you to help pass a national budget that will invest in the poor and allow them to live a life of dignity, meaningful work and reward.

I ask you to help me reform the military, invest in a strong Judiciary and press for social justice.

I ask you to help develop sensible, environment friendly laws as we develop a safe and vital new mining sector.

And I ask you to bring hope, optimism and vigor, working together to get this nation moving once again.

We are on the right track: our exports are up, our growth is up, and our spending is in line. We're our own worst enemies; we have many obstacles to overcome, hut many are harriers we place in front of ourselves.

It's time to tear down barriers and build up hope, growth and a new optimism at the start of this new year.

Leaders in business, government, the media, civil society. This is your nation, too. You're among the best and brightest. I may be President, but we need a thousand of leaders to inspire our people and do the right thing.

May it begin tonight, here in this room, together with our friends, friends of our country from all over the world.

I ask therefore everyone in this room to join me in a toast to a year of urgent change and a year of fervent hope.

Mabuhay!

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo at the Manila Overseas Press Club Gala Night 2005, January 12, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Manila Overseas Press Club Gala Night 2005

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, January 12, 2005]

LET’S BUILD OUR NATION TO LAST

Good evening and welcome to Malacañang. And from me and every Filipino concerned about a strong, free and unfettered press, Happy 60th Anniversary to MOPC.

It’s the beginning of the rest of your life, 60 years. But it’s also the beginning of a new year, and as is the custom, you expect me to talk about my plans for the year. And I do thank you for this opportunity to talk to you about our agenda for 2005. I say “our” agenda because we’re in this together, as you’ve been a central pillar of Philippine society and the democratic way of life for the past 60 years.

And I know that everyone in this room who loves this country wants me to succeed. And I thank you for that.

As I said in my speech during the Vin d Honneur for the diplomatic community, 2005 is a year of urgent change and fervent hope for the Philippines. And that’s what I’d like to elaborate on tonight. The urgent change is within our grasp, but I need your support.

To get the economy back on track from the high debt regime and high unemployment that has been plaguing our country for many years now, we will improve tax collection, pass a budget that will support our 10-point plan and pro-poor agenda and take executive action to break the culture of corruption.

For decades, the Philippines has been operating on a fiscal deficit, except for the years 1994 to 1997. And even then, we posted budget surpluses mainly because of privatization. Otherwise, all these years, our total expenditures and debt payments have been more than the revenues we could raise. And we can’t go on this way. That’s why we need our tax reform measures. They will provide the additional revenue needed to reign in our deficit and support the important programs that are part of our pro-poor agenda, namely, more jobs and more investments in our people. It will send a signal to the international community that the Philippines has turned the corner and is a place to invest and tap the vital talent pool that exists in our nation. We face sharp scrutiny of our fiscal status, and if we hurdle the test, we can have one of the best opportunities for a strong economic take-off.

Our tax reform measures will also importantly demonstrate to our creditors that the Philippines has the political will to build a strong, transparent and stable economy.

I’ve never said that we are a strong republic now, max. In fact, in my speeches in 2003 I would always say, we are a weak republic and we must make ourselves strong. And we need political will to be able to do that. The political will we have. The taxiways of the new international airport terminal are already being used by the airlines. Congratulations! Ed, Mercy, Cesar and Raul, and all of the lawyers who worked to enable this to happen. In time, the stake holders will be compensated as determined by the courts.

And the political will reigns not only in Malacañang, but in the legislature. We have a strong political consensus in the multiple corridors of governance.

Our revenue raising train is moving forward. I sit down with representatives and senators frequently to tighten the knots and bolts that put our fiscal house in order. My meetings with Congressional leaders have pruned down and consolidated our priorities into a few hills that will raise 80 billion pesos a year. As the bills go through the legislative mill, they undergo improvement, requiring a smaller number of laws to raise the target revenues.

For instance, the final version of the alcohol and cigarette tax bill meets, will raise about 16 billion pesos. That's more than 50 percent more than the original version that was going to raise 9.5 billion pesos. And just as I was entering, leaving my quarters to come to this celebration, I got a word from Gabby Claudio that the house has just passed the fiscal incentives hill on second reading. I must express my gratitude to the legislature for their admirable commitment to the national interest.

We said that we would do reforms in the legislature up to 80 billion pesos or at least 80 billion pesos. But we will bear the bigger burden in the executive. We will work for administrative measures that will raise a hundred billion pesos.

For instance, as a result of the ERC ruling on Napocor rates, from October last year to November last year, Napocor increased its revenues by almost 9 billion pesos. That means that the projection of 30 billion pesos for one year will be overshot and it will be closer to 35 billion pesos for the year 2005.

As president, I'm mandated to bring our country to such a level of creditworthiness and competitiveness that will allow us to ensure that the most pressing day to day needs of the average Filipino are provided for. And I'm also expected to lead our nation to a labyrinth of political, economic and social pathways that can only meet a dead end if one does not keep up with the competition.

Keeping up will enable us to survive. Let's keep up, let's survive, but let's also work hard and work together to excel because given the high debt that we have and the reduction of creditworthiness that it entails, we have to excel just to keep up. Just like being a woman, you have to be superior just to be treated equally.

Working to excel requires not only vigor or persistence, it requires a vision that is clear and unwavering. I outlined my vision I believe very clearly in a 10-point agenda in my inaugural address last June, and that vision is undiminished and consistent.

The passage of the 2005 budget will accelerate the implementation of the 10-point program of action including our pro-poor agenda by creating 6 to 10 million jobs in six years. The 10-point plan will fund important programs for the nation including the fight against terror and the pro-poor agenda. This is the peoples budget designed to bring to life the pro-poor agenda that will create jobs in micro, small and medium size and agri-businesses, bring clean water and electricity to the entire country, a school for every barangay and computers in every high school.

Most of these plans are already being pursued. The investments from public and private sources have been lined up and many of the contributors are right here in this room. They are being delivered. We have started.

Promises and targets have been met. The Filipino-Chinese community is here, and they will be the first to tell you that kidnapping has been neutralized. Drugs have been neutralized. As promised in the beginning of my term, we've been spending 20 billion pesos a year on agricultural modernization, haven't we, arty? Eighty one percent of the people have health insurance which is considered in many other countries, for all intents and poses, universal health insurance. We have energized all but 3 500 barangays. And we'll be able to energize those early in my administration. We constructed 6,000 classrooms in 2004 as promised. Roll-on/roll-off ports and roads are in place. And we have the lowest incident of strikes in almost 30 years. We have the momentum.

But we must guard against the doomsayers and skeptics for their vision can become a self-fulfilling prophecy. There are clouds to be sure, but there are many silver linings and outright sunshine breaking through over the Philippine economy: the 6 percent growth rate — that's the growth rate right, nits, in GDP? — which is a pleasant surprise in the region; the 20 percent increase in exports in November; the stock market which was one of the best performers in Asia in 2004 and which expects another year of double digit growth in 2005. The increase in capital inflows testify to our nation's stability, resiliency and enterprising spirit.

In fact, Tony Lopez was pointing out to me some other indicators. San Miguel which has a table here, I understand, has unprecedented beer sales in its last 150 years of existence, and one of the reasons for that is also the very high price of coconut in the world market because the coconut farmers like to drink beer when they are very prosperous. But they also like to send their children to school. So, enrollment is up in the coconut regions. The other indicator that Tony told me when we were sitting together is that the number two consumption item now in sari-sari stores is not suka, it is cell cards. Silver lining. You don't buy cell cards unless your basic needs have been met.

But we must see to it that our investments in the nation and in our people are not tainted, delayed, eroded or overwhelmed by corruption.

To create more jobs and bring prosperity to the people, we must stop the culture of corruption that holds back our pace of development. For the first time, lifestyle checks led to the dismissal of 45 senior officials, including a DPWH undersecretary, a deputy customs commissioner, other high ranking B.I.R. and B.O.C. officials, and they led to the filing of charges against high-ranking officers or the armed forces.

Tonight — I don't have it here — I signed an executive order directing timely and complete payment of taxes as a precondition for entering into and as a continuing obligation in contracts with government, its departments, agencies and instrumentalities. On the first, about the lifestyle checks and the 45 officials, what I mean to say is that I will exert executive authority to fire unscrupulous government officials who rob the nation. On the second, the new executive order requiring tax payments, complete tax payments before getting a contract and continue enjoying the contract, what we must do... Well, before that, on the senior officials in the military who are now facing trial, yes, I will restore integrity to our military leaders and soldiers who put their lives at risk and defend the honor of the nation. And for the other one I talked about, the executive order, it means that I will cancel government contracts with corrupt companies as I will prosecute illegal loggers. And I call on Congress, the private sector and civic leaders to join this effort.

And there is nothing more corrosive to our democracy, I agree with Max, than the murder of journalists in pursuit of truth. I stand before you tonight deeply committed to protecting the health, life and safety of every journalist who plies his or her trade in the pursuit of truth and justice. Where is General Aglipay? He has a table here, yes. I'd like to congratulate him, out of 12 killings of journalists last year, 10 have been solved by the police. The 10 guys are in jail, right, Egay? And I will not rest until those guys who have been caught and other assassins are brought to justice. You, the members of our media which we want to keep free and vibrant deserve no less and the nation deserves no less.

Again, I ask for your help. Help me spread the news that will get our people on board the express coach of our economic reform.

As many of you know, our economic reform is embodied in the acronym "beat the odds."

Tonight, Tony said the book that they gave me is called "built to last." Let's build, let's beat the odds and build our nation to last.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Pearl Anniversary of the National Commission on the Role of Filipino Women (NCRFW)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Pearl Anniversary of the National Commission on the Role of Filipino Women (NCRFW)

[Delivered at the New Executive Bldg. Grounds, Malacañang, January 13, 2005]

Maraming salamat Secretary Dinky Soliman sa iyong napakagaling na pagpakilala sa akin.

Kagalang-galang na ating bagong namumuno ng NCRFW, ginang Myrna Yao na pinili ko bilang tagapangulo ng NCRFW dahil ang gusto kong bigyang diin ng NCRFW sa ating administrasyon ay ang entrepreneurship ng kababaihan at si Myrna ay isang huwarang entrepreneur ng kababaihan. Madame Imelda Marcos and the other... And Madame Letty Shahani and the other former chairpersons of NCRFW kasama na dito ang secretary ng NAPC si Secretary Imelda Nicolas. Batiin ko rin yung tumutulong sa NAPC at saka sa NCRFW na maparaan yung mga pondo ng ating mga dayuhang kaibigan sa NCRFW sa mga programa ng ating kababaihan, si Secretary Romy Neri. At well, ung ibang mga chairmen ng NCRFW babatiin ko na rin si Oyi de Dios at saka si Tati Licuanan. Batiin ko rin ang namumuno sa ating kilusang pangkapayapaan, si Secretary Ging Deles.

Ô yung magtuturo naman sa ating pulis at mga enforcers kung papano gawin nila yung kanilang trabaho, kababaihan din, si president ng Public Safety College, si Tingting Cojuangco. Ang ating dating Secretary of Foreign Affairs na ngayon ay tumutulong sa atin sa iba't-ibang bahagi ng ating investment promotion, si Ambassador Delia Albert. At sumama na rin dahil ang kanyang mga ahensiyang siya ay tumutulong sa akin na subaybayan lahat ng ating job generation activities kasama na yung trabaho nating asikasuhin ang microfinance at women entrepreneurs, si Secretary Cito Lorenzo.

Excellencies of the diplomatic corps and the heads of international agencies. I'd like to mention Deborah Landey because of the support of the U.N. for what we had just launched today, the publications; members of congress and the local governments especially those who received their awards today as models of gender sensitive local governance in how well they used their gender and development budget; officers, Employees of the National Commission on the Role of Filipino Women, mabuhay kayo sa inyong trabaho.

My fellow workers in government; yung inimbita kong mga panauhing pandangal; yung ating mga kababaihan sa microfinance; nandito rin ang namumuno ng ating pidcor kasama yung ating mga kaibigan kinatawan ng mga OFW natin sa Hongkong, magandang hapon at welcome; ladies and gentlemen:

Una sa lahat, congratulations on the Pearl Anniversary of the National Commission on the Role of Filipino Women. Ang haba-haba ng pangalan. Kaya para sa akin basta't Commission on Women, yon ang ating shortcut doon. At happy anniversary sa lahat ng kababaihan because we are celebrating the isangdaan taong pagdiriwang ng kilusan ng kababaihan sa ating bansa itong araw na ito. Unahin natin na maalaala ang katapangan at kabayanihan ng ating mga lola, nanay, tiya na lumaban para sa ating kalayaan at dignidad. Mula kay Tandang Sora hanggang sa ngayon yung milyung-milyong Pilipinang nagtrabaho sa ibayong dagat — salamat to our OFWs in Hongkong — hanggang sa mga nagbubuo ng ating mga tahanan at nag-aalaga ng ating mga bata. Ang kabayanihan nila ay kumikintab sa mga dakilang gawain sa larangang pangmundo at pambansa. Ang mga kababaihang ito ay talagang pwede nating ipagmalaki.

Siya nga pala, may sikat na naman tayong babaeng dapat ipagmalaki. The United Nations has just elected as the first Filipina to chair the U.N. Committee on Discrimination Against Women, former Ambassador Nena Manalo. From us here in Malacanang, to you out there Nena, congratulations from all the women of the Philippines.

Itong taong ito, nabanggit nga ni Myrna Yao na ito rin ay international year of microfinance. Tamang-tama kaya hiningi ko na rin na ipagdiwang natin ngayon ang pamumuno ng ating kababaihan sa rebolusyon ng microfinance. At gusto ko lamang ipagmalaki na sa nakaraang tatlong taon ng una kong administrasyon, higit isang milyong kababaihan ay nakinabang sa mga programa ng microfinance maging mula sa gobyerno o mga ngo na ang ngo naman ang talagang pangunahing kagabay sa kilusang microfinance. Sabi nga ni Cito Lorenzo, na siya ang chairman sa Quedancor, sa Quedancor lamang noong isang taon lamang ay higit isang milyong kababaihan na ang nakinabang sa microfinance. Kaya itong araw na ito marami sa ating beneficiary, hindi naman natin mapagkasya ang isang milyong kababaihan dito, kaya isang libo sa kanila ay inimbata natin bilang panauhing pandangal.

Ano kumusta kayo mga kababaihang microfinance. Tapos noon namang ako ay nanumpa bilang pangulo muli noong nakaraang hunyo, nagbigay ako ng sampung pamanang gusto kong iwanan sa pilipinas pagbaba ko sa pwesto sa 2010. At ang number one dito, unang una dito ay ang paglikha ng anim hanggang sampung milyong trabaho sa loob ng anim na taon, lalo na sa pamamagitan ng pagsuporta sa tatlong milyong nagtatayo ng mga sariling negosyo. Supporting three million entrepreneurs. Kaya inatasan ko na mula 2004 hanggang 2010 dapat ma-triple ang pondo para sa Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises na tinatawag nating MSME.

Ang SSS ay nangako ng 1.2 billion pesos sa sulong program. Ang GSIS ay naglagay ng isang bilyong piso na idadaan sa Land Bank of the Philippines kung saan si Cito ang chairman. Nariyan din ang National Livelihood Support Fund o nlsf at ang People's Credit and Finance Corporation or PCFC na tinayo nung naitayo yung NAPC. Ito yung NLSF at PCFC ang kanilang pangunahing trabaho ay microfinance na nga. Ang sistema ng microfinance ay hindi ibig sabihin na mismo ang SSS, GSIS o PCFC ay nagpapahiram sa maliliit na negosyo. Dumadaan sila sa kanilang mga fondo sa mga tinatawag nating microfinance conduit kagaya ng card, ng ahon — ano ang tawag doon ahon nayon ba yung tawag ng Negros women for tomorrow? — mga isang dosena yan eh microfinance opportunity bank, Quedancor, DSWD-SEA-K, yon ay conduit din ng microfinance at iba pa. At yung mga nagtatrabaho dito sila mismo ang pumupunta sa mga pamayanan, yung mga kababaihan nating mga maliliit na negosyante or microfinance or microsupport. Hindi sila pumupunta pa sa Makati para hanapin ôyung dbp ba yon, hindi. Yung nagpapahiram pumupunta mismo sa pamayanan nagpapahiram sa mga grupo ng kababaihan. Halos home service o door-to-door ika nga itong sistemang ito.

Kaya yan ang gusto nating ipairal, yan ang gusto nating ipahayag itong araw na ito. Yan ang gusto nating ipasulong sa ating sumusunod na five-and-a- half years pa ng ating administrasyon.

Kaya itong araw na ito, to our NCFRW headed by a model entrepreneur, sa ating mga beneficiary ng microfinance, our friends from all over the world who are supporting our women's movement and our microfinance movement, to all of you, mabuhay ang kababaihang microfinance! Mabuhay ang kababaihang entrepreneur! Mabuhay ang kababaihang professional! Mabuhay ang kababaihang manggagawa sa ibayong lugar o sa ating bansa! Mabuhay kayong lahat!

Happy anniversary!

Speech of President Arroyo at the Third Global Networking Pinoy Party, January 21, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Third Global Networking Pinoy Party

[Delivered at the Cebu City Business Park, Cebu City, January 21, 2005]

CALLING ALL FILIPINOS

I'm glad we're here tonight in Cebu, the shining symbol of our fervent hope as a nation. Cebu has laid out the red carpet for you. And why not, you deserve a hero's welcome because our nation continues to benefit from your hard work and sacrifices. As Loida said, last year, our kababayans overseas spent eight billion dollars in remittances. And may I especially acknowledge that two-thirds of these remittances came from the United States. So, thank you, especially our Fil-Ams.

You who are here tonight exemplify the global network just as deeply as the family network of Filipinos that thrive in our unique culture and progressive ways.

When the typhoons struck several provinces particularly in Quezon, Filipinos overseas came to the aid of the victims in unprecedented magnitude and compassion. And I thank you in behalf of the people of those provinces.

I'm so heartened by your love and sentiment for the folks and young ones back home. We live by our hearts, Filipinos, and we must be proud of it.

I remember the last time we met in Malacañang when I hosted you for a meeting there when you had your conference. You asked me point blank, through a resolution, what you as global Filipinos, could do to help our country.

Thank you for that far ranging query. And tonight, we've seen some of the answers coming from you yourselves. And I think this is how Pinoy power! Worldwide helps us here at home. Loida and the other speakers have already mentioned some of the ways by which you can help and are already helping. She talked about the one thousand dollars instrument:

Indeed, you can help a lot if you deposit your dollar savings in our banks because the interest it earns abroad would also earn here at home, where your money is best needed. Your dollar deposits — they don't actually have to be a thousand dollars though there are particular instruments for a thousand dollars. But even if they are smaller than that they will help improve our dollar reserves.

Two, it's so important that you constitute yourselves into a lobby group to protect the country's interests. I remember last year, Filipinos in San Francisco staged a heroic lobby to convince calpers to maintain their investments here in the Philippines, and you succeeded. And I thank you for that as well. Now, we need the same persuasive power when our sovereign standing is under review by several rating agencies and fund managers.

Three, increase your monthly remittances even by at least 20 dollars a month. The peso has hit an 8-month high and certainly a lot of that comes from remittances from overseas Filipinos.

Thank you for your love of family and country.

Four, retire in the Philippines, in a place of your choice and in the company of people you love. This is still the best place to spend the twilight of your years. Your peso has more value and health care is both excellent and affordable. Choose the most serene, rustic place, and invest now for your egg nest in the future.

Five, what you're doing... Continue to do what you're doing — mobilizing overseas communities to participate in the ten-point legacy program of my administration. Allow me therefore, to spell out very briefly the ten legacies.

I can be brief because my ten legacies are summarized in the acronym "BEAT THE ODDS": B is for balancing the budget, E is for modern education for all. And this is where "Gilas" comes in. Thank you very much for being a very big part of that legacy. Aside from "Gilas" which seeks to computerize and penetrate with the internet all high schools within the remaining five years of my administration, I would also like to call attention to the labor department's "Donate-a-Classroom" project. The classroom project is called "Galing sa Mamamayang Pilipino Abroad." it aims to build 10,000 classrooms in the poorest barangays through donations from overseas Filipino community. To date, our OFWs had been able to contribute 245 new classrooms through your donations. Internet penetration, classroom and books I mentioned because I see Nancy Harrington. Thank you for your books for the barangay program.

To continue with our 10-point program: A is for automated elections, T is for transport and digital infrastructure to connect the entire country. And you're connecting the school through the internet contributes to that. That's BEAT.

For the: T is for terminating the NPA and MILF conflicts, H is for healing the wounds of Edsa 1, 2 and 3, E is for electricity and water for the entire country.

For ODDS: O is for opportunities for 10 million jobs. Loida has already talked about microfinance. We aim to create ten million jobs. And we aim that three million of them will come from microfinance. Also to create jobs, investing in the Philippines is now a wise thing to do. Our stock market is vibrant, our growth rate is strong.

Now, to continue for now to beat the odds: D is for decongesting Metro Manila, and the last DS is for Developing Subic-Clark as the best hub in the region.

The DOLE classroom program, the Gilas, the stock market investments, the books for the barangay, the microfinance — these are just some examples of how overseas Filipinos can contribute to the 10-point legacy agenda. And I'm glad Loida talked about hope. The year 2005 is "a year of urgent change and also a year of fervent hope." I'm glad we're having this meeting at the beginning of the year.

I begin this year with a sense of urgency, but also with a deep sense of hope and renewed purpose. As Loida described very well, the nation is at a crossroads, and must move forward with decisive action in Congress. I'm glad Mar and Martin are in the midst of such decisive action with the unity of our people, and a clear direction from your elected leadership.

Ana as president of this great nation — as you have asked me, Loida to do — I will provide that leadership and direction in 2005.

While it won't be easy — nothing worth fighting for ever is — it must be done. Simply put, we must enact vital legislation to increase revenues, pass a budget that invests in our 10-point pro-poor program, and number three, take executive action towards wiping out corruption.

The economy is the foundation of our hope and the creation of jobs the central organizing principle of my government.

We are on the right track: our exports are up, a lot of them from Cebu. As I said earlier, our growth is up, and our spending is in line. As I said earlier, the peso is strengthening, thanks to you, the overseas Filipinos. The stock market is strong, agricultural growth has jumped, capital inflows are increasing and economic figures in 2004 were higher than expected.

And so, I feel justified in calling on all Filipinos, wherever you are, to stay the course. It's time to tear down barriers and build up hope, growth, a new optimism at the start of this new year.

And I thank the global Filipinos for being here tonight to express to me the fervent hope for the urgent change that we all want to happen for the good of the folks back home here in the Philippines.

Mabuhay ang overseas Filipinos!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of the Planters Bank-Aureos $25-Million SME Equity Fund

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching ceremony of the Planters Bank-Aureos $25-Million SME Equity Fund

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, January 27, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you, Nitz.

Secretary Purisima; Deputy Governor Tetangco; other officials of the Philippine Government, including our incoming members of the economic team, Ambassador Chuching Tambunting; Mr. Liam Cully; Floy Aguenza, my neighbor in La Vista; other distinguished guests who are too many to mention, this is such a star-studded affair; movers and shakers of the business community; ladies and gentlemen.

We are all proud to launch the very first private equity fund in the Philippines that's solely for small and medium enterprises. Congratulations! Chuching on your continuing leadership in the SME sector. congratulations! Planters Bank. Congratulations! Aureos and thank you for moving your regional headquarters from Bangkok to Manila.

The Philippines is not alone in its drive for economic prosperity. And so I thank our allies from the United Kingdom and Norway for putting up this equity fund.

I willingly made Malacañang available for the launching of this fund because of its importance to our economic program, to maintain and even accelerate our momentum of economic growth. When I began my new term six months ago, I spelled out a ten-point pro-poor legacy program. The first of the ten points I listed was the creation of six to ten million jobs in the next six years, especially by supporting three million entrepreneurs and developing two million hectares of agri-business.

And to do that to support these millions of entrepreneurs, we need the private equity fund being launched today. So this fund is an integral part of our economic program. We need to support the small and medium entrepreneurs, to grow the economy and provide more than a million jobs a year, as we unleash the entrepreneurial spirit of our people so that we can row our own boat, set our own course and sail forward to better times.

Small and medium entrepreneurs have proven the capacity to turn their capital around in the shortest period of time and create jobs.

This private equity fund complements the government's training programs on trade and entrepreneurship, skills development and product design.

Dynamic self-employment is the name of the game among the small entrepreneurs or employing a small number of people. But if we consider the capital to employment ratio, indeed, they are employing a large number of people for every peso of capital. The payback is durable social stability and economic prosperity.

We have a solid synergy of entrepreneurship in the inner cities, in the suburbs, in the countryside, and even overseas to bring about a dignified and productive life for the average Filipino family.

The partnership of political, social and economic institutions is shifting to high gear.

I take this opportunity once more to congratulate the House of Representatives for their leadership in putting our fiscal house in order together with the senate. I mention the House today because the passage of the value-added tax at dawn this morning, after working through the night, is an act of valiant civic duty that builds a better future for all Filipinos by growing the economy to create more jobs and push our ten-point pro-poor agenda. Thank you to Congress.

The strong executive-legislative partnership with congress and with the Senate is reinforced by our incoming members of the economic team — Johnny Santos and Bert Lina — that will continue to bridge the continuity of our policies and programs for the benefit of the average Filipino. The economy is on a roll and we shall continue to ensure that the most marginal sectors are shielded from short-term adversities by cushioning prices where the most telling social impact is expected. The people are ready for urgent change, and we shall buoy their hopes through the sustained fight against corruption, against waste in government and against leaks in our revenue system.

The sense of a turnaround is settling in. For the last four days, the peso has been appreciating at a faster rate than its regional counterparts — 55.20, Sai? Yahooo! I say to that.

According to the analysts, the liquidity is coming from foreign investment inflows as well as the general bullish movement at the stock market. The fundamentals are still around. We even reported a trade surplus of 333 million dollars in November last year compared to a deficit of a 193 million dollars in the same month a year earlier.

Now, we must bring the benefits of this macroeconomic performance to the average Filipino. And one of the most important ways is to support the small and medium entrepreneurs. And that is why this private equity fund is properly being launched in the palace of the people.

We shall soldier on, just as our small and medium entrepreneurs, both in the business districts and barrios of the archipelago are soldiering on, especially now with the very first private equity fund.

Through institutional partners like Planters and Aureos, we shall cut the poverty that cuts our people's lives short.

We will succeed because the Filipino spirit is resilient and our drive to excel is strong.

Just as the people of Planters Bank and its visionary leadership have exemplified on this proud event.

To Chuching, Floy, their partners from Aureos and incoming partner from the DBP, congratulations!

Thank you and mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Monday Flag Raising Ceremony and 14th Philippine National Police Anniversary

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Monday Flag Raising Ceremony and 14th Philippine National Police Anniversary

[Delivered at the National Headquarters, Philippine National Police Camp Crame, Quezon City, January 31, 2005]

Thank you, Secretary Angelo Reyes.

Troop commander give ‘Tikas Pahinga.’

His Excellency President Ramos, former Chief PNP in his time; Chief PNP General Aglipay and the officers, men and women of the Philippine National Police; Congresswoman Nanette Daza who is our congresswoman here and the other elective officials of the Philippine government, including Governor Parouk Hussin of the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao and Governor Ben Loong of Sulu; members of the Cabinet and other government officials, including the AFP Chief of Staff, General Abu; recipients of today’s PNP awards; I would also like to greet the recipients of the annual ten outstanding policemen from the Metrobank Foundation. And I thank the chairman of Metrobank, Chairman George Ty for making the awarding ceremonies earlier this morning an integral part of our PNP anniversary; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Our policemen and policewomen on your 14th anniversary, I commend the brave men and women of the Philippine National Police, from your generals down to the ordinary police officer patrolling our neighborhoods.

Earlier, General Aglipay reminded us of the orders I gave him five months ago. Your response to that order — to improve public safety, stop drug trafficking, fight corruption within your ranks, and wage an all out war against terror — lends honor to the flag that we raised earlier today.

Even our friends in the Filipino-Chinese community attest to your major triumph against kidnap-for-ransom which is now at a record low. Congratulations to all of you!

Today, I especially congratulate the Batangas police, the SAF and the T.M.G. who triumphed in a five-hour firefight yesterday and arrested a notorious kidnapper with an P800,000 reward and his seven cohorts. I pray for the quick recovery of our six policemen who were wounded in that five-hour firefight, including the two who are still in critical condition. Congratulations to all of you!

Congratulations, too, to our drug enforcers to whom I gave a special presidential citation this morning. The number of innocent lives saved by your cutting the illegal trade by half is immense and i bid you to continue your good work.

Congratulations, too, to our anti-terrorism enforcers. Many times you have managed to thwart the evil designs of terrorists even before they could act. The singular honor of the Philippines now chairing both the anti-terrorism committee in the U.N. and the counter-terrorism task force of APEC must be rightfully shared by you, the policemen and policewomen of the Philippines, together with the other law enforcement agencies, the AFP, and our ever vigilant communities. Congratulations also for that!

Now, to keep the momentum of your new aggressive drive against cybersex dens, I call on our people to report to your nearest police stations operations that taint the image of our women and threaten the morals of people across the world. Congratulations! On a good start and good luck! On a good continuation.

The ramparts of our national security must be held firm as our economy grows. In ten minutes at 9:00 o' clock this morning, the NEDA, the national statistical coordination board will officially report to the nation that our GDP grew by 6.1 percent in 2004, the highest since the last peak of growth in 1996 during the time of President Fidel V. Ramos. Congratulations! To the police and to all Filipinos for this achievement in our economy.

Our institutions are humming the tune of growth.

I would like to thank Congress — Nanette, please thank Congress — for focusing on the task of putting our fiscal house in order. And I would like to thank especially our service sector, transportation and communication especially, and our trade services for picking up, complemented by our support to boost micro, small and medium enterprises.

I would like to especially congratulate the young professionals manning our call centers and outsourcing firms who are raking in the appreciation of our investors.

We, in the executive branch of government, must do our share, just as Congress and the Senate are doing their share in addressing the fiscal challenge by keeping food supply and prices stable, and cutting waste and corruption in government, even as we fully support the efforts of the supreme court, which stands at the apex of the criminal justice system to cleanse its rank of misfits.

Law enforcement is only the first rung of our criminal justice, but it is in the enforcement of the law in the streets that the people sense the sternness as well as the compassion of the law. And as General Aglipay says, the people want to feel a compassionate, respectful police even as we are strict in our law enforcement.

Overall confidence in our nation lies in the full trust in the law.

Our dedication as public servants to secure our people's safety and protect them from scalawags, white collar or otherwise, must be unassailable.

The officers and personnel of the PNP must not be found wanting. Do not tarnish your badge with a stain of corruption.

Last night, I gave the order to General Aglipay as well as to General Abu, to replace the existing AFP/PNP contingent in Diwalwal with the 402nd infantry brigade and a select PNP unit. The Chief PNP shall also include the murderers Tata Sala and his brother Edgar Sala, who are the centers of gravity of illegal mining in Diwalwal. They will be included in the most wanted list and the chief PNP shall effect their immediate arrest.

Men and women of the Philippine National Police, remain true to your oath as protectors of our people.

On this day, on your 14th anniversary, I greet you all. And to General Aglipay, I want to take this opportunity to congratulate him for a job well done.

Mabuhay ang PNP!

Thank you.

The average Filipino will soon reap the fruits of confidence in the economy, which will not only bring in more investments and jobs but drive the overall agenda of urgent reforms. These positive developments don't happen by accident. They are the result of hard nosed assessment by the objective analysis of the great potentials of our country and excellence and hard work of our people. These assessments are not limited to the economy but extend to the gains we've made in unifying our political institutions to put our fiscal house in order: in fighting corruption, terrorism and crime; in waging peace; and in delivering our pro-poor agenda.

Philippine stability is dawning upon the whole range of national affairs and cutting across the regions and sectors. We must stay the course, seize the opportunity for reform, and close ranks behind a higher future.

And I can't think of no better place to make this call than among the wonderful, friendly and supportive people of Binmaley, Pangasinan.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Stakeholder's Forum on Responsible Mining for Sustainable Development, February 3, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Stakeholder's Forum on Responsible Mining for Sustainable Development

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang Palace, February 3, 2005]

REFORMING THE MINING INDUSTRY

In a nutshell, our mining policy is: minimum environmental and social effect, maximum contribution to the war against poverty.

This forum has an important bearing on the ongoing investment conference for the industry that's taking place in another venue.

Here I hope, starting here I hope to lead a national consensus on mining along the common standard of public interest and welfare.

We should never allow loud rhetoric to override patriotic sense.

We need investors willing to go by our laws to put our economy on a stable plane.

I'm for responsible mining not for any faction or interest group in our society, but for the people for whom the bounties of this earth are reserved by the Almighty.

That's why I invited you as their representatives, representatives of the people, not to any other place but to Malacañang, the home of our peoples' aspirations.

I realize that the government has a long way to go to prove its earnestness and sincerity in cleaning up abandoned mines and in seeing to it that local communities are benefited in a durable way, and not hurt by mining.

We are gathered here to break away from decades of complacency, obsolete technologies and misdirected priorities that have combined to project festering negative impressions about mining.

We've installed a legal and administrative system of safeguards to achieve the right balance of economic development, environmental protection and social equity. But we are still willing to add some more to this framework in response to the consensus that I hope to achieve in this conference.

Among the additional safeguards, we shall fight for legislation compelling mining companies to pay directly to the local government units in the mining areas their share in the 2 percent tax on minerals. We are also prepared to propose legislation for the payment of the proper royalties to the indigenous peoples.

Indigenous peoples need not fear that your lands will be taken away.

Small miners need not fear that they will lose their livelihood, for we shall organize small mining cooperatives and provide technical assistance to make their practices more economical and more environmentally acceptable.

Mt. Diwalwal shall be turned into a sanctuary of law and order.

It is folly to ignore the value of our mineral resources while we wage a day-to-day piecemeal battle against the ravages of economic uncertainty.

A stronger peso from renewed international confidence in Philippine mining eases the socioeconomic burden across the board, bringing relief to the average Filipino.

The revival of mining spells more jobs, more roads, more bridges, more classrooms and books and computers in them, potable water to the barangays, electricity to every barangay.

And so, I invite everyone to rise to the challenge of performing and reforming, of seeking new horizons for the nation, of crafting viable strategies for collective prosperity — with the people, for the people.

Kaya sa inyong lahat, thank you for coming to this forum. May we have a good consensus by the end of the day.

Once again, thank you and welcome!

Speech of President Arroyo during a Dinner Reception for the participants of the International Mining Investment Conference of the Chamber of Mines of the Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a Dinner Reception for the participants of the International Mining Investment Conference of the Chamber of Mines of the Philippines

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang Palace, February 3, 2005]

Thank you, Secretary Defensor.

Speaker de Venecia, other officials of the Philippine government, members of the diplomatic corps, members of the mining industry both in the Philippines and all over the world, ladies and gentlemen:

Welcome to the Philippines and welcome to Malacañang!

I think I shouldn't say too much anymore, the speakers of the last two days have said it all. Your confidence in the Philippines buoys our hopes for a brighter future.

This conference comes at a time when the Philippines is experiencing political dynamism and economic growth: 6.1 percent growth rate, record levels of the stock exchange, very rapid strengthening of the peso, and of course, our supreme court two months ago ruled... and a few days ago ruled with finality on the constitutionality of our mining law.

Speaker de Venecia is here and I would like to thank Congress for avidly immersing itself in the shaping of equitable revenues to put our fiscal house in order.

We in the executive department are keenly focused on a ten-point pro-poor agenda to break the back of cyclic poverty.

Our institutions have a synergy of ideals and intentions intensely focused on the overriding welfare of the Filipino people.

There's an air of urgent change and reform lifting the ship of solidarity and enterprise. And I thank you because you're among the first to come here to give the Philippines a second look. Your trip shall be the start of a mutually rewarding experience for both your firms and for the Filipino people.

Our economic fundamentals are strong and stable founded not on public enterprise but dynamic private enterprise. And we shall compete for your investments through good governance, quality human resources and competitive incentives.

Our infrastructure programs are shifting into high gear in identified areas of mining growth. We are developing the best logistics hub in Clark and Subic just north of Manila.

Our crime rates have been on the downtrend in the last three years. We are working with our regional partners to check terrorist movements across the seas, while our soldiers are training alongside American troops as we take on the common foe of terrorism.

We offer a sound legal, operational and security environment that will enable solid profit alongside predictable social and environmental imperatives.

A mineral production sharing agreement can be obtained within six months — right, Mike Defensor? An environmental compliance certificate can be obtained in four months, and a precondition certificate from the commission on indigenous peoples can be obtained in three months.

Corruption will be punished as firmly as professional conduct will be upheld and rewarded.

We have linked two of our major line agencies — environment under Secretary Defensor and trade under outgoing Secretary Purisima, who will go to finance, and incoming Secretary Santos whom you met today —to spearhead all other concerned agencies in speeding up the processing chain.

I look forward to a strong partnership in shaping the overall environmental and social strategy in your prospective areas of operation. Winning the hearts and minds of the people in the community is the first step.

We are addressing the issue of abandoned mines now, and we shall not repeat the dire lessons of the past. We must make sure that the land is fit for tilling and habitation when we leave.

More than ever, I'm convinced that we need to get down to more community dialogues in the spirit of sincerity and mutual respect.

We must listen to the voice of indigenous peoples and local governments because they guarantee the stability and longevity of your investments.

Help us bring down the message of responsible mining now before negative attitudes seep into the fabric of the community.

As our lifetime partners in the fight against poverty, I invite you to help us meet the challenge of sustainable development through responsible mining.

Thank you, Mabuhay!

Bon appetite!

Speech of President Arroyo during the 103rd anniversary of the Bureau of Customs

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 103rd anniversary of the Bureau of Customs

[Delivered at the Social Hall, Main Bldg., Bureau of Customs South Harbor, Manila City, February 7, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you, Nitz.

Commissioner Jereos, Secretary Angie Reyes of DILG, Tony Meloto and the other civilians who are here with us today, Tony Bernardo and the other former officials of BOC, present officers and staff of BOC, other government officials, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen:

Happy Anniversary to all of you!

I don't usually attend anniversaries but today I decided to attend the Customs anniversary because the Customs bureau stands at the apex of one of the most important concerns of our 10-point pro-poor agenda, and that is balancing the budget.

Many people ask me how can you remember the ten-points. Well, we have the acronym "BEAT THE ODDS." The very first one there B is for balancing the budget. Balancing the budget is a function of efficient, equitable collection of taxes and their full faithful and honest application to the people's welfare. We're all part of this far-ranging responsibility to make taxes work for the people.

As performance gains in all revenue fronts, so does the entire economy.

As our partnership with Congress continues to reap revenue measures, our revenue agencies will continue to be held to a higher level of performance.

Popular acceptance of new taxes largely depends on our efficiency to collect taxes under existing laws.

Honest tax collection is your main task. This responsibility puts the customs worker at the forefront of public interest. That's why let me take this opportunity to congratulate you on your highest level of tax collections in history. Your high tax collections compared to target and compared to last year are proof not only of growing efficiency but of better morale and discipline. Mabuhay ang Customs!

We are not only intercepting more contraband, as was shown to me by your officials when I arrived, but making smugglers think twice.

The days of smugglers are numbered. We will beat them in their own game and draw the noose tight on their operations.

These things did not happen by accident. They are a result of day to day leadership of good commissioners, the perseverance of diligent Customs personnel, and the complementary work of related agencies like those under Secretary Reyes.

Nitz Amatong and George Jereos are about to retire and leave us. I would like to congratulate them both for a job well done.

It is also my pleasure to welcome Cesar Purisima to the DOF and Bert Lina to the Customs watch. Cesar recommended Bert because Bert knows the ropes and will slide into the job without effort. I ask you to lend him your full support.

The scope of the bureau is stretching out globally. We are poised to bring the Philippines to the edge of greater stability and competitiveness in order to create more jobs and more income for our people — that is always our ultimate goal. To be able to do this, we have to be stable, we have to be competitive. Stability and competitiveness mean that we have to be part of the whole network that facilitates beneficial commerce. And that's why we have the officials of PCCI here with us today and I acknowledge their presence.

Aside from efficient tax collection, the PCCI only knows too well that trade facilitation is the name of the game — to reduce the cost and the time of doing business as well as to improve transparency, predictability and consistency across all transactions.

The road to change starts with an acceptance of the sad reality that the Customs service continues to be one of the most stigmatized agencies in the country.

The perception of corruption has to be reversed lest our surging economic gains are overcome by nagging skepticism. At the same time, we must also liberate the ranks of customs from fear, blackmail and undue interference from unscrupulous vested interests. The work has begun and we must carry on to the finish.

Together, we shall strike a fundamental dent upon the culture of corruption. The culture that is fundamentally behind the decades-long failure to collect the right amount of taxes.

When I talk about fighting the culture of corruption, I'm speaking not only of the lifestyle checks that have already taken their toll on a number of officials across the government. I'm also speaking of investments in technological change and procedural reforms.

With regard to technological change, today, we launched here on the platform, in Manila our new network with the world automation project of the U.N. which aligns our software with over 85 countries worldwide for common standards of import and export processing. I previously launched this network in the Customs offices of Cebu and Bohol. At that time, when I saw the presentation of Balong and he had that last frame of the man under the coconut tree transacting customs business, I said, "Balong, when will that happen?" He said, the whole system to be completed will take ten months but the scene of the man under the coconut tree transacting business with customs can take place in three months from now.

I'm also glad that today again on this stage, we launched still another facet of our strong partnership with the PCCI for the internet lodgement of import entries.

Now, with all of these combination of different technological changes your clients can file their entries in the comfort of their homes and offices. A user-friendly customs service can indeed work wonders.

With regard to procedural reforms — well, today earlier, when one of my long complaints has been... I'm very happy about your seizures but I would wish that we were more aggressive in filing cases. And today, I saw a number of seized goods in a number of vans and I said, "so, when are you gonna file the case against the consignee?" "oh, maybe two weeks." And so I said, why? "because there has to be an investigation." But we've already seized the good. So, we know that prima facie there was smuggling. And then the answer was "but they might, you know, we have to investigate because they might have a defense, they might say that it doesn't belong to them." I said, well, then let them say that in court.

So today, as part of your celebration of Customs, I'm asking George Jereos to make sure that the consignees of all those seized goods that we inspected today will receive a charge sheet today.

On the matter of legislation for procedural reform, there is the new accountability reform law, commonly called the attrition act. That's our latest tool for reform.

Job security and compensation are now tied to performance. We shall set the goals fairly — that's done, Nitz by the DBCC? — measure the results transparently and make the firm moves to proscribe or reward those deserving either way.

I know that some of you are apprehensive about this law, but those who do their jobs faithfully need not worry. It will be used neither as a means for political vendetta, nor for sham rewards, nor for unjust punishment.

It will be used to build faith in good governance. And that is what I want our theme to be for this customs year: "Let's beat the odds; let's rebuild faith in good governance; let's balance the budget; let's collect a lot of those taxes."

Join me in this quest.

Mabuhay on your 103rd anniversary!

Thank you and God bless.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 27th National Assembly of the League of Vice-Governors of the Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 27th National Assembly of the League of Vice-Governors of the Philippines

[Delivered at the Isla Parilla, Alabel, Sarangani Province, February 10, 2005]

Thank you very much Secretary Angie Reyes for your kind introduction.

And I'd like to greet all of you today. Let me just mention Governor Sorry about that, Miguel Domiguez of Sarangani, our host governor. And I'd like to thank and congratulate Miguel, he showed me his program for the province of Sarangani and almost point for point he has his counterpart of the ten point program. Thank you very much for aligning your program to the national government, Miguel.

I also like to thank Vice Governor Bridgette Chiongbian for her welcome. And Bridgette, belated happy birthday. Yesterday was her birthday. I'd like to thank her father, my compadre, Congressman Erwin Chiongbian for your kind welcome for being with us in our trips earlier today. I'd like to greet the president of the League of Vice Governors of the Philippines, Julius Herrera of Bohol. And as mentioned earlier by Congressman Chiongbian, I have a number of Cabinet members here with us today. On the head table with me is Angie Reyes and Romy Nery who were your guest speakers earlier. and I brought together with me — Arty Yap, Dinky Soliman, Paul Dominguez.

I'd like to greet our... the other... well, I will... since I greeted the father of Bridgette, I will greet the father of Miguel – Paul Dominguez who was with my Cabinet but his now with the private sector as the president of the Tampacan Mining Corporation, six hundred million dollars. Congratulations, Paul!

Our other officers of the League of Vice Governors, we have James Calingin from Albay, we have Oscar Lambino from Pangasinan, and all the other vice governor who are here, about 50 of you. May I also greet the other guest speakers John Dalton, growth with equity in Mindanao. And his name is not here but he was my professor in demographic economics Ernie Pernia, I'd like to greet him.

And to all of you, good afternoon. Maayong hapon, maayo nga hapon, marhay nga hapon, maupay nga kulop. And I'd like to thank all of you for being here in this as big as the southernmost province of the country.

Your 27th National Assembly today is a good opportunity for us to get together in what I call the year of urgent change and fervent hope.

Earlier, when I was preparing, I asked my aide, "where's my speech?" So she called up Secretary Afable. Afable said, "nobody told me to make a speech." So I called up Dodie Limcauco who by the way is sick in the hospital. Let's hope that he gets well. I called up Dodie, he said, "no speech because you're suppose to have a roundtable. You gonna sit down on a u-shaped after lunch thing and you'll talk. Ok, no speech. Nonetheless, I still need notes. So he had some notes prepared for me.

And then when I was in Malungon, they said, "oh, it's not roundtable anymore, it's theatre type. I said, "but there's no speech. And I haven't seen my speech if there... even if it has an speech so put it back to u-shape." they said, "no more they can't change it because Secretary Reyes and Secretary Nery already spoke speech style, theatre style. Ok, so theatre style, so speech style. So my aide comes and tell me, "Ma'am hindi interaction din pala." "eh, papano kami mag-i-interaction theatre style, hindi na speech na lang." And then Bridgette says, interaction.

Anyway, what we'll gonna do is... I can't have an interaction this style. So, when I finish my speech, my opening remark, I'll go and get my merienda. Can we fix the, you know the arrangement again to make it u-shape style like before.

Anyway, why it is so important for us to have this interaction because our vice governors are the presiding officers of the provincial boards. Therefore, you are at the helm of aligning local programs to national priorities and I can assure you that you have a lot of action ahead.

Yesterday, we had twin celebrations. The Roman Catholic community observed Ash Wednesday, the Filipino-Chinese community celebrated Chinese New Year.

Both these occasions signify that we have a collective faith, a collective solidarity, cultural diversity. We are a multi-ethnic society. But the joint celebration was a good way of showing solidarity to push forward in nation building. Here in Mindanao, that multi-ethnicity of our society is even more obvious. Christians, Muslims ... multi-ethnic society indeed. And we must all be united. We must all recognized at the same time the multi-ethnicity of our society and have social justice for all and institutionalized accommodation of ethnic traditions.

We need unity, we need a strong action from Congress. And I thanked Erwin Chiongbian for his support there. And we need a clear direction from the leadership. These are the three things we need so that our economy can truly awaken from the skepticism of the past. I believed the signs are clear of the awakening from the skepticism. The people are rejecting the politics of division, doomsday prediction and hate. They are embarking on the new politics of unity, performance and integrity.

Investors have been coming over to take a serious look at the rebirth of our mining industry. That's why I was mentioning Paul because that's when we had our mining seminar, we must have closed about three billion dollars in mining investments. One of the biggest is the Tampacan with a six hundred million dollars. But maybe the biggest single one of all so far is the Chinese investment of one billion dollars in the Nonoc Nickle Mining Corporation in Surigao Del Norte. The fight against corruption is being fought at all levels. And our partnership with congress to put our fiscal house in order is reaping steady gains. Congressman Chiongbian, please convey again my thanks to the congressmen.

The spirit of unity must flow down to every community. And you the vice governors are our agents of transformation.

I'm glad we're here in Mindanao so that you can all see that permanent peace in Mindanao is within reach, even as we have to push the fight against terror to the limit.

The situation in Sulu has brought together the forces of law against the force of lawlessness. As we deal with pockets of criminals and terrorist holdouts, we are keeping the line of the law firm with the full cooperation of the local governments, the peace constituencies and community leaders.

We will win the peace for the people but we will not give the terrorist a moment of peace.

Our operations are not targetted against the MNLF. Afterall, the MNLF is in control of the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao in the person of Parouk Hussin who is pure MNLF and he's governor of the autonomous region. The MNLF is leader in Basilan in the person of the deputy speaker of the House of Representatives Jerry Salapudin who is MNLF. The MNLF is there in the local government of Cotabato City because the Manour of Cotabato City is Muslimin Sema, Secretary General of the MNLF. It is the leadership in Marawi City because the mayor of Marawi City Omar Ali who is also MNLF. Then, we talked about magic 8. Most of them are holding elective positions in the different municipalities and provinces of the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao. So our operations are not aimed at them. They are our allies. They are our co-leaders. In governance, we have an on-going peace agreement with them that is being carried out. What are we doing? We are fighting against terrorists and criminals in Panamao and in Indanan in Sulu. Therefore, we are insuring that MNLF communities and civilians are kept out of harms way even as we wage war against criminals and terrorists. Evacuees are being sheltered, fed and cared for until they return to their homes.

Our government has briefed the OIC ambassadors on the situation. We have assured them that the overall peace process firmly holds even amidst isolated hostilities.

The ceasefire with the MILF is holding tight, far and wide. And we will soon set out joint teams to go after lawless elements as we prepare for the resumption of peace talks.

Enduring peace, like economic growth, is a work in constant progress

I salute the members of Congress, Erwin for their non-stop deliberation on the national budget and tax legislation like the vat bill, to raise the coffers of the national government so that we can, among others, add to the resources of our local government.

The budget for 2005 has been earmarked to finance the 10 point agenda which Bridgette talked about, which Miguel Dominguez replicating here in Sarangani. And some asked me, how can we remember what your ten-points are. And for those of you who haven't heard, well it's...to remember it, we make it bear the acronym of "BEAT THE ODDS".

B – is for a balanced budget because we must reduced our budget deficit. We have a budget deficit of 180 billion pesos that must go down to zero by 2010.

E – is education for all. And that's why I am very happy that in the remote barangay's Malungon we were able to build five school buildings, five classrooms and two school buildings under the KALAH-CIDDS program. But Miguel has his own building program.

A – is for automated elections;

T – is for transport and digital infrastructure.

That's BEAT. For the:

T – terminate the MILF and NPA conflicts hopefully through peaceful negotiation

H- is heal the wounds of EDSA.

E – is electricity and water for all barangays. And I am very happy that as Bridgette said, we just came back today from barangay Cauayan which is among many barangays that we are providing water and power for under the KALAH-CIDDS program.

O – is opportunities for 10 million jobs over the next six years starting last year. And how do we do this? By promoting, by supporting three million entrepreneurs and developing two million hectares of agri-business many of which are in Mindanao. In fact, flying from Malungon to Alabel, we flew over about two thousand hectares, Miguel of mango plantation which is the type of product that's here in Southern Mindanao high value crops.

D – is for decongesting metro manila. And that's the reason why we want to transfer some of the agencies to different parts of the country. And then finally,

Ds – is to develop Clark and Subic because we must have a hub somewhere in Asia for goods that come from America or go to America. And we want to... Clark and Subic are competing not which GENSAN, not with Davao. They are competing with other hubs in the region of Asia.

These are our goals for today and the very near future. All agencies and departments are geared towards the implementation of these agenda. And you, the vice governors who draw-up the budgets of your own provinces will be an indispensable cog in the wheel of stability and prosperity.

For our ten-point agenda to be achieved, we must learn to work together and live each day with optimism and a zest for constructive engagement.

The specter of division and strife must be banished for the seeds of permanent change to take root.

We continue to make history as each day passes. And now I ask the League of Vce-Governors of the Philippines to stay the course with me as we embark on the path to real economic freedom which is freedom from poverty for our people.

Many of you are already familiar with my ten-point agenda as Miguel is, I am sure that my ten-point agenda can also easily reflect your priorities.

And so I ask for your help now in explaining our tax reform measures to our people because that's the way to finance the ten-point agenda, one of which is a balance budget. We all gain from broad enlightenment on the burning issues that impinge on the lives of average Filipinos.

Our economy is growing, corruption is being addressed. A clearly-defined road map for Philippine progress is in place. Even tourism is up for this two weeks of Chinese new year. Last night I had dinner with publishers and columnists of the Chinese-Filipino media, and they said, all the five-star hotels are fully booked. They were so fully booked in Manila that many book in Cebu. Now they're all fully book in Cebu but they're not familiar yet with the tourists areas in the rest of the country, the tourists facilities. But it really shows that with the volume of tourists coming in there is a lot of room for developing tourism in other parts of the country. Investors are coming in. I mentioned already ... Australian partners. I mentioned already China in nickle in Surigao del Norte and many more. With a collective heave of great political will, the future can be ours.

This is the moment when we must all decide our place in history. So I asked you vice governors, take up the challenge with me, and we shall win the future.

Thank you.

February 16, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Launching Ceremony of the United Nations Millennium Project Report

[Delivered at the Dusit Nikko Hotel, Makati City, February 16, 2005]

INVESTING IN DEVELOPMENT: A PRACTICAL PLAN TO ACHIEVE
THE MILLENNIUM DEVELOPMENT GOALS

We went through a lot of trouble to prepare that not leaving it to technical people but working on it among the policymakers ourselves, myself and the Cabinet, and we are very grateful and I'm very happy to hear that professor Sachs thinks it's one of the best development plans he has ever read. Thank you very much for your praise and support.

Fighting poverty can only be successful with a practical plan and a strong will.

I'd like to thank the United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan, Professor Sachs and the other experts for agreeing that our plan does conform with the overall plan of the United Nations. I'd like to thank them all for providing us that framework to begin with, as I assure you that I will continue to provide the political will to drive its implementation forward to fruition, and as I provide the political will to wage the fight against terrorism alongside the war against poverty.

We launch this practical plan to attain the millennium development goals to build prosperity for our people, and in the process to mop up the breeding grounds of terrorist recruits.

There's been a lot of debate about what causes terrorism — definitely, evil causes terrorism. But in the Philippines we know that whatever may be the cause of terrorism, the spread of terrorism, which means the recruitment of the hatchet men, has a great deal to do with poverty. And it is no coincidence that the most extensive recruitment of the terrorist hatchet men and messengers can be found in the poorest provinces of our country.

The U.N. development goals are, as Deborah said, mirrored in my ten-point pro-poor legacy agenda that aims to shore up the economy, uplift the lives of our people, strengthen democracy, and forge peace and national solidarity.

The new economic team I put in place to carry out my agenda consists of officials who are capable, loyal and dedicated to change.

I fully expect this team to work with me to lead the nation to a new era of prosperity, freedom and national growth. Not prosperity for a few but, as Deborah said, prosperity for the greatest number of our people. It is important for us — and I thank Congress for passing the budget. I thank Senate that they will soon pass the budget — because this budget invests in our pro-poor agenda. We will also work not only to pass the budget for a pro-poor agenda but to clamp down on corruption, to weed out wasteful government spending, and to raise revenues. These are all key pillars of my economic plan to bring stability and prosperity to our nation.

We are turning the corner: we've come off the watch list of the FATF; we are forging fiscal discipline. In fact, we have forged fiscal discipline; and we are enforcing law and order.

Creating safe streets free from crime and kidnapping are central for our workers, our businessmen and foreigners to go about their jobs.

More government officials are being charged with corruption. Soon they will not only be charged, they will have their ill-gotten gains forfeited to the government. That is my next instruction to our anti-corruption officials.

The clean up of government goes hand in hand with the protection of the environment even as investments in mining start to pour in.

And we are strictly monitoring the implementation of our agenda: the agenda for growth, the agenda against corruption, and the agenda for physical and fiscal discipline. We are monitoring these per municipality, per goal every single day.

I'm happy to hear that our house of representatives recently formed a committee on the MDGS with Congresswoman Neris Soon-Ruiz as chairwoman. Congratulations, Neris!

I'm also happy to hear that twelve city mayors are working closely with our Department of Interior and Local Government and the United Nations Philippine country team to promote the MDGS.

We're reinforcing the building blocks of human development with the mortar of political unity and the rule of law and justice for all.

Today, Philippine development is built on the principled solidarity of our political institutions, and focused – commitment to change and reform.

We will slay the deficit dragon by raising revenues through our own power and initiative, so that we stop financing our development with incessant borrowings. And as we bring about an economic turnaround, so also shall we give peace the pedestal it deserves in every Filipino home.

As Cecille Alvarez said, 'we mourn the loss of lives.' we mourn the loss of lives all over the world because of terrorism.

The quest for a more equitable and compassionate world is hindered by the moral abyss where terrorists dwell. Crushing the wall of poverty must go hand in hand with crushing evil itself.

Yes, we are poised for an economic turnaround and a leap forward in the fight against poverty.

Yes, this is a year of urgent change and fervent hopes.

And I thank the United Nations for your faith and confidence in the Philippines.

Salamat and Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo at the Commemoration of the EDSA People Power Revolution 1 and 2, February 22, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Commemoration of the EDSA People Power Revolution 1 and 2

[Delivered at the People Power Monument, EDSA, Quezon City, February 22, 2005]

HINDI PATAPOS ANG MARTSA NG EDSA

Marami sa inyo nandito, hindi ba? Noong 1986, February 22, araw na ito, marami sa atin nagpunta dito. Nagsimula at hinirang ang mapayapang himagsikan na ngayon ay binansagang EDSA. Ginawa pang EDSA Uno dahil nagkaroon ng EDSA Dos.

Noong panahong 'yon, namangha ang daigdig, buong daigdig sa pagdagsa ng sambayanang Pilipino sa kahabaan ng EDSA. Nandoon nga 'yung mga kaibigan natin sa Mandaluyong, binababati ko sila. Nandito si Congressman Benhur Abalos at naalala ko, EDSA Dos parating nandiyan sila. Mula sa harap ng Camp Crame at Aguinaldo, dito nga, walang sandata kung hindi ang hiyaw ng pakikibaka, pusong nagliliyab sa pagmamahal ng Bayan, at mataimtim na paniniwala sa Panginoon.

Naalaala natin ang martir na si Benigno Aquino Jr., Naging mukha ng kabayanihan at kaluluwa ng sundalo ng Diyos, nagtulak sa ating lahat upang ipaglaban ang kalayaan at katapatan. 'Yung kanyang pagkamatay, Agosto 1983, nagsimula nang tatlong taong matinding pakikibaka hanggang umabot sa EDSA.

Paano natin mapapakawalaan ang gunita ng marubdob at makahulugang sandali ng pagkakaisa? Sumulong ang karaniwang mamamayan. Nabuwag ang diktaduryang matiwalì. Nayanig ang daigdig sa pananahimik ng mga baril at tangka sa harap na tapang ng taumbayan.

Ngunit bakit tayo narito ngayon? Dahil hindi pa lubos ang tagumpay natin. Hindi pa tapos ang laban ng sambayanan. Libu-libong Pilipino ang naghihintay pa ng tunay na kalayaan: ang paglaya sa tanikala ng kahirapan, sa tanikala ng kawalan ng katarungan, sa tanikala ng pag-aapi at pagsasamantala. At para makamit ang mga kalayaan na 'yon, kailangan ang paglaya mula sa katiwalian. Kailangan ang paglaya mula sa korupsiyon. Kaya sabi ng Grand Masa Alliance, beat the odds, sugpuin ang katiwalian.

Kaya naman kailangan natin ang bagong himagsikang mapayapa at bunga ng pagkakaisa gaya ng nagawa natin ng EDSA 1 at EDSA 2. Hindi tayo patatalo sa kapit ng bagong galamay na ibig pang sumakal sa atin. Panahon na upang magbuklod-buklod ang lahat alang-alang sa mahal nating Inang Bayan. Magbubuklod-buklod laban sa katiwalian, laban sa korupsiyon.

Kaya nagpapasalamat ako sa dasal ng ating mga lider, ng ating spiritual community, religious community dahil ang EDSA ay inaalay natin sa Panginoon.

Itong taong 2005, ang taon ng dagliang pagbabago sa Pilipinas. Upang manumbalik ang pag-asa at tiwala, kailangan ng pamunuang buo ang loob sa dapat gawin upang lumaganap ang kabuhayan, lumago ang kaban ng bayan, mapondohan ang mga programa ng mga maralita, makaakit ng kapital at masugpo ang kidnapping, masugpo ang pagwasak sa kakahuyan, 'yung mga nagpuputol ng puno na ilegal upang masugpo dapat masugpo higit sa lahat ang katiwalian sa lipunan.

Di-matatawaran ang halaga ng ligtas na mga lansangan upang makapagsikap ang ating mga manggagawa at mangangalakal nang walang ligalig. Kaya kasama sa laban sa katiwalian ay ang laban sa krimen. Ngayon, bumaba ang krimen, bumaba ang kidnapping, kaya tuloy umaakyat ang investment sa ating bayan. Magpasalamat tayo sa Panginoon.

Ngunit upang magpatuloy ang pagdami ng trabaho at higit pang pag-angat ng sambayanang Pilipino, dapat nating durugin ang kultura ng katiwalian, dahil itong kultura ng katiwalian ay pumipigil ng ating pag-unlad. Kaya naman para durugin natin itong kultura, parami nang parami ang mga opisyal ng pamahalaan na pinasasakdal natin sa pamamagitan ng matinding imbestigasyon. Di-lalaon at kikilos ang gobyerno upang ilitin ang kanilang nakaw na yaman bago pa man sila litisin at hatulan. Pinupuksa na ang salang pagputol ng puno, di ba, Mike Defensor? Nandito 'yung mga DENR. Salamat na kayo ay narito para mangakong lalaban sa katiwalian, lalung-lalo na sa illegal logging, dib a? At hindi na rin makakapagnegosyo sa gobyerno ang nandadaya sa buwis, di ba, Secretary Ebdane? 'Yang mga tax evaders, kanselado ang kanilang mga kontrata.

Gagamitin ko ang buong lakas ng panguluhan upang ipagsakdal ang mga illegal loggers, tulungan niyo ako, ha DENR? Gagamitin ko ang lakas ng pamunuan upang mapawalang-bisa ang mga transaksyon ng gobyerno sa mga tiwaling kompanya. Gagamitin ko ang kapangyarihan ng pamunuan upang patalsikin ang mga walang-budhing opisyal na nagnanakaw sa bayan. At ibalik natin ang marangal at matapat na paglilingkod-bayan ng mga kawal at pinuno ng ating Sandatahang Lakas na nagtataya ng buhay upang ipagtanggol ang dangal ng bayan. At tayo lahat manawagan tayo sa Kongreso, sa pribadong sektor at mga samahang bayan na makiisa sa hangarin nating ito. Tulungan niyo ako manawagan sa kanila.

Tayong lahat, walang takot at sama-sama nating susugpuin ang salot ng katiwalian. Tayong lahat, sama-sama bibigyan natin na tanglaw ang tunay na kapangyarihang hawak ng sambayanan. Mapapasakamay din natin ang ganap na tagumpay ng EDSA.

Kaya aking mga kasamahan na nagsusuporta sa ating laban sa katiwalian na nagtipon ngayon para ipahayag ang inyong suporta, sikapin natin makamtam at matupad ang pamanang ito sa taon ng malawakang pagbabago at sumisiglang pag-asa.

Isiguro nating hindi mamamatay ang diwa ng EDSA. Naka-ukit habang panahon sa talaan ng kasaysayan at puso ng bawat Pilipino, Buong lakas nating labanan ang katiwalian nagsisindi ng kahirapan at sakim sa kapangyarihan.

Hindi pa tapos ang martsa ng EDSA. Ngunit pabilis na nang pabilis ang ating mga hakbang at palapit nang palapit ang minimithing paglaya, pag-unlad at katapatan sa paglilingkod, integridad sa paglilingkod.

Kaya itong araw na ito, February 22, simula ng Linggo ng EDSA, ito na rin ang simula ng Linggo ng Asal. Values Week, the Week of Philippine Values sa ating bansang Pilipinas.

Nasa kamay ng bawat Pilipino ang ating kinabukasang nagniningning. Nasa kamay ng bawat Pilipino na ipairal ang mga asal na magbubuo ng lipunang maka-integridad sa ating bansa.

Kapit-bisig nating pag-ibayuhin ang digma laban sa katiwalian at ibangon ang dangal ng ating lahi. Ibangon ang values ng ating lahi. Ibangon ang values ng Pilipino. Ito ang pamana ng EDSA – ang laban sa katiwalian.

EDSA 1, lumaban tayo kontra sa diktadura at katiwalian. EDSA dos, wala nang diktadura, lumaban tayo kontra sa katiwalian. Ngayong taong EDSA 2005, lumaban pa rin tayo, lalo tayong lumaban. Gamitin natin ang ating pagkakaisa. Gamitin natin ang ating pamumuno para lumaban, labanan, masugpo ang katiwalian. 'Yan ang ating paraan para sabihin muli, ulit ng ulit, mabuhay ang EDSA!

Maraming salamat.

Happy Anniversary sa ating lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo at the 14th National Congress of the National Movement of Young Legislators, March 5, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 14th National Congress of the National Movement of Young Legislators

[Delivered at the Harbor Garden Tent, Westin Philippine Plaza, Pasay City, March 5, 2005]

THE MISSION TO SPREAD HOPE

I remember when attended your convention in Davao, I was still a senator, and at that time, there was already a call to review the local government code. But somehow, even if it was supposed to be reviewed five years after, it never got to us. Now, it's fifteen years after, so I hope this time the review can finally take place under the leadership of NMYL.

Since that time in Davao, the number of young leaders entering the field of politics and local government has grown by leaps and bounds. This is a very good omen for the strength of our nation because one-half of our population is made up of those twenty years old and below. And with the young people entering government, it augurs well for a bright future for our nation. Besides the more young leaders, the greater the energy and the potential of the Philippines.

I remember the movement over the years and I can say having observed you as guest speaker, as guest, that your movement has become a fertile ground for character training and development, and for honing public management skills.

On this your convention, your 14th National Congress, my fervent hope is that you will follow in the footsteps of your founding president — at that time like Julian a Quezon City councilor — Francis Pangilinan. Now, fourteen years later he is the Senate majority leader and ready for greater heights of service to the nation. But even in your current position as local legislators, you play an urgent role today.

This is a year for urgent change in the Philippines. Economic growth, the creation of new high-wage jobs and bringing economic stability and predictability to the Philippine economy are central to improving the economic well-being of every Filipino.

I ask Herbert, because Julian was telling me and I'm very happy that you're all ready to support the 10-point agenda. And I was telling Herbert, help me too to diminish the impact of rising prices. And Herbert said that it is among your breed, your group that you have been able to take care of some of the increase in prices that come from cheating and abuse of those who are selling to the consuming public.

The best way to diminish the impact of rising prices is to create new high-wage jobs, attract investment and bring overall economic stability to the nation. The government is doing these things, as well as cutting wasteful government programs and limiting investments to infrastructure and people. In addition, the government is taking action to protect consumer rights, expand spot checks against price gouging, undertake new conservation measures and provide tax incentives to employers to help their employees with transportation costs. These are things that the young legislators can do as well on the local front.

I'm focused like a laser beam on job creation and wage growth. I've brought in more than 60,000 new call center jobs, increased investments and jobs throughout the country with companies like Intel, E-Bay, Honda, UPS, Fedex. With the passage of my budget through Congress, I'll be able to invest in the 10-point pro-poor plan including the creation of 10 million jobs in the medium-term. The 10-point plan will bring to life the pro-poor agenda that will create jobs in micro, small and medium enterprises, bring clean water and electricity to the entire country, increase access- to health care, ensure a school in every barangay and computer linkage in every high school.

To create more jobs and bring prosperity to the Filipino people, however, we must stop the culture of corruption that holds back our pace of development. I'm exerting executive authority to prosecute illegal loggers, cancel government contracts with corrupt companies, fire unscrupulous government officials who rob the nation, and restore integrity to our military leaders and soldiers who put their lives at risk to defend the honor of our nation. And I call on Congress, the private sector and civic leaders to join in this effort.

And I especially want to thank the young legislators, because I haven't made the call to you yet, you already responded in your remarks earlier this morning.

I know that as young political leaders, the fire of dynamism, idealism and patriotism burns very brightly in your hearts. And I know having observed you in the past years that you will use that fire zealously and that you have the power to use that fire to stamp out all forms of graft and corruption in the bureaucracy, in the national government and in the local governments where you hold important influence.

Not only shall scalawags in the government be dragged to the bar of justice, their ill-gotten wealth shall also be forfeited in favor of the Philippine government.

Throughout the ages, the Filipino youth have distinguished themselves in fighting for their ideals and convictions. EDSA I and EDSA II came about because of the passion of our youth and their drive for patriotic leadership.

Your group, the NMYL, has always been a staunch advocate for new politics, for effective and efficient governance, for principled leadership.

And now, today, what is the challenge of the times? The challenge to all of you today is to join with everybody involved — national government, NGOs — in weeding out the deadwood and scalawags in government. Those who gnaw at the fabric of our morality to the detriment of our countrymen don't deserve to stay in government a second longer.

Our strong political will towards fiscal reforms and to fight graft and corruption, terrorism and criminality has been rewarded with positive signs of an economic turnaround.

And with your support, by the time I step down as president in 2010, we shall hopefully have achieved a GDP growth of 7 percent, a balanced budget, ten million job opportunities and a significant reduction in poverty. Let's bond together behind these goals.

We're well on our way to our destination. The fiscal problem is on the way to resolution.

We are building a strong foundation for rapid investment-led growth. We have a healthy momentum on policy reforms. There's resurgence in confidence. The bull run in the stock market is holding firm.

Honda is expanding its motorcycle production to 500,000 units by the year 2006. And if all goes well to one million units by 2008, a double of their present capacity.

This afternoon, I will receive in a courtesy call the global head of Timex where they will announce to me that they will set up their global distribution and logistic center in Cebu this July. Subic and Clark are our new magnets for investment. But, of course, we have Northern Luzon and Mindanao as the focus of our Agri-business investments. And then we have Central Philippines composed of the Visayas, Palawan, Bicol and the four northern islands of Mindanao as our focus for tourism investments. And then we have the Luzon urban belt where the focus of infrastructure will be expressways and ports. And then we have Cebu and Davao that will be the new hubs for call centers and business process outsourcing. This is our general master plan for investment in our whole country.

We will have upcoming economic partnership agreements with China and Japan to boost trade.

We have a perceptive upcycle in property and construction. Micros and SMEs, agribusiness, housing and sustainable mining will be clear in our sights as the economy surges forward.

I share these plans with you young leaders because you have a mission to spread optimism and hope among our people. We must not fall under the wicked spell of those who revel in gloomy forecasts.

With a clear vision on the part of leadership, decisive action on the part of senior and young legislators, and unity among our people whom you lead in the grassroots, the future will be bright.

Therefore I can say, young legislators, our economic growth will be hastened by your patriotic and decisive actions.

Thank you and Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo at the Closing Program of the World Bank 2005 Philippine Development Forum, March 8, 2005 Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Closing Program of the World Bank 2005 Philippine Development Forum

[Delivered at the Marco Polo Hotel, Davao City, Davao del Sur, March 8, 2005]

Since the elections last year our people have been gathering around democratic solidarity and an indomitable will to move on. The roots of democracy have taken firm hold at the level of human and institutional interaction but we've had to spend time and effort working at that.

Broadcasters just recently have agreed to deny air time to terrorist groups. That shows how sobriety and prudence are perceptively dawning upon the media that's taking part in the high responsibility or remaking our national destiny.

Landmark decision of the Supreme Court and the graft court on the Marcos wealth and the Coconut Levy Fund have spoken or sure justice for the poor and those who have less in law.

And I'm very happy to have Congressmen present here. Were working with Congress to overcome what you have identified and what we have also recognized as the most important structural issues and enact the laws that will enable us to resolve our fiscal problem within this year.

The force of political stability can be seen in other facets of national life. Creating safe streets free from crime and kidnapping are central to our workers and investors to go about their jobs. Crime is down, kidnapping is down. And I'm sure you recognize that investments in the nation are up as a result.

And as a result of our increased investigative capability, we're able to charge more government officials for corruption. And we are beginning to forfeit their ill-gotten wealth to the government prior to indictment and conviction. We've been able to interrupt illegal logging.

The force of political stability can be seen right here in Mindanao. And I'm very happy that we proceeded with the decision to hold this conference here in Davao. Here in Mindanao, we are winning the peace based on strengthening autonomy and respect for ancestral domains. We are dealing with terror with an iron hand even as we wage peace with the rebels across the negotiating table. The chief of staff of the armed forces will give the signal when he is done with the military operations in Sulu which are now pinpointed at residual terrorist targets. But even now we're implementing a normalization plan that will preempt terrorist bases permanently and enable affected civilians to go home.

As you have recognized among your five points, our local government units are the vanguard of peace, security and development in the grassroots. We're a nation of remarkable resilience combined with deep natural resources, a young and motivated work force, a dynamic democracy, and a growing economy.

You've talked about six percent as a threshold, we've reached that. Many other countries don't have that in the region. I can't offer to fix each and every problem of every citizen or family but with your support I can fight to bring this nation to the edge of shared prosperity across all regions, cultures and creeds.

We had a strong finish in 2004. The Supreme Court reversed the negativism over mining development. We bit the bullet on the debt of the National Power Corporation while erasing subsidies in the use of electric power. Congress as you recognize approved the taxes on alcohol and cigarettes and also the law on accountability reform even as we mounted strong austerity measures in the government.

I recognize your concern about the narrowing window. I recognize that 2005 is a year of urgent change but it's also a year of fervent hope. We've formed a new economic team that will revitalize our revenue administration and privatization program including the consolidation of billions worth of government shares in San Miguel Corporation for sale.

We were delisted from the list of non-cooperative countries of FATE. And the California Pension and Retirement System rated the Philippines as investment worthy. Our peso is stronger, our stocks are up. The budget will restore fiscal control and accountability. It will allow the government to cut wasteful spending and invest in the vital needs of the average Filipino. The same needs that your ODA is prioritizing including my pledge on my pro-poor agenda. The budget will fund the pro-poor agenda with your official development support including more money for micro, small and medium class entrepreneurs, clean water and electricity to the entire country, better access to health care, a school in every village and computer linkage in every high school.

Our ongoing tax reforms which in fact were front loading — this tax reform should have been taking place over the whole six years of my administration but we're doing them in the first year — will provide... These reforms will provide the additional revenue needed to rein in our deficit, which by the way is on track. And they will support the important programs that as I said are part of our pro-poor agenda, namely, more jobs and more investments in our people.

Our tax measures I recognized will send the signal to you the international community that the Philippines has turned the corner and is a place to invest and tap the vital talent pool that exist in our nation.

I thank your various countries for the important investments that are leading to new high wage jobs in call center employment, high technology, automotive manufacturing. Micro, small and medium enterprises, agri-business, housing and mining will lead the trend towards creating ten million jobs in the medium-term. The Clark-Subic corridor shall become the best transport and logistics hub in the region. And I thank you that you are all committed to making that logistics corridor from Clark-Subic to Batangas truly world class and competitive.

A knowledgeable and skilled work force will spearhead development. We will build knowledge in math, science, English and technology, and protect knowledge. I'm ordering the optical media board and the new chief of the intellectual property office to strengthen the campaign against anti-intellectual property piracy through strategic raids on points of entry and storage centers of pirated material.

We're backing our drive for foreign markets, foreign investments, international tourism, development assistance and the protection of territorial integrity. And the protection of overseas Filipinos through a strong strategic alliance with the united states, a steady consolidation of trade with East Asia, making foreign policy decisions more and more in the context of Asean and Pacific dialogue, nurturing our partnership with the international Islamic community, and protecting common interests through multilateral organizations such as the world bank and inter-regional organizations such as the Asean-European community meeting. We know that public administration as well as private enterprise, and I'm glad that my economic managers have included private enterprise in this conference We know that public administration and private enterprise must be driven by the capacity to manage change, steward the economy and enforce the law to yield common prosperity.

So, therefore let me end this conference by assuring you that the Cabinet and I in partnership with Congress, the Judiciary and the private sector will continue to keep our sights aligned with the complex challenges in the horizon and with your support resolving these challenges so that no Filipino will be left behind as we march to prosperity again with your support.

Thank you for supporting our aspirations.

Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo at the Philippine Investment Conference (Euromoney), March 9, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Philippine Investment Conference (Euromoney)

[Delivered at the Shangri-la Mactan Island Resort, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, March 9, 2005]

A YEAR OF CHALLENGE AND CHANGE

I wish to extend my thanks to Euromoney for organizing this event and my thanks to you, the members of the domestic and international private sector for meeting with members of my administration and distinguished representatives of our business community to share with us your views on our investment environment and to learn more about specific opportunities that are open for investments.

I couldn't be more thrilled than to have so many distinguished local and foreign investors and business leaders gathered together. We're counting on the full cooperation of both the public and private sectors in order to capitalize on the vast opportunities that are before us.

Your agenda will discuss many sector areas that are important drivers of economic growth. These include energy and power, tourism, ICT, outsourcing, mining.

I leave specific discussion of these sectors to members of my economic team and the central bank to cover, but I will say that our efforts to develop these sectors provide many investment opportunities and many opportunities to profit from the growth of our economy.

I'm encouraging greater investments all over the country such as logistics investment in Clark and Subic economic zones. Investments in expressways and ports, high technology and manufacturing in Manila and Southern Luzon. Agribusiness investments in Mindanao and Northern Luzon. And tourism investments in central Philippines. And business process outsourcing or BPO in and around Cebu and Davao.

I'd like to thank Governor Gwen Garcia and the people of Cebu for being here to welcome all of us. And let me say a few things about the two investment areas that we are especially pushing for Cebu and its neighboring areas.

While we have hubs in Cebu and Davao, our cyber services corridor actually stretches 600 miles from Baguio in Northern Luzon to Zamboanga in Mindanao. It's served by a 10 billion-dollar high-bandwidth ProFiber backbone and digital network and it's home to 75,000 call center and BPO agents who all speak English and many of whom speak Spanish, Japanese, Chinese or Arabic. And all of whom provide cyber services at par with global standards.

Cebu is also the premier city and province of central Philippines — our primary tourism destination. In this area of central Philippines, we're constructing or upgrading several airports, completing a road and roll-on/roll-off or RO-RO ferry network. Many components of the network already exist. But we're encouraging investors to upgrade existing facilities and put up new ones through a 30 billion-peso loan portfolio from the Development Bank of the Philippines.

In Luzon, we are developing the Clark-Subic corridor into the best logistics and transport hub in the region. The Subic port expansion began last June. And in Clark, we're implementing an open skies cargo policy coordinating with logistics operators like UPS, FedEx and Asia Overnight, expanding cargo-handling facilities and upgrading the passenger terminal and facilities. This month, we'll start constructing a 94-kilometer expressway between Clark and Subic.

Government will invest in other commercial infrastructure through the newly created Philippine Infrastructure Corporation to help develop commercial and bankable projects and then divest when the private sector is ready to take over.

There's an old expression that the devil is in the details. I happen to believe the other version of the same expression that God is in the details. Because I spend my day immersed in details and I'd prefer to be with God rather than the devil.

I get up everyday focused on the details of the many reforms that this nation needs because I know we must meet the standards that you in this room demand in order for our nation to grow.

My job is to meet these rigid tests in order to create jobs, grow the economy and end poverty as we know it in the Philippines. It's not an easy job but I believe we're surely turning the economy of the nation around and are on a new round of reform and recovery.

I believe the light at the end of the tunnel is hope and opportunity borne of strong macroeconomic fundamentals including fiscal responsibility, aggressive market initiatives, a positive climate for investment and major drives against corruption.

Statistics back up this optimism. We've already heard from our speakers about the 6.1, 6.2 GDP growths in 2004, the highest in 15, 16 years.

Exports last year grew 9.3 percent.

The stock market is up 39 percent for about a year and a half ago.

Our fiscal deficit is a year ahead of plan.

The Philippines has been removed from the FATF anti-money laundering watch list. And the powerful Calpers pension fund has reaffirmed its investments in the Philippines.

I thank UBS also for having expressed good things about our Philippine investment climate. And foreign investment is up.

And other significant milestones have been achieved. Congress, as mentioned by our speakers, has passed the first revenue bills. The first national budget in two years has been passed.

The mining sector is open for business.

The new airport terminal in Metro Manila will be opened.

And the surge of jobs through call centers and I.T. investments continues unabated. A lot of them here in Cebu.

New trade agreements with Japan and China offer tremendous opportunities.

But let me also be very clear, I'm also a realist. I understand the deep concerns the investment community and some of our own Filipinos have in the future of our nation. I don't underestimate the problems. I know full well that it's also possible that the light at the end of the tunnel is an ongoing train if Congress doesn't pass the value-added tax. But, I generally believe that were poised for success and that Congress will deliver.

We're also tackling other issues that confront the country. Kidnapping syndicates are being broken. Kidnapping incidents are way down.

We're tough on terrorists. We will not rest until the Abu Sayyaf hiding in the southwestern corner of our country is destroyed.

We're edging closer to peace with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front which and of itself will free the nation to invest in peace and prosperity rather than guns and war.

Progress is being made against government and commercial corruption. Customs, Bureau of Internal Revenue, increased investigative capability, judicial reform.

Yes, ladies and gentlemen of the business community, domestic and international. You are here at a time of a pivotal change in the Philippines. This is a pivotal year for the Philippines.

This is a year of challenge and change.

And I thank you for being here at this time. And I honor your time, energy and commitment to making the Philippines a better place to live and work.

Thank you.

COMMUNICATING THE GOOD NEWS AND BRIDGING THE DIFFICULTIES

Ako'y natutuwa ang dami-dami n'yo dito. At ako'y natutuwa dahil bagay na bagay at napakaganda at akmang-akma sa taon ang masidhing pagbabago ng inyong napiling tema.

Hindi madali ang humubog ng iisang batayan para sa marapat na pagkilatis ng masigla at matapat na pamamahala. But you are doing many things that are difficult.

Our country's leadership from top to bottom must be driven to excel, and I thank you for your wanting to excel. For wanting to put country first before self to galvanize a nation in search of more jobs, electricity, clean water, education for all. The things you have in your program that are in line with my ten-point program.

I need you for this ten-point program. You stand in the frontline of service. But not only that, you stand in the frontline of compassion. And I know of the great sacrifices that many of you have had to endure to help the needy and provide counsel to those in need of counsel.

You are also the vanguards of vigilance. The Bicutan incident is a lesson of sustained vigilance for all our people. And that must be under your leadership.

We must be prepared to fight evil, not only with intelligence work, not only with enforcement, but also with our moral will to uphold what's good and right.

Kaya hindi ko lang inaasahan na magsusumbong kayo kapag mayroong itsurang terorista sa lugar ninyo, inaasahan ko na isusulong ninyo sa Presidential Anti-Graft Commission ang mga kawani ng pamahalaan na nakatira sa inyong mga barangay na kung umasta at gumastos ay daig pa si Bill Gates, ang mag tinaguriang pinakamayaman na tao sa mundo. And so, we expect you to report things to Malacañang about these things. But we also hope that you will speak for Malacañang or the things that we need to communicate.

We must reach out to the people to make them understand accept and support the programs of government and unite behind activities to transform our society.

I ask you, tell our people that we're doing our best to diminish the impact of rising prices by creating new high-wage jobs, attracting investments, and bringing overall economic stability to the nation. I count on you to tell our people that we're cutting wasteful government programs and limiting expenditures to necessary investments for infrastructure and people. And I count on you to tell them that under the leadership of vice president Noli de Castro, we're also taking action to protect consumer rights, expand spot checks against price gouging, and that we will undertake new conservation measures and provide tax incentives to employers to help their employees with transportation costs.

The other day, I was in Siquijor, the barangay captains who are here and they were with me then. And I when I was driving around the island with Governor Fua, he was telling me, "I think we need a new gasoline station here to compete with the one Petron dealer because he is charging us so much." So I called up the chairman of Petron, when I was in the car, and I told the chairman, “I’m going to look for a dealer to rival your dealer because he’s charging such a high price for gasoline.” And the chairman of Petron said, “but that cannot be, because even if there’s one or there are ten or a hundred, there is a prescribed price that they can charge. So, I will check on that.” And sure enough, I saw him the chairman, today — oh, yesterday — and he said, “you’re right, he was overcharging against the rules.” So, it’s very important that we have these checks because there are those who abuse if we are not vigilant. And I count on the barangay captains to be vigilant about those things.

The fact that you have tailored the resolutions you’re giving me to the Ten-Point Agenda means that you are quite familiar with the acronym “BEAT THE ODDS” representing the ten specific points in our program of action: B for balanced budget, that’s why we need taxes; E for education for all; A for automated elections; T for transport and digital infrastructure. And then the next T for terminating the conflict with the MILF and the NPA; H for healing the wounds of EDSA; E electricity and water. O opportunities for 10 million jobs, and DS for developing Subic-Clark

Within that ten-point vision which is for 6 years of my term, I would like to use the next 2 or 3 years to prioritize three parts of the pro-poor agenda: first, education — upgrading teaching standards in English, science and math; second, food production — so, we can lower the cost of food, beginning with rice and corn and then fisheries; and third, infrastructure — particularly those that support food production.

The overall framework therefore for pursuing our ten-point vision is as follows:

Phase one — fiscal reforms: during the first 12 to 18 months of our current term, focus on passing revenue measures, plugging corruption leakages, and rationalizing the power sector.

Phase two — upgrade educational standards and lower the cost of food. We will prioritize this during the middle 2nd and 3rd years of my term. So, we focus on education, food production and infrastructure.

And then phase three — achieve a critical mass of success with the rest of the Ten-Point Agenda during the second part of my term, building on the foundation provided by the earlier phases.

Our Ten-Point pro-poor Agenda is backed up now by a national budget that was passed by Congress in a singular act of statesmanship, and which I signed today.

The passage of the 2005 budget is a milestone in turning around the economy and providing real investments in the lives of the average Filipinos in your constituencies. The budget will accelerate the implementation of our ten-point program of action including our pro-poor agenda. Most importantly, the budget will begin to help create 6 to 10 million jobs with higher wages in the next 6 years. And it will fund the pro-poor agenda including more money for micro, small and middle class entrepreneurs, clean water and electricity for the entire country, better access to health care, a school in every barangay and computer linkage in every high school.

You will be at the vanguard of implementation, that’s why I thank you, all of you for your resolutions that are a parallel to my Ten-Point Agenda. Our national agencies and local Governments cannot move without your leadership and support. For this reason, I’m reiterating my support to the bill to postpone the barangay elections.

In return, I ask you what I asked you earlier, I expect you to be informed and tell the people where assistance for the ten-point program can be availed of. At inaasahan ko kapag may lumapit sa inyo at nagtanong kung bakit mahalaga ang value-added tax sa ekonomiya, sana nakahanda nating sagutin ito.

You must be prepared to communicate the good news to our people and help them bridge their difficulties as we work forward to broaden the impact of reforms.

We have long left the train station of empty promises. We are now on a long and difficult journey to full economic freedom. We shall not let our guard down. We shall prevail in every battle for peace and economic freedom. And in every battle, in every victory, let me assure you the barangays will never be left behind.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo at the 112th Inter-Parliamentary Union General Assembly, April 3, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 112th Inter-Parliamentary Union General Assembly

[Delivered at PICC, Roxas Blvd., Pasay City, April 3, 2005]

CELEBRATING THE VIRTUES OF DEMOCRACY

Winston Churchill, one of the great leaders of the last century, once said that “democracy is the worst form of government except for all the others.” So on that note, I welcome you all here today to celebrate the best of the worst!

In all seriousness, of course, we gather at the 112th Assembly of the International Parliamentary Union to celebrate democracy. In particular, we celebrate the people here in this hall and across the world that dedicate their lives to building the institutions and traditions that make up the fabric of democracies the world over.

There is no calling in life nobler than to serve the people of one’s nation in pursuit of the Jeffersonian ideal of “life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.” I, for one, feel privileged every day, every single day to be able to serve the people of the Philippines and to be associated with democrats like you from all over the world.

And while we celebrate democracy itself, the agenda of this IPU reflects the long road ahead for many nations and peoples as we struggle to create a better life, provide more liberty and secure more happiness for our peoples.

The eradication of poverty, strengthening security in the face of terrorism while preserving individual liberties understanding the forces of globalization and the need to ensure that all our citizen, men and women alike, prosper together in equality are all pressing issues we’re trying to tackle together in this assembly and in our own respective countries.

Not every country, of course, shares the ideals of democracy. And not everyone living under a democracy shares equally in the promise democracy offers. That is our fundamental challenge.

Across the world and within our own Asian region, there are those who live in non-democratic authoritarian nations who have no voice, no liberty, and no economic opportunity.

And there are those who live in a democracy but are shut out by discrimination, poor education, lack of economic opportunity and oppressive traditions that have no place in a democracy. The Philippines is one such nation that’s poised for growth and success, yet is also on the frontlines of poverty, social justice and security concerns.

The Philippines rightly takes pride in being Asia’s first democracy. And since, I understand, we have the biggest delegation of women parliamentarians in the twenty-year history of the association of women parliamentarians, let me congratulate you and welcome you to the first nation in Asia to afford women the right to vote. In fact, we celebrate our commitment to a century of feminist activity with my designation of 2006 as the Centennial Year of the Feminist Movement in the Philippines. Of that, I’m proud, and I’m proud of my Filipina sisters and ancestors.

We’ve made anti-corruption a central pillar of our government’s fight to grow our economy and create jobs. And that is another challenge for our parliaments all over the world.

Economically, the fiscal situation of the Philippines is stable — thanks to the hard work of our Congressmen and senators — exports are surging, imports are up, growth is up and the stock market is one of the best performing in Asia.

My program to support entrepreneurs, together with my program to develop new lands for agri-business are central organizing principles of my agenda to create 6 to 10 million jobs in the next 6 years. To date, over one million women alone have future for themselves and their families

And in the area of providing new opportunity for those who have historically been left out, there's more good news. Half of our government employees are women and tens of thousands of women occupy the ranks of elected officials in our towns and cities. Women are taking up the call of participation in democracy and economic self-reliance and gaining control over their economic lives.

Yet our nation is still living in a world too often delineated between rich and poor; hope versus despair; growth versus stagnation.

This disparity in a democracy is our burden and a challenge we must individually and collectively solve today and everyday as we work within our democratic framework to improve the lives of our citizens.

Social justice and civil rights must go hand-in-hand with economic opportunity and political freedom. And I want to call special attention to the need for a strong, free and independent media to safeguard our democracies and keep their political leaders on the straight and narrow. Here in the Philippines and in other nations, journalists have been slain in pursuit of the truth. I salute these defenders of democracy and declare to those who perpetuate such crimes — your days are numbered.

So today, I welcome you with open arms to a nation that believes in democracy, in the democratic movement and what the IPU does to help strengthen democracy the world over. History is with us, but we must make sure that the rising tide of democracy lifts all boats so that we may all sail to a prosperous future.

In that spirit, I declare this 112th Assembly of the International Parliamentary Union open.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Asian-African Business Summit 2005, April 22, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Asian-African Business Summit 2005

[Delivered at the Mulia Hotel, Jakarta, Indonesia, April 22, 2005]

MANAGING FOR GLOBAL COMPETITIVENESS: PHILIPPINE PERSPECTIVE

In a period when the global economic order is transforming the economic, political and social landscape, this summit is a significant move by developing and least developed nations to move forward in confronting the challenges of the period. In the case of the business sectors of Asia and Africa, the most important response to these challenges is to manage for global competitiveness.

We can draw our inspiration from the “Bandung spirit” of the first Asian-African Summit of 1955, the spirit of striving to attain a just, peaceful, progressive and prosperous world order.

We can also draw inspiration from what happened forty-five years after the Bandung conference, when on November 6th to 7th in the year 2000, the Asian-African Business Association Summit was inaugurated in Kuala Lumpur, with the aim of building bridges among the private sectors of both nations. In that summit was emphasized the role of the private sector and its efficiency in promoting economic development.

Now, 50 years after the Bandung Conference and five years after the first Asian-African Business Summit, this Golden jubilee of the Bandung Conference is a golden opportunity to rekindle the Bandung spirit and to work together to face the challenges of today’s realities, including the challenge of managing for global competitiveness.

Managing for global competitiveness requires dealing with various factors such as the protection of natural resources and varied environmental issues, the flow of international capital, foreign exchange, interest rates, trade barriers, training and education, and now the steep increase in the world price of oil.

There’s no question that the high price of oil today has the potential to put the brakes on economic expansion. And we all know that the poorest among us suffer the most as a result of high prices in food, energy and transportation. That’s why we must do everything in our power to manage our way through these rough seas by protecting economic growth while minimizing the impact on rising prices.

I therefore take the opportunity of this summit to call for unity between Asia and Africa for stronger collective action toward preventing a full-blown economic crisis that could be triggered by an unsustainable level of crude oil prices. While there’s been some softening of oil prices in the past few days, the trend could worsen to levels that could halt economic growth or even prompt a global recession. It is certainly stripping oil-importing countries of Asia and Africa of our ability to manage for global competitiveness. It’s preventing us from pursuing our economic development programs with a rigor that we want to have. It’s requiring us to face the specter of economic decline. Restricting our respective governments’ ability to provide much needed social programs for the marginalized sectors in our economies. It’s increasing poverty and further widening the gap between rich and poor countries. This is a toxic formula that could increase global terrorism.

Therefore, in behalf of the Philippines, I take this opportunity to call on the Asia-Africa Summit to do its share in pushing for greater stability in oil prices. I call on the world leaders, including the petroleum exporting countries of Asia and Africa, to offer solutions that will temper the volatility of crude oil prices. Most of the demand for oil and most of the supply of oil come from Asia and Africa. Thus, it's especially important to strengthen cooperation between Asia and Africa at this time, but even without this crisis for the strategic future.

We in the Philippines trade extensively with our neighbors in Asia. But we are eager to expand our meager trade with Africa. South Africa is our largest African trading partner, followed by Mauritius as our second largest African export market. We sell cement, garments, gear boxes of motor vehicles and aircraft parts, and we buy tobacco, iron and steel, smart cards, cotton, sardines and copper. We're willing like to buy more from Africa. We have the balance of trade in our favor but we'd also like to add Africa to our growing list of automobile export markets. And we invite the African mining industry to invest in our rich but still largely untapped mineral resources.

It's you, the businessmen. It's the free, open and competitive markets that must ultimately drive the engine of job creation and the eventual elimination of poverty in many countries of our two regions.

Open markets and free enterprise are the centerpiece of my philosophy and drive the policies of my government. I believe a strong, growing economy is the best hope to alleviate the crushing pain of poverty. But many of the poor pay the highest price for free markets, and it's my moral obligation to ensure that the poor are protected as we transition to a global economy.

I hope that globalization will be a rising tide and lift all boats, but I fear that too many boats will have holes in the bottom. As business and political leaders, we must not only work to integrate our economies and create wealth and opportunity but we must also make sure the poor have a strong, seaworthy vessel that includes a decent wage, access to health care, a sound education and social justice.

We've seen the globalization of terrorism, but we've also witnessed the globalization of peace. In the Philippines, I'm inspired by a peace process in our island of Mindanao that includes an Asian-African cast of friends — friend from Asia, Africa and the Middle East — helping us in our quest for peace and stability.

The continuing success of our peace talks is driven by a firmly entrenched ground level cease fire supported by an international monitoring team led by Malaysia, with participating contingents from Brunei and Libya. I'd like to take this opportunity to thank Malaysian Prime Minister Abdullah not only for supporting the cease fire process but for hosting this week and facilitating the substantive negotiations. The forward impetus of the peace talks will continue to jack up confidence and investments, spur agri-business, and provide a wider swath of jobs and livelihood in the conflict-affected areas and throughout Mindanao.

The lesson of Mindanao for the Philippines is a lesson for our two continents. As we integrate our economies in Asia, Africa and the world, we must also integrate the basic human values of compassion, tolerance and social justice. Economic development must always go hand in hand with the development of the human spirit and the liberation of the poor.

Corruption remains a barrier in many of our countries, and we must face this squarely if we are to develop our economies, attract investment and provide equality of opportunity to all our citizens. I'm committed to transparency and openness in government for a very simple reason: the bright sunshine or day is a great disinfectant to the dark recession of corruption.

I aim to eliminate red tape to encourage business, both domestic and foreign, to invest in the Philippines. But I will not give a green light to unfettered exploitation of workers, the laws or the environment in the pursuit of cut and run economic exploitation. I want to encourage full, lifetime partnerships with businesses. We must always provide balance and think about the long-term well-being of the entire nation.

We must have an energy program that creates genuine energy independence and harnesses the creative forces of the marketplace to bring in a range of new, clean and cost-effective alternative sources of energy in the Philippines.

We need a strong United Nations, but we also need nations, strong nations that are united to solve problems regionally as well as on a global basis. I believe we're at a tipping point in the evolution or globalization where individual nations, in ones and twos, and regional blocs, must take greater control of challenges closer to home. Not every challenge needs to be first made into a global problem before being solved.

Finally, I hope all nations of Africa, Asia and the world never lose sight of the promise of democracy and the democratic form of government. For those of us who live under it, we sometimes complain, but democracy is the best system in the world. And for those who only dream of it, I'm convinced that history is on your side and you will bear witness to democracy's promise within the coming generation.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Philippine Infrastructure Conference, May 23, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Philippine Infrastructure Conference

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Intercontinental, Makati City, May 23, 2005]

BUILDING THE INFRASTRUCTURE OF OUR DREAMS

I always believe that the Lord's timing is perfect. And I think this conference has perfect timing. I was about to tell Dave Balangi that this is perfect timing because it would have been meaningless if we had done this conference before we finished Phase One of our economic reform program. Now, we have just finished Phase One and we're starting Phase Two in which infrastructure plays a major role. And not that we talked to each other because we didn't, by God's providence the timing is perfect.

Our nation is poised for growth, and we cannot grow without strong healthy people on the one hand and strong modern infrastructure on the other. And so that defines my economic and social plans. My economic and social plans anchored by my ten-point program are designed to deliver both strong people and strong infrastructure.

Everyone in this room is here because you know that if our nation is to meet its development goals and create new employment opportunities we must invest in the hard infrastructure that will make that possible. We need new roads, new bridges, new airports, new port facilities that will expand trade and investments throughout the country. And our infrastructure investments are already paying off in the I.T. sector with over 65,000 call center and outsourcing jobs created during the last three years. Thanks to the world class I.T. infrastructure that provides cable, internet and energy across the Philippines.

I remember very well, and I hope some of you do, my first state of the nation address in 2001 when I said that the growth sectors of the future are our human resource intensive service sectors like tourism and ICT. And when I talked about ICT then, in 2001, I said we need to do three things — make the policy framework friendlier, gear our training towards sources that will feed that sector, and bring down... Do the infrastructure that will bring down the cost of connectivity. At that time, the cost of connectivity was about 30 plus thousand pesos. Now, it's four thousand pesos thereabouts. So, we succeeded in what we said in 2001. I hope we will succeed just as well with what we're saying today when we examined ourselves a few years from now.

With the tough reforms completed as a result of the first phase of our economic reform agenda, we now have the additional capital and funds needed to invest in even more fundamental infrastructure investments.

The second phase of our economic reform agenda has already begun, just started. In this phase, I will press forward by continuing aggressive economic and fiscal reforms. My focus this time will no longer be on legislation but to crack down on tax cheats, increase initiatives against graft and corruption, launch an energy conservation and energy independence campaign, and mitigate price increases with the consumer watch programs of Johnny Santos and Vice President De Castro to ensure no price gouging.

Most importantly, Phase Two will be defined by bringing the benefits of the tough economic reforms that we did to the people. With more revenue, we can invest more in the vital social needs to lift our poorest citizens out of poverty. I can now invest in the pro-poor agenda that includes job creation, better education, improved health care, electrification, water in the waterless towns, transportation and infrastructure to name but a few areas.

Well, there are many things there and I'll talk about the other things in other times — the BIR collections and so on, education. I'll talk today about our topic which is a major component of Phase Two and that is infrastructure.

The rebuilding and modernization of our nation's infrastructure as Bill indicated requires a public-private sector partnership. That's why I'm glad you're all here today. To those businessmen that want to participate in this process I'd like to assure you that your investments will be commercially sound. I'd like to assure you that the government will be a good partner in this process. Working together we can create the infrastructure that will be the backbone of our new development efforts.

Just as we need a strong physical infrastructure, so too do we need a strong moral infrastructure to ensure that not one peso of the infrastructure projects goes to graft and corruption as we have a new modern Philippines. I'm aware that major infrastructure projects have been accused of being opportunities for the corrupt to enrich themselves. I want to assure you that we're putting controls in place. They'll closely monitor all projects to ensure that our taxpayers get their money's worth and our projects are finished on time and on budget. Our people deserve nothing less.

As I was entering the hotel I asked Bill Luz, "how's the project on this coming along?" Because wearing his other hat as NAMFREL, NAMFREL entered into an agreement during the anniversary of Edsa that they would monitor infrastructure procurement such as that being done in DPWH. And I hope that that will indeed make it more commercially viable for you the private business to participate in our infrastructure program.

The ten-point pro-poor agenda that's the platform of my administration call for significant investment in infrastructure throughout the country. These investments will create not only jobs for tens of thousands involved in the infrastructure development itself, it will also bring new opportunities to communities who've been isolated from new markets and new source investment.

Indeed, there is a strong connection between infrastructure in my pro-poor agenda because if you want to create jobs we have to have the infrastructure that will entice you the businessmen to put up your shops here in the Philippines. If we want to build agri-business to open new lands for agri-business we need you the businessmen hopefully to start building the ports, the airports and the farm-to-market roads that will improve the logistics requirements of these new lands for agri-business.

And that's why the privatization of the country's power sector and the development of key infrastructure are two of the priorities embodied, by the medium-term Philippine development plan as well as the medium-term public investment program.

Energy independence requires implementation of critical and strategic infrastructure projects across a mix of natural, renewable and alternative energy sources that would contribute to reducing the cost of electricity without sacrificing adequacy, reliability and quality.

Our Energy Reform Program aims to strengthen the power sector in order to secure electricity for all. Napocor's rate adjustment will approximate the true cost of electricity which in turn will ensure a viable generation sector that's able to attract new investments in power generation to meet the country's growing energy requirements.

What's my timetable for this? I'd like to be able to do the privatization by the end of the year. That means a lot of phone calls to Allan Ortiz over here. Because we need the privatization completed so we can work on the open access and the wholesale electricity spot market which will then provide the competitive framework to make our power cost competitive.

Meanwhile, I'm encouraging greater infrastructure all over the country such as investments in the Clark-Subic corridor to make it the best logistics hub in the region; investments in expressways and ports in the urban beltway of Luzon that stretches from Clark-Subic through Metro Manila to Batangas port; the opening of the Ninoy Aquino International Airport; a modern rail transport system through this corridor and then going up to Bicol in the south; agri-business infrastructure for Mindanao and Governor Ortega's Northern Luzon such as farm-to-market roads, roll-on/roll-off ferry and road systems from Mindanao to the Visayas to Luzon; cold chains which Johnny is going to emphasize in the Philippine Infrastructure Corporation; no frills airports; tourism infrastructure in San Fernando airport and in Central Philippines made up of the Visayas, Bicol and the Northern Islands of Mindanao; and additional digital infrastructure for the cyber corridor from Baguio to Zamboanga.

New modern infrastructure will help build and kind our island country together to make one united nation. And you as businessmen know how important it is to unite our divided nation. I've never been more optimistic about the promise of the nation and for building a brighter future, especially for our younger generation. We owe it to the young to build up and not just wear out the infrastructure that we utilize today.

And so, in conclusion, I'm looking to everyone here, in partnership with government, to build not only the infrastructure but the most important thing of all — to build the hopes and dreams of our people.

Thank you.

MALUSOG NA SIMULA
PARA SA ATING MGA ANAK

Bawat bata ang kailangan ay “healthy start” o malusog na simula ng araw at malusog na simula ng buhay. Kaya sabi ko kay Lina Laygo, ang ipangalan natin sa ating programa ay Malusog na Simula — a healthy start. Ang “Healthy Start” child nutrition program na ‘to ay naglalayong punuin ang ating mga bata ng pag-asa gayundin ng isang malusog na almusal— coco pan at saka gatas.

Dapat nating busugin ang mga puso at isipan ng ating mga bata sa pamamagitan ng biyaya ng edukasyon. Subali’t bago mangyari ito, kailangan muna nila ng tiyan na busog din. Mga bata ginugutom na ba kayo? Okay, bibilisan ko ang aking diskurso para makapag-pan de coco na kayo.

Ang ating mga bata ay dapat simulan ang bawat araw na masaya, malusog at puno ng pag-asa. Ang dapat lamang nilang panabikan ay karunungan at hindi ang pangunahing pangangailangan ng pagkain sa mesa kapag almusal.

Ang pagkakaloob ng masustansiyang almusal sa mga bata, na kung hindi ay gugutumin, ang pinakamahalagang bagay na magagawa ng ating bansa. Ito ay kagandahang-asal, kinakailangang panlipunan at kagalingang pangkabuhatan.

Ako ay gumawa ng mahihirap na desisyon para makahilom ng mga hagong buwis upang ang pinakamahihirap nating mga bata ay hindi magutom. Sa salaping ating kikitain, tayo ay makakatulong na palakihin ang ating mga anak sa pagkaing wasto at masustansiya. Ngunit bago natin magawa yon kailangan hinanap muna natin yung salaping kikitain. Yon ang phase 1 ng ating economic reform.

Kasi bago natin nabuo itong mga bagong buwis, papano ang budget ng ating bansa? Tax collections, 700 billion. Yung 700 billion — 300 billion papunta sa pag-debt service, pagbayad ng utang at interes; 250 billion papunta sa suweldo ng mga teachers at empleyado; 150 billion papunta sa IRA ng mga local government. ‘di 700 billion na yon. Yon na yung ating taxes. Saan tayo kukuha ng pera para sa feeding program? Kaya kailangan magtaas tayo ng buwis.

Salamat sa Kongreso nabigyan nila tayo ng bagong 100 billion pesos ng buwis kaya nabuo na ang phase 1 ng ating programa at pwede na tayo magsimula ng phase 2. Kasama na ang ginagawa natin ngayon.

Ang pangalawang bahagi ng aking economic plan ay ang paghatid ng mga biyaya ng isang malakas at matatag na ekonomiya sa mga mamamayan at wala nang mas mahalaga pa kaysa mamuhunan sa kalusugan ng ating mga bata sa pamamagitan nitong ating breakfast program.

Ang mga bata ang ating kinabukasan. Kailangan nating gawin ang lahat at nasa ating kapangyarihan na lahat na ating nasa kapangyarihan bilang isang lipunan, bilang pamahalaan, bilang indibidwal na mamamayan upang alagaan ang ating kinabukasan.

Nagtipun-tipon tayo ngayon upang protektahan at alagaan ang ating pinakamahalagang yaman — ang ating mga bata. Ang ating pamahalaan, ang ating lipunang sibil at ang ating pribadong sektor ay nagkaisa sa pinakamahalagang isyu ng ating panahon, kung paano makaahon sa kahirapan.

Sa araw na ito, tayo ay lumikha ng isang munting hakbang upang wakasan ang pagkagutom at handugan ng malusog na panimula ang ating mga anak. Ito ay gagaivin natin sa mga pinakamahirap na lugar ng NCR, doon tayo magsisimula. At itong Camarin ay natukoy nga sa mga survey bilang isa sa pinakamahirap at isa sa pinakalugar kung saan marami ang nagugutom. Kaya sinimulan natin itong programa dito.

Sa aking paglilibot sa ating bansa, nakausap ko ang mga ina — mga ina kayo, ‘no? — at ang mga ama na ang tanging hiling ay mabigyan ang kanilang mga anak ng mga pagkakataon na nindi sila nagkaroon, hindi ba? Ang ating “Healthy Start” program ay isang munting hakbang tungo sa katuparan ng mga pangarap na yan.

Ang ating adhikain ay maitayo ang isang Pilipinas ay nagsisimula sa pagtitiyak na ang ating mga anak ay mabigyan ng healthy start. Bilang nakatatanda sa kanila — tayo, tayo, tayo – may pananagutan tayo sa mga bata ng buong Pilipinas na tiyakin ang kanilang mga pangunahing pangangailangang pagkain ay matugunan upang sila ay makapag-ambag ng tama sa katatagan ng ating bansa.

Kaya itong araw na ito, salamat sa lahat ng mga ahensiya under the coordination ng Council for the Welfare of Children — DepEd, DOH, DA, local government. Salamat sa lahat dahil ang ginagawa natin ay para sa kinabukasan ng ating bansa. Kaya sa inyong lahat, thank you. Mga bata, pwede na kayong kumain ng inyong pandesal at gatas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 30th anniversary celebration of RP-China diplomatic relations

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 30th anniversary celebration of RP-China diplomatic relations

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, June 9, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Dr. Tan for your introduction.

Former President Ramos, Former First Lady Madame Marcos, Secretary Romulo and the other officials of the Philippine government, Ambassador Wu, and of course, the other members of the diplomatic corps, Francis Chua and the other movers and shakers of the Filipino-Chinese business community, our members of the Filipino-Chinese community, ladies and gentlemen: ni hao! and happy 30th anniversary of our diplomatic relations.

It is said that the 30th anniversary is also the pearl anniversary. But on this 30th anniversary, when President Hu Jintao came to the Philippines to indeed celebrate the 30th anniversary, rather than calling it our pearl anniversary, he called it — and I agree — the beginning of the golden age of friendship between the Philippines and the People's Republic of China.

Indeed, we stand boldly and full of hope on the frontiers of a golden age of partnership with the People's Republic of China. This will be a golden age built on the firm foundations of three decades of formal relations, and centuries of close ties, deep understanding and shared interests.

The visit of the Chinese heirs of the Sultan of Sulu from Shandong is a symbol of the century's old people-to-people relationship.

Today, the century's old relationship takes on a new golden era. And with great significance China has become a natural engine of growth in Asia. Its economic expansion is nothing short of miraculous. Its ability to withstand the Asian financial crisis in 1997 and the continued growth of its economy when others in the region have faltered have only shown the rest of the world that its rise is genuine.

During this decades of China's phenomenal rise there was a great debate, "Is China's rise a threat or an opportunity to the rest of the world in countries like the Philippines?" In our administration, we have made the choice very clearly. We have embraced the opportunity to become China's strong partner.

Indeed, as our previous speakers have pointed out, China has become a major trading partner of our country. As Secretary Romulo has pointed out, our trade has grown to more than 13 billion dollars as of last year and I might add that trade is with a trade surplus of almost five billion dollars in favor of the Philippines. Aside from being a vigorous and generous trading partner, China is an investor in our industries, in our mines, in our oil exploration. China is a partner in development assistance, China is a source of technology in rice and corn, and China is a fellow crusader in the war on drugs and other transnational crimes. Thank you, People's Republic of China for all these manifestations of partnership.

The Philippines enters this golden age of partnership with China as a nation that has also completed the first phase of our economic reform agenda.

I entered office with a strong agenda and a firm electoral mandate to lead the nation. I ran on a pro-poor, pro-growth, pro-peace platform built on specific achievable programs. The defeated mounted challenges, but despite the challenges, I wasn't deterred and I put my plans into action. We've come a long way and achieved the first phase of our reform program.

To illustrate, just recently we announced a record for tax collection for the month of April, a 44 percent increase that beat our own estimates, and for the first time in many years, achieved a budget surplus.

I'm now done with the first phase of my economic reform plan and have in hand the largest revenue increase in a generation and the authority to raise more if necessary to ensure that we are on the path to economic stability and growth.

I see some congressmen in the table over there. I'd like to take this opportunity to thank you, Ex Javier and the other congressman if they are here, thank you for the passage of those important revenue measures. Thank you for being the ones who completed the first phase of my economic reform agenda.

This first phase of the economic reform agenda includes the passage of revenue-generating measures that will provide 80 to a 100 billion pesos in new annual revenue, a law that encourages internal revenue and customs workers to intensify their collections, other administrative reforms to improve tax collections, a fiscally responsible national budget and the opening of the mining sector and the thousands of new jobs that it will represent. And by the way, thank you People's Republic of China for bringing the biggest single investment in mining, one billion dollars in Philnico in Surigao.

Going back to the economic reforms, the first phase. Being an advocate of raising revenue isn't very popular anywhere in the world. And that certainly is true in the Philippines as well. The recent survey ratings are evidence of that. But something had to be done to undo layers of neglect and corruption in the revenue system, and I decided I was going to be the one to spend my political capital on tough decisions. I have paid the price in the surveys and this days even in the destabilization attempts. But those revenue measures were long overdue. The reform needed to be done. And I thank the Filipino-Chinese business community for supporting me in those difficult reforms.

Of course, one of the biggest factors in my survey ratings has to do with the high price of oil. Now, I wish I had control over global prices of oil, but I don't. But I do pay the political price because I'm the one in charge. People don't really understand that. Nevertheless, the poor are feeling it the most. I understand the pain of the people, and I make an effort to spend time with our struggling middle and lower class people on my sorties to the provinces. In the time I spend with them especially in private focus group discussions, away from the eyes of local politicians and the media, what I find is that it is not 'One Philippines' we have, it is 'Two Philippines.'

And for too long there has been two Philippines — the one that represents what's positive about our nation and the one that doesn't. The one that rewards hard work and entrepreneurial spirit and the one that doesn't allow for social mobility or economic opportunity. It's time to change all that. We need 'One Philippines' because we're one people.

Tonight I asked you, movers and shakers of the Filipino-Chinese community, help me build 'One Philippines.' And as Francis Chua said, if only you would let me then help me challenge those who would want to foment more disunity in the Philippines. We must challenge those who would only tear down but have no idea how to build up the Philippines.

We must oppose those who peddle fear and worse who foment dissent on the backs of the poorest and most vulnerable.

We must make 'One Philippines' where we combine the best of a strong economy with social justice; where good business goes hand-in-hand with a good environment; where company profits and rising wages are something to be proud of and aspire to; where paying taxes is recognized as something to be proud of, not something to run from. Mga leader ng Filipino-Chinese community, kailangan ko kayo.

Phase II has begun. In the months ahead, I will work to complete phase two and then take us to even more challenging steps until we rebuild the nation from top to bottom. In addition to economic reforms and social investments, we must also build a strong and moral society. And I want to assure you that in my administration and in my family, nobody is above the law.

To build a strong nation, we need a new coalition for peace and anti-violence. Ex, I want to look at legislation that can tackle access to firearms and bring availability under control and new stiffer penalties.

And now that I've done phase one, which are the revenue reforms, I know that you would want me now to turn my attention to defying the critics and defying the gravity and open the new terminal at Ninoy Aquino International Airport.

In sum, I'm confident that we're on the right course and that history will look back and judge these decisions and these years as years of genuine transformation when the Philippines turned the corner. And I believe I will be strongly vindicated and recognized as a catalyst for change and reform.

In that change and reform against a deeply entrenched status quo. In the difficult task of change and reform, I'm inspired by China's reforms that have boosted its economy, reforms that paved the way for it to take on the challenges and opportunities of a globalized world.

I'm inspired by the ancient Chinese proverb which says, "great souls have wills; feeble ones have only wishes."

Our two countries, our two peoples have the will, the fortitude and the determination to succeed in bringing peace and prosperity to our nations.

On the occasion of our 30th anniversary, let's continue to work together in building our golden age of partnership.

Xie xie! Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the National Day Reception Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the National Day Reception

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, June 11, 2005]

Thank you very much, Governor Aumentado and all the local government officials for your expression of support.

Vice President Noli de Castro, President Cory Aquino, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Bert Romulo and the other appointive officials of the Philippine government, His Excellency Archbishop Antonio Franco and the other members of the diplomatic corps, friends, honored guests, ladies and gentlemen.

Our friends in the diplomatic community are indispensable to the success of the Philippines. Together with our local government leaders present in this gathering, you are as much a part of the fabric of the Philippines as the threads that make up the Philippine flag.

The economic relations between the Philippines and the world are fundamental to the very strength and survival of the Philippines. As the poet John Donne so famously wrote: ‘no man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main.’ nothing is more true for the island nation of the Philippines.

Let me be very clear: we need the world. We need markets, investments, trade, culture, tourism, new and modern ideas. We’re connected to the main and must be. We don’t live nor can we live in a vacuum, separate from reality, in a land of make-believe.

I’ve put my beliefs into action. I’ve led with strong political, economic and diplomatic engagements in the region and in the world. I like to believe they’re a hallmark of my administration. Through trade agreements, military alliances and a focus on macroeconomic fundamentals, I’ve put the Philippines back on the map after a period of drift and retreat.

I take the role of the Philippines in the world very seriously. I believe it’s in the best interests of my nation and our people to learn, grow and prosper with the rest of the world. Oh, Chief Justice Davide, I’d like to acknowledge your presence too. Good evening.

Closer to home, I’ve focused like a laser beam on fundamentally reforming our national economy. I’ve taken the painful but necessary steps to raise revenues, reform collections and present a fiscally responsible budget. I have felt the political heat, but I’m still in the kitchen. I’m still in the kitchen because that’s where I belong: to continue to make the tough choices to turn this economy around. And no one will deter me from that mission.

Unfortunately, there are those in the Philippines who’d like to believe that the Philippines is an isolated set of islands, adrift from the world, unconnected from the main. That somehow the Philippines is nothing more than a private sandbox for political intrigue. Well, I want to tell you: this view is dangerous and irresponsible.

It’s dangerous because we live in a democracy, however imperfect that system might be. It’s irresponsible because it damages the lives of the very poor we’re trying to serve.

We cannot resolve our differences by tossing out the democratic process just because we’re not getting our way — that’s extreme. We cannot help the poor by undermining investment, driving away employers, and not investing in new infrastructure and social programs — that’s madness.

Yet this extreme madness is precisely what the purveyors of instability and intrigue have begun to sow. The global marketplace has already taken note of their destructive behavior. They must be responsible for their actions and understand the consequences for the nation.

I remind those who would believe their actions are unconnected to the fate of the nation to take heed of John Donne's final words: 'never send to know for whom the bells toll; they toll for thee.'

In contrast, I thank the union of local executives for joining us in a covenant of unity for urgent change and reform. I thank you local government officials for being earnest partners in protecting the democratic institutions and ideals that have been under siege.

Local executives and ladies and gentlemen of the diplomatic corps, I salute you for being part of the main and part of the strength of Philippine independence in this interdependent world in which we live.

On this note, I propose a toast to all the nations of the world and all the people of the world represented here tonight, that we may all continue to advance the peace and prosperity we all deserve.

Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo during the 107th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Independence
[Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pagdiriwang ng ika-107 na anibersaryo ng Kalayaan ng Pilipinas

[Ipinahayag sa Quirino Grandstrand, Rizal Park, Manila, ika 12 ng Hunyo, 2005]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Durano at lahat ng mga naghanda nitong ating selebrasyon ngayon.

Speaker de Venecia at lahat na mga halal na opisyal na narito ngayon; excellencies of the diplomatic corps; members of the Cabinet and other appointive officials; Mayor Atienza at lahat ng mga local officials; distinguished guests, minamahal kong kababayan.

Ang bandilang nagwawagayway sa ibabaw natin hanggang doon sa kabila ng Rizal Park ay tanda ng dugo, pawis at pagod ng mga bayaning nakibaka at nagbuwis ng buhay upang lumaya at makapagsarili ang Pilipinas. May dahilan kung bakit nangingibabaw sa atin ang bandila. Ang ibig sabihin nito, walang sinuman ang mas mataas sa watawat o sa mga batas na nagbibigkis ng sambayanan. Gaya ng bandila, tumatanaw ang batas sa ating lahat.

Harinawa, magsilbi ang ating watawat, magsilbi itong pambansang araw bilang tagapagbunsod ng bagong yugto na magdiriwang ng lahat ng kapuri-puri sa Pilipinas.

Aking hangad ang bansang malaya sa kahirapan, malaya sa gutom, malaya sa pagkawalang pantay kung saan kahit kumakayod at sumusunod sa batas ay tumatakbo lamang para manatili sa lugar.

Aking hangad ang iisang Pilipinas. Kaya sa araw na ito, habang binubunyi ang mga aral at alaala ng ating mga bayani, nananawagan ako sa lahat: atin nang iwaksi ang maruming uri ng pulitika at ituon ang pansin sa pagsulong ng ekonomiya. Dahil ang pagsulong ng ekonomiya ang susi sa ganap nating kalayaan.

Pag-ibayuhin natin ang pagkakaisa at marubdob na pag-ibig sa bayan higit sa pakinabang ng iilan. Sama-sama nating itatag ang iisang Pilipinas, malaya sa sigalot at puno ng pag-asa at pagkakataon para sa lahat.

Sa aking pakikipag-ugnay sa mga kumakayod na karaniwang pilipino, sa madalas kong pagbisita sa probinsiya, damang-dama ko ang kawalan ng pag-asa ng marami sa atin. Kailangang magkaisa tayong lahat upang pawin ang kanilang pagdurusa.

Nabuo na ang unang yugto ng ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya. Nabigyan na ako ng Kongreso — mga congressmen at senator na narito, maraming salamat sa inyo — nabigyan na nila ako ng kapangyarihang palakihin ang kaban ng bayan sa ganun mapopondohan natin... mapopondohan natin ang maraming matagal nang hinihintay na pangangailangan ng taong-bayan. Mapopondohan natin ito na hindi na kailangan utang ng utang na lamang ang aasahan para makamit ng bansa ang ilang mga ito.

Narito si Senator Mar Roxas, kinakatawan ng senado, maraming salamat din, Senado at Kongreso.

Ngayon sinisimulan natin ang ikalawang yugto. Bahagi sa ikalawang yugto ang mga reporma sa administrasyon mismo, kukubra tayo ng kaban ng bayan hindi lamang sa pamamagitan ng bagong buwis, kung hindi sa pagitan ng mas mabisang pagtrabaho ng ating mga kawani. Sa pamamagitan ng pagsugpo ng katiwalian. Kaya dito sa ikalawang yugto, hinahangad natin na sa loob ng tatlong taon babawasan ng kalahati ang paglaganap ng katiwalian sa pamahalaan, at pagsisikapin nating tuluyan itong mawala sa wakas ng aking panungkulan. At bahagi dito sa ating pagsusugpo o paghahati sa katiwalian ng pamahalaan sa loob ng tatlong taon, sa isang taon, hangad din nating masugpo ang katiwalian na nanggagaling sa bawal na sugal.

Opo, nagsimula na ang ikalawang yugto. At sa ibabaw ng laban sa katiwalian, bahagi rin ang ikalawang yugto, hahanapin natin ang higit na kasarinlan sa gasolina, enerhiya at krudo. Hahanapin din natin, magtatayo tayo ng imprastrukturang mag-aaliw sa mga namumuhunan upang magbigay ng trabaho sa ating mga napakaraming mamamayang naghahanap ng trabaho. At higit sa lahat, dito sa ikalawang yugto, ipapaabot natin ng mas mabilis sa mga mahihirap dahil kaya na natin sa bagong pondo ang mas maraming biyayang matagal nang hinahangad ng ating mahihirap na taong-bayan.

Sa ganun, dahil dito sa ikalawang yugto na mangyayari dahil nabuo ang unang yugto, sa katapusan ng aking pagkapangulo, gaya nang ipinahayag ko nung ako'y nagkakampanya, dapat nasa paaralan ang bawat batang Pilipinong kuwalipikado; at dapat karamihan ng pamilyang pilipino ay may anak na nag-aaral sa kursong makakapagbigay ng hanapbuhay.

Sa makamit natin ang ikalawang yugto, pupuspusin pa natin ang nalalabi sa sampung puntong programang pinahayag ko nung ako'y nagsumpa bilang pangulo noong isang taon — programang maka-mahirap, maka-kaunlaran at maka-kapayapaan. At sa ganun, sa ating pagbuo at pagtupad ng sampung punto ng ating plataporma, gaya nang sinisikap natin bilang millennium development goal, ating mahahati ang porsyento ng maralita sa lipunan at matitiyak ang pagkain sa bawat mesa.

At upang laging masusubaybayan ang pagsagawa ng mga panukalang ito, aasahan ko muli ang sampung lupon ng kalipunang sibil, kasama na dito ang bishop-businessmen's conference, na noong nakaraang araw ng Edsa ay nakipagpirmahan sa ilang ahensiya ng pamahalaan na magmamatyag sa laban sa katiwalian. Ilalawak natin itong pagsusubaybay nila, hindi lamang yung laban sa katiwalian, kundi na rin yung pagsulong ng edukasyon para sa lahat at yung paghati ng kahirapan sa ating bayan.

Mga kababayan, ang watawat ang sagisag ng kapangyarihan at determinasyon, at itatag ninyo sa bato: ipamamalas ko ang kapangyarihan at determinasyon upang matipuno ang ating demokrasya at nakatutok sa tamang landas ang sambayanan.

Pagdangal sa watawat ang aking tungkuling makabayan. Paglilingkod sa maralita ang aking panatang maka-diyos. Sa dakilang layuning ito, inilalaan ko ang aking dangal, ang aking kinabukasan, at ang aking mismong buhay.

Sa dakilang pambansang araw na ito naman, mga kababayan, ang hinihiling ko sa inyo, mga minamahal kong kababayan: tulungan ninyo akong maging mabuting pangulo.

Maraming salamat. Mabuhay ang Pilipinas!

Speech of President Arroyo during the awarding of Certificate of Land Ownership to CMP beneficiaries and Certificates of Recognition to former barangay chairmen of Bacoor, Cavite [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa paggawad ng mga Sertipiko ng Pagmamay-ari ng Lupa sa mga benepisyaryo ng CMP at mga Sertipiko ng
Pagkilala sa mga dating punong-barangay ng Bacoor, Cavite

[Ipinahayag sa Mayor Arsenio Castillo Coliseum, Camella Homes Springville Brgy. Molino 3, Bacoor, Cavite, ika-15 ng Hunyo, 2005]

Mayor Castillo, happy birthday at congratulations!

Batiin ko yung isang panauhing pandangal ni Jessie, si Brother Mike Velarde at yung mga kapwang anak ni Yahweh El Shaddai na magkakaroon ng prayer rally mamaya; batiin ko yung ating tatlong congressmen na narito ngayon: Congressman Abaya, Congressman Velarde at Congressman Señeres; at kumakatawan sa probinsiya itong araw na ito, si Vice Governor John Vic Remulla. Kasama kong mga panauhin ninyo ngayon ay ang chairman ng GSIS, si Secretary Abes na siya rin ang coordinator for power and water.

Naalala niyo yung sinabi ko nung ako ay nanumpa bilang Pangulo, yung sa sampung punto ng ating programa kasama doon ay magdadala tayo ng kuryente sa lahat ng barangay ng bansa at ng tubig sa bawat bayang walang tubig at bawat barangay sa Metro Manila na walang tubig. Eh itong Bacoor hindi bahagi ng Metro Manila sa batas. Pero sa katotohanan sa ekonomiya, bahaging-bahagi ng Metro Manila.

Kaya kanina nung nagpunta rito yung mga binati natin dahil sila ang mga bagong may-ari ng mga lupang tinitirikan nila. Sa Molino may isang nagsabi, “bigyan niyo kami ng patubig doon sa San Lorenzo.” kaya yon ang pinakilala ko kay Secretary Abes.

Narito rin ang namumuno ng Light Rail Transit Authority, si Administrator Mel Robles. At narito siya para ipahayag na hindi natin kinalilimutan yung sinabi ko na gusto natin — bahagi ng aking sampung puntong programa rin — ide-decongest natin ang Metro Manila. At isang importanteng paraan kung papano ma-decongest ang Metro Manila ay makonekta ang Bacoor hindi lamang sa pamamagitan ng kalsada kung hindi na rin ng tren, ‘di ba, Mel?

Anyway, Jessie, congratulations! Dito sa iyong napakagandang coliseum. Iyong handog sa mga mamamayan ng Bacoor sa pagdiriwang ng iyong kaarawan.

At gusto ko rin ipahayag na itong araw na ito may magandang balita. Siguro regalo na rin kay Jessie at sa napakaraming laking populasyon ng Bacoor maging ng buong Pilipinas. Kanina nakuha ko ang balita mula sa National Statistics Office, noong isang taon yung mga walang trabaho sa buong Pilipinas ay 3.1 million. Ngayon ayon sa pinaka latest na dato bumaba sa 2.9 million, kaya dumadami ang trabaho at lalong dadami pa ngayon na natapos na ang Phase One ng ating reporma, na salamat sa ating mga congressmen, ay nabigyan tayo ng mga bagong buwis. Ngayon magagastos natin ang buwis para pagandahin pa rin ang imprastruktura ng Bacoor at ibang lugar ng Calabarzon gaya ng tren, gaya ng tubig para maraming mamumuhunan at lalong dadami pa ang trabaho sa Bacoor, Aalabarzon at buong Pilipinas.

Gusto ko rin gamitin itong pagkakataong, Mayor Jessie, na magpasalamat sa iyo at sa mga minamahal mong mga barangay captain at former barangay captain at mga botante mo dahil sa suportang binigay niyo sa akin nung nakaraang halalan.

Itong araw ay hindi lamang birthday ni Mayor Jessie. Ito rin ay anibersaryo rin ng Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program. Kaya lang dahil nandito tayo ngayon, kahapon pinagdiriwang yung anibersaryo sa Malacañang at doon sa Malacañang bilang pagdiriwang ng anibersaryo ng land reform ay nagbigay tayo ng parangal sa mga katangi-tanging benepisyaryo ng land reporm at mga katangi-tanging dating mga landlord.

Pero itong araw na ito gusto kong ipahayag din na sa loob ng ating administrasyon ito ay isang ang ibig sabihin ng reporma sa lupa ay hindi lamang yung reporma sa lupang sakahan kung hindi na rin yung reporma sa lupang panglungsod at reporma sa lupang katutubo. In fact, si Mayor Jessie noon pang unang termino ko bilang Pangulo yan na ang araw-araw tuwing nagkikita kami, yan ang parating hinihiling niya na ang daming dekada na ang naghihitay ng mga maralitang taga-lungsod ng Bacoor na sana may katiyakang manatili sa lupang tinitirikan.

At ito ang isa sa mga layunin ni mayor. At sabi ko sang-ayon ako doon mayor at ipaglalaban ko na inyong mga daan-daang libong mga mamamayan na nangangailangan ng katiyakan sa lupang titirikan ay tutulungan natin. Palagay ko yon ang dahilan kung bakit si Mayor Castillo ay nagdesisyon magsuporta sa akin nung nakaraang halalan. Kaya sa pagdiriwang ng birthday ni Mayor Castillo na anibersaryo rin ng reporma sa lupa, siniguro ni mayor na bahagi ng kanyang selebrasyon ay yung pamamahagi ng titulo sa loob ng repormang panglungsod sa dalawang daan at pitumpung mga pamilya dito sa Molino 7 doon sa San Lorenzo.

Nahuli lamang yung Register of Deeds. Hawak-hawak ninyo ang mga titulo ninyo pero pagdating niya mapagbibigay ni mayor sa inyo. Pero ang masasabi natin ito ay bagong panimula para sa lahat ng ating benepisyaryo ng titulo ng lupa. Yung kapisasong papel na mamaya hahawakan na ninyo ay gumagarantiya sa inyong karapatan na proteksyon bilang lehitimong nagmay-ari ng lupa. Hindi na kayo squatter sa sariling bayan.

Nabanggit ko kanina yung unang yugto at kalawang yugto ng ating reporma. Yung unang yugto ngayong ginawa ng mga congressmen, binigyan ako ng mga bagong buwis para magastos sa kinabubuti ng ating mga mamamayan. Itong pagbigay natin ng titulo sa lupa ito ay bahagi ng ikalawang yugto ng ating reform agenda. Dahil sa dagdag na buwis mula sa unang yugto ng reporma sa pananalapi ang ating administrasyon ngayon ay mas makakatulong sa mahihirap, mas mapopondohan yung inyong mga kailangang tubig, mas mapopondohan yung kailangang garantiya sa utang doon sa LRTA at kasama rin ang mas mabilis na reporma para sa panglungsod.

At talagang napapanahon na ito. Napapanahon na ito dahil masyadong matagal na na dalawa ang Pilipinas — yung Pilipinas na kung ikaw ay masipag at merong kakayahan sa negosyo aangat ka; at yung isang Pilipinas kung saan kahit na masipag ka panaginip lamang ang ginhawa ng buhay. Yung isang Pilipinas na positibo; yung isang Pilipinas na hindi. Panahon na na dapat iisa na lamang ang Pilipinas dahil tayo ay isang taumbayan lamang.

Kaya mga kaibigan, diyaan sa mga sumisikap na palaguin pa o gawin pang mas grabe yung dalawang Pilipinas hindi ko papatulan ang pulitika ng destabilisasyon. Marami naman diyang ating mga magagaling na mga alagad ng batas at mga abogado, sila na ang bahala doon sa mga nag de-destabilize dahil masyadong hati na ang bansa sa dalawang Pilipinas.

Ngayon at dumarating na ang pondo mula sa Kongreso at ng bagong buwis at makakagastos na tayo sa higit pa para sa mahihirap, yon ang aking hahabulin. Hahabulin ko ngayon ang hangaring magkaron ng iisang Pilipinas — ang Pilipinas kung saan lahat ay may pag-asa sa kanyang mga panaginip. Dito sa aking pagsisikap sa iisang Pilipinas, alam ko na pagpapatuloy ni mayor sa akin ang kanyang suporta at inyong suporta. At inaasahan ko rin na si Brother Mike at mga Yahweh El Shaddai, mga anak ni Yahweh El Shaddai na tumulong sa akin din noong nakaraang halalan, tutulungan din ninyo ako na makamit ang iisang Pilipinas.

Kaya sa inyong lahat dito sa birthday ni Mayor Jessie, dito sa bagong coliseum na pinagdiriwang natin, sa ating mga tumanggap ng mga titulo, sa ating mga senior citizens at ating mga tricycle drivers dahil nga salamat sa kongreso binibigyan ako ng mas maluwang na pondo yung hiningi ni Mayor Castillo puhunan sa botika ng bayan, puhunan sa spare parts cooperative ay bahagi ng ating handog sa kanyang happy birthday.

Sa inyong lahat, mga Bacoor, maraming salamat. Tulungan niyo ako maging mabuting Pangulo.

Maraming salamat.

Speech of President Arroyo on the Second Philippine Progress Report on the Millennium Development Goals, June 16, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the Second Philippine Progress Report on the Millennium Development Goals

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, June 16, 2005]

ON TRACK WITH OUR GOALS

When we last met on the Millennium Development Goals, we were so proud of that Dr. Jeffrey Sachs described our Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan as one of the best, if not the best, he has ever seen.

Today, our country distinguishes itself once again, because we are among the handful of countries that have been able to do second progress report on the Millennium Development Goals. Congratulations! To everyone involved.

As you in this room all probably know, the Millennium Development Goals are incorporated in the objectives of the economic reforms reflected in that Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan.

And it's good for us to make a second progress report especially at this time when we have just completed the first phase of our economic reforms so that we can fund the second phase of our economic reforms which will impact directly on our Millennium Development Goals. As most of you in this room are well aware, the first phase of our economic reforms focused on the passage of revenue-generating measures. And I thank our Congressmen for making that possible. It focused too on administrative reforms to improve tax collections. And I'm very happy to hear... We were very proud of the April collections. Now for the May collections, I'm happy to hear that once again our May collections are higher by 18 percent than the May collections of last year.

The first phase of our economic reforms also includes a conservative fiscally responsible national budget. And I'm also very happy to hear from Secretary Purisima this morning, the head of our economic team, that our budget deficit to date is way below the ceiling we have allowed for ourselves.

That first phase of the fiscal reforms... That first phase of the economic reforms also includes the opening of the mining sector and the thousands of jobs that go with it. And now having been able to generate from Congress and from administrative reforms about a hundred billion pesos to finance things like what we need for the Millennium Development Goals, we are now embarking on the second phase.

In the second phase, I will press forward by continuing aggressive economic and fiscal measures. The focus this time will no longer be on legislation but to increase tax collection efficiency. And as I said, congratulations! To BIR for the 18 percent increase in collections over last year.

Second phase will also increase initiatives against graft and corruption. And as Dinky Soliman and Mely Nicolas will be meeting with the Bishops-Businessmen's Conference tonight, I am asking them to convey to the BBC my request for the Bishop-Businessmen's Conference to monitor this development.

Second phase also includes launching an energy conservation and energy independence campaign, and keeping prices under control with consumer watch programs. But most importantly, Phase Two will be defined by bringing the benefits of the tough economic reforms of Phase One to the people. With more revenues on hand, we can now invest more in the vital social needs to achieve the Millennium Development Goals.

I was looking at the report of Romy on the Millennium Development Goals and I'd like to talk about a few things that are especially important to me, important enough that they were among the handful of resolutions that I discussed in the Independence Day address last Sunday. I said in that Independence Day that we would want in accordance with the Millennium Development Goals to reach the day na may pagkain sa bawat mesa. And that means talking about extreme hunger. When I say pagkain sa bawat mesa, that is translated into bringing extreme hunger and poverty from 34.5 percent in 1990 to 17.25 percent in 2015.

And last year, it was at 27.6 percent and this is with the medium possibility of reaching the 17.25 target and that is why we have to work very hard on the issue of extreme poverty and hunger. And that's why I have asked my Cabinet members that this be a priority among priorities and for the BBC to help US monitor this.

I also talked about, in my Independence Day speech, about every child who is qualified being in school. That means by 2015, we would want to achieve a universal elementary participation rate of 100 percent and we also have a medium probability of attaining this target which is why I had to stress it in my speech. And this is where we will prioritize the budget of the department of education together with English, Math and Science teaching.

And so you can see that what we discussed in the Independence Day celebration are closely linked with the Millennium Development Goals. In fact, I stressed in that speech that we want to achieve the Millennium Development Goals especially in the areas of poverty reduction, nutrition and education.

It's also good for us to get together at this time, so that I can assure you that I will follow our medium-term plan, I will carry out the economic reforms of Phase Two and beyond, I will pursue the Millennium Development Goals unswervingly and no one shall block the path of the presidency, not even my irresponsible detractors who wish to set back our gains and reverse our engine or growth and development.

For four long years, the agents of destabilization have been trying to take down the economic edifice we have been budding, but thank God, to no avail. For four long years I have taken personal abuse in the hope that reconciliation will bring about national harmony. But now, they are trying again, and they are going too far because this is their now or never. They want to take advantage of the unpopularity I've had to suffer in carrying out the difficult phase One of our economic reforms. It's now or never for them because when phase Two begins to bear fruit and the Millennium Development Goals become visibly attainable, it will be too late for them.

But I have faith in God. I have faith in the competence and dedication of our lawyers and law enforcers to apply the rule of law. I have faith in the competence and dedication of our Cabinet members and civil society partners in working towards the Millennium Development Goals to make life perceptively better for our people. And I know that in the final analysis the Filipino people will hold on to their undying faith in the future of this great country and in our democratic way of life.

Consistent with the Millennium Development Goals, we are on track to beat hunger and poverty by 2015. I am especially gratified that our unemployment has gone down from 3.1 million to 2.9 million over the past year. At least we're no longer running in place like a treadmill.

And I'd like to congratulate civil society, business, media, the youth and the academe for working together to meet the Millennium Development Goals, and to NEDA for monitoring our progress.

I want to thank the United Nations family in the Philippines, led by the very competent and dedicated Deborah Landey. Thank you for the support being given to the Filipino people. Tomorrow, Deborah will leave us for a more important and bigger job in the United Nations headquarters. I hope, Deborah that your work in the Philippines has been very fulfilling to you. It has certainly be valuable to us.

And as I end, Deborah, as we bid you farewell, we reaffirm our commitment to the Millennium Development Goals and assure you that we will direct our will and our energy, our minds and hearts towards the greater good of our country and the people under the greatest blessings of the Almighty.

To all of you, friends and partners in pursuing the Millennium Development Goals, congratulations! On the success we have achieved. So far, let's continue to work together and be successful by 2010 and 2015.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during an Official Dinner in Honor of H.E. President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono and Madame HJ. Ani Bambang Yudhoyono of the Republic of Indonesia

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During an Official Dinner in Honor of H.E. President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono and Madame HJ. Ani
Bambang Yudhoyono of the Republic of Indonesia

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, June 21, 2005]

President Yudhoyono and Madame Yudhoyono, Vice President de Castro, His Excellency President Ramos and Mrs. Ramos, Senate President Drilon, members of the Cabinet, excellencies of the diplomatic corps, members of the Indonesian delegation, members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, members of the Indonesian and Philippine business community, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

First of all, thank you Prime Minister Yudhoyono and Madame for visiting us in the Philippines with your very high powered delegation. Your visit was a vital opportunity for us to talk about many areas of mutual interest. Indeed, we have so many areas of mutual interest that our relationship is that of closer than neighbors.

Indonesia is the fourth biggest country in the world. It is the biggest Muslim country and the biggest country in ASEAN. It is the biggest archipelago in the world, the second being the Philippines. And of course, Indonesia is our next door neighbor to the south.

Indonesia and the Philippines are similar in many ways. President Yudhoyono and I are similar in many ways. We have both aggressively engaged the region and the world at a heightened level of diplomatic, political and economic relations.

I like to think that our two countries are both truly back on the map of Asia and the world. We both believe in the market system. We both believe in the power of the economy to lift up our countries from decades of poverty. And we help each other because we are good neighbors.

I thank Indonesia, Excellency, for your support for the peace process in Southern Philippines. Indonesia played a critical role in the 1996 Peace Agreement during the presidency of President Ramos, in the Peace Agreement between the Philippine government and the Moro National Liberation front that ended more than two decades of armed conflict.

Now, Indonesia continues to support the peace process as chairman of the committee of the eight of the Organization of the Islamic Conference and is a prime advocate and sponsor of the Philippines' bid for observer status in the OIC.

I also thank you, Excellency, I thank Indonesia for your cooperation working together with us in our joint fight against terrorism. We are both determined to rid terrorism from our shores as we are both determined to eradicate the poverty which has become the ground for terrorism. Our two countries successes in tracking down and arresting those responsible for high profile terroristic and heinous acts are a testament to our common commitment.

For countries like us — like our two countries that have had a long experience with terrorism — we cannot ignore the possibility of renewed attacks including those that could be planned from terrorist cells, whether these cells are in either of our two countries or in other countries. That is why I value our intelligence sharing and cooperation, and our cooperative efforts are paying off in our two countries in the region and in the world.

As friends and neighbors we have stood by each other in times of difficulty. Indonesia send us relief goods and medical supplies following the calamities that visited the Philippines in the latter part of 2004. And then when Indonesia had its own much much worse calamity, that tsunami, the Philippines had the honor of sending medical teams to assist in the humanitarian and relief missions in Aceh and Miangas Island, and also members of the private sector like Don Emilio Yap give substantial contributions as well.

Your Excellency, with all of these that we are doing together — fighting poverty; fighting terrorism; working for the peace process not only in the Philippines, not only in Mindanao but also in Aceh; exchanging business among our own private sector members — your Excellency, I am so happy that you are here tonight so that we can once again reaffirm our steadfast friendship. The friendship of our two countries closer than neighbors and our resolve to enhance a relations to enable both of our countries to achieve the goals of peace and development.

May I therefore invite your Excellencies, ladies and gentlemen, to join me in a toast to the health and happiness and success of His Excellency President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono and Madame Yudhoyono, and the continued prosperity of Indonesia and its people.

Mabuhay!

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during a State Luncheon in Honor of H.E. Alhaji Dr. Yahya Jammeh, President of the Republic of Gambia

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a State Luncheon in Honor of H.E. Alhaji Dr. Yahya Jammeh, President of the Republic of Gambia

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, June 21, 2005]

His Excellency President Ramos, Excellencies of the diplomatic corps, officials and members of the Gambian delegation, members of the Philippine government, Gambian and Philippine business community, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

I'd like to begin by extending our warmest welcome to His Excellency President Jammeh and the whole Gambian delegation.

Your visit Excellency is a reaffirmation of our commitment to a more active engagement between our two continents in support of the new Asian-African strategic partnership. It's my pleasure to welcome the President of Gambia as the first African president to visit the Philippines during my presidency.

I believe in strong linkages between the Philippines and Africa.

Your visit Excellency promotes goodwill between Asia and the large number of independent nations in Africa. And gives the Filipino people a chance to understand the problems of development of former colonies subjected to the rules of different colonial powers.

As developing nations we can support each other through cooperative efforts and with the assistance of common friends and allies through various tripartite or multilateral arrangements as we endeavor to produce ways and means to improve the lives of our people.

On this note, ladies and gentlemen, especially of the Philippines, I was so happy to hear the acknowledgement of His Excellency President Jammeh about the role that the Philippines played in their development since their independence in 1965. Their main export product is peanuts and the variety of their peanut is called Philippine pink. It is also called Brokos because it was brought there by a professor Brookes from the Philippines. And 70 percent of their experts have studied in the Philippines headed by no less than their incumbent vice president who studied in the Philippines.

And I am very happy that His Excellency President Jammeh said that they are our friends forever because of what we have done for them in the early days of the development of their new independent nation. And the friendship is significant, Excellency, because you are an influential member of the organization of the Islamic conference. And your support is valuable in our efforts to forge lasting peace with our Muslim brothers in Southern Philippines. With your support, the Philippines looks forward to a future of being one among you in the OIC.

We are committed to promoting understanding among various faiths and civilization in our country and in the world.

And I thank you Excellency for your visit which is a valuable contribution to that greater understanding and for the commitment that you have made that you will support fully our bid to be an observer, a permanent observer in the OIC.

Ladies and gentlemen of the Philippines, there is one additional very big gesture of friendship that President Jammeh has brought on his visit to the Philippines. And it bolsters my own faith that God the father or Allah as he is called in the Muslim world has perfect timing.

Yesterday, we were appalled to read about the unprecedented rise in the price of oil to 59 dollars per barrel. And I started my conversation with his Excellency, talking about how important it is for us to address that issue because we are poor countries heavily dependent on imported oil. And his Excellency, the President, gave me a wonderful piece of good news. Gambia has just discovered oil.

And because the Philippines helped out Gambia in its earlier days struggling as a nation. Gambia will help us out this time by giving a bloc for the oil exploration of our Philippine Oil Exploration Company.

So, this is a wonderful visit, a God-sent visit, Excellency. And because of this it is my utmost pleasure to ask all of you to join me in a toast for the continued success and good health of His Excellency President Yahya Jammeh, the relations between the Philippines and Gambia, and sustained partnership between Asia and Africa.

Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo at the First International Conference and Exhibition on Business and Information and Communications Technology, June 22, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the First International Conference and Exhibition on Business and Information and Communications Technology

[Delivered at the Waterfront Cebu City Hotel Lahug, Cebu City, June 22, 2005]

ONWARDS TO PHASE TWO!

In greeting you, before I go to ICT the industry, let me first and foremost mention again the good news. For the first time in a generation, I've passed the necessary legislation to raise revenue, balance the budget and collect taxes in order to set the Philippines on a path to prosperity. Since the elections last year, my economic priority has been to craft revenue legislation and challenge Congress to pass long overdue fiscal reforms. They obliged, and I thank our Congressmen and senators for doing so, but it wasn't easy. But it had to be done. Our nation is paying for past sins. I could have neglected or perpetuated the sins of the past, the sins of greater debt that would fall on the next generation. But I didn't. It's wrong to leave the next generation deeper in debt and it's even economically indefensible.

As a result of that very strong push in the first phase, in the first year after elections, I've now done with the first phase of my economic reform plan. And I said earlier, I have in hand the largest revenue increase in a generation and the authority to raise more if necessary to ensure that we're on the path to economic stability and growth. We also have as I said earlier a fiscally responsible national budget and new legislation to ensure better revenue collection through better accountability.

Phase one of the reform process I will stress is now complete and the early signs are encouraging. The Value-Added Tax Bill has been passed. Fitch credit ratings agency forecasts that by next year the Philippines will have lowest overall deficit in a long time.

Last April, we had the record tax collections, and even in this May, the last may the tax collection increased by 18 percent and our deficit is much lower than expected. These reforms as I said have delivered the largest revenue increase in a generation. And it is no coincidence that growth is up even during the difficult period last year when we were grappling with the revenue measures, the 2004 GDP growth was the highest in our country since the Asian crisis.

Johnny Santos reports to me that exports have grown in fact consistently for four years. This time Johnny 4.8 percent during the January to April period. Investor confidence is up with the approved foreign direct investments increasing 350 percent in 2004. And you in Cebu know this very well, visitor arrivals in the Philippines have grown by double digit percentages during this period or January to April. Our OFW has continued to remit dollars to us. In fact, the remittances grew by 19 percent last April to 790 million dollars and continues to grow at a steady clip.

And I might add yesterday — I'm wondering why it wasn't in the papers. I guess because all the negatives must have taken toll — but yesterday, Secretary Ging deles, our adviser on the peace process, reported that the Philippines and the MILF were able to include the informal discussions on the most contentious issue in the peace talks, the ancestral domain, and they signed an agreement yesterday.

There is more good news but that one I will have to tell you later today, I hope. In the meantime, there is more good news about our industry, this industry because you know that in just four years the outsourcing sector has grown from zero to 72,000 jobs. Just recently, Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank formally opened its business process outsourcing facility which will eventually employ 3,500 Filipinos at the north gate Cyberzone in Alabang.

The next phase of our reforms, Phase Two, will see investments in agri-business, on energy conservation and independence, the opening up of the mining sector and the promotion of the Philippines as a center for global... a global center for outsourcing.

You know, I've just declared June as ICT month, with your Congress as the centerpiece event. ICT means many things for the Philippines — jobs for our young people, a driver of investments, tool for mass education and an instrument for good government.

This event demonstrates how successful we've been. From the start of my presidency to 2004. Because I gave figures earlier on BPO but BPO is not the whole of ICT. Talking about ICT now, 50,000 jobs were created in the first four years of my presidency. And then entering into the fifth year, the first half of this year alone, we generated almost 40,000 jobs. Doubling every year. Much of this is due to the momentum we built over the last few years. Now, we have a total of about 132,000 jobs in this sector, half the year is not yet done, very close to our target at 135,000 for the whole year of 2005.

Many of these jobs are being generated outside Metro Manila. Over the past 12 months call centers have been opened in Iloilo, Cagayan de Oro, Baguio City. BPO operations have sprung up in Legaspi City, Tacloban, Bacolod. Medical transcription centers have been established in Dumaguete, Davao, Naga. The concept of the cyber services corridor is gaining ground. Starting from Baguio in the north, with Cebu and Davao as hubs and going all the way to Zamboanga City. That's why I'm glad to see the Zamboanga delegation here. As highly paid as our call center agents are, they are actually the lowest paid in the whole totem pole of ICT. So there are jobs and high wages in all across the whole industry. And at the top of the totem pole another promising sector I am glad to have received the master plan earlier is the software development industry.

I'm glad to hear that aside from the 70,000 BPO agents, there are over 30,000 software developers in the country, and by the end of my term in 2010 we expect over a hundred thousand software developers.

There are more significant structural reforms in the pipeline. We see the need to empower our small and medium-sized businesses. And we're committed to assist SMEs become globally competitive through the partnership of the DTI and the commission on ICT, we have a framework that will enable ICT suppliers and vendors to provide the appropriate products and services to the small and medium enterprise market. The Philippines must be branded as the ICT outsourcing destination with excellent human resource, high quality and infrastructure that is low-cost with the broadband networks and the ease to do business with the government. I'd like to think we're truly back on the map of Asia and the world through our ICT. And the Philippines offers genuinely exciting opportunities for investment.

But, of course, Phase Two will have to be defined as well by bringing the benefits of the top economic reforms to the people. With more revenue we can invest more in vital social services to lift our poorest citizens out of poverty. Economic reform including your ICT investments must go hand in hand with social justice. We cannot have two Philippines — one Philippines for the haves, one for the have nots. We must all have, not by shrinking the pie or taking from one group and giving to the other. We must expand opportunity and raise up all people, all the people to prosperity and dignity.

And because for us to be the global center for ICT and other investments you need ease of doing business. Phase two will continue the campaign to fight corruption. Corruption is a single biggest barrier to moving the nation forward. We're making significant strides in tax collection, prosecution of tax cases, investigations of government officials, customs reform.

In the first five months of our current campaign to enforce tax collection, the BIR has filed 21 tax evasion cases with the DOJ. The BIR is committed to filing at least one case per week through the end of the year. In addition, several public officials and employees from various departments and agencies including the BIR and the BOC have been dismissed for failing lifestyle checks.

I appointed Tony Kwok, the... who created and ran the Independent Commission Against Corruption until his retirement to help me make our fight against corruption in the Philippines more vigorous, hopefully as vigorous as what Hong Kong did in its seven year quest. Hong Kong was one of the most corrupt societies until the ICAC came in, after seven years its now one of the most transparent societies. And we've been working to restore values education to the school system but it's not enough. And we have to attack it every single day relentlessly. All these efforts on the part of the government are matched by public monitoring from the coalition against corruption which is a multi-sector community-based organization comprised of representatives from the church, business and the broader society. With their active participation as they have done since the last Edsa, I'm proud to say that at no time in Philippine history has been such a broad based effort to cleanse the government.

You who are here as investors, movers and shakers whose support is required to generate the prosperity we need in the Philippines and to create jobs and reduce poverty, it's important that I have this straightforward conversation with you about the good news in our economy but also about our political environment because politics affects markets and investment decisions. For better or for worse actually, as I said earlier, there are two Philippines: one for the haves and one for the have nots. There's also the Philippines that works and the one that doesn't. As I said earlier, for the well-to-do and for the very poor. One of economic growth, one of high unemployment. One of a booming service sector fueled by ICT, one of subsistence farming, and the contrast go on. I want one Philippines. As I said earlier one Philippines that raises up the bottom not lowers the top. And I aim to do it by breaking the cycle of division, destructive politics, tax evasion and a backstabbing political environment which perpetuates the status quo.

And with your support I think I'm making good progress. As I was able to push Congress to pass my revenue legislation, nobody likes to raise revenues, I did. And I have paid the political price for it. And compounding these decisions has been the soaring price of oil. The shock we got the other day of oil reaching unprecedented levels in its price which deeply impact on our poor. And that's why I would like to take this opportunity to ask Secretary Johnny Santos to take the lead to project all the initiatives and safety nets the government is putting in place because we must inject in the national consciousness the bigger picture of national survival. This oil shock is a matter of national survival and it is important that we address this as well. Because if we're able to work on the oil shock and we're able to work on Phase Two of the economic reforms then we'll be able to bring about sustainable growth and development. This is the most difficult time of our economy. It is because we have had to do Phase One, the revenue measures, the power reforms. And now the oil shock that have to contend with. This is the most difficult time and this is the time that we must all get together to help our republic survive.

It is no coincidence that my opponents came after me within days of completion of the first phase of my economic reform plan and within hours of our credit rating outlook upgrade. Its an age-old game in the Philippines. They've been doing it to me for four years where keeping the nation divided for political purposes has worked. We cannot make it work anymore. We must put a stop to it. We have Phase One done. We have Phase Two and all its promises. We have the challenge of the oil price shock. The challenges are daunting. It's not the time to bicker. It is time to unite and act as one in building a better future for our country and our people. And I thank the Cebu business community and I thank the ICT community for your leadership in this endeavor.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Speech of President Arroyo during the “Galing Pinoy” Energy Efficiency and Conservation Summit

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the “Galing Pinoy” Energy Efficiency and Conservation Summit

[Delivered at the Mindanao & Luzon Ballrooms, Westin Philippine Plaza, Pasay City, June 23, 2005]

Thank you. Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Santos for your introduction.

PCCI President Donald Dee; DOE Secretary Rafael Lotilla; Chairman Alvarez, Ad Board; members of the business community; members of the various stakeholders in energy conservation; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Let me begin before I talk about enercon by taking this opportunity to thank you Donald, PCCI. Thank you ad board for your support to me during this difficult times of yet another attempted power grab. Thank you for your support.

I thank you for your consistency because many of you in this room in fact supported me in the last elections. And most of you here know that I came to this office to do the right thing like improve our economic ratings. And you know it was not to impose my public opinion ratings. I've done things for this nation since last summer, mainly to focus on our economic fundamentals to an extent not done for a long time before this.

I had to do this drastic measures in the first year of my new term because our nation is paying for past sins. I could have neglected or perpetuated the sins of the past. The sins of greater debt that would fall on the next generation. But I didn't, because it's wrong to leave the next generation deeper in debt and it is also economically infeasible. These decisions have been compounded by the soaring price of oil which deeply impact on our poor.

Crude oil prices are about to reach the 60 dollars per barrel level. Just last year they were 30 dollars. In just a year crude oil prices have doubled. Remember '74. Remember '79. Remember '91 when we all got together to face an energy crisis. Well, this crisis is worse than any of those three crises. The price is higher, much much higher than ever before, and we should get together more than ever before.

We're in the midst of a threat larger than what the world expected. And the world has something to do with it. The world must also have something to do with looking for its solutions. The fact that oil prices are now rising to historic levels further underscores the importance of the world community working to reduce oil price volatility while increasing supplies. Only then will the negative impact on global economies be mitigated.

You know I have always been affirmed in my faith in the perfect timing of the lord. Look at Tarongoy's release yesterday. It was the third anniversary of his wedding.

And when the oil price was announced a few days ago, two days after that, the President of Gambia came to visit the country. And one might ask why are we entertaining the President of Gambia. Well, he came to thank us because we had provided their Philippine Peanut Pink which is their main export. We have provided education for 70 percent of their experts. They feel we are responsible in a very big way for the viability of their independence. And now they've come back to reciprocate because they have just tracked oil and they have five blocs that they are bidding out for concessions. But they're giving the Philippine oil exploration company one bloc without requiring us to go to the criteria of the other proponents. Of course, these are ways by which we can be more independent in the medium and long-term.

But right now — I remember what President Bush said even before this very big increase in the price of oil. He said, “I wish I had a magic wand to bring down the high price of oil. If I could, I would.” And that’s the most powerful man in the world. What about me all the more or all the less. I have no control over global oil prices, but with your support, with our partnership, we can only help blunt the impact here at home. But of course the people don’t appreciate that. I’m in charge, and as such, I have to answer their frustrations.

We acknowledge the growing hardship of our people especially during this oil shock, and the government in partnership with you continuously seeks all means to lessen the impact of socioeconomic pressures by growing the economy to generate more investments and job opportunities, instituting reforms to maintain fiscal stability, and implementing pro-poor programs. One of the blessings of our good revenue collection is that we have a deficit that is way below what we expected.

And I talked to Emi Boncodin today and I said, “Emi, because we have a deficit way below what we expected, I think we can afford to be a little bit looser with our pocket on something that will directly benefit the poor, so that the sooner they can feel the benefits of our Phase Two.” And she said, “yes.” And her recommendation, which I approved is that, she will release 300 million pesos immediately so we can roll out completely our supplemental school feeding program in the areas where there is great malnutrition in Metro Manila and all over our country.

We’ve remained focused in achieving our economic goals and no amount of political squabbles and attempts to discredit the government will stand in our way to improve the living conditions of ordinary people, especially in the face of this unprecedented oil price increase.

It’s no coincidence that my would-be destroyers came after me within days of the completion of the first phase of my economic reform plan which so... You so most valuably supported, and within hours of upgrades to our credit rating outlook. It’s a sadly an age-old game in the Philippines where keeping the nation divided for purposes of grabbing power has worked.

But what’s important to me is the economy. What’s important to me is to do the right thing so that our nation, our future as a nation will be brighter. And I am optimistic that the people will in due time — the lord’s timing is always perfect — come to realize that my decisions and your support are the best way forward for our nation.

On this day, I ask the Filipino people together with you to heed the foreboding signs in the horizon. I ask our politicians to pause from the controversies of the day to face the grim realities ahead. If we don’t act as a nation now, we face serious consequences. Let’s take energy conservation seriously and without complacency.

I am grateful for this crucial partnership between the private sector and the government. I laud the PCCI, Ad Board, DDB Philippines and the other business organizations for driving the ENERCON train forward. We need the active participation of the entire industrial, commercial and transport as well as residential consumers in this nationwide effort to reduce our dependence on imported oil.

I want to thank the representatives of the transport industry who are here, particularly the Philippine Jeepney Operators and Drivers Alliance Foundation, and the Confederation of Truckers Association of the Philippines. They’re committed to convince the rest of the industry to adopt best practices.

Gusto ko lang sabihin, yung unang apat na taon ng aking administrasyon, hindi ba, Orly? Kahit minsan hindi niyo tinaas ang presyo ng inyong pasahe? For four years, they held on to the rates even if the price of oil was going up. But now, with this price so unprecedented, hindi naman dapat ang jeepney drivers at bus drivers lang ang kakarga ng kabigatan. And this is the reason why as in many parts of the world the LTFRB finally said, it’s time for our transport groups to share that burden with the others. At the same time, because transport is the most important cost item of a worker, we’ve also had to ask for wage adjustments from the regional wage boards. And the regional wage board being tripartite have try to come up with wage adjustments that will not be anathema to continued job creation. It is a very difficult balancing act, all the more we all need to work together.

On the part of the government, the DOTC and the MMDA, shall embark on an improved traffic management program that will reduce, if not eliminate traffic congestion, and I call for public cooperation. Pwede Orly, mga ibang mga members ng transport groups?

And I want to welcome the pledge of the Department of Education, Meralco, the Philippine Lighting Industries Association, the U.P. Association of Valuers of Energy Resources, and the Philippine Product Safety and Quality Foundation, to reduce electric consumption by at least 10 percent in nine weeks, and the move to get grades 5 and 6 pupils to monitor this program.

Nananawagan din ako sa lahat na gumamit na ng mga compact fluorescent lamps or CFL sa halip na mga incandescent na bombilya dahil ang CFL ay mas konti ang nagagamit niyong kuryente sa magkatulad na liwanag na nakukuha ninyo. Kanya lamang, ako bilang housewife parating nagtre-trade off ako, kasi yung fluorescent pag hindi maganda yung ballast nakakasunog. Kaya nung hindi pa masyadong mahal yung presyo mas gusto ko incandescent dahil sigurado. Pero ang sagot naman doon siguruhin ninyo na yung cfl na ginagamit ninyo ay sertipikado ng kaukulang organisasyon.

Let's make energy conservation and efficiency not only a standard of responsible conduct across all ages and sectors, that would have been in normal times. Those who conserve energy become more efficient, more competitive. But this time it's not just a question of efficiency, competitiveness and being above everybody else, it must be now a way of life for all Filipinos.

We've already gained ground but we must drive the impetus from our gains. Some of our gains — last year, we saved 1.2 billion pesos from best energy efficiencies in households, governments and industry.

Twenty eight government agencies are using coco-diesel for fuel. Thank you Ito Carlos for being an innovator in coco diesel. And when fully implemented across the transport sector together with CNG which we hope to launch Johnny, Popo in August, and Ethanol which we hope to have rolling out in a year and a half, 'di ba a year and a half? Thank you for our proponents and investors, we can have a potential savings of a 177 million pesos a year.

We saved 144 million from the implementation of a 4-day work week. And the Napocor is expected to reduce fuel utilization to the extent of 5.9 billion as a result of systemic improvements in power generation and delivery. Right, Popo?

We will all end up losers if we ignore the call to focus on energy efficiency and conservation. If we neglect the call to address the needs of the economy and we neglect the call to pursue our much needed reforms. This issue of an oil price crisis more severe than 1974, 1979 and 1991 is certainly an issue far more important than politics, and its impact will hurt the entire nation.

At this time, help me not only call for energy conservation, help me in the call to put an end to divisiveness and political warfare.

Those who plot against the government in this time of clear danger from external factors are no better than economic saboteurs. They have nothing good to contribute to our country but to bring about misery for one and all.

Heed my call. Heed the call of all the private sector leaders who are here today. Let's address this monster of an issue together, as one nation with one mind and singleness of purpose. And let's pray to God the almighty to lead us toward the right directions that we may pursue the reforms that we have laid out and address a challenge that's now laid before the whole world.

The excellence of the Filipino must be combined with the will of one nation, not two nations, not a devoted nation to beat this challenge.

And I thank you private sector for your leadership in energy conservation, reform and moving forward as one nation.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Gawad Kalinga Congress 2005 [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pagdiriwang ng Gawad Kalinga ng kabayanihan ng Pilipino (Gawad Kalinga Congress 2005)

[Ipinahayag sa Philippine Sports Commission Multi-purpose Area PHILSPORTS Arena (dating ULTRA), Lungsod ng Pasig, ika 24 ng Hunyo, 2005]

Maraming salamat Mari. Ang galing-galing mong magsalita. Lahat ng Singles for Christ ang galing-galing ‘no kasi palagay ko ang Panginoon nagsasalita sa pamamagitan nila.

Ating mga leader ng Couples for Christ at Gawad Kalinga: si Frank at saka si Gerry, si Tony; mga kasamahan ko sa gobyerno na naging kabalikat ng Gawad Kalinga; mga Cabinet members; mga local government executives; mga NGOs kagaya ni Cito Lorenzo, dating Cabinet member na namamahala sa productivity. siya ang adviser, siya ang nagturo ng productivity para magkaroon ng “food for the hungry,” yung meron nang “homes for the homeless” and “land for the landless.”

Salamat na narito tayong lahat ngayon. Salamat na narito kayo ngayon. Limang libo kayo dito. Limang libong nagtatayo ng bagong bahay, bagong buhay, bagong bayan. Kayo ang tunay na people power. Ang tunay na people power ay yung gustong magtayo, hindi yung gustong magbagsak. At talaga namang masasabi kong bunga ng people power ang Gawad Kalinga.

Ang Couples for Christ ay isa sa pinakamabisang mga sektor ng civil society na nandoon sa EDSA Dos, 2001. Naalala ko nung 2002, magkakaran ng anibersaryo yung EDSA Dos, sabi ko imbes na tayo ay magkakaroon ng malaking rally muli doon sa EDSA Shrine gawin nating apatnapung araw nang pakikipag-ugnay muli doon sa mga iba’t-ibang grupo na pumunta sa EDSA Dos. Forty days starting from January 16, yung first day ng EDSA Dos and ending February 25, yung last day ng EDSA One. Sabi ko sa mga kasamahan ko gawin nating pagkakataon makipag-ugnay muli sa iba’t-ibang grupo. Isa nga doon sa grupo na inimbita na makipagkwentuhan, makipagpalitan ng mga ideya ng mga apatnapung araw na yon ay yung Couples for Christ.

Naalala ko pa nag-lunch tayo, di ba Gerry, Fank doon sa isang yung library? At pinakita ng Couples itong Gawad Kalinga, yung binhi pa lamang noon ng Gawad Kalinga. Pinakita nila yung isang daang bahay na natayo na nila sa Gawad Kalinga at inimbita ako na pumunta sa susunod na proyekto kung saan makikita ko kung papaano sabay-sabay nila yung build na sinasabi natin, sabay-sabay nilang tinatayo yung Gawad Kalinga.

Naalala ko doon sa DSWD gumagawa tayo ng mga bahay na thirty thousand. So sabi ko, kaya ng thirty thousand. Kaya ng thirty thousand, makikita n’yo yon. Kaya sumama ako sa Dumaguete at nakita ko yung tinatayo nila. Sumama rin ako, nagtayo rin ako ng bahay. Thirty thousand ang halaga pa noon. Kaya sabi ko programa ko pa naman yung land for the landless, home for the homeless. Gawa nung panahon ng tatay ko ang pangunahing proyekto niya ay land reform, land for the landless. Sabi ko land for the landless dagdagan ng home for the homeless, housing for the poor. Eto pala ang susi dahil yung ibang mga bahay na tinatayo two hundred thousand, one hundred thousand. Ito thirty thousand. So, sabi ko dito pala dapat pumupunta yung konting salapi ng pamahalaan para sa pabahay.

Kaya sa aking malaking paghahanga sa nakita ko yung build na yon, pumunta ako sa entablado at sinabi ko meron na kayong 100 houses. Gusto ko maging 1,000 houses ito kaya nag-contribute ang pamahalaan ng 30 million pesos.

So from 100 to 1,000, June, nagkaroon ng build sabay-sabay sa buong Pilipinas, iba't-ibang lugar nagtayo ng isang libong bahay, mga Youth for Christ, mga Singles for Christ, mga Couples for Christ. Wala pa noon yung Kids for Christ. Salamat kasama na kayo ngayon. Hindi ba, hindi pa kasama yung Kids for Christ nung June na yon nung 2002? At nakita ng buong Pilipinas at ng buong mundo yung araw na yon nung sabay-sabay natayo ang isang libong tahanan, tuloy ang nangyari nagkaroon ng tsunami. Tsunami ng kontribusyon at kabalik at ng Gawad Kalinga at ngayon pwede nang mag-ambisyon ng 777 — seven hundred thousand houses in 7,000 communities in seven years mula nung 2003. Kaya hanggang 2010 sabay tayong magtatapos ng ating proyekto.

Kaya ngayon eto na ang parang naging sukat ng pabahay. Of course, tumaas ang presyo ng mga bilihin sa buong mundo, naging 50 thousand... At gumanda naman ang standards pati, gumanda ang mga design, 50,000 na ngayon. Besides mas madali magbilang ng 50,000 kesa 30,000. Di ba, yung sukli? So, grabe ang mga kabalik na pumunta at nagpresenta ng mga sarili.

At ngayon itong ating pagtatayo hindi lamang dumami, pati gobyerno ngayon yan na parati ang model. Okay yung mga 200,000 pwede yung mga... Para sa mga lower-middle class pero yung mga mahihirap nung araw na-shut off sa ating low-cost housing dahil noon bakit akala hindi viable kung less than 200,000, kayang-kaya pala. Kahit na 50,000 basta kasama ang puso sa puhunan.

Yung kinuwento ni Nonong Cruz, two billion ang ating pagkabalikat sa mga bagong tahanan nang nawalaan nung ating apat na malalaking bagyo. Yung mga kawal na ngayon dahil nagkaroon tayo nitong paraan na magtayo ng tahananang kaya nila, abot-kaya, gobyerno magka-counterpart ng lupa sa ating napakaraming mga military camps. Pagkatapos ng kawal, Nonong, yang mga military camps na yan kung meron pang lugar, palagay ko meron pa, buksan na rin natin sa ibang mga civilian employees ng Philippine government. Sabi ni Nonong two billion para sa mga biktima ng kalamidad: one billion galing sa mga kaibigan, kabalik at ng Gawad Kalinga; one billion galing sa pamahalaang Pilipinas.

Bakit tayo nakakalakas ng loob na mangako ng isang bilyon? Nung araw hindi natin makakaya yon. Yung 30 million na binigay ko hirap na hirap pa yon. Pero ngayon nakakapangako tayo ng hindi lang 300 million, one billion. Bakit? Kasi kayo rin mga Couples, mga local government officials sinuportahan n'yo ako na buwagin na yung dating sistemang utang lahat para sa kaunlaran, sa wakas magkaroon ng buwis para sa ating kasarinlan yung Phase One ng ating economic reforms. Parati kong kinukwento land for the landless, home for the homeless, food for the hungry.

Ang ating bansa bago natin ginawa itong phase one reforms para bang isang pamilya na walang sapat na kita para sa kanilang pangangailangan. Para bang isang household na may sariling negosyo sa bahay. May maliit na home industry. Ang kita buwan-buwan 700 — three hundred binabayad sa sari-sari store dahil yung pagkain ay parating inuutang; two hundred fifty binabayad doon sa isang assistant na gumagawa ng kanyang food processing; yung one hundred fifty tinutulungan yung magulang sa probinsya na maysakit. Eh di 700 na yon. Saan manggagaling yung pagandahin ang bahay? Dagdag na pagkain? Utang na naman sa sari-sari store. Eh di lalaki tuloy yung 300 buwan-buwan na binabayad sa sari-sari store.

Yon ang nangyari sa ating bansa. Seven hundred billion noon ang ating buwis. Three hundred billion pumupunta sa pagbayad at interes ng utang, ng minanang utang. Two hundred fifty pumupunta sa sweldo. One hundred fifty pumupunta sa local government unit. Eh di seven hundred billion na yon. Saan hahanap ng pera para sa housing? Saan hahanap ng puhunan para magbukas ng lupa para sa agri-business? Utang na naman. At kung utang na naman eh di yung 300 debt service lalaki pa. Saan natin kukunin? Sa sweldo? Sa ira? O hindi bayaran yung utang? Eh di nag-argentina tayo. Kaya we had to do a drastic surgery. Salamat sa inyo. Salamat kay Congressman Zialcita at mga kasamahan sa kongreso, they gave me 100 billion pesos in new taxes. Thank you, congressman.

Kaya sa dumarating na 100 billion maluwang ang loob ni Nonong Cruz na mangako ng isang bilyon para sa Gawad Kalinga ng calamity victim.

Pero siyempre hindi popular ang humingi ng bagong buwis. Kaya ako ay nagdudusa ngayon dahil sa aking mga hiningi sa kongreso. Dagdag pa yung pagtaas ng presyo ng langis sa labas ng Pilipinas na hindi naman ng lahat naiintindihan na imported yung inflation na yon. Kaya sabi ng mga kalaban, sabi ng mga gustong mag-take over, eto ang panahon, si Gloria mahuhulog na yan. Tirahin na natin ng husto. Itapon na natin lahat sa kanya pati yung kitchen sink. Pero yung kitchen sink ay dapat nandoon sa home for the homeless. Hindi itapon para itong gobyernong tinulungan ninyo sa EDSA Dos, tinulungan ninyo sa halalan at mga NGO natin, NAMFREL, foreign observers, 100 foreign observers, mga embahada ng ibang bansa sinabi, ito ang tunay na halal na gobyerno, na pamahalaan.

Salamat sa inyo, Gawad Kalinga, sa inyong pananampalataya sa ating administrasyon. Kayo ang isa sa pinakamagandang good news ng ating pagkabalikat. At dahil kasama Couples, Singles, Youth, Kids, meron na tayong kinabukasan. Land for the landless, home for the homeless, food for the hungry and tomorrow for our future.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the awarding ceremony of the 2nd Benigno “Ninoy” S. Aquino, Jr. Award for Nationalism

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the awarding ceremony of the 2nd Benigno “Ninoy” S. Aquino, Jr. Award for Nationalism

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, June 24, 2005]

Thank you, Brother Rolly. Thank you so much for your introduction and more than that thank you for your affirmation.

President Aquino, our national icon; Sister Luz; Mrs. Gutierrez; our outstanding nationalist alumni and students awardees of the Benigno Aquino Award for Nationalism; officers and members of the various alumni associations of catholic schools; parents and friends of the awardees; teachers and students of the various catholic schools; ladies and gentlemen.

I will not say much because we have heard the wonderful words of, I said our national icon, President Aquino. And those are the things that we should remember.

Let me just add that, indeed, history is replete with stories of freedom lost to tyrants and freedom redeemed by heroes. Ninoy Aquino was a true redeemer. And as President Aquino said, “it was because he believed that the Filipino is worth dying for.”

Today, we honor for the second time because the first time was last year in the first awarding of the federation. Now, we honor eight individuals who have followed in his footsteps in their own way. They have followed him to win freedom, to build a nation, to strengthen a society, and all these come at a great price.

Ninoy paid with his own life and I who are... Am undergoing what Brother Rolly said as assaults on my character, I feel humbled because they're assassinating my character but they assassinated Ninoy, and this humbles me and it should humble us all.

But such a sacrifice has a rejuvenating and a healing effect on any nation. His death awakened people from the fear and lethargy imposed by the dictatorship, as President Aquino said, “breathed life to the restoration of democratic institutions, restored confidence over despair.”

His will and nerve never faltered, and that's an inspiration for me. He continued fighting to the end, not with loudness or braggadocio — though he was truly an epitome of eloquence in his political days — but at the end, in prison, in exile, and in assassination, he soared with a deep-seated patriotism borne only of profound love for the Filipino.

Indeed, Ninoy was a martyr. A martyr for freedom but also a martyr for peace. And it's in this spirit that we mark this day with mourning for another great liberator, the man of god who as President Aquino reminds us presided over Ninoy's funeral mass and virtually made him a secular martyr of the church — Jaime Cardinal Sin.

The last wish of Cardinal Sin was also for peace — kapayapaan. Si Ninoy Aquino at si Cardinal Sin ang mga patunay na hindi tayo nagkukulang sa pagkakaroon ng mga bayani kahit sa makabagong panahon.

And today, we honor another eight of these patriots.

I'm privileged to celebrate this meaningful and timely event with President Aquino, with my fellow alumni and alumnae of the catholic schools. And my wish and prayer for today is that may there be many more Filipinos worthy of the Ninoy Aquino award. But I know the lord answers prayers and this prayer is easy for him to answer — that there be many more Ninoy Aquinos; that there be many more worthy recipients of the Ninoy Aquino award for nationalism. Because as Ninoy himself said, “the Filipino is worth dying for.”

To all our awardees, thank you for continuing to make the Flipino not just worth dying for but also worth living for, and worth sacrificing for, and even worth suffering for.

Congratulations! Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the formal opening of the 3rd Philippine-Spanish Friendship Day Celebration

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the formal opening of the 3rd Philippine-Spanish Friendship Day Celebration

[Delivered at the Provincial Capitol Bldg., Foyer, Iloilo City, Iloilo, June 30, 2005]

Thank you very much.

Damo gid nga salamat, Senate President Drilon. Salamat sa imong introduction. Salamat naman sa imong pagbulig sa akon, sa akon mga ginakinahanglan nga layi sa senado. Kag salamat sa suporta nimo kag sa suporta halin sa tanan mga pumuluyo sa Iloilo gani sa nagligad na eleksyon nagdaog ako diri, half a million ang akon mayoriya. damo gid nga salamat sa inyo nga tanan.

Secretary General of Foreign Affairs Honorable Rafael Dezcallar, bienvenido a Filipinas. Thank you for arriving last night and leaving tomorrow back to Spain just to attend this event here in Iloilo.

Señor Embajador Sagaz, muchas gracias por amartanto a Filipinas. Thank you for being the son-in-law of Iloilo; thank you Madame Bubut Sagaz for being our additional bridge to Spain. The grandfather of Madame Bubut Castellano Lapuz-Sagaz was a Spanish soldier who came to be assigned in Iloilo and thereafter married a Filipina. And now his granddaughter married the man who would someday become the Spanish Ambassador. Indeed, a personification of the close ties between the Philippines and Spain.

Governor Niel Tupas kag tanang opisyaales diri sa Iloilo province, salamat gid sa inyong expressions sa suporta sa akon; Mayor Jerry Treñas, thank you for the support not only of the people of Iloilo city and the officials but also of the city mayors of whom you are the leader; my Cabinet members from Iloilo, Secretary Gonzalez and Secretary Villa; presidential adviser for Region VI Lito Coscoluella; let me also greet the spouse of our speaker, Mrs. Gina de Venecia as well as the spouse of our Senate President, Mrs. Drilon; not to mention Mrs. Tupas; and I would like to also greet the sister of Iloilo, the people of Guimaras represented here by Governor Nava; members of the Spanish delegation; visitors from all over Iloilo, all over the Philippines even all over the world.

Maayong aga sa inyo nga tanan! Buenos dias a todos!

As Senate president Franklin Drilon said, Spain used to be a colonizer but is now our friend. Spain became our colonizer in 1521 but Spain became our friend in 1999 on June 30th. In 1999 on June 30th, as our friends from Spain said, was the day when the last hold out among the Spanish soldiers in Baler, now aurora province, gave in and accepted the Filipino troops and Filipino governance.

And in return for that gesture, President Aguinaldo signed a decree declaring those 33 Spanish soldiers who made the last stand in baler, as friends instead of prisoners of war. As he granted them safe conduct to return to their homeland that marked the beginning... The end of a colonial relationship and the beginning of a great friendship between colonizer and colonized. Since then our friendship with Spain has grown and grown. We are the best friend and favorite sister of Spain in Asia.

Spain's official development assistance in the Philippines is the biggest in Asia. and I understand from Secretary General Dezcallar that big as it is compared to their other projects in Asia, they are even willing to double it.

But deeper than the material assistance as Governor Tupas says, runs the vein of cultural bonds forged in blood and kinship, and Madame Sagaz is the personification of those bonds of blood and kinship. In religion and art — and I'm very happy to hear about one of Spain's forthcoming ODA projects in the Philippines — to set up technical and vocational schools for our out-of-school youth that will give them the skills that will let them also practice restoring Spanish monuments in the Philippines. And there are so many monuments of that kind right here in Iloilo. There is also our links in literature, architecture, fashion, food. And aside from our cultural links there are also economic links.

Spain is known for the production and distribution of alternative sources of energy such as wind and solar energy. So many times have we gone to different parts of the Philippines to inaugurate the solar power projects of Spain together with the department of land reform headed by Iloilo's own, Secretary Villa. Then the ongoing project on solar energy of the PNOC and BP solar Spain is an important step in the direction of spreading solar power in the Philippines which is so crucial to our economy today because we face a looming crisis, if the surge in the price of crude oil in the world market is unabated.

Imagine the price of oil is today — 61 dollars per barrel. Eighteen months ago, it was only 30 dollars per barrel. And 36 months ago, it was only 10 dollars per barrel. How much the price of oil has gone up in the world market and this is a very big shock to our economy, and I know this is true for the rest of the developing world. And I think it is providential that Spain is with us to help us become more independent of imported oil for our energy.

The challenge of the Philippines becomes greater each passing day as we are faced with the rising cost of fuel at a time when we need to boost the acceleration of our economy.

We're very grateful to Spain for all their assistance. Because for the past many years, we could only have these kinds of projects including the hospital project — that is one of Spain's pet projects for the Philippines — only with loans.

Because before Senate President Drilon, Speaker de Venecia, your senators and your congressmen helped me with the new tax reforms, our country was like a household earning only seven hundred pesos — where 300 pesos had to go to the sari-sari store to pay for previous food bought; 250 pesos had to go to one extra worker for the cottage industry; and 150 pesos has to go to the elderly parents living in the countryside. Our taxes of 700 billion pesos before the tax reforms went to: 300 billion to service old loans; 250 billion for salaries; 150 billion for local government IRA. Where would we get the money for hospitals, for energy independence, for schools? We had to borrow and then add more to our debt service.

We had to get out of that vicious cycle. And I thank Congress, Senate that they gave me now an extra hundred billion pesos so that we can have these things without always relying only on foreign loans but relying on ourselves.

That was phase one of our economic reform agenda. And with that completed, I am committed to moving up this nation from a state of political and economic deterioration to an era of renewal and change.

This year's observance of Philippine-Spanish friendship day must not only be about an interwoven past. And yet it is so pervasive in our country. As pervasive as that, our relationship with Spain today is also part of a continuing search of exciting opportunities that stem from a strategic alliance connecting two major continents and two very old friends.

Today, I am happy to celebrate Philippine-Spanish friendship day in Iloilo, the in-law city and province of our Spanish Ambassador.

Two years ago, the first time we celebrated Philippine-Spanish friendship day, it was in Baler because it was on the occasion of the coming down of the soldiers in Baler that became the source of the declaration of Philippine-Spanish friendship.

Today, it is not about soldiers giving in to other soldiers. It is about love, kinship, friendship, brotherhood. That is what Iloilo represents in Philippine-Spanish friendship.

And so today, this is a great city and province from which to make the call to the whole country and across two great continents: viva la mistad Filipina-España! Mabuhay!

Damo gid nga salamat sa inyo nga tanan.

PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo at the Launching Ceremony of the Anti-Trafficking Initiatives, July 2, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Launching Ceremony of the Anti-Trafficking Initiatives

[Delivered at Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 2, 2005]

PRIORITIZING THE FIGHT AGAINST TRAFFICKING

I ask for this event today because this is what I felt could be our contribution to the celebration of Philippine-American Friendship Day on July 4th.

I was asking myself, how do we commemorate Philippine-American friendship? Because our friendship covers so many aspects. We have, of course, the very high-profile partnership in the war against terrorism. We could have celebrated that. We have a long standing and still vigorous partnership in trade and investment. We could have celebrated that.

But I thought today we should bring to the fore something that as Ambassador Mussomeli said is very close to the heart of president bush and very close to mine as well — which is why we passed such a very good law — and that is the cause of protecting our women and children against trafficking.

The fight against human trafficking is a fight against poverty. Last night, I met my Cabinet and we all renewed our determination to stay on course on our key economic and social programs.

I'm going about the business of the people. If my opponents feel that the best thing for the nation is to tear it down, so be it on their part. But I'm focused on hope and the future, not on petty politics.

My faith and the Good Book say to turn the other cheek, and I have. I have only love and compassion for the nation, even those who would do me ill. I will focus on the people's business. No one will deter me from that mission. And I think all of you here because you are with me on that mission regarding the rights of our women and children.

The global horizon presents little comfort regarding our bigger mission to fight poverty. An economic tsunami from rising oil prices combined with increasing interest rates is hitting the developing countries, and we must respond to this.

As part of our response to rising oil prices, yesterday, we demonstrated a bus using CNG as fuel, which is half the price of diesel. The mother gasoline station that will pump CNG will arrive in the Philippines in the middle of August to help us have some relief from the high oil prices. It will be set up in Batangas. And the first 70 of 1,000 CNG buses will also arrive at about that time to service Southern Luzon and Metro Manila. We hope this will provide some relief to our suffering masses because of the imported high price of oil.

On the part of our response to increasing interest rates, which requires doubling our efforts to reduce our debt, I'm pleased with the information reported to me yesterday by Speaker de Venecia who just arrived from Italy and the Paris Club, that in our campaign for a large scale debt-for-equity in new development projects for the Philippines and for some other 100 heavily indebted medium-income and poor-income countries worldwide to achieve the U.N.

millennium development goals of cutting poverty in half by 2015, we achieved significant progress and in the case of Italy a recent breakthrough.

Speaker de Venecia reported to me that the Italian Government has in a letter officially expressed its support for the Philippines to use debt conversions in order to fund the fight against poverty and the pursuit of the millennium development goals.

Speaker reported to me in that letter, and I read the letter too, the Italian government will support the Philippine proposal to augment the percentage of the debt previously restructured within the Paris Club that can be the subject of conversion.

He further reported that the president of the Paris Club has created a technical committee to reevaluate the entire debt relief program for presentation to the Paris Club's 21 members.

While the Italian position is definitely a breakthrough, the Paris Club's creation of a technical working group is also a likely breakthrough since the core of the Paris Club is made up of the most powerful G8 nations — the world's richest nations whose decisions heavily influence global debt policy.

I look for the day when these efforts of ours will bear so much fruit that we can use debt relief to augment our resources against trafficking. In the meantime, we thank our friends from the NGO community. We thank our friends especially from the United States that has made it one of its major concerns — the fight against trafficking.

It is justifiable to put trafficking near the top of the list of where we should put our resources. Trafficking is both a curse on the poor and a transnational evil. As a transnational evil, the fight against trafficking runs beside our global fight against terrorism, money laundering, and other transnational crimes.

I ask for this Philippine-American Friendship Day celebration to focus on anti-trafficking because I want to use this as an occasion Ambassador Mussomeli, to say that I recognize that the Philippines needs to do more against trafficking. And I want to tell you, I want to tell the world, I want to tell our countrymen and countrywomen that we are determined to be delisted from the international watchlist.

I recall our Anti-Money Laundering Law. When it was passed, it was also touted as one of the best, if not the best money laundering laws in the world. But passing a good law is one-half of the job, implementing it to the point that we are delisted from watch list is the other half. We have been delisted from the money laundering watch list and now we will be, we shall be, we are determined to be delisted from the anti-trafficking watch list.

And I'd like to let you know, Ambassador, NGO friends from the Philippines and the world that we know exactly what needs to be done. We have a good law. We have, as Ambassador said, probably the best after care service for the victims. I know that to achieve delisting from the watch list, we must be determined and we are determined to increase efforts to convict the human traffickers.

I'm taking this opportunity to reiterate the marching orders to our law enforcers and to our prosecutors through the secretary of justice. And while we respect and recognized the separation of powers, I seek the full support and cooperation of the courts.

We all know, the NGOs know that to prevent trafficking — because there is the enforcement, there is the conviction, there is the after care but there is also the prevention, and I am very happy about the work of the NGOs here supported by USAID — community education is the key to inform would-be migrants of the perils of entrapment even before they leave.

In this effort, I appreciate the report of Secretary Gonzalez about the information campaign, and I appreciate our private sector partners. Thank you to the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines. Thank you to the American Solidarity Center. Thank you to the USAID, thank you to the Visayan Forum Foundation. I would have wanted this event to be in Allen and Liloan, but we will go there one of these days. In the meantime, we launched it here. Thank you to the coalition against trafficking in women. Thank you to the other people's organizations and community groups that are at the forefront of this campaign.

As I thank our NGO partners, I also ask our local government executives to beef up the law with local ordinances to prevent and suppress trafficking, and protect the victims.

And most of all, we must all develop and implement programs not only the good programs that Dinky and our DSWD friends have done to take care of the victims but programs that will prevent in the medium and longer term women and children from forcing themselves to become victims of trafficking. And in the end, the ultimate answer to this is jobs, livelihood, skills development, educational opportunities.

Speaking of jobs, over the past year, the number of jobless decreased by 200,000. And labor experts have told Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas that with such a large labor force, our being able to keep the unemployment rate to single digit is a feat in itself. There's a lot of work to be done but the fact that we are making progress in job creation in spite of seemingly insurmountable challenges is clear evidence that our macroeconomic fundamentals are sound and our foundation for recovery is solid.

The Supreme Court, T.R.O. notwithstanding, because we have been able to pass other laws aside from that the alcohol and cigarette taxes, the Accountability Reform Law. And the VAT is on a T.R.O. there'll be a motion for reconsideration. So, we are still confident that the rule of law is on our side.

We are proceeding with Phase 2 of our reform agenda. This will ensure that our new revenues are used not only for reducing debt which we must do but also for investments in people. Investments against trafficking, investments in social services and job creation, investments in infrastructure that will bring in the private sector capital.

Achieving all these would strengthen family foundations wherein each and every member — women, children and all — are aptly shielded from the abuse of the worst kind. And that's trafficking.

While we work on Phase 2 in order to make lives better, perceivably better for our people, I ask our people to be patient because the problems that we face have been with us since time immemorial. And it is only now that we are trying to gather in once and for all the resources we need to face those problems of time immemorial.

We must all push on. We must all pray. We must all work together as a people who would like to see this great nation become truly one Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Official Dinner hosted by the President in Honor of Prime Minister Marek Belka and Madame Krystyna Belka

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Official Dinner hosted by the President in Honor of Prime Minister Marek Belka and Madame Krystyna Belka

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 6, 2005]

His Excellency Prime Minister Belka; Madame Belka; Senate President Drilon; Speaker and Mrs. De Venecia; Secretary and Mrs. Romulo; Secretary Ermita; Philippine officials; members of the diplomatic corps; members of the Polish delegation; members of the business community; ladies and gentlemen:

The Republics of the Philippines and Poland maybe oceans apart but with have a kinship in history, politics, religion and now business. As two predominantly catholic countries, our links to the late Pope John Paul II are one of abiding faith and piety. One whom the Polish people loved so much but also one who loved the Filipino people so much. Pope John Paul II visited our nation twice, in 1981 and 1995.

On both occasions, the Pope was so moved to tears by the spontaneous outpouring of love and devotion by the Filipino crowds, five million people, the biggest in history. He was going to visit the Philippines for the third time but sadly failing health and eventual passage from this earth precluded it.

Poland and the Philippines are also bound by glorious moments in the struggle for freedom. Filipinos fought for independence from colonial rule in 1898 and also restored democracy through a peaceful power revolution in 1986. Across the world, the world was witness to the unwavering courage of the Polish people during the Warsaw Ghetto uprising in the spring of 1943. During the long and bitter cold war the Polish people also laid claim to their own version of people power as the heroic Lech Walesa and his solidarity union led a peaceful transition to democracy. Solidarity started its fight from the shipyards of Gdansk. And today Gdansk, which is now Gdynia, is where a Filipino entrepreneur, Mr. Ricky Razon operates a hundred million-dollar container terminal port.

I thank the government of the Republic of Poland for hosting this Philippine company, and I would like to see in the near future and so does His Excellency Polish companies doing more business in the Philippines. For instance, I am happy with the interest of Poland in our mining industry. And I am also extremely happy that Poland is willing to put up a consortium to do the feasibility study and seek the financing for our railroad to Bicol.

I thank Poland also for the 140 million-dollar accommodation for our security and defense and police equipment.

All of these great notes on the first visit of an Eastern European head of government to the Philippines, I wish to propose a toast to the continued good health and success of His Excellency Prime Minister Belka and Madame Belka; to the continued prosperity of President Aleksander Kwasniewski and the people of the Republic of Poland; and finally to the lasting friendship founded on mutual respect and productive endeavor.

Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo on women empowerment and availability of microfinance funds

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On women empowerment and availability of microfinance funds during the mass oath taking and awarding ceremonies

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 7, 2005]

Thank you very much.

Thank you very much. I'd like to greet first the members of Congress who are here. Francis Nepomuceno, thank you for coming and presenting the first set of awardees to us. I also see Congressman Nereus Acosta, thank you for coming.

I'd like to greet the Metrobank foundation — oh! there's Francis — the Metrobank foundation, thank you for your annual awards to the outstanding policemen. And I'm looking forward to having a dedicated program for the outstanding teachers. Members of the government who are here today, inductees from the government and NGO sector, awardees, guests, ladies and gentlemen:

Today, I organized the awards in order to give honor to two important sectors of our society — the women and the police and their partners. And I want to thank you for all the work you've been doing. And I want to thank you and congratulate you on the outstanding work that you've been done to deserve these awards.

I'm very happy about the 117 because this was one of the innovations of our administration. And I'm very happy that it has really helped bring down our crime rate and even our kidnapping rate to virtually zero.

This is part of our efforts that we've done in the past four years to improve governance. This effort of 117 is very quiet, low key but very effective. And I felt that today we should remind one and all how important these innovations in our technology can help us to improve our services to the poor.

When we talk about reforms, we talk about governance and we talk about reaching the poor more quickly. I have announced already two important designations regarding governance. And what I want to do now is to talk about a particular aspect of our pro-poor program that hopefully we can make... reach everybody that it should reach in a very short period of time. And I did it today because this program is something that should benefit the women and the police. This is part of our pro-poor platform which we continue to do. People ask, can I govern? Yes, I can govern. And I am governing. Whereas our opponents can only sit down and raise controversies at the expense of our poor because they seek to tear down our society. If they seek to tear down our society, that's their problem. It is not our problem because we continue to work on governance and continue to work for the poor.

Our opponents have no platform. They have no concrete and viable plan to help the poor. They only find the time to plan to reverse progress. This is the most cynical manipulation of hardworking and caring Filipinos.

And so today, I would like to again bring to the attention of our women and our police one of the very important programs of our government and that is microfinance. I reiterate this announcement today because like the 117 it's been working quietly but effectively. In the last four years we have already been able to engage two million entrepreneurs borrowing 20 billion pesos worth of loans.

But still when I go around the country and especially Metro Manila, so ironic they say, "yeah we heard about microfinance but where is it?" and so I said that if we are going to make this reach the poor, the standard beneficiary of microfinance is women, but it should also help augment the income of those in the lower echelons of our institutions like the police. It's important that we have fresh funds that will go to these specific areas that have not been receiving it and to the sectors that of course need it most.

Last Tuesday, the Land Bank of the Philippines and the National Development Corporation made available 600 million pesos in fresh microfinance funds.

Today, the National Livelihood Support Fund is making available another new 100 million pesos in microfinance funds. that's 700 million pesos made available as of today.

And I want to announce this to our women's groups who have been helping spread microfinance. And I want to announce this to the police because so many of your ordinary rank-and-file policemen and women need to augment their incomes. Seven hundred million pesos in new funds available now even as we speak.

Because we want to make these funds reach the poor as quickly as possible, we have made some initial prioritizations in the implementation. For instance, the grassroots of Metro Manila, a big part of these funds will be distributed to the market vendors because they're already there and they can be reached and they have their organizations.

Another big portion of these funds should go to the urban poor communities. And this is where I ask the women's groups to participate in their distribution.

The lending has already started and will continue until we make a lasting impact on the families that live on the margins of poverty.

How do we access these funds? One is from NLSF, one is from the Land Bank and one is from the NDC going through the PCFC.

I am directing the Philippine... the People's Credit and Finance Corporation, the PCFC, who is supposed to be the super conduit for all these funds to immediately do an information campaign to the urban poor areas, to the market place, to the women's organizations, to organizations with many members living on the margins of poverty like the police, and also to the business associations — I saw Serge Luis Ortiz here — because we don't want 700 million pesos staying in the bank. We want them in the hands of our small and micro entrepreneurs.

And so I ask you women leaders who took their oath of office here today. I ask you members of the police. I ask you leaders of the business community. Please don't hesitate to sit down with the Land Bank and to sit down with the PCFC so that you can work out the conduiting mechanisms. Land Bank does not lend directly to the poor communities. It goes through qualified conduits. The same thing with the People's Credit and Finance Corporation, it does not lend directly to retail self-employment or microfinance organizations. It gives it through qualified conduits.

There are certain qualifications to be a conduit. Track record in already being a conduit for microfinance. Years of doing that number of beneficiaries that you have served and have paid you back well. Your own equity. There are these qualifications to become a conduit. And I urge the business sector, the women's organizations and the police' welfare offices to work with Land Bank, NDC, PCFC and LSF for this purpose.

So I thank you all for making this good celebration of our women and our police — the common denominator there was the policewomen. So, that's why I decided to put the two groups together.

So, I thank you all. I congratulate you and what I'd like to say is let's use that 700 million pesos right away so that the poor can feel it right away.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Radio Message of President Arroyo on the clamor for her resignation

Radio Message of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On the clamor for her resignation

[Released at the Study Room, Malacañang, July 7, 2005]

Mga minamahal kong kababayan.

When I was young and my late father Diosdado Macapagal was president of our country, I thought of him as the “good guy” and his political opponents on the other side were the bad guys.

Because of my father’s influence, I had always thought of myself as on the side of the good. Thus, it’s very painful for me to know that among many of our countrymen today I’ve been demonized as the bad guy. This is unfair, but it’s a cross that God in his wisdom has given me to bear. So I will bear it. I’ve never questioned God’s ways before, and I will not do so now.

When I first entered politics in 1992, little did I know that within a decade, I would become president of our country. And little did I expect that within another five years, there would be calls from civil society for my resignation from office or for the formation of a ‘truth commission’ regarding some of my political actuaciones.

When I spoke before the nation some two weeks ago, I did so against the advice of my legal counsel. But I thought that speaking before you, the Filipino people, was the right thing to do. Shameless people have peddled the lie that I confessed to cheating. What I disclosed was that I talked to an election official, but that this had taken place after the certificates of canvass had already been used to proclaim the winning senators, and it was those same certificates of canvass that showed that I won by around a million votes. That is the truth.

Indeed, it’s right for our country to confront the truth. But if we do so, let’s confront the biggest most painful political truth. The big truth that we are aware of deep in our hearts but that we collectively sweep under the rug. The big truth whose debilitating effects on our country, year after year, decade after decade, have developed into feelings of disgust, hopelessness and even despair among large segments of our society.

The truth that I discovered from my beginnings as a neophyte politician in 1992, rising to become a veteran politician through the years is this: over the years, our political system has degenerated to such an extent that it’s very difficult to live within the system with hands totally untainted. That is the truth. In addition, our system has degenerated to such an extent that more often than not it’s political agenda first and national interest last. For example, we have endless investigations and scandals in aid of politics and media projection, rather than in aid of legislation or executive action. That is the truth. Because of this system of politics, our country has been left behind by other countries in the region, and our best and brightest, the cream of our youth are bolting with their feet to leave the country. That is the truth.

I do not blame any individual or political bloc for this sad state of affairs. It’s simply the truth that the political system that I am part of has degenerated to the point that it needs fundamental change. We are collectively to blame, so we must collectively be the solution. Let he who is without sin cast the first stone. To those who feel that they cannot cast the first stone, I invite you to help in the solution.

My proposed approach to reform our system of politics and governance is something that I had wanted to bring forth during the upcoming state of the nation address. However, because our country is hungry for a resolution to the political uncertainties that have plagued us these past few weeks, I will bring it up now.

First of all, I am not resigning my office. To do so under circumstances that connote an EDSA tres would condemn any successor to the possibility of an EDSA 4, then an EDSA 5, and so on. Unless our political system were first reformed to make it more responsive to the people's will such that changes in leadership come about in an orderly and stable manner.

The world embraced EDSA 1 in 1986. The world tolerated EDSA 2 in 2001. The world will not forgive an EDSA 3 in 2005 but would instead condemn the Philippines as a country whose political system is hopelessly unstable, and the Filipinos as among the finest people in the world but who always shoot themselves in the foot. Under those circumstances, who would invest money in the Philippines? How would we weather the difficulties arising from the price of crude oil being at its highest in history?

What I intend to do is to work with legislators and civil groups who believe that changes in the fundamental law of the land are necessary in order to confront such basic issues as federalism, the character of our legislative process, reducing red tape in government processes, running for public office under a true party system and with less need to raise campaign funds, modernizing the economic provisions of our constitution, and so forth.

At the same time, I will restructure and strengthen the Cabinet, giving it a free hand to meanwhile reform and manage our day to day governance with as little political interference as possible, even from me.

This is how we will proceed.

First, I'm asking my entire Cabinet to tender their resignation in order to give the executive a free hand to reorganize itself. I'll ask our sectors to give me names of candidates that we can invite to replace those who will not return to the cabinet or even to help out at other levels of the executive.

Second, the Cabinet will be given a free hand on governance while I focus on the fundamental changes that we need to put in place.

Third, I will begin to reach out to the political and civil sectors that have an interest in the various advocacies that are relevant to our constitution. Federalism, for example, is an advocacy that I had espoused long ago.

This is neither political ploy nor gimmick. I believe that this process will quickly lay the foundation for deep reforms in our society including reforms in our political way of life. This would be a legacy that our generation of politicians and citizens could collectively be proud of.

I now have grandchildren to play with and help bring up. Like all of you, I want our children to grow up in a better Philippines. I have prayed on this, and I hope that I have discerned God's will properly.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Message of President Arroyo on the earlier statement of former President Corazon Aquino for her voluntary resignation

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the earlier statement of former President Corazon Aquino for her voluntary resignation

[Released at the Presidential Residence, Malacañang, July 8, 2005]

Mga minamahal kong kababayan.

This is a democracy that's held together by the Constitution and the rule of law. The Philippines has fallen into a dangerous pattern where the answer to every crisis is to subvert due process rather than work within the system. This must stop.

I was duly elected to uphold the Constitution and ensure that the institutions of the nation were strengthened not weakened. With all due respect to Former President Aquino and others, I say that their actions caused deep and grievous harm to the nation because they undermine our democratic principles and the very foundation of our constitution. Once again, we're subverting the rule of law and perpetuating a system that's broken and will remain broken until fundamental reforms are put in place.

As former President Aquino is well aware, the president is charged by the nation to defend our hard won democracy at all costs. To those who've forgotten this, I say, take your grievances to Congress where I'm very willing to submit to due process as called for by our constitution. In the meantime, I will continue to focus on the people's business which is getting our economy moving and creating a better quality of life for our people.

I will announce a new cabinet within the next couple of days. This team will be made up of individuals whose commitment to our nation and to democratic principles will be beyond doubt.

This is the team that will work with me to move away from political bickering to doing what the people of the Philippines expect their leaders to do and that is get our economy moving and ensure the delivery of essential services such as health care, education and security to all parts of the country.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Message of President Arroyo in response to the CBCP's statement

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
In response to the CBCP's statement

[Released at the Study Room, Malacañang, July 10, 2005]

I'm deeply grateful to the bishops for their statement of guidance and wisdom. I appreciate their collective voice of moderation and temperance at this time of national soul searching.

I will read every line and everything between the lines of the bishops' statement in an effort to bring greater moral enrichment to a nation impoverished both in its material and spiritual foundations. I shall continue to pray with the Filipino people for true redemption from corruption and evil.

I've searched deeply for moral discernment. The second letter of St. Paul to the Corinthians rings true for me. I cannot boast about myself except about my weaknesses. But I know, in faith, that in my own weakness, his power can be made perfect in me, to help me become the servant-president for you, in the way he wants me to be.

We must also focus on getting our economy moving. I will work with the church, members of civil society and all others to help build a better quality of life for the people of the Philippines, and to put an end to the political bickering that is causing such harm to our nation.

Once more, I pledge to do everything within my power to earn your enduring trust and support.

Once again, beloved bishops, thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Presentation of a Multipartisan Manifesto of Seven Philippine Political Parties, July 12, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Presentation of a Multipartisan Manifesto of Seven Philippine Political Parties

[Delivered at Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 12, 2005]

REACHING OUT FOR THE FUTURE

In response to what we have recommended, let me say again a few things. Let me repeat some of the things that I said in my statement last Thursday. I said last Thursday that over the years, our political system has degenerated to such an extent that it's very difficult to live within the system with hands totally untainted. Our system has degenerated to such an extent that more often than not it's political agenda first and national interest last. For example, we have endless investigations and scandals in aid of politics and media projection rather than in aid of legislation or executive action. Because of this system of politics, our country has been left behind by other countries in the region, and our best and brightest, the cream of our youth is bolting with their feet to leave the country.

The political system that we are a part of has... All part of has indeed degenerated to the point that it needs fundamental change. And I am glad that the statement of the manifesto talks about that fundamental change. We are collectively to blame for the degeneration of the system. We must collectively be the solution. And indeed I said earlier, let he who is without sin cast the first stone. And to those who feel that they cannot cast the first stone, I invite them all to help me in the solution.

Thank you for your inputs to what will be my state of the nation address. But anticipating that state of the nation address, I already said last Thursday a few things. I said that what I intend to do is to work with you, the legislators and the civil groups who believe that changes in the fundamental law of the land are necessary in order to confront such basic issues as federalism, parliamentary form of government, reducing red tape in government processes, running for the public office under a true party system and with less need to raise campaign funds, modernizing the economic provisions of the Constitution, and so forth.

In the meantime, I am restructuring and strengthening the Cabinet. Today, I announced the appointment of Land Bank President Margarito Teves as the new secretary of Finance. I am asking our sectors to give me names of candidates that we can invite to replace those who will not return to the Cabinet or even to help out at other levels of the government. And now that I am restructuring and strengthening the Cabinet, the Cabinet will be given a free hand on governance while I focus on the fundamental changes that we need to put in place, many of them being indicated in your manifesto.

I will begin to reach out to political and civil sectors that have an interest in the various advocacies that are relevant to our Constitution. For instance, in the last campaign, I was the only candidate who advocated for a parliamentary federal form of government.

And so Mr. Speaker, I shall therefore study the ideas contained in the manifesto in a manner of a president listening closely to the pulse of the people and see how support and consensus can be consolidated not only among our allies but among those who may differ with us but have a clear stake in the future of our nation.

Thank you once again, Mr. Speaker, for your collect expression of faith in the Constitution.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Call by the U.S. consuls and Filipino-Americans Tour Group

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Call by the U.S. consuls and Filipino-Americans Tour Group

[Delivered on July 14, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you very much.

Secretary Romulo, thank you for introducing me; Secretary Durano, thank you for your efforts in bringing to the Philippines leaders of our number one tourism market, the United States market; DTI OIC Tom Aquino, thank you for being here as well; and Dante Ang, chairman of the Commission of Overseas Filipinos, thank you for being with us today; and of course, Ambassador Albert del Rosario, thank you for your efforts; our consuls general, consuls, honorary consuls general and our officials of the DFA and DOT and DTI; and of course, the members of the Fil-Am delegations representing the various consulate jurisdictions.

Welcome to the Philippines! Welcome to Malacañang!

I'm honored to hear from Ambassador Del Rosario that this trip tour to Malacañang and this visit with me is — oh! I'd like to greet also Mrs. Del Rosario — that this tour to Malacañang and this visit with me is the highlight of your tour to the Philippines. But I understand that the delegations from Washington, New Orleans, Florida, Atlanta weren't able to make the tour. I would like to ask my PSG and the head of our museum, please let them be our guest for a guided tour this afternoon.

I'm very grateful for this meeting. It celebrates our friendship and shared history with the United States. Why? Because while we all share wonderful concepts, ideas with the United States especially our cherished democratic traditions, the most important link between the U.S. and the Philippines today is persons, our 3.5 million Philippine-Americans who are represented here today. You represent the personification of the cherished traditions shared by the United States and the Philippines — democracy, the rule of law. And during the four years of my presidency, I think you've known that we've been fighting to strengthen our democratic institutions against those who have been seeking to undermine them during these past four years since Edsa Dos.

Today, as you come here, we are taking the fight to a higher level. I thought that when you would see the political noise on TV some of you would back out from coming here. Thank you that you're all today. And I hear from Ace some more even wanted to come but the carrying capacity wasn't enough anymore. Well, that means we need more investments in carrying capacity and I hope you will be there to do the investments.

Your enthusiastic visit, your enthusiastic response contributes to my feeling especially with the stock market up 25 points, the peso breaking... It was fifty, went down to 55.19, the dollar went down to 55.99. This means that the time is now for a wake up call to my detractors. They whine and complain, but do they have a plan for the nation? No.

The solution to our problems is not to continue to divide the nation. My opponents want to divide and go back. I want to unite and move forward. The reality is that my opponents exploit and perpetuate the reality that there are two Philippines: one for the well-to-do and well-connected, the other one for the down and out and alienated; one where the system works because of class or privilege, one that has no justice if you are poor and disenfranchised; and one where the system can be subverted if you don't get your way, and the one where the system never works. Period.

I want one Philippines. No more double standards; no more dual justice systems; no more cynical behind the scenes manipulation. We need... I know we need a government that serves the people, not the special and vested interests.

I wake up every day early and work until way past sunset to put my plan — because I have a plan, my 10-point pro-poor plan into force — and it's working. Our previous speakers have pointed out the numbers to show it's working: exports are up; growth goes on as Bert Romulo said, the highest in 15 years, the highest in non-oil producing Asia; investments are coming in, thank you for keeping Calpers coming in. But the other day, Uniden, a big Japanese company who came here when I was still undersec... assistant secretary of Trade and Industry — I promoted that investment in 1986, created 4,000 jobs — and then left the country in the aftermath of 9-11 because the shrinking U.S. market required them to consolidate and they consolidated in China. Well, the other day, they visited me. They've restarted construction. If they had 4,000 people then, they are hiring 10,000 this time they're back in the Philippines. The other day, I had a visit from a Malaysian group that built so many of those super highways in Malaysia. And they are going to build our expressway from here to Batangas port — eight lanes, 11 billion pesos — no cost to the Philippine government. Monday, I have an invitation to inaugurate the Batangas port, the alternative international port to the Manila port so that our Calabarzon companies can choose where to go depending on the traffic that they want to encounter or not encounter.

We... FedEx will consolidate their hub in China, but that's because of China's growth. They hasten to say, however, they are still expanding their operations in the Philippines.

Job creation is up. Last year, we had 3.1 million unemployed — big number. Now at least it's gone down to 2.9. At least it's going down and we are not running on a treadmill running just to stand in place. We have better infrastructure. We're building as I said the south expressway. We're building... Completing the Batangas port. You've seen the north expressway. And we are a more secure nation for what our administration has been able to deliver, has been able to do against kidnapping, against drugs, in the peace process, and with our U.S. allies and regional allies against terrorism.

But let me be clear: I know we need more jobs, better health care and a cleaner government. I know that and I'm working on that. Of that, there should be no doubt. But my opponents don't want to look at what's working, they merely want things to work in their favor. And in the process, they are willing to sacrifice the gains we've made for their own motives.

If they want unrest in the streets, I will enforce the law. I will stop any violence that threatens the rule of law. If they want to subvert the constitution, I will fight them every step of the way. If they want to cast the first stone, let them do so with a clean conscience. Because their hands are dirty as they seek to besmirch not just me but the nation itself. This fight isn't about me, it's about working within the rule of law and the virtue of democracy that we share with many countries especially the United States.

I know that the Filipino people are deeply cynical about government. They desperately want change and will accept nothing less than strong action. I was elected under those circumstances and on a very issue-specific platform of economic reform, pro-poor investments and the political will to change the system itself. On this score, today, we shall begin to plead our case in the halls of the Supreme Court so that we can get the implementation of the vat bill on track to put our fiscal house in order. Meanwhile, we have the alcohol and cigarette taxes, and the accountability reform law that I was able to have passed last year to give us an additional 20 billion pesos in new taxes.

When Congress opened last year, I said, that for the first session year we would work for fiscal reforms. We achieved that. I called that Phase One of our fundamental reforms. And I said last year as Congress was about to open, we will work on the fundamental political reforms after Phase One. We're ready to do that now. We are on schedule.

What I intend to do is work with legislators and civil groups who believe that changes in the fundamental law of the land are necessary in order to conduct or confront such basic issues as federalism, the parliamentary form of government, reducing red tape in government processes, running for public office under a true party system and with less need to raise campaign funds, modernizing the economic provisions of our constitution, and so on. Remember how hard it was to get the overseas voting law and to get the dual citizenship bill passed. We really have to examine the constitution.

At the same time, I'm restructuring and strengthening the Cabinet. Giving it a free hand to meet our reform and manage our day-to-day governance with as little political interference as possible even from me.

I already announced late last week the appointment of Land Bank president Gary Teves as the incoming Secretary of Finance. The stock market went up when his name was announced. Today, I'd like to announce the appointment of NEDA secretary Romy Neri as the new Secretary of Budget and Management. His very competent and professional deputy, Tito Santos, as the new NEDA head. Peter Favila as the new Secretary of Trade and Industry and incumbent president of the Philippine Stock Exchange. And the incumbent head of the Office of Muslim Affairs Zamzamin Ampatuan as the new head of the National Anti-Poverty Commission. It's a good team. it's a kind of team together with Gary, Bert and Ace, and all the other Cabinet members, those with Cabinet rank like Dante. It's a good team. It's a kind of team that I can leave the day-to-day affairs of government with while I work on the fundamental reforms.

And speaking of the day-to-day affairs of the government, because of the increased tax collections from our Phase One reforms, we can now focus more money on things that will hopefully affect the poor more directly. Short-fuse microlending programs that would quickly put a little money in the pockets of thousands of farmers, teachers, tricycle drivers, policemen. Allocating resources to these projects would give great social dividends as would increased expenditure in the programs of the DSWD. In addition, NFA rolling stores and Kadiwa stores are being more aggressively deployed.

Last year, we were able to enroll already nearly 80 percent of the people of the Philippines in our Philhealth program. The Philippine national government gave the first year's premium. We are hoping that the local governments will give the second year's premium for their indigents. But because this program has become so valuable for the local governments that are not able to provide the premium for another year, the national government will also help in that premium to renew their insurance.

And we've had a very successful emergency employment program funded by the road users tax where instead of giving all of the work to contractors to do the pavements and the maintenance of roads, we're hiring out-of-school youth and other unemployed to do the work manually. They are doing actual work but at least we help solved the unemployment problem. That is the modern version of the Tennesy Valley Authority. And I have a budget of two billion pesos for that. One part of it will go to the pavement which has to be done more professionally by the companies. But the other part are things that can be done manually, and we hope as it worked last year that it will work this year to help reduce our unemployment problem.

We campaign against tax evaders, smugglers, hoarders, cartels and the like because these campaigns protect the poor who end up shouldering the cost of these transgressions. I know that we must reform the government. I know that we must reform moral standards, and I hold my family on equal footing to every citizen when it comes to the rule of law.

In order to put more vigor into our anti-graft campaign, I have asked Tony Kwok who put together the Hong Kong's independent commission against corruption, to be the consultant of the Philippine government. He has given me a very difficult list of things to do. And I will do them. He will be coming here to help carry them through. And I'd like to use the model of the Hong Kong's independent commission against corruption because before they set it up in 1974, Hong Kong was one of the most corrupt societies. Seven years later, Hong Kong, as we know, became one of the societies with the highest honesty and integrity. And we will seek to work on that in the Philippines.

At the end of the day, I'm fighting for the average Filipino, not the privileged Filipino. I will stand firm to turn the economy around, work to earn the trust of the people and defend our democracy. This is not a popularity contest; this is a contest for improving the lives of our population. My surveys may be down but my resolve has never been higher.

For all these years I've offered my pro-poor agenda, that has gained ground every day while, I repeat, the opposition has shown no plan, no plan but the blueprint for obfuscation and division. I challenge my opposition to show their true colors: show me the plan. You don't have one. And even if the people don't like me right now neither will they follow a road that leads to nowhere.

There is a Philippines that works, lives and strives; there's one that doesn't. There's a Philippines where we must... And that is where we must focus our energy, the one where things don't work and things don't thrive. We must lift everyone up, not tear everyone down. Are we on the brink of disaster? Absolutely not. Are we in a time of soul searching, national soul searching? Yes, and we should be. For it's time to break the cycle of politics and create a government that, at the end of the day, works.

Fil-Am leaders, as we welcome you back to the Philippines, although for a short visit, we express our pride in what you have achieved and our gratitude for keeping our alliances and connections alive and strong.

Thank you for being Fil-Ams. Thank for loving your resident country. But thank you for continuing to love your motherland.

Mabuhay! At maligayang pagbisita sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 107th Founding Anniversary of the Department of Foreign Affairs

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 107th Founding Anniversary of the Department of Foreign Affairs

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 19, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Romulo. Congratulations! On your Sikatuna award. I was saying that you truly deserved that award because you really stand equal to the great foreign ministers all over the world and in our region, congratulations!

Secretary Ermita; our top officials of the Department of Foreign Affairs; the recipients of the loyalty and model employees awards; the recipients of our special awards for the special heroic efforts that were undertaken by our key officials during this past year; our guests: Roberto Tarongoy and the members of his family; of course, Angelito Nayan is not a guest, because he's part of us; men and women of the foreign service; ladies and gentlemen.

Let me congratulate all of you for your contributions to Philippine stability and security. And as has been the theme of our celebration today, the country is particularly grateful for your dedication and heroism in the rescue of Angelo Dela Cruz, Angelito Nayan and Roberto Tarongoy. You have shown what it is to be a foreign service. Going beyond the call of duty to secure our nationals in distress to the joy of their families and the entire nation. That is truly the epitome of foreign policy in the service of the Filipino. But I thank you not only for these outstanding and celebrated efforts and examples of heroism, but also for your day to day work for your pursuit of our nation's interests and securing them in every global forum.

Our foreign service is something to be proud of. Our election to the U.N. Security Council, our election as chair of the APEC Counter terrorism Task Force, these serve to highlight the multilaterals and international organizations trust in the leadership capabilities of the Philippines and of Filipinos, and of course of our foreign service. Through you, we serve in the peacekeeping, in healing the sick in times of disaster, in manning the ramparts of the world order. Other departments may participate in the implementation, but you are always the means to be able to do these things. Soon, we will be having another engagement in the world in keeping the peace. I have authorized 200 soldiers more to be sent to Haiti.

Thank you for mobilizing foreign policy in our promise of peace not only in the whole world but in Mindanao, which because of your diplomacy is enhanced by development and solidarity and has driven wide international support.

We have completed 80 percent of our peace process with the MILF. The most contentious issue, which is ancestral domain, has already been settled and signed. The remaining issue of governance is much, much simpler than the issue of ancestral domain.

Thank you also that with our allies for peace and security, we're opening new fronts in the fight against poverty and terrorism, including our efforts and initiatives in securing bigger debt relief for countries not only the poorest of the poor but middle-income countries like us.

And today, as Secretary Romulo said, we have to contend with a highly-politicized and divided environment here especially in Metro Manila, and this is compounded by global economic dislocations mostly engendered by the high price of oil. The task at hand is to unite and speed up economic growth to spur investments which is one of the main work of economic diplomacy and to keep the confidence of our markets and trading partners.

I am very happy that the markets opened yesterday up, the stock market up, the bond market up, the dollar market up. I think a lot of that is because our foreign service keeps up the confidence of the markets in the world in our country.

Through Secretary Ermita, I'm instructing the Cabinet to step up the implementation of the second phase of our economic agenda — the first phase being our fiscal reforms — through investments in pro-poor programs and the improved delivery of basic social services like electricity. We are committed to providing every barangay with electricity by 2010.

Water. We are committed to providing every town — because there's still 400 towns without water — every town with water and every barangay in Metro Manila, which is as big as a town, with water.

Cheaper medicines. We have added 20 more technical people in the Bureau of Food and Drugs in order to speed up the registration of the half-priced medicines so that they can reach the poor better. And soon we will be advertising — Secretary Ermita, we should be advertising — where the poor can access these half-priced medicines in the many Botika ng Bayan, Botika ng Barangay and national government hospitals all over the country.

Wider access to education. I have instructed our CHED head and working with other friends even from other branches of government to find a way to have relief for those students who enrolled under the pre-need insurance — ah, well, they're not called insurance — pre-need education plans so that they would be able to take their examinations. So these are hard things we have to do, but we have to do them because so many are affected.

Health programs. Last year, we enrolled almost more than 4 million Filipinos, Filipino families in our health insurance program. That is over 85 percent of our... By doing that, we have been able to enroll about 85 percent of the Filipino population. Even in other countries that's considered as universal health insurance.

This year, for the renewal, it was expected that the local governments would take over. Many local governments have been able to afford it, 2.5 have been enrolled. Many local governments still cannot afford it at this point in time and I have instructed the PCSO and the DBM to find a way to continue in the case of the local governments who cannot afford now to take over the premium of the indigents to continue for yet another year. I intend to win the people's trust through good governance and urgent reforms.

Meanwhile, I trust that you will stay true to your professional commitment and help preserve our respective standing in the global community.

When Bert Romulo was talking about what I said last year, I was already remembering my father's story. My father was working here in Malacañang. And at that time, when President Roxas became president and Quirino became vice president and secretary of Foreign Affairs — that was, what? 1946? — as vice president and secretary of Foreign Affairs, Elpidio Quirino had the task of creating the foreign service. He had the task of present to the world the best of the Filipino mind. And so he conducted a search for the best and the brightest who could show to the world that our new republic was worthy of respect from peers. Among those that he recruited as the best and the brightest was my father. And my father therefore became one of the first Foreign Service officials. And because of that, as he rose up through the Foreign Service, eventually, he ran for Congress. And because he had been a Foreign Service officer without... There was still no Foreign Service act as profession as could be, he became chairman of the committee on foreign relations because of his career in the Foreign Service and that's why he authored the first Foreign Service Act. Which is the reason why when I became president, I did my best given the political reality so you do have to have political appointees, but I have done my best to maximize the chances and increase the chances of our professionals being the ambassadors and chiefs of missions all over the world.

I am happy about the role my father played in the development of the Foreign Service. And every year, we remember how it all began with Apolinario Mabini.

Let's all be united and focused on the original vision of our leaders and heroes like Mabini, our first minister of foreign affairs, to steer the course towards a peaceful and progressive future that's worthy of the blood, sweat and tears of every Filipino.

This past year, the Foreign Service showed blood, sweat and tears. Risking personal lives, months, stretches of months, but you came through. The world acclaims you, the Philippines acclaims you. It's a proud moment for the Philippine Foreign Service.

Happy anniversary to all of you!

Mabuhay! tayong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Launching Ceremony of the Bright Child Big Bang Project, July 29, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Launching Ceremony of the Bright Child Big Bang Project

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 29, 2005]

BRIGHT FILIPINOS AT THE END OF RAINBOW

Ako'y nasisiyahan na binibigyan natin ng magandang launching itong Bright Child. Matagal na nating hininog ito nung ako ay vice president pa at DSWD secretary sinimulaan ko yung project kasama ng UNICEF—yung Child 21—yung ating Long-Term Development Plan for Children. At noon pa man hiningi ko na kay Lina Laygo, yung aking predecessor as DSWD, na siya ang maging project manager. Siya ang nagsimula, ginawa niya yung plan from conceptualization at hanggang ngayon bilang chairman of the Council for the Welfare of Children. Siya naman ang in-charge of executing her plan. Kaya kailangan ang continuity kung gusto natin magkaroon ng bunga ang ating mga plano.

Ako ay nasisiyahan dito nga yung kanyang Child 21 kasi ano ba ang ating plano sa mga bata para sa 21st century? Bahagi ng bunga ng kanyang pag-aaral ay tatawagin niya ang programang Bright Child, ibig sabihin gusto natin na ang ating mga anak ay lumaking matalino.

So, anu-ano ang kailangan para matalino ang ating mga anak? Iyan ang nabubuo doon sa loob ng Long-Term Development Plan for Children. Itong planong ito ay mula sa pre-natal — kasi yung kaluluwa nagsisimula sa conception. That's already a child in the womb — hanggang sa 17 years old. Kaya meron tayong mga 17 years old dito, di ba? Nasaan kayo? 17 years old. Ayun, hello! Kasama kayo. Pag 18 years old na, adult na sila. So, the Bright Child is the child from conception up to 17 years old.

Kaya anu-anong kailangan? Pre-natal care, proper delivery, post-natal care, breastfeeding exclusively up to six months and hopefully continuing breastfeeding up to two years old. Tapos nuon pagpapasok naman sa eskuwelahan gawa ng maraming mga pamilya natin ay nagugutom, para bawasan ang hunger ay nagkaroon tayo... Bahagi dito sa Bright Child Project ay yung binanggit ko sa aking State of the Nation Address — yung healthy start. Yung masiglang pasimula, healthy start kasi nagsisimula yung public life nung bata pag siya ay nag-aaral — preschool, nursery. Healthy start dahil pag gising niya sa umaga at papasok sa eskuwela bibigyan ng malusog na almusal. Healthy start for the day and healthy start in public life. Kaya yon ang pinili kong pangalan healthy start nutrition program for the preschool day care and grade one. At inaasahan ko, sabi ko kay Lina, isigurado natin na at least sa Metro Manila makumpleto na natin ito.

Merong local government na meron na silang kanilang sariling feeding program sa mga eskwelahan nila. Kaya hindi na tayo papasok sa mga eskuwelang yon, magiging community-based. Pero merong mga local government na wala pang kumpleto na healthy start nutrition program doon naman papasok tayo kasi siyempre mas convenient para sa mga agencies na nasa isang lugar na lamang yung pinapakain — doon nga sa eskuwela.

So, yan ay isang importanteng bahagi. On August 1, we are going to have also the launching of the breastfeeding campaign, because we want to promote exclusive breastfeeding up to the age of six months.

So, itong mga gawaing ito ay para magkaroon tayo ng matalinong mga anak, matalinong mga bata. At tuloy-tuloy ito hanggang sa edukasyon. Bright Child must have a good basic education kaya paggagastusan natin ang math, science and English.

Ang sabi ko nga kay Bobit Tiglao asikasuhin kasama ang Department of Education kung papano mabibigyan natin ng incentive compensation yung mga teacher na magti-training sa math, science and English kasi yon ang kailangan sa 21st century. So, yan ang grade school, high school. At inaasahan natin na yung mga bata maganda ang edukasyon.

Kaya rin naman tayo nagtayo na ng 30,000 classrooms during the last four years kasi gusto natin na sapat ang classroom. Sinisikap natin na masarado ang classroom gap for the next five years. Sinisikap natin na pagka nagdo-double shift ang mga eskuwela, two half-day shifts, ay magkakaran ng sapat na schoolbuilding ang grade school. Ibig sabihin nuon ang student classroom ratio ay 50 students to one classroom — two shifts. And we plan to close the classroom gap in the next five years.

Sa high school naman, kasi ang dami-dami ng private high schools na kulang ng estudyante mula nung nagtayo tayo ng public school system, so ang ating programa ay hindi magtayo ng mas marami pang public high school kung hindi yung voucher para sa ganun yung mga bata gagamitin nila yung voucher para pwede silang pumili kung saan nila gusto mag-aral kahit na private school. Maging mas mura pa yon para sa ating pamahalaan. So, ito ang ating mga importanteng gawin.

Sa kalusugan naman yung sa kabila ng feeding program, sa kabila ng post-natal care, ng breastfeeding ang gusto rin nating gawin ay yung buong pamilya ay may access sa health care. Kaya sinasabi ko kay Pingcoy Duque yung sinimulan niyang health care program, Philhealth, ay dapat ituloy natin.

Sa loob ng apat na taon ng aking pagka-presidente 69 million ang ating enrolled sa Philhealth. At doon sa 60 million ay malamang, di ba Pingcoy? Three-fifths of that are children from one to 17 years old, two-thirds of that of the 69 million. At doon sa 69 million na yon, 30 million ay indigents na ang gobyerno ang nagbabayad ng kanilang premium. Dapat ito national at local government pero maraming local government ay hindi pa nila kaya. Ang ginawa natin, we paid for the first year's premium last year pero ngayon dapat yung local government na nagte-take over. Pero dahil marami hindi pa kaya, sabi ko kay Pingcoy, sige ire-enroll natin. We re-enrolled already 12.5 of the indigents of which two-thirds are children. So that means 8 million children are now re-enrolled. Eight million indigents maliban doon sa 39 na mga manggagawa na talagang nagbabayad ng premium sa Medicare. Pero yung 8 million indigent children are enrolled already. And we are seeking to enroll another 8 million in the months to come para sa gamin pag pupunta sa ospital ay merong babayad ng nakararami.

Pingcoy ang gusto ko kagaya nung Thailand. Doon sa Thailand nagbabayad sila ng 30 baht tapos the balance binabayaran na ng insurance. So, siguro para hindi naman masyado malugi, kung mamarapatin ninyo mga magulang, siguro naman kung may sakit ang inyong anak at dadalhin niyo sa ospital maging kayo siguro papayag kayo babayad ng 30 pesos para naman merong sustainability yung programa. Tapos yung balance under the rules of Philhealth ay pwedeng babayaran na ng Philhealth para malusog ang pamilya at malusog din ang mga bata.

So, eto po ang napakaraming bahagi ng Bright Child. At kung meron tayong bright children magkakaroon tayo na bright adults in the next generation. At siguro itong mga kaguluhan ng ating sistema ng pulitika ay mas mamemenos dahil ang ating susunod na henerasyon ay mas magaling, mas matino, mas matalino at sana mas menos ang pamumulitika sa susunod na henerasyon.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat. Congratulations!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Launching Ceremony of the National Action Plan for Infant and Young Child Feeding and World Breastfeeding Week, August 1, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Launching Ceremony of the National Action Plan for Infant and Young Child Feeding and World
Breastfeeding Week

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, August 1, 2005]

FROM OUR MOTHERS' BOSOM

Noong isang araw, inlunsad natin ang matagal nang pinaghandaang programang... Programa para sa mga bata ng siglo beinte uno. Ang tinawag natin dito, dahil ang hangarin natin na ang bata ng siglo beinte uno ay matalinong bata, tinawag natin sa programang ito "Bright Child." At ang mga programa ay mga programa para masigurado na matalino ang bata sa siglo biente uno. Kaya yung mga programa makakasigurado na siya ay matalino ay nagsisimula pa kung nasa tiyan ng nanay. From the point of conception hanggang ang bata ay labingpitong taong gulang.

We're determined to enable our children to have a strong start as the future builders of this nation. The positive impact of our national breastfeeding program will be felt not only by the newborn of this generation but all generations of Filipinos.

As he reported to you earlier, Secretary Duque in my behalf is working on the national breastfeeding program together with the World Health Organization, the UNICEF all their NGO partners and local governments. And we have all noted the valiant efforts, special mention of Mayor Atienza to make Manila the first city in the world to spearhead the cause of breastfeeding.

Mga batang naririto ngayon, kayo'y matatalino at malusog dahil sa bitaminang nanggaling sa gatas ng inyong mga ina. I am also... I was also a breastfeeding mother, but not exclusive. If I had been exposed to this program and this advocacy when I was a new mother, I would have fed... Breastfed my children exclusively up to age of six months. But since even for all my education, kahit na nagtapos ako ng PhD, nung ako ay nanganak hindi ko alam itong dapat six months exclusive breastfeeding. Kaya kung alam ko lang sana ginawa ko sana yon kaya alam ko na nung panahong yon kulang na kulang ang impormasyon. Kaya naman ngayon at ako ay merong pagkakataon na yung ibang mga nanay ng kasalukuyang henerasyon ay may mas alam tungkol dito kaysa sa akin, I am pleased, as president and mother, to proclaim August 1 to 4 as Breastfeeding Week. Nanggaling rin sa aking karanasan tungkol sa pagkukulang ng impormasyon nung ako ay batang nanay. It's time to actively promote mother's milk for the good of the child, for the good of the mother, the good of the nation.

Kasi si doktora nung nag simula kayo ng inyong advocacy eh nanganak na ako, tapos na. Kung sana nandoon kayo noon, I would have known better.

Lahat nito ay bahagi ng ating programang "Bright Child" o matalinong bata. Dapat exclusive breastfeeding sa unang anim na buwan, at dapat patuloy pa rin ang breastfeeding hanggang dalawang taon. Pagpasok naman sa day care o pre-school hanggang grade one, pasok na rin ang ating healthy start program o tinatawag nating masiglang pasimula na nagbibigay ng masustansiyang almusal sa mga eskwela. Ang programang Bright Child o matalinong bata ay kasama ang edukasyon, kalusugan, nutrition, pati na rin espesyal na atensiyon sa mga anak ng mga dukha, para higit na lumapit tayo sa ating mga hangaring magkaroon ng higit na malusog at matalinong batang pilipino sa mundong mas lalong dumidiin ang kumpetensiya.

Fr. Reuter, thank you very much for praying for us today.

The breastfeeding program benefits the national economy because if all lactating mothers at any given time breastfeed their infants exclusively up to six months, we would save the country 57 million dollars worth of milk formula imports per year. Kasi sa alam ko, sa lahat ng ating iniinom na gatas, isang porsiyento lamang ang produced in the Philippines. Ninety nine percent imported. Kaya yung dairy industry natin, siguro naman yung umiinom ng mga adults ng gatas kasama ng kape siguro hindi naman sila mawawalaan ng bumibili ng kanilang produkto. Kaya ang iniinom tuloy ng mga batang maliit imported lahat. So we spend a lot of money. And if the mothers will exclusively breastfeed we will also have less pollution in our rivers and in our garbage because less milk cans, less plastic bottles, less used rubber in our garbage dumps.

But even beyond the peso impact, our most potent reasons lie in the child's own health and well-being. Now I know even when I was young, even then I knew that mother's milk enhances the children's brain capacity and produces more intelligent individuals. And that even then I knew that it bonds the mother and the child, and it protects both from illness. I knew that, that's why I decided that at least I would partially breastfeed. What I didn't know is that it is better to exclusively breastfeed.

That's why I congratulate Mayor Atienza who I understand has committed to set up lactation stations in all over the City of Manila. And I hope other local governments will do the same.

Sa edukasyon naman, tuloy ang programing ng day care na siya ay responsibilidad ng mga local governments. Nagtayo na rin tayo ng halos tatlung libong silid-aralan, more than the average in the past at masasarado na natin ang classroom gap sa grade school sa susunod na limang taon basta dalawang shift ang gagamitin natin at limampung estudyante sa bawat silid-aralan ang ating bilang.

Ang mga bagong buwis na sinimulaan nating kubrahin ay ginagastos natin sa mga ganitong bagay. Pati na rin sa pag-ibayo ng kalidad ng edukasyon because as we have a bright child through nutrition, breastfeeding, breakfast program, we want to strengthen their train power and competitive power by strengthening education in english, math and science.

Ito ay bahagi ng pangalawang yugtong ng ating reporma sa ekonomiya, kung saan sinisimulan nating dalhin ang biyaya ng mga mahihirap na ginawa nating desisyon nung unang yugto. Yung unang yugto, nagdesisyon tayo hindi na natin ipapamana ang napakalaking utang sa mga susunod na henerasyon, sa ating mga anak. Ngayon na mas marami ang kita ng bansa, mas mapupununan natin ang mga batayang serbisyong panlipunan na makaka-ahon sa ating mahihirap.

Noon kasi ang hirap gumawa ng mga programang ito. Para bang isang pamilya na may sariling hanapbunay na maliit, 700 pesos a month ang kita. Pero 300 pesos pumupunta doon sa sari-sari store sa mga nakaraang utang mga interest payments. Tapos nuon 250 pesos pumupunta doon sa isang sinisuweldo sa kanyang maliit na food processing kung ano man ang negosyo niya. Tapos 150 pesos pumupunta sa may sakit na magulang sa probinsya. Ano na lang naiwan sa 700? Saan bibili ng pagkain? Sa sari-sari store utang na naman. Saan bibili ng pag-ayos sa bahay? Utang na naman. Di madadagdagan yung 300 na binabayad sa utang. Ganun ang nangyari noon sa ating bansa.

Seven hundred billion ang ating tax collection. Three hundred pumupunta sa pagbayad ng interes sa dating utang. Two hundred fifty doon sa mga suweldo. At one hundred fifty doon sa local government units dahil sabi ng batas. Di seven hundred billion na yon, mga nanay. Saan tayo sana noon kukuha ng programa pang edukasyon, pampakain ng bata? Saan tayo sana kukuha ng ating mga imprastruktura para makapag-aliw ng mga investors? Lahat noon, ang nangyayari noon nanggagaling sa utang. Eh di madadagdagan yung 300 billion na binabayad nating interes sa utang. Darating ang araw bangkarote na tayo. Ayaw nating iwanan yon sa ating mga anak, sa inyong mga anak. Sana po mga nanay naunawaan ninyo kung bakit tayo nagsasakripisyo na nagdadagdag ng ating buwis. Para ang ating mga anak ay malilibre sa utang at tayo naman ay makakagawa na tayo ng programa na hindi utang ang panggagalingan kung hindi sarili nating sikap.

Pero siyempre mas hirap yon. Masakit yon. Sa bawat pamilya pag kayo ay nagdesisyon na tama na ito, na lahat ng kita natin pumupunta lang sa bayad ng utang kailangan magdagdag tayo ng kita sa minsanan. Kailangan maglagay tayo ng dagdag na puhunan. Siyempre anong gagawin n'yo? You will tighten your belt, di ba? Para maghanap kung saan kayo makakakuha ng dagdag na puhunan. Ganun din ang dinadanas natin ngayon. Kaya ho sana maunawaan po ninyo na kahit na ho mahirap at masakit itong mga desisyong ito at mabigat, ito ay para sa mas malaking ginhawa ng ating mga anak. At sana po maunawaan ninyo at sana po tulungan ninyo ako dito sa mahihirap na panahon.

Kasama ng pangalawang yugto ay higit nating gagastos ka sa imprastruktura, para sa agri-business infrastructure, sa pag-impok sa kasarinlan sa enerhiya, kasi tumataas ang presyo ng langis sa buong mundo. Kaya kailangan kasarinlan natin sa enerhiya. Kailangan maggastos tayo doon. Sa puhunan sa responsableng minahan. Sa pag-aaral at sa pag-iiral ng Pilipinas bilang sentro ng magagandang trabaho kagaya ng call center at saka outsourcing. Yan ho ay hindi mawawala sa darating... Itong siglong ito. Yan ang ating kinabukasan. Mas lalong iiral ang information technology, call center, gumagawa ng mga bookkeeping, mga medical transcription, mga kung anu-ano through the internet. Mas lalong dadami ang trabaho ng inyong mga anak na matalino. Kaya dugtong sa ating breastfeeding ay yung mga trabaho na talino ng inyong anak ay magagamit. Lahat nito ay panggagalingan ng higit na trabaho nay an ang ating pinakasusi sa paglaban sa kahirapan.

Araw-araw ako'y nagdadasal at nagninilay kung paano kong ipag-ibayo ang aking sarili para mas maging mabuting tao at mabuting leader.

Ang kailangan ng ating bansa ay hindi drama kung hindi kilos. Yung araw-araw na nagsisikap, nagigising at nagsisikap para magdala ng higit na kalusugan, tubig, kuryente, palupa, pabahay sa ating pinakamahihirap na bayan at barangay, yon ay sapat nang drama. Ang aking atensyon ay nasa pagdala ng mga makabuluhang pagbabago sa mga buhay ng indibidwal na mga Pilipino na may pang ang kailangan. Kailangan pa lagay ko, hindi ba mga nanay, ang kailangan ninyo di ba nanay hindi naman drama? Di ba ang kailangan ninyo ay resulta. So, yon po ang aking pinagsisikap.

Maraming nagtatapon ng black propaganda sa akin. Maraming nagsasabi ng ganito-ganyan lalo na yung mga galit. Lalo na yung mga nangangailangan, parating kailangan ng pera madaling ibenta ang kanilang testigo. Eh... At ang kahirapan ng ating sistema ng pulitika ngayon yung accused kahit na pangulo ay hindi hinihintay yung tamang korte kung saan pwede kong ipagtanggol ang aking sarili dahil meron naman tayong rules of evidence at rules of due process. Ang ginagawa ang testigo ginagawa sa press conference, ginagawa sa mga Congressional hearings in aid of legislation, not in aid of determining conviction. Iba ang korte doon. Kaya yon lang ang nagpapatunay na talaga ang ating sistema habang nagkakaroon tayo ng pagkakataon na ma-promote ang breastfeeding, kasi nagkakaroon na tayo ng mga kakayahan, doon sa kabila naman sumasama nang sumasama ang ating sistema ng pulitika. Kaya yan ay kailangan na nating palitan. Kaya mga nanay sana po suportahan nyo ako dito sa mga bagay na ganito. Sana po 'wag muna kayong maniwala sa mga black propaganda na pinapahayag sa labas ng tunay na korte. At sana po tulungan ninyo ako na maunawaan ang pagbabago ang kailangan sa ating sistema.

I thank the UNICEF, the WHO for helping the Philippines promote breastfeeding. I thank all the NGOs involved in this campaign for their tireless advocacy of this program. And I thank the Congresswoman and the Congressmen for your great interest in this very, very important program for the health of our children and our nation.

I am instructing the DOH and its agency partners, the council for the welfare of children, and I ask all local government units, plus the DepEd and the DSWD, pati na rin yung Philippine Information Agency to prepare their moves to bolster the program's success.

Muli, ating mga mambabatas, ating mga appointive officials, ating mga NGO, ating mga nanay, ating mga anak, mag-kaisa tayo para naman mas umiral ang ating bansa kaysa tuloy na mawatak-watak na dahil sa sobrang pamumulitika.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Call and oath taking of the officers of the Philippine Association of State Universities and Colleges

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Call and oath taking of the officers of the Philippine Association of State Universities and Colleges

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, August 4, 2005]

Thank you very much, Mr. President.

And to all of you, thank you very much for your expression of support. Thank you for being the very first organization to express your support for me.

Thank you for being here and for continuing to govern with me inspite of the torrent of black propaganda against me. Thank you for your continuing faith but I won the elections fair and square and nobody ever made any payoffs to anybody in front of me. I can tell you that.

We have much to do, if you remember in my inaugural address, I talked about education for all. And it is very important that we prepare our young people for gainful employment. And that's the important work of our tertiary education, that we produce young people who will be able to find a job. And so it's very important that we are able to do our curriculum in accordance with what will give jobs to our young people.

You know very often, I ask a bright young man or woman graduating from high school, "what do you want to do?" What do you gonna... You know, well, I wanna find a job, etcetera, etcetera, of course. But they're gonna enter college, so what do you gonna work... What are you going to enroll with? I will enroll in customs administration.

Well, first of all, we don't have enough plantilla item in any of the government agencies to be able to absorb all these people taking up all those courses. So I would like to advise you, you know, not to open courses like that or to close them down already. If they are not... If they're gonna end up having no jobs. Nowadays, it's the age of information technology and therefore... And it's the age of technology, so it's important that they have skills. Entrepreneurship is fine for small businesses but if your student does not have a family business ongoing, maybe management is not the best course either. Maybe we should reduce our management courses.

And in fact, I said in my last State of the Nation Address, that the great Filipino dreams a college education and you provide that. But on the other hand, it's not so... You know, it's as much the use of our brain as the use of our hands that provide jobs and therefore state universities and colleges must have an institutional mechanism to provide for the good use of our hands.

And that's the reason why — but it's already being carried out, and I thank you for that — that's the reason why I have instructed that we do a ladderized education system where students who come from voctech schools, if they've taken up so many hours of vocational technical schools, they can be credited for units leading to a bachelor's or associate degree. That way they combine a better potential to get a job and the intellectual and cultural dream to have a college education for our young people. At least one college graduate in every family. That would be our dream.

The dream of a college education has become such an important dream that a whole culture in industry develop around it, the pre-need industry, which was invented in the Philippines and which worked well for many many years. However, unlike other financial institutions like insurance companies, banks and so on, there is really no pre-need code that regulates how it uses its fund and so on. And therefore without a good regulatory framework, what happen is that many of the investments of these funds turned sour. And now we not only have pre-need plan holders, we have pre-need victims.

Rather than giving them loans to pay their tuition, which is very difficult for the government actually, difficult even for the financial institutions because it's not part of their mandate, it's not part of what's allowed by law.

I have said because GSIS was going to give a one billion... It had a one billion fund, and if the law could only allow them they would have lent money to the pre-need victims or advanced the premium to be charged later to the pre-need companies. But the law doesn't allow them. So I said, why don't we do it this way. Why doesn't GSIS give that dividend to the national government and then the national government allocates it to the state universities and colleges not as tuition fee but as additional assistance. So, we spread out the one billion among you. I guess proportionately as to how many of these pre-need victims you are absorbing, so that they can continue their college education.

Chairman Puno has been really very proactive about how to save the pre-need victims. So I would ask Chairman Puno to be the one to coordinate with the DBM. It cannot go straight from GSIS because there is I think no legal mandate for GSIS to give it to the CHED But there is a legal mandate for GSIS to give dividends to the national government. So, it would be Chairman Puno who will make sure GSIS gives the dividend to the national government. And it will be Chairman Puno who will work with the DBM on allocating among the different state universities and colleges, depends on the record of how many pre-need victims that you absorbed.

The reason for this is not to pay their tuition, because the pre-need companies will owe you the tuition. But rather because in the meantime, you're absorbing them, you have to spend more. Maybe you have to build more classroom. Maybe you have to hire more instructors. So, for this reason that you have more work to do and more expenses, that is the basis of the assistance to you.

And speaking of your work and your expenditures, a lot of you have land grants. I would encourage you to use your land grants. And even those who don't have much land, I would encourage you to go into productive enterprise and use your productive enterprise to finance your educational activities.

I remember when I received an honorary degree in Japan one time, after the honorary degree I got, I was given a reception in the hotel that was built on land owned by the university. So therefore, they earn a lot of money from the hotel and they're able to be competitive in their rates and in their operations.

So, please be free to use your assets for productive activities so that you can use the income from your assets to add to the financing of your operational expenses. I want to empower the state universities and colleges in these various ways.

So once again, to all of you, congratulations!

Let's continue to work on item number two of our ten-point program — education for all.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Mass Oath taking and 7th Founding Anniversary celebration of the Volunteers Against Crime and Corruption (VACC) [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas

Sa malawakang panunumpa at pagdiriwang ng ika-7 anibersaryo ng pagkakatatag ng Volunteers Against Crime and Corruption (VACC)

[Ipinahayag sa Rizal Hall, Malacañang, ika 12 ng Agosto, 2005]

Maraming salamat, Ka Lauro sa inyong pagpakilala sa akin. Nandoon na pala kayo sa probinsiya ngayon. Ibang-iba and aura ninyo.

Binabati ko ang ating mga leader ng VACC itong araw na ito. Ang nagsimula ng VACC, si Dante Jimenez. Congratulations! And belated happy birthday; si Kapitan Martin Diño, ang pangulo ng VACC ngayon. Matagal na kami magkakilala ni Kapitan Diño mula pa kay Baby Echegaray at ngayon salamat sa pagdala ng laban natin kontra sa droga hanggang sa mga barangay; Merly San Pedro, Secretary General ng VACC; ating mga opisyal na narito ngayon lalo na yung mga nakatanggap ng mga parangal; other guests who are receiving their oath of office with our induction and we will be having our photographs later on. But I'm glad that you are here because this is very much related to your concern fighting against crime; General Lomibao and the other awardees; ladies and gentlemen:

Una sa lahat, happy anniversary sa VACC! Congratulations! Sa inyong magandang trabaho.

Kayo ay isa sa pinakapaniniwa... Pinaniniwalaang grupo sa tinatawag nating community pillar sa laban kontra krimen, congratulations! Congratulations! Sa inyong magandang trabaho.

Nakikita ng halos lahat ang pagsubaybay ninyo doon sa ibang apat na pillar kontra krimen. Tama ba ito, General Wycoco? Ang pulis, ang prosecutors, ang hukuman at ang mga preso. Kabalikat ninyo ang mga pulis, at salamat sa award na binigay ninyo kay General Lomibao, congratulations! 'Yung kay General Wycoco naman ay kasama yon sa prosecution, di ba? Dahil yung investigation.

Itong araw na ito dahil kayo ay kasama sa pagsubaybay sa pulis, sabay nating bigyang lakas ng loob ang mga pulis na ipag-ibayo pa ang kanilang ginagawa kontra sa krimen.

Salamat sa mga sinabi niyo, Kapitan at saka Dante, sa mga nagawa nating magsama-sama, sabay-sabay, gabay-gabay kontra sa krimen. 'Yung sinabi ninyo na ang laki ng ating accomplishments kontra sa droga. Kinekuwento nga ni Kapitan Diño na nung araw 100 pesos lamang ang shabu. Ngayon, 250 na. So, times two-and-a-half. Ibig sabihin nuon, proportionately, mas menos na sa kalahati ang problema ng droga sa ating bansa at congratulations! Sa ating partnership ng five pillars of crime prevention and destruction, lalung-lalo na 'yung kontribusyon ng VACC sa laban na ito.

Ngayon napansin ko, pinag-usapan namin ni Secretary Angie Reyes, na — kasi siyempre, sinusubaybay natin 'yung mga figures sa krimen — may pagtaas na naman ng mga krimen. Tinanong ko kay Dante, ano yung tumataas na krimen? Hindi naman yon drugs kasi kung times two-and-a-half ang presyo ng droga, hindi yon ang tumataas. Ang jueteng naman, ang illegal gambling ay mula noong ilang buwan na inatasan ko, nakaraan, na inatasan ko si General Lomibao na labanan yon, halos wala na hanggang ngayon. The longest period in any administration na yung illegal gambling ay almost zero. Ito ay nangyayari ngayon.

At inuulit ko ang aking instruction sa ating mga pulis — ituloy natin at iwasan nating babalik muli na lumaganap itong bawal na sugal.

So, ano yung tumataas na krimen? Ayon kay Dante, ito ay mga robbery. May konting kidnapping. Ito ang mga tinatawag nating economic crimes. Kasama na rin siguro ito dahil sa yung ating ekonomiya, yung problema na nanggagaling lalo na sa pagtaas ng presyo ng langis sa buong mundo. Biro niyo, a year and a half ago, 30 dollars per barrel ang presyo ng krudo. Ngayon, 65 dollars per barrel. Kaya ganun ang nilaki, sobra pa sa doble sa loob ng dalawang taon, kaya siyempre dahil import-dependent tayo sa krudo, nagiging mahal ang mga produktong gumagamit ng krudo pati transportasyon. Kaya importanteng-importante kung lalabanan natin ang krimen ay magkaroon tayo ng mga programa para magkaroon ng ginhawa ang problema ng pagtaas ng krudo sa buong mundo.

Kaya ito ang inaatas ko sa department of energy, yung kanilang energy conservation program at energy independence program. Sa energy independence, halimbawa, kahapon nagpunta ako doon sa isang gasoline station — one of half a dozen new ones o baka walong bago — na gumagamit ng bio-diesel. Paglalagyan niyo ng one percent ng bio-diesel yung gasolina nilo-load, ten percent humahaba ang biyahe, kaya nakaka-save.

Ngayon, yung may ilang mga independents na gumagamit na nito. Yung mga oil majors medyo hindi pa sila handa para gamitin ito sa kanilang pumping station. Pero yung mga consumer, puwede kayong bumili ng botelya ng bio-diesel at puwedeng kayo na ang maglagay. Bawat 100 liters ng krudo na ni-load ninyo, maglagay kayo ng one liter nitong bio-diesel na ito, at hahaba ang inyong biyahe ng ten percent kaya makakaiwas kayo ng almost 120 pesos per full tank.

Yon ang isa sa mga conservation measures na sana ipalaganap natin. Sinasabi ko rin sa DOE na magkampanya sa mga institutions maging gobyerno, maging private sector dahil yung mga kumpanya malalaki ang gastos sa kuryente. There are many ways to be able to save. Una nga yung paggamit ng fluorescent kaysa incandescent. Dito nga sa Malacañang, iniisip ko kung papano natin magawa yon. May mga chandeliers tayo sa mga public areas pero baka sa mga working areas ay puwede nating magawa yung mga bagay... Konti lang naman ang ating mga ceremonial halls, mas marami ang mga working areas. Sana mangyari ito sa mga opisina ng pamahalaan at opisina ng private sector.

At iba pa mayroon pang sinasabi si Secretary Lotilla na capacitor. Maglagay raw ng capacitor sa mga opisina para makabawas din ng ating electric bill. At yung ethanol plant tinutulak pa rin natin yon. At darating na, malapit na yung compressed natural gas na istasyon na nanggagaling sa ibang bansa idi-dismantle doon nilagay dito galing sa Brazil yata dahil Brazil marami silang ginagamit na — ay, hindi. Ethanol plant pala yon — yung compressed natural gas kaya yon ang mga ginagamit natin para maging independent tayo or at least partially independent sa mataas na presyo ng krudo.

So itong mga bagay na ito konektado itong pagtaas ng presyo ng langis at sa ganun ang bilingin at ang krimen lalo na yung mga nakawan.

Yon namang... Dahil tumaas ang presyo ng krudo sa buong mundo tumataas din ang presyo ng fertilizer at sa ganun di yung ating agricultural products — di ba, Tetchie? — nagkakaran ng peligrong tataas. Masyadong tumataas... Ako hindi ako kontento sa kilos ng presyo ng bigas. Ito ay kailangan iwasan natin or hanapan ng ginhawa. At ang isang ginagawa natin dahil ang pagtaas ng presyo ng bigas ay nanggagaling din na malaking bagay sa pagtaas ng presyo ng fertilizer ay nagpa-release ako kay Secretary Panganiban ng ilang daang milyon para magkaroon ng massive distribution ng organic fertilizer para mabawasan ang ating dependence sa oil-based fertilizer. Yon ay upang magkaroon nang ginhawa ang hirap ng tao sa pagtaas ng presyo ng langis sa buong mundo at sa ganun ay mamenos din ang kanilang temptasyon na pumunta sa nakawan.

Ngayon, punta tayo sa enforcement tungkol doon. Inatasan ko si Secretary Angie Reyes na — naalala natin siya ang nagpatigil ng kidnapping sa ating bansa — inatasan kong tumawag siya ng command conference tungkol sa pagbalik ng krimen sa ating lipunan. At yon ay dapat gawin natin dahil kailangan sugpuin na naman natin ang street crime, ang kidnapping, ang robbery, at ituloy din ang laban kontra sa drugs at saka kontra sa bawal na sugal.

Lalo na't doon sa bawal na sugal nariyan na, General Lomibao, si Mayor Edward Hagedorn na hiniling kong maging pinuno nitong krusadang ito dahil ang pangunahing responsibilidad na lumaban sa bawal sa sugal ayon sa local government code, di ba? Ay ang local government unit na sakop naman ng oversight ng secretary of local government.

Itong ating VACC na isa sa pinakapanipaniwalang organisasyon sa ating community pillar. Nagbabantay kayo sa pulis — salamat sa binigay n'yong outstanding policemen award na outstanding ayon sa inyong pagbantay — nagbabantay kayo sa mga prosecutor at Department of Justice kung saan kasama si General Wycoco na awardee rin n'yo. At tama yung sinabi ninyo mula nung kayo ay naging organisasyon nung 1988 — hindi ba dahil sa krimen kontra sa kapatid ni Dante at sa anak ni Lauro? — ay nag-contribute kayo, you've contributed in no small way to speeding up the investigation, prosecution and trial of 82 cases, 75 of them have resulted in conviction. Success rate ng VACC 92 percent.

Yung napag-usapan natin ang Department of Justice. Sana tulungan ng VACC ang Department of Justice sa huling inatas ko kay Secretary of Justice Raul Gonzalez na tignan itong mga kaso ng mga minors na nasa preso, yung lumabas doon sa international television. Hindi natin pwedeng sabihing wala tayong magagawa doon. Meron tayong magagawa kaya sana VACC, DOJ at iba pang ahensiya magtulungan tayo para mabigyan natin ng mas katarungan yung mga minor offenders or juvenile delinquents na ang kanilang... Ang pagtrato ng ating lipunan sa kanila ay sang-ayon sa ating batas at batas ng buong mundo. Dahil napakaraming krimen ang mga nangyayari. Marami ang nabawasan na: yung drugs, yung kidnapping — although bumabalik pero mas menos pa kaysa sa dati — yung bawal na sugal.

Isa pang dapat babantayan natin ay yung terorismo. Ako bilang pangulo ng Pilipinas wala akong katigil-tigil sumusulat sa ibang mga heads of government na nakikipag-condole sa mga terrorist attack against them. At tayo nagkaroon na naman tayo doon sa Zamboanga. Congratulations! General Lomibao, tatlo na doon sa gumawa nitong pagbombang ito ay nahuli na ninyo. Congratulation! Sa inyong accomplishments.

Sana tulungan din ng VACC ang pulis tungkol dito sa pagbantay sa mga terorista. Dahil ang mga terorista mga strangers na biglang sisipot sa inyong community. Pag meron kayong mga biglang hindi kilala diyan sa barangay kailangan ipaalam sa ating mga pulis.

Pulis, community pillar, prosecution. Congratulations! Sa ating mga prosecutors na ilan diyan ay judge na ngayon. Congratulations! Sa inyong ano.

Kaya community para maiwasan ang krimen. Pulis para mahuli yung mga nagkrimen. Prosecution and DOJ para mabilis ang prosecution. At napaka-importante ang ebidensya. Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan na si... Yung ating mga state prosecutors, mga ating prosecutors ay nabigyan ng premyo. Ako'y nasisiyahan na si General Wycoco rin ay nabigyan ng premyo bilang outstanding investigator.

So, community, police, prosecution, the judiciary. Salamat sa ating mga outstanding na judge na binigyan ng gantimpala or parangal itong araw na ito. Siyempre tayo bilang executive wala tayong pwedeng mautos sa justice sa hukuman. Pero kayo bilang citizens group kayo ang makaka-utos sa kanila hindi ang executive. Kaya napakalaki ang papel ng VACC at ng community pillar para maisigurado na mabilis kumilos sa hukuman itong mga kasong ito. And I congratulate you for what you have done.

At panglima nga ay yung ating correctional system, yung ating mga preso. At gaya nang sabi ko ang lugar ang dapat nasa preso ay yung mga adult na gumawa ng krimen. In fact, yung mga matatanda gusto ko na mabigyan na sila ng pardon pag matanda na sila. In fact, yon ang isinabi ko na noon sa — paalala lang n'yo, atty. Acosta sa Parole Board — na sana pag-retirement age na sila mag-retire na rin mula sa preso. Kasi nagiging masyadong, ano, congested ang ating preso eh kung matanda na yung, ano, yung prisoners siguro nakabayad na rin siya sa ating lipunan. At bigyan na ng lugar, yung lugar niya ibigay niya doon sa mga ibang adult na gumawa ng krimen just recently. Gusto kong ganun. In fact, I wanted to make it yon bang... I even wanted to make it automatic na na pag 70 years old release na. Pero sabi nila hindi raw pwede. Kailangan daw isa-isa ipapaabot sa akin. Ewan ko kung totoo yon, atty. Acosta? Tignan mo na lamang kung totoo yon. Pero ang ating patakaran basta they reach that age ipalabas na sila.

Ngayon nalaman ko naman na merong ilan diyan na kahit na ipapalabas na raw sila wala na raw silang pamilyang tatanggap sa kanila. Kaya tahanan na raw nila yung preso. Masaya na raw sila doon. Malungkot itong komentaryo sa ating lipunan. At yon ang isang dahilan kung bakit hindi dapat automatic kasi baka wala silang mapupuntahan. So itong mga bagay na ito ang gusto nating mga reporma sa ating justice system. Gaya ng sabi ko, yung mga adult, yung mga able-bodied adult yon ang mga dapat nasa preso. ‘Wag yung mga matatandang masyado at huwag naman yung mga bata. Kasi ayon sa batas kapag ikaw ay child offender eh dapat hindi nga aabot hanggang preso, sa welfare. Doon sa may... Di ba kaya may boystown at girlstown tayo. Kapag naman ikaw ay juvenile offender lilitisin ka hanggang sa punto bago magkaroon ng judgment. Tapos ang judgment ng judge — di ba, judge ganito yon? — litis ang juvenile offender parang adult offender at the point of judgment ang sasabihin ng judge you are committed to this institution kaysa sa preso. Ngayon kung papaano yung mga juvenile offender ended up in jail baka ito ay dahil detention awaiting trial. Gawa nang hindi ba yung juvenile offender they go through a trial like any adult.

Ano ang ating solusyon doon sa mga juvenile offenders that are under detention awaiting trial? Ang isang importante siguro — pero kayo ang makakagawa noon, hindi ako makaka-utos sa judge — baka unahin yung mga kaso ng juvenile offender para sa madaling panahon makalabas na sila sa welfare institution kung saan sila dapat nananatili at hindi nakakahalo-halo doon sa mga hardened adult criminals. Yon ang hinihingi ko sa Department of Justice na pag-aralan. Hindi pwedeng sabihin wala tayong magagawa. Meron tayong magagawa, lima tayong pillars of justice.

Kaya itong araw na ito binabati ko muli ang VACC sa inyong magandang trabaho. Ituloy natin ang ating mga success kontra sa drugs, kidnapping, illegal gambling. Labanan natin ang resurgence ng street crime, kidnapping. Labanan natin ang terorismo. At hanapan natin ng paraan na ipagtanggol yung mga kabataan na medyo lumigaw mula sa landas ng batas.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming tayong trabahong kailangang gawin. Good luck! To all of us. ‘Wag natin hayaan na ang sistema ng ating pulitika na masyadong bumubulok na ‘wag nating hayaan na masisira ang gains na nakamit natin at mapigil ang isip natin at gusto nating gawin para sa kapayapaan ng ating bansa.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Change of Command Ceremony

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Change of Command Ceremony

[Delivered at Camp Emilio Aguinaldo, Quezon City, August 15, 2005]

Thank you very much, Secretary Cruz.

Speaker De Venecia and the members of the legislature both the Senate and the House; General Efren Abu, our immediate past Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; General Senga, our new Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; the major service commanders of the armed forces; the different officials of the Philippine government who are both either elected or appointed by myself or my predecessors; excellencies of the diplomatic corps; former chiefs of staff; former secretaries of defense; officers, men and women of the armed forces of the Philippines; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen:

Una sa lahat, troop commander give ‘Tikas Pahinga.’

Una sa lahat, gaya nang sabi ni General Senga at sinabi na rin ni General Efren Abu, gusto kong pasalamatan ang ating sandatahang lakas para sa matagumpay niyong pagbabantay sa ating demokrasya lalung-lalo na nitong mga nakaraang buwan. At binanggit ni General Senga yung July 8, 2005. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Thank you for your steadfastness.

Si General Abu ay sana magre-retire ilang linggong nakaraan, ngunit hiningi ko na manatili siya para maisigurado na yung pinaghahandaang eleksiyon sa Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao ay matupad. And I take this opportunity to congratulate the armed forces under the leadership of General Abu for the peacefulness of the elections in the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao.

May I also add that this is the first election in the autonomous region in which the President of the Philippines did not interfere. I chose to break tradition because we want to make true and meaningful the autonomy of the region of Muslim Mindanao and thus put forward and move forward the upholding of democracy and the rule of law. For as long as the rule of law is enforced by the integrity of the uniform and the professionalism of good soldiers, our nation will endure, our nation will survive any upheaval or crisis.

This ceremony is symbolic of the permanence of our high ideals as a nation and people. Ideals forged in blood and service over more than a century.

Today, we face not only domestic controversies but also an oil crisis of global proportions compounded by a global resurgence of terrorism.

You of course know your roles — soldiers of the Philippines — in the battle against terrorism. But even in the oil crisis, you are called upon to face material constraints even as you are called upon to keep the offensive and the initiative against the enemies of the state. For the rest of us in civilian government, we are called upon to break our partisan bickering and focus our national energy on the oil and energy crisis even as we assure and I assure as commander-in-chief that all the armed forces shall enforce the rule of law.

When I installed General Efren Abu as chief of staff last year, as he said, I bade him to implement specific instructions most lastingly for the legacy of the armed forces. I bade him to implement a fresh wave of reforms in the armed forces in line with the findings of the joint defense assessment with the United States and also the Feliciano Commission.

Pinanindigan niya ang aking pagtitiwala sa kanyang kakayahan. Kuwenento nga ni General Abu sa atin yung mga ginawa niya sa mga reformang ito. Yung mga paglilitis na sinimula niya and his overhaul of military headquarters especially the abolition of J-6. But also going beyond that, all these resulted in a leaner organization and a more cost-effective and transparent distribution and utilization of personnel, logistics and financial resources. Congratulations! General Abu.

And now, I welcome General Gene Senga to the helm of the armed forces.

And as I do so, let me tell you a personal story about him. A few years ago, General Senga was chosen by the board of generals to head J-2. One of the most important, most glamorous, most powerful, most sensitive positions in the armed forces. But as the assignment was being implemented, a top official of the national security establishment vigorously objected, thus, the move was unceremoniously aborted. I'm sure causing General Senga no small amount of disappointment and embarrassment. Nonetheless, his true mettle showed in that crisis in his career. He accepted the unusual not to say... The unusual, to say the least, the unusual change of instructions in midstream with a perfect discipline of an officer and a gentleman. And he moved on. He moved on to win the battle of Buliok and then to oversee the rehabilitation of that community.

General Senga may not have made it to J-2 but how he handled himself in that situation and afterwards, affirmed in my mind the conviction by many that he indeed deserves to be Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. Congratulations! General Senga.

I reveal this story because we need role models especially for the young officers. Especially at a time like this, as General Abu says, "when there are so many attempts to drive a wedge within the senior officers and the young officers." Some of them, some of those who tried to do this tried to do this out of sheer sensationalism. But others tried to do this because of real effort to cause breaks in the chain of command.

As General Abu has said, "our mass media has been presenting to the nation different faces of the young officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines." We have seen of course the heroic faces of young officers who've sacrificed their lives in the line of duty. But we've also seen reports on young officers accused of conduct unbecoming of an officer and a gentleman and finding themselves in controversial roles.

All of these young officers have pledged themselves to serving the country through a difficult career in the AFP. But it is important at this point in time when there are so many efforts to drive this wedge. It is important for the leadership of the AFP, especially under someone who has personified the behavior of an officer and a gentleman under extremely difficult circumstances to himself and his career like General Senga, to define for the entire organization the correct path to be fostered. Idealism, self-sacrifice and courage are not the monopoly of youth, for I have seen in our senior officers like General Senga the same outstanding qualities. I've seen that in General Abu. I've seen that in many other senior officers.

Thus, I instruct the new AFP leadership under General Senga to engage in renewed dialogue with our young officers to show them that all officers, regardless of length of service, are equally committed to the values for which they have dedicated their lives.

Public attention is continuously focused on the unusual circumstances of those who engage in mutiny, or those who stray into criminality, or those who stray into political controversy. While notoriety and scandal may sometimes highlight the dark side of the military institution, like the dark side of other institutions in this degenerated political system — a system that has continuously degenerated over the years — we must constantly tell the tales of our heroes, senior as well as junior officers and enlisted men and women, who have sacrificed their lives so that the nation may survive. We must always remind ourselves, as General Abu said, "that the vast majority of the armed forces are still true heroes of the Republic of the Philippines."

General Senga, I expect you to keep the Armed Forces of the Philippines within the constitution and do not allow any partisan quarters to undermine the chain of command.

I expect you to further reform and professionalize the command as your predecessors have initiated this effort.

I expect you to finish off the terrorists while supporting the peace process.

I have seen you in action. I have seen your military prowess as I said in the battle of Buliok and others. But I have also seen your commitment to the peace process in the rehabilitation of communities in the Liguasan marsh.

I expect you to help our country in the fight against poverty by upgrading the role of the engineering brigades in this fight whether in remote country roads or in major infrastructure projects that need to catch up with a quick deadline.

General Senga, may I say, as I've said to General Abu, I'm proud that he was my chief of staff.

Today, I tell you, General Senga, I am proud to have you as the new chief of staff, and I'm proud of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. Congratulations!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the National Export Congress 2005, August 18, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the National Export Congress 2005

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Dusit Hotel Nikko, Makati City, August 18, 2005]

HELPING TO ACHIEVE ONE PHILIPPINES

First of all, I want to thank you also for participating in governance. I want to thank you for participating in the crafting of the Philippine export development plan for 2005-2007. I want to thank you also for participating in the export development council through which I'm able to learn of your issues and concerns. And I am thanking you for inviting me to be here with you today once again in our joint decision-making. Thank you very much for your support.

Peter has mentioned some of the issues — issues that we're seeking to address in the export plan; issues we've talked about in our export development council meetings; issues that are being taken up in this Congress. And I know that some of these issues especially the ones that Peter mentioned are urgent.

So, I'm instructing Peter to make sure that the different departments act on them as soon as possible for quick wins within the next six months.

For one, we must address our small and medium enterprises need for financing. Well, I see Mel Salanzo here in SB Corporation. I suppose she will be the point person for the SME financing.

And as Peter said, we need more improvements in our education curricula to fit the needs of our investors. Education is the biggest single investment we must make in our nation. This includes more investment in technical training and vocational schools. And it means maintaining and enhancing our competitive advantage in English proficiency. We cannot be — and maybe shouldn't be the low- cost provider of labor in the world — but we can be the best-priced English-speaking nation in the world. And we cannot let that advantage slip.

When we talk about education... Well, that's what the reason why one of the main reforms we are making in education is that were strengthening math, science and English. And I have asked our Cabinet members — and I'll ask Peter to ensure that this happens — that if we're gonna talk about additional compensation for teachers, we should make it based on an incentive for teachers who will take up more studies in Math, Science and English. They are the ones who are going to get the incentives. That way we will improve education in this area.

And as far as VocTech training is concerned, it you remember in my State of the Nation Address I said, every Filipinos dream is to have a college education. But what you need are VocTech graduates. So therefore, we have put in a system, a ladderized education system, so that VocTech units can be credited for a college education, then you will have your skilled manpower and the families will have their great Filipino dream.

The other day, I was at a meeting or a dinner. I had a dinner with the members and officers of the fire brigade in the Chinese community. And of course these are businessmen, some of them exporters and they were telling me also... As one of the exporters was telling me about her woes. She said that she's becoming very uncompetitive — she is exporting plastics — because there are so many fees being collected: transport fees, export fees. I was surprised to hear about that because I remember when I was in the Department of Trade and Industry, Lenny and some of you were there with us at that time. Remember we put up that export documentation center where the exporters could export documents in half an hour? Yeah. Remember we had that? It's still there. But did we have all those fees that they are talking about now?

Great! So, I asked her, “you know there is an Exporters’ Congress? Are you joining? She said, “no, because I’m not a leader of the, you know, association and stuff like that.” But I hope, therefore, that I mean, at least I got it from somebody on the ground, so I’m looking forward to this issue being also addressed. So, thank you, Peter for telling me that we are going to reduce that.

Indeed, now is the time for government and business to close ranks. To enforce common solutions not only to... How to make our exports more competitive but solutions to the oil crisis and push the economy for final take off. As you know, we have set the course of economic reform and Gary Teves will make sure that we will not alter direction. We may hit rough seas but we will hold a steady course.

We have today and we’ll have tomorrow a fiscally responsive budget. Imagine we are 35 billion pesos below the deficit ceiling. So, we will have a fiscally responsible budget that pays down our debt, invest in our people and lives within its means. Our budget mess and economic woes go back to decades ago when we acquired the habit of borrowing ourselves into generations of debt. Young people today are condemned for actions of another generation. And I will not pass on our debts to a new generation of Filipinos.

That’s why I thank Louie and Junie and their colleagues the passage of the revenue legislation by Congress is the cornerstone of our economic recovery plan. It is morally and economically correct. The benefits of new revenue are vast. They allow the nation to pay off our debts. They allow our nation to invest in social welfare. They allow our nation to build up the vital infrastructure you need to create jobs for the next generation of Filipinos. Without these new revenues, we will continue to lag behind the region and the world. Revenue generation is an investment that’s long overdue. To do anything less than forge ahead and make the investments we need and the nation would be a major setback for our country.

People who oppose new revenues oppose moving the nation forward and creating one united and modern Philippines.

The real issue today affecting our people is not new revenues but the global problem. The issue affecting today our people is the global price of oil. The rise in oil prices is a global problem that’s affecting consumers in developed and developing countries alike. Of course, that reality provides little comfort for those here in the Philippines faced by these global challenges in their homes and villages. Forceful and drastic steps may be needed to prevent a worse case scenario and we will continue to need full public understanding and cooperation.

The government has taken action to provide price relief to our poorest people with basic fuel and our most vital industries such as transportation which uses a 58 percent of our fuel to minimize cost to owners, employees and commuters. There are gasoline stations pumping cheaper and more efficient fuel and there will be more in the next few weeks. And there are additives now in the market, because we encourage this investment three years ago, that make each full tank go a longer way and thus save on fuel cost.

On the part of government, I’ve mandated the agencies to lower fuel energy used by at least 10 percent. And my Cabinet members, especially Vice President De Castro and Peter Favila, Secretary of Trade, are tasked with making spot checks to ensure there’s no price gouging going on.

To lead by example on the part of government, I take this opportunity in addition, to direct the government agencies, GOCCs and state universities and colleges to enforce the following measures:

First, force a ration of fuel for all government vehicles.

Two, the 10 percent mandatory savings on electricity and fuel cost that I announced earlier is only the acceptable floor for the effort, much greater than 10 percent should be the working target.

Three, public officials should stop using gas-guzzling vehicles. I asked my aides today, “are we using a gas-guzzling vehicle?” They said, your back up car is one. Okay, we will have to look for another back up car then, I said.

Fourth, accelerate the shift of government fuel to use bio-diesel or ethanol or compressed natural gas.

Fifth, open up the investment arena, Peter, for geothermal energy as soon as possible.

Today, I asked business to respond by providing transportation subsidies to workers. I don't know how you'll do it? Maybe buses, car pools, whatever it is. Eliminating air-conditioning and unnecessary energy usage until prices come back down.

I would also like to consult you again, because we should be together in policy decision-making, regarding the suggestion of returning all government offices except those in service frontlines to the four-day work week without extending work hours on the remaining regular work days.

Well, is that the response to my consultation?

We did it last summer, it was controversial. We saved money but some said that what we saved was not worth the inconvenience. But of course the price of oil then was not as high as it is now. So, it's time to examine now whether what we saved will already be worth the inconvenience, and I ask you the private sector to be the one to advise us on that.

And I ask our people to respond through increase conservation and decrease the use of unnecessary travel and energy use.

And today, may I call on Congress again to pass new energy conservation legislation to decrease our reliance on oil and increase our self reliance on ethanol, bio-diesel, solar, wind and natural gas from here at home.

There are those who seem to think that the answer to everything is to raise their voice, shake their fist and do nothing at all. There are those for whom it's all politics all the time. No plan, just rhetoric. If we could harness all their hot air, we would have no energy problem at all.

But let's look at the long pull.

Our administration has the lowest inflation rates in 40 years. Right, Peter? Gary? The highest number of jobs generated in the last 20 years.

We had the highest income growth rate for the poorest sectors and the most equitable income distribution profile in 20 years. We are pulling up the poor without tearing the rich down.

Our stock market has been number three in Asia through half of this year.

We have a political firewall protection that our nation built on a military and middle class uncompromisingly loyal to the Constitution and the rule of law.

And today I also want to pay homage to our greatest export. Most of you here are commodities exporters or manufacturing exporters or service exporters. One of the things that Peter mentioned is about how much we need agriculture and DENR. So, I'd like to announce that I've asked Secretary Ermita, but maybe Peter Favila should do this executive order because he had mentioned it. I want to cluster DENR, DAR and D.A. into one cluster, and Mike Defensor being the most senior of the three Cabinet secretaries that are there, I will make him the chairman of that cluster. The idea is to make agri-business an important source of export.

But while I thank you all for exporting commodities, manufacturers and services, our greatest export — and I must pay homage to them also — are our overseas Filipinos who are eight million strong and are the backbone of the new global workforce. They've given us from latest figures a 30 percent increase in our remittances this year. A few couple of months ago, I was praising them for the 19 percent but the latest figure is a 30 percent increase. And I thank them for that.

But of course, I certainly hope for the day when we have the economic vitality and the opportunity here to beep our best and brightest in our shores. This reality underscores the challenge of two Philippines — one that works, one that doesn't; one that is poised for economic take off, one that's burdened by the weight of a political system that doesn't work; one that exports in increasing numbers — and I thank you for challenging yourselves to produce 50 billion dollars in exports next year and generate more jobs — the other one, the political system that's a hindrance to our national progress.

I want one Philippines, where the economy, social justice and the political system works for the people at every level; where good government begins at the people's doorstep in the barangay and does not end before the closed door of a bureaucrat in Metro Manila.

I want you to help me achieve that one Philippines.

And I cannot miss the chance to talk about one export that has risen to the top of her game and does the Philippines proud — Cristeta Comerford, who is now the most visible chef in the world as the new Executive Chef for the White House in Washington, DC.

Congratulations, Cristeta! But you are just the epitome... You are the epitome today of the great work that all our exporters have been doing this many several years.

To all of you exporters, congratulations!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Energy Conservation Command Conference, August 19, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Energy Conservation Command Conference

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, August 19, 2005]

DEALING WITH THE ENERGY PROBLEM

We all know that an oil crisis hovers over us. The price of oil is 63 dollars in the U.S. market today. On the domestic and as Popo showed, it's doubled, more than doubled since last year.

On the domestic side, household budgets will be spread more thinly. Ako ay humihingi ng paumanhin sa sambayanan lalung-lalo na yung mga manggagawa and the transport sectors.

The attitude we need is calm concern, tempered by a keen solidarity and awareness of the best collective means to meet this challenge.

This is a strategic global problem. And I'm directing our Secretary of Energy to work closely with the Secretary of Foreign Affairs to exert all diplomatic efforts to either get cheaper oil or more stable supply arrangements. We must act globally and locally.

We launched our 'Galing Pilipino' Energy Conservation Program last June with the support of several important players in the private sector. And one of the most important recommendations we made for the households was to change their bulbs from incandescent to fluorescent.

Today, I was... We've lessened the wattages of the ceremonial lights. But today I was walking around the residential portion of Malacañang and the tech... The utility people were changing our lights from incandescent to fluorescent.

Several businesses have also responded since that June by providing transport to their workers. And bus operators who were loathe to think of fixed bus terminals and trip scheduling are embracing these ideas. And I encouraged MMDA Chairman Bayani Fernando to continue with this effort.

I thank the oil companies and gasoline station dealers for being here today and supporting our energy efficiency and conservation program. Yung pinirmahan nila kanina was an agreement that the dealers, the gasoline stations will shorten their operating hours. This has been done in Thailand and the estimated savings in consumption in Thailand was 5 percent. So we hope that this important measure will also bring our people to the energy conservation way of life. That's what E.C. stands for — energy conservation.

And well, I'd like to commend Flying V... I'd be grateful if the different oil gasoline dealers and oil companies would follow the lead of Flying V and carry biodiesel in your stations nationwide. Biodiesel additives — according to the people who've used them, that's why they keep going back to use this kind of diesel — stretches mileage and therefore generate savings on fuel even if per liter it is more expensive. The mileage that's been experienced by the people who bought it is more.

I encourage diesel-using vehicle owners to try these blends. Of course, it's hard for us to expect that overnight those who do their own refining like Petron, shell would pre-blend the diesel, the biodiesel. But what they're willing to do is to cany — remember all these gasoline stations they have their supermarket types of services — what they're willing to do is to carry the blend in bottles so that the individual gasoline consumer will buy the bottle and blend it himself. In other words, for every 100 liters of gasoline — ah, diesel, ‘no. Diesel — the recommendation is to put one liter of the biodiesel blend to go a longer way.

In September... No, not in September. On August 29 some gasoline stations will start selling ethanol-blend fuels. So we hope to be there on August 29 for the launching of the ethanol fuel. This is first to use imported ethanol. But even at that the imported ethanol is cheaper than the imported gasoline. And soon we will be starting up the construction of domestic ethanol production facilities. And that is going to be our real future in energy conservation.

The compressed natural gas station will be arriving about the third week of September, and by December of this year, we hope to have 200 buses running on compressed natural gas from Malampaya.

The other one that is a very big savings is the LPG substitute for regular gasoline. Many taxis are already using this. But the big gasoline stations are also willing to carry this like Petron gasoline stations. The important thing though is that the vehicle itself must have a conversion kit from gasoline to LPG, but then it will end up cheaper.

I call on Congress... I have called on Congress to pass new legislation to decrease our reliance on oil and increase our reliance on indigenous and renewable energy. And I’m very happy that they consider it a big priority.

I thank the local government units — they’re not here today but I’ve been meeting with them — that have begun to saddle up for the long ride. This crisis will bring out the best and the worst of leaders. We shall see who are the champions of the people and we shall see who are the servants only of themselves.

Total focus on energy conservation is needed, away from the arena of destructive politics. Although my detractors want to pull me away from my prime responsibility, and force greater suffering among the people.

I’m instructing the National Security Adviser to come up with a phased threat assessment ranging from low to worst case scenarios, with the corresponding action plans involving community back up.

The watch on terrorism which tends to take advantage of situations like this will be sustained with vigor, while syndicated criminal groups will be kept at bay with the support of vigilant communities. I’m instructing the Presidential Anti-Organized Crime Committee to put up a task force against heinous crimes to be headed by the secretary of interior and local government, Angie Reyes.

Ladies and gentlemen of the national agencies, GOCCs and state universities and colleges, I called you here so that Popo could inform you officially and personally by his presentation of the new memorandum circular directing the entire government to implement energy efficiency and conservation measures. And we expect strict compliance, that’s why you’re all here.

We must set the example and take the lead. The government being the biggest entity in our country, the biggest employer with two million employees can certainly take the lead.

I’m instructing Secretary Lotilla to assist me in following through on the strict government measures that must be taken. This means... You know, in carrying out the goals that were set out in the circular, some concrete manifestations of this would be that the public must see less of convoys of gas guzzlers careening in traffic with their sirens blaring and calling attention to official profligacy. As president, I’ve even asked my own security people, “how do we reduce our gas guzzling convoy?” Well, they said I do need two heavy-duty bulletproof cars. But the rest of my convoy shall be diesel-fueled.

The public must also see less of government vehicles on the streets during weekends and less of these government vehicles even bringing kids to school. Sabi nga ni Noli pati sa pamamalangke. The other night, I had a dinner with some businessmen. Oh, yeah the fire brigades, Chinese businessmen, and one of them was telling me that he went somewhere and he saw a government vehicle with the driver inside — the owner was already in the building having a meeting whatever it was — and the air condition on. So he called the attention of the driver. That's a good citizen. But on the other hand, it means that we really have to inculcate energy conservation habits in our own bureaucracy.

Gas rationing is a possibility in a worst case scenario where a severe shortage could force allocations to serve prime security, social and economic imperatives, but even now we must have it in the government agencies, in the GOCCs, and in the state universities and colleges. I hope to do a spot check one of these days with Popo on gas rationing within a government entity.

I'm also instructing Secretary Lotilla to consult with the private sector — I already opened the possibility yesterday in the exporters Congress — and now with you, the public sector, on reviving the 4-day work week for the bureaucracy. It's gonna be very important for Pat Sto. Tomas to participate in this consultation because, of course, the ones who will do this will be the bureaucracy.

In other words, we shall deal with the energy problem with responsible governance.

And I thank you all for being here. And I thank you starting today or maybe some of you have already started earlier, let us go with the E.C. way of life — the Energy Conservation way of life.

Maraming salamat at mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo during the 21st anniversary overnight celebration of El Shaddai – DWXI Prayer Partnerships Foundation International, Inc. [Filipino] Talumpati

ng

Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo

Pangulo ng Pilipinas

Sa magdamagang pagdiriwang ng ika-21 anibersaryo ng El Shaddai – DWXI Prayer Partnerships Foundation International, Inc.

[Ipinahayag sa Quirino Grandstand, Rizal Park, Manila, ika 20 ng Agosto, 2005]

Maraming salamat, Brother Mike. At happy, happy, birthday! Mula sa milyung-milyong pilipinong humahanga sa inyo.

Reverend VICS, reverend fathers, mga opisyal ng ating bansa, narito si Vice President De Castro, Speaker De Venecia, Senator Mar Roxas, Congressman Bacani, Mayor Atienza, Mayor Sonny Belmonte, iba't-iba pang mga mayor, at mga kapatid na anak ni Yahweh El Shaddai, happy anniversary sa ating lahat!

Isa sa malaking karangalan ng aking buhay ay sa 21 years na buhay ng prayer partners ng Yahweh El Shaddai, ako ay kasama ninyo sa nakaraang 14 years. Salamat sa ating pagkakasama sa isa't-isa.

Naalala ko noong ako ay hindi pa bise presidente, kailangan ng protocol at saka ng security, taun-taon apat na beses nagkakasama tayo overnight. At noong lumipat nga yung senado dito sa PICC, kahit na sa regular na gawain, nakakasama pa ako. Kaya nasanay na rin ako na pakinggan ang mga payo ng ating servant leader, si Brother Mike Velarde.

Yung prayer partnership ng Yahweh El Shaddai 21 years old. Nagsimula noong 1984, noong napakalubha ang sitwasyon ng ating pulitika na nagpalubha sa sitwasyon ng ating ekonomiya. At si Brother Mike ay isa doon sa mga... Dahil sa malalim na pananampalataya, ay siya ay nakapag-ahon sa kanyang sariling hirap sa ekonomiya. At yung pagbasbas ng Panginoon sa kanya ay sinimulan niya ipahayag sa DWXI at sa ganun marami rin ang nagkaroon ng malaking pananampalataya at pag-asa sa panginoon dahil ang mensaheng ipinaabot ni Brother Mike sa atin ay kung tayo ay may pananampalataya, babasbasan na tayo ng Panginoon, hindi lamang doon sa langit kung hindi dito na rin sa ating mundo, sa ating buhay ngayon.

Kaya naalala ko meron pang-cover story tungkol kay Brother Mike. Ang tawag sa kanya, "The Prophet of Profit" kasi ngayon tinuro na kung tayo ay nananampalataya, magbabasbas ang Diyos sa ating pangangailangan ngayon pa dito sa ating buhay, at lalo na siyempre doon sa kabilang buhay sa langit pagkatapos.

Mula sa mga panahong yon, gaya nang sabi ni Brother Mike, ang dami na ring karanasan na naghubog sa partnership ng Yahweh El Shaddai at saka sa liderato rin ni Brother Mike sa sambayanan at sa ating lipunan.

Kung noong araw sa mga malubhang panahon ng ekonomiya, si Brother Mike ay naging "Prophet of Profit" para hindi tayo mawalaan ng pag-asa. Ngayon siya naman ay nahubog ng Panginoon bilang "Prophet of Reconciliation."

Sa kaniyang statement kanina bilang birthday statement niya, hindi niya pinag-usapan ang kaniyang sarili, ang pinag-usapan niya ay panalangin para sa kapayapaan at katatagan ng ating pulitika at ng ating ekonomiya. Praise Brother Mike! Praise the Lord for giving us Brother Mike!

Ganun na nga... Malubha...Hindi malubha ang buhay ng pulitika. Noong 21 years na karanasan ng prayer partnership ay nakita natin ang pulitika ng ating bansa, sa halip ng makatulong sa ating ekonomiya na umahon sana...At nagpapalubog dito. Nagkaroon tayo ng tatlong Edsa, nagkaroon tayo ng siyam na kudeta, panahon na talaga na makinig tayo sa panawagan ng Panginoon na pinapahayag sa atin ni Brother Mike ang panawagan ng kapayapaan at rekonsilyasyon.

Para sa akin, matagal nang pinapayo ni Brother Mike iyon sa inyong lingkod. Kaya noong June 30, 2004, noong ako ay nanumpa bilang pangulo, nakatindig ako dito mismo sa lugar na ito, at nagbigay ako ng aking 10-point agenda na gusto kong maging pamana ko sa ating bansa. At yung pangsampung punto doon, sabi ko, gusto ko na mahilom na ang hidwaan ng Edsa 1, 2 and 3.

Ngayon, inuulit ni Brother Mike yung panawagang rekonsilyasyon, yung panawagang pagkakaisa. At ako naman bilang pangulo — at salamat kay Brother Mike sa malaking suporta sa akin sa halalan noong 2004, ako nga ay naging pangulo. Salamat sa payo at sa panawagan — at bilang pangulo ng Pilipinas, handa akong gumawa ng hakbang na manawagan sa aking mga katunggali, magkaisa na tayo para ang pulitika ay hindi masira ang sana maging take off ng ating ekonomiya.

Sabi nga ni Brother Mike, maghanap tayo ng formula na uubra, na katanggap-tanggap sa pinakamadaling panahon na magkaisa. Ito rin ang aking hinahanap. Ito rin ang aking panalangin. At itong gabing ito sa birthday ni Brother Mike, ang aking birthday wishes ay siyempre number one, kanyang parating tagumpay sa kaniyang mga hangarin. Pero number two, higit sa lahat, yung hangarin niyang magkaisa ang ating bansa.

Ano itong formulang ito na magagawa at kagustuhan ng panginoon, ito ang ating hahanapin. Gawa na ang ating pag-iisip, pag-iisip ni Brother Mike ng mga formula, pero higit sa lahat ang pag-iisip at ang dakilang kagustuhan ng ating Panginoon — iyon ang ating hahanapin na paraan.

Kung papaano tayo magkakaisa, ang aking panalangin ay mahanap ko ito bilang pangulo sa divine will. Ang dinadal ko sa divine will ay ganito: “I am nothing, God is all. Father, I love you. Come divine will to think in my mind, to speak in my mouth, to see with my eyes, to listen in my ears, to breathe in my breathing, to move in my motion, to suffer in my suffering.” Sa ganun ang kagustuhan ng panginoon ay magiging kagustuhan ko at kagustuhan nating lahat. Alam ko kagustuhan niyang magkaisa ang ating bansa. Alam ko yung paraan kagustuhan niyang hanapin natin sa panalangin sa kanya. Magpakumbaba tayong lahat at hindi isipin na alam natin lahat ng sagot. Ang sagot ay nandoon kay Yahweh El Shaddai.

Kaya kung noong araw nung kalubhaan ng ekonomiya, nanalig tayo sa Panginoon na kung tayo ay aasa sa kanya, bibigyan niya tayo ng ginhawa sa ating buhay ngayon pa man sa mundo. Ngayon din, manalangin tayo, umasa tayo na kung tayo ay haharap sa kanya at hanapin ang kanyang kagustuhan, bibigyan niya tayo ng paraan kung papaano magkaisa ang ating bansa. At alam na alam ko, isa sa mga gagamitin niya para sa pagkakaisa ay walang iba kung hindi ang servant leader, si Brother Mike Velarde.

Happy birthday, Brother Mike! At happy anniversary muli sa ating lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo during the 10th Anniversary of Microsoft Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 10th Anniversary of Microsoft Philippines

[Delivered at the NBC Tent, The Fort, Taguig City, August 25, 2005]

Thank you very much.

Thank you very much, Secretary Peña for your introduction.

Secretary Favila; Undersecretary Cruz; Mr. Rosini, welcome to the Philippines; Mr. Javier; Mr. Moore; Mr. Forman; officers and employees as well as partners and friends of Microsoft Philippines; representatives of the ICT sector; members of the business community; guests; ladies and gentlemen, good evening. It's a great evening. Congratulations! Microsoft on your 10th anniversary.

I thank Microsoft and I congratulate you on your 10th anniversary, but more than that, I thank you that on this your 10th year of operation in the Philippines you're providing 300 million pesos in technology grants to the Philippines. Thank you for your support for our communities.

These are grants to the Philippines in software, training and cash, much to the benefit of public servants. Thank you also for increasing your local partners to the tune of 1,200 businesses you'll be supporting, adding 30,000 new jobs in our country. That's a great contribution on your 10th anniversary. Thank you also for launching the new program 'Bintana' — the Philippine version or Tagalog version or Taglish version of windows. Thank you for having 'Bintana' just for the Philippines.

Microsoft is not just one of the best known brands in the world, it is a force for good. And you are a force in our nation's struggle towards unity because to have unity in our island nation with a big digital divide, we need advances in ICT, in information and communication technology and software.

Indeed, we need unity. We need to be one Philippines, not two Philippines. We need to have one Philippines that works, not one Philippines that doesn't... That works and one that doesn't work. We need the only one Philippines. We need to have one Philippines made up of those working to facilitate the economic take off of the country, and Microsoft is part of that. We don't want the other Philippines made up of those who are hampering it.

We need only one Philippines. One Philippines who are introducing reforms in the poisonous political system. We don't want the other Philippines that thrive in a poisonous political system.

We want only one Philippines made up of those working for national unity. We don't want the other Philippines made up of those fueling national discord. We want one Philippines making up... Made up of those working for national development and progress. We don't want the other Philippines made up of those advancing for national doom and disaster,

We want one Philippines made up of those who are for a better future like you who are here in this room. We don't want the other Philippines made up of those who want to destroy our future.

I thank Microsoft for being part of that Philippines that helped us to be poised for take off. And I thank Microsoft for what you are doing to bridge the digital divide, to bridge the poverty gap and therefore to promote more unity in our country.

Thank you Microsoft. And may you have many, many more years and many more investments and expansions in the Philippines.

Muchas gracias.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 60th Victory Day Celebration of the Surrender of General Yamashita

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 60th Victory Day Celebration of the Surrender of General Yamashita

[Delivered at the Kiangnan Central Elementary School Grounds, Kiangnan, Ifugao, September 02, 2005]

Thank you very much, Senator Gordon, Legislative Chairman of the Committee to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the Liberation of the Philippines.

Congressman Sol Chungalao, the people of Ifugao headed today by Vice Governor Prudenciano — please convey our condolence to Governor Cappleman — the other governors who are here today in full force. thank you very much for joining us in this important celebration.

The officials of the municipal City of Kiangnan headed by Mayor Albert Indunan, naimbag nga... bigat pay? Bigat yo amin, apo; Secretary Durano and the other officials who composed the committee to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the Liberation of the Philippines; Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps headed by Ambassador Yamazaki whose countryman who's General Yamashita; I'd like to greet also Ambassador Wu of China, Ambassador Senevirathna of Sri Lanka, Ambassador Guashem of Bangladesh; of course, the son of Kiangnan, the Presiding Justice of the Court of Appeals Justice Brawner who on September 14 will be the next Commissioner of the Commission on Elections; all my fellow workers in government; Santiago Balaho; Board member; and the other veterans who are here today and who are not here today, thank you for liberating us this generation.

Gagayyem ken kakabsat iti kiangnan ken ti intero nga Ifugao umuna kayo ug Dios ti agngina kadakayo amin ta siyempre ag suporta kayo kenyak kanayon Dios ti agngina.

Maykadua, kablawdanda kayo amin ta saan laing ti Rice Terraces ti attraction tuy Ifugao no dikit ti istorya ti kultura nangruna ti Yamashita surrender, the end of the second world war for the Philippines.

Sixty years ago in this place, a great storm ended. a war ended as the Japanese General Tomoyuki Yamashita walked into the lines of the allied forces from that home economics building that we see over here. We recall that day today even as sadly we still live in two Philippines: the Philippines poised for economic take off, and the Philippines whose take off is being dragged down by international terrorism and a degenerated political system.

We recall that great day today, the end of a war, and we remember the participants in that war. Our allies in the Asia-Pacific, the United States, Australia, New Zealand, many others. And we recall that up to today the United States and our other allies are our partners in upholding democracy and the rule of law and the security of our nation against terrorism.

We recall that great day today, and on recalling that great day today, we recognize that today Japan is our partner in our economic take off, our biggest source of official development assistance and among our major partners in trade, investment and tourism. Thank you, Mr. Ambassador.

The major players here were the Filipinos, Japanese, the Americans.

And up to today, we recognize the essential role of Japan and the United States together with China which also recently celebrated the end of the war in China in the economic and political security of our region and our country.

Today, we commemorate the end of a war and the unity and solidarity that came thereafter, a unity and solidarity that is now endangered by degenerated political system. The folly of war is very much like the scourge of a degenerated political system. It stinks the people with hunger and anguish. We must reform this political system if we will be true to the sacrifices of those that perished in bringing about the end of the second world war. We must bring about a system where political warfare — yes, there may be — but where political warfare does not drag down the war against poverty and terror.

And so on this day, as we celebrate the end of a war and the beginning of unity in the region, the Asia-Pacific region and in the world, I once again call for unity within our country. I make this call to friends and foes alike. I make this call for unity in our country and I make this call for unity in our Asia-Pacific region in the face of the steepest increase in the world price of oil in history. Two days ago or three days ago, it was 70 dollars and then it shot up to what? Is it 81 or 87? The steepest price increase. And let me take this opportunity to greet our special guest and also to condole with the United States on the devastating effects of your latest hurricane including the impact on oil supplies.

We have a major challenge that we must all be united against, not just in the Philippines but in the region and in the world, and that is the specter of the economic dislocation from the steepest oil price increase in history.

Iso nga kakabsat ken gagayyem agma-maysa tayo ta narigat unay ti pa nagtaas ti presyo ti langis han laeng ti Pilipinas to dikit diay Amerika, ken diay Japan, ken didiay duma duma pay nga paglian agtulong-tulong tayo, tayo nga Pilipino ken tayo kadua dagiti karuba tayo in the Asia-Pacific, kadua ti Amerika, ken Japan, ken amin nga allies tayo idi giyera allies bali tatta, ti sabali nga giyera, the war against the oil crisis and the poverty that it may cause once again.

During the war, brave soldiers fought in epic battles from the Ilocos coast and Cagayan Valley, to the mountains of what is now Benguet, Ifugao, Bontoc. and we celebrate today the heroism of Santiago Balaho, probably the oldest remaining living veteran in our country today, turning 95 soon.

I will not recount the stories of the war and the end of the war because they have been recounted in chronology and in anecdotes by our previous speakers. But I join them in greeting our veterans and I would especially like to recall Lieutenant Colonel Romulo Maniquez, Major Paredes, Lieutenant Santiago Balaho who fought the first engagement right here in Kiangnan. I would like also to recall Lieutenant Marcario Abarillo whose unit began the negotiations for the surrender and the final road to peace.

Just like them, kagaya nila, isaalang-alang natin ang kapakanan ng bayan higit sa lahat sa mga panahong ito hindi buhay ang hinihingi sa atin, hindi kagaya noon, ang hinihingi sa atin ng mga panahong ito ay pagkakaisa, pagmamaysa sapay kuma ag mamaysa tayo. sana magkaisa tayo alang-alang sa sakripisyo ng ating mga beterano at bayani ng second world war at alang-alang sa kinabukasan ng sumusunod na henerasyon.

We must go on building bridges across the seas with our allies and our former enemies, now our major ally in economic development, but we must also build bridges within the nation as we forge one Philippines, not two Philippines. One Philippines that is stable at home and respected in the world.

Today, the Philippines occupies an important role in the United Nations Security Council.

The United Nations Security Council is the only body in the United Nations whose decisions have the force of law in all member-nations of the United Nations. and this September, as we go to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the United Nations and we discuss the major reforms needed in the United Nations after 60 years of existence, the focus of that reform is the composition and function of the U.N. Security Council of which we have the honor of being the president today.

Iso nga tatta nga aldaw, I ask you to pray, kakabsat ken gagayyem, God bless the Philippines in this role, in our role in the U.N. Security Council, we are now the chief peacemaker of the world. But God bless even more our efforts to promote peace and unity within our own beloved nation.

Mabuhay! Dios agngina kadakayo amin, apo.

Speech of President Arroyo on National Summit of Religious Leaders towards a culture of peace

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On National Summit of Religious Leaders towards a culture of peace

[Delivered at the Metro Sports Center, Crown Regency Suites, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, September 7, 2005]

Thank you Secretary Romulo.

And congratulations for representing the country to have the honor of presiding over the inter faith dialogue in the United Nations.

I'd like to greet the other leaders of our country who are here today. We have Deputy Speaker Raul del Mar, Governor Gwen Garcia. We have the members of the Cabinet Secretary Ace Durano of tourism; Secretary Cerge Remonde of our government media; Rene Sarmiento of the peace process; Zam Ampatuan of the National Anti-Poverty Commission. And of course, I'd like to greet the leaders of this National Summit of Religious Leaders— Bishop Gutierrez; Bishop Ledesma; Bishop Tendero; Professor Basman; Sultan Kiram; Bishop Punzalan.

Congratulations! This is the biggest gathering of religious leaders in the history of our country. And I thank you for the opportunity of allowing me to join you tonight.

This morning one of the congressmen who supported me in the recent impeachment complaint congressman Bobit Carlos of Valenzuela sent me a morning prayer to say and it said: "Lord, walk with me today. I have no idea what lies before me. Be my strength to make the most of it and use it to your glory." God's timing is perfect and part of what lay before me today is being here with you and I praise him for scheduling this summit today.

This moment is significant for me it is my first public appearance since yesterday.

Yesterday Congress spoke and I thank Deputy Speaker Raul del Mar for presiding over a marathon session. Congress spoke with the mighty voice of the people they represent and I thank them. Thank you, please congressman and deputy speaker to all of them. Their voice is clear — let us look for peace not conflict. Let's get back to work — not in the streets but in our offices and industrial centers, in our farms and communities. Let us bury the conflict of the past and gather around a brighter, peaceful tomorrow.

We must transform the weariness of our people into a fresh dynamism for action, enterprise and reform. What we need is less talk unless it's dialogue and more action on jobs, high prices especially coming from the world oil price upsurge, hunger, law and order, corruption— the very concerns you mentioned in your summaries and in your statement.

Secretary Romulo, Durano, Remonde, Ampatuan are here they and the whole Cabinet are put on notice to get down to the brass stocks and let the people feel in their bones and in their hearts and in their experience the power of honest and efficient service.

Honesty and efficiency— these are things that you a religious leaders can truly help internalize in your public servants.

My personal pain of political triumph is of no moment to the task of building this nation and putting the economy in order. I offer the olive branch of peace to all my critics and detractors for a principled partnership for the people driven by responsible governance and responsible fiscalization. Are the same good congressman sent me and a second text message he said: 'let's not think about the pain we went through, but the lesson it taught us not; how much we cried and hurt but how much we smiled and loved'. And that is what peace and dialogue are all about. That is what we are all about today.

Many of the things that you want require legislation. Indeed, the legislative mill brims with priorities. For one thing, we have to change the degenerated political system constitutionally with parliamentary, electoral, judicial, economic and other reforms including the federal system that has been the subject matter of so much discussion in this conference. We have to work on those things, even as we have to get the budget debate underway, enact the anti-terrorism law that will be just to the different ethnic groups and faiths and open up the door for alternative sources of energy. All these to fight poverty and uphold the rule of law.

We must strengthen the executive, legislative partnership because part of it has been wounded for the national interest; and I wish to leave for the United Nations where the last time Bert presided over the inter-faith dialogue. This time to preside over the UN Security Council, I wish to leave for the United Nations with the clear message that we are working for 'One Philippines' just as we all have one God whatever we call his name.

Many of you were there in my State-of-the-Nation Address and if you recall, I said, we seem to live today in two countries — two Philippines even if they have the same name — one is the Philippines that is poised for economic takeoff, and the other, is the Philippines that is held back by discord spawned by a degenerating political system. And also, part of that degenerating political system is the lack of understanding among different religions, ethnic cultures and beliefs.

The energies of our people and our leaders like you must be gathered in one place not just this beautiful new hotel but that one place must be the 'One Philippines'.

And I am grateful to you our religious leaders and to the many well-meaning Filipinos who have made a clear call of prudence, sobriety, dialogue, understanding, peace in these trying times. Because you have called for and conducted dialogue you, have tempered the onslaught of hate. You have manned the perimeters of prudence, understanding, sobriety and the rule of law.

And as I come here to join you this evening, I pray for your guidance and support to save us from this rapidly degenerating political system that breeds not only the compartmentalization of ideals not only the misunderstanding among religions, ethnicity and cultures but also compartmentalization of work — a system that foment division not only across the institutions of our national government, but also along the axis of national and local governance and also across different religions and different ethnic cultures.

Now is the time to begin to change the system. You in this dialogue in this promotion of peace are part of the changing of the system and I thank you for that. As I extend the hand of peace to my own detractors, I invite all Filipinos, my critics and supporters alike, to an earnest and sincere debate to amend our constitution because many of the things you want need to have a constitutional change, to bring power back to the people and to cast out the demons that have haunted our politics.

This National Summit of Religious Leaders towards a culture of peace transcends all politics, transcends all partisan concerns. And I thank you for your statements and I look forward to the follow up that you will be making.

I see in your recommendation that you want me to organize an inter-faith commission. Well, it was also upon the recommendation of many of our evangelical bishops that we organize the council on moral values. But it's also been upon your recommendation that we re-examine now the nature of that council. And perhaps, I will ask Isabel Tobias who has been in charge of that day-to-day affairs how we can recast that council on values to a council on interfaith and integrate them. And then, we can have different bodies after that.

I am a great believer of interfaith dialogue — if you recall many years ago, no, not many years just couple of years ago after 9/11 2001, I put out a 14-point program to fight terrorism, as a result of following the resolution of the UN Security Council, the only body in the UN which has the force of law in all member-countries. And at that time, the UN Security Council gave us a resolution that we must all fight terrorism. So, I put a program to fight terrorism 14 points and one of the 14 points was to promote inter-faith dialogue so that what others are trying to cast as religious war will instead be an opportunity for religious understanding.

How historic, how providential that at that time we were so obedient to the UN Security Council whose resolutions have the force of law and now we will go the UN Security Council with the Philippines as the President of that council. Yes, from 2001, we have shown our belief in inter-faith dialogue, and I am also a great believer in the unity of mankind for peace and the common good. And if we want to unite mankind for peace and the common good, how much more do we want to have unity in our country for peace and the common good.

Why Bert Romulo presided over that inter faith dialogue? It is because due to that belief that we articulated since 2001, it was the Philippines that spearheaded the resolution at the United Nations General Assembly last year for the adoption of inter-faith dialogue and cooperation among U.N. member-countries as a means to resolve conflicts among nations. And I am very grateful that the UN Security Council unanimously adopted the Philippine resolution. And that is why Bert Romulo presided over that dialogue.

This contribution we have made to world peace promoting inter-faith dialogue as an instrument for looking for peace is a fitting marker to celebrate our country's current presidency of the UN Security Council. And next week, as I go to preside over that UN Security Council meeting, I shall bring the same message that we are discussing today for in a world of clashing civilizations dialogue is the paramount tool to pull together our commonalities for a more secure, safe and peaceful world.

But even as I thank you — religious leaders for what you are doing here my message to the Filipino people is that: we should not live to our religious alone the task of promoting dialogue as a way of life, we the people there flock — must gather all parties and ideologies together towards greater understanding and cooperation. Many of the things you said talked about the peace process.

And I am so grateful to the Lord, to Allah that the peace process with the MILF is at a high point. We are in the final stages of negotiation and dialogue, aren't we Rene? The fighting has ceased on the ground. Just today, Secretary Romulo witnessed and assisted me in giving an award to the outgoing Commanding General of the International Monitoring Team for our peace on the ground in Mindanao as it turns over to a new commander. And they all are so gratified that there is peace on the ground in Mindanao.

But that is not all. The seeds of enterprise are sprouting in the areas of former conflict. For instance, there is a dam — the Malmar dam in the areas where fighting used to be. There is a bustling community in Buliok where the fighting used to be. We have restarted not only the peace process in Mindanao. We have restarted the process of development. And it is not only about Mindanao. Earlier in your statements and your report Sister Roxanne, you talked about the NDF. And I am also gratified on the report that our Chief Negotiator Nieves Confessor gave me that the negotiations have also restarted with the national democratic front.

But as you have said in your statement poverty is a cause of conflict. We need development to sustain peace just as we need peace to let development flourish. Peace and development are twins and we need both one to have the other. But to achieve both peace and development, we need to have one Philippines put up a united and determined attack not on one another but on the country's toughest enemy and that is poverty. That is our common enemy.

And on my part, I shall continue to open all doors toward keeping our nation together, towards having peace with one another, towards achieving one Philippines. And I ask you religious leaders as I embark on this difficult task of looking for peace not only among friends, but even with enemies: please pray for me, please help me. Kailangan ko kayo.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during a Dinner hosted by JP Morgan

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a Dinner hosted by JP Morgan

[Delivered at the Lobby Level Dining Room, St. Regis Hotel New York City, USA, September 14, 2005]

Thank you, Joyce.

Thank you.

Speaker de Venecia and other members of Congress who are here tonight; Secretary Romulo and other appointive officials who are here tonight; members of the Cabinet; distinguished members of the business community; ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you for inviting me to be here with you tonight, Joyce.

This is an important opportunity for me to speak with you about some of the important developments in the Philippines and to hear your thoughts as members of the international financing community.

Notwithstanding the political environment, the economy of the Philippines remains resilient, growth is respectable, and our fiscal discipline is paying off and remains ahead of target.

Our strong economic performance has come, of course, at a cost — a political cost to me in terms of public support. But I want to emphasize that I will not waiver in my commitment to ongoing economic reform and fiscal discipline no matter the political cost. By the way, I shouldn't only greet the congressmen but also the local government officials who are here because they are part of helping me remain committed to pursuing reforms that strengthen our economy and improve the environment for domestic and foreign investment.

I made the tough choices on economic reforms, on taxes, because it's the right thing to do politically, economically and morally. I cannot in good conscience pass on debt to the next generation. I have to invest in people through better education and training, and improve infrastructure to attract the foreign investment needed to generate sustainable economic growth and create jobs.

I remain optimistic. Let me tell you what I can and will achieve in the months and years ahead.

Much of the economy is working, and working well. There's investor confidence in key sectors we have identified for growth, these include business process outsourcing — thank you, Joyce for your decision to do your BPO in the Philippines — mining, the services and export sector, and the high-tech sector. I've built up a new nationwide transportation system. Built up the Subic-Clark corridor and opened up the interior of the country to new industries like mining and call centers.

The problem, of course, is that current economic growth is working for too few people. I've millions of poor people who've rightfully lost patience with their political leaders and their individual circumstances. However, I'm optimistic that with the passage of the value-added reform law, I can finally do more than feed the debt beast.

Politically and economically, I must invest in the people through better education, better health care, and more job creation.

Last August, the supreme court strongly affirmed the value-added tax reform law. This legislation is the cornerstone of my economic turnaround plan and is the launch pad for phase two of my economic reforms. And with this new revenue, I have presented a budget to Congress that will fund enough classrooms to be on schedule to close the classroom gap by the end of my term. Enough hectares that will develop two million new hectares of land for agribusiness by the end of my term. Construct police stations and other requirements for police visibility. Provide billions in funding to boost rice and corn production which will generate over a 150,000 new jobs for next year alone in rice and corn.

Job creation remains a significant economic and political challenge for the government. In terms of political stability, it's not good enough to record solid export and investment growth if the people are not feeling the benefits like more jobs. I'm very happy, for instance, that yesterday our stock market recorded 27 points increase, but the people want to see jobs not the stock market. The 2006 budget contains a range of job creation initiatives including major agricultural, electrification and infrastructure projects.

It's encouraging to see early signs of the positive results of our sector-specific reforms such as in the mining sector. The Department of Trade and Industry Secretary Favila here says, there are 23 mining projects in the pipeline, of which 7 major projects are worth 5.3 billion dollars.

As I move around the country and talk to people, local governments and business groups, it's clear that there's strong support for the phase two reforms and the investment in social services and infrastructure it will deliver. Our private research bears this out as well.

I have strong support in congress, and the congressmen and congresswomen are here to confirm that. And local government support is rock-solid, I have local government officials here too to support that. I believe with their help I've become politically stronger today than a month ago. I believe this shall translate into working with allies in congress, Speaker De Venecia, to pass the legislation needed to implement phase two and work with my local government colleagues to ensure that these investments in services and infrastructure are implemented at the grassroots level.

My agenda is the right agenda, and the people recognize that. The problem is that for every two steps we take forward, we take one back. The gains are too easily obscured by the setbacks or dominated by sensational headlines. But we're here to cut through the headlines and tell you the news.

In other areas such as peace in Mindanao, elimination of kidnapping gangs and anti-terrorism initiatives, we have made huge gains. So, overall, I remain positive now that the majority of the political noise is behind us. I also realize, of course, the trust I need to gain with our people if we are to move ahead with political and economic reform. And I can have the leaders of Congress and local government to help me with that.

I hope that you, the business community, here in the world's financial capital can understand the progress we've made in implementing the first phase of economic reforms to put our fiscal house in order and get the economy moving. We're ahead of target to meet our deficit reduction. We are 35 billion pesos below our deficit ceiling. Exports and investments are up. We are now moving into phase two of the economic reform agenda.

The reform program will focus on the day-to-day issues that confront our people in their daily lives out in the provinces: clean water, reliable energy, price stability, a good education and job creation. It will also continue to focus on creating the right conditions for foreign investment including ongoing fiscal reforms, a renewed campaign against corruption led by Hong Kong's former anti-corruption czar, significant investments in infrastructure and public sector reforms to reduce bureaucratic roadblocks facing foreign investors.

I hope what we have done and what we are continuing to do will sit well with you, the movers and shakers of the world economy.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Investors' Forum — Credit Suisse First Boston

Speech

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Investors' Forum — Credit Suisse First Boston

[Delivered at the The Dining Room, Lobby Level, St. Regis Hotel New York City, USA, September 15, 2005]

Thank you for the introduction.

Speaker De Venecia, speaker of the House of Representatives of the Philippines and the various congressmen; governors and city mayors who are here with us today; Secretary Romulo and the other members of the Cabinet who are here today; Governor Tetangco of the Central Bank; members of the business delegation; members of the financial community of New York; ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you for inviting me to be here with you today. This is an important opportunity for me to speak with you about some of the important developments in the Philippines and to hear your thoughts as members of the international financial community.

Notwithstanding the political environment that you read about or you watch on TV about our country, the economy remains resilient, growth is respectable, and our fiscal discipline is paying off and remains better than target.

Our strong economic performance, of course, has come at a cost— a political cost to me in terms of public support. But I want to emphasize that I will not waiver in my commitment to ongoing economic reform and fiscal discipline no matter the political cost. I remain committed to pursuing reforms that strengthen our economy and improve the environment for the domestic and foreign investment.

I made tough choices on taxes because it's the right thing to do, economically and morally. I cannot in good conscience pass on debt to the next generation. I have to invest in my people through better education and training, and improve infrastructure to attract the foreign investment needed to create, to generate sustainable economic growth and create jobs.

I remain optimistic. Let me tell you what I can and will achieve in the months and years ahead.

Much of the economy is working, and working well. There is investor confidence in the key sectors we have targeted for growth, these include: business process outsourcing — I've had so many visitors today on current expansion programs and new plans for investing in business process outsourcing in our country — mining, the services and export sector, and the high-tech sector. I've built up a new nationwide transport system. Built up the Subic-Clark corridor and opened up the interior of the country to new industries like mining and call centers.

The problem of course is that current economic growth is working for too few people. I have millions of poor people who have rightfully lost patience with their political leaders and their individual circumstances. However, I'm optimistic that with the passage of the value-added tax reform law, and Speaker De Venecia and many of the congressmen and congresswomen who work hard on that are here with us today.

I can finally do more than feed the debt beast. Politically and economically, I must invest in the people as I said, through better education, better health care, and more job creation.

I was happy to read my text messages today that the unemployment in our country has gone down from over eight percent, about 8.5 percent the last time, so it wasn't that the figure to 7.7 percent. Still, that's still a lot of people unemployed.

Last August, the Supreme Court strongly affirmed the value-added tax reform law. This legislation is the cornerstone of my economic turnaround plan and is the launch pad for Phase Two of my economic reforms. And with this revenue, I have presented a budget to Congress that will begin the funding or contribute the 2006 phase of the funding which by the end of my term should be able to close the classroom gap, which by the end of my term should be able to develop two million hectares of land for agri-business, which by the end of my term should provide for law enforcement reforms including strong police visibility, and which will provide next year 2.7 billion pesos in funding to boost rice and corn production and which will generate a 150,000 new jobs.

Job creation remains a significant economic and political challenge for the government.

In terms of political stability, the reason why I keep looking at our unemployment figures is that it's not good enough to record solid export and investment growth — though I'm happy about the 27 points increase in our stock market the other day — but that's not enough if the people are not feeling the benefits like more jobs.

The 2006 budget contains a range of job initiatives, job creation initiatives including major agricultural, infrastructure and electrification projects.

It's encouraging to see early signs of the positive results of our sector-specific reforms, such as in the mining sector. Peter Favila of the department of trade and industry reports to me that there are 23 mining projects in the pipeline, of which 7 major projects are worth 5.3 billion dollars.

As I move around the country and talk to people — to local governments some of whom are here today and business groups — it's clear that there is strong support for Phase Two reforms and the investment in social services and infrastructure that this Phase Two reforms will deliver. Our private research bears this out as well.

I have strong support in Congress, and the local government support is rock-solid, that's why I have a delegation of the congressmen and congresswomen and local government officials to affirm that before you. I believe I'm politically stronger today than a month ago. I believe this shall translate into working with allies in Congress to pass the legislation needed to implement Phase Two and work with my local government colleagues to ensure that these investments in services and infrastructure are implemented at the grassroots level.

My agenda is the right agenda, and the people recognize that even if they may not like me personally. The problem is that, for every two steps we take forward, we take one back. The gains are too easily obscured by the setbacks or dominated by sensational headlines. I hope by coming here, we help you cut through the headlines.

In other areas, for instance, such as peace in Mindanao, elimination of kidnapping gangs and anti-terrorism initiatives, we have made huge gains. So, overall, I remain positive now that the majority of the political noise is behind us. I also realize the trust I need to gain with our people if we are to move ahead with political and economic reform. I hope you can understand the progress we have made in implementing the first phase of economic reforms which was to put our fiscal house in order and get the economy moving.

As I said earlier, we're ahead of our target to meet our deficit reduction targets. Maybe my economic managers told you about that already earlier. We are 35 billion pesos below our deficit ceiling and seven billion pesos above our august revenue targets. Exports and investments are up, as I said the other day, 27 points increase in the stock market. We are now moving into the Phase Two of the economic reform agenda.

The reform program will focus on the day-to-day issues that confront our people in their daily lives out in the provinces: clean water, reliable energy, price stability, a good education and job creation. It will also continue to focus on creating the right conditions for foreign investment including ongoing fiscal reforms, a renewed campaign against corruption led by Hong Kong's former anti-corruption czar, significant investments in infrastructure and public sector reforms to reduce the bureaucratic roadblocks facing foreign investors.

We've had good meetings today with new investors, with prospective investors, with old investors who want to expand in the Philippines. They have given us very good feedback on what are the bureaucratic reforms that we need to make. We have a continuing policy — as I told Secretary Peter Favila — of after care for those who are already in the Philippines so that we can continue to make you happy being in the Philippines.

So, to all the members of the financial community, the investment community who are here today, thank you for being with us and I hope you will stay and expand in the Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Address of President Arroyo before the High Level Plenary Meeting of the 60th Session of the United Nations General Assembly

Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the High Level Plenary Meeting of the 60th Session of the United Nations General Assembly

[Delivered at the UN General Assembly Hall, UN Headquarters New York City, USA, September 15, 2005]

Mr. President:

The mantra of the United Nations on its 60th anniversary is the millennium development goals. However, these goals are in danger of unraveling. Why? Terrorism, the energy crisis and the debt burden of developing countries.

On the debt burden, we applaud debt relief for the highly indebted poor countries. But there are also many middle-income countries that are highly indebted and have large populations that survived on less than a dollar a day. In their case, we propose a large scale 50 percent conversion of debt for millennium development goals anti-poverty financing programs.

We are not asking for debt forgiveness or debt cancellation. What we propose is that the debt service or principal amount should be converted into equities in new projects of at least equal value and with their own potential earnings.

I hope that this debt for MDG proposal will find its way into the summit declaration and that the Paris Club, the G-8 governments, the IMF and the World Bank, the regional development banks, and the world's large commercial banks will approve this proposal.

We offer this option amidst the energy crunch.

On the energy crisis, we propose that the United Nations take the lead in collective action to ease the effects of oil prices. For instance, collective development of alternative and indigenous energy sources. Example: converting cane sugar to ethanol or diesel oil from coconuts. Wind farms and rural solar energy projects. Also, collective oil rationing, energy conservation, regional stockpiling.

In addition, collective efforts to intensify oil-and-gas exploration, similar to the cooperative seismic operations that China, Vietnam and the Philippines started last August in areas of the South China sea that they claim competitively.

We also call on the organization of petroleum exporting countries to recycle petrodollars and extraordinary profits from the oil trade in the form of equity investments and long-term, low-interest loans to medium and poor oil-importing states.

We feel justified in making this call, because our overseas Filipinos contribute tremendously to the economies of the petroleum exporting countries. Our overseas Filipinos, 8 million of them, are the reason why we sponsored the inclusion of migration in the outcome document of this high level plenary meeting as well as the holding of a high-level dialogue on migration and development. We are determined to leverage an effective global consensus to protect the rights and welfare of our overseas Filipinos including their protection against global terrorism.

On terrorism, the Philippines reaffirms its commitment to wage the fight against this terrible evil. As the secretary-general said in Madrid last March, terrorism is a threat to all states, to all people. Like many countries, the Philippines has been struck by the pain of terror but we have fought back with the vigilance of ordinary citizens, a strong bilateral and regional security network, the tools of inter-faith dialogue, and our strategic alliance with the United States. Our peace process is perhaps the only one in the world that incorporates an anti-terrorism component. Our ceasefire agreement with the rebels in southern Philippines includes the interdiction of terrorist cells.

In the fight against terrorism, inter-faith dialogue has gained legitimacy as a serious alternative approach to conflict.

Religions are the bedrock of cultures and civilizations. Religions must be respected as we pursue development.

We expect the United Nations to be sensitive to the deep catholicism of the vast majority of the Filipino people. The funding given by the U.N. to our national government for reproductive health shall be dedicated to train married couples in a natural family planning technology which the world health organization has found effective compared to artificial contraceptives.

The population council of New York has found that artificial contraception contributes only two percent to the decline of birth rates while the combination of improving the economic condition of the family, urbanization and breastfeeding contributes 98 percent. Thus, we ask the U.N. and the donor countries to direct their assistance towards the improvement of family productivity and income.

Mr. President, the great expanse of our challenges — the deepening cut of poverty, the relentless surge of terrorism, the burgeoning debt problem, and the soaring price of oil — bid us to find courage in our solidarity.

On this 60th jubilee, we reaffirm the role of the united nations as the primary instrument of that solidarity.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Holy Mass with the Filipino-American Community and Enshrinement at the Chapel of San Lorenzo Ruiz

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Holy Mass with the Filipino-American Community and Enshrinement at the Chapel of San Lorenzo Ruiz

[Delivered at the San Lorenzo Ruiz Chapel, 378 Broom St. New York City, USA, September 15, 2005]

Speaker and Mrs. De Venecia and the congressmen, governors and city mayors who comprise the Philippine delegation to our United Nations activities; Secretary and Mrs. Romulo; and all of the appointive officials in the Philippine government who are here today; members of the Filipino community.

Ang dami-daming El Shaddai na narito, purihin ang Panginoon!

Most reverend Cantillas who takes care of the overseas Filipinos; Reverend Monsignor Kevin Nelan, representing the archdiocese of New York, thank you for giving this wonderful pastoral center to the Filipino community; mga minamahal kong kababayan:

Malaking karangalan na tayo ay narito. Malaking karangalan para sa akin na narito para ma-dedicate natin itong simbahan kay San Lorenzo Ruiz.

Si San Lorenzo Ruiz ay isang overseas Filipino din nung kanyang panahon. Kaya tamang-tama na siya ay hindi lamang unang santong Pilipino kung hindi na rin pwede nating isipin bilang patron saint ng overseas Filipinos.

Ipinagmamalaki natin ang overseas Filipinos pag tinatanong sa akin ng mga negosyante sa buong mundo bakit dapat kami mag-invest sa Pilipinas. Ang unang sinasagot ko, kilala naman ninyo kung gaano kagaling ang ating mga Filipino dahil meron tayong galing bilang Filipino.

There are eight million Filipinos all over the world. Kaya yung ating isang pinakaimportanteng kontribusyon sa ating outcome document ng general assembly doon sa United Nations ay yung mga paragraphs tungkol sa migration. Congratulations! Ambassador Baja for having that part of the outcome document. At talagang kayo ay ambassador ng kagalingan ng Pilipinas sa buong mundo. At hindi lamang yon, habang tinutulungan niyo ang ekonomiya ng inyong adopted land like the United States tuloy pa rin ang tulong niyo sa ating bansang Pilipinas.

Of the eight million Filipinos all over the world, the Filipino-Americans are about three and a half million, less than one-half of our overseas Filipinos but you send two-thirds of the remittances to the Philippines. At dahil sa inyong mga remittance ang dami-daming mga kapamilya ninyo na nagkakaroon ng magandang edukasyon, puhunan para sa sariling maliliit na negosyo, pabahay. At nagpapasalamat ako dahil ayon sa ating mga datos in our latest statistics, your remittances to the Philippines have increased by 19 percent. Thank you very much for your continuing support.

Dahil sa inyo ang kagalingang pinapakita niyo sa Amerika at sa buong mundo ginagalang tayo ng mundo. At isa sa mga pinakasimbolo ng paggalang ng mundo sa ating bansang Pilipinas ay yung pangyayari kahapon — yung pulong ng U.N. Security Council. Ang pinakamakapangyarihang institusyon ng United Nations kung saan yung mga pinakamakapangyarihang mga bansa ay mga kasapi, ang presiding officer ay walang iba hindi ang kinatawan at pangulo ng republika ng Pilipinas.

Ng paggalang ng mundo sa Pilipinas na sila ay tinanggap nila ang alok ng Pilipinas na dito sa 60th Jubilee Summit ng United Nations magkaroon din ng Summit ng U.N. Security Council. This is only the third time in the history of the U.N. na nagkaroon ng Summit ang U.N. Security Council.

Dahil ang New York ay ang financial capital ng buong mundo, ginamit na rin natin itong pagkakataon na makipagpulong sa ilang mga investors sa Pilipinas, after care ng mga kasalukuyang nag-iinvest, at promotion sa mga baka sakali malaki ang tsansang mag-invest sa Pilipinas. At inaasahan natin na itong paggalang ng buong mundo sa Pilipinas ay ma-translate sa dagdag pang mamumuhunan sa ating bansa para magkaron pa ng higit na trabaho ang ating kapwa Pilipino doon sa Pilipinas.

Today, I received a text message from the Philippines that our unemployment rate has gone down to 7.7 percent from above 8 percent in the last _____. Pero kulang pa rin yon. Kailangan pa rin natin ang mas maraming trabaho dahil milyung-milyon pa rin ang ating mga kapatid ay wala pang trabaho.

Kaya kinakailangan ko hindi lamang yung remittances that you have been so generously sending but also your prayers that we will be able to bring about the conditions in the Philippines that will be able to solve our problem of poverty and divisiveness once and for all.

Yung problema ng divisiveness ng ating bansa umabot nga na para — ngayon kasi hindi ba nung tayo ay nag-aaral nabasa natin yung “A Tale of Two Cities” by Charles Dickens — para bang ang ating Pilipinas is a tale of two countries. Para bang may dalawang bansang nakatira sa Pilipinas na pareho ang pangalan, ang tawag ay Pilipinas. Yung isa ay yung Pilipinas ng ating ekonomiya. Your remittances have helped for instance to give our country a very respectable growth rate.

Last year, 6.1 percent, the highest growth rate in the history of our country. At ngayon kahit na may oil crisis, 4.8 percent pa rin. Napakadisente. And even if we are an oil-importing country and our import bill for oil has become bigger, your remittances have helped to keep our peso stable. And we are also one of the 26 countries with the lowest price increase in the price of fuel.

At saka yung housing ang laking tulong ninyo doon. Our housing industry is bustling. Our deficit is below the ceiling by 35 billion pesos. Our revenue collection are above target by 7 billion pesos. Kaya our interest rate is lower compared to many years in the past.

Our tourism business is growing up double digit. Ito ang Pilipinas ng ating ekonomiya, ready to take off, not because of what I have done but because of what you do and because of that cumulative improvements in our economic policies over these years.

But just as our economic policies have been improving over these years, yung ating political system naman over the years has been deteriorating to the point that now it is so difficult to survive in this system and yet keep yourself ‘Lily White’ as everybody would want us to be. Somehow it paints us some shades of gray, some shades lighter or darker but it is so difficult to survive pure white. And that’s why we say, “who is without sin, let him cast the first stone.”

The system must be changed. Fundamental change is needed. We have our legislators. We have our local government officials. They must be the main instruments for change. But not only them, the people too must be the instruments for change. At tayo ay instrumento lamang. Ang talagang makakaganap ng pagbabago sa ating bansa ay yung Panginoon. And therefore, we have to dedicate our country to the divine will.

Kapwa ko Pilipino dito sa Nueva York, dito sa Amerika, tulungan ninyo ako sa inyong remittances, sa inyong panalangin. Tulungan niyo ako na makamit natin ang isang Pilipinas, hindi dalawang Pilipinas. The economy that works and the political system that doesn’t seem to be working anymore, but one Philippines. Under our patron saint, San Lorenzo Ruiz, and under the love and care of Mama Mary, Santa Maria de Dolores, that we celebrate today, the mother of the Philippines, Pilipinas Amante ti Maria.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Stakeholders' Forum in Microfinance, September 19, 2005 Speech
of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Stakeholders' Forum in Microfinance

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, September 19, 2005]

HARNESSING MICROFINANCE FOR JOBS GENERATION AND ENTREPRENEURIAL GROWTH

Bagay na bagay itong okasyon pagbalik ko galing sa United Nations. Kasi pinagdiriwang natin ang U.N. International year of Micro Credit so kasama ito sa ating pagdiriwang ng 60th anniversary ng United Nations. At gaya nang sinabi ni Secretary Bobi Tiglao, ito rin ang Philippine Year of Microfinance. This is your year, congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Kahapon pagbalik ko galing sa Nueva York sinaoi ko sa aking... 'yung arrival statement, dapat bigyan nating pansin kaagad yung ilang mga problemang hinaharap ng bansa, lalung-lalo na yung paglilikha ng trahaho.

At lalong kailangan natin ito dahil sa panganib ng bigla at sobrang pagtaas ng presyo ng langis sa buong mundo lalong humirap ang pakikibaka kontra sa laban sa kahirapan. Mahirap ang laban dahil mahirap ang sitwasyon ng oil crisis ngunit dapat huwag tayongsusuko.

Noong isang taon sa aking inagurasyon bilang pangulo, sinabi ko yung aking ten-point program. Number one nga doon ay yung creation of six to ten million jobs within the next six years. At sinabi ko nga doon, by developing three million entrepreneurs and developing two million hectares of land for agri-business. Itong tatlong milyong entrepreneur, ito nga ay sa pamamagitan ng pagtulong sa mga micro, small at medium enterprises. At sinabi rin ni Bobi Tiglao yung ating accomplishment report mula nung 2001, dalawang milyong maliliit na maliliit na negosyo ay natulungan ng 20 billion pesos.

Marami rito ay galing sa Land Bank, sa National Livelihood Support Fund, sa People's Credit and Finance Corporation, at meron pala galing sa SB Corporation bagamat ang SB Corporation ay small enterprises ang kanyang inaasikaso talaga, hindi yung micro. Ngunit yung mga tulong na galing sa pamahalaan, itong mga bangkong binanggit ko or agency, ay hindi diretso sa micro enterprise kaya kung minsan yung mga micro entrepreneur hindi nila nare-realize na malaking bahagi sa tulong — hindi naman lahat dahil yung mga ngo malaking-malaki rin ang tulong — pero hindi nila nare-realize na malaking bahagi nito ay galing sa pamahalaan. Kaya importanteng malaman din natin dito sa stakeholders' forum na ipahayag na ito ay partnership ng pamahalaan at saka ng mga NGO, pati na rin yung mga bangko, microfinance bank na na-accredit doon sa Central Bank of the Philippines.

Hindi dumidiretso halimbawa ang Land Bank na magpahiram sa mga micro enterprises, dinadaan nila sa mga conduit. Karamihan ng conduit ay NGO, yung mga nandito sa entablado, yan mga NGO na ginagamit na conduit. Yung mga tumuntong kanina at tumanggap ng certificate o yung malalaking tseke, yon ang mga conduit. At yung gobyerno mayron ding conduit, yung Quedancor ay isang conduit na nagpapahiram ng retail pero karamihan nga ay mga NGO dahil yung Classic Grameen Bank na nanggaling doon sa Bangladesh nagsimula ay NGO, hindi gobyerno ang gumagawa pero gusto nating ma-fast track kaya pumapasok ang gobyerno bilang source of funding na nagko-contribute sa equity. Pag may equity yung ibang ngo, o kaya pagkulang ng conduit, nagko-conduit na rin kagaya ng Quedancor. Pero ang namamahala dito ayon sa batas — na ako rin ang naging principal author, yung ating anti-poverty law — ang People's Credit and Finance Corporation ang siyang gumigitna sa ating microfinance.

Kaya inaatasan ko muli ang PCFC na magkaroon ng direktoryo ng mga microfinance conduit sa bawat bayan. Kasi sinasabi kasi natin PCFC, Credit, DBP, baka mamaya yung mga maliliit na entrepreneur, yung mga micro, doon pupunta sa DBP, doon pupunta sa PCFC, hindi ganun. Pupunta sa mga conduit pero trabaho ng PCFC na magkaroon ng direktoryo ng conduit sa bawat bayan. At dapat ito'y ina-advertise natin, ini-scroll Ginoong Heneroso, ini-scroll doon sa ating government channels. Halimbawa, San Pablo, Laguna card, ganun, ang conduit of microfinance. O doon sa Aklan, Taytay sa Kauswagan, dapat merong alam bawat bayan saan ang conduit.

Para malaman naman ng ating mga incomeless assetless women na sila rin ang dapat pangunahing preyoridad ng microfinance kung saan lalapit para humiram ng pununan para sa kanilang mga micro enterprises. May mga lugar na walang conduit. May mga bayang walang conduit. Sinabi ko naman at inuulit ko ang atas — wala kasi sila dito, gustong sabihin hindi pa sila napapasok sa loop ng microfinance — kapag walang conduit sa isang bayan ang DSWD SEA-K ang dapat maging conduit. Kasi hindi naman lanat ng 1,600 towns ng Pilipinas ay merong microfinance conduit. Pero lahat ng bayan ay may DSWD, at ang DSWD ay may kaugnayan sa... Meron din sariling microfinance office self-employment assistance. So, ito ang kailangang gawin natin para makaabot sa nakararami.

Ang ating hangarin kasi gaya nang sabi ni Bobi, gaya nang sabi ko, mula 2004 hanggang 2010 maka-develop tayo ng tatlong milyong entrepreneur sa pamamagitan ng microfinance at small and medium enterprise loans. Iba ang microfinance, iba ang small and medium enterprise kaya importante yung ating sinasabing conduit. Mga small and medium enterprise humihiram sa karaniwang bangko gaya nang napaka-successful na bangko ni Ambassador Tambunting, number one sila sa pagpapahiram sa small and medium enterprises.

Meron tayong programang pautang sa SME, ang tawag doon ay 'Sulong.' ano ang ibig sabihin ng 'Sulong,' Zoraida? Small and Medium Unified Lending Opportunities for National Growth, yan ang small and medium enterprise. At ito ay nagpautang na ng 27 billion pesos noong isang taon lamang.

Ang microfinance naman hindi pumupunta sa karaniwang bangko ang borrower, pumupunta nga sa mga ngo conduit o yung Quedancor, o kung wala inaalok natin, ayusin natin ang sistema para makalapit sa DSWD SEA-K. Eto naman ang sagot natin sa five-six. Gaya ng five-six, maliliit ang halaga ng mga pautang kaya sa conduit dumadaan, kasi wala namang makinarya ang Land Bank na magpahiram ng 2,000 pesos, 15,000 pesos although yung Quedancor nga sa pilitan ay naging makinarya. Lilang libo lamang ang pautang sa microfinance, habang sa SME umaabot hanggang milyon ang pautang. At ang sistema ay halos door-to-door ang pautang at door-to-door ang pagkubra halos, pumupunta sa community center. At ang koleksyon ay madalasan hindi yung at the end of one year, hindi ba, Zoraida? Para hindi maipon at hindi lumaking lubha ang utang.

Kaya mas malaki ang gastos ng microfinance for administration kaysa ang gastos ng karaniwang bangko. Kaya maiintindihan niyo mas mataas ang interest na tsina-charge ng microfinance dahil mas malaki ang gastos. At least, di hamak mas maliit kaysa sa mga five-six.

Sa karaniwan ang microfinance ay walang collateral, habang yung mga bangko ay may collateral. Pero ano ang kapalit ng collateral? Yung social preparation. Kaya doon sa DSWD halimbawa, ilang buwan munang tinuturuan yung mga beneficiaries sa mga asal ng pagbayad ng utang, kasama doon ay values formation. Kaya nakikita ko maraming mga Christian groups ay very active dahil malakas ang values formation component na yon at saka co-makers joint obligation. Ang microfinance ay hindi sa inividual lang nagpapahiram may mga co-makers, may mga microfinance groups, mga five people, ten people, 15 people. Ang utang ng isa ay nagiging utang ng mga kasama sa grupo. At dahil sa magandang sistemang ito almost home service, values formation, madalas na pagkubra tapos nuon yung co-makers halos 100 percent ang nababayad ng utang ng mga microfinance borrowers, mas maganda pa kaysa sa repayment rate ng mga umuutang ng malalaki sa malalaking bangko. Kaya congratulations sa inyong lahat! Mga bayani ng microfinance.

Kanina sa pagdiriwang ng ating selebrasyon ng microfinance, tayo ay namahagi ng 73 million pesos bilang pautang ng microfinance: 34 million mula sa DBP, hindi ba, Rey?; 25 million mula sa PCFC; 11 million mula sa Land Hank; at 3 million mula sa SB Corporation. Nakita natin nagbigay sila ng tseke sa mga conduit, tapos yung conduit naman ay nagbigay ng tseke sa mga humihiram sa kanila. Kaya, congratulations sa mga conduit! Congratulations sa mga tumanggap ng pondo, sa mga borrowers!

Dahil napaka-importante ang papel ng microfinance sa paglikha ng trabaho, dapat may lead agency na nagsusubaybay sa buong microfinance system ng ating bansa, whether this microfinance is government or NGO. At ito ang trabaho ng People's Credit and Finance Corporation. Kasi kung ano ang ginagawa ng small business corporation ni Mel Alonzo sa mga SME dapat yon din ang gawin ng PCFC. What I'm trying to say is hindi kailangan na ang PCFC lamang ang nagpapahiram ng lahat kasi moron tayong buong sistema. Kagaya ng SB Corporation, hindi naman sila nagpapahiram sa lahat ng SME. Eh si Ginoong Tambunting di hamak many, many times over what SB Corporation is lending. Maliit nga lamang ang pinapahiram ng SB Corporation compared to what the whole SME system is lending. Kasi maraming pautang sa mga small and medium enterprises ay nanggagaling sa iba't-ibang bangko.

So, ganun din dapat ang microfinance, nanggagaling sa karamihan ng pautang yung mga malalaking NGO conduits kagaya ng opportunity and microfinance bank, or yung card, or yung transformation... Ano? Center for transformation, yung Taytay sa kausawagan, yung Negros Women for Tomorrow. May mga half a dozen yang mga malalaking pinanggagalingan. Tapos may DBP, may Land Bank, ngunit dapat ang PCFC ang nagsusubaybay. Meron dapat program director at yon ang trabaho ng PCFC gaya nang ginagawa ng SB sa buong Small and Medium Enterprise Development. Kaya dapat ang PCFC ay parating umuugnay sa Land Bank, sa DBP, sa NLSF, sa mga conduit, kasama na rin dito ang DSWD SEA-K na parating everytime ako'y nagkaka-meeting sinasabi ko gamitin ang DSWD bilang conduit kapag walang ngo conduit sa isang lugar.

Ang PCFC ay linalagay ko sa ilalim ng DTI, pamamahala ngDTI, dahil tandem dapat ang PCFC at saka SB sa pagsubaybay nga sa pag-develop ng tatlong milyong entrepreneur. Kaya ito ay gusto ko isigurado ni Secretary Ermita na yung papeles na sumusunod sa aking instruction ay magawa natin para ito ay ma-institutionalize kasi ito ang papel nitong stakeholders' meeting, hindi ba sabi ni Bobi, how to improve the delivery of microfinance. And I think bringing DSWD SEA-K, where there is no microfinance in a particular town, improves that. Putting PCFC and SB Corporation together under one administration of DTI improves that.

At sa pagdiriwang natin ngayon, binabati nga natin ang PCFC dahil siya dapat ang lead agency sa microfinance at lahat ng mga kabalikat sa microfinance. At importante itong araw na ito para mas mabilis at mas mabisa ang daloy ng microfinance na umaabot sa lahat ng mga nangangailangan ng trabaho.

Kaya sa inyong lahat, binabati ko kayo, salamat sa paglingkod ninyo sa taumbayan. Huwag tayong madala sa sobrang pamumulitika. Gamitin natin ang ating enerhiya hindi sa pagtsismis-tsismis sa pulitika kung hindi mag-iral tayo ng tatlong milyong maliliit na negosyante, maglikha tayo ng tatlong milyong trabaho. Yan ang gawin natin sa mga darating na taon at sana pagkatapos nitong araw na ito lalo pang magtagumpay ang microfinance community of the Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Thank you so much, Secretary Tiglao.

Secretary Ermita; Secretary Panganiban; Governor Tetangco; ibat-ibang mga appointees ng pamahalaan, lalung-lalo na yung ating mga nandito sa entablado, yung mga namumuno ng ibat-ibang mga ahensya ng pamahalaan na tumutulong sa microfinance; Congresswoman Nelly Chavez at ibang mga halal na opisyal na narito; nakita ko si Monching Guico, pangulo ng Mayors League; nakita ko yata rin si Mayor Gerry Calderon, ang secretary general ng Mayors' League; nandito rin yung ibang mga malalaking mga negosyante na tumutulong sa microfinance kagaya ni Mr. Washington Sycip at saka ni Ambassador Tsuching Tambunting. Pupunta sa mga conduit pero trabaho ng PCFC na magkaron ng direktoryo ng conduit sa bawat bayan. At dapat ito'y ina-advertise natin, ini-scroll Ginoong Heneroso, ini-scroll doon sa ating government channels. Halimbawa, San Pablo, Laguna card, ganun, ang conduit of microfinance. O doon sa Aklan, taytay sa kauswagan, dapat merong alam bawat bayan saan ang conduit.

Para malaman naman ng ating mga incomeless assetless women na sila rin ang dapat pangunahing preyoridad ng microfinance kung saan lalapit para humiram ng puhunan para sa kanilang mga micro enterprises. May mga lugar na walang conduit. May mga bayang walang conduit. Sinabi ko naman at inuulit ko ang atas — wala kasi sila dito, gustong sabihin hindi pa sila napapasok sa loop ng microfinance — kapag walang conduit sa isang bayan ang DSWD SEA-K ang dapat maging conduit. Kasi hindi naman lahat ng 1,600 towns ng Pilipinas ay merong microfinance conduit. Pero lahat ng bayan ay may DSWD, at ang DSWD ay may kaugnayan sa... Meron din sariling microfinance office self-employment assistance. So, ito ang kailangang gawin natin para makaabot sa nakararami.

Ang ating hangarin kasi gaya nang sabi ni Bobi, gaya nang sabi ko, mula 2004 hanggang 2010 maka-develop tayo ng tatlong milyong entrepreneur sa pamamagitan ng microfinance at small and medium enterprise loans. Iba ang microfinance, iba ang small and medium enterprise kaya importante yung ating sinasabing conduit. Mga small and medium enterprise humihiram sa karaniwang bangko gaya nang napaka-successful na bangko ni Ambassador Tambunting, number one sila sa pagpapahiram sa small and medium enterprises.

Meron tayong programang pautang sa SME, ang tawag doon ay 'Sulong.' ano ang ibig sabihin ng 'Sulong,' Zoraida? Small and Medium Unified Lending Opportunities for National Growth, yan ang small and medium enterprise. At ito ay nagpautang na ng 27 billion pesos noong isang taon lamang.

Ang microfinance naman hindi pumupunta sa karaniwang bangko ang borrower, pumupunta nga sa mga ngo conduit o yung Quedancor, o kung wala inaalok natin, ayusin natin ang sistema para makalapit sa DSWD SEA-K. Eto naman ang sagot natin sa five-six. Gaya ng five-six, maliliit ang halaga ng mga pautang kaya sa conduit dumadaan, kasi wala namang makinarya ang Land Bank na magpahiram ng 2,000 pesos, 15,000 pesos although yung Quedancor nga sa pilitan ay naging makinarya. Lilang libo lamang ang pautang sa microfinance, habang sa SME umaabot hanggang milyon ang pautang. At ang sistema ay halos door-to-door ang pautang at door-to-door ang pagkubra halos, pumupunta sa community center. At ang koleksyon ay madalasan hindi yung at the end of one year, hindi ba, Zoraida? Para hindi maipon at hindi lumaking lubha ang utang.

Kaya mas malaki ang gastos ng microfinance for administration kaysa ang gastos ng karaniwang bangko. Kaya maiintindihan niyo mas mataas ang interest na tsina-charge ng microfinance dahil mas malaki ang gastos. At least, di hamak mas maliit kaysa sa mga five-six.

Sa karaniwan ang microfinance ay walang collateral, habang yung mga bangko ay may collateral. Pero ano ang kapalit ng collateral? Yung social preparation. Kaya doon sa DSWD halimbawa, ilang buwan munang tinuturuan yung mga beneficiaries sa mga asal ng pagbayad ng utang, kasama doon ay values formation. Kaya nakikita ko maraming mga Christian groups ay very active dahil malakas ang values formation component na yon at saka co-makers joint obligation. Ang microfinance ay hindi sa individual lang nagpapahiram may mga co-makers, may mga microfinance groups, mga five people, ten people, 15 people. Ang utang ng isa ay nagiging utang ng mga kasama sa grupo. At dahil sa magandang sistemang ito almost home service, values formation, madalas na pagkubra tapos nuon yung co-makers halos 100 percent ang nababayad ng utang ng mga microfinance borrowers, mas maganda pa kaysa sa repayment rate ng mga umuutang ng malalaki sa malalaking bangko. Kaya congratulations sa inyong lahat! Mga bayani ng microfinance.

Kanina sa pagdiriwang ng ating selebrasyon ng microfinance, tayo ay namahagi ng 73 million pesos bilang pautang ng microfinance: 34 million mula sa DBP, hindi ba, Rey?; 25 million mula sa PCFC; 11 million mula sa Land Bank; at 3 million mula sa SB Corporation. Nakita natin nagbigay sila ng tseke sa mga conduit, tapos yung conduit naman ay nagbigay ng tseke sa mga humihiram sa kanila. Kaya, congratulations sa mga conduit! Congratulations sa mga tumanggap ng pondo, sa mga borrowers!

Dahil napaka-importante ang papel ng microfinance sa paglikha ng trabaho, dapat may lead agency na nagsusubaybay sa buong microfinance system ng ating bansa, whether this microfinance is government or NGO. At ito ang trabaho ng People's Credit and Finance Corporation. Kasi kung ano ang ginagawa ng small business corporation ni Mel Alonzo sa mga SME dapat yon din ang gawin ng PCFC. What I'm trying to say is hindi kailangan na ang PCFC lamang ang nagpapahiram ng lahat kasi meron tayong buong sistema. Kagaya ng SB Corporation, hindi naman sila nagpapahiram sa lahat ng SME. Eh si Ginoong Tambunting di hamak many, many times over what SB Corporation is lending. Maliit nga lamang ang pinapahiram ng SB Corporation compared to what the whole SME system is lending. Kasi maraming pautang sa mga small and medium enterprises ay nanggagaling sa iba't-ibang bangko.

So, ganun din dapat ang microfinance, nanggagaling sa karamihan ng pautang yung mga malalaking NGO conduits kagaya ng opportunity and microfinance bank, or yung card, or yung transformation... Ano? Center for transformation, yung Taytay sa kauswagan, yung Negros Women for Tomorrow. May mga half a dozen yang mga malalaking pinanggagalingan. Tapos may DBP, may Land Bank, ngunit dapat ang PCFC ang nagsusubaybay. Meron dapat program director at yon ang trabaho ng PCFC gaya nang ginagawa ng SB sa buong Small and Medium Enterprise Development. Kaya dapat ang PCFC ay parating umuugnay sa Land Bank, sa DBP, sa NLSF, sa mga conduit, kasama na rin dito ang DSWD SEA-K na parating everytime ako'y nagkaka-meeting sinasabi ko gamitin ang DSWD bilang conduit kapag walang ngo conduit sa isang lugar.

Ang PCFC ay linalagay ko sa ilalim ng DTI, pamamahala ng DTI, dahil tandem dapat ang PCFC at saka SB sa pagsubaybay nga sa pag-develop ng tatlong milyong entrepreneur. Kaya ito ay gusto ko isigurado ni Secretary Ermita na yung papeles na sumusunod sa aking instruction ay magawa natin para ito ay ma-institutionalize kasi ito ang papel nitong stakeholders' meeting, hindi ba sabi ni Bobi, how to improve the delivery of microfinance. And I think bringing DSWD SEA-K, where there is no microfinance in a particular town, improves that. Putting PCFC and SB Corporation together under one administration of DTI improves that.

At sa pagdiriwang natin ngayon, binabati nga natin ang PCFC dahil siya dapat ang lead agency sa microfinance at lahat ng mga kabalikat sa microfinance. At importante itong araw na ito para mas mabilis at mas mabisa ang daloy ng microfinance na umaabot sa lahat ng mga nangangailangan ng trabaho.

Kaya sa inyong lahat, binabati ko kayo, salamat sa paglingkod ninyo sa taumbayan. Huwag tayong madala sa sobrang pamumulitika. Gamitin natin ang ating enerhiya hindi sa pagtsismis-tsismis sa pulitika kung hindi mag-iral tayo ng tatlong milyong maliliit na negosyante, maglikha tayo ng tatlong milyong trabaho. Yan ang gawin natin sa mga darating na taon at sana pagkatapos nitong araw na ito lalo pang magtagumpay ang microfinance community of the Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 1st Regional Congress of the Liga ng mga Barangay Region III Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 1st Regional Congress of the Liga ng mga Barangay Region III

[Delivered at the Expo Filipino, Clark Special Economic Zone Angeles City, Pampanga, September 22, 2005]

Maraming salamat, pangulo ng liga, si James Marty Lim sa iyong pagpakilala.

Gusto kong batiin ang ating mga kasama rito, mga Cabinet members sa pamumuno ni Secretary Angelo Reyes at saka ni Secretary Ed Pamintuan at saka ni Secretary Cerge Remonde; si liga Region III, Efren Dela Cruz, salamat sa iyong sabi mong regalo sa inyong lingkod; ang ating host mayor dahil ang Clark ay nasa Mabalacat at Angeles, si Mayor Morales; si Vice Mayor ng Angeles; si Governor Jose Yap ng Tarlac; si Governor Garcia ng Bataan; si board member Joson ng Nueva Ecija; ating host din si Tony ng Clark Development Corporation; si Vice Mayor Salamera ng Angeles — ay, nabanggit ko na yata kanina; at meron tayong importanteng mga panauhin gaya ni Pangulong Francis Chua ng Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce; at saka kayo mga barangay leaders ng buong Region III, magandang umaga sa inyong lahat.

Naalala ko, huli tayong nagkasama ng ganito kalaki nung 2004, di ba? Panahon ng kampanya. Salamat sa inyong suporta sa inyong lingkod.

Ngayon naman binabati ko kayo sa pagpasa ng panukalang batas resetting the barangay elections from October this year to October 2007, pumasa po sa bicameral conference committee.

Nais ko na ring samantalain ang pagkakataong ito upang pasalamatan kayo mga opisyal ng barangay sa ipinakita ninyong katatagan sa pagharap sa mga pagsubok sa sistemang pulitika ng ating bansa. Kayo ang grassroots, pag kayo ay susuporta sa inyong pangulo, matatag ang ating republika.

Salamat sa inyo at sa panginoon nakaraos ang bansa kaya hinihiling ko sa inyo isigurado natin na tuloy makaraos ang ating bansa. Isigurado rin niyo na umiral ang batas — the rule of law. Ang kinabukasan ng ating bansa, the future of our country lies in our unwavering focus. Dapat nakatutok tayo. Dapat determinado tayo to apply the rule of law, at ang kinabukasan ng ating bansa ay nakasandal din sa ating kapasidad na masugpo natin ang kahirapan at pagdudusa ng ating bansa.

Ngunit walang mangyayari kung papayagan nating manggulo ang mga nanggugulo. Kaya kayo mga leader sa grassroots ang hinihingi ko sa inyo sa halip na payagan nating magsiraan, tulungan ninyo akong siguraduhin ang kapapayaan at katiwasayan at magtayo na lang tayo ng tatlong milyong maliliit na negosyo para magkaroon ng tatlong milyong bagong trabaho. Tulungan na lang ninyo ako magbukas ng dalawang milyong ektarya sa negosyong pansaka para ganun makalikha ng dalawang milyong bagong trabaho. Iyan ang ating gawin.

Tumataas ang ating growth rate ng exports. Ang huling nakita kong figures, 11 percent sa kabila ng naghihirap ang mundo. Matatag ang piso sa kabila ng ang laki ng gastos natin sa pag-angkat ng krudo. At bumababa ang unemployment rate, 7.7 percent. Sabi nga ni Max Soliven, “mas malaki pa pala ang unemployment rate sa Alemanya kaysa sa Pilipinas.”

Nasa pangalawang yugto na tayo ng ating repormang pangkaunlaran.

What is this second phase of reform? It demands double the energy, double the discipline, double the resolve to succeed at a time when we are held back by the constraints in the global environment. And we are held back by such a degenerated political system. Kaya doblehin natin ang ating sigla. Bigyan natin ang ating mga sarili na sigla upang harapin ang mga problemang dapat bigyan kaagad ng pansin.

Kailangan maglikha ng trabaho gaya nang sabi ko kanina kahit na 7.7 percent bumaba na mula sa 8 plus percent, milyun-milyon pa rin yung walang trabaho. Kailangan magtulungan tayo para makalikha ng trabaho. Kailangan magpapairal ng pangkabuhayang kaunlaran at mamuhunan tayo sa edukasyon at kalinga sa kalusugan para sa ating sambayanan.

Kailangan ituloy natin ang walang sawang pagsikap na wakasan ang katiwalian sa sistema. At kailangan siguruhin natin na ang mahihirap na inaalagaan ninyo ay maproteksiyunan laban sa labis na pagtataas ng presyo at makuha nila ang pagkain at gasolinang kailangan upang umunlad. Yan ang ating mga hamon ngayong hinaharap dito sa first regional congress.

At nais ng mga mamamayan isang pamahalaan na tumutugon sa kanilang pangangailangan sa lahat ng antas ng pamayanan mula sa akin, pangulo, hanggang sa inyo mga barangay leader.

Sama-sama tayo na ayusin ang sistema ng pulitika. Sama-sama tayo maglagay ng higit na kapangyarihan, higit na kakayahan, higit na kayamanan. Let's put more power, more capacity, more wealth in the hands of the people. Salamat, dactal a salamat, bamban.

Ang mga kaguluhan at di-pagkakaunawaan ay patunay lamang na ang kasalukuyang sistema ay kailangan ng matinding pagbabago. Dactal a salamat, Mexico. Pagbabago bago pa mas lalong gumulo. At gusto ko na ang mahalagang pag-uusap na ito ay magsimula sa ating mga barangay. Salamat, Tarlac. Salamat, Bataan. Dahil kayo, higit ninuman, ang makikinabang sa pagbabago ng ating pulitika. Dactal a salamat, Angeles City. Uy, peka maragul a delegasyon. Salamat, Olongapo. Congratulations! Okey, barangay Mabayan, dactal a salamat.

Kaya ako'y natutuwa sa mga nagdaos ng ganitong pagpupulong, maging yung mga binanggit ko. O, Pampanga tinataas din ang kanilang bandila. Salamat sa inyong pagdating sa pagpupulong na ito na ang paksa ay sabi niyo — nanu ita, yari na, ing bamban pin ing minuna nandin, salamat, salamat. Zambales, salamat. Bataan, nabanggit ko na. Nueva Ecija, thank you — ang pangalan ng inyong pagpupulong, “Pagkakaisa Tungo sa Pambansang Kaunlaran.” Magkaisa tayo para umiral ang rule of law.

I am tired of chasing the bully around the schoolyard. Yung mga tatanggap sa aking panawagan magkaisa, welcome. Yung mga hindi tumatanggap at patuloy na manggugulo, we, from the top to the barangay officials, will enforce the rule of law, di ba? Kaya inaasahan ko na ang pagpupulong na ito ay magbubunga ng mga kaganapang ikasisiya ng ating mga mamamayan.

Let us move on. Humanap tayo ng trabaho para sa ating mga constituent. Yan ang ating pangunahing tungkulin. Magkaisa tayo sa ganitong tungkulin. Congratulations mga barangay officials and leaders!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the “Jesus Saves Festival of Praise” and 30th Anniversary of the MBBC and Ministries

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the “Jesus Saves Festival of Praise” and 30th Anniversary of the Metropolitan Bible Baptist Church (MBBC) and Ministries

[Delivered at the Plenary Hall, Philippine International Convention Center (PICC), Pasay City, September 23, 2005]

Thank you, Congressman Benny, Bishop Benny for your introduction. Thank you for inviting me to be here in this festival of praise.

Tonight, indeed, we gather in praise. Praise Jesus he is so good. And I would like to praise the Metropolitan Bible Baptist church for your 30th anniversary.

And to say tonight, to all of you, that I also have much to thank Jesus for. I thank Jesus because he has given you to me especially the biblemode. I thank Jesus for your steadfast commitment to the rule of law. I thank Jesus for Congressman Benny’s speech that he will make on Monday on the rule of law. I thank Jesus for Benny Abante who has been a voice of reason and principles.

I thank Jesus that he has touched the hearts of our people not to seek the turmoil of the streets even though they’re not always happy. I thank Jesus that he touches the hearts of our people to keep to the rule of law, and to fight poverty not through tossing blame but through hard work.

I thank Dr. Janney for reminding us that our life is not futile because Jesus is there and he has saved us. Because our life is not futile, I guess each one of us has to examine what does the lord want each one of us to do as we go to this journey, to this temporary home, to our permanent home in heaven.

In my case, the Lord may be president. And since my very first day as president, I set broad economic, political and social reforms as my goal, as the mission that I see the Lord gave me to do in this temporary home. Because we are not in heaven, we are on earth and there is so much imperfection. I saw these goals as my contribution to the salvation of a country hurting from generations of poverty.

I need Jesus to continue to save us. Today our people seem to live in two countries: one, a country that is poised and equipped for economic take off with our budget deficit going down. But the other country is the one constantly held back by degenerating political structures where inquiries, supposed to be in aid of legislation, are used instead to harass and to bring down constituted authority. Structures that prevent us from achieving sustainable growth. And I ask the lord to continue the salvation that he’s made when he died on the cross for us to manifest itself that salvation in helping survive this degeneration.

We are here on our way to our permanent home. But as we go there, each one of us has a job to do. I have a job to do and because Jesus the Lord already died for us, he has given us the grace, the amazing grace that we need and I call upon that grace, the grace to do my job well.

I thank Jesus because he gives energy to me. And I thank Jesus because he gave me the support of congress. Because Jesus gave me the support of congress, my administration was able to pull off the first phase of our economic reforms. Now, we are on the second phase that will bring to our poor the schools, the water, the electricity, the health services and other benefits of the First Phase. And I call upon the Lord and I claim his salvation that we will be able to provide this to his poor.

I claim his salvation, even us and through the new challenges posed by the sky rocketing oil prices in the world market, we rely on God's amazing grace to complete a remaining economic reforms. I praise Jesus because his people are waking up to the call for political change to bring about permanent positive change.

And I praise Jesus and I call on Him and I claim His amazing grace for a fresh start for the nation, from the economic travails that are due not only to the challenges in the world but also the political storm that symbolizes the degenerated political system.

Even if I find that I have to govern in such a degenerated political system, I know and you refresh my memories, dear pastors and preachers, that his grace is sufficient.

I thank Jesus for giving us the grace that is sufficient. Sufficient for constant and open dialogue as an instrument to bridge the differences among us. Much of the things we have been doing together, together with the evangelical churches has been about the dialogue or inter-faith dialogue. Dialogue among the faiths, dialogue among the tribes, dialogue among the political ideologies that thrive in this land. And I ask Jesus to transform that dialogue into the unity we need to do his will on our road to heaven.

I know people await, await their blessings in heaven. At the same time, on this temporary journey towards heaven, our people also await governance that will deliver the nation from stagnation. And on my part, I claim the sufficient grace to be able to employ... Continue to employ dialogue in governance, to listen to the voice of the Filipino people just as I dialogue with god through prayer and discernment.

I was listening to the song of our young people tonight from U.P. and it said: "when I have no one to talk to, where do I go? Where do I turn?" that song is so meaningful to me because many times I am alone, I have no one to talk to, no one human to talk to. But I have someone who is always there to talk to, and if I pray hard enough I can even hear his silent voice in my ear.

And so tonight, before you who love Jesus and before you who have shown so often your love for me as your sister in Jesus, let me proclaim once again my trust is in the Lord Jesus and in his divine will.

Pray for me that his amazing grace will live in the work that I need to do for the Filipino people.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 8th Anniversary Celebration of the “Kaanak 1896”

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 8th Anniversary Celebration of the “Kaanak 1896”

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, September 30, 2005]

Dacal a salamat, Chairman Ambeth Ocampo, my Cabalen, chairman of the National Historical Institute.

General Aglipay, President of the Kaanak Foundation, thank you for organizing this very, very impressive affair today; Monsignor Cesar Solomon, thank you for being here and for leading our prayers as well as our bishop from the Aglipayan church, thank you for being here to represent... Ah, you're the great grandson of Isabelo Delos Reyes representing not only the Philippine Independent Church but also the beginning of the Philippine Labor Movement; Attorney Abaño, Vice President of the Kaanak Foundation, maraming salamat sa binasa niyong resolusyon ng suporta para sa inyong lingkod; other officials of the Philippine Government who are here today; officers and members of the Kaanak 1896 Foundation; nandito rin yung ating mga veterans sa Bulacan chapter, welcome to this affair; mga minamahal kong kababayan:

Isang malaking karangalan para sa malacañang at sa akin na maging panauhin ang mga kaanak ng mga bayani sa rebolusyon sa inyong ika-walong anibersaryo ngayon. Sabi nga ni Egay Aglipay, taun-taon kung puwede gusto kong narito tayong lahat, dahil ang Malacañang ay narito bilang simbolo ng ating republika dahil ang mga ninuno ninyo ang lumaban para sa ating republika.

Pinupuri ko kayo sa inyong pagsisikap. Yung mga sinasabi ninyong programa ni General Aglipay, nakita ko ang bunga ng inyong mga proyekto. Sabi nga ni Egay, isang ginagawa ng kaanak ay ipinagdidiriwang yung mahahalagang araw ng kasaysayan ng ating rebolusyon. Napakaganda para maalala naman ng ating bansa kung ano ang sakripisyong ginawa ng inyong mga ninuno para tayo ay maging isang bansa, isang sambayanan.

Yung pangalawang sinabi ni Egay, doon nagagalak ako lalo na kayo aktibong tumutulong upang buhayin sa ating mga kabataan ang pagmamahal sa bayan. Talagang importante na yung pagmamahal sa ating bayan bilang isang bansa, nationhood, ay hindi lamang nandoon sa inyong mga ninuno, hanggang sa inyo, hanggang dapat sa mga dumarating na henerasyon. At magandang proyekto yon ng ating kaanak. Congratulations! Sa inyo doon.

At yung kanina naman na pinahayag ninyo, maging sa diskurso ni General Aglipay, maging doon din sa resolusyong binasa ninyo, nagpapasalamat ako sa lahat ng suportang patuloy binibigay ninyo sa akin. Tulad ng nabanggit kanina ng inyong... At nagpapasalamat ako kay Egay sa pag-galvanize niya ng suporta bilang inyong kasalukuyang chairman at presidente. Si Egay talaga ang ganda ng kanyang leadership. Kanina...

Pag-usapan natin yung leadership. Kanina, Egay, kasi nanggaling ako sa Philippine National Police headquarters. Nagkaroon ng command conference at unang-unang presentation ng agenda item number one was the continuing transformation program of the PNP na ang nagsimula ay walang iba kundi si Chief PNP Edgardo Aglipay. In other words, Egay, para malaman mo, kahit na hindi ka na Chief PNP, yung mga programang sinimulaan mo, yon pa rin ang tinutupad ng PNP ngayon. Kaya congratulations!

So, I appreciate Egay for his leadership and I appreciate all of you for your true and sincere patriotism so worthy of your ancestors. And now again I ask for your support, as I put my foot down for the sake of the people, for the sake of enabling the government to work rather than be disabled by the politics of insult that are done in this inquiries in aid of destabilization, where the situation is manipulated by projecting speculation, hearsay and half truth as proven fact in contribution to those who would want to grab power.

Hindi nagwagi sa impeachment. Hindi nagwagi sa kalsada dahil na rin sa magandang disiplinang iniwan ni Egay sa magagaling na pulis. Ngayon, nililipat ang battleground sa senado. We have to put our foot down. And I ask you to stand and be counted as guardians of the law and civility in a democratic society that works for the people rather than impedes their prosperity.

Yes, we all want the truth, but the truth must be found in the forums where the rule of law is observed, where the rules of evidence are observed, where those accused have the right to present their own defense in accordance with time tested regulations. Kung hindi, ano ang nangyayari? Kangaroo court. Confusion leading to a situation where it's easy to have a power grab. Sayang naman yung pinagsakripisyo ng inyong mga ninuno.

Kaya ako ay nagpapasalamat na mayron tayong pagkakataon na magkasama ngayon. Napaka-importante ang kaanak. Yung ginagawa niyo para umiral yung ating sense of nationhood sa pamamagitan ng mga istorya tungkol sa mga ginawa ng inyong mga ninuno para sa ating bansa. Because what is the truth? The truth is that we are such a divided nation. It's like we are two Philippines, not one Philippines. The Philippines that is posed for economic take off, kaya yung ating unemployment rate bumababa, from 8.3 percent to 7.7 percent. Kaya yung ating growth rate ay mas mataas kaysa sa Malaysia, sa Korea, sa Taiwan. Kaya yung self-rated poverty ay bumababa rin from 57 percent three months ago to 49 percent in August. Pero sa kabila noon, is the other Philippines, the poisoned Philippines, the poisoned political system and manifested by those who seek in fact to use this situation to grab power. Hindi natin papayagan yon. Hindi natin papayagan malustay yung sakripisyo nung inyong mga ninuno.

And I am happy to be with you in kaanak. Eighth anniversary kayo ngayon bilang foundation pero matagal na rin itong kaanak. Naalala ko, buhay pa ang aking tatay, kasama ko siya, sumasama ako sa kanya doon sa Kawit, sa Los Baños. Noong ako ay naging senador, ako mismo ginawa niyong bisita, guest of honor sa bahay mismo ni Jose Rizal. Talagang para sa aming pamilya, kami ay kasama na rin sa kaanak.

Isang dahilan ay dahil yung tatay ko binibigyan ng malaking halaga ang ginawa ng inyong mga ninuno, kaya sinabi niya na ang tunay na araw ng ating kasarinlan ay hindi July 4, 1946 kung kailan nakuha natin ang independence natin through diplomatic missions, kung hindi yung June 12, 1898 kung saan dahil sa sakripisyo ng inyong mga ninuno, dineklara natin na tayo ay isang bansa at ipaglalaban natin yung ating kasarinlan kahit na magdanak ang ating dugo. At yon ang sinabi ng inyong mga ninuno.

Isang dahilan din kung bakit yung tatay ko ay parati ang feeling niya malapit siya sa kaanak ay dahil kami naman ay mga descendants ni lakandula na kinatatakutan ng mga kastila kaya tuloy hindi nila pinasok sa sovereignty ng kastila at hinayaan na maging autonomous fiefdom, hindi nagbabayad ng buwis, hindi nagbabayad ng cedula sa spanish government. Pero siguro dahil isa sa inyong mga pakay ay maikuwento yung mga istorya ng iba't-ibang mga ninuno. Kung puwede siguro maikuwento ko naman sa inyo ang istorya ng ninuno, hindi akin mismo kundi yung aking kaniyang na si Mike Arroyo na nakatira... Nandoon na sa amerika dahil gusto niya ngang mabawasan yung intriga sa aming pamilya. Ang lolo ng aking asawa ay si General Aniceto Lacson, at siya yung namuno ng rebolusyon doon sa Negros at nanalo yung kanyang revolutionary forces. Nagwagi kontra sa mga kastila kagaya ng ninuno nila Attorney Villegas, si General Malvar, nagwagi rin sa rebolusyon. Eh hindi pa tayo isang bansa noon. Maraming mga pockets of revolution na nanalo and they declared themselves as the president of that area. So Aniceto Lacson was declared as the president of that area. Hanggang dumating naman yung Philippine-American war kaya nahuli si Aguinaldo at lahat so nabalik tayo uli sa isang colonial master na pagkatapos nuon naman ang paglaban naman doon ay diplomatic initiatives.

Ang daming maikuwento ninyo. Yon ay naiikuwento ko at pag kami ay nagfa-family reunion, yon parati ang kinikuwento namin. Kinikuwento sa aming mga anak, sa aming mga apo. Siguro paglaki na rin nila ikuwento ganun din ang isang napakagandang gawain ng kaanak, storytelling about the great feats of our heroes.

Kasi yang dalawang bansang Pilipinas: yang bansang Pilipinas na ready for economic take-off, pero yung bansang pilipinas na nawawatak-watak dahil sa sobrang nabubulok na sistema ng pulitika, isang paraan kung papaano maging isang Pilipinas yan muli at maging isang bansa tayo muli ay ma-inspire tayo ng ginawa ng inyong mga ninuno so that we will be one nation — the Republic of the Philippines.

Kaya tamang-tama itong araw na ito na ating ipagdiriwang ang mga ginawa ng inyong mga ninuno, at inaasahan ko na ganun na nga, gaya ng sinabi ni Egay, taun-taon tayo ay sasama maalala natin yung mga ginawa ng inyong mga ninuno, ating mga ninuno at tayo ay magsusumpa sa kanila na yung bansang binuo nila ay sisikapin natin na talagang maging isang bansa — one nation.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Oath Taking of the Newly-Elected Officials of the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Oath Taking of the Newly-Elected Officials of the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, October 6, 2005]

Thank you, Secretary Ermita.

Regional Governor Ampatuan; Regional Vice-Governor Adiong; Regional Assembly men and women; our congressmen; governors; other officials from the different provinces and districts of the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao; excellencies of the diplomatic corps; others officials of the Philippine government; ladies and gentlemen.

Assalamu alaikum warahmatullahi warrabakatu!

Great imperatives mark our national horizon today. And in all of them, Muslim Mindanao plays a vital and indispensable role.

For one thing, there is the imperative of peace. The guns have been silenced in Mindanao and we are negotiating a peace settlement with the facilitation of Malaysia forged in honor, dignity and justice for all.

But one cannot speak of the peace process in Mindanao without mentioning the enduring role of Libya since the Tripoli agreement in 1976, Saudi Arabia that spearheaded the Jeddah Accord of 1987, Indonesia that led the OIC committee of the six and then the eight towards the signing of the Philippines-MNLF final peace agreement of 1996, and indeed the entire OIC for their support to our peace process.

Another great imperative is understanding among peoples. Interfaith dialogue is part of our comprehensive national development plan for peace and is our contribution to the United Nations.

Political change, economic stability, interfaith dialogue, the security of our homeland — all these are hallmarks of survival in this age and time, and all these greatly depend on what happens in Muslim Mindanao especially under the new leadership.

At this time, I am focused on the economy as we are hit by a storm of unabated oil price hikes. We are able to face this among other things because we have kept our fiscal house in order and spurts of growth are extant in the countryside. Our growth rate so far this year is in fact higher than some of our more prosperous neighbors.

The cycle of peace, economic growth and political stability must be pushed by the combined weight of leaders and constituencies, and this is the challenge placed before all of us today. We, in the national government, and you, in the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao.

The people are completely exhausted with politics when so much remains to be done in the nation and in that land of Mindanao.

The people want a government that brings better service to them on a local basis, with more power in the provinces. And that is why your autonomy is so important as a prototype for other autonomies. The people want more accountability by the politicians. The people want less power concentrated in Metro Manila.

The people are dissatisfied with the current form of government, though they are unsure of what type of government should replace it. They have fears and rightfully so, that there will be a rearranging of the deck chairs in the titanic, but that the boat will still sink.

I say that we need a new ship. But in the end the people will decide the charter change.

In the meantime, we must pass a national budget to help the poor with new schools, more rice and a better education. And what I am saying about the country as a whole is more crucial in Muslim Mindanao. And we must pass an anti-terrorism law that keeps the nation safe and strong. And I thank the governor, the autonomous region governor for his commitment to the fight against terrorism and also to the pursuit of the peace process. But we must all, national and autonomous governments, generate the revenue to pay down our debts so that our children live without fear of poverty.

I'm deeply concerned that the pressing issues of the people will be lost in the noise of our degenerated political system. I must repeat: we need a stronger, more responsive government to serve the people tomorrow; and we need a stronger, more caring solution to poverty today.

We cannot abandon our commitment to solve the problems of the people as we go about salvaging and even savaging institutions in this severely degenerated system.

So today, I issue these challenges:

One, to all supporters of charter change: please involve the people. The people must be heard.

Two, to certain senators: stop your mindless preoccupation with all things political and do something — pass our national budget, create jobs, build up stockpiles of rice, bring health insurance to the poor, construct new schools, stop your wrangling and get to work. Time is wasting as the people suffer.

Three, to members of the business community: Get the economy moving. Be part of the solution, not part of the problem. Get off the sidelines and onto the field. Roll up your sleeves and join us in public-private sector partnerships to solve the nation's problems.

And of course, to our newly inducted officials of the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao: all that we are calling ourselves to do in the country, in the national government, in the national scene, you are also challenged to do in your autonomous region.

We cannot expect things to happen overnight. But given time, we in the nation as a whole, and you in the autonomous region will prevail over seemingly insurmountable odds.

I say this with great affection and sentiment because as a child growing up in Mindanao, in Lanao, I personally saw the plight of our countrymen in this land of promise. I consider it my filial duty and my duty now as your sister to work hard with you to fulfill that promise.

Once again to all of you, congratulations! And in this holy month of Ramadan, we especially pray for your great success.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 14th Anniversary of the Local Government Code Theme: “Kilos Lokal, Asenso Nasyonal”

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 14th Anniversary of the Local Government Code Theme: “Kilos Lokal, Asenso Nasyonal”

[Delivered at the Centennial Hall, Manila Hotel, October 10, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Secretary Angelo Reyes, secretary of DILG.

Congratulations! Governor Aumentado sa imo nga maayong presentasyon sa “Kilos Asenso,” sa imong liderato, sa ULAP ug sa... Ubos sa imo nga liderato ang suporta ninyo kanako kanunay, salamat; Mayor Lito Atienza, ang ating host mayor at pangulo ng Metro Manila Mayors League, maraming salamat din, at congratulations sa pagpanalo ni Bobby Pacquiao. Eto mga Pacquiao brothers ang unang training nila ay ginanap dito sa City of Maynila kaya malapit na malapit sila kay Mayor Atienza; Mayor Ramon Guico and all the Municipal Mayors of the Philippines who are here today; Mayor Jerry Treñas and all the City Mayors who are here today; Vice Governor Julius Herrera and all the Vice Governors who are here today; vice Mayor Jessie Cruz and all of the vice mayors who are here today; Councilor Carlo Fortuna and all the councilors who are here today; James Marty Lim and all of the barangay officials who are here today; board member Piccio –saan yung ating Santa Claus? Saan? — and all of the board members who are here today; our Cabinet members who are here aside from Secretary Reyes, we have Secretary Neri, Secretary Favila, Secretary Ampatuan I think, Acting Secretary Pangandaman. I don’t know who else are here but thank you to all of you; Mayor Sarmiento, Secretary General, thank you for emceeding this occasion; Mayor Oca Rodriguez; other officials and members of the ULAP and local governments; guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Una sa lahat, mabuhay ang pamahalaang lokal!

And as Angie Reyes described me, I am dead serious in taking the power from the center of governance, from Metro Manila to the countryside that feeds it. Kaya naman hindi ko dinadamutan ang inyong IRA. Buo kong binibigay taun-taon sa sapat na panahon. Binabayaran ko pa yung utang sa inyo ng mga nakaraang administrasyon. And now, we will return to our LGUs through programmed monetization the unprogrammed funds that should have been part of your 2000 and 2001 IRA.

Congratulations! To the league of cities for what you presented today, your new partnership with the world bank for strategic planning, governance and resource mobilization. Keep the flame burning dahil ang national government may deficit, sinisikap na bawasan ang utang, ang mga local governments may surplus so kayo na ang gumamit ng mga credit facilities available to the national government.

At higit sa lahat, mabuhay!! Ang mga LGU sa pag-unlad, paglunsad ng “Kilos Asenso: Building Prosperity from Community to Community.” Thank you for aligning your programs through “Kilos Asenso” with our Medium-Term Philippine Development plan highlighted by our 10-point program. Thank you for keeping faith with our common vision. And because we appreciate you so much, as Governor Aumentado acknowledged earlier, we have put our national counterpart in the national budget for 2006.

Yon yung sinasabi nilang media na pork barrel raw ng local government. Hindi yon pork, ang problema naman eh pag maglalagay ng infrastructure at social services ang tawag pork barrel tuloy. Anong gusto nila, panay suweldo na lang ang ating budget? Kung suweldo lamang ang ating budget aasenso ba ang ating bansa? Kailangan programmed funds. And we thank the LGUs for activating “Kilos Asenso.” We thank you for your leadership.

Gamitin natin ang “Kilos Asenso” upang ipairal ang mga pamuhunan para lumikha ng sampung milyong trabaho. Kasama na dito microfinance. This year, almost one billion pesos of microfinance has been released to various regional and provincial conduits that will relend money to micro-entrepreneurs. Gamitin din natin ang “Kilos Asenso” upang suportahan ito upang makasuporta tayo sa tatlong milyong maliliit na pansariling negosyo at saka upang makaabot tayo sa dalawang milyong ektarya ng agri-business. Yon nga ang nilagay sa programa yung mga farm-to-market roads, yung mga bagay na yon ay para makabukas tayo ng dalawang milyong ektaryang lupa sa agri-business.

I would also like to thank you not only for the support that you have expressed earlier, halimbawa, salamat sa inyong suporta sa EO 464 — this is constitutional and it promotes the healthy separation and equality of powers among branches in government.

But not only that, even in the past, you have supported the national government. I remember in 2004 when I announced an austerity program to avert a fiscal meltdown you the local governments immediately responded with various proposals to cut your own spending and to raise your own revenues. I appreciate your spirit of sacrifice and volunteerism. Salamat sa inyo.

Salamat na rin sa mga batas na napasa, naiwasan natin ang krisis sa pananalapi at nagawa natin ang unang yugto ng ating reporma sa ekonomiya. This first phase is revenue build-up. And as we are implementing the revenue build-up, I ask you once more to be in the frontline to explain to the people the sacrifice we have to make in the short run with regard to paying more taxes. Sana tulungan niyo ako magpaliwanag sa kanila na ang dagdag na buwis ang siyang makakabigay ng eskwela, tubig, kuryente sa barangay, pautang sa maliliit na negosyo, imprastrukturang mag-eengganyo sa namumuhanang magbibigay ng trabaho. Ang dagdag na buwis ang siyang nakakagawa ng paraan para makalagay tayo ng national government counterpart sa budget sa “Kilos Asenso.”

And now the world suffers from many things including high oil prices. There is a new round of oil price hikes. And we should be proud and thankful that so far our country has been one of the 26 countries, out of 200 countries in the world, with the lowest fuel price increases even if we import oil. Thus, it is important because we are heavily dependent on imported oil. It is important to realize that even if we’re one of the 26 lowest countries with an oil price increase more oil prices may come.

And you once again are at the vanguard of price stabilization and I acknowledge your contribution in managing the threshold of affordability at the level of mass consumers.

I ask you to help us not only in price stabilization but also in our initiatives to lessen dependence on imported fuel oil by helping us develop ethanol, biomass, wind power, hydro power, geothermal power and other alternative fuels, and to facilitate oil and gas exploration in your jurisdictions.

I also call on you and all sectors to strengthen our energy conservation against the backdrop of strict implementation of the Government EnerCon Program. Alam niyo doon sa Malacañang tuwing pumapasok ako sa isang silid at giniginaw ako sabi ko, hindi yata 25 degrees ang ating air conditioning. Kaya dapat istrikto ang lahat. And I call on the LGUs once again to take the leadership role there.

And as for our legislators, I reiterate our call to them to approve the indigenous fuel bill.

Kayo mga local governments, meron na kayong special na trabaho para labanan ang terorismo and watch over the threat of avian flu. Sa terorismo when we developed a 14-point program to fight terrorism in the country and in the Asean region, that was way back in late 2001, you were among the frontliners. Indeed, in the avian flu, in the terrorism fight, in price stabilization, in the fiscal reforms, in everything, the LGU phenomenon is emerging as the saving grace of our burdened nation, and I thank you for that.

And that is why I reaffirm our commitment to reward LGUs with greater powers that are due to you via revolutionary constitutional change.

Salamat sa inyo na kayo ay napakaaktibo sa ating Consultative Constitutional Commission. At inaasahan ko na bagamat meron diyang mga vested interest na sila ay sinisikap na huwag magtagumpay ang ating systemic change, dahil nandiyan kayo, tayo ay magtatagumpay.

Mabuhay ang pamahalaang lokal!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 31st Philippine Business Conference and Exposition

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 31st Philippine Business Conference and Exposition

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, Manila City, October 13, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you very much. Thank you for your warm applause.

Thank you, Secretary Favila for introducing me.

Ambassador Donald Dee, congratulations! On a fruitful year especially your innovative 20 SME projects that support our goal to develop three million entrepreneurs and two million hectares of land for agri-business. Truly, we are working together. Congratulations, Donald!

Congratulations! George for chairing this very successful conference. I understand you had two full, very fruitful, very constructive days, and I thank you for giving me the results of your conference.

I'd like to greet the other leaders of the chamber, and I'd like to greet and thank Francis Chua for his opening remarks. Thank you Francis for referring to what I said last week, asking the businessmen to be part of the solution rather than part of the problem. What I can say about the PCCI and the FFCCI, you are part of the solution. Thank you.

Excellencies of the diplomatic corps; our very distinguished awardees who are truly deserving of the awards they have received today; our officials, elective officials, there are many of them here in this hall today aside from the awardees, we have Congresswoman Janette Garin and Congresswoman Martin Petilla, thank you for your interest in the affairs of the business community; ladies and gentlemen.

I am really very gratified to be here with you once again today. The men and women in this room fuel the economic engine that drives this nation forward. You represent the Philippines that works: strong, growing, efficient, providing economic opportunity for yourselves and the nation.

I cannot erase poverty without you and the great economic engine of growth which global engagement brings.

You've heard me talk about two Philippines: one that works to create jobs, grows the economy and maintains strong economic fundamentals — that's you. And of that the Philippines should be proud and supportive.

Yet, it's the other Philippines that doesn't work that troubles me deeply, and I am sure it troubles you as well. This is the Philippines whose political system drags down the economic takeoff and makes millions lose hope. This is the Philippines of degenerated politics and a broken system that is setting the nation back rather than moving it ahead.

The theme of your conference couldn't be more appropriate to underscore the hope and peril of the Philippines today. I have heard PCCI always talk about 'One Global Filipino' and now 'new boundaries,' 'crossing boundaries.' we truly and should be one nation — one global Filipino. And yes, we should cross boundaries that take the nation into bold new arenas in our economic, social and political life.

During my presidency of the past four years, I truly believe I have opened up new horizons for the nation in the international arena; I have carved a place for the Philippines at the table of global players.

The results are seen in many ways: increased investments in the nation by foreign investors. Peter? 52 percent increase this year over last year in direct investments. And in portfolio investments, 13 times more this year than last year; billions in assistance from the United States in development aid, military assistance and anti-terrorism cooperation; remarkable help from Malaysia, the OIC nations and others to negotiate and support a lasting peace in Mindanao; interest from Japan and Daly City. I want to welcome our delegation from Japan and Daly City; and our leadership at the United Nations Security Council — not only our chairmanship during the last summit last September but also our standing chairmanship of the terrorism sanctions subcommittee of the U.N. Security Council.

I've been aggressive in restoring the Philippine reputation and presence in the international arena because it's good for business, good for our security, and good for jobs for our people.

And here at home, despite the naysayers and noise makers, we have made significant progress especially with you. As I said, investments are up; the peso is stable; tax revenue is up and growing; our fiscal plan is way ahead of target, about 30 billion pesos ahead of target; we have created four million jobs in the last four years.

Yet, for every step forward we make in reshaping our nation's image and in promoting our great Filipino worker abroad and at home, someone in the nation finds a way to undercut those advantages.

I now speak directly to those critics and opposition leaders and destabilizers who would put politics above the people; who would besmirch the reputation of our great nation with our friends and allies abroad to fuel their own political agenda here at home.

To those who oppose me, it's your right to do so, as long as it's a matter of fiscalization. But power grab and ouster are another matter. Please, stop opposing the progress of the nation in the meantime in your unquenchable thirst for power. Stop undermining our relations with the United States and other allies through conspiracies to gather foreign intelligence. Stop luring good global Filipinos into taking actions that are an embarrassment to the nation and to Philippine pride.

For me, crossing boundaries suggested in your title means unlimited opportunity of engagement in the world, to help promote the nation and build up our reputation and the reputation of our fine Filipino worker, both here and abroad.

I daresay, however, for my destabilizers, crossing boundaries means... Takes on a new meaning: they cross boundaries when it comes to satisfying their lust for power. Meddling with espionage with a foreign power to undermine our nation is crossing the line. It's dangerous. More important, it's besmirching the name of our people and our nation at a time when we are gaining momentum economically.

More important still is the preoccupation of political opponents with power grab rather than just fiscalizing when we have an economy to run, people to feed and a nation to protect.

Let me take this opportunity to thank Senator Manny Villar for sponsoring at last the anti-terrorism bill last night. Would it be a miracle if the senate focused as much time on passing anti-terrorism legislation as promoting one investigation after another based on half-truths and speculation masquerading as facts? And would it be a miracle if their main answer to bolster anti-terrorism is not to lock up our national security adviser. Locking up our national security adviser as a response to anti-terrorism, I'm sure our Abu Sayyaf foes are taking cover with that decisive act.

And we have a national budget to pass to strengthen education, create jobs, provide extended health care coverage and fulfill our promise to the people.

I hope the Senate doesn't drag its feet.

While I'm trying to unlock the congestion of Metro Manila and open up the nation to easier transportation for people and goods, some senators are trying to create a train wreck.

What signal does that send to the world?

What confidence does that provide to the marketplace?

What help does that bring to the poor?

I'm here today among you who make the 'One Philippines' run to affirm my political independence from the 'other Philippines' from the politics of degeneration. We must open up our political system; we must bring greater accountability to the people; and we must bring more power to the provinces and to the countryside that feeds the center.

And I thank you the chamber for cooperating and in fact sometimes taking the lead in that effort.

And we must believe we can do the system change and demonstrate confidence along with results. You, the people in this room and the people of the whole nation deserve better than what they're getting from our politicians today.

And so I ask you, movers and shakers of the business community to continue to join me to chart a new, independent course for the nation, free from pettiness, free from the past, free to open a new chapter in our political, economic and social life.

Mabuhay and PCCI!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 48th Charter Anniversary Symposium of the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines (RBAP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 48th Charter Anniversary Symposium of the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines
(RBAP)

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Century Park Hotel Malate, Manila, October 20, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Teves.

General Hotchkiss, congratulations! On this convention. And I'd like to take this opportunity to congratulate you personally for your successful transformation from a successful military officer to a successful banker. Congratulations!

Other officers and members of the Rural Bankers association of the Philippines, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

Actually, I was in Camiguin yesterday and I'm suppose to go to Leyte today. I should have just slept in Camiguin and gone to Leyte but it was very important when I received the invitation of General Hotchkiss that I should be here with you today. And so I'm very happy to be here with you.

Why not only because I wanted the opportunity to give moral support to General Hotchkiss and all the things that he has to do especially now that I find out that your articles of incorporation will expire in two years but also because you, the Rural Bankers are at the forefront of turning this nation around. You, the Rural Bankers are in touch with real people with real problems. You, the Rural Bankers provide the necessary resources to help our rural citizens grow and prosper.

The backbone of our nation is the farmer. The farmer who toils in the field and in the community everyday, fighting to bring a good and decent life for themselves and their families. And you serve that farmer.

I have said, especially in my State of the Nation Address, that I want to bring more power to the people. And that's why you are important. Nothing could be more central to our economic and political life than to empower the people to be more self-sufficient, more prosperous, more involved in civic life. And you enable them to be that.

The Rural Bankers in this room are working tirelessly to make life easier, more productive, more full of hope for millions of rural Filipinos. These rural Filipinos rely on you and your partnership with government to provide the economic tools they need to grow their crops as well as grow their incomes.

As an economist, I firmly believe in our joint micro-lending programs and the power it brings to the people. Our new revenue measures — and I congratulate Gary Teves for all his work to now be able to implement these revenue measures — they will entail some sacrifice in the short run but they will entail lasting rewards in the form of more jobs and livelihood opportunities, better social services, more infrastructure, less debt, and more and better financing for rural programs.

This bigger budget enabled by the new revenues, it will give us a hundred twenty billion pesos next year, right Gary? Eighty two at first but eventually a hundred twenty. And what does that mean? That is an unprecedented increase in a generation's time. This will benefit the people in this room and it will benefit the millions of farmers you help every single day.

Unfortunately, the politics of destruction and destabilization keeps getting in the way of that progress we should be looking forward to.

Having survived the elements of destabilization wave after wave, it's our mission now, the duty of this generation of leaders, and bankers, and entrepreneurs, and their financiers to build finally a strong Philippine republic in the 21st century. A strong republic, a republic so strong that it can defend the poorest, the weakest of Filipinos.

Time and again I have said that my vision and common sense and plain talk in my State of the Nation Address in 2002 is made up of the common man's aspirations — edukasyon. Sariling tahanan. Pagkain sa bawat mesa.

We cannot tarry any longer in pursuing that aspiration of the common man by staying as a soft state. The first half of the first decade of this century has seen the winds of globalization grow stronger each day. The ship of the Philippine state must be robust and resilient enough to unfurl its sails to ride those winds rather than toppling under their force.

A strong republic that will make the Philippines a first world country in 20 years with a permanent environment conducive to sustained wealth creation — that is our dream and we must set the foundations today.

An effective state must help its poor and weakest citizens, empower them and reform the structures that make them poor and weak. And as you review your charter, it is also time for the Philippines to review its national charter.

And most of all, an effective government rests on enforcing justice without fear or favor for all, not just the powerful. This is the only way to create a permanent environment, as I said, for wealth creation for all generations.

Only a strong republic can drive a vigorous free-enterprise economy in which you thrive, where Filipinos full talents are unleashed. A state that cowers in fear before the mob cannot stand for long.

You, the Rural Bankers and the men and women in agriculture whom you serve are the untold success story of our nation. But to continue and grow your success you need an environment of peace and order. You need an environment of stability. You get up every day, you work hard everyday, you play by the rules everyday. We owe you our deepest gratitude for your hard work in behalf of the nation.

I said in my State of the Nation Address that our country is so divided it's like there are two Philippines. There is a Philippines that works and that is the economy on the verge of take off. And you the rural bankers who serve the farmers and who finance the countryside are part of that Philippines that works. But your success will be dragged down if we allow the other Philippines to continue not to work.

And so it is in behalf of the grateful nation that I will work. In behalf of the grateful nation to you, grateful to you that we must work to strengthen that other part that we call the Philippines as well. And it is in behalf of the grateful nation that as we work to strengthen our republic, today, I salute you for putting the people first and the nation above all else.

May you be successful in carrying out the agenda that you have set for your convention for the future of rural banking as we also work on the future of an environment in which you will thrive.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Philippine Council of Evangelical Churches, Inc. Women of Blessing Grand Rally 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Philippine Council of Evangelical Churches, Inc. Women of Blessing Grand Rally 2005

[Delivered at the Cuneta Astrodome, Pasay City, October 22, 2005]

Thank you very much.

Thank you very much, Bishop Tendero. Thank you for inviting me here to be with you. Thank you for introducing me. Thank you for being a member of the Constitutional Consultative Commission to draft our new charter. And congratulations to you and Mrs. Tendero on your silver wedding anniversary.

Mayor Trinidad and Mrs. Trinidad, Mrs. Tolentino, Mrs. Cadiang — well, I've already greeted Mrs. Tendero — thank you for joining us in the Inter-faith Summit that was held in Cebu a couple of weeks ago.

Sa inyong lahat mga kababaihan ng PCEC sa Luzon, extraordinary women, katangi-tanging mga kababaihan, purihin natin ang Panginoon sa napakaraming katangi-tanging kababaihan. You are extraordinary women, women of blessing. Kasama kayo na higit na binasbasan sa mga kababaihan ng ating bansa dahil ginagamit ninyo ang talentong bigay ng Panginoon para maglingkod sa Diyos at maglingkod sa taong-bayan.

Lahat kayo ay extraordinary, katangi-tangi dahil pinili ninyong lumakad sa lansangan ng Diyos at magdala ng kaniyang biyaya sa lipunang Pilipinas.

Ngayon samahan ninyo akong manalangin sa Panginoon, una bilang pagsamba. Many of us — no, not you — many ordinary folk pray when they want to ask for something, but we must pray first and foremost to worship the Lord. Naalala ko nandito ako kasama ninyo nung 1999. Bise presidente pa ako noon. Kaya ngayon salamat sa pagkakataon na tayo ay magkasama muli na ako'y pangulo at kasama tayong manalangin una sa pagsamba at pangalawa para magpasalamat sa diyos sa kanyang mga biyayang madalas kinalilimutan natin na bigyan ng diin kasi binibigyan natin ng diin ang ating mga daing.

Let us thank the Lord, for instance, that the peso has hit a 3-month high against the dollar yesterday in a highly “energized” market otherwise hampered by street protests. This peso hit a 3-month high because our dollar reserves are at their historic high and we thank the Lord for that.

Our economy continues to look up because with the grace of God this government is closely and consistently focused on the economy. As we are poised for the implementation of tax reform with strong safety nets, global confidence in the Philippines is resurgent. Nomura international, yung importanteng credit rating agency ng Japan, na siya naman ang pinakamalaking nagpapautang sa atin has upgraded its investment recommendation of the Philippine bonds from underweight — dati underweight ang ating bond kaya ang taas-taas ng interes na binabayaran natin — to neutral. Kaya ngayon tayo ay kapantay na ng maraming mga humihiram sa Japan.

The foreign press is taking a keen second look at our prospects for stability and growth. Yung ating gross domestic product, yung sukat ng ating produksyon for the third quarter is expected to be stable at 5 percent over the same period last year despite the political noise. We've created the mineral development council, an inter-agency to oversee the development of the country's mineral resources by inviting reputable investments to bring in more jobs. Yung Dell, isa sa pinakamalaking at importanteng call center or customer care agency sa buong mundo has announced that it is setting up a major customer call center in the Philippines, kasama ng napakaraming naglalagay na rito. And we must seize every moment for future prosperity. We are at the threshold of an economic take off and every sector of the society must focus more weight on building the momentum for growth.

Pag sinasabi natin bawat sektor ay dapat magbigay ng mas mabigat na pansin para matuloy ang momentum ng kaunlaran, kasama sa mga sektor na ito ang sektor ng kababaihan.

Nagpapasalamat ako sa Panginoon na may katangi-tanging kababaihan, kagaya ng mga kababaihang narito ngayon, kayo, at kagaya ng ating mga kababaihang pulis na kahapon pinakita ang pasiyensya at tinanggap ang karahasan, bugbog at sugat sa kalsada upang mapa-iral ang batas at katiwasayan.

Kinokondena ko yung mga sadyang nanakit sa kanila at sa ibang mga pulis maging mga lalaki na tumutupad naman sa maximum tolerance. Itong mga taksil kunyari may dala-dalang flagpole, iyon pala yung flagpole nila ay mga spears, mga sandatang hinagis nila sa mga pulis. Nakita natin sa telebisyon, di ba? Yung malalim at malapad na sugat nung pulis na nabiktima. Yan lamang ay senyas that we must strengthen our republic. Thank you.

Tinuturing ko... Tinuturing ko ang aking pagka-pangulo bilang misyon na bigay ng Panginoon sa akin upang makatulong labanan ang kahirapan at labanan ang mga elementong nagpapahina sa ating republika na pumipigil tuloy doon sa ating economic take off.

Sa Panginoon ako lumingon noong nakita ko ang mga problema ng ating kahirapan na lumulubha dahil mahina ang ating republika, at dahil mahina ang ating republika natatakot tayong pondohan ang kailangan ng taumbayan para sa kaunlaran at personal na pangangailangan ng mga pamilya kaya tuloy kung kailangan natin pondohan yung mga yon utang tayo ng utang. Natatakot tayo gumawa ng sariling reporma sa ating ekonomiya para makaya natin gastusan sa sariling sikap. Masyadong mahina tayo para umasa sa ating sariling kakayahan para pondohan ang pangangailangan ng ating kaunlaran. Kaya tuloy nababaon sa utang. Yon ay nakita kong dilemma nung ako ay naging pangulo.

Kasi nung ako ay nandito noong 1999, ang ginhawa ng aking tungkulin. At that time, in fact, number one ako sa performance rating at satisfaction sa lahat ng mga public officials and public figures. Pero ngayon malubha at mabigat ang aking kalagayan, at lalong kailangan pang lumingon sa Panginoon.

Lumingon ako sa Panginoon nung nagdesisyon akong gawin ang mahihirap na reporma sa sistema sa pulitika at sa ekonomiya. Salamat nga na tinanggap ni Bishop Tondero ang pag-unlak ko sa kanya na sumama dito sa kung papaano gagawin natin ang reporma sa ating pulitika. Kinailangan din at lumingon din ako sa Panginoon para magkaroon ng lakas na loob na gawin yung mga repormang kailangan para sa ekonomiya na mangangailangan muna ng sakripisyo ngunit sa wakas ito ang magbibigay sa atin ng sariling kakayahan para makamit ang pangangailangan ng taumbayan — trabaho; imprastruktura na magpapaakit ng mga namumuhunan, na sila naman ang nagbibigay ng trabaho; sapat na silid-aralan para sa ating mga estudyante; irigasyon; pagkain sa bawat mesa; kuryente sa bawat barangay; malinis na tubig sa bawat bayan; gamot na abot-kaya; kapital para sa negosyo. Hindi lamang para sa malalaking negosyante para pati na rin sa mga maliliit na negosyante kagaya ng microfinance.

Binanggit ko espesyal ang microfinance dahil ito ay isang pwedeng magawa ng ating katangi-tanging kababaihan sa paglingkod sa panginoon at paglingkod sa lipunan. Ang microfinance ay nakatulong na sa dalawang milyong kababaihan mula nagsimula yung aking administrasyon noong 2001. Gusto pa nating suportahan ang tatlong milyong maliliit na kababaihan magkaroon ng sariling negosyong maliit. Itong maliliit na pautang, microfinance, pinakamalaki dito ay 100,000 pesos na eh. Pero karaniwan 3,000 pesos sa isang kababaihan. Pero marami tayong kasaysayan na three years ago napahiraman ng 3,000 para sa isang tricycle, ngayon may fleet of tricycles na. Yan ang success story nitong mga microfinance.

Itong mga microfinance ay halos lahat kababaihan. Itong microfinance 98 percent ang payment rate. Mas malaki pa sa payment rate ng mga malalaking pautang sa bangko. Itong microfinance malaki ang repayment rate kahit na walang collateral karaniwan. Ano ang halip sa collateral na ginagamit sa microfinance? Itong microfinance ang ginagamit sa halip ng collateral ay yung pagkakaisa at mga asal. Pagkakaisa kasi limang kababaihan magkakaran ng joint obligation. Utang ng isa, utang ng lahat. Kaya sila-sila ay magsisigurado na babayaran ang utang. At higit diyan ang kaibahan sa malalaking utang na may collateral ang halip sa collateral ay yung values formation na dinidiin sa mga humihiram ang asal ng obligasyon. Naalala ko dito sa Pasay City, di ba Mayor Trinidad? Nagpunta tayo doon sa isang microfinance center na ang conduit ay yung center for transformation, isang christian group, 98 percent repayment, joint obligation and napakalakas ng values formation dahil kada... Or regular yung prayer meeting at pagdasal sa Panginoon.

Kaya kayong katangi-tanging kababaihan marami sa inyo palagay ko ay narito na sa microfinance at marami pang pwedeng maging conduit ng microfinance dahil nga yan ang ating sinisikap na papel ng kababaihan sa ating hinahangad na kaunlaran.

At dahil kayo ay mga kristiyanong kababaihan hindi lamang ang inyong pagpa-iral ng microfinance ang ating hinihingi kung hindi na rin ang inyong tuloy na dasal habang sinisikap ko ang pagpatupad ng katiwasayan, sinisikap ko ipairal ang mga programang lalaban sa kahirapan in order to strengthen our state and build a strong republic that can take care of the weakest of its citizens. At habang hinahanda ko kagabi kung ano nga itong hihilingin ko sa inyo, at ito na nga, ang pumasok sa akin ay yung mensahe ng Panginoon — “Whatever you do to the least of your brethren, you do it to me.”

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat, extraordinary women, women of blessing, mabuhay!

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Opening Ceremonies of the Entrepreneurship and Basic Education Conference

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening Ceremonies of the Entrepreneurship and Basic Education Conference

[Delivered at the Main Lounge, Manila Polo Club, McKinley Road Forbes Park, Makati City, October 25, 2005]

Thank you, Secretary Hidalgo.

Other officials of the Philippine government, many of whom I see here in this hall today; Joey Concepcion and all our other trustees helping us to develop entrepreneurs; Mrs Socorro Ramos, the living symbol of entrepreneurship in the Philippines congratulations! On all the honors you brought the country; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Entrepreneurship, I first heard of that term when I was studying economics. I remember in economics class it said that there are four factors of production — land, labor, capital and entrepreneurship. Land means all the natural resources; labor means our skills and also our muscle; capital means the man-made factors of production. But these three resources won't produce anything unless there's an entrepreneur to put them together.

And it said also that an entrepreneur is one who not just transforms these three factors of actual production, there are also inventions that go on in the world of science. An entrepreneur is the one who brings these inventions to commercial use and that is called innovation. So, the entrepreneur is an innovator. And because the entrepreneur does these things — puts factors of production together to produce something; transforms inventions into innovations — an entrepreneur must essentially be a risk-taker.

And that's the difference between an entrepreneur and a manager who becomes just part of labor.

And given this definition and description of an entrepreneur, indeed, we can only agree that entrepreneurship is not only the key to economic growth and stability, it's the ultimate solution to poverty. Because without entrepreneurs there can be no production; without entrepreneurs there can be no innovation; without entrepreneurs there can be no risk-taking. And if there is no risk-taking, well, no guts, no glory; no moving forward for a country.

That's why in my inaugural address last year, I made it a point that in the number one item of my Ten-point legacy agenda, I said, that we must develop three million entrepreneurs up to 2010. That's only up to 2010. We must develop even more entrepreneurs beyond 2010. And what we are promoting here today will develop those entrepreneurs into the next generation — education for entrepreneurship in basic education. And that's why I'm glad to join you today on this occasion celebrating, promoting Entrepreneurship Training in Basic Education.

I made it a point when I assume the presidency way back in 2001, to put substance in every act of governance. And the most important substance is wealth and job creation. And this has been my business to this day.

When Joey was talking about how we need leaders to inspire, and that's why we need entrepreneurs, and that's the difference between managers and entrepreneurs. But when Joey was describing why some would hesitate to become entrepreneurs it's because they're afraid to take the risk especially the risk of losing capital.

I know the meaning because I know what it takes to take risk and to risk losing capital. In my case, I have taken the risk to lose my political capital just to do what's right for our future generation.

In my State of the Nation Address last July, I said, that the Philippines is divided into a degenerated political system and an economy that is poised for take off. As we prepare for Christmas and as we celebrate entrepreneurship in basic education campus on this day, let our spirits be buoyed, but the World Bank study that places Philippines skilled workers as the world second largest population of skilled workers. So much resources for the entrepreneur to work with.

Let's also be buoyed up in our spirits by the news that OFW money is lifting many families out of poverty. In the past, we used to expect seven, eight billion dollars from them. This year, they will be bringing in 10 billion dollars to our Philippine economy. Twenty eight percent increase, I think, over last year.

Where does their money go? It's sends their children and nieces and nephews to school; it provides, yes, capital for the entrepreneurship of the younger brother or cousin, retired cousin; it provides school buildings for their community where we can have a campus that trains our young entrepreneurs.

Let's also be buoyed up in our spirits by the hope that the PNOC oil exploration concessions in countries like Gambia and equatorial Guinea may be a glimmer of light at the end of our oil difficulties. Yes, there is good news for Christmas. And an entrepreneur must look at the good news and not be bogged down by the bad news. And let's prepare for the New Year. Not only for the New Year but for the new generation.

Let our vision soar to reforming the whole system to change in the constitution for the good of the nation because that's for the next generation. And as we look upon renewal let's begin by reconciling the nation with God.

This month is a month when we have the days of prayers, and I shall soon declare in accordance with this day of prayer, a week of prayer, a period of national renewal. For Catholics, I would advocate a nationwide program whereby all will undertake the sacrament of penance and reconciliation. For Muslims, we are in Ramadan even now and I ask them to offer this annual fast for reconciliation with God. For other denominations, I hope they will begin a similar program in their churches. In this time of prayer, we as a society must seek guidance from and concentrate our efforts to God.

In this period of renewal, we shall direct the focus of government so that its bureaucracy will become more responsible to the call and needs of the time and the needs of ordinary Filipinos and ordinary entrepreneurs. This may mean amending the objectives of my executive order on government reengineering, and the issuance of an enabling executive order that will allow frontline agencies to operate in an emergency or state of calamity mode.

I am going to reorganize what is called the Presidential Commission on Effective Governance — I inherited that body — I will reorganize it precisely to study these frontline services. And I will be asking my Deputy National Security Adviser Virtus Gil to head this study on frontline services. And I will ask our trustees consultants to help him out to identify a day in the life or a week in the life or a month in the life of an ordinary entrepreneur; what are the frontline agencies that entrepreneur must deal with; where are his difficulties, and this would be what we will have to reenergize.

I'm also calling for a clean up drive in all provincial capitols and municipalities. I shall ask Governor El Rey Villafuerte to help us communicate that to the local governments and offices of the government to signal a fresh start, back-to-work attitude and atmosphere. As said by our speakers earlier, we must shape an environment that's conducive — this is what they call the "broken glass theory." We have to make the physical environment mood not just the frontline bureaucracy environment. We must make the physical and bureaucratic environment conducive to wealth creation with the goal of being first world in 20 years. Not that we will be the ones running the government in 20 years, but we have to have a goal for our children that we would like them to enjoy when they are the entrepreneurs in 20 years and there are seeds that we must plant today.

So I ask you, the entrepreneurs, and Joey Concepcion and our trustees, our moving spirits, to help me mobilize the whole of Philippine society, starting with the pillars of business in Metro Manila, Cebu, Davao. The national capital region should be projected simply as Manila and metropolis compared to Bangkok, Singapore or Hongkong for the purpose of internationally branding Manila as a major tourist destination. This will entail massive decongestion, face lifting and urban renewal efforts.

Towards the north, Vice-President Noli de Castro is already decongesting the Northrail area. And I have asked the MMDA Chair BF Fernando to especially intensify the face lifting and urban renewal in what we call the investor and creditor corridor, the routes that investors pass all the time when they're thinking of whether they should invest in the Philippines. The route that creditors pass all the time when they are thinking whether we'll have the ability to pay our debt back. And these are the routes from the airport to the hotels, from the hotels to Malacañang, from the hotels to Calabarzon. These are primary areas for urban renewal and face lifting.

To decongest Metro Manila — or what we should call Manila — we must also connect at last LRT1 to MRT 3 so that we will have a complete computer train loop. Right now that computer train is U-shaped. We want to make it O-shaped so that you can get on anywhere and get off anywhere in the metropolis.

In my inaugural address last year, I did say that I want to decongest Metro Manila, and for that purpose, we will develop northward and southward. North, what we will make Clark and Subic the best service and logistics hub in the region. One year after I said that in my inaugural address last year, let's review what we've been able to do. The north expressway has been upgraded; the McArthur highway is being upgraded, rehabilitated; the Subic port and the Tarlac-Clark-Subic road are under construction; the Clark airport has about 35 flights a week. It will have 50 flights a week by December; and thank God, the case against Northrail has been thrown out by the supreme court. One year later from when I declared that intention, our goal of making Clark-Subic as the best service and logistics hub in the region is well on its way to being fulfilled.

But whether it's in Manila, Cebu, Davao, Clark-Subic, Cagayan de Oro or Calabarzon. What we are doing is setting an environment to make the risk-takers feel that the risk is lessened. But in the end, all this is bringing the horse to the water. In the end, will the horse drink the water? — that is the entrepreneurial question. That is the moment of decision-making and whether the entrepreneur will take care and will take that environment as a sign to plunge into the risk that he must take, put the factors of production together, transform inventions to innovations — that will depend on whether we have developed a whole generation of entrepreneurs from grade school, high school, college and young business.

And so, the entrepreneur is the model to achieve what we want when we as a people begin to see the Philippines and ourselves to the eyes of a Filipino entrepreneur; when we begin to not be afraid to take risk; when we begin to see the opportunities rather than what drags us down, we will become proud of ourselves and of our country.

And so on this day, I thank Joey, Mrs. Ramos, the educators, the trustees, the supportive entrepreneurs, the teachers and the young would-be entrepreneurs, I thank you all for having the culture of entrepreneurship stay alive in our society because you are the future of our country.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Grand Opening of Hilton Cebu Resort and Spa and Ceremonial Switch-on of the Leyte-Cebu Interconnection Project (CMIP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Grand Opening of Hilton Cebu Resort and Spa and Ceremonial Switch-on of the Leyte-Cebu
Interconnection Project (CMIP)

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hilton Cebu Hotel and Spa, Punta Engaño, Mactan Island Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu,
October 26, 2005]

Daghan salamat, Secretary Ace Durano, our secretary of tourism, a native of Cebu province. Congratulations for your work in making Cebu and the Philippine tourism grow by leaps and bounds. Congratulations!

Other members of the Cabinet and other appointive officials most of whom have already been acknowledged by our host; Governor Garcia and the other officials of Cebu; local officials of Cebu; Governor Lerias and the other visitors from the neighboring provinces; Mayor Radaza and the other officials of Lapu-Lapu City and the other mayors of the different cities and towns of Cebu, again, earlier already acknowledged by Mr. Osmeña; Congresswoman Nerissa Soon-ruiz, the congresswoman of this district, the 6th district of Cebu. And I think not all of the congressmen were mentioned so I will mention them — we have Congressman Tony Cuenco; we have Congressman Durano; Congressman Gullas and Congressman Badilles.

I'd like to greet also those that I especially asked to be invited here to this occasion, the Cebu chamber led by Robert Go, the president; and the Sangguniang Kabataan of the Visayas led by the Vice President for Visayas board member Geneda Salcedo; and of course to the many visitors who are here today both those whom I asked to be invited and those invited by the Hilton. Congratulations to all of us for this wonderful grand opening, Mr. Osmeña especially and the whole Hilton family.

I'm so glad that you asked me to join you in this grand opening. I had a sentimental reason for accepting this invitation especially. The Hilton was the very first five-star hotel to come to the Philippines, and that was when my father was president and he invited the Hilton especially to come to the Philippines because he wanted to develop tourism. As we heard from Mr. Maier during the turmoil, the political turmoil of 1983, Hilton pulled their stakes, but after 17 years Hilton is back not necessarily in Manila but I'm happy in the province which gave me the one million majority in the last elections. and I think the business community of Cebu, the young people of Cebu, the NAMFREL of Cebu, everybody will attest that that one million majority was a fair and square majority.

So, of course, I have to be here. And of course I know as Mr. Osmeña said, Hilton is back and perfect timing of the lord. He wanted to do this in 1997 — couldn't find the financing, things were bad. Finally, during our administration the Philippine export-import bank agreed to guarantee his commercial loans and now tourism is exactly on a roll at the time when Hilton is opening in the Philippines and in Cebu.

We expect 2.7 million tourists to come to the Philippines this year. What's that Ace? A 22 percent increase in tourism over last year. Last year, half of the tourists, the 2.4 tourists who came to the Philippines came to Cebu. This year, of the 2.7 million tourists we expect 75 percent to come to Cebu.

Indeed, Philippine tourism is on a roll. Cebu tourism is on a roll, in front of great destinations. Not only the beautiful white sand beaches, the diving spots, correct, among the best spots in the planet, I hear. The beautiful bird sanctuary of Olango island that we just visited when we were waiting for the crowd to come. And I'd like to congratulate the DENR because we went to Olango island because Olango island is one of the three most important bird sanctuaries in our country and is very important for us to continue to protect our country from the avian flu. Mr. Osmeña talked about the avian flu. It's been in the region for the last two years. It is now spreading westward to Russia, Turkey, etc. But for the last two years, the Philippines has been saved from the avian flu. Let's thank the Lord for that.

Our peace and order has also improved. Our infrastructure, thanks to lovely hotels like the Hilton. Our stable power, thanks to major projects like what we just switched on earlier — the Leyte-Cebu connection and the Leyte-Mactan connection. These two connections that we switched on today will make sure that Cebu's power will have no brown outs for the next five years. Of course, if Cebu grows faster than we expected, and it might very well do so, then that guarantee will be good for three years. But then we'll have the money to put up the additional transmissions. And the power rates here — correct me if I'm wrong, Secretary Lotilla of energy — are competitive because it is geothermal and vat zero rated. So therefore put up more tourism facilities here in Cebu.

And with all these new hotels, five-star hotels, now Cebu can host next year's Asean plus 3 summit. It's going to be a great summit, not only for ASEAN but for us because Cebu is what we want to showcase. Cebu is indeed a showcase of what the Philippines can be. Cebu is a strong island. Tommy, Gwen and all of the other officials here, Mayor Ouano, Mayor Radaza, the congressmen, the board members, the vice governor, the officials, all of them contribute to making Cebu a strong island. Cebu can be our model for a strong republic.

And today, I thought I'd spend this time to outline what we must do to make the nation as strong as Cebu is as an island.

First, we must begin by reconciling the nation with God. Look what Mr. Osmeña said, everything seemed lost, and there were even those who were persecuting him — I'd like to know more about the stories of the persecution later — but he turned to God. And we, we have avian flu around us, we have terrorism, we have destabilizers, we have high oil prices, we must turn to God. That's the first thing, reconciling with God.

And then we must turn our focus to the ordinary people we must serve. Ordinary citizens and the businessmen who need a lot of things to do to the government. We must redirect the focus of government so that its bureaucracy will be more responsive to the call of the times.

Yesterday, when I had a speech before the... A launching or promotion of entrepreneurship at the basic education levels, I said, that we will reorganize or we will redo the executive order on reengineering so that we will look at a day in the life of the average entrepreneur or a week in the life and check all the frontline services that he has to deal with, and those are the first ones that we will attend to. I'm glad we have businessmen from Manila like Louie Sicat who's here and I'm glad also we have people like Robert Go who's here. And I invited you so that you can help the committee on effective governance which I will ask to be headed for this project by my Deputy National Security Adviser Virtus Gil to work out, identify these offices in the day in the life of the entrepreneur and fix the frontline services.

That's as far as systems are concerned. Physically, we must have a clean up drive in all provincial capitols and municipalities. I have no doubt that the Cebuanos will do that and offices of government. Why do I have no doubt? Because when I had my inauguration in Cebu last year, oh! We spent so little because the officials of Cebu province and all the places we passed: Mandaue, Mactan and Cebu City — Tommy Osmeña, thank you, too — cleaned up the whole place and beautified the whole place themselves. And that's why I have no doubt that we will be very successful and cost effective. When we have an Asean summit next year because I know that the people of Cebu themselves will do this beautification. But we need to do this not only in Cebu but in the whole country.

And that's why I especially asked the SK to be invited here. Because I hope that the SK will make their major project after this convention the face lifting and the beautification of the capitols and municipal halls and government offices and buildings in your locality.

We must shape a physical environment, a bureaucratic environment that is conducive to wealth creation with the end goal of being first world in 20 years when our SK will already be the main players in society. And to do this I want to mobilize the whole of Philippine society starting with the pillars of business in Metro Manila — so I said some of these things yesterday — Davao and Cebu such as the Cebu chamber. I count on you a lot, Robert for this environment for wealth creation.

And speaking of wealth creation, we must define the major role of land in wealth creation. The way it's being done in Cebu City, in Talisay City, in Mandaue City even in Bantayan island, reclamation projects maximize land as a source of wealth and they fast-track development of the rural countryside. We have to strengthen that system. I'd like to greet also Mayor Durano who is there with Congressman Gullas and to thank them too for all of the things that they have been doing in their part of the island.

We have to strengthen our republic not only bureaucratically, spiritually, physically, but also physically in the strength of muscle is which is what Mr. Osmeña talked about earlier, where does he get the muscle. He gets the muscle from the Lord but the Lord has instruments to use. The Lord use the Exim Bank of the Philippines as an instrument for him to acquire the financial muscle. The Lord uses also our physical forces as part of its instrument to strengthen our republic.

And because we need to strengthen our republic in this day of competition, terrorism, destabilization, high oil prices, I've instructed Budget secretary Romulo Neri to adopt a one-time mode for releasing funds for the nation's program for the armed forces and the police. Because no matter how beautiful our beaches are if we have turmoil, like the turmoil of 1983 that drove Hilton away the first time around, we will not be able to strengthen our economy.

To strengthen our republic of course means not only muscle, it may mean establishing a government of national unity. And to do this, I shall initiate consultations on this idea to the meeting of major political parties. Congressman Tony Cuenco is one of the advocates of unity, internationally, domestically, him being the chairman of our Committee on International Relations. And they look, the rest of the world looks to us for this kind of unity that they have seen in the countries around us.

The proposal for a government of national unity is not meant to please the opposition but to consolidate the nation behind our economic take off. They talk about rejecting power sharing, this is not about power sharing. Power sharing is only applicable in a parliamentary system. So we wait for the change in the charter. But in the meantime, the word for it is not power sharing, it's sharing public leadership and responsibility for the common good. While there are those who reject it, it remains an option for leaders like Senator Angara who want to pitch in and I thank them for that.

To strengthen our republic we shall also introduce through your help the policy makers, the movers and shakers of industry, our future of the land a more democratic, more participatory mechanism for maintaining dialogue with the people in lieu of militant street demonstrations and rallies and provide the foundation for creating a mass base for government.

A tall order, but if you are going to look at all of these things, Cebu has done it. If Cebu has done it, we work together, the Philippines can do it.

But I say this here in Cebu, because I especially ask the people of Cebu, you gave me the mandate to be President of the Philippines, help me to build the hopes and dreams of the young. Help me to do what has to be done so that all our people will become one Filipino nation.

Daghan salamat. Congratulations to the Hilton!

Thank you for this grand opening.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo at the Eco-minds Asia-Pacific Manila, October 27, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Eco-minds Asia-Pacific Manila

[Delivered at Hotel Intercontinental Manila, Makati City, October 27, 2005]

THE CASE FOR SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

A warm welcome first of all to all the participants of Eco-minds from Asia-Pacific.

I'm very happy to be here and I'm very happy to see the involvement of young Filipinos in environmental protection. And I'm very happy that Dr. Oels said that this conference is going to have as its unifying theme the millennium development goals.

Sometime ago, in our conference in the Philippines on the progress of the Philippines in achieving the millennium development goals, in a teleconference on the wide screen, Dr. Jeffrey Sachs hailed our Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan as one of the best, if not the best that he has seen, and I'm very proud of that.

In that development plan, we have a whole chapter on the environment and natural resources. And let me share with you some of the highlights of that chapter. In that plan, we recognized the need to manage our natural resources and protect the environment to improve our quality of life and that of future generations. Indeed, the young will be the beneficiaries of our sustainable development and any sustainable development all over the world that's why it's so appropriate that Bayer should concentrate its eco-minds on the young.

We want to maximize physical planning as a development tool to create jobs. We want to define the major role of land in wealth generation and in fast-tracking the development of the rural countryside.

Land is the source of our food. And I'm happy to see in the presentation of Dr. Oels the many ways in which Bayer participates in sustainable agriculture.

Our development plan considers that our country is the second largest archipelago in the world — the largest being Indonesia. And that our country has a fragile island ecosystem. We are replanting our mangroves and implementing risk sanctuaries. In fact, in taking care of our fragile ecosystems, one of the successes that we are proud of about our environmental policies is that we are now the only country in the region which does not have the bird flu.

Since this epidemic is spreading across the region and now even into central Asia, I had instructed the Secretary of Natural Resources and Environment to help the Department of Agriculture to intensify the communication campaign against bird flu by coming out in the media with the following:

First, maps of threatened areas in the country where migratory birds could be. Yesterday, Secretary Defensor and I visited one of those areas, Olango Island in Cebu. There are others as hid as Olango Island like the Candaba swamps in my province of Pampanga and in the Liguasan Marsh in Mindanao. But there are at least 20 others of this nature and I have asked the government offices to bring out a map so that the people in those areas can be more aware.

Second, a list of do's and don'ts when in contact with the birds.

Third, a list of avian flu symptoms and procedures to take when infection is suspected.

Fourth, communication materials, plugs and advertising incorporating the information that I have just asked for.

And five, broadcast releases of bird flu inspection and screening procedures by the various agencies of the government led by the Department of Agriculture. For instance, a few weeks ago, I saw Secretary Defensor explaining on TV why they prohibited the entry of a certain shipment of exotic fowls into the country.

One of the major points of my ten-point legacy agenda, and I'm glad that Bayer is very interested in this, is to provide clean water by the year 2010. This means bringing clean water to 200 waterless villages right in Metro Manila and 200 waterless towns outside metro manila both through private sector and public investment. And I hope Bayer will be very active in this.

We're working to ensure clean water also by implementing the solid waste act and the clean water act which as Secretary Defensor said were signed into law during my administration, in fact during the first year of my administration in 2001.

Related to water are the watersheds. We're rationalizing and prioritizing reforestation and watersheds to preserve rivers and other fresh water systems and begin to restore previous ecological balance, to solve our drinking water as I said earlier and irrigation water needs, and to solve destructive and costly flooding problems, and of course also to provide revenues to the government and income to our tree farmers instead of the tanners, the tree farmers of the wood-exporting countries. After all, the Philippines used to be a major timber producer, but we didn't learn our lessons then. We have learned the lessons now.

We can create additional wealth by intercropping fruit-producing trees and high-value vegetables on the floor of the forest plantations.

Our major plans for livelihood also include responsible mining that adheres to the principles of sustainable development, namely: economic growth, environmental protection and social equity. We believe that responsible mining reduces poverty and benefits local and indigenous communities. But we don't only talk about nature and agriculture when we talk about environment, there's also the physical and visual environment and hygienic environment. And I have been calling for a clean up drive in all provincial capitols and municipalities and offices of our government. And yesterday, I asked the young people of central Philippines through the local youth councils to make this their primary project in the months to come.

These are some of the highlights of what we want to do for sustainable development. Our Medium-term Plan is a complex brew but the Filipino has the mind and the spirit for it.

And on behalf of the Filipino people, I thank Bayer for giving the opportunity to expand the minds and the spirits of our Filipino youth, and in fact the youth of the entire Asia-Pacific region. May you have a successful conference.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Eco-minds Asia-Pacific Manila

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Eco-minds Asia-Pacific Manila

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Intercontinental Manila, Makati City, Metro Manila, October 27, 2005]

Thank you, Secretary Defensor.

Dr. Oels and the other officials, officers of Bayer; Ms. Cox and the other officials of the United Nations; Dr. Dayrit and the other educators and students; young people from Asia-Pacific; guests; I'd like to especially acknowledge the presence of Former Prime Minister Cesar Virata; ladies and gentlemen.

A warm welcome first of all to all the participants of Eco-minds from Asia-Pacific.

I'm very happy to be here and I'm very happy to see the involvement of young Filipinos in environmental protection. And I'm very happy that Dr. Oels said that this conference is going to have as its unifying theme the millennium development goals.

Sometime ago, in our conference in the Philippines on the progress of the Philippines in achieving the millennium development goals, in a teleconference on the wide screen, Dr. Jeffrey Sachs hailed our Medium-term Philippine Development Plan as one of the best, if not the best that he has seen, and I'm very proud of that.

In that development plan, we have a whole chapter on the environment and natural resources. And let me share with you some of the highlights of that chapter. In that plan, we recognized the need to manage our natural resources and protect the environment to improve our quality of life and that of future generations. Indeed, the young will be the beneficiaries of our sustainable development and any sustainable development all over the world that's why it's so appropriate that Bayer should concentrate its eco-minds on the young.

We want to maximize physical planning as a development tool to create jobs. We want to define the major role of land in wealth generation and in fast-tracking the development of the rural countryside.

Land is the source of our food. And I'm happy to see in the presentation of Dr. Oels the many ways in which Bayer participates in sustainable agriculture.

Our development plan considers that our country is the second largest archipelago in the world — the largest being Indonesia. And that our country has a fragile island ecosystem. We are replanting our mangroves and implementing fish sanctuaries. In fact, in taking care of our fragile ecosystems, one of the successes that we are proud of about our environmental policies is that we are now the only country in the region which does not have the bird flu.

Since this epidemic is spreading across the region and now even into central Asia, I had instructed the Secretary of Natural Resources and Environment to help the Department of Agriculture to intensify the communication campaign against bird flu by coming out in the media with the following:

First, maps of threatened areas in the country where migratory birds could be. Yesterday, Secretary Defensor and I visited one of those areas, Olango island in Cebu. There are others as big as Olango island like the Candaba swamps in my province of Pampanga and in the Liguasan marsh in Mindanao. But there are at least 20 others of this nature and I have asked the government offices to bring out a map so that the people in those areas can be more aware.

Second, a list of do's and don't's when in contact with the birds.

Third, a list of avian flu symptoms and procedures to take when infection is suspected.

Fourth, communication materials, plugs and advertising incorporating the information that I have just asked for.

And five, broadcast releases of bird flu inspection and screening procedures by the various agencies of the government led by the Department of Agriculture. For instance, a few weeks ago, I saw Secretary Defensor explaining on TV why they prohibited the entry of a certain shipment of exotic fowls into the country.

One of the major points of my ten-point legacy agenda, and I'm glad that Bayer is very interested in this, is to provide clean water by the year 2010. This means bringing clean water to 200 waterless villages right in Metro Manila and 200 waterless towns outside metro manila both through private sector and public investment. And I hope Bayer will be very active in this.

We're working to ensure clean water also by implementing the solid waste act and the clean water act which as Secretary Defensor said were signed into law during my administration, in fact during the first year of my administration in 2001.

Related to water are the watersheds. We're rationalizing and prioritizing reforestation and watersheds to preserve rivers and other fresh water systems and begin to restore previous ecological balance, to solve our drinking water as I said earlier and irrigation water needs, and to solve destructive and costly flooding problems, and of course also to provide revenues to the government and income to our tree farmers instead of the farmers, the tree farmers of the wood-exporting countries. After all, the Philippines used to be a major timber producer, but we didn't learn our lessons then. We have learned the lessons now.

We can create additional wealth by intercropping fruit-producing trees and high-value vegetables on the floor of the forest plantations.

Our major plans for livelihood also include responsible mining that adheres to the principles of sustainable development, namely: economic growth, environmental protection and social equity. We believe that responsible mining reduces poverty and benefits local and indigenous communities. But we don't only talk about nature and agriculture when we talk about environment, there's also the physical and visual environment and hygienic environment. And I have been calling for a clean up drive in all provincial capitols and municipalities and offices of our government. And yesterday, I asked the young people of central Philippines through the local youth councils to make this their primary project in the months to come.

These are some of the highlights of what we want to do for sustainable development. Our Medium-term Plan is a complex brew but the Filipino has the mind and the spirit for it.

And on behalf of the Filipino people, I thank Bayer for giving the opportunity to expand the minds and the spirits of our Filipino youth, and in fact the youth of the entire Asia-Pacific region. May you have a successful conference.

Speech of President Arroyo during the National Aquaculture Congress

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the National Aquaculture Congress

[Delivered at the Convention Hall, Bureau of Soils and Water Management, Diliman, Quezon City, October 27, 2005]

Thank you, Speaker De Venecia, my kumpadre. Because if I'm the godmother of aquaculture, you are the godfather of aquaculture, Joe.

And of course, I'd like to congratulate and thank Congressman Louie Villafrute, the chairman of the House Committee on Aquaculture and Fisheries, for inviting me to be here with you and putting this together with the D.A.

Secretary Panganiban who put this up together jointly with the committee; my other colleagues from the D.A.; our other congressmen who are here not only Congressman Villafrute but we have also Congressman Zialcita who will go with me afterwards to the Northrail relocation site, Congressman Bateria, Congressman Kintanar. And I'd like to greet all the implementors of the government programs for Aquaculture, all the players in the aquaculture industry, all the academe and the researchers, all of the representatives of the LGUs, the NGOs, everybody who wants aquaculture to develop, good afternoon and congratulations! On putting this together.

Napakaganda ng trabaho ng House Committee on Fisheries and Aquaculture resources na pinagsama mga producer, mga researcher, mga gumagawa ng patakaran para magbuo ng gabayan ng gobyerno at pribadong sektor patungo sa sariling kakayahan sa isda maging sa lokal o sa pangmundong palengke.

Ang bumibili ng produktong pangisda ay tuloy-tuloy na lumalaki hindi lamang dito sa Pilipinas kundi na rin sa ibang bansa gaya ng Europa at Amerika. Maganda talaga ang kinabukasan ng aquaculture.

To say this is something quite significant because I remember nung ako'y nasa Department of Trade and Industry, lumago ang aquaculture. Naalala ko humina yung asukal doon sa Negros Occidental pero lahat na mga nasa coastal areas yung kanilang sugar plantation ginawa nilang aquaculture plantations at kumita sila ng malaki. Mamaya biglang bumagsak ang industriya at ang dami nagsara na mga aquaculture plantations. Ang dami nagsara na mga processing plants for aquaculture. Pero ngayon maganda na naman muli ang kinabukasan ng aquaculture.

Yung ating medium-term Philippine development plan ay kinikilala yung mga sinabi ni Speaker De Venecia kanina, yung sea bass, lapu-lapu, pompano, bangus, cobia, tilapia, maging fresh water or saline, red snapper, sea bream at iba pa, sigurado ang palengke sabi ni Joe sa frozen and live fish markets in China, Hong Kong, Japan, Taiwan, Singapore, Amerika, Europa. Malaki ang dolyar na dala, malaki ang kita, malaki ang trabahong linilikha.

At kayo naman alam ninyo, ako ba ang magsasabi kayo ang nasa industriya. Congratulations! Dahil tayo ay number one sa export ng processed bangus. Congratulations! Dahil number one din tayo sa seaweed. Congratulations! Kay pangalawa tayo sa tilapia kasunod sa Tsina.

In fact, kayo ilan sa inyo siguro naririnig niyo parati sinasabi ko noon yung galunggong yon ang sinasabi nilang common man's fish. Hindi, imported yung galunggong eh. Yung tilapia ang gawin na nating common Filipinos' fish because we can culture it.

Kaya sa ating medium-term Philippine development plan, balak nating mag-develop ng dalawang milyong ektarya para sa agri-business upang magbigay ng trabaho sa at least dalawang milyong manggagawa, magsasaka o mangisda. At ito ang maging kontribusyon sa sampung milyong trabahong gusto nating malikha hanggang 2010.

Pag sinasabi kong dalawang milyong ektarya ng agri-business, hindi lamang ibig sabihin lupang sakahan, kasama na rito yung mga ektarya sa aquaculture.

Ang payo nga ni Joe, pairalin natin ang aquaculture sa mga lugar na malapit sa coastal areas at sa mga dagat din kasi yung fish cage technology ay dapat gawin natin. Naalala ko doon sa Sual, sa Pangasinan noong binisita ko yung sual power plant, bago ako dumating ang dami-daming fish cages nagbibigay ng trabaho doon sa taumbayan pero as a matter of aside, parenthetically. Nandoon yung power plant, nandoon yung fish cages, ibig sabihin yung coal-fired power plant hindi masama para sa fisheries and aquaculture.

Ngunit yon ang linagay natin sa medium-term plan pero kailangan ang detalyadong plano. At ako ay binabati ko kayong lahat dahil nakikita ko na doon sa harap yung one-inch thick detailed, comprehensive fisheries and aquaculture development plan for the next five to ten years. Kaya binabati ko ang komite at lahat ng gumawa nito dahil sa magandang output, the detailed, comprehensive aquaculture program for the next five to ten years.

Kaya ngayon nandiyan na yang plano. Inaatasan ko kay secretary panganiban na sa pinakamaagang panahon ipatupad natin ito at gawin natin ito... Ipatupad natin ito sa pamamagitan ng aktibong papel ng mga taga-industriya ng aquaculture at magbigay ng mas malaking halaga doon sa mga mahihirap na sektor sa kanayunan.

Inaatasan ko rin ang D.A., ang National Food Research Institute at saka ang National Statistics Office na lumikha ng impormasyon, geographically, production and consumption para location by location makaplano tayo para sa kinabukasan.

Naalala ko yung fisheries code of 1998. Kasi nung panahong yon ay masalimuot yung debate. Lumabas yung batas, masalimuot pa rin yung lumabas na batas. Siguro ngayon panahon na, tignan natin yung fisheries code muli na yon, kailangan siguro ibagay sa mga kasalukuyang pangangailangan ng industriya. Kasi makumpetensiya yung mundo sa labas kahit na maraming palengke itong ating mga sea bass, bangus, seaweed, etc. Malubha ang kompetensiya hindi tayo maaring magbakasakali doon sa palengke.

Yung fisheries lease agreement pwedeng gamitin ito para sa pangangailangan ng pondo para sa research. At kanina nung binabanggit ko yung ibat-ibang mga isda narinig kong sinasabi ni Joe yung Vannamei.' sa wakas gumawa na tayo ng desisyon, ligal ba dapat ito o hindi? Kasi ito ay isang bagong specie ng hipon na baka naman yan ang magbigay ng bagong buhay sa ating industriya ng hipon.

Ang masasabi ko lamang — kasi kayo mas eksperto sa aquaculture kaysa ako — ako nakikita ko yung mga macro opportunities and macro aspects. Ang masasabi ko lamang dapat magsama-sama tayo. Ipagsama natin ang ating sikap para sa pagkakaisang pagsulong.

Our economy is poised for take-off. Let us not allow poison politics to spoil that take-off. At higit sa lahat, let us make aquaculture a central part of that take-off.

Maraming salamat at congratulations! Sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo at the Launching Ceremony of the Asenso Village Mico Small and Medium Enterprises Business Park, October 28, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Launching Ceremony of the Asenso Village
Mico Small and Medium Enterprises Business Park

[Delivered at Wack Wack Golf and Country Club, Shaw Blvd., Mandaluyong City, October 28, 2005]

LAND = WEALTH : AN INNOVATIVE CONCEPT

First of all, congratulations! Filinvest land for spearheading this innovative project.

Innovative, I thought, but as Mr. Yap explained not really that new, it's going back to an old concept that has become important again in this day and age.

A long time ago, and still in some areas, you have the family residents in the second floor and you have the family business in the first floor. Then came the zoning development wherein residences must be in one village or subdivision, factories must be in another place or industrial park, and the shopping center must be still in another place.

But now that we have the era of high oil prices and expensive transportation, congested populations, heavy traffic, it's really not that economical and efficient anymore to spend so much time traveling from work to home and home to work. And this is going to be especially difficult for our micro small and medium scale entrepreneurs.

So thank you to the Gotianun family and the Filinvest family for helping us in our aim to develop three million entrepreneurs by 2010. This is in addition to the two million who have already benefited from over 20 billion pesos in loans since 2001.

Thank you for your contribution to defining the major role of land in wealth generation. Thank you for bringing about an environment for wealth generation that is conducive to the needs of the 21st century with all its challenges, not the least of which is expensive and time consuming travel.

Your strong commitment to corporate responsibilities indeed a boon to our nation. Our nation must strengthen itself, first of all by reconciling with God and by counting our blessings from the Lord. I'd like to take this occasion to thank him not only because we have innovative, socially responsible and forward looking families like the Gotianun family but also I'd like to thank the Lord that Merrill Lynch has just upgraded the Philippine rating to overweight.

The highlight of the Merrill Lynch report says, and I quote some parts of it: "The fiscal outlook appears stronger for 2006. On the political front, President Arroyo's position looks secure. Economic fundamentals are improving with positive prospects for economic growth." As I end my quote, we can say that indeed, the good prospects for economic growth are there not only in the analysis or the financial agencies but in the business decisions of very astute and very practical business families like the Gotianuns.

We will seize this opportunity, too to redirect the government so that its bureaucracy will be more responsive to the call of the times, the way that I think the Gotianun and other land development families and entrepreneurs have responded to what we did for the housing industries bureaucracy. We have cut down the number of signatures required for development projects to maybe one-third of what it used to be and interest rates have become much lower than what they used to be that is because we believe in housing not only in developing our entrepreneurs the I way Asenso village will but also because housing has the biggest multiplier effect of all economic activities.

Thus, in terms of land as a source of wealth generation and employment as to the multiplier, and in terms of developing our entrepreneurs, and in terms also of decongesting metro manila, Asenso village falls squarely under our Ten-Point Agenda. The Asenso parks to be developed, housing and business parks, in the nearby provinces, first Laguna and Cavite, I'm quite sure later Batangas and other provinces south of Metro Manila, will surely become bustling hubs of growth to spawn jobs in prosperous communities until someday, maybe fifteen years from now, we will see the provinces of Laguna and Rizal connected through the Laguna lake because of the development started today by enterprising families and corporations like the Filinvest.

Your idea of clustering industries or clustering activities together with, housing, economic activity, including your logistics support are indeed going to make these provinces feel the economic impact. And I can see the complementarity between this facility that you are providing the micro small and medium enterprises and the 'One town, One product' project that I have been calling for that finally the Department of Industry is actively executing.

And so I would like to take this opportunity to envision that each province will have a cluster of industries that will be borne out of the seeds that will be planted by Asenso villages.

I wish for the sustained success of the Asenso villages. And on this day I think, it is a great moment to call on everyone: "Ipalakas natin ang ating bansa upang itaguyod ang ating kasaganaan at kaunlaran."

Salamat sa Asenso sa pagbibigay niyo ng magandang buhay, kabuhayan at kinabukasan. Congratulations!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Mr. Yap and the other members of the Gotianun and Filinvest family; the several Cabinet members who are here today to show how important this concept and project is: we have Secretary Toting Bunye who kept following up this invitation, Secretary Pat Sto. Speech of President Arroyo during the IFTAR (Fast-Breaking) for Peace and Forgiveness

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the IFTAR (Fast-Breaking) for Peace and Forgiveness

[Delivered at the Sunset Pavilion, Westin Philippine Plaza Hotel, Pasay City, October 29, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Ermita, our living and walking data bank for our peace process, because he was there way back in the delegation with Madame Imelda Marcos in Libya in 1976.

Madame Marcos, Speaker De Venecia and the other officials, of course, our host, my brother Ambassador Adam and Engineer Ahmed, members of the diplomatic corps, ARMM Governor Zaldy Ampatuan, Governor Akbar of Basilan and the other local officials, members of the Islamic community, members of the Christian community, ladies and gentlemen:

Assalaamo alaikum, warahmatullahi warrabakatu.

Tonight, we proclaim the greatness of God in our hearts and homes, in the streets and the corridors of public service, sharing sacrifices in his name, humbly seeking guidance and being grateful in the bountiful rewards he bestows upon us.

In breaking of the fast that is part of the observance of the holy month of Ramadan, I acknowledge the theme which is: "Understanding the Muslim-Christian responses to violence."

Ramadan does not only signify physical restraint, it means a deeper reconciliation with God. And I have taken the opportunity of this holy month to call for a period of national renewal in the Philippines.

For Catholics, this should mean a nationwide program whereby all should take the sacrament of reconciliation and penance. For Muslims, observing the annual fast of the Ramadan for celebrating the greatness of God. And for other denominations, a similar program in their churches.

I thank Libya and all the other Islamic countries and all the other Christian countries who have vigorously helped us as my administration has propagated inter-faith dialogue. Inter-faith dialogues which is open, sincere and frank, to build a national community founded on civility with oneness, with humanity and God.

I thank all of you, the different countries represented here tonight for supporting us in the resolution that we spearheaded and which was unanimously adopted at the United Nations last year for the adoption of inter-faith dialogue and cooperation as a means to resolve conflict among nations. Inter-faith dialogue not only among Muslims and Christians but also among Hindus and all the other great religions of the world.

I'm grateful to the Lord Allah that the peace process with the MILF is at a high point, and may he bring us to the end of a good and fruitful journey soon.

I am very grateful and I was very proud to say in the United Nations that our peace process is perhaps the only peace process in the world that has incorporated an anti-terrorist element institutionally.

We are determined to forge a peace settlement in Mindanao that will combine the aspirations of the Bangsa Moro people with the rest of the region in an integrated strategic plan for economic equity and the total defeat of terrorism.

As I said earlier, the only peace process in the world with an anti-terrorist element because during the cease fire, which has lasted already for two years, part of the cease fire agreement is that we will exchange information, intelligence and orders of battle in order to together interdict the terrorists in Mindanao and in the rest of our country.

In other words, both our Muslim brothers and we, as we talk peace are equally determined to be partners in upholding the anti-terrorism campaign and in upholding global security. Together, we reiterate our call for Congress to pass the anti-terror bill as we vow to sustain the war together, Christians and Muslims, with heightened vigilance at all levels.

One cannot speak of the peace process in Mindanao without mentioning, of course, the enduring role of Libya since the Tripoli agreement in 1976. The role of Saudi Arabia that spearheaded the Jeddah accord of 1987. The role of Indonesia that led the OIC committee of the six and then the eight, towards the signing of the GRP-MNLF final peace agreement in 1996. The role of Malaysia in facilitating our current peace process, and of course the entire OIC for their support with this peace process.

And we thank Malaysia, Libya and Brunei for the international monitoring team, the head of whom is here with us tonight, that has done wonders to safeguard the cease fire in Mindanao.

As Governor Zaldy Ampatuan indicated in his speech, Filipinos are completely exhausted with ‘poison politics’ when so much remains to be done in the nation. We must, with the backing of our allies and friends, get back to work, not in the streets but in our offices and industrial centers, in our farms and our communities.

The upgrade of our country’s ratings by a Japanese rating agency and now by Merrill Lynch — the world’s leading financial management and advisory company — confirms the solid prospects of economic take off, along with the strong showing of the peso — assessed to be one of the strongest currencies of the world today — a robust stock market, continuing investment inflows, and respectable profit margins among business operations in the country.

And Governor Akbar, I continue to count on the local government units to activate the price monitoring systems in your respective localities to stave off unscrupulous business practices that will use the revenue reforms and the oil price increase as an excuse to raise their prices exorbitantly.

In this time of prayer, we continue to seek guidance from and consecrate all our efforts to God. And I look forward to joining all Filipino-Muslims in celebrating Eid’l Fitr next week.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Joint Business Meeting of the Foreign Chambers of Commerce and PCCI

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Joint Business Meeting of the Foreign Chambers of Commerce and PCCI

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Intercontinental Manila, Makati City, November 7, 2005]

Thank you. Thank you.

Thank you very much, Secretary Peter Favila.

Other members of the cabinet and government officials; Ambassador Donald Dee, happy birthday! Heads of the other organizations and foreign chambers; leading players in the business community; honored guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you for organizing this event upon my request, not only because it's Donald's birthday, but because it's often difficult to see the progress of the nation on a day-to-day basis and sometimes it's important for us to get together and take stock. And heaven knows the crisis of the moment or the headline of the day can be unsettling and discouraging. Every molehill is treated like a mountain; every accusation is treated as truth; every piece of good news is stepped on by the bad.

One example of this is what Donald referred to the blurring of the long-term importance of the Value-Added Tax reform law to our nation's strength. The easy manipulation of this issue by the destabilizers and the media who further their agenda is a case of little chicken screaming that the sky is falling. Well, the sky isn't falling and that's part of what we're celebrating today. In fact, as soon as the Supreme Court issued its opinions, markets rallied, the peso strengthened, the prospects for a credit upgrade dramatically improved.

No one likes to raise taxes here or anywhere in the world, but you the movers and shakers of the economy should take deep pride in the fact that this decision has already strengthened this nation and will provide more economic opportunity and job creation than any other single initiative we could have done.

Nomura and Merrill Lynch have already registered bond upgrades. I understand also Morgan Stanley. All indicators are up, business is on the roll. These fundamental economic reforms will unleash a wave of innovation and modernity that will prepare our nation for the 21st century.

Today, I want each one of us to take a step backward from the clamor of the moment and lift our sights up to what is really going on in the Philippines. In my State of the Nation Address last July, I said that ours is a country divided, almost as it were two countries under the same name: one, is the Philippines whose economy after long years of cumulative national endeavor is now poised for take off; the other is the Philippines whose political system after equally long years of degeneration has become a hindrance to progress.

The good news is that the Philippines has embraced all things modern in so many ways. For instance, we're the text capital of the world and our mobile phone usage has skyrocketed with thousands of cell sites as use has soared and prices have come down.

And our tourism is up by more than 13 percent. The skyline of Manila and Cebu has taken a new look with thousands of young workers now populating high rises fitted out as global call centers. The malls are full. I just went to the movies yesterday. I saw the movie 'The Legend of Zorro' and when I was looking at Catherine Zeta Jones, I thought I was looking at Diana Santos. The restaurants are busy. The airports are jumping. This progress can continue and can expand to lift up the boats of all our people but only if we knock down the wall that is dividing the two Philippines. And only if nation-building becomes the spirit of the times with a collective vision of business, government, and the people to move the nation forward.

Today, I'd like to share with you a vision of a modern Philippines that in 20 years will be poised to join the ranks of first world nations and leave our developing nation status behind. That vision is built on three fundamental strategies I have put in place: first, I have focused unceasingly on building strong macroeconomic fundamentals and strict fiscal discipline. As a result, we will balance our budget, improve our credit ratings, attract investments and have money to invest in our infrastructure and our people.

Second, I have taken an aggressive campaign to reengage the Philippines with the world. I believe our engagement with the world including the trade agreements we're forging with Japan, with China, with the U.S., with Europe, I believe engaging the world is essential if we are to protect our overseas workers; engaging with the world is vital for our economic expansion; engaging with the world is central to our ability to protect our people from terrorism at home and invest in bringing peace to Mindanao.

Third, I insist on fulfilling my ten-point pro-poor agenda that invests in our people. We need people who have the education, skills and language ability to compete, absorb and serve in top jobs here at home.

For instance, when I came to office in 2001, there was no business process outsourcing industry to speak of. We now have a 100,000 people employed in this growing industry and you the business community who made that happen should be proud of that.

In 2003, after one year's experience as president, in my State of the Nation Address that year I said, we must build a strong republic. And I repeat that today, because only a strong republic, a strong state can bring our country to the first world in 20 years. A strong state that derives its strength from the people and its inspiration and humility from the almighty God. A strong state that begins by dedicating our hopes and energies to the almighty.

We need a strong state because everyday, the nation faces promise, but also peril. We must transcend bureaucratic stagnation and enable frontline services to operate in an emergency or state-of-calamity mode. Terrorism, avian flu, destabilization, we must never let our guard down.

Only a strong state can create in Manila a national brand that can compete on equal footing with other metropolises like Bangkok, Singapore and Hong Kong as a center for metropolitan life, because to do this will entail massive decongestion, face-lifting and urban revival.

Only a strong state can build the urban corridors of growth such as Clark and Subic northward, and southward, Calabarzon interconnected by expressways and by the Laguna lake.

Only a strong state can mobilize land for wealth creation. And only a strong state can integrate discipline with skills training to build a disciplined, skilled work force that we need to compete in the 21st century.

Only a strong state can forge a meeting of minds among political parties, bring about a more democratic, more participatory mechanism for dialogue with the people, and provide the foundation for creating a mass base for good governance.

A strong state builds an economy that can afford the best public education, the best public health, the best social services. On the other hand, the social cost of a weak state is more poverty and destitution.

Yes, we have made progress in the past few years: the poverty rate is down even in the SWS survey, employment is up, and our economy is growing. But these accomplishments are hardly enough if you're hungry and without a job. For until poverty is behind us, the promise of the 21st century will remain out of our grasp.

Everyone of us in this room is part of a soft state, a political process, and a culture that is out of step with the needs of a modern nation.

To build our strong republic, therefore, I reject extremist calls to isolate our nation from our friends and allies in the world; I reject extremist calls that would junk the market system and create a controlled economy; I reject extremist calls to overthrow our duly constituted government and entrust our fortunes to an un-elected anti-capitalist dictator.

I believe in an agenda that builds up not tears down the country.

I embrace economic incentives, less red tape, reducing corruption for our business while endorsing a decent wage for our workers. Yes, a raise in the legislated minimum wage is the right thing to do, and everyone in this room should work with employees to find an appropriate center position.

Social justice should go hand-in-hand with enlightened business.

And let me finally say that I embrace a change in our basic system of government because I do not believe our current system serves our nation well today and won't bring us to the status of developed country in 20 years.

We need a new constitution, neither leftist nor rightist but centrist, a constitution that will eliminate legislative gridlock, a constitution that will transfer power from the center in Metro Manila to the countryside that feeds it, a new constitution that will align the rules of the economy to the global world of the 21st century.

To conclude, let me say how pleased I am at being here among the men and women, both foreign and Filipino who make this nation work. And I am confident seeing you, listening to Donald speak in your behalf, I am confident we have the vision, the plan, and the people in this room and across the nation who are ready to make the dream of a fully modern, developed nation of the Philippines a reality.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo at the 31st Top Level Management Conference of the Kapisanan ng mga Brodkaster ng Pilipinas, November 10, 2005

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo

At the 31st Top Level Management Conference of the Kapisanan ng mga Brodkaster ng Pilipinas

PROMOTING RESPONSIBLE JOURNALISM

Originally, when you invited me, I had asked Cerge to represent me here today and read my message, and I was going to do a video message. But I remembered what he said, I'd been coming every year to join you, I guess this is not the time to break that tradition. First of all to say, thank you because you're giving us radio time and television time for our avian flu campaign. Thank you for that support for our serving the people.

And second, because as Cerge says, no other leader has been as close to the KBP as I have been since my days as senator. I would also say that after all said and done the KBP as an organization has been supportive of my administration and I thank you for that.

And I'd also like to take this opportunity to express gratification that we have put up together the full resources of government and your organization to stop and solve the violent and cowardly acts on crusading journalists. I'd like to report the 36 cases involving the slaying of journalists have either been disposed of or are under trial, while 26 are under investigation or follow up operations.

I'd like to think that the five million-peso fund set up for slain journalists contributed to the abatement of attacks on media people. If you recall, my share included reward money for information leading to the arrest of the suspects in the killings, while that of Speaker Joe de Venecia was for the mobilization of quick reaction teams composed of media representatives that could immediately investigate and document pertinent cases.

So we've worked together on things that have produced results and we'll continue to produce results. On the other hand, I was recently criticized for disclosing an intelligence report that a broadcast journalist was instrumental in bailing out a terrorist. Terrorism is evil. And I consider my fight against terror as a duty of my presidency.

Our national security is something that you and I must take seriously. I'm disappointed with the precious overly sensitive of its prerogatives when at the same time, many of our journalists arrogated the license to fire away at anybody without even circumstantial evidence.

We must take heed of the media becoming part of the national malaise and a hindrance to development rather than an important solution to our problems. A press that loses credibility as the watchdog of government and the society becomes a drag to democracy rather than a force of freedom. Yes, we must admit that some segments of the media are pushing the negative angle or stories too far and too often.

As I observed in a speech made before the business community earlier this week, there have been a great deal of positive developments that have not been extensively covered by the media. The portrait of a nation on the verge of economic take off is unassailable yet sadly known to most Filipinos. The backdrop of the peso and the market as the best performers in SouthEast Asia give us now the best opportunity to bring the good news to the people so we can reap their confidence beside that of the world, and so that we can do the patriotic task to convince the public on the need for full implementation of economic reforms next year.

On our part, we shall continue fielding non-tax revenue generating measures alongside palpable cuts in unnecessary government spending. Already, our national government has saved some 37 billion pesos from our budget deficit ceiling, mostly because our skillful treasury operations are better bond prices and our stronger peso have reduced our debt by that amount. And that's where we have been cutting down on our expenditures.

One of the Congressmen yesterday told me, "that's good news that we are cutting our deficit not because we're cutting infrastructure spending, not because we're cutting social services spending." In fact, we're using up the full budget for public works. We're using up the full budget for the PNP. We're using up the full budget for the DND. We're using up the full budget for our social services. Where are we saving? It is on debt service.

I invite the officers of the KBP to meet with our economic managers so that you can hear first hand the good news about our country.

Indeed, there is much that the KBP can do; there is much that broadcast media can do because technology is empowering you more and more. In fact today, a historical event is happening here in Baguio City. I'm told by Cerge that for the first time in the Philippines digital FMHD radio is on the air, broadcasting clear... broadcasting clear and clean radio programming on 105.1 megahertz to broadcast world and their technology partners, broadcast electronics and urban as well as our NTC and KBP. Thank you for making radio history this day.

Some things can be historic in one day, other things can affect history but over some period of renewal. And today, I call on you — let us cast aside the 'bad boy' image that the press has acquired. Let us restore its glory as the responsible son of a democratic nation. I appeal to you not to be used wittingly or unwittingly as pawns in political games or destabilization schemes. Sabi nga ni Cerge, yung isang panawagan ng KBP, ano? Tama na ang pulitika ba? Yes. But the first one to stop being used in politics or in destabilization must be the media itself.

The coverage of kangaroo courts, lynch mobs and witch hunts assails the peace of mind and the hopes of our people. The public wants winners. I know you know that, because you're always looking at rating's. The public wants winners. The economy is the only winner here today amidst these losers who carry no public mandate.

Your conference indeed comes at a time when only a strong republic can enforce discipline and the rule of law and at the same time sustain the vibrancy of responsible press freedom.

Well, Cerge says, I've always been close to you. And I say and I acknowledge, as an organization, you've always been close to me. It's time that we do something constructive about this closeness. It's time we put our hearts and heads together in a collective exercise to shape the destiny of this republic for the good of the greater number.

And so in conclusion, I leave you with the appeal — I count on you to promote responsible Philippine journalism. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Thank you.

Daghan salamat, Cerge. Thank you for your very kind introduction.

Lito Yabut, Jun Nicdao and other officials of KBP, Mayor Yaranon, Governor Melchor and other officials of the Philippine government — oh! Including Mayor Galutin. Thank you for coming here all the way from Mankayan, four hours drive away or now it's already less than four hours, right? Speech of President Arroyo during the Closing Ceremony of the Konrad Adenauer-Stiftung/Center for Christian-Muslim Democracy (KAS/CCMD) Seminar/Workshop

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Closing Ceremony of the Konrad Adenauer-Stiftung/Center for Christian-Muslim Democracy
(KAS/CCMD) Seminar/Workshop

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Holiday Inn Resort Hotel Clarkfield, Angeles City, Pampanga, November 12, 2005]

Thank you, Joe. Thank you so much for your inspiring words. Thank you for your leadership of our country and the legislature. Thank you for your leadership in the charter change that we are about to bring about.

Sonny Alvarez and the other officials of the Center for Christian-Muslim Democracy; Mr. Claus Presley, thank you very much for your kind words in behalf of the Konrad Adenauer Foundation; our hosts in Clark which is comprised of areas of Angeles and Mabalacat, Mayor Lazatin and Mayor Morales; members of Congress who are here today; our Cabinet members in attendance: Secretary Claudio, Pagdanganan and Rene Diaz; our local government officials who are here today; our members of the Constitutional Commission who are here today; our... The various participants in this seminar coming from Regions I, II, III, CAR, IV and V; ladies and gentlemen.

Fellow Christian-Muslim democrats, congratulations to all of you! Congratulations to all of us! Congratulations to the Center for Christian-Muslim democrats! Chaired by Sonny and also with Francis Manglapus as a great work horse.

Thank you to the Konrad Adenauer Foundation. Thank you both for conducting this timely seminar. And I really thank the Konrad Adenauer Foundation which is our link, aside from our institutional link, our other link with the Christian democrats of Europe and Germany. Indeed, we are altogether here in a national and international endeavor. We're on the road to a new horizon because what we are going to do with the new system is to cast away the politics of personality. We will usher in instead the politics of ideology and performance.

I remember when as candidate for vice-president of the Philippines, as a new member of the Lakas — at that time, it's called Lakas-NUCD — and I said that we should strengthen our CD portion and call it the Lakas Non-Christian-Muslim Democrats. I remember then that I took pains to study the philosophy of Christian democracy.

Nonetheless, over the past years since 1998 up to 2005, we have still not seen the politics of ideology. What we have continued to see is the politics of personality, and this politics of personality has bred an arena of governance peppered from day-to-day by insults, muckraking and petty partisan brawls. Partisan brawls become petty because they are not based on ideological debate, they are based instead on half-truths and personal attacks.

The politics of personality is part of what I described in my State of the Nation Address last July as a country divided. Almost as it were I said, two countries under the same name: one is the Philippines whose economy after long years of cumulative national endeavor is now poised for take-off. Our detractors are being rendered irrelevant and out of tune by the sturdy economic indicators, some of which were already mentioned by Speaker De Venecia: the new round of oil price reductions, the surge of direct foreign investment by 70 percent, the 2.5 billion dollars investment portfolio inflows, the strengthening of the peso hitting a 5-month high at 54.42 per dollar, and the robust capital stock market.

But on the other side of that is the Philippines whose political system after equally long years of degeneration has become a hindrance to progress, and that's why the people are losing hope in the system. Our current system does not serve our nation best and certainly it will not bring us to the status of developed country in 20 years.

Economics is the primordial reason for political reforms. Our political system is bad for our economy and we must offer change. And we are offering change, we're offering it to our people for their wise deliberation and vote. I created the Citizens' Consultative Commission — and some of our leaders are here today — to hear all views, to listen to all studies, to make its recommendations to congress and to the people, in fairness to all beliefs and creeds, in fairness and respect for all Filipinos.

It's time we gather the best ideas from the entire spectrum of political beliefs and bring them to a stable center. And that's also the reason why we are seeking to forge a meeting of minds among centrist political parties.

That is in fact the essence of Christian democracy and all the Christian democratic parties in the world today. Centrism, not extreme left, not extreme right, but the stability of the center. Therefore, our ideology must be centrist. But it must not be just centrist, it must be an ideology of change. We must spin out investments, jobs and infrastructure into regional growth centers and hubs of people's enterprise. Focus should be placed in maintaining sound business policy and infrastructure to unleash the full economic potentials of the country to benefit the poor.

We continue to push for added benefits for our workers and for the amendment of the law creating the regional tripartite wage boards to allow the raising of salaries more than once a year if warranted.

We are happy and gratified about the willingness of Malik Alimmudin, a member of the Rajah Solaiman Movement, to testify against his comrades. They should bolster our anti-terrorism drive even as we press our colleagues in congress to pass the anti-terror bill.

But beyond these measures that we seek to pass through Congress — and we have seen the great difficulty we have in passing legislation — we have to fuse the continuity of lawmaking and the execution of laws through a parliamentary system. People ask me why is the parliamentary system better than the presidential system. In the presidential system, you have separation of powers. It's supposed to be because of check and balance, but instead it has resulted in gridlock.

There are legislators who are more interested in inquiries in aid of destabilization rather than in their intrinsic function of legislation. And so, it's with great difficulty that the administration brings its legislative proposal through the legislative mill.

And there are bills passed by congress that are good, not all of them need to come from the executive at this point in time, but because of the separation of powers, the Cabinet members who have not internalized some of the philosophies behind these laws also do not execute some of the laws wholeheartedly.

So, there is half-hearted passage of administration measures; there is half-hearted execution of measures initiated by the legislative. We must wed the legislature and the executive, and that is through the parliamentary form of government.

And we have to awaken the latent and intrinsic energies of the regions and local governments by giving the parliament the mandate to enact a federal structure. The debate on federalism will be long and hard, because the local governments want to make sure that there is no reduction in their well-deserved power. That debate is something that can be done in Congress, in the parliament, except that today it is not allowed even to debate it by the constitution.

I remember when I was a senator, I was defending the Mindanao Development Authority Bill. And what killed it, they said that that is a constitutional issue rather than a legislative issue. The very idea of trying to pass bills to increase greater autonomy especially towards a federal structure of government is not allowed in the present constitution. So, whatever may be the right form of federalism, whatever may be the right form of greater autonomy, we cannot even take it up in the present constitutional system. And that's another reason why we must change the system in the Constitution.

And of course, we have to align the rules of the economy to the global world of the 21st century. Again, there will be great debates on whether to lift restrictions on this and that sector, but we cannot lift restrictions through legislature. We have done what we can in bringing our rules of the economy to the 21st century under the present Constitution. We must therefore look at the constitution itself and give the parliament the mandate to change those antiquated economic provisions.

These are the ways to stabilize our political system. These are the ways by which our new constitution that we are fighting for will bring us a stable political system. And we must do this because only a stable political system begets a strong economy.

And so fellow members and officers and leaders of Lakas-CMD, I ask you to campaign for our people's active participation in charter change. I ask you to lead this great debate. I ask you to galvanize your constituencies. Let's not go for little changes here and there that can be done by administrative order or even by legislation, cause we've done practically all we can by administrative order and legislation.

Let's go for the big stakes. Let's all stand behind the quest of a more enduring, more stable political system that will serve the dreams of all generations. Let us go for charter change!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 15th General Assembly of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines (LMP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 15th General Assembly of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines (LMP)

[Delivered at the Harbour View Tent, Westin Philippine Plaza, Pasay City, November 15, 2005]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, kalihim Secretary Reyes sa inyong pagpakilala sa akin.

And congratulations! Mayor Guico and all the officials of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines and all the municipal mayors of the Philippines for the wonderful achievements that they have shown on our screen as well as the very wise resolution you have passed on to me for adaption.

Ladies and gentlemen, magandang gabi sa inyong lahat. Mayap a bengi quecongan caring Cabalen cung capampangan. Naimbag nga rabii kadakayo amin dagiti kailyak ti bangir ni mamang ko. Sa atong mga taga-Visayas ug Mindanao, maayong gabii kaninyong tanan. Kag sa mga kasimanwa sang akon bana, maayong gab-i sa inyong nga tanan. Sa mga Bicolano, marhay nga banggi. And to all of you — hindi ko na sasabihin lahat ng mga lengwahe kung hindi mauubos ang aking oras sa diskurso — most important as Mayor Guico said earlier, for your timely manifesto of support during the days of our political turmoil, thank you for your unwavering support. As Mayor Monching said, you held the course, you were never distracted, you express your support and you continued to carry out our ten-point agenda. Thank you so much for all of that.

And now, it's payback time. The economy is pulling up all indicators of stability and growth. I ask your support, your continuing support this time to project among your constituents the brightening economic indicators. For instance, economic growth projected at over 5 percent, boosted by OFW remittances. Your OFWs because most of them come from your municipalities. They used to send us seven, eight billion dollars. Now they are sending us 10 billion dollars this year. Thanks to your constituents. And there will be more, maybe next year because this year as of October, 800,000 workers have been deployed in 10 months, higher than the whole figure of last year. It only means to say that the world has great demand for the great Filipino workers that you produce in your municipalities.

I believe, not in coincidence but in providence. We work hard. You help me work hard to pass the tax reforms that we needed. I remember last year when we were in the middle of a fiscal crisis, many of you were so good as to look for ways by which you would sacrifice your IRA. But I said, "no, instead of sacrificing your IRA, why don't you convince the legislators and the national officials whom you after all supported to win for Congress and the Senate. Convince them that we need these new taxes in order to avert a fiscal crisis." and you were successful in your advocacy.

Many gave dire predictions, especially when fuel was not exempted from taxes. And many said the moment vat is implemented there will be spiraling inflation, unrest and riot in the streets. But as I believe in providence, I believe in the timing of the Lord, what happened when we started to implement the tax reform in November first, what happened was the price of oil which started to double in the last year and a half started to go down again. That coupled with the strengthening of our peso because of our OFWs, because of the savings on our debt service, because of the lower interest rates we've had to pay, because of the inflow of direct investments and portfolio investments and exports, we have had a combination that has resulted in the easing of oil prices. And diesel prices now are lower than they were before we even put the value-added tax.

Thanks to all of these providential timing, we are posting a lower deficit this year compared to last year, not only because you have helped convince the congressmen and the senators that they must do the fiscal reforms but also thanks to your support in the local governments, BIR has been posting respectable increases in revenue as well as the bureau of customs.

Thanks to your support, the peso has become stronger. Thanks to your support, the confidence of the world is such that there is an increase in portfolio investments. Thanks to your support, because of the strengthening of the peso our inflation is being tamed. Thanks to your support, not only because of confidence due to the political stability that you show but also because you helped us so much in price monitoring as a result of our fiscal reforms.

Indeed, the more investments and business activity, the more jobs for our people and the more revenues for our local government. Don't forget that with all this value-added tax increase, 40 percent of the increase in revenue will go to you as your IRA share.

In fact, when Monching was talking about the meager resources, I was chuckling to myself because right now the national government is in deficit — although it's going down — but the local government are in surplus. So congratulations to all of you! I'm glad that, thanks to your support, the national deficit is becoming smaller and smaller because of our fiscal reforms that you so vocally supported.

If we continue this way, the national government may also be able to have, just like you, a balanced budget by 2008. And we will be able to repay our debts so that we will be able to bring every centavo-worth of taxpayers money to needed infrastructure and social services to improve the quality of life of our people while facing head on the enormous challenge of fundamental and long lasting reforms through charter change which you have so kindly and generously supported in this your convention. Thank you for your support for charter change.

And Monching mentioned about how you want to build a strong republic. Yes, we need to go back to our vision of the strong republic where the strongest infusion of service is at the grassroots, with more power to local governments, more accountability from political leaders and less power concentrated here in metro manila.

But of course, as I said, I don't believe in coincidences, I believe in providence. We must begin working for our vision by reconciling the nation with god, seeking guidance from and concentrating all our efforts to him. And we must also direct the focus of government so that its bureaucracy will be more responsive to the call of the times.

Just now I had a very long cabinet meeting, and one of the last items in the agenda was a presentation by my Deputy National Security Adviser Virtus Gil on what he will do in order to make sure that our front line services will be energized, will be in an emergency mode so that they will serve our people more.

On the part of you, the municipalities, aside from all the things we have already been doing — price monitoring, anti-terrorism, sustainable development. Oh! Sustainable development, not only upland with our support as Monching requested, may I also call for a clean up drive in the municipalities to signal a fresh start, back to work attitude and atmosphere. Because after all, lalo na paglalakbayin na natin ang magandang Pilipinas, the LGUs will more and more become our windows to the world.

You are our windows to the world and you are the window of the national government to the countryside. As Mayor Guico says, our people are made prouder and given more hope by the exemplary practices of local governments throughout the country. Those will be documented.

But can I just say something about my day today. This morning I went to the 49th anniversary of Carmen in North Cotabato. That town for 40 years was a sixth class municipality. And then it transformed itself almost overnight to a first class municipality. Exemplary, indeed. And I saw their terminal and market. I saw their new municipal hall, modern, all built without any borrowing. All from internal funds. That example of Carmen is only one of many examples I have seen in many of your towns that I have visited. So indeed, you are our window to the world. Lakbayin ang magandang pilipinas para makita ang kagandahan ng pamamahala ng ating mga local government executives.

And when I see these thing and how you spend your IRA, I'm so gratified and I do not regret that I give you your IRA in full and on time. And I do not regret that I even pay what the previous administrations owe you. As for the unprogrammed funds that Monching talked about, I am happy to let you know that the Department of Justice has given the opinion that we can return your unprogrammed funds through monetization even without specific budgetary allocation. As I said, as Monching said in your resolution, we will do this through a monetization scheme similar to the program that we also implemented together in 2002.

And I am proud that as you have said, you will use these funds, as you have been using the funds you already have to localize my ten-point beat the odds agenda which is after all our country's contribution towards the millennium development goals. And so tonight, mga local governments ng magandang Pilipinas, I ask you keep the fire burning. The journey to a strong republic may be a long way forward but the warmth of our shared sacrifices and achievements will continue to light the hopes of our people. Totoo, lakbayin ang magandang Pilipinas. Bisitahin yung mga huwarang local government units para tayo ay umabot sa maganda at malakas na republika.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

PRAYING FOR OUR DREAMS

Ginawa, palagay ko, itong araw na ito ngayon sa halip ng November 30 dahil meron rin tayong patakaran na kapag ang holiday ay nagaganap sa gitna ng Linggo, ginagawa sa Lunes para sa ganoon magkaroon na rin ng long weekend ang ating mga pamilya, magkaroon ng pagkakataon magkasama. At sa mga araw na ito, higit na importante na maging mapakumbaba, na magsisi, na mag-ayuno at manalangin. Nananalangin tayo, una sa lahat, para magsamba sa Panginoon. Nananalangin tayo, pangalawa, upang magpasalamat sa Panginoon sa lahat ng basbas niya sa atin. At sa mga araw na ito, napakaraming dapat ipagpasalamat natin sa Panginoon. Una sa lahat, alam kong maraming nagpapasalamat sa Panginoon para sa mga atletang Pilipino na ang daming pinapanalo. Labing-dalawa na ang ating gold medalists. Meron pang nakalampas ng record sa High Jump. And. I share the joy and pride of our athletes and the Filipino people for our strong start in the SouthEast Asian Games. Pwede na rin natin itong ituring bilang magandang halimbawa for the talent, skill and fighting spirit of the Filipino people. In the venues of our games, let us cheer our athletes on. Let us show to the world na sa magandang pagbasbas at pinagpala ng Panginoon sa atin, our spirits will never be broken amid political storms and economic constraints, and that we are willing to endure the tough national training for a better future, Just as the hard training of our athletes are now starting to payoff in victory. We pray for more gold medals to come.

But even more than that, nananalangin tayo para magpasalamat sa Panginoon sa magandang biyayang binibigay niya sa ating ekonomiya.

Kanina pinakita ni Bishop Tendero sa inyo ang Korea before and after. At sa pagbasbas ng Panginoon tayo rin pwede rin tayong humubog ng kapaligirang babagay sa layunin na maging first world tayo sa loob ng dalawampung taon. Ngunit kailangan magsimula tayo sa pamamagitan ng pagbalik, ipagbalik, ibalik ang ating bansa sa Panginoon.

Kaya tayo rin ay nagdadasal, nananalangin hindi lamang upang magsamba, hindi lamang upang magpasalamat kung hindi na rin tayo ay nananalangin para ma-reconcile ang ating bansa sa Panginoon. Kaya nung isang taon ako ay nag-deklara ng Araw ng Panalangin. Ngayon, lumalakas ang ating layunin, ambisyon kaya'y hindi na lamang isang araw ang dapat i-deklara ngunit isang buong linggo para sa rekonsilasyon.

Kaya ako ay handang gumawa ng deklarasyon na mula Nobyembre a-treinta hanggang a-siete ng Disyembre ito ay dapat Isang Panahon ng Panalangin. Hinahanda na ng aking abogado itong deklarasyon na ito. At dito sa Panahon ng Panalangin, ang hinihiling ko sa lahat ng mga kasapi ng ating lipunan, kasama na ako doon, una sa lahat, na hanapin ang... hanapin ang gabay at direksyon at talagang i-buo ang lahat ng pagsisikap na ialay sa Panginoon.

Nananalangin tayo hindi lamang para magsamba, para magpasalamat, para mag-reconcile kung hindi na rin siyempre dahil ang Panginoon ay mabait na Ama, Para humingi rin ng kanyang mga biyaya dahil siya ay mabait at mapagbigay na Panginoon.

Nagdadasal tayo ng higit pang medalyang ginto hindi lamang para sa ating mga atleta kung hindi para sa ating ekonomiya at lahat ng taong bayan.

Nagdadasal tayo para sa mga kasamahan ni Bishop Bengi sa Kongreso na sila ay magbubuo ng magandang paraan upang makapasa yung budget ng 2006, Kasi ang budget ay importante para masustento ang ating pagsulong ng ating ekonomiya at magpadala ng mga batayang serbisyo sa taong-bayan.

Alam n'yo kung bakit ako nagpapasalamat sa Panginoon sa ating ekonomiya? Dahil ang ating savings sa ating budget na akala natin magiging lugi na ang ating budget ay 40 million pesos gawa ng mga bagong buwis gaya ng alcohol and cigarette tax pati na rin yung mas mabisang pagkubra ng buwis at saka yung osteridad ng paggastos ng pamahalaan. Kanya lamang sa 40 billion halos wala tayo agad na ma-realign sa imprastruktura at saka sa mga batayang serbisyo sa lipunan dahil ang saving na ito ay nasa debt service. Ang debt service item ay hindi ma-realign sa ibang bagay. At bakit tayo nagkaroon ng malaking savings sa debt service? Una sa lahat, lumalakas ang piso. Eh ang bayad natin sa debt service ay dolyar kaya lumiliit. Pangalawa, dahil sa ating political will kasama ni Bishop Benny sa ating pagpasa ng mga importanteng buwis, lumawak ang kompiyansa ng mundo sa atin kaya yung interes na binabayad natin ngayon ay mas mababa. Kaya bumaba yung ating pagbayad ng interes at principal sa ating utang pero hindi ito basta pwedeng ma-realign kung hindi kailangan mag-submit ako ng budget muli sa Congress na hihingin ang permiso na yung saving natin ay magastos doon sa imprastruktura at batayang serbisyo sa lipunan na kailangan natin. Kaya nananalangin ako na ang Kongreso ay ibibigay itong hiling nating realignment ng budget na ito.

Manalangin din tayo sa Panginoon na igabay ang ating landas sa patungo sa pinakamabisa at pinakamagaan na paraan kung papano palitan ang ating Saligang Batas. Dahil ang pagpapalit ng ating Konstitusyon, ang ating Saligang Batas ay tungkol sa ating kinabukasan. Ito ay tungkol sa panaginip ng Pilipino na magkaroon ng malakas, kabagay-bagay, mabuting pagdesisyon, matino, at nakakasagot sa hiling at pangangailangan. Ganung klaseng pamahalaan na iaangat ang ekonomiya sa ranggo ng mga bansa kagaya ng Korea na pinakita ni Bishop Tenderso kanina sa inyo.

Pang-samba, pang-pasalamat, pagbabago at mga biyaya, para sa lahat na ito tayo ay nananalangin sa pangalan ng ating Panginoong Hesukristo. Amen. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, December 8, 2005]

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES AS CHAMPIONS OF NATION-BUILDING

Thank you for all being here today. I'm happy to be with you today because first of all it's my aim to make our government workers and our educators and our executives champions in nation-building.

I'm glad to celebrate with you a special anniversary. We've been together many times, Espie, but this time Cause it's special because it's the 60th anniversary of the PGEA. Happy jubilee to all of you!

When I met you for the first time I was VP, I didn't realize PGEA had already been 60 years in existence. Ninety? Oo, ninety eight when we met, pero 60 years na pala. In fact, the association is older than many of you and me. And it is high time to congratulate you for all these decades of spirited quest of true service and your fight against graft and corruption. Because of your spirited quest for true service and your fight against graft and corruption, you are making an essential contribution to governance.

But we all know, while I must say and I think Espie and some of you know, some of the revamps we've made had been as a result of recommendations of the PGEA. We all know that much more needs to be done to clean up and modernize our bureaucracy. In fact, our entire political system if we want to attain the dream of joining the ranks of first world countries in 20 years.

Well, the journey of a thousand miles they say is anent the proverb says begins with a few steps. And I have always said the first step is to reconcile the nation with God through a period of national renewal. For the Catholics this is a special very period. The last three days were days of devotion to the sacrament of reconciliation because today is not only the 60th anniversary of PGEA, it is the 150th anniversary of the doctrine of Immaculate Conception. So this has been our period of prayer and renewal for the Catholics.

For the Muslims, I have asked them since Ramadan, the last Ramadan to use that period for reconciliation with God. And for other denominations we have had a similar program in their churches by declaring since last year, November 30th, as a period of prayer, a day of prayer and fasting. In these times of prayer, I have asked our society to seek guidance from and concentrate all its efforts to God. That's the first step, getting guidance from the Lord.

The second step in this journey of a thousand miles is to redirect the focus or government so that the bureaucracy will be more responsive to the call and need of the times. And this is where I ask PGEA to help in the modernization of the bureaucracy. This may mean amending the objectives of EO 366. Some of you are uncomfortable with that to begin with, so we amend its objectives. And that may mean issuing a new enabling executive order that I have asked the deputy national security adviser, the colleague of our... The former colleague of our police officers here, General Virtus Gil, to draft this enabling executive order after the consultations he's undergoing now that will allow front line agencies like many of your agencies, to operate in an emergency or state of calamity mode. Why? Because it is you, the officials and employees in the bureaucracy whose leadership and dedication can make a difference in the overall score of national excellence. I talk about national excellence because of our athletes, who have just proven our national excellence.

Indeed, the source of excellence of our economy is its human resources. Like them the athletes and you, the government employees. Not to mention of course our world-class work force in a hundred forty countries all over the world. Because of them, the global work force, our gross international reserves have hit 18 billion dollars, unprecedented. Our economy is the only one in the world which gets an adrenaline shot in the arm every year end because of them. But this year is special, a forty percent increase in overseas remittances.

And therefore the role of our local colleges and universities comes to the fore because our great human resources are our greatest resources. I ask the local colleges and universities on the occasion of your oath taking of your officials to train our sights on strengthening our overseas worker base, beginning with tweaking the school curriculum to prepare the Filipino to be the best worker in the world. This includes a focus on English, computer literacy, cultural awareness, and supervisory and technical skills. Such an effort is consistent with every nation's pursuit to make its citizens globally competitive, but more than that it is a means of people empowerment because our greatest resources are our people.

But at the same time, while we extol our people as our greatest resources, we must also define the major role of land in wealth generation, especially land reclamation. And this is my marching order for our new general manager of the Philippine Reclamation Authority, the Honorable Bebot Bello.

The people pin their hopes upon the performance of our public servants. Cabinet members like Secretary Duque, government corporate executives and CEOs like Secretary Bello, our leaders of the educational system, our bureaucracy from the top officials to the lowest rank and file. And we are trying hard, in spite of budget limitations, to alleviate the plight of our government work force.

That's why in the 2006 proposed budget, we've included a compensation adjustment fund of 13 billion pesos so that you can have an increase in your compensation.

And this is also why I have asked the DBM to collate from all the national government agencies the total of our savings so that we can use that pool of national government savings for a uniform extra bonus for all of you, and last night, Secretary Neri confirmed to me that we can give you an additional bonus of 5,000 pesos.

To all of you Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

At the Ceremonial Submission of the Report of the Consultative Commission

CHANGING THE SYSTEM FOR THE BETTER

The world changes with great speed, in leaps and bounds, as the years go by but especially in this 21st century. And victory lies not only in superior skills and economic acumen, it lies in superior political systems.

The model of governance demanded by the rapidly changing times must be able to gather and concentrate the energies of a nation on strategic goals when needed, but spread political power to the regions for greater economic efficiency to light poverty and erase destitution.

The model governance must be able to moderate if not eradicate the politics of hate. It must be able to build confidence and optimism on the firmament of popular faith and hope because we, the Filipino people have earned the right to be more hopeful.

The peso is the world's best performing currency for the year 2005. Our OFW remittances are surging. An annual deficit... Our annual deficit as of November is 37 billion pesos below ceiling, allowing us... And that's the reason why we can give a 5,000 peso bonus for state workers and proposed a tax exemption for minimum wage earners.

Other countries like South Korea whose president just left this noon, appreciate our workers enough to change the rules to accommodate our requirements and appreciate our fiscal responsibility enough to give us preferential treatment in their official development assistance.

But the challenge of unemployment is unfinished.

The model of governance must address that unfinished challenge. We created many jobs this year. As of last statistics, almost a million, but more entered the labor force. That's why the challenge is still unfinished. And the model of governance must be able to address that challenge with greater success than we have been having all these past decades. Moreover, the model of governance must be able to forge the vision of a Philippines in the ranks of the first world in 20 years.

The Philippines must not be left behind as it is being left behind. It must lead in both integration and competition.

The key is systemic change. A change in the system.

As our speaker said earlier, we have strained the present political system to its limit. And if we must do more, we must free the country from the limits of the present system.

I have warned of creeping degeneration of our politics. This generation has been creeping all these years and now tending to blow up in our faces unless we stop that momentum. I have spoken of the need for fundamental change, as our speaker said earlier, way back since 2003 and again in the Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan, and again in my last State of the Nation Address and I said, the sooner the better. And I must congratulate the Constitutional Commission because you finished your part of the job sooner and therefore better.

Today, you have presented to me a road map that has been laid by the Consultative Commission towards the fulfillment of our dreams. I commend all the members of the Consultative Commission for their patriotism, dedication and perseverance in crafting this framework of change. And for this, I am bestowing upon each one of you the Presidential Medal of Merit.

I ask everyone else to please reserve your applause until all the commissioners who are here today have been called.

So, we have the list of commissioners: Angelo Abarico, Alfredo Abueg; Jose Abueva; Anthony Acevedo; Ronald Adamat; Omar Ututalum Amin; Emmanuel Angeles; Sergio Apostol; Rene Azurin; Andres Bautista; Jose Bello, Jr.; Romela Bengzon; Jarius Bondoc; Jesus James Calisin; Noel Cariño; Gonzalo Catan, Jr.; Francis Chua; Gerardo Espina, Sr.; Pablo Garcia; Nel Gonzales; Joji Ilagan Bian; Rita Linda Jimeno; Gonzalo Jurado; Amado Lagdameo; Raul Lambino; Liberato Laus; Jose Leviste, Jr.; Lito Monico Lorenzana; Alex Magno; Emily Marohombsar; Democrito Mendoza; David Naval; Victor Ortega; Vicente Paterno; Carmen Pedrosa; Fernando Peña; Oscar Rodriguez; Pedro Romualdo; Mel Sarmiento; Betty Lou Tabanda; Efraim Tendero; Rey Teves; David Tirol; Miguel Varela; Jose Villanueva, and last but not the least, the man who put us in the U.N. Security Council, Alfonso Yuchengco.

I now transmit the recommendations of the Commission to Congress to serve as a point of reference for its historic deliberations.

I bear faith that our legislators will take the historic political process to a higher level, as the nation strikes a hold, decisive sweep of fundamental reforms.

And in the end, it will be the sovereign people who will be the only power that can change this great country.

Mabuhay!

Maraming salamat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Vin D'Honneur 2006

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Vin D'Honneur 2006

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, January 9, 2006]

FOCUSING ON THE YEAR AHEAD

I thank you all for being here. The New Year's reception is a timely opportunity to focus on the year ahead.

This year, I'm confident and hopeful about the state of our nation. We're on the right road, starting with the fact that the Philippines entered the year on a high note: the stock market is up and closed at 2151 points today; the peso is strong and testing 52 to the dollar; revenue collections are up and our fiscal deficit is down. The strong macro economic fundamentals are starting to pull up the economy — more than one million jobs were created last year and more investments have been flowing in along with a surge in tourism. In fact, the government saved over 20 billion pesos last year from debt service as a result of our improving economic performance. This money freed from debt service is being invested in the people.

I've set an ambitious but achievable plan for 2006 that rests on three strategic objectives: one, build a stronger economy. Two, build a stronger republic — we will achieve this by fighting terrorism and destabilization and bringing peace to Mindanao. And three, press for long-overdue political reform through Charter Change.

First and foremost is the need to deliver real economic and social results to the people as soon as possible. Phase I of my economic plan has delivered desired macro results through investor confidence, fiscal stability and the prospect for improved credit ratings. Phase II of my economic plan, which I launched after the passage of the VAT Reform Law, is designed to bring the benefits of our macroeconomic advances to the people who are after all the inspiration for our reforms.

For the first time in years, we will have the resources to sustain our investment in the people and not just feed the beast of debt service.

We recognize that the benefits apparent at the top of the economic pyramid are not yet being felt by the very people who need it most—our poor. Therefore, I have asked my Cabinet to target 35 billion pesos immediately to help bring near-term improvement to the lives of our people. And that's only a down payment on the money that will be flowing to the people as our revenues continue to increase and our cost of debt servicing continues to decline.

And let me be clear: this is not wild-eyed spending; this is targeted spending within the limits of our fiscal controls and budget plan. We are paying responsibly down our debt while simultaneously building up our investments in basic services and infrastructure.

Progress is not always apparent to those who need it the most and who are most concerned with the day-to-day necessities of life. Therefore the people remain impatient for fundamental change in their lives. This is particularly in the area of health care, education, housing and infrastructure. It is to these areas that the money will be spent in an effort to create jobs and provide better services.

My top priority in the coming months is to see that real results are delivered to real people. In the first six working days of the year, I instructed the release of 3.5 billion pesos: half a billion for farm-to-market roads; half a billion for infrastructure response to the problem of recurring floods; one billion for housing for Northrail and North-South rail linkage relocatees and for our soldiers; half a billion for subsidized rice and noodles for the poorest of the poor; half a billion for PhilHealth insurance subsidies; and half a billion to build classrooms in overcrowded elementary schools.

Our economic security is deeply affected by our physical security. Peace and order go hand-in-hand with a strong economy. And nothing is more important to our personal and economic security than the fight against terrorism and destabilization. Terrorism and destabilization are costly in terms of shattered lives, misspent capital and misspent economic productivity. The people are fearful of what the scourges of terrorism and destabilization are doing to their lives and their security. I am determined to bring real peace and real security to alleviate their fears. The next generation deserves to live in peace and harmony.

Terrorism and destabilization and the resources used to fight them sap the strength of the nation. We must end terrorism and destabilization so that we can bring back peace, order and security into the everyday lives of the people. We must then use the money that's diverted to these fights and employ it wisely by investing in the opportunity of a vibrant society.

I will not rest until we have condemned terrorism and destabilization to the dustbin of history. We must fight destabilization in every corner of our nation. We must fight terrorism in concert with our allies around the world.

Terrorism and destabilization are evils that we must conquer and overcome. On the other hand, peace in Mindanao is a noble cause that we must embrace. We will strengthen our security and enhance the peace as a result of a successful conclusion of a just and equitable agreement with the MILF. I remain optimistic that 2006 will be the year of peace in the Philippines.

I have been bringing the Philippines back into the mainstream of the global community through a strong regional and global foreign policy.

I have led an aggressive foreign policy agenda designed to bolster our economic and political security, and in no area has this been more important than in gathering the pieces together to forge peace and prosperity in Mindanao.

The concerted foreign policy efforts of our administration have helped pave the way for a significant breakthrough in the south. Our Muslim friends in Malaysia, in Southeast Asia and in the Middle East, and our traditional allies in Asia, Europe and America have rallied to help facilitate a peace in Mindanao.

There is hope and promise for our economy and for securing peace and order in this new year, yet there remain many mountains to climb across the landscape. Social justice is not yet available to every man, woman and child in our land. The high global price for oil is pressing on the poor. There is a need to regain the trust of the people in the institutions of government. And the violence perpetrated against journalists and judges is a moral outrage that must be crushed.

So, while I believe we have made progress, we will not achieve the rank of a modern, first world nation in 20 years until we address these issues.

To do so, we must slay the dragon of politics as usual. Politics dominates our life way out of proportion to the real needs of the people. And a change in politics must be accompanied by a change in our system of government.

To that end, we must create a modern constitution if we are to build a modern Philippines.

We can and must deliver to the people a constitution that they can trust to create a better Philippines. To that end, we must create a new constitution that provides for less gridlock, more local control, greater accountability by the politicians, better service delivery, stronger police protection, less opportunity for official corruption, and more jobs and economic development at the local and provincial level.

People are sick and tired of all the politics. They want less talk, more action; more jobs, less jawboning; more local control, not more metro manila control. The people want to move forward; not stand in place. Doing nothing is not an option.

I'm pushing for Charter reform because I sincerely believe it is the last bastion that holds back the nation and keeps us divided and poor, when we should be unified and prosperous.

Charter reform is about moving the nation forward. It is a referendum on whether we want a modern nation, free from want and poverty or a nation that embraces the status quo and merely treads water. I for one want a nation that moves ahead with decisiveness, vigor and force, and provides more jobs and economic opportunity for every single person.

In conclusion, I relieve we are embarked on a plan for 2006 that is realistic, focused and achievable. It is ambitious, yes. But the people are impatient and eager for progress and so am I.

Let me therefore ask you all to join me in a toast for a stronger, safer nation and a stronger, safer world — politically, socially and economically.

During the Lakas-CMD National Directorate Meeting

[Delivered at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang, January 14, 2006]

Thank you.

Thank you, Joe, our Party President.

President Ramos, our esteemed Chairman Emeritus of the party, the leaders of our great party, ladies and gentlemen.

If the trend of the results of revision in the protest against my running mate Noli de Castro continues, our party lawyers are optimistic that we could right finish to the 2004 poll controversy and all these political grandstanding on alleged poll cheating will die a natural death.

The ballots used and election returns canvassed for the vice president were the same ballots and election returns for the president. Thus, aside from observing Noli's vote — and Agnes Devanadera can tell you — our party lawyers are doing the same also, looking at the votes for the presidential candidates. After opening the ballot boxes of Mandaue City and opening the ballot boxes from Lapu-Lapu city, no evidence of poll irregularities for presidential and vice presidential candidates were discovered.

I remember during the canvassing one of the other candidates was saying, "dalawang ERS lang tignan natin — sila pa ang pipili; eto kalaban pa ang pumili — Mandaue and Lapu-Lapu, everything matches." So our lawyers are optimistic that the more than one million vote lead I got from the province of Cebu and Cebu City, where the bulk of my final lead came from, will be confirmed and the legitimacy of my proclamation unassailable and should be respected. Thank you beloved party mates for bringing us to victory in the last elections.

Another big fight looms for the party. We face three fronts of struggle: First, the economy — we must sustain our gains; Second, charter change — we must achieve this by the middle of this year; Third is poverty — we must bring relief to the people battered by high oil prices and unemployment.

During my administration, our administration, I'm very proud that we created one million jobs a year. But with the growing population as mentioned by President Ramos — 20 million in the last 20 years — we need to create 1.5 million jobs a year.

We have a plan for each front and each must be pursued with teamwork and discipline. I shall be at the helm of both the economy and the pump priming program for social equity. Congress and the local government shall push the pencil attack on charter change gathering force behind the mandate of the people. And I know our party with our unity and teamwork will succeed in that great political reform.

Our strategic aim is permanent political and economic stability to take us to the threshold of the first world in 20 years. We must strengthen our ranks to enforce and sustain full democratic leadership until 2010 and for the next generation.

We shall preserve our coalitions on the pedestal of principles and ideals and never on the shaking floors of expediency. With our heavy armory of legitimacy and democracy, we shall fight the squads of destabilizers and spoilers in the opposition. We are the superior force. Our opponents must either tow the line of the national interest for which we stand and fiscalize responsibly with statesmanship or be relegated to the wayside of irrelevance and ignominy.

The stakes for the party and the nation are high. The demands upon each and everyone of us formidable. For the past years, we have already been steeled by bruising battles, we don't need additional training to win over our political foes in every round. What is needed is more aggressive advocacies to shoot down threats even before take off, to rally the people behind charter change, to demonstrate party rule and discipline attuned to a parliamentary system.

Every time we meet as a party, I have consistently committed myself to a leadership of fairness and mutual respect — my vow stands. I face the greatest battles. The terrain is rough and sometimes unforgiving, but I place my faith in the hands of the Lord and in the great alliances like the one that fervently lives in this gathering.

The economy is taking off. Two years... In 2004, we reached six percent growth rate. Last year with the oil crisis and everything, about five percent, Romy? Global confidence in the Filipino, a winner in front after front is firm and we can see this in the strong peso, the strongest currency in Asia and the fifth strongest currency in the world; the strong stock market, the second strongest in Asia; the strong investment inflows. Last year's inflows were many times over the year before; the strong tourism boom, two million and a half tourists last year; and the privilege of leadership granted to us in the great forums of the world.

I shall continue to devote my energy in leading the fight against poverty and hunger while we anticipate the positive impact of our economic boom on the daily lives of the people.

I call upon you, our party mates, to ride the wave of social equity and reforms as the payback for the sacrifices of our people. We must increase the volume of civic duty above the political noise and work unceasingly to uplift the people and to right what is wrong with our political system. Social reform, economic growth and political renewal must be knit tightly in a single-minded national strategy to achieve first world status in 20 years.

You know one time during our difficult moments, our Executive Vice President Sonny Belmonte reminded me about something very inspirational. Sonny said, "you can get bruised and battered, but the last man standing is the man to win... Who will win."

And so I end by repeating Sonny's observation and advice: "to everyone of us, together and to the last man and woman standing, we must fight and win for the Filipino people."

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo on the Operations Research Society Conference Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the Operations Research Society Conference

[Delivered at the Dusit Hotel Nikko, Makati City, January 16, 2006]

THE SCIENCE OF THE BETTER

The Operations Research Society of the Philippines led by its President Elise del Rosario has done a good job in bringing together distinguished O.R. researchers, academicians and practitioners in the country and all over the world. And well she said that it's very infrequent that the head of state will address an O.R. conference. Just like Ver Peña who is an O.R. practitioner, I have, you know, as I said when I was a senator when I spoke before them, I am not a stranger to operations research because when I did my PhD in economics it was obligatory on us to study operations research. So I am familiar with your science and I am very appreciative of your science that's why I am here with you today.

Operations research is the hallmark of a strong and resilient organization going through challenging times. And you are the people who carry the banner of optimization, optimum effectiveness. That's why operations research is often called the science of the better.

And well when I was a senator I was doing laws but now as president I am doing planning and executing planning and all the more I can see in my experience, though I saw it in my textbooks when I was still in school, that in a sense governments share common optimization problems with other organizations like corporations. We all need to optimize resources which means maximizing revenues, minimizing cost to step up efficiency, to maximize public services but also to manage crisis after crisis whether natural or man-made.

But then on the other hand operations research was born during the war to manage military crisis. So operations research should be able to be used for crisis management as well and not just for cold planning in normal conditions.

Certainly our government could make use of your expertise to ensure the success of our development programs. But though in a sense governments are the same as corporations, because we have to optimize, the challenges to government and corporate management can also be miles apart. In government, the variables to consider are much more numerous and more important, less apparent, their magnitudes and their weights more diverse.

Public decisions affect not several employees but the lives of millions of citizens. Sometimes the most efficient solution is not politically feasible.

You know when I was taking up operations research in school — let's talk about being in San Miguel, Ver and Elise, and there was an apocryphal story about San Miguel in operations research — and I don't know if it's true and I don't think it's true that they came up with through operations research the ideal menu for their feedstock, for their feeds, an ideal menu in terms of cost and in terms of nutritional value. So they came up with the ideal feed, the ideal recipe, but the chickens didn't eat it. So it's an... I'm sure it's an apocryphal story but it's a story that our teachers would give us so that from the very beginning we know that there are certain limitations to the science and those limitations are even greater when it comes to governance, to governments.

In government, in governance, the correct choice technically is not always the popular one. The chickens might not eat it or do you force feed them? To quote one O.R. practitioner, "government is not only about the ends, but also about the means of pursuing them effectively."

On the other hand, you can only go so far also about the means because there are times when a leader in the public realm must bear with unpopularity and stick to the right choices.

For instance, fiscal reform. Will you ever find a fiscal reform acceptable to people? Nobody likes to pay taxes. The only fiscal reform they will accept is a reform that or openly accept or welcome with open arms would a fiscal reform that reduces payments. But most fiscal reforms require increasing payments.

And so all the more I'm glad to hear of the successful applications of operational research in other countries which helped their development. I've seen in your papers successes in endeavors such as minimizing the cost of production and transportation of agricultural produce in India. We have an imported logistics challenge in the Philippines to bring our products from Mindanao, which is our food basket, to Luzon through several islands in the Visayas to Luzon which is where sixty percent of the consumers are. That's a great thought that how you could help in India is a way where which you could also help in the Philippines.

I've read about your scheduling and routing the railway network service in South Africa. We also have our railway service that we are trying to do for Manila up to Clark-Subic in the north, then Manila up to Bicol in the south and then linking the two railways. And then there are the proposals for railways in the Visayas and in Mindanao, and there's my own transport pet project which is the system of roll-on/roll-off ferry boats and highways from Mindanao through the islands of the Visayas to Luzon I'm also very glad to hear that you're able to optimize the school meal programs of Chile. We have a problem of hunger in the Philippines and we would want to be able to work on how to reduce hunger, should it be or what combination should it be of school breakfast or giving rice to the children when they go to school so they can bring it home to their parents. And given the budget available for that how do we distribute this kind of program within the country.

I'm glad to hear that your operations research has been able to predict the grain output in China. And indeed, we do need to make predictions such as that in our planning.

So, therefore, I'm sure that O.R. practitioners can do similar work in our country as well as you've been able to do in some of these other countries which will be part of your best practices sharing in this conference. I look forward to your support in making our government programs work successfully and effectively. And indeed, this is timely that for the first time you're holding this conference in the Philippines. We hold this conference at the advent of a new year that's full of hope and optimism for our country.

I have set an ambitious but I believe in operations research achievable plan for 2006 that rests on three strategic objectives: number one is to build a stronger economy; number two is to build a stronger republic to strengthen the fight against terrorism and destabilization and bring peace to our southern island of Mindanao; and number three is to press for long-overdue political reform through Charter Change.

The people are tired of political noise and showing mistrust on politicians but they are anticipating fundamental changes. And I am certainly glad to hear — I heard about that even when I was a senator — of the pro-bono work that the Operations Research Society of the Philippines through its committee for public service, which you told me about on its existence when I was a senator, what this committee has done for the government. Your help can increase transparency, efficiency and improve service delivery to the public.

When I was a senator, when I spoke before the Operations Research Society, I wondered out loud if operations research could help solve our traffic problem. And that's when you said, "of course, there's been a study in the U.P. about that and the O. R. Society's Public Service Committee would like to very much be able to help if we could." So now that I'm president, I'm not just wondering out loud, I'm inviting you to help us solve our traffic problem to help us in our traffic management.

Alongside with our poverty alleviation, the programs I mentioned earlier: nutrition, school feeding, distribution of rice to the families of the poor or even selling rice at the lowest price possible in the hot spots poor communities of Metro Manila, price minimization of basic commodities and the creation of job opportunities, now that I have a 35 billion-peso pump priming initiative. With your operations research, the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Customs can leverage innovative approaches to hike revenues and put to justice tax cheats and smugglers.

Indeed, you are the analysts that can make our road maps and operational plans feasible. And I commend your significant role both in enterprise and nation-building.

And as you have this important conference of the Asia-Pacific region in the Philippines, I bid you more power as you continue to raise the standards of your profession. And I hope that you will continue to do your part and even enhance that part as responsible citizens and nation builders.

Speech of President Arroyo on Rotary as partner in sustaining economy

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On Rotary as partner in sustaining economy

[Delivered at Holiday Inn Resort Clarkfield, Angeles City, Pampanga, February 10, 2006]

Thank you for continuing to be concerned with the Rotary clubs that you headed in the past and the Rotary districts. And thank you for inviting me to be here with you today because I would consider that as an expression that one of the Rotary concerns is how you can continue or even expand your partnership with the government in helping our people.

Indeed, Rotary is a partner in sustaining the economy, because many of you are important businessmen and professionals, and in alleviating the plight of the poor because that's what got you into the club to begin with — how to do community service. And because you are all governors here, you are of proven leadership in the private and NGO sector, and you are the vanguards for community service. And I've come here before you today, not only because Guiller is my cousin, but knowing Rotary very intimately I would like to say that we in the government need you more than ever in uniting our people in growing the economy and delivering its fruits to the doorstep of the poor. And I hope that you will continue to guide the incumbent officers of Rotary to do that.

Your back to basics concept of delivering essential services to the community, such as livelihood, jobs, shelter, health and education stand on the same springboard as our pump priming programs. Let me therefore share with you a couple of things we are doing as part of our 35 billion-peso pump priming programs which we are able to do now because through your support we were able to raise our taxes through our fiscal reform programs.

In the area of shelter, which is a very important activity of Rotary, the United Nations commended our government for our socialized housing program. And for January as part of our pump priming program, I released one billion pesos for the relocation of squatters from the railroad tracks. Perhaps many of you who go through Osmeña highway in Makati have seen that the railroad tracks are being cleared at the pace of 100 families a day. And we're able to do that because we've spent one billion pesos for their relocation. Five hundred million pesos for community mortgage programs wherein those who squat on private land can buy the land from the private sector owner and also for socialized housing projects.

For instance, I instructed the secretary of the budget to release 25 million pesos to be able to work on the socialized housing programs for Welfareville in Mandaluyong City.

Also during our administration, not just what we released this January but throughout our six years of... Well, not yet six years, five years that we are in government, more than 100,000 families have benefited from our urban land reform proclamations where we proclaim a piece of land as available for security of tenure for those who are living there. Many of these are government lands that would be useless anyway because you would go through such expense of relocating the squatters or giving them the social preparation. And indeed, we're spending one billion pesos for the north and north-south rail linkage relocation alone.

So, billions and billions would be required if you were to relocate all of them. So there are government lands like lands that belong to the national railroad that will not have a railroad built on them that we have already allotted to those who are living in them. And this is following the principle of Hernando de Soto, whereby, if you give a document that an impoverished person can have that he can use to get credit, then you begin to build small enterprises and you begin to build a better life for the people there.

In fact, one of the things we noticed is that after we've proclaimed an area for socialized or shelter a security, in the beginning, they're living on barong-barongs or cardboard boxes. After awhile, you see that they're already building with materiales fuertes and putting small enterprise in their little houses.

We have awarded certificates of lot allotment Hernando de Soto style to almost 14,000 families and will be awarding over 21,000 more. During my administration, we have allocated almost three billion pesos for this very strong community mortgage programs whereby 65,000 beneficiaries are able to buy the land from the owner of the land that they are squatting on. So, they are no longer squatters and the owner at least gets paid for the land that otherwise he probably wouldn't be able to do anything about it anyway because it's very hard to eject thousands of people living on your land.

Going to education now which is also a very important concern of Rotary, as part of our pump priming program, I've also released 500 million pesos for grade school classrooms this month of January; 500 million pesos for high school scholarship vouchers, and many Rotarians I know own schools, high schools, and a lot of you have been complaining that your schools are closing down the high schools. Because ever since we provided for public high school education, the children... The parents would rather send their children to public high schools.

Now, of course, there is a lot of... Because of the population growing, there's a lot of classrooms for grade school and high school. We build for the grade school but for the high school — why build additional classrooms for public school when you have excess classrooms in private schools? So therefore, the economic solution is high school vouchers where the children from public grade schools can if they wish enroll in a private high school if the public high school in their neighborhood is already over enrolled.

And we have also allocated 500 million pesos for the high school voucher program. Four thousand pesos is what we grant to every child who goes to a private high school and enrolls there, and that is much cheaper than building new high schools and paying for the teachers. Also, it prevents dislocation and closure of a very important industry in our country and that is private school education.

The 2006 budget for this kind of government assistance to students in private education is almost two billion pesos. And if the whole two billion would be spent at four thousand pesos per voucher this would allow almost half a million students from poor families to enroll in private high schools. To what extent we will be successful in getting half a million students to avail of this service will of course depend on the absorptive capacity of the bureaucracy to process it because this is the first time we're doing this on such a large scale. And I hope that the Rotary clubs where education as one of their primary programs will help us in this absorption.

For college scholarships — just earlier, I came from the Ramon Magsaysay Technical University in Zambales and I announced to them that — we are releasing on Monday 500 million pesos for scholarships in tertiary education. It's a good thing Ben Ricaforte is here, a message for Nona, this 500 million pesos will be for the students who will enroll in technical and vocational schools in state universities and colleges. And I would wish this could be one billion pesos, I'll see what I can do in the 2006 budget. But I think it's so important to provide for this tertiary education scholarship because of the many pre-need victims who are holding pre-need scholarship plans but are not able to use their scholarship plans because of the financial problems of the pre-need industry. Therefore, the key to not having all that massive stranding of the pre-need victims is to have a massive scholarship program in tertiary education.

Ideally, one billion pesos. Now. There's 500 million pesos on Monday. Well spend the rest of the year including the budget process looking for the second hundred billion pesos... 500 million pesos. In any case, school begins in June, so we have all this time but for the tri-semester education institutions, I hope they can start working on this system in the third semester. So even if the 2006 budget contains only 441 billion pesos, I will try to raise it to one billion pesos especially to help the pre-need victims.

With the things that we are doing — pump priming, collecting more taxes, having tax reform, reducing the budget deficit — indeed, things are looking better than they have in a long time. Actually, if you speak of poverty between 2000 and 2003, when the last national survey was made, there has been a decline in the poverty incidence.

Nonetheless, when you're talking of four million people I inherited who had no jobs, and even if we say that maybe there are less than four million people now with no jobs, that's still a lot — over three million people with no jobs. There's still a lot to do, but things are looking better.

Well, many of you are bankers, businessmen, and maybe you've heard that just recently metro bank tried to raise 100 million dollars in the market. Well, they did not get subscriptions of 100 million dollars, they got subscriptions of 650 million dollars, six times oversubscribed. And you've read in the papers about Standard and Poor's raising our credit rating outlook and I hope that you've heard that the biggest pension fund in the United States, Calpers, the California Pension and Retirement System, has upgraded the Philippine investment rating to even higher than China, Malaysia and Russia.

So, my message to you, as you advise the incumbent Rotary officers, let's commit ourselves to exert your moral influence, our moral influence to end despair and raise hope. Let's join hands and work together to raise the nation to the apex of our dreams.

Once again, I'm so happy to see many of my fellow Rotarians and their husbands. Thank you once again for inviting me and may Rotary continue to be of service to our communities.

Speech of President Arroyo on making ASEAN Globally Competitive

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On making ASEAN Globally Competitive

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, February 17, 2006]

MAKING ASEAN GLOBALLY COMPETITIVE

I appreciate that your meeting is being held in Manila at a time when the Philippines is on the move. And on the part of the Philippines, let me assure you that we shall continue to work together for an ASEAN economic front that can compete with the rest of the world driven by you, by private enterprise and secured by durable strategic alliances.

On the part of the Philippines, we have made unpopular but long overdue choices that have been very tough politically, but it is a course that is both morally right and economically sound. Our reforms are investments today for a stronger Philippines and a stronger ASEAN tomorrow.

As you all know, we are preparing to host your 4th summit alongside the Philippines' hosting of the 12th ASEAN Summit in December of this year.

And in preparation for that, I bid you the best in this particular meeting, in this meeting that you have now where you are mapping out your work plan for the rest of the year and drawing up a ten-year action plan that is truly important and strategic consistent with our regional goals.

The Philippines shall continue to be a strong player in strengthening the ramparts of regional integration, regional security and business partnership. In some of our previous meetings in ASEAN, sometimes I would notice a disparity between what the B.I.S. leaders tell us in the summit and what we talk about. Countries being assigned to this and that industry, but when we leaders talk about it, it's not something that we have internalized. I hope that in this ASEAN summit, we'll really be able to weave our respective strategic plans — the governments and the private sector.

Today is a sad day for the Philippines. We had a landslide in Southern Leyte and I thank all of those, many of your governments and even the private sector, who have expressed to us your sympathies and also your willingness to support us in this effort.

On the other hand, we also had some piece of good news yesterday. And we were very happy over our country's upgrade in the U.S. anti-piracy watch list. Philippine excellence in all fields will be protected in the long run by our adherence to global intellectual property standards. We will keep on improving until we are finally out of the watch list completely. Fighting piracy is fighting poverty because it enables Filipino excellence and enterprise to rise in the global arena. It enables expanding opportunities and jobs along the way. Upholding intellectual property rights promotes diffusion of knowledge, develops local talent and creativity, and at the same time encourages more investors from ASEAN and other parts of the world to endow your strong qualities in the Philippine market.

We appreciate the help of civil society and private groups in this vigilant campaign against piracy and we must not relent in our combined efforts. I think what we were able to do together — governments, civil society and the private sector in order to improve our rating on anti-piracy efforts is something that we should be able to duplicate in ASEAN. In the ASEAN meetings we have already incorporated the inputs or the participation of the business sector and civil society. But I hope that they will be real working together and not just a ceremonial submission of conclusions.

We are matching gains in the Philippine economy such as a strong drive in the law and order front and we expect this to multiply confidence, investments and jobs.

The stirrings of a new dynamism are evident in Southern Philippines — which is the part of the Philippines that is closest to ASEAN geographically — as we push the frontiers of peace and development forward. We were able to do this because of help from our ASEAN friends such as Malaysia, which has been hosting and facilitating the peace talks; Indonesia, which has been espousing our cause in the organization of the Islamic conference as the chairman of the committee on the eight that monitors the compliance of our previous peace agreements; and also countries like Brunei that contributes forces to the international monitoring team on the ceasefire.

And even as we work and make peace a formality because it's already a reality on the ground with the MILF, we shall continue to mop up the last enclaves of terrorists who lurk in the remote jungles. And here again, we have great synergy among ASEAN governments since 2001 when we started a tripartite agreement — the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia — to share information against transnational crimes including terrorism. And now, this agreement has spread among other countries in ASEAN as well.

Today, the export markets afforded by North America, Europe and Japan remain strong, but the allure of our own region is even stronger — everybody wants to be a dialogue partner of ASEAN. That's why we might even have 20 countries represented in ASEAN in this coming summit. As the agenda of ASEAN economic integration expands into East Asia, the active interplay of all public and private stakeholders becomes all the more crucial.

The Philippines on our part stands ready to do its part in elevating our grand alliance to bolder visions, bolder horizons.

The Filipino people have shown courage in accepting the need for higher taxes today to pay down our debt so that our children will live debt free tomorrow.

And in these efforts, we are inspired by the successful efforts of our neighboring countries in ASEAN. And as far as the Philippines is concerned through a boost in our credit ratings, a stronger peso and increased investments hopefully among them from our ASEAN friends, some of the gain of the pain is already being felt. On my part, I spend every working day, every waking day on education, health, infrastructure and the rule of law, among others.

The Filipino is also the good citizen of the world, ever striving for excellence and new horizons, conscious that the spirit of enterprise will always be crucial to the betterment of all.

I want to take advantage of this podium — and the fact that I'm president — to seek your support for the ASEAN trade exposition that will be staged simultaneously... It will be staged simultaneously with your meeting in the south, in central Philippines where the 12th ASEAN summit will be held. I know you will enjoy the experience.

Let us even be more determined to unite in the face of new challenges. And as I bid you Mabuhay, I also want to say Mabuhay to my former boss in the Department of Trade and Industry, Secretary Joe Concepcion, whom we are awarding tonight. In fact, we used to call him Mr. ASEAN and the award that he is getting tonight simply formalizes that nickname we have been giving him.

[Delivered at Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, February 18, 2006]

RALLYING FOR ST. BERNARD

First and foremost, the government is focused on the rescue of any survivors that may have escaped the initial tragedy but we need assistance.

Secondly... Thirdly, we all have to work together in order to give relief to our brothers and to help them rehabilitate their lives afterwards. So we have to help them build their new homes and to have a new tomorrow. All the places in our country, and this is what I've been saying earlier, that may be considered in danger because of the strong rains, we'll need to have a mechanism for preparedness in order to be saved from what happened and if necessary, as Secretary Nonong Cruz said, we are... We must be prepared to evacuate them from their places if these rains are considered dangerous because of the rains and the coming—well, it's already here—of La Niña.

These relief operations are not only terribly sad but also dangerous for survivors and relief workers alike, as Secretary Cabral gave an example of. With the continuing likelihood of more rain and soft hillsides, we must take caution and be prepared, at times decelerated since last night when wisely the rescue operations were stopped for a few hours, and having to confront the prospect of more landslides. Vigilance is called for like in places like Caraga and in Antipolo and maybe you ought to have to tell us where else. We must expect that other slides could occur. We have to be sure that this other landslides will not result in the same tragedy.

We'd like to thank the lord that now we have revenues in our treasury to spend on the infrastructure in this time of crisis. For too long before we had our reforms, the nation has been weakened by lack of investment in vital infrastructure that might help alleviate this kind of tragedy through stronger houses, better roads and better engineering.

This is an opportunity and we should all be able to... This is an opportune time because we now have the revenues, we should all work together. We should be united in order to mobilize our capability, yung kakayahan na isigurado na itong uring trahedya ay bahagi na lamang ng nakaraan.

I would like to greet and thank all of those who have worked on this effort so greatly—the police, the soldiers, the government workers—they were so braved in answering this tragedy. And I also thank the thousands of average citizens who volunteered to help in the relief efforts. Permit me also to thank our friends from the international community from different parts of the world that even as we speak are already sending their resources to help us.

These are time of trial for our souls. The country should be united, should be together, should embrace and help all of those who lost their loved ones and all of those who survived and treat them like family.

We are one nation. We will rise as one in the middle of all these trials. These trials will show the strength of character of the Filipino and the Filipino nation. We will not rest until all the last remains of our beloved countrymen, countrywomen and children will be recovered and be given the proper and dignified burial.

I'm really very sad to think of the children, especially the schoolchildren whose innocence and hope were snuffed out in such a tragic way by what happened here—kagimbal-gimbal na trahedya.

I'm calling on every Filipino to pray for the victims and all of the survivors. We must rally around as a people and a nation in this moment of grief. We know that a better day is coming, although it's hard to imagine at this point in time when there is a very, very great tragedy that is breaking our hearts and souls.

I've called on Executive Secretary Ermita to establish a multi-agency task force to provide a full investigation and accounting of the tragedy so that we can learn what steps each community and the nation can take to minimize if not eliminate this type of tragedy from occurring again.

I call on every Filipino of every political party, of every religious affiliation and of every economic circumstance, to embrace the better angels of our nature and unite in compassion for the victims and survivors of this tragic event.

Let's go on with our work and help and most of all with our prayers for our countrymen in Southern Leyte and the entire Philippines.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Thanksgiving Lunch with the Officials of the Intellectual Property Office (IPO)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Thanksgiving Lunch with the Officials of the Intellectual Property Office (IPO)

[Delivered at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang, February 20, 2006]

Thank you. Thank you very much.

Thank you, Raul. Please sit down.

To all of you, to all of us, congratulations!

I'm glad over our country's upgrade in the U.S. anti-piracy watch list. Upgrade or downgrade, depending on how you want to call it but in any case, we are in an improved situation.

And as mentioned earlier by our previous speakers while we appreciate the U.S. government's recognition of our efforts to protect intellectual property rights, we mustn't lose sight of the fact that protection of IPR is first and foremost in the interest of the Filipino people.

The protection and promotion of IPR means giving more impetus for Filipino creativity and I'm glad to see members of the Filipino creative community here.

Fighting piracy is fighting poverty because it enables Filipino excellence and enterprise to rise in the global arena, expanding opportunities and jobs along the way. Upholding IPR promotes diffusion of knowledge, develops local talent and creativity, and at the same time encourages more foreign investors to endow their strong qualities in the Philippine market.

We appreciate the help of you— civil society and private groups — in this vigilant campaign against piracy and we must not relent in our combined efforts. We are matching gains in our economy such as a strong drive in the law and order front and we expect this to multiply confidence, investments and jobs.

Of course, the protection and promotion of IPR also means as I said more investments, more jobs, more opportunities and more revenue for the government that could translate to improved basic social services.

Filipino excellence in all fields will be protected by the long run adherence to global intellectual property standards, which we intend to keep improving until we are finally off the watch list altogether. To sustain the advances we have gained, which the U.S. government has come to recognize, we have to do some more things. And let me read from the letter of the United States Trade Representative who sent Secretary Favila the official announcement of the downgrading or upgrading of our status, whatever you call it. And it says here:

“The U.S. will soon convey an updated intellectual property action plan to your government that will outline priority areas where we believe the Philippines should continue to make progress including vigorous enforcement of your optical media act and timely and effective prosecutions of suspected intellectual property infringers. We hope we can work together on this issues and other issues.”

Speaking of vigorous enforcement of the Optical Media Act, John was suggesting that we triple the efforts of our police agencies in the raids of violating establishments and the arrest of culprits.

And speaking of timely and effective prosecutions of suspected intellectual property infringers, John was also saying that we intensify the effort to bring offenders to justice and make them face the consequences of their nefarious acts. At the same time, since many of you creative individuals and organizations are very good at communicating, we must continue to inform our people that patronage of pirated and counterfeit products fuels criminality, stunts economic growth, and worse, undermines the moral fiber of our nation.

We should continue to further expand the regulatory framework for the protection of intellectual property rights, John says, by encouraging local government units to pass their respective anti-piracy ordinance.

How do we triple police action given that we have to fight drugs and we have to fight kidnapping as well. I am not directing the PNP and the NBI, through the DILG and the DOJ, to triple the manpower complement of their respective anti-piracy teams. Because if they're gonna triple something it must be to triple the anti-kidnapping and anti-drug teams.

However... Because I was asking General Lomibao, "how many people do you have fighting drugs and how many people do you have fighting piracy?" Lomibao has a hundred people dedicated to fighting drugs; 20 people dedicated to fighting piracy. So maybe he can still expand by another 20 the fight against... For the fight against intellectual piracy. But I just want him to make sure that he also increases by at least 20 those fighting drugs.

And then as far as bringing offenders to justice and making them face the consequences of their acts, I've been discussing this matter with Secretary of Justice Raul Gonzalez for two days now. I asked him the same thing, "how many people do you have prosecuting piracy and how many people do you have prosecuting drugs?"

He has ten people prosecuting drugs and six people prosecuting piracy. Now that's quite a big percentage prosecuting anti-piracy which is why we've gotten convictions. So rather than asking him to triple the prosecutors against piracy — imagine if you gonna have a hundred people on drugs and a hundred twenty people against intellectual piracy. I mean, you know, there are certain proportions we have to keep in mind — the solution that Secretary Gonzalez found is that he will deputize all the provincial prosecutors to prosecute for piracy as well. So as of today, therefore, he has 94 deputized prosecutors to fight intellectual piracy.

And of course, to inform our people that patronage of pirated and counterfeit products fuels all these undesirable things like criminality, stunted economic growth and the undermined moral fiber of the nation, what we could do is for John and the IP coalition and the press secretary to formulate an information drive together and I think the IP coalition will be a very very good leader in this effort to espouse intellectual integrity.

And then finally, to expand the present regulatory framework, I do hope that local for the protection of intellectual property rights to local government units can also be encouraged by you because local government units are autonomous under the local autonomy code, so I can't direct them to do what they're supposed to do but certainly they answer to the people because they're elected by the people. And as NGOs, pos and the private sector and civil society, I would encourage you to dialogue with them and ask them to work on their own ordinances for the protection of intellectual property.

Finally, I congratulate the IP coalition because you've been so active and I congratulate all these gentlemen in the table and in the other tables as well: we have Secretary of Justice and the Director of NBI; we have Secretary of Trade and the head of the IPO and the Optical Media Board; we have our Police Chief PNP and NCR and the new CIDG; and we'd like to thank also the Supreme Court represented here by Justice Velasco; and all of the other agencies and offices of government that altogether contributed to our new status as a simple country in the watch list and not as a priority country in the watch list.

Let's continue to work together, expand our efforts even with almost the same resources so that we can completely get out of the watch list and improve the lives of our people.

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo on Global Media and the RP Story

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On Global Media and the RP Story

[Delivered at Dusit Hotel Nikko, Makati City, February 21, 2006]

In the era of globalization and instantaneous communication, indeed, the foreign press is anything but foreign. In fact, I think you should be renamed the global media because you serve the global marketplace. You help with transparency and you act as an essential catalyst in propelling our recent economic reforms.

The power of the global media has never been more ascendant than today.

This is certainly true in those areas like the economy, political reform and security. These three areas represent hurdles that the Philippines must overcome if we are to join the first world within the next 20 years, which is my dream.

Speaking of the next 20 years, we are also remembering the last 20 years. For the last 20 years, at this particular season, the annual search for the spirit of EDSA is always launched.

EDSA1 has become an enduring part of our history and we must honor the struggle of EDSA by continuing to reform our political system and bringing justice, especially social justice to the people.

The world embraced EDSA 1 in 1986. The world tolerated EDSA 2 in 2001. The world will not forgive an EDSA 3 but instead would condemn the Philippines as a country whose political system is hopelessly unstable, and the Filipinos as among the finest people in the world, but who manage to shoot themselves in the foot. Under those circumstances that an EDSA 3 would bring about, who would invest money in the Philippines? How would we bring social justice to the people?

Today, we need people power of a different type.

People power, such as what we find in the muddy fields of St. Bernard, where citizens use bare hands to claw through the earth to rescue kith and kin and soldiers bivouac through the night with the people trapped in darkness so they can see the light of dawn.

People power present in the decision of businessmen in Cebu to commission a whole ship, load it with goods and let it sail in bad weather so that it can appear overnight in the shores of Leyte.

People power present in Gawad Kalinga communities, where sweat mixes with cement to form mortar that makes sturdy homes.

People power present in Moro communities, where former warriors beat cannons into plowshares.

People power in the shop of every Filipino entrepreneur who believes that for Filipino talent not to go away, jobs must be here to stay.

There is as much gallantry in performing our civic duties without fanfare or publicity, or in owning up to the taxes we should pay, or in picking up litter on the street as in picking up one's guns to fight off tyrants or invaders.

There is more valor in being focused and right rather than in being spectacular or popular. The economic reforms of 2005 are a case in point.

Our now improving credit ratings, our strengthened peso and therefore our lower cost of imports including oil products, our high stock market, the new investments coming in, our reduced debt service, and the best fiscal situation we've had in years are due in large part to our focus on the fundamentals of the economy. But beyond that and deeper than that, they are also due to tough decisions that had been unpopular and that had made me an easy target by my opponents.

But, though my survey numbers have dropped, we forged ahead. Within weeks of passing our E-VAT, the global markets took notice. And most often, it was the global news media that helped convey the message.

I am determined to continue on a path of economic reform. I also intend to pursue political reform to ensure greater stability and to diminish the political effect on the Philippine economy. Political maneuvering has become our most active industry, including people who parlayed their presence in EDSA a long time ago into a lifetime franchise of working against governments whose leaders do not curtsy before them.

I understand the challenges that remain ahead for the Philippines. We need to quicken the pace of reforms. I've now been investing to modernize our infrastructure and upgrade the quality of life for our citizens. I can do so now because we now have the fiscal controls and revenue to lower the debt and invest in the people.

Our contract with the taxpayers involves reimbursing them with services that will increase their productivity, secure their future and allow them to live a life of dignity. We will close the gap between the rich and the poor without widening the budget deficit.

The tipping point of fiscal surplus is near. We will use our new revenues to feed our children's hunger for food and for knowledge. Of all the investments I make, I am most focused on improved access to education.

We will wipe out the backlog in classrooms, textbooks and teachers. And to feed the children's hunger for food, we will feed the nation by distributing seeds to farmers and deeds to lands they till and by developing two million new hectares of land for agri-business.

Higher value-added tax collection should also result in value-added protection of those who pay them. Thus, we will put more cops on the streets and more soldiers to enforce the peace, more guns in their armories, more radios in their hands, and more vehicles for patrolling and force mobility.

An improved bottom line would mean more bottoms for the navy and more aircraft for the air force.

The economy alone, unfortunately, is not our only challenge.

Our plan for 2006 has three goals: first, sustain the growth of our economy; second, accelerate the war against terrorism and fight destabilization and bring peace to Mindanao; third, implement the long-overdue political reforms through Charter change.

On security. The world has been made aware of the destructive power of terrorism, and the Philippines in addition has seen its political system become a hindrance to progress.

We have stood shoulder to shoulder with the world in the fight against terrorism. And the world, the international community, has stood by us in our fight against political destabilization. Our relations with the U.S., Europe and the rest of Asia have never been stronger. In fact, they have been true friends in this our hour of need.

We need global engagement if we are to become modern and competitive.

I have taken my obligation to the world seriously. At the U.N. As the President of the Security Council during the summit meeting and in the region through cooperation with our allies on anti-terrorism and interfaith dialogue.

And just last week, the United States lifted the Philippines from the Intellectual Property Priority watch list because of the steps we have taken to crack down on counterfeiting.

All of these initiatives are now coming together in a perfect storm of global cooperation to help resolve especially the situation in Mindanao. I am determined to bring peace to Mindanao with help from Filipinos, our neighbors like Malaysia, Indonesia and Brunei, and our friends in the U.S., Europe and the Middle East.

Peace in Mindanao will also allow the good people there and across the nation to focus on education and job creation, not violence and destruction. And it will narrow our focus on those few hardened international terrorists who still seek refuge in some of our distant jungles.

Today, I am very hopeful that we are near the summit of peace. From that summit, I hope to look upon a nation that is reforming itself through a new economic model and a new governance system to manage its way to modernity.

To tackle fundamental political reform, I have endeavored to increase tax collection by cracking down on fraud and deceit, and I have worked to empower local governments to service their constituents more effectively. But more fundamentally, we need reform of our constitution to make our government more responsive and less a roadblock for private enterprise.

I believe the Charter change initiative, like my economic policies, will unchain our society and allow it to grow and prosper. No more need for coups or sham people power in a Parliamentary System. Charter change will create greater political certainty.

As Charter change moves ahead, I will continue to focus on the economy and its reform.

And let me also make clear: I believe I am the best person to lead this nation through this transition. I was elected to make difficult decisions, and I have made them. Not without mistakes on my part, and certainly not without significant criticism. But I have the experience of hindsight, and I aim to fulfill my term with a steady hand on the helm.

And so I thank you all today for indulging my view, you of the global media. There is much to be done and I thank you the global media for being part of the Philippine story.

Speech

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the wreath laying ceremony in commemoration of the 20th anniversary of the EDSA I People and Prayer Power Peaceful Revolution

[Delivered at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Libingan ng mga Bayani, Fort Bonifacio, Taguig City, February 22, 2006]

Thank you, Secretary Ermita.

Members of the diplomatic corps, members of the Cabinet, Congressman Gidaya and the other veterans, members of the EDSA People Power Commission, Mayor Tinga and the other officials of the local governments, General Senga and the other officials of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, ladies and gentlemen.

Today, we remember the biggest stampede of people in our history including millions in which no one died, but democracy lived.

To us, EDSA is the temple of democracy won. But many of the excellencies of the diplomatic corps were there yesterday at the foreign correspondents association when I recalled that the world embraced EDSA 1 in 1986, tolerated EDSA 2 in 2001, and will not forgive an EDSA 3 but instead would condemn the Philippines as a country whose political system is hopelessly unstable and does not deserve to be a place to invest in even if the Filipinos are among the finest people in the world.

While we walked on EDSA highway those four glorious days in February, we wonder whether we marched forward or marched in place since then. This is probably the reason why at this particular time of the year, regardless of the official theme for the year, the spontaneous message is always the quest for the spirit of EDSA.

Where has the spirit of EDSA gone? Has become a familiar February refrain. And always we proceed to rummage inside the nations soul to look for its whereabouts. Some say it's gone and proceed to issue obituaries for dreams lost, opportunities squandered, promises failed. Others contend even that we are worse off since the millions rushed to the barricades during those four days.

If the apostles of permanent revolution would have their way, they would dig trenches on EDSA to perpetuate its memory. But as the good book says in Ecclesiastes: 'to everything there is a season, a time for every purpose under heaven: a time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck what's planted; a time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to breakdown, and a time to build up; a time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance; a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing; a time to gain, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to throw away; a time to tear, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak; a time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.'

I recited the whole Ecclesiastes phrase that's so famous because I wanted to reflect on what is timeless. And I found one that doesn't go out of season: the time to serve. And whenever we rush to the side of a neighbor in need, a community in distress or a stranger in despair, we relive the spirit which made EDSA possible. Whether EDSA 1 is what brought about what has been brought about is the spirit behind it that we look for.

And as I said yesterday, the spirit of EDSA is alive in St. Bernard where citizens use bare hands to claw through the earth to rescue kith and kin. The same people who relied on themselves to save democracy from being entombed are the same people using their own hands to save the lives of people buried by mud.

I also said yesterday that the spirit of EDSA is alive in the road to Guinsaugon as soldiers bivouacked through the night so together with the people trapped in darkness they can see the light of dawn. The same love for their fellow Filipinos which led our soldiers to rendezvous with the people for one final push 20 years ago is still what motivates our soldiers today to come to the side of the people when they are called.

The Filipino soldier has played a great role in peace as in war. The Filipino soldier plays as great a role in the mudslide of St. Bernard as in the jungles of Tagkawayan and the barricades of EDSA. And like the Filipino soldier, we don't need a war to become heroes. We don't have to wait for another EDSA, in fact, we shouldn't wait for another EDSA to establish our heroic credentials. What we need to do is to remember our duties as soldiers are disciplined to remember their duties.

The reforms that were expected in 1986 were not meant to crawl in short lurches, but to hurtle through the road to freedom. Unfortunately, bumps slowed down the journey and it was even nearly halted by the same forces that would now like to steer the ship of state to uncharted shoals.

But today, there is something we can do that we may have wanted to do all this time. Now we have the revenues from our tax reform to redeem the pledge of safe neighborhoods and stable jobs, of more schools and access to modern medical care.

While the budget is being brought to even keel, we will make sure that if it does tilt, it tilts in favor of the poor and in favor of protecting the ordinary Filipinos. And that again is where the soldiers and their partners, the policemen play a heroic role.

I call upon our soldiers not to cede a single town to those who dream of breaking up the country into soviet, and I call upon the police not to cede a single street corner to those who plan to break into our homes.

As I said yesterday, higher value added tax collection should result in value added protection of those who pay them. Thus, we will put more cops on the streets, more guns in their armories, more radios in their hands and more vehicles for patrolling.

Defense will also be entitled to tax dividends.

An improved bottom line would mean more bottoms for the navy. The missing formation, the constantly missing formation of our air force on the ground will be gone the moment we have fiscal take off. But for us to be safe in our homes, for our borders to be secure, we the citizens should remember this dictum: we must pay taxes so crime does not pay.

Many events in the history of the last century pale in comparison to the significance of EDSA 1 in changing the shape of the world. But another event has also changed the world — 9/11. Since 9/11, the world has been made more aware of the destructive power of terrorism. And as our soldiers only know so well, however, the Philippines felt the bitter taste of terrorism long before that, especially from the communist terrorists.

We have stood shoulder to shoulder with the international community in the fight against terrorism. And we are determined to continue that fight. Even as we are determined to bring peace to Mindanao.

Peace in Mindanao will help heal the nation, and allow for the attraction of new investments. And it will narrow our focus on those few hardened international terrorists who still seek refuge in some of our distant jungles. Distant to the rest of us but the backyard of many of our soldiers who have been fighting for so long in those areas of conflict. The job of peace in Mindanao will be met with fear by the terrorists lurking there.

And as we approach the summit of peace, I hope to look upon a nation that is reforming itself through a new economic model and a new governance in place... System of governance in place to manage its way to modernity. Peace will be the final block that will make it all happen. And once again for that final building block to be put up the soldiers play a central and heroic role.

And so today, I thank you all for listening to my view of the vital role of the Filipino soldier in our nation's current history. And we must honor them as we remember these four days of EDSA. Much hinges on our success, soldiers and civilians. There is much to be done. And on this morning, I thank our soldiers for being part of the Philippine story.

Mabuhay kayong lahat! Maraming salamat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 18th Visayas Annual Membership Meeting of the Philippine Business for Social Progress (PBSP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 18th Visayas Annual Membership Meeting of the Philippine Business for Social Progress (PBSP)

[Delivered at the Salon de España, Casino Español de Cebu, Cebu City, Cebu, February 22, 2006]

Thank you.

Thank you, Bobby.

And I'd like to thank also John Domingo for inviting me to be here with you today. Thank you, Manny for all that PBSP and the PLDT have been doing to help the less fortunate of our brothers and sisters. And thank you Tita Maria Luisa for having been the president of PBSP for such a long time, for many years.

I'd like to greet also the officials of Cebu who are here with us on the presidential table: I see Governor Gwen Garcia of the province of Cebu and Vice Mayor Rama of the City of Cebu. Ambassador Sutherland, a friend and partner of PBSP

And we have several members of the Cabinet here: there's Ace Durano of Tourism and Cerge Remonde of the Government Media, Gabby Claudio, our political adviser and Mike Defensor my Chief of Staff.

And I'd like to introduce somebody who will hopefully be very important in the life of the Philippine business for social progress in the years to come, the new resident of the United Nations, the new representative of the U.N. to the Philippines, Madame Nileema Noble. Other members of PBSP, happy 18th anniversary to you all!

Eighteen years old here in Casino Español — that was my mother's experience. My mother had her debut right in Casino Español when she was living here in Cebu.

Several members of our Cabinet are here with us today and also Madame Noble because before coming here we were in Southern Leyte. And we were absolutely crushed by sorrow at what has transpired. The loss of life of so many innocent men, women and children is almost too much to absorb.

As the leader of our nation, I come here today both heavy in heart but also heartened to meet with you, our partners in sustaining the economy and in alleviating the plight of the poor. Filipinos are hopeful, proud and generous and you of PBSP-Visayas represent what is best in the Filipino.

The PBSP is a great force for nation-building. I have known PBSP since the start when I was a young student in the private school in Ateneo. And now we have grown to more than 200 corporate members implementing almost 6,000 social development projects that have benefited some three million poor Filipino households all over the country.

I am familiar with your programs in the Visayas, especially the Olango island development program and the Samar resource management program. I remember when I was still a senator, I visited your Samar projects a few times and one time I had the honor of doing the ceremonial seeding of Maqueda Bay with you. I attended several of your Christmas tree parties and I remember the last one that I was able to attend as vice president when you announced that in the year coming you were going to start your project in Olango island.

And so when John invited me to be with you today I gladly agreed because I want to tell you that we appreciate — the Filipino people, the communities I visited — do appreciate what you are doing to them and in fact hope that you will find the means to be able to do more.

It's fitting that we hold this meeting during the 20th anniversary of EDSA 1 because you, PBSP-Visayas represent the mature meaning of people power. EDSA 1 has become an enduring part of our history and you honor the struggle of EDSA by bringing social justice to the people. You demonstrate the transformed and matured fight for economic and social justice since EDSA 1. You create positive change without going outside of the system.

And I remember that was the history of how PBSP was born. There was a lot of unrest at that time and a few businessmen with the social conscience decided what are we going to do to show that the system can work so that those who try to destroy the system will not be able to convince the poor of their arguments.

Indeed, the people are tired of continuous politics and want to settle into a system that is focused on fundamental and social reform without having to take to the streets to achieve that goal. Political revolution without economic revolution is meaningless and that was what you sought out to do 30 years ago, 35 years ago when PBSP was founded.

On my part, as president of our country, I have picked up the standard of EDSA 1 moving to free our nation of the petty politics which too often grips it. More importantly, with your support, the business community's support to our tax reforms, we have freed our nation from the grip of debt and an outdated economic model and launched a modern economy that invest in the people and will leave our nation stronger, not weaker.

I am not saying that the modern economy is already here. I am saying we have started to launch the modernization of our economy because we had been able to do the economic and tax reforms that can help us to fund the modernization of our economy. That is the legacy of EDSA 1 — to free the people of poverty.

PBSP and the government and our international creditors and donors are partners in the battle against poverty, and we must pursue the gains we are beginning to realize from the surge of fiscal and economic reforms. Most of you are businessmen. In fact, that is what your name is — Philippine Business for Social Progress. So you know what it all means that our peso is getting stronger and stronger; that investment has picked up no less than Manny Pangilinan is putting three billion pesos in Cebu City; there is a rising business outlook; inflation is under control; the budget deficit is way below target and therefore conversely savings are up; tourism is up. Congratulations! To Cebu son, Ace Durano. And of the 2.5 million tourist who came to the Philippines last year, one-half of them came to the Visayas; and the stock market remains bullish.

Our vision is permanent political and economic stability to take us to the threshold of the first world in 20 years. The men and women from the PBSP member companies have gone out from the comfort of your offices to share your time and resources to make PBSP and our entire country what it is today.

Earlier in the plane, we were talking about getting out of comfort zones. And 35 years ago, PBSP got out of its comfort zone. And now here you are with the PBSP-Visayas 18 years old and doing so much for the people of the Visayas and PBSP for the people of the Philippines.

And so, I wish the PBSP in the Visayas many more years in doing what you do best — poverty reduction and doing other things as a leader in corporate citizenship.

Let us continue the fight against poverty.

And I was telling Tita Maria Luisa Perez-Rubio that — well, Gabby knows this. Gabby is from Catbalogan, Gabby Claudio — the people of Western Samar are very poor and yet it's a beautiful country. And PBSP has done something significant in bringing Maqueda bay back alive again. It had died for so many years because of wrong methods of fishing, illegal fishing, but it is alive again.

And I would like to see more people of the very poor province of Western Samar benefit from what PBSP is doing for Maqueda Bay.

So, when I get back to Manila — that's why I'm mentioning Gabby Claudio here — I will ask him to tell the manager of the presidential social fund to give my contribution to PBSP so that we will be able to expand your Maqueda bay project in order to help the poor of that area.

Maraming salamat and happy anniversary to all of you!

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo before the Entrepreneurs Summit

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the Entrepreneurs Summit

[Delivered at Fort Bonifacio Global City, Taguig City, February 23, 2006]

THE PINOY'S E-FACTOR

This summit on entrepreneurship symbolizes the commitment of the Filipino people to the economy. And I'm glad that you're holding your summit on this day, it becomes a part of our celebration of EDSA 1. Indeed, we need a new form of People Power to drive entrepreneurship and that new form of people power is the innovative use of resources to build businesses and provide jobs—that is the definition actually of entrepreneurship.

There is great patriotism in setting up businesses that give jobs and feed the stomachs and spirit of our countrymen and their families. Filipino entrepreneurs are patriots, those here on the stage and those here on the floor, patriots who believe in our country and people and who invest in our nation's future.

Earlier when I was given the t-shirt and it said, 'do you have the E-factor?' that means, do you have the entrepreneur factor because it's like the 'x- factor'—it's something extra.

And what is the E-factor? Being an entrepreneur is a skill inherent in the Filipino. Just as Filipinos are natural musicians, Filipinos are natural entrepreneurs. Most Filipinos do have that E-factor. And I'm very happy that Joey has put together a mechanism to be able to bring out that E-factor to its greatest potential and reality.

The Filipinos are creative and persevering and that's part of the E-factor. Successful entrepreneurs are known for their creativity and the Filipinos are known for our creativity. That's why we excel in music, we excel in dance, we excel in the arts, and we excel in software development because of our creativity. But Joey talked about something else in addition to innovativeness and creativeness, one more trait that keeps entrepreneurs going and that is optimism. And I'm glad that Joey has chosen that as the theme for this morning's session.

It's not only Joey, the entrepreneurship advocate, that tells us: be optimistic. Be not afraid, Jesus Christ told his disciples.

This morning, I came across that phrase because I was very happy reflecting on this new testament exhortation on the occasion of something very very important happening to us as Catholics in the Philippines—the choice of Archbishop Rosales as cardinal. And though it is not exactly... And though it's not exactly an integral part of the theme of this session, let me take this opportunity to be joyful as a catholic and to be optimistic as a catholic and to celebrate our new cardinal.

We share the joy and pride of the entire Filipino catholic community on this event. Cardinal Rosales deserves this honor for the leadership he has shown in spreading and upholding the faith and in guiding our people along the path of moral and spiritual enlightenment. It was an auspicious day that we got the message about his naming, because on this auspicious day, we reminisce the call of his predecessor, the late Jaime Cardinal Sin, for people power in the shining moments of EDSA.

Twenty years ago and today, we celebrate the guiding role of the church in defending what is good and right for the people. Our solidarity with Cardinal Rosales will be unsullied in the fight against poverty and in building a God-centered society.

Growing the economy through entrepreneurship and steadily denting poverty will help us to overcome divisive politics and indeed build a God-centered society.

A Central Bank poll late last week found executives more bullish on the outlook for their companies than at any period since that Central Bank survey began—that is optimistic, that is being not afraid.

I remember when Joey's father, Joe Concepcion was my boss in the Department of Trade and Industry, he would always tell us: 'believing you can do it is half being able to do it'—that is optimism. And I've never forgotten that exhortation through the many trying times I've had as a public servant.

And so on this day, on the occasion of the 20th Anniversary of EDSA, on the occasion of our celebrating optimism as an inherent part of that E-f actor, let us resolve to not let politicking or destabilization put down or destroy what we have here before us—the Filipino spirit of enterprise.

Another thing I use to remember from what Secretary Concepcion use to tell us, and we put it all over the DTI establishments so that we could always remember, he would say: 'yes, the Filipino can.'—that is optimism, that is entrepreneurship.

Mabuhay ang Filipino entrepreneur!

Artee Yap ask me to announce to you that I have instructed him, as my presidential adviser on job creation, to coordinate with the Land Bank and the DBP to set aside an initial amount of 50 million pesos to serve as an incubation fund with softer rates and longer term provisions for the financing use of deserving and promising start-up business plan winners that the Philippine Center for Entrepreneurship will endorse and vet during the business start-up period.

Be not afraid, our new entrepreneurs.

Message of President Arroyo on the possible early lifting of Proclamation No. 1017 [Filipino]

Mensahe
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa posibleng maagang pagbawi sa Proklamasyon Bilang 1017

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 1 ng Marso, 2006]

Mga Kababayan,

Salamat sa panatag at maunawaing pagtanggap ng higit na nakararaming mamamayan at mga merkado sa ating pagkilos upang ipagtanggol ang ating demokrasya sa banta ng komunistang rebelde at ilang sundalong ligaw at politikong kasabwat nila.

Malaki ang naitulong ng inyong pang-unawa at payapang pagtanggap upang mapanatag ang sitwasyon.

Buo ang loob ng inyong pamahalaang bumalik sa pangunahin nating misyon na palakasin ang ating ekonomiya, iangat ang mahirap at tugunan ang mga pangangailangan ng mamamayan.

Tungo sa ganoong hangarin, ibig kong bawiin ang proklamasyon ng state of emergency sa lalong madaling panahon.

Humihingi ako ng tatlong ulat na isusumite sa akin sa loob ng 24 hanggang 72 oras upang suriin ang kalagayan ng seguridad.

Mag-uulat sa akin ang Kalihim ng Katarungan tungkol sa mga pagkilos ng destabilisasyon, ang Kalihim ng National Defense tungkol sa kontrol ng hukbo at ang hepe ng pambansang kapulisan hinggil sa katahimikan at pag-iral ng batas.

Aalisin ko ang state of emergency kapag kumbinsido ako na matitiyak sa akin ng bawat opisyal na lubusan nating kontrolado ang sitwasyon.

Kumilos ang pamahalaan upang pangalagaan ang kaligtasan at katiwasayan ng ating Republika at wawakasan natin ang state of emergency oras na matamo ng lubos ang mga panuntunang ito sa destabilisasyon, sandatahang lakas at pag-iral ng batas.

Umaasa akong magkakaroon ng mga mas matimbang pang pagsulong sa mga usaping ito sa mga darating na araw.

Salamat muli, mga mahal kong kababayan, at patnubayan tayo ng Diyos.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Annual Western Police District Recognition Night Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Annual Western Police District Recognition Night

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 6, 2006]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Puno.

Other officials of the Philippine government headed by General Lomibao, Dr. Dee and the other officials of the Filipino-Chinese Charitable Association, our awardees and their families, men and women of the police, Father Reuter and guests, ladies and gentlemen.

Itong gabi, sama-sama tayo upang magbigay ng pagkilala sa mga matatapang na babae at lalaking nagtaya ng kanilang buhay sa pag-pairal ng batas, panatiliing ligtas ang mga kalsada ng Maynila, at ikontrol ang mga banta sa kapayapaan at katiwasayan.

Our society could have been plunged into chaos and lawlessness, our economy gone to ruin if not for police officers, policemen and women like our awardees who remain true to their oath and their duty. Sa kanila, maraming salamat.

Ginagamit ko rin itong pagkakataon upang magpasalamat sa Philippine Chinese Charitable Association dahil kayo ay talagang matulungin sa ating mga pulis . At ginagamit ko rin itong pagkakataon na magpasalamat sa police sa pakikipagbalikat sa mga sundalo at lahat ng ating mga alagad ng batas at maging ang ating buong sistema ng katarungan kontra sa kriminalidad. Sa pagkabigo ng peligrosong kumplot na pabagsakin ang pamahalang binuo ng saligang batas, salamat rin sa ginawa niyo.

I am making sure that the rightful reward for constitutional fealty among our men and women in uniform are given. Ito ay tulong galing sa pribadong sektor, ngunit galing sa pamahalaan pinapalaki rin natin ang pwedeng maibigay sa police. Siguro ilan kayong nanduon sa Camp Crame nung inanunsiyo ko na itong taong ito, sa first quarter of the year, inaatasan natin ang DBM na mag-release ng one billion pesos para sa pnp, para sa inyong mga baril at inyong mga sasakyan, sa ganun mas ligtas kayo at mas konti ang masasawi, mas konti ang kailangan dalhin sa chinese general hospital.

Tutuluyan rin natin i-modernize at repormahan ang sandatahang lakas at ang pulis. Yon nga yung Armed Forces naabutan ko yung joint defense assessment kasama na ang Amerika. Natapos yon sa panahon ko kaya ngayon merong pondo na tinutulungan ng mga amerikano para mamodernize ang Armed Forces. So nung natapos na yung joint defense assessment ay hiniling ko naman sa ating mga kaibigan sa amerika na gumawa naman ng joint law enforcement assessment, sa ganun kung ano ang tinutulong nila sa ating sandatahang lakas ay maitulong din sa ating mga kapulisan.

Together we must work, not double but triple time, in leading the country towards progress and resolving deep-seated poverty.

Dapat kontrahin natin ang masasamang epekto hindi lang ng kumon na kriminalidad kundi ang epekto ng destabilisasyon sa pamamagitan ng buong loob na kilos hindi lang sa inyong pagtatanggol sa kapayapaan kundi na rin sa imprastruktura, trabaho, pabahay, pagkain at edukasyon. But the criminal justice system, the entire criminal justice system must bear down against destabilizers and coup plotters and show them that crime does not pay.

Muli, sinasaludo ko ang ating mga binigyan ng parangal na naghahalimbawa ng huwarang opisyal at kasapi ng pulis na katapatan at propesyonalismo.

Once again, congratulations to you! To the families, thank you and mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo on the celebration of the International Women's Day

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On the celebration of the International Women's Day

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 7, 2006]

TULOY ANG LABAN PARA SA KABABAIHAN

Mga kababaihan sa buong mundo ay nagsama-sama ngayon upang ipagdiriwang ang International Women's Day. Dito sa Pilipinas malaki ang karangalan ko na makisama sa inyo na ipagdiriwang ang papel ng kababaihan sa lipunan ng Pilipinas sa nakaraan at sa kasalukuyan.

At habang tayo ay nagkokonekta sa kababaihan ng buong mundo, sa isang araw ng pagkakaisa at pag-aasa ang mga kababaihang pilipino matagal nang aktibo sa pangmundong pakikibaka para sa pagkapantay, katarungan, kapayapaan at kaunlaran. Kilala ko kayo, kilala ko ang marami sa inyo at alam ko tayo, kayo at ako, ay hindi tayo magpapahinga hanggang bawat pilipina ay naligtas para mabuo ang kanilang mga pag-asa at panaginip, ligtas sa takot at puno ng oportunidad.

Ang ating pakikibaka sa kahirapan ay pakikibaka rin para sa karapatan ng kababaihan para magkaroon ng higit na pagpipili sa pangkabuhayan na magdesisyon ang kinabukasan at ang buhay ng kababaihan mismo at buhay ng kanilang pamilya. Madalas nagiging repsonsibilidad ng kababaihan ng ating bansa na magpakain at. mapagdemit ang ating mga bata at sila ang nagsisigurado na yung mga bata ay makapasok sa eskwela handang matuto.

Wala nang higit na importante sa kababaihang Pilipina kaysa makita na ang kanilang anak ay edukado, merong gamit para makita at mabuo ang kanilang potensyal. Tignan mo si Narda, noong si Lito Camacho ay nag-oath taking bilang secretary of finance nagulat lahat, "si Narda pala ang nanay mo." So yon ang isang panaginip ng lahat na makita na ang kanilang anak ay matagumpay. Pero bago makita na matagumpay ang anak, magsisikap muna ng maraming taon para maganda ang edukasyon ng anak.

Ang ating mga lipunan ay masasabing hindi nagtagumpay kung hindi natin masisigurado na ang kababaihan ay kayang makamit ang ilang panaginip sa pamamagitan ng makakaabot sa edukasyon, kalinga sa kalusugan at katarangang panlipunan. Kayong mga leader, hindi niyo inaabala ito para sa inyong sarili ngunit para sa buong kababaihan ng Pilipinas lalo na yung mga walang kakayahan kagaya ninyo.

Ito ang ibig sabihin ng ating sumusulong na na ekonomiya. This is what our steadily improving economy is all about — steadily improving despite the political noise — with the taming of the budget deficit leading to the rally of the peso and the robust stock market, we are pushing on relentlessly with pump priming initiatives and more lifelines for the poor.

Gaya nung 'Tindahan Natin', yung mga tindahan — hindi sari-sari store kundi specialty stores na nilagay natin sa mga pinakamahihirap na mga bahagi ng ating mga lunsuran. Specialty store dahil ang binebenta lamang nila ay bigas na 18 pesos, noodles na 4.50, kung minsan may asukal na mura dahil tumataas sa labas para bumaba ang asukal sa labas, at yung Ipg na maliliit lang ang kantidad para kaya sa pang-araw-araw na pangangailangan, at saka kung minsan yung kalahating presyong gamot. Yung kalahating presyong gamot hindi lamang nasa 'tindahan natin' kung sa ibat-ibang mga botika — yung botika ng barangay, botika ng bayan, botika natin or botika doon sa ospital ng pamahalaan — at yung microfinance.

Alam ba ninyo na nung November 8 dapat na-headline pero nalagay lang sa page 8 or page 9 ng BusinessWorld yata ang Pilipinas ay napili over 160 countries in the world pinakamagaling na microfinance program sa buong mundo. Kasama na rito yung mga training sa pag-entrepreneur, mga seminar sa kanayunan maging sa mga barangay sa ating lungsod.

Malayo na ang nakamit natin sa laban na ginawa ng kababaihan, yung ating mga feminist movement para sa karapatan at partisipasyon sa proseso ng pulitika at pangkabuhayan. Ngunit meron pa ring nalalabi na gawin para masigurado na lahat ng lipunan ay kilalanin ang pagkapantay ng babae at lalaki.

Ang karapatan ng kababaihan ay karapatang pangtao. At ang ating lipunan ay dapat gawin ang lahat sa abot ng kanyang kakayahan para isiguro na itong mga karapatan ay respetuhin at proteksyunan.

Nananawagan ako sa inyong lahat — pero palagay ko hindi na kailangang manawagan — nagpapasalamat ako sa inyong lahat na tayo ay nagkakaisa sa isang pakikibaka para maisiguro na walang babae sa Pilipinas ay kailangan matira sa isang buhay ng kahirapan o eksploytasyon. Kaya itong araw na ito hindi naman ako dapat siguro manawagan sa inyong makibalikat tayo. Tayo naman ay talagang nagbabalikatan na. Ituloy natin ang laban para sa karapatan ng ating mga kapatid na babae dito sa Pilipinas at sa ibang bansa, kasi ang Pilipinas ay huwaran ng progreso ng mga karapatan ng kababaihan.

Ang trabaho ng mga babae ay hindi natatapos kailanpaman. Kailangan makibaka tayo para gawin na ang buhay ng ating mga kapatid na babae ay mas maganda. Kailangan makibaka tayo para sa higit na oportunidad sa kabuhayan para sa higit na karapatan sa lipunan at para sa higit na magandang kinabukasan para sa ating mga anak.

Babae at lalaki ay pantay sa mata ng panginoon. Dapat isiguro natin na pantay rin sila sa mata ng lipunan, sa batas.

Magaganda ang mga batas nating pangkababaihan, hindi ba? Yung ating Women in Development Act, yung ating anti-human trafficking, yung ating domestic violence. Maganda ang ating mga batas para sa kababaihan. Sana ganun din sa ibang bansa at sana ganun din ang pagpatupad ng mga batas dito sa ating bansa. At kung magagawa natin ito, maipamudmod sa ibang bansa yung magagandang batas at maitupad yung ating mga magandang batas ng tama dito sa pilipinas, doon natin masasabi na nagawa natin ang ating obligasyon sa kababaihan at sa kanilang pamilya.

Kaya itong araw na ito puno ang pag-asa ko habang ako ay nakatindig kasama ninyo ngayon. Sa pagkakaisa kaya natin na pangunahan yung lansangan ng kapayapaan. Yung mga espada gawing araro. Yung walang pwedeng magawa para tulungan ang kanilang sarili ay pwedeng mapalit sa pagkakapuno ng pag-asa, at yung pagkawatak-watak ay pwedeng mapalit at maging pagkakaisa.

Itong isa sa maraming espesyal na regalo na naniniwala ako ang mga kababaihan dito sa silid na ito ay pwedeng madala sa ating bansa maging sa buong mundo.

Kaya mga women leader ng ating lipunan, congratulations sa inyong lahat! At patuloy ninyo ang inyong magandang trabaho.

Happy Women's Day!

Speech of President Arroyo on Interfaith Cooperation for Peace, Development and Human Dignity

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On Interfaith Cooperation for Peace, Development and Human Dignity

[Delivered at the Shangri-la Mactan Island Resort, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, March 14, 2006]

Interfaith dialogue is a historical truth among our diverse peoples and creeds. Faith is ingrained in the lives of our people, our nations and our world. It is the primordial seed of the human condition and offers hope, confidence, courage and commitment to make a better global neighborhood. Our individual faith provides the rock upon which we build our family, our society and civilization. But regrettably, the story of faith has too often been twisted and has become a source of despair and destruction sometimes amongst peoples and nations

Our challenge in promoting interfaith dialogue is to redeem the true meaning of our faith, if we are to truly bring peace and prosperity to the world. We must never accept terrorist violence cloak in religion by anyone at anytime. Terrorism is murder and no religion anywhere can abide by the faith of the faithless who kill and maim in the name of god. Neither should we allow an ideology that scoffs as religion as the opium of the people to be the reason to overthrow any government.

My own faith is built on the teachings of Jesus and the stewardship of the catholic. And I like to believe that my faith gives me the strength and wisdom to reach out and find common ground even with those who do not share my beliefs.

The Philippines is a nation that faces the test of individual faith and social tolerance everyday. And I'm happy to report to you, as previous speakers have already alluded to that today, the historic divide between our Christian and Muslim neighbors is narrowing dramatically in our country. This is in no small part due to our focus on interfaith dialogue and a willingness to accept the sincerity of those who differ with us in faith.

For at the end of the day, we are all united in our common humanity. I have reached out to lead interfaith dialogue here in the Philippines to bring peace and understanding to Mindanao, just as I have reached out to our friends and neighbors in Southeast Asia to conquer anything that divides us on ethnic or religious lines. And as Secretary Romulo said, just last year, I had the good fortune and honor to lead the U.N. Security Council Informal Summit on Interfaith Dialogue.

As a result of the progress we have made in Mindanao, I am confident that peace is within our grasp. And if peace in Mindanao is attained, it will be in large part due to interfaith dialogue and the inter- governmental cooperation of friends and neighbors like Malaysia, Indonesia, Brunei and our more distant global partners in peace, in the Middle East, North America, Europe and Oceania.

Faith is the great antidote to terrorism. Faith is the great antidote to godless ideologies. We must turn up the flame of faith and understanding as we help lower the sword of poverty and destruction.

What we are doing here today is every bit as important as building up mighty military forces to fight terrorism, destabilization and injustice here at home or across the globe. We must follow our faith and a faith in each other if we are to truly lift up the poor, transform war into peace, and stamp down the intolerance and violence brought by terrorism based on a false reading of the divine message or a misuse of a divine message that those who misuse it do not believe in the first place.

We are here today united by our faith and determined to bridge the valley that unnecessarily divides us whether we live across the street, across rivers or across oceans and continents.

And I ask everyone in this room and outside this room to support us in prayer for the next three days. Plead with god to guide us to use our diversity creatively and in unity to come up with sustainable plans of action towards long lasting peace and Godly transformation.

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremonies of the 35th Convention of the International Federation of Asian and Western Pacific Contractors Association

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremonies of the 35th Convention of the International Federation of Asian and Western Pacific Contractors Association

[Delivered at the Grand Plaza Ballroom, Hotel Philippine Plaza (Westin), Pasay City, March 15, 2006]

Thank you very much, Roger. And congratulations! On the 50th anniversary of your international association.

Trade and Industry Secretary Peter Favila and other officials of the Philippine government, Mr. Hoskins and the other fellow officials of Roger Murga in the IFAWPCA, George Consunji, president of the host Philippine Contractors Association, ladies and gentlemen.

First of all, a warm welcome to the Philippines for the first timers in your gathering. And for you who have been here before, I hope that you can see that you come at a time when the Philippines is on a roll.

For many years, we languished in sick bay; for many years, our efforts for growth were perennially stumped by systemic defects, including the fact that we could not do any infrastructure in government unless we borrowed for it. Because all our tax revenues were going to debt service, to the salaries of the workers, and to the local government share. Nonetheless, we were still coping. We seemed to live in two countries: one raring and eager to join our neighbors, but the other unable to rid itself of the stumbling blocks. But we're determined to return to the international investment scene in construction and in other fields.

The Filipino people have stood for a strong economy and have shown that they can sacrifice to attain it. What sacrifices did the Filipino people have to do in the last couple of years? We took the bull by the horns when we cut down our debt service by plugging the financial leaks, clamping down on excessive public sector spending and raising our revenues through a series of privatization efforts and the flagship expanded value-added tax. Nobody likes taxes, so nobody likes to impose taxes. But we would never have been able to do critical infrastructure unless we raised our own means to finance them. And that's why we took these measures.

Barely a year after these measures were implemented — in fact, the last implementation was last November and last February — the country has started to enjoy the first fruits of our economic reform. The peso is up, the strongest currency in the region. Inflation is manageable in spite of the fact that the doomsayer said that if we impose those new taxes that inflation would hit the ceiling. And as little chicken said, "the sky would fall," but it did not fall. And portfolio investments have been increasing, the second fastest portfolio investment stockmarket increase index in the region.

Our international credit rating outlook has been upgraded. And because of our fiscal reforms, in January alone, we saved almost three billion in spending. Three billion pesos, we underspent by three billion pesos. Which means we have three billion pesos to carry over, to spend on important infrastructure. But it's not only the three billion pesos that we will now spend on infrastructure. I have earmarked 35 billion pesos — enabled by our tax revenues, not by borrowings — for five major programs, including crucial infrastructure and housing; the others being education, food and health.

Just because we could finance our infrastructure in the recent past only by borrowing, you as contractors know that we hardly had any major infrastructure projects done in the past few years. But now, since my administration, we have been able to restart and finish major infrastructure projects.

The north expressway to Clark has been completed after so many groundbreaking ceremonies over several administrations. The Southern Tagalog highway to Batangas, the Clark-Subic highway, multi-billion infrastructure projects are underway among others. And as for housing, I am determined to narrow the four million-unit housing backlog. We've already released billions for housing just this year — and we're only in the third month — and yesterday in the Cabinet meeting that U attended with Secretary Favila, I instructed another half-a-billion pesos to be released for the housing sector. So, because now we can finance our own infrastructure without having to resort to borrowings, we expect construction output to grow 13 percent this year. Thirteen percent, including the private and the public sector infrastructure spending. Private sector spending due to an improved investment climate and an increase in housing projects.

I would like to congratulate the Philippine Contractors Association, your convention host for this year, for being the government's faithful partner for national growth. Construction is the mortar that holds together all fronts of development.

Now, that we have been able to do our fiscal reforms, the remaining economic reforms is catch up on the infrastructure that we have had to defer because we didn't have the money. Now, we have the money and we hope you, the Philippine and the international constructors will participate in our infrastructure development.

And I am not talking only about the major expressways and ports here in what you call the urban beltway. I talked about Clark and I talked about the Batangas road because our urban beltways is... Starts from Clark-Subic in the north, through Metro Manila and all the way to Batangas port in the south — by the way, Batangas port was built by FF Cruz — and in that area the urban beltway, the great need is for expressways and ports, major ports. But we also are bringing in transport infrastructure to the rest of the country.

A few years ago, about three years ago, in 2003, we laid out what we call the nautical highway, bringing development closer to the provinces. You see, we are an archipelagic economy, the second biggest archipelago in the world, next to Indonesia. But while in Indonesia the islands are very far apart, in the Philippines they are not that far so that we can have roll-on/roll-off ferry service in between. So therefore, we are completing three nautical highways. Each nautical highway is a combination of roll-on/roll-off ferry routes and highways to connect from port-to-port to interconnect our islands. Again, another major source for infrastructure spending and investment.

I asked the Development Bank of the Philippines to work on this master plan and I have asked them also to dedicate their portfolio to lending money to the creditworthy investors who will invest in the nautical highway. And that will connect the market of Luzon to the production centers, the agricultural production centers of Mindanao. And speaking of Mindanao, for Mr. Consunji who has many investments, Mindanao offers a vast opportunity for rapid and sustainable growth now that enduring peace is on the horizon. There should be no doubt that you in the Asia-Pacific region will regain the glory of the 90s as the fastest growing part of the world.

Your organization was established 50 years ago in Manila, on a vision to enable the regions construction industry to rise up from the ashes of world war the second. In the meantime, in 1997, we had a great recession in the region but now we are bouncing back. So therefore, as the region has bounced back and the Philippines is back on a roll, may you build more in the Philippines in a new era of stability and prosperity.

Thank you.

Mabuhay! And welcome once again.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Thanksgiving Lunch for the Heroes of St. Bernard

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Thanksgiving Lunch for the Heroes of St. Bernard (men, women and governments who took part in the massive search and recovery operations in disaster-hit Brgy. Guinsaunon, St. Bernard, Southern Leyte)

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 15, 2006]

Thank you, Secretary Cabral and all the government officials and workers who participated in the rescue.

German ambassador and all of our friends in the international community who helped out; Senator Gordon, who is here not as senator but as head of the Red Cross and all of the NGOs in the Philippines and all over the world who helped; Governor Lerias; Mayor Lim and all of the people of Southern Leyte and Saint Bernard; ladies and gentlemen.

The men and women who went to Saint Bernard to search for the living and the dead have gone home with the spirit of a proud, and hardy community remains in that place. We give thanks to the Lord for the gift of life and ask his blessings for the peace of the departed.

Many of the people of Saint Bernard when they have a chance to chat with me say the painful memories are somehow eased by the thought of the deep compassion that poured from all over our land and the world. And while we console and condole with the survivors, we convey our appreciation to the gallant men and women who rose to the call of duty and beyond the call of duty in those terrible moments.

The rescue workers, the policemen, the soldiers, the medical professionals, the social workers, the government volunteers, the average citizens, local and international NGOs and agencies, foreign governments and local, national and foreign media — you were all there in an exemplary show of oneness and love for the bereaved and the dispossessed.

Today's event is our modest way of expressing our gratitude to you, our modern heroes from all walks of life from the four corners of the globe. Some of you dug the mud with your bare hands upon hearing signs of life in the drenching rain.

In behalf of a grateful Filipino people, I salute your heroism and sense of humanity. I am saddened though by the indifference of some of our countrymen to the plight of the landslide victims that instead of extending a helping hand during those difficult moments for our country, they busied themselves with their agenda of division and destabilization. I decry their utter insensitivity, those who noisily rattled the body politic, when we were all listening to the faint cries of life, in the hope of pulling out a survivor from the mud and the rain. But we shall hope against hope against these incorrigible destabilizers.

These even as we continue with rebuilding sturdy homes for the survivors of the tragedy in a community farther away from harm's way and undertaking what is necessary to prevent more disasters from happening to our people.

Secretary Cabral told me a few days ago, that we will need 1,800 houses for the new lives to begin again. And no sooner had she said that, then we received offers for 2,000 houses. Thank you to the whole Philippines and the rest of the world.

But over and above these donations also, I thanked God that we in the government now have additional revenues to repair the damaged infrastructure and build more to effectively respond to the imperatives of public safety. Thank you, Senator Gordon — now as senator — for your fellow legislators who gave us the wherewithal through our tax reforms.

The heavy rains brought about by La Niña continue to pose danger, so we must be alert and take the necessary precautions. Glenn Rabonza and Tony Golez don't really have much time to rest because they now have to prepare for the mitigation measures for disasters that may still come upon us especially as a result... The cumulative result of the global warming that has been taking place in these last several years.

What happened at Saint Bernard is also a wake up call for a comprehensive response to what we need to do with the environment in close partnership with the communities, the church, the business sector, the academe and the local government units.

We will never prefer profit over a sound environment. There were no mines in Saint Bernard, so thank goodness! That's out of the controversy. But let me take this opportunity to say — and I thank the mining industry because of your participation in the rescue — but let me take this opportunity to say that we will only consider mining investments which commit to faithfully abide by stringent policies to keep our rivers and ecosystems clean and safe. And violators shall be dealt with heavily.

To the heroes of Saint Bernard once again, please accept the gratitude of our nation for being there when we needed you most. The trying moments that as a people we surmounted through will and unity have proven once more the inherent capability and character of the Filipino to overcome. And also have proven once more that the world is a kind place to live in and people are good.

Thank you once again and good day.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Spring 2006 Conference of the Asia-Pacific Council of American Chambers of Commerce (APCAC)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Spring 2006 Conference of the Asia-Pacific Council of American Chambers of Commerce
(APCAC)

[Delivered at the Shangri-la Hotel Manila, Makati City, March 16, 2006]

Thank you, George for your introduction.

Thank you, Ric for your welcome.

And I would also like to welcome the different leaders of the American Chamber in Asia-Pacific, not to mention Governor Felix Camacho of Guam, welcome to the Philippines!

I'm glad that we have here our Cabinet members headed by Secretary Peter Favila and the members of the diplomatic corps including Paul Jones of course who represents the United States here in the Philippines.

I'd like to welcome the members of the American Chamber of Commerce from all over the Asia-Pacific. And I thank the organizers for allowing me as well to have as my special guests some of the top foreign investors in our country, whether or not they're American.

It's a good time to be able to speak with the foreign business community today given that the American business community is such a major part of our foreign investment community.

Yes, the world is flat! And the flatter it gets, the more it helps the Philippines create a new economy and leave behind an old economy and an old political system.

As Ric already explained to those who might not have read Friedman or who know Friedman to be Milton, but anyway they think alike. The author and journalist Tom Friedman says that world is flat and as Ric said, he outlines the tectonic shifts in the post-cold war order and the impact of technology that has leveled the playing field among the rich and poor, among the first world and the third world across the globe.

There is a revolution in technology that you all know about because you're movers and shakers of the world and this shift in technology is linking the world and creating new collaboration and opportunity like no other time in world history. The Philippines' investment in high speed internet and fiber optic cables has led to an explosion of the outsourcing industry here in the Philippines.

In Manila, Cebu, Clark, Davao, Dumaguete, Baguio — and Ric was with me in Zamboanga — among other locations, 125,000 good jobs at good wages have been created for young Filipinos in the call center and outsourcing business that didn't exist just five years ago. Five years ago less than 2,000; now 125,000 — that is revolution indeed.

The revolution in technology is driven by chip manufacturing and we are proud that Intel has created the largest overseas production facility for world-class Pentium chips right here in the Philippines. Thousands of Filipinos work in a high-tech, highly professional environment and feed not only their families, but feed the world the core technology that drives the new flat global order.

The revolution in technology will help liberate generations of poor people and give them the tools they need to move from obscurity and poverty into a new entrepreneurial middle-class.

To keep up with the rapid evolution of technology and the power of the marketplace, we in the Philippines are reforming our political system to make our democracy move faster.

In real time, economic reform efforts at home are validated or rejected by the global marketplace. And as it happens, I'm glad that our recent economic reforms have been embraced; the recent attempts at political instability had been discounted. Our market is up — stock market, bond market, peso — but woe to the backward-looking political opportunists who stoop to unholy alliances with the apostles of an ideology already discredited by the world. To them my message is: the markets will punish our nation and our people if we stray from constitutional democracy.

As the poet John Donne wrote, “no man is an island” and never has this refrain been more true than in the archipelago of the Philippines and in the flat world in which we exist today. Modern economies are outstripping our political system, and so we are changing it by constitutional reform.

I am committed to microfinance and the power of entrepreneurs, not to micromanagement and state-run enterprises. I want to create engineers, not sloganeers. I want to create good jobs, not mindless mobs.

We must figure out how to win, not how to avoid losing. I know that in this flat world of Tom Friedman there is fear. Fear by workers around the world that jobs will be lost, lives will be changed. The Philippines can and must win with our new friends and our new competitors. We must think smarter and work harder to see that everyone gains.

For instance, for every call center job that Vikas Kapoor, the president and CEO of IMRC in New York, adds in the Philippines, he is able to add one job at home in the United States. That is a win-win solution in the flat economy.

The world over, of course, there is fear and there is a need to lift up the poorest among us. Because great as the market system is bringing about a flat economy across the world, it is not enough unless we ourselves take efforts to make all the poor share in the benefits of the flat economy.

Government must be a partner to ensure domestic tranquility and fairness to the people, not to dictate or interfere with the marketplace. And that is the philosophy of our administration.

And because therefore in a free enterprise economy such as what we firmly believe in and what we carry out, I value everyone in this room. The American businessmen from all over the Asia-Pacific and the foreign businessmen in the Philippines from all over the world. We are just an e-mail away; we are under scrutiny 24/7. This opens up our societies and creates greater accountability and transparency.

And therefore to you I say, American businessmen from all over the Asia-Pacific, businessmen from all over the world who are doing big business here in the Philippines, we will do our part to make the Philippines a business-friendly place to live, work and invest.

Our economy is strong, our commitment to reform is solid. And if we speak about reform, we talk about reforms that have to do with fiscal reforms, revenue collection, anti-corruption. And this morning, I am very proud to have received congratulations from the leader... One of the leaders of our Filipino business community, because today we are in the process — even as we speak — of conducting the biggest raid against smugglers in the history of the Philippines.

Five hundred customs agents are involved in this giant raid. And this is going to fight corruption, this is going to raise revenues, this is going to protect the businessmen who are doing legitimate production. And this is the kind of reform that we will continue to do alongside our political reform to make our process of lawmaking more attune to the new flat economy.

And so once more, to all of you, welcome to the 7,000 islands that make up the beautiful flat world of the Philippines.

Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo during the inaugural opening of Dell Philippines Customer Contact Center

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inaugural opening of Dell Philippines Customer Contact Center

[Delivered at the SM Cyberzone I, Mall of Asia Complex Bay Blvd., Pasay City, March 21, 2006]

Thank you.

Thank you, Peter for your introduction.

And I would like to greet the various Cabinet members who are here today who also helped bring about the business climate that brought Dell to the Philippines; Mr. Michael Dell chairman of Dell Corporation and all the officials of Dell; Mayor Peewee Trinidad and all of the young people from Pasay City and the teachers and principal for benefiting from the wonderful contribution of dell company; the 300 young people who will make Dell come true; representatives of the business community, ladies and gentlemen.

Let me begin by welcoming Mr. Michael Dell, one of the most admired entrepreneurs in the world.

Google alone has come up with almost 35,000 hits on Dell, the man and the company, and that's plenty of information about the founder and chairman of the largest personal computer company. Indeed, as I said, one of the most admired entrepreneurs and icons in the world whose success story started, I understand from what I've seen in the web site, with one thousand dollars and a business idea launched from a dormitory room. And now, I am pleased to add another title to your long list of illustrious labels — Michael Dell, investor in the Philippine call center industry.

Thank you, Mr. Dell for choosing the Philippines for your newest contact center. This is a compelling expression of your company's confidence in the knowledge, skills and abilities of our great Filipino worker especially the young workers.

When America calls, the Philippines answers. When the world complains, we listen. Technology which has shrunk the world has made this possible. Not all Americans have noticed it, but many of our distress calls are now answered by young people manning 24/7 help-desks, an ocean and 12 time zones away.

When a homemaker in Michigan dials a number to report a busted heater in the middle of the night, what greets her is the warm comforting voice of a young man or woman of a call center here in the Philippines. Of course, that homemaker in Michigan will not notice the difference, not in accent, but she will notice the difference in the clear, concise and caring voice by which all her worries are made to go away. The result is that when she puts down the phone, she now wears the same smile by which the unseen person on the other line first greeted her.

Many say that this is the Filipinos' competitive edge in the business outsourcing business that we answer queries fast, with facts and with feelings. While giant strides in telephony may synthesized the human voice, create speaker-independent technology, or devise protocols that do away with direct dialogue, no one has and no one can ever replicate the warmth by which Filipinos attend to calls.

We have proven that fiber optics not only transmits data and voice, but also Filipino hospitality. Thus, because it's not yet possible to download a handshake or e-mail a hug, the next best substitute is the Filipino call center employee. However, I like to think that it's not just in the charm department that we're tops, but most important, we possess the language and technological competencies to be the back office or the front desk of the world.

There were less than 2,000 business process outsourcing employees just five years ago. Now, there are 125,000 in a billion dollar industry and by 2010, we expect there will be two million business process outsourcing and call center employees in the Philippines.

The mushrooming of call centers and BPOs in the Philippines is the outgrowth of our being a nation of English speakers and engineers — engineers like Dado Banatao, our own contribution to Silicon Valley. Dado, another icon in ICT— and our policy of connectivity at competitive prices. And so that we will continue with the next batch of call center workers, our emphasis on English as a medium of instruction and computer linkage of all high schools in the country with the help of private sector benefactors like the Ayala group. And now in Pasay, the work has been done because of the contribution of Dell company. Thank you for contributing to the full computer linkage of high schools by 2010. Right now we have them linked at 73 percent and now Pasay east will be the next new link in that whole computer system.

The Filipinos especially the young ones are adept in both words and digits, a proficiency that can drive up the call value and call volume of those who would like to tap it. And again, I thank dell for tapping that talent for investing in the Philippines. We certainly hope to see more of dell, both the brand and the person in the Philippines.

Congratulations! Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo on Bright Minds Read Program

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Bright Minds Read Program

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 23, 2006]

BRIGHT MINDS READ

‘Education for all’ is a dream of all Filipinos and I’m glad that McDonald’s charities and the partners that were announced today are giving their all-out support. Thank you very much, Mr. Yang.

Your Bright Minds Read program has been so successful that I understand from just 14 schools in 2002, you have now spread the project to 37,200 public schools nationwide. You will spread it by 2008.

With the Department of Education as your original partner, plus the League of Corporate Foundations now—Adarna publishing, I understand—National Bookstore, United Print Media Group, and now the Makati. Princess Urduja JCI, the PNCC Skyway and Petron Foundation who’s helping us in so many other ways as well for the children, a new and more dynamic era in elementary education is in the offing. This means we can be assured of more good readers among our elementary school pupils by the time I finish my term in 2010.

You and I know that all our economic gains may not be here for long if we fail to prepare our young for the age of Philippine enterprise. McDonald’s came up with this Bright Minds Read Program aimed at developing not only genuine love for reading among children from the first grade level onwards, but also the development of comprehension and critical thinking skills, correct grammatical structures and decoding know how. And that’s what they have shown us in their presentation this afternoon on the owl and the pussycat. Congratulations! Children.

I’ve known McDonald charities for quite a long time now. Kenneth, introduced the charities to me and said that indeed they concentrate on little children. And they have helped build so many daycare centers. I told Kenneth he should build so many daycare centers even if, you know, you have the McDonald’s there so that when they go to grade one, grade two, grade three, they’re use to go into McDonald’s store already to buy your hamburgers.

And they’ve helped in a lot of special school feeding activities. So I’m very happy that they have this other more software program as well. And indeed we need to have learning and reading skills among our children. And I’m glad that part of the bright minds read program is that you produce even the instructional material references. It saves the Philippine government and the Department of Education money that we should spend therefore on textbooks rather than on reference books. And I’m glad that this saves us money because we do need to have enough textbooks for our grade school students.

Yesterday Secretary of the Budget Nonoy Andaya released the 500 million pesos that I instructed him to release for textbooks and instructional materials. And I hope Undersecretary Borancing that this will be mostly for textbooks because we have so many additional reference materials that are being provided by members of the private sector like McDonald’s and their partners.

Indeed, if we want to make sure that we continue with a good world class Filipino worker, well-educated and skilled we have to spend on basic education. And thus in our medium-term development program, we are determined to close the classroom gap by 2010 by building 6,000 grade school classrooms every year by adopting double-shift classes, by distributing high school vouchers to provide assistance for private high school students, by providing scholarships to poor college and vocational school students, and by providing every high school with computer linkage.

We've already built more than 14,000 classrooms since my new term began in 2004. And we have provided 73 percent of high schools with computer and computer labs. We're able to do this because we're enabled by a strong peso, by strong investments including McDonald's, by mild inflation, by a budget deficit that's way below ceiling. The reason why I can continue to keep telling the department of budget to keep releasing about 500 million pesos a day is that as of the end of February we're 7.7 billion pesos ahead of our deficit management ceiling.

Thus, we have increased savings to spend on education and instructional materials especially textbooks. I'm also very happy to be able to say that with this we can spend more for infrastructure. And we're very happy not only with the increased investments but also with the increased tourism, with a bullish stock market, and with the possibility of reducing our debt to GDP ratio by 56 percent in 2010. And to ensure that our gains are sustained, we are now initiating charter change to put a stop to poisoned politics.

We want to give greater emphasis to values formation in elementary education and I 'm sure the Bright Minds Read Program can be of great help.

So once again, I would like to thank McDonald charities for all that you're doing for our children because what you are doing for our children is for our future.

Speech of President Arroyo on Saving Mother Earth

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Saving Mother Earth

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 23, 2006]

KAHIRAPAN HINDI SAGABAL SA
PAGMAMAHAL SA INANG KALIKASAN

Kaninang umaga, magkasama kami, si Mr. Belton and Secretary Reyes at Smokey Mountain, kung saan yung mga mahihirap pinakita na ang kahirapan ay hindi sagabal sa pagmamahal sa Mother Earth.

Ngayon nandito naman tayo, kasama ng mga N.G.O. at ilang mga nasa negosyo ng kalikasan na gusto namang magpakita na ang pagmamahal sa Mother Earth ay kasama sa ating mga sandata sa ating giyera kontra sa kahirapan.

Ang pamahalaan ay pwedeng magsimula ng mga advocacy, magsimula ng mga programa gaya nang ginawa ng aking administrasyon na napasa yung Clean Water Act, napasa yung Solid Waste Management Act, at masigasig na pinapatupad yung Clean Air Act. Pero kayo mga N.G.O., mga negosyante, mga pribadong sektor, kayo ang merong commitment, kayo ang merong kakayahan, kayo ang merong kaalaman sa teknolohiya na talagang maglalagay ng laman sa mga programang ito.

Wala sila dito ngayon, pero gusto kong bigyan pansin, halimbawa, yung napakalaking investment ng private sector sa Clean Air Fuel. Halimbawa, yung coco bio-diesel, o halimbawa yung naglalagay ng mga ethanol plant, ito ay malaking nagpapakita na ang pribadong sektor ang talagang pwedeng gumawa ng paraan na ang malinis na kalikasan ay maging daan ng ating laban kontra sa kahirapan. Ang patakaran ng administrasyon ng inyong lingkod tungkol sa kalikasan ay malaki ang kinalaman sa isa sa sampung punto nung aking 10-point pro-poor agenda, at ito yung pagpapahatid ng tubig sa buong bansa.

Tayo ay nagtatrabaho ng masipag para makapagpadala ng malinis na tubig sa mga pamayanan at para maisigurado ito kailangan natin ng maraming tubig. Kaya importanteng-importante yung Clean Air Act, pero importanteng-importante rin yung clean... Ah, importante yung Clean Water Act, pero importanteng-importante rin yung Solid Waste Management Act.

Yung Clean Water Act isa sa pinakaimportanteng bahagi ng administrasyon na ginawang batas. Pero ganun din yung Solid Waste Management Act, na kayo tinutupad ninyo. Kasi kailangan natin ang mabuting solid waste management para yung solid waste ay hindi napupunta sa ating tubig at mako-contaminate pa yung ating tubig. At para makapadala tayo ng tubig sa lahat ng pamayanan na maiinom nila, kailangan alagaan din natin yung ating watershed. Kaya yung logging ay bawal na sa karamihan ng ating bansa. Ilang probinsya lang ang pinayagan noong sinundan ni Secretary Reyes na Secretary, si Mike Defensor, at pinili niya itong mga probinsyang ito pagkatapos magkonsulta sa iba't-ibang mga N.G.O.

At hindi lamang yon na pagbabawalan ang logging, kailangan din yung ating kapasidad na magbigay buhay muli ang kalikasan, ay dapat palakasan ng human intervention sa pamamagitan ng industrial tree plantation at saka reforestation. Kaya pinalawak ko yung nung araw tinatawag ay Bukidnon forest — Angie, di ba? — pero naabutan mo na ang tawag ngayon ay Philippine Forest Corporation at binigyan natin ito ng isang korporasyon sa ilalim ng DENR nang atas na gumawa ng napakalawak na reforestation. And this is one area where the corporate sector can help and make a difference either investing in industrial tree plantations or contributing to massive reforestation.

Itong global warming ginawang mas mahirap yung ating trabaho. Kasi ang global warming na kabuuan ng ilang taon nakaraan, ay nagdadala na ngayon ng mas mabigat na ulan at mas mabagsik na baha sa buong mundo — di ba yung Katrina doon sa America pati? — pati na rin sa Pilipinas. Kaya tayo ay namumuhunan sa geo-hazard mapping kasama ng ecological restoration na binanggit ko kanina, yung reforestation. Ito ay isang malaking proyekto ni Secretary Reyes ngayon, yung geo-hazard mapping.

Nung araw ginagawa ito ng namria sa loob ng opisina, pero matagal matapos. Kaya may mga plano si Secretary Reyes na baka i-outsource na lamang, baka ibenta pa nga yung property ng namria na napakamahalaga na ngayon, nasa prime property, para bayaran yung mga gagawa ng geo-hazard mapping na mas mabilis para magamit natin kaagad para sa ating mga programang pagtatanggol ng kalikasan.

Kapag... Eto nga ilang beses na tayong binaha, ilang beses na nagkaroon ng landslide dahil sa ulan. I can't help but think of the old saying, "water, water, everywhere and not a drop to drink." Kailangan lahat yang tubig na dumadating, kaysa pinapatay ang Filipino, gamitin para mabuhay ang Filipino.

Kaya importanteng-importante yung mga flood control masterplans sa ating major river basins, ito nga ay isa sa mga elemente ng environment chapter ng ating Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan. Kaya gumawa na rin ako ng River Basin Task Force — di ba, Angie? — sa ilalim ng liderato ni Secretary Reyes para yaang mga river basins na yan imbes na parating binabaha ay magamit yung tubig ng mga ilog na ito, saka yung mga ulan na pumupunta sa mga ilog na iyon, o yung mga tubig na nanggagaling sa mga bundok magamit ng tao para magbigay ng tubig sa ating mga pamayanan — an adequate source of community water supply.

Samantala, hanggang magawa natin 'yan, hanggang matupad na natin ang reforestation, hanggang magamit na natin yang mga tubig na nagbabaha para sa ating tubig na iniinom o nagdidilig, kailangan yung tubig na mayroon tayo ngayon mula sa iba't-ibang mga pinanggagalingan ay balansyado ang paggamit between the needs of the community and agricultural requirements.

Merong ahensya doon sa DENR — actually, inter-agency — ang tawag doon ay Water Resource Board. Ang problema yung Water Resource Board... Ako hindi ako naniniwala sa committee eh. Kapag may committee marami nagdedebate nang nagdedebate na lang ang nangyayari. Tapos lalo na itong Water Resource Board, sino ang member? Yung mga kumakatawan ng mga umiinom ng tubig, yung mga kumakatawan ng mga magsasaka para magdilig ng kanilang halaman. Papaano sila gagawa ng desisyon kung papano pupunta yung tubig? Eh di nag-aaway-away sila kasi bawat isa merong kanyang constituent. Kaya madalas nagkakaroon ng stalemate, madalas nagkakaran ng delay, hindi productive. Sabi nga ni Angie, ang nahalata nga niya dahil sa ganung sistema na na-inherit niya, namana niya, pag nagpupunta siya sa Water Resource Board meeting, eh hindi na nagpupunta yung matataas na opisyal na decision-maker.

Kaya, sabi ko: — sinabi ko na noon at sinasabi ko muli kay Angie — "Angie, igawa mo ako ng executive order. Baguhin natin yang Water Resource Board. Gawin nating Water Resource Office sa ilalim ng DENR para may isang direktor na responsable sa kanyang decision-making. He neither belongs to the agricultural sector nor the Manila Water Supply or LWUA. Siya ang magka-calibrate kung magkano ang pupunta sa painom, magkano ang pupunta sa pandilig ng mga magsasaka." In other words, siya ang magka-calibrate ng dalawang importanteng puntos sa ating 10-point pro-poor agenda. Yung isa ay yung nagbibigay ng tubig sa buong bansa at pangalawa ay nagpapa-develop ng dalawang milyong bagong ektarya ng lupa para sa agri-business.

Siguro nakikita ninyo sa aking kwento ng ating mga patakaran, na lahat ng kilos para ipagtanggol ang kalikasan ay konektado sa ating laban kontra sa kahirapan. At etong recycling, yan ay isa sa pinakamagandang nagpapatunay sa katotohanang ito, na kung tayo ay mananalò sa laban kontra sa kahirapan, ibig sabihin manalo rin tayo sa laban kontra sa paghulustay ng ating kalikasan.

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Graduation Rites of the Philippine Military Academy, “Mandirigma ng Dangal ng Lahi”
(Mandala) Class of 2006

[Delivered at Fort del Pilar, Baguio City, March 25, 2006]

DEAREST friends and countrymen.

First of all, congratulations to the biggest graduating class in the history of the Philippine Military Academy and special mention to the female graduates because there were only 77 female graduates before this class and now you will add 37 to the 77, a 30 percent increase in the female graduates in the history of the Philippine Military Academy. I had a wonderful time with you and your parents last night.

When I came home after that, I was reflecting that regardless of our rank, our origin or economic circumstance, as your valedictorian alluded to in his very touching personal valedictory, we are all equal under God and we all call ourselves Filipinos. This great institution, the Philippine Military Academy does the Lord’s work and the nation’s work. It produces leaders who hold God and country sacred and to fulfill your obligations to God and country, academy soldiers live by a simple but a powerful creed – Courage, Integrity, and Loyalty. I had the chance to speak with your parents and siblings last night, I can see that every parent, friend, and neighbor who is here today sharing this moment with you feels as I do, proud to know you, proud of what you are doing, proud that you will be contributing to the future strength and glory of our nation. You represent the future and we must ever be moving forward and never retreat.

The nation is once again at a crossroads and there are many forces that wish to drag us back and stop our forward progress. Some of you know that personally. Some of you have been the objects of attempts at recruitment. There are the communist thugs who still live by an outmoded godless ideology devoid of the values you live and die for every day. You are in the frontlines of crushing an ideology that wishes to tear down everything you believe in – God, country, and the fight against poverty. And as if the communists were not enough of a threat to our way of life, there are terrorist extremists who have so perverted religion as to make it unrecognizable to peace-loving Muslims and Christians alike. Against the backdrop of the threat posed by these extremists and faithless thugs, you our military compatriots, are a vital part of bringing us to the brink of peace in Mindanao. The combined political will of our government, of which you are a part, and our international friends and neighbors will make a lasting peace in Mindanao that will make us proud.

While you wage war against enemies of the state, I am also waging war against poverty and its destructive power. Just as peace in Mindanao will alleviate many burdens for our fighting men and women, so too will the alleviation of poverty across our nation allow you to defend our nation from enemies outside our borders or from transnational global enemies rather than having to contend with enemies from within.

Our great nation puts its faith in God, draws inspiration from people, and draws strength from the Constitution and I was so gratified to hear about the Constitution. However, we recognize that many aspects of our society must be fixed and transformed if our nation is to join the First World within the next 20 years, the years of your leadership in the Armed Forces of the Philippines. We must have the courage to change our economic system and to overhaul the policies and institutions of government so that our economy works for the poor not just the rich. In this struggle, I have made tough decisions. My economic journey has not been easy and my popularity has suffered but it is a cause worth fighting for. To drive down the road ahead, we must look forward not through the rear view mirror. Political reforms won’t be any easier and my popularity may suffer again but it is another cause worth fighting for.

An essential part of building a modern nation in these trying times is not only to have a modern Constitution but also have a military as strong and modern as the nation it serves. And this administration, your administration, has put money where our rhetoric is. We are investing heavily, unprecedentedly in new and better equipment, more training, and more cooperation with our allies to professionalize our military and reform our defense capability. You, our new officers, deserve the embrace of nation and I also embrace you today. But you need more than just an embrace, you need guns that work, shelter for your families, and undivided focus on security concerns not political intrigues. To that end, I have tasked the Secretary of Defense to follow a roadmap called the Philippine Defense Reforms for reforming our military into a world-class fighting force.

As your commander in chief, I will not tolerate any diversion from the path we are on. We have a plan to modernize our economy and we will fulfill it. We have a plan to modernize our system of government and we will fulfill it. And we have a plan to reform our military to protect and strengthen our nation and we will fulfill it. The people want progress, not a rerun of the past. We cannot keep sweeping disloyalty under the rug. We cannot even allow disloyalty to face the rug with a few push-ups. We must sweep disloyalty out of our house once for all and let the sunshine in. We owe it to you to keep the temptation of politics out of your reach. I expect you to be loyal to your values, to your nation, and to your Constitution. In return, I will remain steadfast in my loyalty to you and to the cause we all share, the fight for a just, fair, and stable democracy.

Today before God and country, we celebrate together the virtues of courage, integrity, and loyalty. We celebrate together the future, your future, and what it means to the nation. You are a role model for the next generation. I am proud to be your commander in chief. Congratulations to each and everyone of you and in your honor, I am very happy that on this occasion of your graduation as commander in chief of the Armed Forces, I am very glad to be able to hereby pardon all outstanding punishments of the cadet corps as may be prescribed by the Superintendent of Philippine Military Academy effective today.

To all of you, our new young officers of the AFP, congratulations and welcome aboard the great service to our nation. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 27th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA) ‘Bagsay Lahi’ Class 2006

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 27th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA) ‘Bagsay Lahi’
Class 2006

[Delivered at the Camp Gen. Mariano Castañeda, Silang, Cavite, March 29, 2006]

Thank you, Secretary Puno.

Vice president de Castro; President Cojuangco of the Public Safety College; Senior Superintendent Tira and all the officials, faculty and staff of the Philippine National Police Academy; Vice Governor Remulla and the other officials of the province of Cavite; Cadet Balais and all the cadets who received awards and all the cadets graduating today; Mayor Tolentino; members of the diplomatic corps; General Calderon; Fire Director Assignado; General Director Alit; members of the Cabinet: Secretary Bunye and Secretary Defensor and other appointive officials; to the staff, uniformed and non-uniformed officers and personnel and all the corps of cadets; to all the parents of Bagsay Lahi class of 2006 and all the guests of the graduating students today.

And of course to the PNPA Bagsay Lahi Class of 2006, taos puso kong binabati lahat ng kasapi sa klaseng ito at sa inyong pagtatapos sa bachelor of science, sa inyong pagkahirang sa police. And I congratulate you for the first set of officers graduating from this academy who are appointed as permanent officers of the Philippine National Police. binabati ko ring yung mga nag-graduate na pumapasok ngayon sa Bureau of Fire Protection at Bureau of Jail Management and Penology. Sana darating ang araw na mas marami pang graduating cadets na papasok dito sa mga importanteng bureaugng ito.

As recounted by your valedictorian Benjamin Balais, you struggled through this academy upon the values of honor, discipline and excellence.

Yung discipline, I’d like to add a little something about that. In fact, in my past graduation speeches here in the PNP Academy, I quoted from ‘The Charge of the Light Brigade’ about the discipline of men in uniform, “that theirs is not to reason why; theirs is but to do or die.” At merong mga Supreme Court rulings na pinapaalala natin ng yung counterpart ni Secretary Puno sa Armed Forces, si Secretary Nonong Cruz, na may mga Supreme Court rulings na pag meron kayong karapatang humawak ng baril sinu-surrender niyo ang inyong karapatan ng free speech. Kaya iyan ang ibig sabihin ng discipline ng uniformed services.

You hold guns, you acquire the right to carry guns because you are the champions of the community. Pinag-uusapan natin yung mga sundalo— they are the champions of the people and the nation. Ang mga police specifically champions of the community dahil binabantayan niyo yung mga pamayanan kontra sa mga kriminal at iba pang banta ng kapayapaan sa pamayanan. Therefore be wary of vested interests behind seemingly attractive promises of reform that actually put to great risk the future of the nation.

I take this opportunity to thank the PNP leadership and cadet corps for your professional loyalty during the recent attempts to foment division in our uniformed services.

Kayo ay maganda ang ipinakita. Maganda ang inyong pananaw sa mga dumarating na panahon kung yung sinabi ni Cadet Balais ay kumakatawan sa inyong mga pag-iisip. Indeed, as he has adverted, you must be conscious of the changing demands of the times and enhance your knowledge and skills to respond to the various threats of our national security such as terrorism and insurgency and the related conduits for underground financing and political support.

Indeed, we must all be equally adept at defending the democratic way of life with skill, courage and determination.

As I said last week at your other counterpart, the Philippine Military Academy, if anyone thinks military or uniformed adventurism will be applauded and embraced by the people or the world, they are wrong. The Filipino wants progress not a rerun of the past. Everyone will pay the price of adventurism and it will be severe because it will impact on our economy and the livelihood of our people.

And as I said last week, we cannot keep sweeping disloyalty under the rug. But I thank you for your loyalty during trying times and I expect a bright future for PNPA Class 2006 in the public service following in the footsteps of your members. There is for example Jonathan Robert Rongavilla, who is among the topnotchers in the civil service professional examinations. 'di ba? Ayun.

Your programs have also produced impressive results in the field of sports where an alumnus, PSI Pacalso of Class '98, won a gold medal that I personally handed to him in last year's Southeast Asian Games. maganda ang kinabukasan ng mga graduates ng Philippine National Police Academy.

I am very proud of you and I am very proud of the police force. And this is the reason why the police received their biggest major pay increase very early during my presidency. In the past, the police and the soldiers would be left behind when we would have pay increases for civilian employees. But now in this latest round of increase of 1,000 pesos a month everybody employed by the national government whether civilian, military or police are equal recipients.

You shall also be the beneficiaries along with the military of the massive housing programs that we have initiated as part of the expanded VAT dividends. That is why I have directed Secretary Puno to review all the police camps in the country, including this campus, for the purpose of setting aside portions for police housing as to be implemented by Vice President and HUDCC Chairman Noli de Castro.

Aside from reserving portions of police camps for policemen and their families, I would like to let you know that you will all benefit — policemen, prison wardens and guards, fire inspectors and fire officers — you will all share in the housing benefits of the 1,600-hectare housing project, probably the biggest single housing project in the history of Philippine welfare, in San Miguel in Bulacan.

We will be allocating 400 hectares for the military, 400 hectares for the police and 400 hectares for the teachers, and 400 hectares for the rest of the government employees who make up the remaining one-fourth of all government employees. Because the military, the police and the teachers altogether make up three-fourths of the national government employees.

So I hope that with you secured that your families will have decent housing, and not like what many policemen have been suffering for these past years living in squatter areas, sometimes next door neighbors of the hatchet men of the syndicates, I hope that you will be able to do an even better job than I think you have already been doing these past years during my administration.

We have this massive housing programs because at last we can afford them due to the value added tax reform. And because we are now able to spend more money from our own resources because we have the taxes, we are catching up with the housing gap and also the employment gap that my administration inherited.

I reminded the chief of the PNP General Lomibao — who is out of the country right now — I reminded him that starting today the PNP should be open for applicants for 3,000 jobs. And you the graduates of the PNP academy will be the officers of these new recruits.

My prime concern, and I am glad to hear from your valedictorian, that your prime concern is your duty and responsibility to stand by the nation and defend it at all cost from criminals, terrorists, insurgents and destabilizers. Inaasahan ko na patuloy ang ating pagkakaisa tungo sa higit na ligtas, mapayapa at mas maunlad na sambayanan.

I would like to pay a special tribute to our young men and women gapo ti amyanan nga addo nga graduates tatta nga aldaw. Kadda kayo amin young people of the north, congratulations! and thank you for choosing to serve in the police, the fire service and also the jails.

To all of you and to your parents, congratulations!

Maraming salamat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 2006 Philippine Development Forum (PDF) ‘A meeting of the Philippine Consultative Group and other stakeholders’

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 2006 Philippine Development Forum (PDF) ‘A meeting of the Philippine Consultative Group and other stakeholders’

[Delivered at the Sampaguita Ballroom, Taal Vista Hotel, Tagaytay City, Cavite, March 30, 2006]

Thank you. Thank you, Secretary Teves.

Mr. Von Amsberg, members of the diplomatic corps, our development partners, members of congress, members of the cabinet, ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you for having this forum again today this year. Each of you here today are partners for progress in the Philippines. Each of you here today is a patriot whether you are native born in the Philippines, whether you reside here or even whether you are visiting from abroad.

I would like to thank the combined power of the people in this room — the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank, the members of Congress, the local governments who are here today and those whom they represent and other development partners.

The Philippines is on a path of reform. And I thank you Joachim for pointing out the four paths of reform that you are willing to support, and we look forward to very fruitful discussions on how you can completely help in this paths of reform.

I especially want to acknowledge the many nations that are represented here today that are part of the international donor community for Mindanao. Nothing will be more powerful for the future development of the Philippines than to bring peace, stability and justice to Mindanao.

You speak of how do we accelerate and broaden the base of growth. How do we attain the millennium development goals? Many of the answers to these questions lie in peace in Mindanao.

Of all the tasks of reform that I have undertaken, none is closer to my heart than to resolve the age-old division in Mindanao. In a sense that is a personal angst of it because i spent my childhood years in Mindanao. I believe that before the year is out, we will be able to achieve a lasting peace in Mindanao with your support. Yet, the last mile is always the hardest sailing because that is when the destination is in sight but the winds of resistance will blow most fiercely.

Therefore, to help us through this last mile more smoothly, I want to make a personal appeal to all of you who plan to provide aid to Mindanao as peace dawns. Please consider providing your aid now even as we await the signing of a final peace accord. As several nations have already done under the Mindanao trust fund of the World Bank in your phase 1.

A proactive gesture of generosity and confidence will put more air in our sails at the pivotal moment in our journey as we strive to reach the safe harbor of peace in Mindanao.

The vital signs for our economy are all strong and moving in the right direction. I need not point out any numbers to you today in my own remarks because we have the cabinet here and you yourselves know what these numbers are. I just want to stress that the stock market is up and our risk premiums are down among obvious indicators.

On the economic front we have made huge progress through improved revenue collection as you have been asking for. An increase in revenues through new taxes as Joachim said we agreed on last year and we have delivered for this year. A crackdown on tax cheats and a strict adherence to fiscal discipline.

And with savings from debt service, we are now able to make targeted investments in infrastructure, job creation, education, better health care coverage and I hope that these are the areas in which you will help us.

We will be ramping up to one hundred thousand scholarships for what we call center finishing schools to those who want to secure jobs in the business process outsourcing industry. This is part of our thrust to improve the quality of jobs that our labor force is entering. But that's not good enough, we must contain with bold reforms to ensure that our institutions of government are as strong and good as the people they serve.

We are funding defense reforms to ensure a strong modern military that is loyal to the nation and not to political intrigue. And we are pushing for constitutional reform to ensure a government that is organized to be responsive to the people, and a system of government that will hold our political leaders accountable to the people or within the system the people will swiftly and legally throw them out of office.

This is why charter change is so important. To help break the back of the petty politics of the status quo that may put headlines in the paper but does nothing to put food on the table. The people want progress, you know that, you talked to our people. They want action and they want it now. The people here today, you, who are here today are working from a plan, a plan we have presented to you many times in the past and always consistently. And you are here and offering hope. In behalf of all Filipinos, therefore, I thank you from the bottom of my heart.

In the meantime, reform must continue not only for the long-term but also on a day-to-day basis. We're pushing the senate to pass a progressive national budget that lays out our investment strategy in the nation while adhering to tight fiscal controls.

We want to make sure that every dollar that you invest in the Philippines is well spent. And therefore, we recognize that you want to help us in increasing transparency in governance. That is why the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs are on their own crusade to wipe out tax fraud and cheating, and to prosecute government officials who abuse their position. We have enlisted the support of Tony Kwok, the former anti-corruption czar of Hong Kong, to put our house in order. And I thank our ODA partners who have been helping us to finance this effort. His tried and tested approach is inspiring us to be more aggressive. And this one area in which we hope that we will continue to have the support of the ODA community.

I want to continue to privatize our energy sector — that's where you can help as well — to free up government money to invest in the people, and not a subsidy to inefficient entities. The same is true for mining: I want to develop the mining sector, though not at the expense of our environment or our workers. I believe a modern state can provide a clean environment and a good job especially if you will help us in that respect.

So on every front, I'm pressing forward to reform the nation. On projects big and small, we must press for reform and progress at every level. We don't have time for the endless cycles of political intrigue, senate stonewalling or partisan investigations.

The true power of the people is being felt with the signature campaign to change our form of government. The old time politicians of the status quo will have to stand back because this train has left the station. It is time for politicians to step back or get run over.

Your being here today and the encouraging words you gave about how far forward we've gone since last year is a boost of confidence in the Philippines. And I am thankful for your support.

Once again, in behalf of the Philippine officialdom and the Filipino people, thank you to our partners in progress.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Oriental Mindoro Investment Summit (ORMINVEST)

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Oriental Mindoro Investment Summit (ORMINVEST)

[Delivered at the Filipiniana Resort Hotel, Calapan City, Oriental Mindoro, April 6, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Mendoza for your introduction.

I asked Secretary Mendoza to be my Cabinet member in attendance for my trip here because in the vision that Congressman Rod Valencia presented, I can see that the most important role of the government is to provide the transportation infrastructure to make this vision come true. And that's why Secretary Mendoza is here to help me make that commitment.

Congressman Valencia, thank you and congratulations for your very beautiful presentation of Mindoro 20-20. And I would also like to thank Governor Panaligan for your very kind words of welcome and expression of support and, indeed, what you have said about Mindoro Oriental, your province, is something that we can all see even from Metro Manila, congratulations!

Governor Nene Sato, thank you also for bringing your officials from Mindoro Occidental here and for your solidarity with the idea of an island development plan. And indeed, I think, Mindoro Occidental will have much to benefit from being an integral part together with oriental of one economy, the economy of Mindoro island.

Thank you also to our host mayor, Mayor Brucal and all of the different mayors of the province of Mindoro. Thank you, Mayor Ananas, for showing me your booth and the beautiful infrastructure projects you've been able to put there — your port, your important bridge and, again, the important thing is access.

Secretary Mendoza may be Secretary of Transportation but that's not only sea transportation, because Mindoro is as Congressman Valencia and Governor Panaligan said, because Mindoro Oriental is a key bridge or a key link in the Strong Republic Nautical Highway, Larry Mendoza is here, not just to make sure that the sea lanes are open but also that the nautical highway is always there and functioning very efficiently.

This is a gathering that's crucial to Mindoro Oriental, important to Mindoro Occidental as well as to the whole Republic of the Philippines. This gathering is a boost for economic activity. And I would like to thank our investor friends for being here. In fact, I would like to thank even KEPCO who is not here. We have still a few things to work out on the requirements, but way back from the time when the president of Korea came to make his state visit here in the Philippines, KEPCO's investment in the submarine cable was also something we were already talking about.

And though the other investors are here, if I may say something about KEPCO, because their proposed investment is the biggest investment — 50 million dollars. I'd like to say that KEPCO has been such a strong investor in the Philippine economy. Their investment in Batangas is over a billion dollars worth. Their investment in Cebu is about 200 million dollars worth. Their investment in Quezon is about a hundred million dollars worth. Those are not prospective investments, that's money down already. Not only money down, already operating, especially the one in Batangas.

And it suits their own corporate plans to have that submarine cable come to Mindoro, because their plant in Batangas is over a thousand megawatts. It's one of the biggest power plants in our country. Maybe even the biggest. And it suits their corporate plans to have a cable here to Mindoro so that they can provide in the short run, your power needs from their power plant in Batangas. It suits their long-term plans because when you develop your own power generation sector here in Mindoro then they can also participate when we have already the open access and the liberalization of power. Then power can be bought here from Batangas, sold from here to Batangas. Indeed, it really makes Mindoro Oriental a very, very integral part of the industrialization of CALABARZON.

And that's why if I may, I have been talking to the officials of Mindoro that maybe you should become a part of Region IV-A again. I'm not talking about the whole MIMAROPA, I'm only talking about Mindoro. Because you are so close to CALABARZON. With the nautical highway and with the power, with the power lines, I believe that it will be to the interest of Mindoro to be an integral part of that very bustling economic area there in CALABARZON. For example, you are the rice basket really of CALABARZON, because there's already Iloilo selling to the rest of the Visayas and so your main market is CALABARZON.

And now that Batangas port is the focal point of CALABARZON industrialization, the Calabarzon firms are increasingly shipping out their products through Batangas port and no longer through Manila port. Well, Batangas port because of the RO-RO system is just as close to Mindoro as, maybe Lubang, just as close to Calapan.

So, when you have your power here, whether it's bought from Bataan or whether it's generated here, I think when you have power self-sufficiency or even power surplus, the next stage is that you are going to be very, very attractive to the setting up of industries right here in Mindoro Oriental.

And as Arnan Panaligan said and both Rod Valencia and Arnan said, one of the attractions of Mindoro is that you have political stability within the province. Our investor friends are sending us an important message. What they're saying is: 'stop the politics which is getting in the way of development.' And I am glad that Mindoro has already answered that call even before the investors made that call.

Our administration, which the officials of Mindoro have been so supportive of, has been on a path to reform. And the markets have given us a big boost of confidence in the actions we've taken to date — Rod knows this, he is a very experienced businessman — the stock market, the peso-dollar exchange rate, the interest rate, the benign inflation. And as Rod said, the development of the real estate sector and the housing sector. Rod says that he's not seen an administration that is so friendly to housing, as far as policies are concerned, than this administration.

So, I'm glad that two of the seven investors that Rod introduced to us today, are indeed going to invest in real estate development here in Mindoro. And real estate development for residential and commercial development is something that really must go hand in hand with industrialization. And again, I make a call that Mindoro should be part of CALABARZON.

Why am I saying this? Why am I saying this? As Rod said, I had a hand in the drawing up of CALABARZON as an area development plan. When I was undersecretary of Trade and Industry, at that time, President Aquino formed the Cord System, the cabinet officer for regional development. And she put the Department of Trade and Industry as in-charge of Region IV. That's why our department put together what is now called CALABARZON.

We started first with CALABA — Cavite, Laguna, Batangas — because these are the very, very obvious hubs for industrialization. They were not yet what they are now, but what they are now is the result of that planning.

And then Rizal asked to be part of it. So it became CALABAR.

We had to go back to the Japanese government for that, because it was the Japanese government that helped us do the master plan for CALABA. And then we had to have additional negotiations to make it part of CALABAR. And then Quezon wanted to join. So, we had to go back again to the Japanese government to add Quezon to the master planning and that one took about a year for them to approve the inclusion of Quezon and it became CALABARZON.

And so Region IV got divided into, economically speaking, to CALABARZON and the rest, which meant these islands and Aurora in the north. So, all the development of Region IV was happening in what became CALABARZON. Actually, the truth to tell, in the original three, the CALABA — Cavite, Laguna and Batangas. But there is some spill over in Quezon and some spill over in Rizal, because of the master planning of CALABARZON.

So, later on, when I became senator, because the other islands were being forgotten, the concept of MIMAROPA came about for planning.

And when I became president, I said, the MIMAROPA islands are becoming a second class citizen of Region IV; so with Aurora. So, I decided to make Aurora a part of Region III. And I dare say, it's become more progressive now because the regional officers from San Fernando have an easier time going to find out the needs of Aurora than when they were coming from Batangas. They used to tell me when they were in Batangas or wherever was the headquarters because there are so many different regional centers of Region IV. They would tell me, "why didn't you go, why didn't you go this last month or so to Aurora?" because they said that for everyday that they have to spend in Aurora, the travel to and from there, they have more services to give if they go straight to the MIMAROPA islands because the travel is nearer.

So when I became president, I was the one who made the decision in consultation with the MIMAROPA governments that I should separate MIMAROPA and make a Region IV-B. So it was I who made that executive order hoping that MIMAROPA would have its own planning, not be a second class citizen of CALABARZON. But years after, well, I can look years after at CALABARZON, we started the planning when Mai and I were in the Department of Trade and Industry. Years after, what we envisioned became true. And not many years after, almost immediately after, just a few years after, two years after. For instance — Mai, remember? — one of our first projects was to revive the EPZA — then EPZA. Which when we started the planning of CALABARZON was only three factories. In fact, one factory was even just in the administration building. Two years later, there were a hundred factories.

So, when a plan is good, you can see a lot of effects almost immediately. But in the case of MIMAROPA, looking at it now— several years after I made that decision — what I'm seeing, sad to say is that, because you are planning among yourselves and the idea is to trade among yourselves, one integrated economy among yourselves, the poverty is just being... You are just reinforcing one another's poverty.

So to me the ideal is, that Romblon should be part of Region VI so that they can benefit from the development of Boracay. So with Palawan, because it is a tourism island, that's the main attraction of Palawan. But as far as Mindoro is concerned, you are only an hour away from Batangas port, and the factories of CALABARZON are contributing to put landing lights in Lipa so that they will ship in and ship out their airfreighted products in Lipa. And with your RO-RO ferry, just how far away is Lipa from Calapan city? So that's the reason why, I dare say — I don't speak for the other islands of MIMAROPA — but I dare say, that I think Mindoro Oriental is destined for industrialization and should be a part of CALABARZON.

This is the first time I say it in public, so it's something for you to chew on. meanwhile, the world is watching and viewing our political system and wondering if we have the will to succeed. Uy! There's Congressman Umali. Please join us.

We need a sweeping reform of our politics and governance — that's what Governor Panaligan said in his speech — if we want to break into first world status in 20 years. In fact, Rod talked about his plan of 2020, that's 14 years from now. Really, that is a plan that will have its end state just on the eve of when we should already become first world, if we are able to get our acts together. And I thank Arnan for what he was saying about charter change. We're on the right side of history in working with the people to take back government.

Mindoro Oriental is a microcosm of the Philippines.

In energy, your goal is to eventually provide the people of Oriental Mindoro with an efficient and affordable source of power and electricity, whether it will come from Batangas, coming here because the cable makes it cheaper, or whether it's coming right from Mindoro oriental itself.

On my part, I also want to continue to privatize our energy sector. And I'm very happy that the investors that Rod Valencia introduced plus KEPCO are all private sector investors in the power sector, including the submarine cable. Because, usually, the transmission has been done by NAPOCOR. But this time, NAPOCOR is not going to be part of the transmission. It will be the private sector through KEPCO.

And then, of course, in tourism, your objective is to reaffirm the status of Oriental Mindoro as the 9th tourism destination of the Philippines. Why 9th? Well, look at the competition. You're talking of course Metro Manila, which includes Tagaytay. You are talking of Cebu-Bohol, where one million tourists went last year, out of the 2.6 million tourists. You're talking Boracay, where 700 thousand tourists went last year: 300 thousand foreigners and 400 thousand Filipinos. Of the 400,000 Filipinos were all practically passing through Mindoro Oriental, incidentally. So, why not make them stop here longer?

You are talking Palawan, especially Northern Palawan, where we had about a 100,000 tourists who went there last year in Northern Palawan. And many more want to go but they need new resort. It's the capacity of the rooms that is stopping the tourists, more tourists from going there.

Then you have Davao, that's the most popular tourist destination in Mindanao. And then you have Clark-Subic, and then you have the rice terraces, and then you have Laoag, which is quite popular with the Chinese. So those are the top eight so far. And I think, you can situate yourselves. What do you have to offer either taking advantage of those who are going there already like Boracay or what do you have to offer, compared to others like — that are farther away from the center and you are nearer the center — like Davao, rice terraces, Laoag, Clark-Subic.

And indeed, you have beautiful destinations. Puerto Galera is already very, very famous. It's about as famous as Boracay and Cebu and Donsol and Pagudpud. But going through your booths today, I saw so many others. Imagine, I didn't know that Bulalakaw could have beaches that can give Boracay a run for its money.

And somehow, these well-kept secrets need not be so well-kept anymore, mainly because your province is now part of the nautical highway. In fact, it is the busiest part of the nautical highway in our country. Your province being a part of the nautical highway, I believe, is your key, your bridge to your being the 9th tourist destination. And I am very proud to say that this nautical highway was established during my administration.

But as you say, agriculture is still the backbone of this province. And I think, it should continue to be even if you become part of CALABARZON again and even in 2020. Because we must never, never run out of rice in our country, and you are the rice granary, at least, of CALABARZON.

How can we wed your rice production with industrialization? Well, first, there's productivity. As Nene Sato says, this island is number one in hybrid rice productivity. So for every given hectare, you must produce more rice, because probably the lands along the nautical highway will very soon become industrial, commercial and residential.

And then, second, I'm pretty sure there is still land that can be developed especially in the upland areas. I think this summit is important as you intend to make agriculture a centerpiece investment area towards reaffirming your province as the food basket of Region IV.

We want to develop two million hectares of land for agri-business nationwide, and part of this is upland agriculture. I have just asked Arty Yap, who is my Presidential Adviser on Job Creation, to orchestrate D.A, DENR and DAR towards developing upland agriculture. And you have plenty of uplands. So, I'm sure that you can industrialize without reducing your agricultural production and that you will still continue to be the food basket of Region IV.

The transport of goods and passengers to and from this province has been eased, as I said, with the Batangas port. And I want you to use Batangas port not only as the road towards your market in Region IV, but as your port to the rest of the world. It is just as easy, as I said earlier, to export out of Batangas port from Mindoro as it is, let us say from Cavite or from San Juan, Batangas — Larry Mendoza's hometown. And now that we are going to have Lipa as an airport for cargo, then it will also be just as easy for you to export the products that have to be airfreighted.

And so, I'm glad that you're talking about your vision. I come from a macro-economic vision of the whole country. And what we'd like you to be in the year 2020. So, I'd like to share with you also our thoughts on this looking at it from the national point of view and I can see that there are many points of convergence that we could work together in order to make it a reality.

This summit you consider a turning point towards realizing your vision for the development of Mindoro by the year 2020. We, also, at the national level, are as determined to attain our vision of a modern Philippines becoming a first world nation in 20 years. So, we have our own long-term visions. I think there is plenty of room for us to wed these visions and do what has to be done in the next several years in order to make those visions a reality.

I will welcome the day when we all stand side by side, all shades of the political spectrum and share the victory podium of economic reform together.

So, let's use this summit to call on everyone to be together in moving the nation forward, rather than jamming the gears of the nation into reverse. We have tackled economic reform, and it is working; we are tackling economic reform, and it will work; and with the help of you, the people, we will tackle constitutional reform, and it will work and it will make our nation stronger economically.

The people want a government that brings better service to them on a local basis. I congratulate our local government officials of Mindoro, because the people seem to feel your good service to them on a local basis. That's why we should bring more power to the provinces, more accountability by the politicians and less power concentrated in Manila.

Sa inyong lahat, dito sa Mindoro investment summit, congratulations! Let's fight poverty, but more than that, let us bring Mindoro and the Philippines into the modern world of the 21st century.

Maraming salamat. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo during the observance of the 64th Araw ng Kagitingan

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the observance of the 64th Araw ng Kagitingan

[Delivered at the Dambana ng mga Bayani, Mt. Samat Brgy. Diwa, Pilar, Bataan, April 9, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Ermita.

Her Excellency Ambassador Kenney, His Excellency Ambassador Yamazaki, other members of the diplomatic corps, Governor Garcia, our host governor and the people of Bataan, Congressman Giday and our beloved veterans, Congressman Garcia and Congressman Roman, other officials and citizens of Bataan, members of the Cabinet, General Senga and the other officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, ladies and gentlemen, ating magiging na bayani.

Once more, we commemorate the heroism, the valor of the Filipino and American soldiers of the 2nd world war especially in Bataan and Corregidor. The soldiers who sacrificed their lives, their youth and their dreams so that we, the next generation, can enjoy freedom and democracy.

Our forebears stood shoulder to shoulder and fought to the death when freedom came under severe attack.

Today, in the globalized regime and after fifty years of deep friendship with the people of Japan, we no longer differentiate the causes of the Filipino, American and Japanese soldiers during that war. Whatever side they were on, whatever country they came from, they passed the tests of their time with full honors. Their fight for freedom goes on because now we are all brothers and sisters in democracy. But, in our time, no longer for freedom from invaders rather, as our two ambassadors have pointed out, we are now all fighting for freedom from hunger, from crime, from corruption, from terrorism, from communism and from religious and ethnic misunderstanding and warfare.

As we commemorate the death march, we celebrate the valor of Filipinos to face adversities in the name of freedom and show our resilience in the face of difficulties that come our way. We have great hope and optimism that any national situation has a way of exacting the best virtues of the Filipino.

We have won many victories in our struggles, because we help one another and because we know how to sacrifice. The struggle is still long and heavy but we are determined to win because we have the needed weapons: the citizens' sense of sacrifice that has enabled us to make difficult but necessary economic and fiscal reforms in the past few years, the meaningful social programs and job-creating infrastructure that now at last we can carry out because we have made those fiscal reforms, and the political will to make our system more attune, more responsive and keeping up-to-date with the demands of the 21st century.

Our fiscal reforms also enable us now to start paying our nation's debts to our veterans and the orphans of our heroes who now rest in peace. Not only in words, not only in memorial ceremonies like today, but also in concrete material terms.

Thus, to begin paying the arrears in the old-age pension, death pension, disability pension and educational benefits of our veterans — thanks to our fiscal reforms — we are now in a position to release one billion pesos to start paying our debts.

Gusto kong ipabatid sa ating mga minamahal na beterano na ginagawa ng inyong pangulo ang lahat na makakaya para tugunan ang inyong mga pangangailangan.

Once again, to our traditional allies, to our new allies in the fight against poverty in the Philippines and to our veterans, our heroes, maraming salamat.

Mabuhay kayong lahat!

2006 Easter Message of President Arroyo

2006 Easter Message of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines

[Released on April 15, 2006]

Easter Sunday completes the meaning of Christ's death on the Cross.

From our great trials flow patience and experience that, in turn, elevate the hope of salvation. Christ suffered to show us how love can endure sacrifice and redeem souls. We must keep our hopes high as we carry our own crosses, rise from our failings, and fix our sights on a brighter horizon.

Our beloved bishops spoke of the people's fear of more chaotic politics even as they struggle to make a decent living. We seek above all the nation's salvation from poverty and discord.

On the occasion of Easter, it is my honor to announce our policy to commute the death penalty to life imprisonment.

This nation will prevail in the loving hands of the Almighty. Happy Easter!

During the 79th Commencement Exercises of Cavite State University (CvSU) and in Celebration of its Centennial Anniversary

[Delivered at the University Grandstand, Cavite State University Indang, Cavite, April 21, 2006]

Thank you very much, CHED Chairman Carlito Puno.

President Sangalang and Mrs. Sangalang and the other officials of Cavite State University; Governor Maliksi; Vice Governor Remulla and the other officials of the province of Cavite; Former Prime Minister Virata; other officials of CHED and the educational institutions of our country. A special greeting to the president of the Presbyterian University of Korea, Dr. So Yang Kim. At siyempre ating mga nagtatapos itong hapong ito at lalo na ang kanilang mga magulang. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

At happy 100th anniversary sa inyong unibersidad.

Eto ay pangatlong beses ko na magbisita sa inyo, pangalawa bilang pangulo. At ako ay nasisiyahan na batiin kayo muli lalo na yung mga nagtatapos ngayon at kanilang mga magulang.

Mga graduates, kayo ay kasama na sa pangkat na tinatawag nating the great Filipino worker. At inaasahan kong magtatagumpay kayo sa paghanap ng trabaho. Di ba yan ang pinakalayunin ng ating mga nagtatapos. Upang mangyari ito, inaasahan ko na naibagay ninyo ang tinapos ninyo or ang pinag-aralan ninyo. At ito ay isang leksiyon sa ating mga high school graduating students, dapat bagayin ninyo ang inyong pag-aaralan sa nakikita nating mga puwesto na naghahanap ng mga taong magtatrabaho doon. Kung hindi, dapat magrepaso tayo ng mga kursong inaalok ng Cavite State University.

Tinignan ko kanina nung binabasa yung mga graduating students ng iba't-ibang kurso at di hamak pinakamalaki ay yung associate in health sciences. Kaya tinatanong ko sa mga faculty officials dito, ano ang nilalaman ng associate in health sciences. At maganda naman ang narinig ko, mukhang ladderize ang inyong sistema ng edukasyon. Kaya yung mga papasa sa special examinations pwedeng tutuloy sa nursing na napakalaki ang demand sa buong mundo.

Ayon nga sa mga balita, ang Filipino nurse ang pinaka hinahanap na nurse sa buong mundo. at kung sakaling may mga hindi magkaswerte na makakapasok sa nursing school o makakatuloy o makakapasa ng board ay meron na kayong associate degree para sa, halimbawa, care giver or nursing aide. At inaasahan rin natin na maraming pagkakataon doon.

Halimbawa, doon po sa Hapon. Tayo ang nagkakaroon ng negosasyon sa kanila para sa first time in history magbubukas sila sa mga care giver at nursing aide mula sa bansang Pilipinas. Itong mga bagay na ito ay ginagawa natin para magkaroon kayo ng trabaho. In fact, itong darating na Tuesday — kasi siguro ngayon nagga-graduate kayo. Friday, magse-celebrate kayo ngayong weekend. Monday maghahanap na kayo ng trabaho. Kung meron sa inyong nararamdaman ninyo na parang nabibigo kayo o baka hindi pa ninyo alam kung saan kayo pupunta — sa Tuesday, maglalagay ng jobs fair and Department of Labor dito sa Cavite State University.

Bakit ilang beses na akong pumunta dito sa Cavite State University? Dahil kayo ay nasa gitna ng isang napaka-importanteng lugar, rehiyon sa ating bansa. Kayo ay nasa Calabarzon. Maraming mga pabprika rito at inaasahan ko na kayo ay makakahanap ng trabaho, yung mga hindi nag-aral ng nursing or health sciences. Yung mga iba, inaasahan ko na kayo ay makakahanap ng trabaho dito sa mga pabrika nila. At nakita ko nga yung mga pinag-aaralan ninyo may iba't-ibang mga kurso na mukhang nababagay nga talaga sa mga hinahanap ng mga pabrika.

Yung mga nagtatapos ng engineering bagamat napakahirap ng kurso ng engineering ay may bentaha dito sa Calabarzon.

Ngunit kung minsan may nagkekwentong sa akin na yung mga pabrika, may mga pabrika diyan na hindi naghahanap basta lamang ng engineers, naghahanap pa ng mga espesyalistang klase ng inhinyero. Kaya sa pagka-intindi ko, ang CHED — totoo ba ito, Dr. Puno? — ay magbibigay ng ilang milyong piso, fifty million pesos para ibayuhin ang mga laboratoryo ng science at engineering dito sa Cavite State University. Sana magamit ito upang maibigay ang inyong kurso ng engineering, as I was saying, sana magamit ninyo, ng inyong unibersidad itong mga pondong ito para nga pag-ibayuhin ang engineering ninyo na nakabagay sa mga very specific na hinihingi ng nakatukoy na mga pabrika dito sa Calabarzon.

At kung may mga engineering graduates na hindi kaagad makakuha ng trabaho dahil higit na pagka-espesyalista ang kinakailangan ng pabrikang pinuntahan nila, inaatasan ko rin ang CHED na magbigay ng mga scholarship sa mga estudyanteng nangangailangan pa nang dagdag na pag-aaral, yung dagdag na specialization na hinahanap ng mga pabrika. Pero para hindi masayang itong scholarship na ito dapat alam na natin, Dr. Puno, kung aling pabrika ang naghahanap ng anong espesyalista para siguradong may pupuntahan kayo pagkatapos ng inyong additional studies.

Naiintidihan ko rin na ang DOST ay tutulong sa Cavite State University na pag-ibayuhin ang inyong kakayahan sa research lalo na sa agricultural technology. Nakita ko rin sa mga graduating students iba't-ibang specific na agricultural technology ang pinag-aaralan ninyo. At itong tulong sa inyong research ay sang-ayon sa ating patakaran na ang agricultural research ay dapat ginagawa ng mga state colleges and universities. At sana gamitin ng Cavite State University ito sa especially sa dalawang bagay: kung paano magiging mas makumpetensiya ang ating kape sa Cavite, at kung paano masisigurado natin ang standards ng virgin coconut oil na napakamabenta sa buong mundo at kung saan makakapagbigay ng trabaho siguro hanggang isang milyong tao dahil napakarami ang ating coconut sa ating bansa dito sa Southern Tagalog. Itong tulong sa inyong research sa kape ay dagdag na rin sa tulong na nanggagaling sa Department of Agriculture para sa inyo.

Lahat nitong tulong sa engineering specialty scholarships at sa agricultural research ay bahagi ng dibidendo ninyo sa bunga ng mahihirap na reporma sa ekonomiya at buwis na ginawa natin itong nakaraang taon upang magkaroon tayo ng higit na kakayahan na pondohan ang serbisyong kinakailangan ng ng tagumpay ng taumbayan at mamuhunan sa higit na maraming trabaho lalo na sa Calabarzon.

Kaya bakit ako matapang na nagsasabi kay Dr. Puno na magbigay ng scholarship doon sa hindi pumasa dahil kailangan ng dagdag pang... Nakapasok na sa dagdag pang pag-aaral na specialization, kasi dahil sa ating reporma sa buwis, nakapagbigay ako ng 500 million pesos sa CHED para sa additional scholarship. Ang edukasyon ay laging gitna ng pagtayo ng malakas na bansa, na nasimulan natin dito sa Cavite noong 1898.

At kayong mga Caviteño, dapat ipagmalaki natin yung ginawa ni General Emilio Aguinaldo more than 100 years ago. Ngunit marami pa rin tayong kailangan gawin upang masigurado na may trabaho ang lahat ng mga nagtatapos at iwanan na ang lumang ekonomiya at ang lumang pulitika ng paninira.

Sa nakaraang limang taon ng aking administrasyon, halimbawa, sa call center industry lamang — call centers and business process outsourcing — nakalikha tayo ng higit na isandaang libong magagandang trabaho. Ang mga negosyong ito ay naghahanap pa ng isandaang libo pang call center at outsourcing agents dito, lalo na sa Manila, sa Clark, sa Cebu at sa Calabarzon. Ngunit sa bawat isandaang nag-aaply, walo lamang ang nakukuha dahil kulang pa ang kaalaman sa ingles na kasanayan ng mga Amerikanong kausap sa telepono o sa internet.

Kaya inaatasan ko rin ang Cavite State University, kung wala pa kayo — parang wala pa yata — na magkaroon din kayo ng tinatawag nating call center finishing school. At pwede kayong tulungan ng TESDA sa bagay na ito. Pwede ding magbigay ng scholarship si Dr. Puno kung magtatayo ka ng call center finishing school. At ang TESDA ay pwedeng ipagkabit kayo doon sa mga call center at business process outsourcing companies. Biro niyo unang pasok, fifteen thousand pesos. Kung dalawa ang inyong lengwahe, thirty thousand pesos. At siyempre, yan ang pinaka-lowest entry sa industriyang iyon. Doon... Pinaka-highest end, yung software development. Nabigyan ko na ang tesda para maipondo nga itong makakatulong sa tinatawag nating call center finishing school. Kaya dapat ang Cavite State University ay maglagay nitong kursong ito.

Sayang eh, yung 92 percent na hindi natatanggap sa mga call center, eh 100,000 pa naman ang hinahanap nila. Kaya napaka-importante rin ang ingles. Inaatasan ko ang Cavite State University itong summer na ito, bigyan ng diskuwento ang mga maestra na nagtuturo sa iba't-ibang eskwela sa Cavite na mag-aral ng math, science at english. Pwede ba yon, Dr. Sangalang?

Kaya ako'y nagpapasalamat at muling nagpupugay sa ating mga graduates, sa kanilang mga magulang, sa kanilang mga guro, at higit sa lahat ang aking inaasahan, ang aking best wishes para sa Cavite State University sa inyong 100th anniversary ay sana sooner or later, the sooner the better, na ang batch 2006, one hundred percent din ang hiring rate ng ating mga graduates.

Maraming salamat.

Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Earth Day 2006 Celebration Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Earth Day 2006 Celebration

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, April 22, 2006]

Maraming salamat sa ating bagong kalihim ng kalikasan, Secretary Angie Reyes.

Magandang umaga sa inyong lahat.

Ginang Camacho, Ginoong Catan at si Myrna Yao na narito bilang assistant treasurer ng inyong N.G.O. ngunit siya rin ay ang chairperson ng ating Commission on the Role of Filipino women. Binabati ko si Mayor Teves at lahat ng mga official na narito; mga junk shop owners; si General Tolentino at yung ibang mga kasama natin sa pamahalaan; yung ating mga negosyante, Mr. Belton, thank you again for being here; at si Boy Camacho at lahat ng mga tumutulong dito sa ginagawa na maganda ni Narda Camacho na matagal na matagal nang kilala siya sa kanyang recycling at pinuri pa ng United Nations. Congratulations! Narda at congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Maligayang pagdating sa Malakanyang.

Kaninang umaga, magkasama kami, si Mr. Belton and Secretary Reyes at Smokey Mountain, kung saan yung mga mahihirap pinakita na ang kahirapan ay hindi sagabal sa pagmamahal sa mother earth.

Ngayon nandito naman tayo, kasama ng mga N.G.O. at ilang mga nasa negosyo ng kalikasan na gusto namang magpakita na ang pagmamahal sa mother earth ay kasama sa ating mga sandata sa ating giyera kontra sa kahirapan.

Ang pamahalaan ay pwedeng magsimula ng mga advocacy, magsimula ng mga programa gaya nang ginawa ng aking administrasyon na napasa yung Clean Water Act, napasa yung Solid Waste Management Act, at masigasig na pinapatupad yung Clean Air Act. Pero kayo mga N.G.O., mga negosyante, mga pribadong sektor, kayo ang merong commitment, kayo ang merong kakayahan, kayo ang merong kaalaman sa teknolohiya na talagang maglalagay ng laman sa mga programang ito.

Wala sila dito ngayon, pero gusto kong bigyan pansin, halimbawa, yung napakalaking investment ng private sector sa Clean Air Fuel. Halimbawa, yung coco bio-diesel, o halimbawa yung naglalagay ng mga ethanol plant, ito ay malaking nagpapakita na ang pribadong sektor ang talagang pwedeng gumawa ng paraan na ang malinis na kalikasan ay maging daan ng ating laban kontra sa kahirapan. Ang patakaran ng administrasyon ng inyong lingkod tungkol sa kalikasan ay malaki ang kinalaman sa isa sa sampung punto nung aking 10-point pro-poor agenda, at ito yung pagpapahatid ng tubig sa buong bansa.

Tayo ay nagtatrabaho ng masipag para makapagpadala ng malinis na tubig sa mga pamayanan at para maisigurado ito kailangan natin ng maraming tubig. Kaya importanteng-importante yung Clean Air Act, pero importanteng-importante rin yung clean... Ah, importante yung Clean Water Act, pero importanteng-importante rin yung Solid Waste Management Act.

Yung Clean Water Act isa sa pinakaimportanteng bahagi ng administrasyon na ginawang batas. Pero ganun din yung Solid Waste Management Act, na kayo tinutupad ninyo. Kasi kailangan natin ang mabuting solid waste management para yung solid waste ay hindi napupunta sa ating tubig at mako-contaminate pa yung ating tubig. At para makapadala tayo ng tubig sa lahat ng pamayanan na mainom nila, kailangan alagaan din natin yung ating watershed. Kaya yung logging ay bawal na sa karamihan ng ating bansa. Ilang probinsya lang ang pinayagan noong sinundan ni Secretary Reyes sa Secretary, si Mike Defensor, at pinili niya itong mga probinsyang ito pagkatapos magkonsulta sa iba't-ibang mga N.G.O.

At hindi lamang yon na pagbabawalan ang logging, kailangan din yung ating kapasidad na magbigay buhay muli ang kalikasan, ay dapat palakasan ng human intervention sa pamamagitan ng industrial tree plantation at saka reforestation. Kaya pinalawak ko yung nung araw tinatawag ay Bukidnon forest — Angie, di ba? — pero naabutan mo na ang tawag ngayon ay Philippine Forest Corporation at binigyan natin ito ng isang korporasyon sa ilalim ng DENR nang atas na gumawa ng napakalawak na reforestation. And this is one area where the corporate sector can help and make a difference either investing in industrial tree plantations or contributing to massive reforestation.

Itong global warming ginawang mas mahirap yung ating trabaho. Kasi ang global warming na kabuuan ng ilang taon nakaraan, ay nagdadala na ngayon ng mas mabigat na ulan at mas mabagsik na baha sa buong mundo — di ba yung Katrina doon sa America pati? — pati na rin sa Pilipinas. Kaya tayo ay namumuhunan sa geo-hazard mapping kasama ng ecological restoration na binanggit ko kanina, yung reforestation. Ito ay isang malaking proyekto ni Secretary Reyes ngayon, yung geo-hazard mapping.

Nung araw ginagawa ito ng namria sa loob ng opisina, pero matagal matapos. Kaya may mga plano si Secretary Reyes na baka i-outsource na lamang, baka ibenta pa nga yung property ng namria na napakamahalaga na ngayon, nasa prime property, para bayaran yung mga gagawa ng geo-hazard mapping na mas mabilis para magamit natin kaagad para sa ating mga programang pagtatanggol ng kalikasan.

Kapag... Eto nga ilang beses na tayong binaha, ilang beses na nagkaroon ng landslide dahil sa ulan. I can't help but think of the old saying, "water, water, everywhere and not a drop to drink." Kailangan lahat yang tubig na dumadating, kaysa pinapatay ang Pilipino, gamitin para mabuhay ang Pilipino.

Kaya importanteng-importante yung mga flood control masterplans sa ating major river basins, ito nga ay isa sa mga elemente ng environment chapter ng ating Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan. Kaya gumawa na rin ako ng River Basin Task Force — di ba, Angie? — sa ilalim ng liderato ni Secretary Reyes para yaang mga river basins na yan imbes na parating binabaha ay magamit yung tubig ng mga ilog na ito, saka yung mga ulan na pumupunta sa mga ilog na iyon, o yung mga tubig na nanggagaling sa mga bundok magamit ng tao para magbigay ng tubig sa ating mga pamayanan — an adequate source of community water supply.

Samantala, hanggang magawa natin 'yan, hanggang matupad na natin ang reforestation, hanggang magamit na natin yang mga tubig na nagbabaha para sa ating tubig na iniinom o nagdidilig, kailangan yung tubig na mayroon tayo ngayon mula sa iba't-ibang mga pinanggagalingan ay balansyado ang paggamit between the needs of the community and agricultural requirements.

Merong ahensya doon sa DENR — actually, inter-agency — ang tawag doon ay Water Resource Board. Ang problema yung Water Resource Board... Ako hindi ako naniniwala sa committee eh. Kapag may committee marami nagdedebate nang nagdedebate na lang ang nangyayari. Tapos lalo na itong Water Resource Board, sino ang member? Yung mga kumakatawan ng mga umiinom ng tubig, yung mga kumakatawan ng mga magsasaka para magdilig ng kanilang halaman. Papaano sila gagawa ng desisyon kung papano pupunta yung tubig? Eh di nag-aaway-away sila kasi bawat isa merong kanyang constituent. Kaya madalas nagkakaroon ng stalemate, madalas nagkakaran ng delay, hindi productive. Sabi nga ni Angie, ang nahalata nga niya dahil sa ganung sistema na na-inherit niya, namana niya, pag nagpupunta siya sa Water Resource Board meeting, eh hindi na nagpupunta yung matataas na opisyal na decision-maker.

Kaya, sabi ko: — sinabi ko na noon at sinasabi ko muli kay Angie — "Angie, igawa mo ako ng executive order. Baguhin natin yang Water Resource Board. Gawin nating Water Resource Office sa ilalim ng DENR para may isang direktor na responsable sa kanyang decision-making. He neither belongs to the agricultural sector nor the Manila Water Supply or LWUA. Siya ang magka-calibrate kung magkano ang pupunta sa painom, magkano ang pupunta sa pandilig ng mga magsasaka." In other words, siya ang magka-calibrate ng dalawang importanteng puntos sa ating 10-point pro-poor agenda. Yung isa ay yung nagbibigay ng tubig sa buong bansa at pangalawa ay nagpapa-develop ng dalawang milyong bagong ektarya ng lupa para sa agri-business.

Siguro nakikita ninyo sa aking kwento ng ating mga patakaran, na lahat ng kilos para ipagtanggol ang kalikasan ay konektado sa ating laban kontra sa kahirapan. At etong recycling, yan ay isa sa pinakamagandang nagpapatunay sa katotohanang ito, na kung tayo ay mananalo sa laban kontra sa kahirapan, ibig sabihin manalo rin tayo sa laban kontra sa paglulustay ng ating kalikasan.

Kaya sa inyong lahat, mga solid waste managers, recyclers, lovers of the environment, a meaningful Earth Day to everyone.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Ceremonial Inauguration of the five newly-constructed President's bridge projects

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Ceremonial Inauguration of the five newly-constructed President's bridge projects

[Delivered at the Municipal Covered Court, San Fernando, Romblon, April 25, 2006]

Congressman Firmalo...Mayor Rios kag tanan ofisyales kag pumuluyo diri sa mabuot... Sa San Fernando, mga laing-laing iban nga mayors na nagabisita subong, sa inyo nga tanan, maayong aga.

Kag congratulations! Sa mga bag-o nga taytay naton nga nahalin sa trabaho ni Secretary Jun Ebdane, ang akon kaupod subong. Kag congratulations! Sa aton mga estudyante na makasulod sa karon nga schoolyear sa mga private schools halin naman sa trabaho ni Acting Secretary Fe Hidalgo sa DepEd, akon man kaupod subong.

Dako nga lipay para sa akon na makabisita sa inyo sa liwat kay kung indi pa niyo nalipatan nakabisita ako sa inyo sadtong senador pa ako. Okey. Kag gusto ko naman ipaabot subong ang akon dako nga pagpasalamat kay parehas sa siling ni mayor sadtong eleksiyon sa 2004 dako ang aking pagdaog diri sa San Fernando. So, angay gid na sa akong una nga pagbisita sa Romblon sa matapos ang eleksiyon ang akong una na nabisita nga banwa amo gid ang San Fernando diri sa Sibuyan.

Salamat naman sa kabilugang Sibuyan, kay sa kabilugang Sibuyan nagdaog naman ako sa 2004. Indi ko makalimot ang akong una nga pagbisita diri sa Sibuyan sadtong ako senador pa. Sa kabalo ko anay may ara kamo airport, so nag-hire ako sa isa nga eroplano agod maka-landing sa Sibuyan airport. Apan sa pag-abot ko, o lapit na or sa pag take off ko nakabalo ko nga indi gali approved sa A.T.O. ang airport kay deteriorated na gid. So, wala naman tiyempo para maka notify ang akon advanced party, the nephew gid of Mayor Rios, si Bong Ruado ara na diri, ara na sa Sibuyan. Ako nagdiretso sa Tablas airport ang akon nga intensyon tani na makapag communicate kay Bong diri sa Sibuyan na dira ako nag landing sa Tablas, apang nakabalo ko na wala gali nga communication halin sa Tablas asta sa Sibuyan. Gani sa ako nangin presidente ang usa sa akong nahuman nga naghambal ako sa atong mga telephone companies, subong nalipay ako na makabalo na may ara na kamo mga cell sites diri sa Sibuyan.

So, amo ang akong una nga promise, pledge sa Sibuyan ang inyong communication, so nahuman na. Subong nakabalo ko naman kay mayor ang inyong problema ang kuryente, apan bag-o sa kuryente nakaabot ang mga taytay. Ang kada taytay na atong gin-inaugurate subong, each one of the bridges has an average cost of 20 million pesos. Gani ang atong walo nga President's Bridge diri ang ilang total is about 160 million pesos para sa isa nga banwa lang, ang banwa sang San Fernando.

Ang update ni congressman sa akon sa kabilugang Sibuyan 22, congressman, ang mga President's Bridge Program. So sa atong programa diri sa Sibuyan lang ang aton bridge program 440 million pesos.

Subong siling gid ni mayor ang problema ang kuryente, kag sa kagina gi- mention niya gid sa akon ug si governor, siling niya sa sulod sa six months makompleto na ang bagong power system diri. Apan ang problema ngano ang atong mahuman in the meantime, sa six months. Kay siyempre kon indi maayo ang kuryente ug damo gid ang brownouts, ang atong peace and order naman indi maayo. So, lalaki pa ang problema ng ating mga kasama dito, ang ating Southern Luzon commander, si General Cabuay, who is here with us today and our second division commander, si General Yano, who is also here with us today. Malaki ang kanilang teritoryo, si General Cabuay covers the whole Southern Luzon and General Yano covers the whole Region IV-A and B. So we want all the places to be bright and peaceful.

So, kagina gid ang akong kahambal sa cellular — I think some of you were already ready to greet me but then the phone rang — it was a return call from our Secretary of Energy. Siling ko sa iya i'm here in Sibuyan in Romblon, kulang ang kuryente but NAPOCOR is working on something siling ko sa ila but that is to bear fruit six months from now. So in the meantime ngano ang atong plano? So I said the proposal of the mayor is to look for a power barge that you can rent. Walay problema ang rent, ang problema ginakinahanglan makabalo ng Secretary of Energy kung may ara nga available, physically available na power barge. And so he's going to find out now, and I hope he can call me back again before I leave the place.

But I'm just so happy that we can do governance now all over the cellphone. Unlike in the past, I could not even notify you but I was going another way, by boat, because there was no communication. So diyutay-diyutay nagakompleto kita sa atong mga ginakinahanglan nga priorities, basic services: ang communication, ang kuryente. Ang tubig gali diri sa San Fernando walay problema. In fact, you have the best water system in the whole region, congratulations!

Apan para sa akon — and we were debating this in the entablado — should I mention it now? Basi mangin controversial ang akong diskurso, but it's a thought that I would like to convey to you. Ako ang naghuman sang MIMAROPA, because the five provinces felt nga indi kamo kaupod sa mga plano sang CALABARZON. Kay ang CALABARZON industrialization, ang problema sang MIMAROPA poverty. It's unrealistic to expect industrialization to happen here. So, sa akon una nga term, ako ang naghuman sa executive order na mangin separate nga region ang MIMAROPA. Apan many years later then I find that what is happening, ang MIMAROPA... We've been sticking to poverty alleviation projects kay pobre gid ang mga probinsiya sang MIMAROPA. Ang problema, you are reinforcing one another's poverty kay you're trading with other provinces that are just as poor.

And so the government keeps having to put up bridges, keeps having to put up schools, keeps having to give scholarships. It's okay if you had no potential, apan diri sa Romblon kag Sibuyan dako ang inyong potential sa atong bag-o nga growth sector — ang tourism. Subong ginapili ko sining okasyon agud makabisita sa inyo kag agud makahambal sang ilonggo kay gusto ko i-stress nga kamo sa kultura kag sa ekonomiya bagay sa ilonggo o hiligaynon economy.

And I came from Aklan by a 30-minute short helicopter ride agud ma-prove nga lapit gid ang Sibuyan sa atong center of tourism. The best beach in the world siling nila but maybe because they have not seen the Romblon beaches. Siling nila the best beach in the world is Boracay island. But you belong to the same sea, the same culture. The problem is you don't belong to the same planning group. Imagine Boracay, almost a million tourists already last year. Ang number one sa tourism destination sa kabilugang Pilipinas. Kulang na ang ilang facilities, where do they send their extra tourists? Because they belong to Region VI and there is a master plan for tourism and there is a regional director for tourism that is in-charge of Region VI, where do they send their extra tourists? Pandan, Antique; Libacao, Aklan; Roxas, Capiz. Asta sa Guimaras which is much farther from Boracay than San Jose, Sta. Fe and even Sibuyan.

So, it's not something that I will do today, apan just to give you food for thought. Siyempre may ara ang gobyerno always to look for ways to alleviate poverty like our young graduating students from grade school. Ngano ang atong project para sa ila kay siling ni congressman kulang kamo sa kalsada, kulang kamo sa kuryente, kulang kamo sa classrooms. So ang atong programa — and I will ask Secretary Hidalgo to listen to this — in all the... Let's start with Sibuyan. Fe, if you can check in all of the towns of Sibuyan or all the schools, how many schools have a student-classroom ratio of more than 100:1, let us build additional classrooms in all of them. Bakit 100:1? Kay kon less than 100:1, we can have two shifts of 50 students each. That is for the grade school.

Subong sa high school kulang siling nila ang classroom sa high school apan kulang naman ang estudyante sa private high school. Indi naman naton gusto na mamatay na ang mga private high school. So may excess demand sa isa, may excess supply sa isa, the idea is to combine them. So sining aton mga estudyante, 25 sa ila may ara subong na high school voucher worth 4,000 pesos each. In other words, sa magsulod sila sa high school indi na ginakinahanglan na maghuhulat pa sa bag-o nga high school classroom building kung kulang. Makadto na sila sa private school, give their 4,000 pesos voucher as the tuition fee for the private high school. And then the Department of Education will pay the tuition fee. Kung gusto nila nang eskuwela na mas mahal then it's up to them to add to the 4,000, but the DepEd guarantees to pay the 4,000-peso tuition fee.

These are our programs — ang inyong high school-grade school classrooms, high school vouchers, tubig kon kulang, kuryente kon kulang, but you can do more than that if only the tourists will discover the beauty of Romblon and if only the investors will discover how profitable it will be to send the tourists here to Romblon. Apan siling ko, ang mentality sang MIMAROPA: classrooms, PhilHealth, farm-to-market road, kuryente gid, which are all very good. But you can have more of those kon mas paspas ang development. And you have the potential to develop faster because of tourism potential.

Dira sa Region VI, labi na sa Aklan, ang ilang mga proyekto subong indi na water for every town, indi na kuryente na kulang gani ang Napocor ginakinahanglan magbutang sang power plant diri. Mismo ang private sector nag-invest sa power plant sa Boracay, nakaupod ang Aklan. And we would like that kind of development diri sa Romblon.

So if you would consider it to start thinking of the idea nga total kamo hiligaynon ang inyo nga kultura, lapit kayo gid sa Aklan kag Boracay, kuntani mag-isip kamo, one of these days let's consider nga ang Romblon maupod sa Region VI. I'm not forcing it to you today. I'm only introducing the idea for the first time publicly although I've discussed this already many times with congressman. I've told also governor about it but it's for you to decide how fast do you want tourism to come to Romblon. And the faster you want tourism to come to Romblon, the sooner you should be part of Region VI whose development plan really revolves around the development of Boracay and the other neighboring attractions.

So, I'm so happy to be able to come here. And surely if you were part of Region VI, tungod kay ang ilang budget gakadto gid sa mga access to tourism enterprises, ang inyong airport can be included in the airport budget of Region VI nga dako gid. Ang inyong kalsada imbes na farm-to-market road, which should be all weather, if it's roads to tourism destination, they have to be nicer. And power imbes na maghulat kita sa Napocor kag sa D.O.E. ang private sector mismo nga mga dako nga mga company are the ones that themselves put up the facilities here. Ang atong health, dira sa Boracay there are three private clinics. So diri instead of waiting for the government to put up additional rural health units, the private sector itself will come. That is the beauty of tourism development. You know Bali started with Kuta, now spread to the whole Bali, which is as big as Panay and Romblon together.

So I hope that as we are able to chat with one another today, total ang San Fernando... In fact, Mayor Rios said he has started to talk about this already to the people to consult. It's a good time for us to start discussing this so that we can do our own planning in the near future for if it is the wish of the people of Romblon to develop your beautiful natural wonders and for the people of the world to fill the loving hospitality of the people of Romblon labi na gid diri sa Sibuyan island.

Damo gid nga salamat sa inyo nga tanan.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Golden Anniversary Celebration of Aklan Province

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Golden Anniversary Celebration of Aklan Province

[Delivered at the ABL Sports Complex, Kalibo, Aklan, April 25, 2006]

Abo nga salamat, Congressman Joven Miraflores and thank you for inviting me once again to join Aklan on your golden anniversary.

Mrs. Miraflores, Governor Marquez and Mrs. Marquez. Thank you governor for your very generous acknowledgement of the different ways by which we have worked together to make Aklan the very prosperous province that it is today.

Aklan is so famous, we have many visitors on your 50th anniversary. We have two lady governors: Governor Sally Perez of Antique and Governor Bella Castillo of Aurora. and with me are Secretary Ebdane of public works, Acting Secretary Hidalgo of education, and presidential adviser for Region VI, Former Governor Lito Coscoluella. Vice Governor Tolentino and the members of the Sangguniang Panlalawigan, Mayor Rebaldo and all of the other mayors and all of the local officials of the various towns in the province of Aklan.

I would also like to make a special acknowledgement to the descendants of the father of Aklan, the children of the late Congressman Godofredo Ramos.

To all of you, happy happy golden anniversary!

Governor said that not many provinces get to have me twice to celebrate your anniversary. I was here 2002 but I must be back here again because it is the golden anniversary of the golden province of the Philippines.

Why are you the golden province of the Philippines? You contribute so much to the wealth and the GDP of the Philippines. You know around the world, it's been said that Spain earns more from tourism than Saudi Arabia from oil. Well, that is how much Boracay is earning for Aklan and the whole Philippines.

I remember when I came here in 2002, we were talking about the island of Panay's integrated development plan, and at that time we were talking agro-industrial. How time flies. It seems so long ago because now if tourism can earn more than oil, certainly, Boracay has caused a major difference in the lives of the people of Aklan since 2002. And I am as excited as you are about the big difference in your life during the past four years. And I am very proud that this big change in your life happened during my administration.

Boracay was number one in tourism last year. It was number one among all of the new year's eve destinations. It was number one again this holy week. And I must congratulate you, but more than congratulating you, I have the fervent prayer that Boracay will spread the gold and be the hub of development all over Aklan, all over Panay including Antique which is only 45 minutes drive away. The way that Kuta, that famous beach in Bali, became the hub of development in Bali which is now enjoying a higher standard of living than Jakarta.

But when we talk about tourism, we're not only talking about the beach, we're not only talking about the resorts, we're talking about the products that you can sell to the tourists. I hope your mango, your piña, your abaca will find their way to the hotels, restaurants and souvenir shops of Boracay. That way the whole island of Aklan will become very rich because you have a built-in market for the great products that you have in your province.

You know just a few days ago, funded by the international financing corporation of the World Bank, Mina Gabor, Former Secretary of tourism and her group, presented to us a proposed master plan for the sustainable development of Boracay. And in her concluding frame, she reminded us that for three times conde-nast named Boracay as the very best beach in the world. I think every year it's one of the ten, but three times it was number one. And I hope it will always be number one and I hope that the tourism of Boracay will be the road to prosperity not only for Boracay, not only for Malay, but for Aklan and the whole island of Panay, and in fact for the rest of the Philippines.

I just come from Romblon and from Antique. I especially chose those two neighboring provinces to be my side visit on the day that you invited me here just to stress to them, to you and to our country — because the media follows me wherever I go — how the multiplier of Boracay is so widespread.

Antique, 45 minutes by road. In fact, during my administration, we built that beautiful road so that some of your excess tourists can still swim in Boracay but should already sleep in resorts here in the mainland — Caticlan mainland, Nabas, Buruanga, Pandan, Libertad — and therefore spread development in Panay.

But on the other side, I told the people of Romblon, your hope is not to be trading with other poor provinces. Your hope is to attach your economy to Boracay because San Jose is 20 minutes from Boracay. The children of San Jose town of Romblon study in Boracay, and Sta. Fe is one hour away. So Boracay is a hub not only for Region VI but for the entire central Philippines. And I congratulate the people of Aklan for giving us that golden opportunity.

Because people have been coming here to Boracay, they have also discovered so many other scenic spots in Aklan, isn't it? You scenic spots in Aklan are top rate natural advantages that must be optimized in accordance with the principles of sustainable development.

Way back in 2001 when the tourists were not yet this numerous, I foresaw this. I said in my State of the Nation Address: "We will promote fast-growing industries where high-value jobs are most plentiful. We have the competitive edge in tourism in the natural wonders of our country and the natural warmth of our people." I think those tourists would not have come to Aklan only because of the natural wonders, they have also come because of the natural warmth of the Aklanons. And I thank you for your hospitality.

What is the national government's obligation? Our obligation is to provide the roads to those wonders and the means to take the tourists there. That is why we have been liberalizing the airline industry and there are more than 30 flights everyday to and from Aklan. So much so that even people from other provinces nearby drive to Kalibo to catch the flight because it is so convenient to catch the hourly flights.

The world's most beautiful beach should be enjoyed by people all over the world in a manner that will keep it beautiful for all time. And in manner whereby everybody else in Aklan and Panay and even neighboring Romblon will be able to develop.

I am happy to hear of investors upgrading facilities and building new high-end ones to remain competitive and ensure your visitors' comfort. There is a very strong private interest to invest not only in world class tourism facilities similar to Shangri-La, but not only in Boracay anymore, but in the mainland of Aklan world class facilities. There is also interest in developing a world class emergency hospital. I congratulate the people of the province of Aklan for the beautiful new hospital that we have just inaugurated.

There are private investors who also want to put up a hospital in Boracay itself but there's no property. And I was hoping your officials can help the Department of Tourism locate a property for the hospital which will ensure the safety and warmth that forms part of Aklan's charm. But Congressman Miraflores told me that there is an old provincial hospital that has been inundated, not operating anymore. So we will offer that to investors for leasing.

And speaking of safety, your resorts both in Boracay and in the mainland of Aklan are part of the area of operations of what we call 'task force stingray' which protects the resort islands in Central Philippines especially from terrorist threats. Within that task force, i'm organizing a special sub-task force for your beach resorts called 'Baywatch' to include lifeguards, protection from stray animals.

And I am so happy not only that Boracay has changed the life of Aklan but also the Ro-Ro port that we put up here three years ago which has also revolutionized your life. And upon the request of local officials we are devolving the Caticlan port to the provincial government of Aklan.

We will make it a tourist Ro-Ro port. I told the Secretary of Transportation this morning that we must phase out the cargo loading and unloading in Caticlan. So he said, "Wo what happens to the cargo?" Well, all the cargo bound for Aklan or going out of Aklan should be in the Ro-Ro trucks and let the Ro-Ro trucks roll-off and roll-on the vessels and let the cargo be loaded or unloaded in the original points of origin or the final points of destination. well, that will soon be implemented by the provincial government because they are already preparing the memorandum of agreement for the devolution of the Caticlan port from the Philippine Port Authority to the provincial government of Aklan.

Governor Marquez also talked about the airport of Caticlan. I'm very happy that... Well, four years ago, I gave 40 million pesos for the airport of Caticlan, and I'm glad to hear that it is already implemented.

Now for Kalibo, we have released — and I announced this during the Ati-Atihan, and I'm happy to report it's been accomplished — we have released 55 million pesos for the instrument landing facilities for the Kalibo airport. now, your local officials are working on buying the right of way. And the target is by October the instrument landing facilities will be completed and although charter flights waiting to land in Kalibo in Aklan will be coming. If you have 34 flights now, imagine how many flights you will be having when we have the instrument landing system.

The experts say that the Kalibo airport is actually sufficient to keep up the volume of tourists in Boracay consistent with sustainable development. However, I know of private sector investors who want to invest in the Caticlan airport and improve it some more. Well, we will not stop them. They can go ahead as long as they don't require any government guarantees. Imagine, if you should have two airports, one will be the government and one if the private sector should decide to upgrade it.

There is really a tremendous demand coming up. Power is gonna be a big problem later on, not yet now. Why not yet now? Because you remember during one of my visits here, we inaugurated the mirant power plant in Nabas to serve Boracay but also to increase the province's energy supply. And anticipating that your very rapid development will have another power shortage or need by 2010, this early I have suggested to your officials that they should discuss with the department of energy so that we can incorporate — Governor Marquez, you were saying earlier — the hydro power plant here in Aklan for the 27th yen package with the government of Japan.

So much to do. Let's all work together to make Aklan richer and richer from the best beach in the world because the richer Aklan becomes, the richer the Philippines becomes. That is why you are our golden province. You are the goose that lays the golden egg. And we want that goose to be more and more prosperous for the sake of the rest of our country.

Happy golden anniversary to our golden province!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the ‘Kadaugan sa Mactan’ 2006

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the ‘Kadaugan sa Mactan’ 2006

[Delivered at the Mactan Shrine, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, April 27, 2006]

Daghan salamat, Secretary Ace Durano, ang atong Secretary of Tourism na gikan diri sa Cebu.

I'd like to give a special greeting to our foreign guests headed here by the Ambassador Joao Caetano da Silva of Portugal, welcome!

Mayor Radaza and the officials of Lapu-Lapu City, Governor Garcia, Congresswoman Soon Ruiz, Former Senator John Osmeña, Congressman Cuenco from Cebu City. Ang aton mga kauban sa Cabinet, aside from Secretary Durano, we have Secretary Mike Defensor and Secretary Cerge Remonde. Kaninyong tanan mga kaigsuonan diri sa Mactan ug Lapu-Lapu City, gi abe-abe ko ang tanan sa inyo sa dakbayan sa Lapu-Lapu sa aton pagsaulog karon sa anibersaryo sa battle of Mactan. Happy victory day of Mactan kaninyong tanan!

Leksiyon kini ang importansya ug patriotismo alang sa tanang Pilipino. Apil na ang atong henerasyon karon. Ingon gyud ni Gwen Garcia, ang usa sa mga favorite nga jokes sa iyang amahan nga Cebu killed the first tourist in the Philippines. And Ace Durano said, but the beautiful irony there is that Cebu and Bohol together are the number one tourist destination of the Philippines today diri sa Pilipinas. Congratulations!

Mga higala na nato karon ang mga kanhing kaaway nga foreigners tungod kay wala na ang atong freedom struggle. In fact, karon ang Cebu paborito sa mga foreigners apan kinahanglan pa nato ang panighiusa karon aron mopaspas ang malungtad na kalinaw ug kauswagan sa atong nasud. Karon dili na ang foreigners ang aton kaaway, ang kapobrehon nga ma-o ang aton labing dakong kontra. Ug tungod sa atong mga congressmen ang ilang tabang kanako sama ni Congresswoman Nerisse Soon Ruiz ug Congressman Cuenco, nahuman nato ang mga reporma sa ekonomiya. Ug sa buwis midako ang pondo sa nasud busa karon ang atong trabaho ang mga labing importanteng programa aron padayon makadawat ang aton mga katawhan sa mga unang kaayuhan nga bunga sa inyong sakripisyo.

Importante ang atong giyera kontra sa pagkakabus. Tingali diri sa sugbo tungod kay progresibo kamo kaayo dili kaayo kaimportante sa aton nga consciousness kining programa kay daghan kaayo mga uban nga mga probinsya, laing probinsya na pobre kaayo, kabus kaayo apan diri sa sugbo ang atong tuyo kon paunsa mahimo pa mas progresibo ang probinsya sa Sugbo.

Ug diri sa atong selebrasyon sa battle of Mactan nakita nato paunsa gyud kay diri sa Mactan ang labing paborito sa mga turista kaya mga gwapo nga resort naa, hapit tanan gihapon diri sa Mactan island. Ug umaabot nga dili na dugay na moanhi pa ang 18 heads of state gikan sa ASEAN, sa East Asia aron makabisita diri sa atong ASEAN Economic Summit nga mahimo diri sa Lapu-Lapu, Mandaue ug Cebu City.

Unta ready na kamo tanan. Apan sigurado ko dili ko kinahanglan ingon nga unta hibaw ko nga ang katawhan sa Mactan sa Lapu-Lapu ready na sa inyong hospitality. Gwapo kaayo, friendly kaayo ang mga katawhan sa Mactan island sa Lapu-Lapu. Busa gipili ko gyud nga ang atong ASEAN Summit mahimo diri sa tulo ka dakbayan.

And I am looking forward to that time nga bisan karon pa ra daghan na kaayo ang mga turista. Sa moanhi ang 18 heads of government, ilahang secretaries of foreign affairs, ilahang economic ministers, ilahang senior officials, ilahang business leaders, ilahang business community, ilahang media... Top media representatives. Wow! Siguro sa mahuman na matapos ang ASEAN Summit diri labaw pa ang mobisita diri sa Mactan island kag sa tibuok Cebu.

Busa salamat kaninyong tanan sa inyong kanunay na pagsuporta sa mga tuyo sa atong administrasyon ug unta gyud ang umaabot na Asean Summit usa pa gihapon nga pag-agi sa dako pa nga progreso sa sugbo, sa Mactan island ug Lapu-Lapu City.

Daghan salamat ug congratulations kaninyong tanan!

Speech of President Arroyo on Labor Day Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Labor Day

[Delivered at the DBM Compound, San Miguel, Manila, May 1, 2006]

HAPPY SHOPPING STATE WORKERS!

Kung yung mga Amerikanong sundalo ay may PX goods, ngayon ang kawani ng gobyerno ay puwede ring magkaroon ng PS goods, eto ay ang PS Mart. Yung PS, ibig sabihin noon, procurement service. Kaya 'tong PS Mart is for the smart consumer, para sa mga wais na mamimili. Bakit? Dahil ang mga binibenta rito ay binibiling bulto ng pamahalaan ng DBM sa malaking kantidad, sa ganun sinisigurado na ang mga presyo ay may diskuwento lahat.

Ang pamahalaan ang pinakamalaking namimili ng mga consumer goods sa bansa at ginagamit itong kapangyarihan para makakuha ng value-for-money para sa kung ano man ang binibili nila. Kaya ang DBM, ang gobyerno ay may 'shoppers' advantage' at ngayon pinapaabot natin itong 'shoppers' advantage' sa mga nagtratabaho sa pamahalaan para sila rin at kanilang mga pamilya ay maaaring makinabang sa mababang presyo ng mga bilihan.

Ang procurement service ay hindi nagsasaman'tala sa mababang presyo na bibilhin niya sa bulto dahil sa ilalim ng batas, hindi siya puwedeng kumita ng higit sa tatlong porsiyento. Kaya kung merong Shoemart sa labas, mayrong PS Mart sa loob. Siyempre, mas marami pa ring mabibili sa Shoemart pero marami na ring mabibili dito sa PS Mart dito sa ating katabi.

Tignan natin yung mga presyo. Sabi nga ni Nonoy, yung household goods at office supplies, 20 percent lower than outside. Kaya sabi nga ni Pat Sto. Tomas, yung mga opisina, puwede ng mawala na yung akosasyon ng corruption dahil puwede nang bilhin yung office equipment dito sa... Office supplies dito sa procurement service. At tignan niyo naman: yung asukal, dito P33.50, sa labas, P38.00; ang bigas sa labas P22.00, dito P18.00; ang cooking oil sa labas P22.00, dito P19.80; ang sardinas sa labas 10.28, dito P9.93; ang noodles, P13.25 sa labas, dito P12.80; ang corned beefsa labas P22.00, dito P20.10; ang kape sa labas P4.80, dito P4.10.

Ang payroll ng pamahalaang bansa ay 330 billion pesos bawat taon. At malaking bahagi dito ay ginagamit para bumili ng mga gamit ng pamilya at ng tahanan. Sa pagbukas ng mga pintuan ng mga depot at bodega ng procurement service, ito ay bukas sa mga kooperatiba, inaalok natin ang ating mga kasama sa trabaho na magsama-sama, pagsamahin ang kanilang grocery money, kumuha ng malalaking diskuwento at hayaang kumita ang kanilang organisasyon na pagkatapos magagamit nila para sa mutual aid. Ito ang diwa ng bayanihang Pilipino na pinapakita sa panahon ng internet. At ito ang unang halimbawa, Nonoy, di ba? Ito na nga yung PX store o PS store o PS Mart ng ating mga empleyado ng gobyerno. Ang depot ay bawat rehiyon may depot, Nonoy. Ah, magkakaroon ng depot bawat... Merong 12 ngayon. Halimbawa, yung depot ng Metro Manila ay nasa Paco. Kaya yung iba't-ibang mga kooperatiba o kahit na yung nagpapatakbo ng ahensiya, Pat, ay sana makipag-ugnay sa mga depong ito para magkaroon ng PS Mart sa lahat ng mga opisina at department.

Pagkatapos itayo ang mga tindahan, sisiguraduhin natin naman na yung mga mga consumer ay may salapi na dadalhin doon at mamimili. Noong isang buwan, kung naalala ninyo, nagbigay tayo ng isang libong pisong dagdag na allowance sa lahat ng mga empleyado ng pambansang pamahalaan. At sinundan ko ito ng urgent memorandum order kay nonoy na pabilisin ang reporma ng kompensasyon, hindi ba, Nonoy? Na itutukoy na higit sa ikakabit ang bayad sa publikong sektor sa merit and performance. Ito ay nagpapatunay na ang pamahalaan ay nag-aalaga ng taumbayan ay marunong din mag-alaga ng kanyang sarili.

Kaya ito ang ating ginagawa para sa mga empleyado ng pamahalaan at binubuksan natin ito bilang bahagi ng pagdiriwang ng labor day. Kaya binabati ko ang mga opisyal ng procurement service or PS, ang galing-galing mag-alaga ng pondong ipinagkatiwala sa kanila. Hindi lamang nakapag-impok ng salapi, na-multiply pa ito sa pamamagitan ng pinakamagaling na paraan ng pamamahala at matinong investment choices, nag-invest nga dito sa mga PS Mart.

Sabi ni Nonoy, ito ay self-liquidating. Ang mga maliliit na kita ay magpopondo ng expansion na lilikhain ng demand mula sa mga kawani ng pamahalaan. Sabi nga ni Nonoy, walang bagong pondong kinukuha sa treasury para sa proyektong ito. At sa madaling panahon, kapag ang PS Mart ay namulaklak na sa buong bansa at ang kanyang mga karatula ay bahagi na ng landscape, maaaring maalala natin itong araw na ito, labor day 2006, at masabing itong chain of commissaries ay natayo na hindi kailangan ng dagdag na appropriation.

Kaya muli, kay Nonoy sa DBM at sa lahat ng manggagawa ng pamahalaan, kami ni Pat, ang secretary of labor ay binabati kayong lahat, Happy Labor Day!

Maraming salamat, Secretary Andaya at congratulations! Sa napakagandang ideyang ito.

Secretary Sto. Tomas, ikaw ang nanay ng ating mga manggagawa, kaya binabati ko ikaw at silang lahat sa Labor Day.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 'Araw ng Paggawa' Celebration (Observance of Labor Day 2006)
Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 'Araw ng Paggawa' Celebration (Observance of Labor Day 2006)

[Delivered at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang, May 01, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Pat Santo Tomas.

At unang-una, mabuti na rin i-congratulate ko na ikaw at ang NLRC for having its best first quarter ever this year when it disposed of more than 10,000 cases. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Please sit down everyone.

Gusto ko na ring batiin yung iba't-ibang mga Cabinet member natin na narito, pati na rin yung ating mga labor leader, si Ginoong Alejandro Villaviza, maraming salamat sa inyo at sa TUCP sa ipinahayag niyong suporta sa ating pagbabago ng ating sistema ng pulitika.

Binabati ko rin si Attorney Allan Montaño, first time siya nakaupo sa entablado, bagong henerasyon ng Federation of Free Workers. At siyempre, isang ating institusyon, yung nag-lead nung ating pagdadasal, si Ginoong Vladimir Tupaz.

Sa inyong lahat, mga kababayan, this is the day for workers all over the world and this is the day to mark the strides that the great Filipino worker has taken to rise to the apex of competence and competitiveness.

Kanina, binanggit ni Ginoong Villaviza doon sa kanyang binasang mensahe mula kay Attorney Mendoza na itong araw na ito ay inaalok nila or binibigay nila o ginagamit nilang bilang paggalang sa tatlong milyong walang trabaho. Sa isang dako ay malungkot tayo dahil mayroong tatlong milyong Pilipinong walang trabaho. Ngunit sa kabila, naalala ko tuloy — Pat, sabi ko, hindi ba nung tayo'y unang umupo noong 2001 apat na milyong pilipino ang walang trabaho. So ngayon, tatlong milyon. At least naka-ganansiya na tayo ng isang milyon.

Our gains in the economy mark payback time for the people doon sa ginawa nating mga reporma sa buwis. Ngayon nakaya nating maglaan ng 13 billion pesos para sa dagdag na allowance ng mga manggagawa ng gobyerno at sa budget sa pumapasok na taon, maglalagay si Secretary Andaya ng salary standardization para maka-abot ito sa 20 billion pesos sa susunod na budget.

Our amelioration measures must not only affirm the paramount interest of our workers, but ease the plight of the average Filipino in the face of current pressures and difficulties.

Halimbawa, presyo ng bilihin, upang ma-abot-kaya ang presyo ng bilihin ngayon sa panahon ng matataas na presyo ng krudo sa buong mundo, kanina nagbukas tayo ng isang PX store para sa mga manggagawa ng gobyerno, ang tawag naman natin doon ay PS mart at ito ay bahagi lamang sa 1.2 billion pesos na ilalaan natin para sa PX stores ng mga manggagawa ng pamahalaan sa buong Pilipinas.

For the private sector, I support a reasonable wage hike hammered out by the tripartite regional wage boards. We acknowledge the need to alleviate the burdens of our workers amid the rising cost of living brought about by high oil prices in the world market, while we also share the concerns of the business sector over the impact on business and employment. A middle ground can be reached if all sides are focused on common goals and principles, mainly the good of the nation. Kaya maganda yung parting statement doon sa mensahe ni Attorney Mendoza, nakakaunawa naman ang ating sektor ng manggagawa, basta mag-usap-usap tayo ng mabuti tungkol sa sitwasyon ng bawat isang panig. A win-win solution can be found that can ease the plight of labor while at the same time preserve the investment climate and the pace of growth.

Harmony, teamwork and creativity are the key to success. In fact, with harmony, teamwork and creativity through the work of the NLRC plus the mediation and conciliation efforts that DOLE has done in the first quarter of this year, we were able to gain more than 600 million pesos worth of days saved from being able to avert a strike. Congratulations to all sides!

Yung social insurance system, pinapalakas natin para mas lalong makaabot ang biyaya sa mga manggagawa. Halimbawa, yung gsis ay magbibigay ng scholarship sa halagang 60 million pesos. Ang OWWA naman, Nitoy, hindi ba sasagutin mo ang health rehabilitation ng mga OFWs sa halagang 44 million pesos? At para naman yung PGH ay mas magandang paglingkod sa mga manggagawa, gagastusan natin ang PGH ng 100 million pesos para sa kanyang rehabilitation. At ang GSIS ay tutulong sa Philhealth na magbayad ng hospitalization sa kanyang mga kasapi. Dagdag ito sa mga binabayad ng Philhealth at itong kontribusyon ng GSISs sa mga diskuwento na binabayaran ng manggagawa ay humahalagang 40 million pesos.

Ang Philhealth naman, narinig mo, Pingkoy, kanina yung isang hiling na dapat mapalawak ang sakop ng Philhealth sa informal sector gaya ng mga mangingisda, mga sakada, mga magsasaka, kaya magdadagdag tayo or magbubukod tayo ng 40 million pesos para bayaran 'yung mga premium nitong mga kawani or mga kasapi ng informal sector lalong-lalo na yung mga mahihirap na sakada.

Yung mga wage earners naman, tinanggal ko ang withholding tax ng minimum wage earners, ngunit ngayon sana ipasa ng Kongreso ang tuluyang tax exemption na makakaginhawa ng isang bilyong piso sa ating mga minimum wage earners.

Baon sa utang ang maraming manggagawa, kaya — alam ko baon sa mga salary loans at housing loans ng GSIS at SSS, baon pa sa mga penalty and surcharge — kaya magpapatawad ang GSIS at SSS sa penalty ng salary at housing loan sa halagang halos 12 billion pesos. Twelve billion pesos ba yon o 1.2 billion? Teka muna, tignan ko nga yung ano... ano ba yon, Pat, 12? Tama 12, okay.

At yung PAG-IBIG naman, marami na ang nakakaramdam na binabawasan na ng PAG-IBIG ang interest ng housing loans, ang total saving naman nito ay humahalagang 3.2 billion pesos.

Doon naman sa transportasyon dahil pag tumataas ang presyo ng langis sa buong mundo, unang-una baka tumaas ay ang transportasyon, kaya dapat maibsan ang gastusin sa transportasyon. Mayroon namang halos 1.4 billion pesos na galing sa Land Bank at DBP bilang pautang at sa energy savings ng pamahalaan na gagamitin sa mga shuttle bus ng mga kumpanya, grupo ng mga manggagawa kagaya ng ating mga tatlong malalaking organisasyon na narito sa entablado at empleyado ng gobyerno, lalo na yung nagpapatakbo sa CNG o ibang mga clean air fuel.

Nakausap ko nga si President Rey David ng DBP at si President Gilda Pico ng Land Bank. In fact, si Gilda, marami siyang mga binigay na scheme sa akin, either straight pahiram or leasing or gagawa ng arrangement sa malalaking bus transportation company para sila ang maghahawak ng mga gastos ng maintenance kaya hinihiling ko kay Gilda, kung nanonood siya ngayon, mag-press conference siya para mapaliwanag yung iba't-ibang scheme kung papano mapondohan ng Land Bank itong shuttle buses using clean air para sa ating mga manggagawa.

Yung binanggit ko nung umpisa, yung competitiveness at competence ng ating manggagawa. Our knowledge economy is on a roll. Yung sinabi doon sa mensahe ng mga manggagawa tungkol sa mismatch, ang daming demand sa knowledge economy. Kaya sinasabi ko sa mga batang papasok sa college ngayon, baka sa halip na mag-aral kayo ng business management, baka entrepreneurship at saka sa halip na mag-aral kayo ng mass communication, baka english kasi doon ang livelihood, doon ang trabaho. At hindi lamang yon, sa hunyo, ayon kay Boboy Syjuco, magsisimula na yung ladderization kung saan puwede kang mag-aral sa voctech schools for the first two years or one year o ano ba yon na pag-aaralan mo o six months, tapos yung pinag-aralan mo doon ay make-credit sa college degree pagkatapos. This coming June that program would start.

In the meantime, dahil ang dami-daming demand for knowledge workers, 100 thousand jobs are available in the call centers and business process outsourcing, naglaan tayo ng 500 million pesos. Yon ang kanilang seremonya natin kanina, yon ay simbolo nung ating 500 million pesos para sa training ng scholarship para sa magtrabaho sa call center, medical at legal transcription, animation, software development at iba pang mga skills na sinasakop sa tinatawag nating knowledge economy. Ito ay simula itong araw na ito, itong scholarship program na ito, itong mga nagpunta dito ay halimbawa lamang ng unang sampung libo sa 100,000 na available itong scholarship na ito at itong araw na ito, habang nagbigay tayo ng scholarship vouchers ngayon, meron ding scholarship vouchers na ipapamahagi sa Clark, di ba? Sa Baguio, sa Taguig, sa Legaspi, sa Cebu, sa Iloilo at sa Davao — 500 million pesos.

And so, let me just say that our administration has paid keen attention to the welfare of labor since day one.

Call centers and BPO, less than 2,000 when we started, now 125,000. And from the message of Attorney Mendoza, from four million unemployed when we started, three million now and we will work harder to reduce that even more.

Thank you for your message and thank you for the expression of your aspirations.

I make a point to listen to the people's needs everyday while as the message also implied, our destabilizers listen to the call of self-interest and endless strife. Therefore, to our destabilizers, I say: "Leave the people to their work and let the president do her job." To our destabilizers, I say: "Stop the noise and start to serve."

At gusto kong ulitin at pakibahagi doon sa mensahe na binigay ng mga manggagawa sa pamamagitan ng binasang ulat ni Ginoong Villaviza, magsama-sama tayo, magtrabaho tayo para naman magkaroon ng disentang trabaho ang bawat Pilipino.

Mabuhay ang dakilang manggagawang Pilipino!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Inauguration of the CHEMREZ bio-diesel plant

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Inauguration of the CHEMREZ bio-diesel plant

[Delivered at #65 Industria St., Bagumbayan, Libis, Quezon City, May 3, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Lotilla of Energy.

I'd like to greet, of course, the Lao family and the Chemrez family. Congratulations to all of you! we have some VIPs with us today from the government, we have two congressmen: Congressman Louie Villafuerte whose coconuts in Camarines Sur will feed CHEMREZ; we have Congressman Firmalo of Romblon. If this is the first coco bio-diesel plant, Romblon has its little second bio-diesel plant as well; and of course we have Mayor Sonny Belmonte. I'd like to take this opportunity to thank him for his very successful mega jobs fair last May 1st; other officials of the government and of CHEMREZ; guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Itong bio-diesel plant ng CHEMREZ ay nagsimula mga dalawang taon nakaraan. At noong panahong yon inilagay ng Lao family yung kanilang pamuhunan dito bilang sagot sa ating hiling na magkaroon ng clean air. Ngayon pagkatapos ng dalawang taon, dalawa ang pangangailangang sinasagot nila — clean air and alternative, more efficient and therefore cheaper fuel. Kaya importanteng panahon itong araw na ito, binubuksan natin itong pabrikang ito sa kalagitnaan ng ating energy-independence agenda. Isa sa limang pinakaimportanteng bahagi ng ating Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan.

Noong isang taon, limang porsiyento ang pag-angat ng ating ekonomiya. Pero hindi tayo nagtaas ng importation ng oil products ng limang porsiyento. In fact, bumaba ang ating consumption ng imported oil products ng walong porsiyento, at bakit? Bakit habang umaangat ang ating ekonomiya nabababa natin ang konsumo ng imported oil products? Dahil sa ating alternative fuel programs lalo na ngayon na bukas na ang CHEMREZ bio-diesel plant.

Itong mga istratohiyang ito ay nasa kalagitnaan ng ating energy-independence agenda. Ang gusto natin, ayon sa ating mga economic planners, sila Popo Lotilla, na by 2010, 60 percent self-sufficient na tayo sana sa enerhiya. Itong coco bio-diesel ito isa sa mga malalaking potential sa ating pagbaba ng presyo ng transportasyon per kilometer. Kaya masaya si Len Bautista, yung chairman ng LTFRB na narito rin ngayon.

How does this reduce the cost of transport? By adding one liter of coco bio-diesel — ang brand name ninyo ay bio-active — by adding one liter of bio-active to every one hundred liters of diesel, we reduce the cost per kilometer of transportation. At noong araw sa mga soft opening nga mayroon na nga itong supply na ito, nag-supply na sila. In fact, pre-blended pa nga sa ilang independent fuel stations. At pabalik-balik yung mga customers nung mga independent stations na yon dahil talagang naramdaman ng mga customers na nabawasan ang kanilang gastos per kilometer.

Iyung malalaki naman na mga oil majors habang hindi pa nila ginagawa yung kanilang planta para mag pre-blend bukas naman sila na yung kanilang mga consumer shelves ay kakarga ng bio-active para kung ikaw ay motorist at nagkarga ka ng iyong diesel sa isang major station na hindi pa naggagawa ng pre-blended puwede kang bumili ng mga botelya ng bio-active doon sa kanilang shelves para ikaw na magdagdag sa iyong fuel tank. Kasi kilala ko ito bilang CHEMREZ, pero I suppose ang produkto nila mas maganda iyung bio-active keysa sa CHEMREZ. Pero yung CHEMREZ ay ang unang-unang continuous bio-diesel plant sa Asia. Tinanong ko nga kay Ginoong Lao ano ang ibig sabihin ng continuous, technical term noon. Pero to a layman ang ibig sabihin noon consistent ang quality, consistent ang quality. So very scientific, very high-end. At ako ay nasisiyahan na itong produktong ito hindi lamang para sa Pilipinas. Kailangang-kailangan natin para sa Pilipinas, pero kailangang-kailangan natin ang mga dolyar at sila ay tumutulong dito. Other countries including first-world markets have expressed confidence in our local bio-diesel and have been importing this fuel from the Philippines.

I want to congratulate CHEMREZ, because we are now exporting bio-diesel to Japan and Germany. Eh itong mga bansang ito napakataas ng kanilang standards. Naaalala ko noong ako ay nasa... Nagpapatakbo ng garments industry, kahit na maganda ang damit kung yung stitches ay hindi pareho yung kulay sa hemline ire-reject na. Ganun kataas ang kanilang quality standards at sila ay bumibili ng coco bio-diesel dito sa CHEMREZ. Congratulations!

And I'm very glad that aside from Japan and Germany, the Americans, the Australians and the Chinese have also expressed confidence in our bio-diesel. The advent of bio-diesel from coconut is a very big boost to our coconut industry. That's why Louie Villafuerte who comes from a very big coconut province is here. This industry provides jobs and livelihood to some 20 million Filipinos including countless poor families. At kung ang pag-uusapan natin itong coconut, noong nagsimula ako ng aking pagka-pangulo, magkano yung coconut natin? Two pesos yung ating kopra noon, ngayon 20 pesos na.

Because we have been able to develop the market, coconut is now a seller's market, not a buyer's market in the Philippines. Iyung virgin coconut oil, the market is practically infinite compared to our supply. Iyung coco wire, yung mga ginagamit nila ngayon para sa flood control, sa slope protection sa China, halos binibili nila ay ang coco wire sa Pilipinas. Kaya itong coco bio-diesel isa pang ready market para sa ating coconut. Kaya sa ating coconut industry hindi na market ang ating problema, ang ating problema ay supply at saka siyempre yung hanapbuhay o yung pangkabuhayan ng ating mga magnyuniyog.

Kaya kahapon nandoon si Popo Lotilla sa ating Cabinet meeting. At nagkaroon ng desisyon na doon sa agri-agra funds — hindi ba ito yung kinakailangan na dapat yung agri-agra funds natin yung dapat ginagamit para sa agriculture at saka sa land reform ng mga bangko ay dapat isang bilyon ay gamitin para sa pagpa-unlad ng isang milyong hektarya ng lupa na nasa ilalim ng ating coconut trees para sa agri-business. Halimbawa, Louie, puwedeng gawin dito dagdag na coconut trees o halimbawa, puwedeng gamitin ito na magtayo ng coco wire factory o magamit ito para sa laboratoryo para consistent ang supply... Ang quality ng ating mga virgin coconut oil. At puwede magamit ito siguro sa mga logistics para yung pagpadala ng niyog sa CHEMREZ o yung mga suportang kailangan pa ng maliit na industriya ng coco bio-diesel doon sa Romblon ay matulungan na umangat at yung mga yon ay ito ang mga paggagastusan ng one billion pesos ng agri-agra funds to develop one million hectares of land under the coconut trees for agri-business.

Kaya maraming salamat, CHEMREZ. una sa lahat dahil pumasok kayo para maging malinis ang ating himpapawid. Pangalawa, dahil tumutulong kayo na maging efficient ang ating transportasyon — more mileage per peso, therefore, more economical. At pangatlo, dahil tumutulong kayo sa ating mga mahihirap na mga pamayanan doon sa mga coconut-producing communities.

So, for these three services that you are giving, pang-apat pa yung export ng coco bio-diesel, maraming salamat sa CHEMREZ at mabuhay ang bio-active!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Multi-Stakeholder Conference on the State of Philippine Disability Movement and Challenges

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Multi-Stakeholder Conference on the State of Philippine Disability Movement and Challenges

[Delivered at the Manila Bay Ballroom, Bayview Park Hotel Roxas Blvd. cor. U.N. Ave., Metro Manila, May 4, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Esperanza Cabral.

President Goquiolay, Mr. Arsenio, Ambassador Beckingham, Mr. Mohammed, Miss Bamard, Kate Fermin, my old friend, and all of those who care for the persons with disabilities, and the persons with disabilities who are here with us today.

Thank you very much for this opportunity of being with you. And as we heard earlier, during my experience as the secretary of DSWD and as president, I have tried my best to give a special opportunity for persons with disabilities.

Persons with disabilities in the Philippines are our partners in nation building, and I have issued all those things I issued because I believe that you have... You should have full access both to educational opportunities and economic empowerment. And I would like to use this opportunity to congratulate the Philippine Council of Cheshire Homes for the Disabled for organizing this conference.

For our physically and mentally challenged men, women and children, you are an instrument of human dignity and self-sufficiency in a caring environment. And I would like to take this opportunity also to thank and commend the many organizations and institutions caring for persons with disabilities that I came across when I was secretary of social welfare and development.

The concerns of persons with disabilities have to be addressed not only by their own families but by the whole community as well. Disabled people are disproportionately found among the poorest of the poor in all parts of the world, and the disabled tend to be chronically poor. That's a very sad vicious cycle. Which is one reason why I declared the period 2003 to 2012 to be the Philippine Decade for Persons with Disabilities, so that we can use that time, a whole decade, not only to work on immediate relief for persons with disabilities but also for their longer term empowerment. The Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan for 2004 to 2010 calls for expanded capacity-building programs for persons with disabilities.

In that chapter of the Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan, there is a portion — and in fact when Espie Cabral had her job interview, she said, “What do you expect me to do?” And I told her, “Espie, I took the liberty of reproducing that portion of the Philippine Medium-Term Development Plan that relates to your work as secretary of social welfare and development.” — there is a portion of course about microfinance empowering the very poor. Others have portion about empowerment, political empowerment which is the basis of the KALAHI, the CIDSS. But I also told her that if we're going to care about the more vulnerable sectors of our society, we work on strengthening the five fingers: the children, the most disadvantage among children including street children, orphans and so on. And then the youth, the most disadvantage among the youth, out-of-school youth and also the youths that are vulnerable to drugs and so on. And then the disadvantage among women, meaning the battered women or those women who've ended up in socially undesirable occupations and so on. And then the persons with disabilities and the older persons. The more disadvantage of the older persons.

So the persons with disabilities are one of the five fingers we call that are to be specially cared for by the Department of Social Welfare and Development and our whole government, in fact, at large. Because as I said earlier, there is that vicious cycle of disability and poverty. This vicious cycle must be broken and focus must be placed on ability rather than disability.

And I am glad to be able to meet you today because now I can face you with an increase in revenues through new taxes and savings from the debt service from the fiscal reforms we have implemented. Now, we're able to make targeted investments in job creation.

You know, in the last two days, our stock market jumped up by 70 points and we have been able to cross the twenty-three hundred barrier. Our peso strengthen again to 51.34 something and our bond prices have improved again which means we're paying lower interest payments because of the confidence in our economy. And this lower interest payments results in freed money that we can spend on education, better health coverage, infrastructure, especially job creation which is what our persons with disabilities need more opportunities for meaningful work.

Our job creation thrusts include high-skilled jobs in I.C.T., as well as tourism, including hotels and restaurants. Why do I mention these two things? Because when I was still in DSWD, I remember that many of the wheelchair-bound were very welcome additions to the labor force of telephone companies or telephone operators in companies because you don't need to be mobile to be a good telephone operator. Why not call centers, if you can be a good telephone operator, as long as you have a good english speaking skill. And if you don't have that, you can have additional training for that. But if you can be a good telephone operator, why can't you be a good call center agent with that very, very high paying job.

So I don't see why those who were welcome in the telephone operator occupation should not have the same opportunities in call centers and business process outsourcing. You don't need to be mobile to do the accounting of some firm that is in England or in the United States right here.

And while we were speaking of I.C.T., there's the other boom that we are enjoying now — marami ang inyong occupancy? — the boom in tourism where February which was not a peak season experience a ninety percent occupancy rate in our hotels. And eighty-five percent is considered full occupancy.

Well, let me go back to what I observed when I was also in DSWD. The hearing impaired were a very, very welcome workforce in fastfood chain and also again in doing computer work. So I don't see why they cannot be given more opportunities now that the restaurants are booming, especially the ones catering to tourists, and also we continue to have bigger opportunities in I.C.T. so Kate Fermin is coaching me on what I should remember when I was in DSWD.

I mentioned these specific opportunities so that we can with our hope, at least, we have a countervailing, a countervailing feeling to the problem we are facing, demands... The demands for the jobs and the problem we are facing which demands that we work hand in hand to end the vicious cycle of disability and poverty. And I hope this one-day event can clearly define the challenges and opportunities ahead of us.

For instance, it's been... I thank... I'm very grateful that you remember that I said that the government should try to spend one percent of its budget on empowering persons with disabilities. And speaking of call centers, I have just in fact authorized even mandated that TESDA, that they should allocate 500 million pesos for call center finishing schools scholarship. Now, what's one percent of 500 million pesos? That's five million pesos. So I'll ask Espie Cabral to make sure that of that scholarship fund of TESDA for 500 million pesos for call center finishing schools, five million of these scholarships should be for our wheelchair-bound persons with disabilities.

The month of May is the month of labor, and almost everyday we are having job fairs. May 1st, the City of Quezon, Quezon City kicked it off with job fairs with 30,000 jobs available. Prior to that, a few weeks before that, there was a tourism jobs fair with oh! 50,000 jobs available I think. And yesterday, I opened another jobs fair with 70,000 jobs available. I mentioned about tourism itself having very, very many jobs available. So I called up Artie Yap, my new PMS head, who had been in charge of coordinating all efforts on job creation. And I told him, because he was the one who orchestrated yesterday's jobs fair. I told him, "Artie, for this month of May since we're having jobs fairs almost every day, I want you to organize a jobs fair especially for the hearing impaired and other persons with disabilities, 'cause there's so many job opportunities available for them."

So we have those two things: the call centers scholarships and the jobs fairs that we would like to dedicate especially to our persons with disabilities. And this is one of the things that Espie Cabral in the DSWD can work out together with other opportunities before she gets very busy with the calamities once the rainy season comes over. So the month of May is the month for labor but it should also be the month of greater economic power for our persons with disabilities.

Maraming salamat at mabuhay kayong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo on PWDs as partners in Nation Building

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On PWDs as partners in Nation Building

[Delivered at the Bayview Park Hotel Roxas Blvd., Manila, May 4 2006]

PWDs: PARTNERS IN NATION BUILDING

Persons with disabilities in the Philippines are our partners in nation building, and I have issued all those things I issued because I believe that you have... You should have full access both to educational opportunities and economic empowerment. Speech of President Arroyo during a Meeting with the Council of Saudi Chamber of Commerce and Industry
Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a Meeting with the Council of Saudi Chamber of Commerce and Industry

[Delivered at the Chamber of Commerce Bldg. Riyadh, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, May 8, 2006]

Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

I'd like to thank Minister of Social Affairs for having accompanied me throughout my stay since yesterday; and Ambassador Wali, I'd like to thank you for making us know the different opportunities that we can point out during our visit here; and I'd like to greet also the chairman of the Saudi-Philippine Business Council, Mr. Waleed Al Swaidan, and thank you for the friendship that you have shown the Philippines and also our Filipino workers; officials and members of the Saudi-Philippine Business Council; members of the government and business delegations of the Philippines' state visit to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, ladies and gentlemen.

I'm deeply honored in making this state visit to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, and I thank everyone from His Majesty the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques to everybody else concerned for your warm welcome.

Our historical ties are strong, steady and lasting. Historical ties, indeed, when the Governor of Riyadh went to visit the Philippines in 1999, he noticed how much of Philippine customs, cultures and traditions had origins in the culture of the Middle East. And in more recent times, Saudi Arabia has stood by the side of the Philippines for peace and development. And as you have said, more than a million Filipinos help build your economy right here in Saudi Arabia. In every vital activity in this land — producing oil, building cities, laying out roads and power lines, taking care of the health of the people — Filipinos are there.

The relationship is both reciprocal and synergistic. And you who are here today represent the companies, agencies and individuals that contribute to our successful and mutually beneficial ties and I thank you for organizing this meeting today.

Well, the most obvious link between our two countries today, the most visible link is the great Filipino worker. Filipino workers have been in the kingdom for more than 30 years now and therefore you know the quality of our great Filipino worker. Therefore we hope that the expansion, ongoing, of the various sectors of the Saudi economy, especially the mega infrastructures in the King Abdullah economic city will provide outsourcing opportunities for Philippine corporations.

I remember the first petrochemical boom in the early 1970s, that was the time when the first big inflow of Filipino workers came to Saudi Arabia. And at that time they came through the employment in Philippine companies who were doing construction and engineering work in that petrochemical boom. Since then, the number of Filipinos has increased but the bulk of them now, the vast majority are now hired directly by Saudi companies. And however, we hope that with this bigger boom that is coming up with King Abdullah economic city — a boom that is much bigger than the petrodollar boom of 1974 — once again the companies in the Philippines will be able to provide outsourcing services to that development in the fields of engineering, construction and engineering-related I.T. enabled services.

I am very glad that we had that meeting just before this in the Saudi General Investment Authority, and there we saw the magnitude of this development of the King Abdullah economic city. Our business delegation was here meeting with you so they were not with me and I'd like to tell them that that economic city is bigger than some of the neighboring countries of Saudi Arabia. It's in ten years time it will provide a trillion dollars worth of economic activities. But we don't have to wait ten years because we have the capability and we can experience... We know that we are the preferred source of human resources here in Saudi Arabia. So we are very sure that our companies will be able to find vastly bigger opportunities in this new petrodollar boom than we even saw in 1974, which was already quite substantial.

You mentioned, Mr. Chairman, about the WTO, and I'd like to take this opportunity to congratulate you on your accession to the WTO last December 2005 after more than a decade of difficult negotiations. Being in the world trade organization, we can share a common stand for a fair and level playing field in global trade and investment. And with your membership in the WTO, the Philippines hopes to have a more fruitful participation — though our participation is already very fruitful with our 1.2 million Filipinos here — but we hope to continue to have an even more fruitful participation in the continuing and increasing affluence of your kingdom. This time not just the workers but also our products and services. In fact, you have rightly pointed out that Saudi sells to the Philippines 20 times more than the Philippine sells to Saudi. And for this reason, to even it up a little bit more, I shall assign a Trade Attache to Saudi Arabia. I've already given that instruction to Secretary of Trade and Industry.

I was telling my colleagues in the Philippines that really we should export more to Saudi Arabia because our 1.2 million workers alone already constitute a major market for Philippine garments, fresh and processed foods, marine products, tropical fruits, especially bananas and pineapples. But Minister of Social Affairs said, "yes, why not?" But those very goods are also goods that the Saudi will buy. So we have a critical mass for a minimum export market and it is much more than that because whatever the Filipinos buy the Saudis will also like to buy. And so we are sure that these products will be welcome not only to our Filipinos but also the Saudi Arabian consumers.

And I believe that the Saudi Arabian consumers will also welcome consumer manufactures from the Philippines like furniture and furnishings. They're very world class, very sophisticated, always sold out in all of the trade missions that we have anywhere, even beauty products and consumer electronics. And it's a great time for Saudi to enter the WTO because while — and we are very appreciative of your empathy for us — while world prices of oil are at a historic high, there is much that Saudi can do in helping the rest of the world through increased trade.

And so in this time of very volatile oil prices, we invite the Saudi business community through you the council of Saudi chambers, to recycle its petrodollars and profit from the oil trade in the form of direct investments to low-income and middle-income oil importing countries — the Philippines is a middle-income, low-importing country — particularly the Philippines especially because Filipino workers are making a valuable contribution to the economy of Saudi Arabia. And you have already had your meetings with our Filipino business delegation. I would just like to stress that we invite your investments to the Philippines which is at the verge of economic take off.

Our economic momentum is steady despite the increase in world oil prices. Our fiscal deficit management is three years ahead of the target set by our medium-term Philippine development plan. The Philippine peso has outperformed many Asian currencies in the past year. And exports are expected to grow double digit this year, more of it I hope to Saudi Arabia.

As far as investments are concerned, again, I believe you have talked already about some prospects and specific portfolios with our private business community. But I would just like to stress that we invite Saudi investments into our energy, tourism, mining, information and communication technology, and agricultural sectors. Tourism and I.C.T. because we are promoting fast growing industries where high-value jobs are most plentiful and which can use our most competitive resource that you are very familiar with — the great Filipino worker, so well known in the Saudi business community. You have admired them, you have expressed your appreciation of them.

I'd like to let you now that we churned out 40,000 knowledge workers every year such as engineers and I.T. professionals. Some of them come to Saudi, many of them come to Saudi, some of them are awaiting your investments in the Philippines. Tourism because we not only have the competent and warm and friendly people, we have the natural wonders that are very attractive to investments. And most of our hotels and resorts now are always fully-booked, so we can certainly use more rooms, more facilities, more hotels, more resorts from Saudi investments.

Mining, because the Philippines total mineral reserves are valued at one trillion U.S. dollars. The fifth largest mineral deposits in the world. The fifth biggest in gold. The ninth biggest in copper and the 20 percent of the world's nickel.

Energy, of course, because Saudi Arabia is the energy giant of the world and we hope you can among other investments put up oil refining facilities in Mindanao, in Southern Philippines, where half of our ten million Muslims live. Because such a refinery to be located in Mindanao can serve not only the Philippines but also the American west coast market and Eastern Indonesia which is closer to Mindanao than to the Indonesian oil fields of Aceh.

Agriculture, because Mindanao where five million of our ten million Muslims live is the food basket of the entire Philippines. And we want to raise its production, processing and logistical capacities including the Halal food industry that we hope we can also service the whole Muslim world with including Saudi Arabia. And as Donald Dee, the president of the Philippine Chamber mentioned to me earlier, you also had some very promising talks regarding the investment in our Al Amanah Bank, our Islamic bank.

So these are so many things that we can do together, and I thank you for the occasion to address your esteemed council. The Philippine delegation and I hope to bring back to our country not only the fruits of economic cooperation on this visit but also memories of your hospitality, your generosity, your way of life, your dreams and aspirations as a great kingdom moving forward in the new millennium and we hope to be part of that moving forward.

Thank you.

During a Meeting with the Filipino Community in Riyadh

[Delivered at the Philippine Embassy grounds, Diplomatic Quarters, Riyadh, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, May 8, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas.

At hayaan niyong batiin ko yung ibat-ibang mga nasa entablado na kasama ko sa ating delegasyon dito sa ating state visit: una sa tanan, ang atong senadora, Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago. Akon pag abi-abi sa iyang mga kasimanwa diri sa Saudi Arabia, maayong gab-i sa inyo nga tanan.

And from the House of Representatives: our congressman from the First District of Lanao Del Norte, Congressman Tikbong Badelles. Sa iyang mga kaigsuonan nga Bisaya, maayong gabii kaninyong tanan; Congressman from Lanao Del Sur, Congressman Benasing Macarambon. And to his Pagariya, Assalamu Alaikum!; Congressman from the Second District of Lanao Del Norte, Congressman Abdullah Dimaporo; Congressman mula sa Mandaluyong, Congressman Benhur Abalos; ing kanakung Cabalen, Congresswoman Anna York Bondoc from Pampanga. And to our Cabalens, mayap a bengi quecongan.

I would like to greet also our governors who are here: first of all, the governor of the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao, Governor Zaldy Ampatuan; governor from the province of Lanao Del Norte, Governor Angging Dimaporo; governor of the province of Antique, Governor Sally Perez.

We have a whole number of Cabinet members with us: Secretary Peter Favila of Trade and Industry; Secretary Popo Lotilla of Energy; Press Secretary Toting Bunye; you already met earlier Secretary Cerge Remonde, the chairman of our broadcast channels, television channels; the head of my Presidential Adviser for the Peace Process, Jess Dureza; our Acting Secretary of Land Reform, Nasser Pangandaman; our chairman of the TESDA, Chairman Boboy Syjuco; nandito rin ang nag-aalaga sa marami sa mga overseas Filipinos dito, ang namumuno natin ng OWWA, si Nitoy Roque; at yung nagbigay ng welcome sa akin, pero tayo dapat mag welcome sa kanya, ang parating na bagong Ambassador natin sa Saudi Arabia, kung pumasa siya sa committee ni Senator Santiago sa Commission on Appointments, si Ambassador Tony Villamor.

Nandito rin ang ating mga officials ng Foreign Affairs sa pamumuno ni dating Ambassador ninyo dito, si Paeng Seguis at saka si... Ang nag-aalaga sa atin kung sakali magkaroon ng panganib, si Ambassador Roy Cimat at lahat ng mga officials ng DFA. Nandito rin ang ating business delegation mula sa Pilipinas. Hindi ko na babanggitin lahat ng pangalan nila pero can we ask them to stand and be acknowledged. Mga kasapi ng ating embahada, mga lider ng pamayanang Pilipino dito sa Saudi Arabia at sa Riyadh, mga kababayan, magandang gabi sa inyong lahat.

At salamat sa inyong paghintay sa akin at gaya nang alam ninyo ako ay napatungo dito sa Saudi Arabia bilang state visitor ng dakilang hari, yung Custodian of the Two Mosques.

I was welcomed with warmth and generous hospitality which has the mark of the deep importance given by Saudi Arabia to the Philippines.

The Kingdom has a clout in the world that will stretch forward through the millennium, at kayong higit na isang milyong Pilipino sa kaharian, malaki ang kontribusyon niyo sa impluwensya ng Saudi Arabia sa buong mundo.

Sa aking pakikipagkuwento sa dakilang hari ng Saudi Arabia at ibang mga official ng kanilang pamahalaan lagi kong pinagmamalaki ang dakilang manggagawang Pilipino, at pati sila ipinagmamalaki kayo. Masayang-masaya sila sa magandang trabaho ng mga Pilipino dito sa Saudi.

Filipino workers play a major role in the economic and infrastructure development of the Kingdom. In every vital activity in this land-producing oil — saan dito yung mga nagtatrabaho natin sa mga oil industry? Salamat sa inyo — building cities — saan yung mga nasa construction industry natin? Thank you — laying out roads and power lines, taking care of the health of our people — ‘to yung mga nakaputi dito — nandiyan ang mga Pilipino.

Naalala ko kung papano nagsimula itong OFW phenomenon dito sa Saudi Arabia. Naalala ko nangyari yon nung unang petrodollar boom nung 1974, maraming Pilipinong construction company na kasali doon sa boom na yon kaya siyempre nagdala sila ng manggagawang Pilipino, nakita tuloy ang kagalingan ng Pilipino. Kaya pagkatapos noon dumami nang dumami hindi lang Philippine construction companies kung hindi na rin ibat-ibang mga kompaniya at ahensyang Arabo ay kumuha ng mga empleyadong Pilipino. Kaya isang milyon na kayo.

Our community here is the largest community of overseas contract workers. At kayo mga Filipino ngayon ang isa sa apat na pinakamalaking grupo ng OFW sa Saudi kasama ninyo yung mga taga-India, taga-Pakistan, taga-Ehipto. Ngunit ayon doon sa Cabinet in attendance na nag-aalaga sa akin sa lahat ng pinupuntahan ko, yung secretary of social welfare, ang kaibahan ng Pilipino doon sa ibang tatlo ay halos lahat ng Pilipino na narito, mga walong porsiyento nasa managerial at highly technical positions. At ayon naman doon sa mga negosyanteng kasama namin na mga negosyante nating Pilipino kaninang katanghalian, sabi nila, number one ang Pilipino sa kagalingan at kabaitan.

Kung merong petrodollar boom nung 1974, ngayon may mas malaki pang petrodollar boom dahil sa bagong pagtataas na naman ng presyo ng langis, higit na boom ito kaysa nung 1974. At kung noon nagboom sila at malaking construction ang ginawa lalo na ngayon marami silang petrodollars. Isang pinanukala ko dito sa aking pagbisita ay magtayo sila ng refinery, oil refinery sa Mindanao para yung ating mahihirap doon ay magkaroon ng ginhawa. Pero bukod doon, dito mismo sa Saudi malaki ang pagdagdag na pagkakataon na naman dahil magtatayo sila ng limang economic zones dito sa Saudi Arabia simula sa King Abdullah Economic City. At bawat isang economic city na ito ay mas malaki pa kaysa sa mga karatig bansa sa katabi nila, buong bansa, mas malaki ang bawat isa dito sa economic zone na ito. Kaya kung ano ang nangyari nung 1974, mahigit pa sa times 5 ang magiging boom. At dahil pinakita ninyo ang inyong kagalingan itong nakaraang tatlungpung taon mula nung 1970s, sinabi nila, sinabi ng hepe ng Saudi General Investment Authority na ang Pilipino ang kanilang preferred human resource sa malaking ekspansiyong ito.

Nagpapasalamat sila sa inyo, nagpapasalamat din ako sa inyo sa inyong remittances sa ating bansa dahil sa inyo lumakas ng husto ang ating piso. Meron tayong real estate boom dahil bumibili kayo ng mga tahanan at apartment para sa inyong mga kamag-anak. Nahawa na rin ang stock market sa real estate boom. Kanina yung isang negosyante linapitan ako sabi, “Congratulations! Mrs. President.” Dahil sa Manila ang ating report itong araw na ito, monday, pinakamalaking pagtaas ng stock market sa kasaysayan ng buong Pilipinas. At kanina nga ang ganda ng balita mula sa mga negosyante dito sa Saudi Arabia. Gustung-gusto nila mag-invest sa ating bansa — energy, tourism, information technology, mining, yung agriculture — at bakit? Kasi nakita nila kung gaano kagaling kayo, sabi nila, there must be more where you come from. Gusto nilang mag-invest ngayon dahil sa inyo. At nasisiyahan tayo na dadami ang investments ng Saudi Arabia sa Pilipinas.

Saudi Arabia is an important priority of our government. The Philippine government has three major foreign policy concerns here in Saudi Arabia: first, of course, the welfare of the Filipino workers; second, finding relief for the oil crisis that is adversely affecting the world including the low and middle-income oil importing countries like the Philippines; and third, the ongoing peace process in Mindanao. Kaugnay ang Saudi Arabia sa ating peace process dahil tumutulong ang Saudi sa ating matatag na determinasyon na mahubog ng makatarungan at pangmatagalang kapayapaan sa Mindanao.

Sa aking foreign policy, merong walong punto. Pero hindi ko ikukuwento lahat sa inyo, dalawa lang ang babanggitin ko. Yung isa yung halaga ng mga bansang OIC gaya ng Saudi lalo na sa tulong ng ating peace process, at yung pangalawa ang pag-alaga sa ating mga Pilipino saan man sila naroroon. Kinikilala natin ang pangunahing papel ng dakilang manggagawang Pilipino sa kaharian dito. At tayo ay narito upang ipahayag kung gaano kaimportante ang makatarungang pagtrato sa inyo lalo na yung mga humaharap sa mga kaso sa mga korte ng Saudi.

And we would like to assure those few Filipinos who have a problem with the law and their families of full legal support. Kaya kanina kausap ko si Nitoy Roque, sabi ko dapat paggastusan ng OWWA, kumuha tayo ng Arabong abogado para sa mga problema ng ating manggagawang Pilipino.

Kagabi nagpasalamat ako sa kanilang dakilang hari dahil mula nung nag-umpisa itong taon hanggang ngayon, mga apat at kalahating buwan, nagpatawad na sila sa isang daang Pilipinong nasa preso. Tapos sabi ko kagabi, sana, sabi ko, pag-uwi ko pwede akong magdala ng limampu pa. Kanina yung pinanggalingan kong dinner ng Crown Prince, lumapit sa akin yung Minister of the Interior. Sabi niya, tungkol duon sa sinabi niyong sana meron pang limampung dagdag na pwedeng umuwi kasama ko or sabay ko, sabi niya, hindi kami nagpalaya ng limampu, nagpalaya kami ng 138.

Sa aking pagpunta dito sa Saudi Arabia talagang isang pakay ang nangingibabaw sa lahat at yan ay ang pagsiguro sa inyong kaligtasan at mabuting kalagayan dito sa bansang Saudi Arabia.

Gusto kong ipaalam sa inyong lahat na maaasahan niyo ang aking administrasyon — nandiyan si Pat, nandiyan si Nitoy, nandiyan ang ating mga embassy personnel — na patuloy na pangangalagaan ang inyong kapakanan. Anumang plano ang ating binabalak sa ikagiginhawa ng bansang Pilipinas o para sa ikabubuti ng ating Foreign Affairs, ang pangangailangan ninyo mga overseas Filipinos ay nararapat lamang bigyan pansin at halaga.

Ang agenda ng taong-bayang Pilipino, ang agenda ko dito sa state visit lahat para sa Causa ng malakas na ekonomiya, sa pamamahalang matatag ang presyo ng langis, pangmatagalang kapayapaan, at higit sa lahat ang kapakanan at kinabubuti ng ating manggagawa sa Pilipinas at sa ibayong dagat.

Kaya sa inyong lahat — pinakamalaking overseas workers community sa buong mundo ng Pilipino, pinakamagaling na mga overseas workers dito sa Saudi Arabia, pinakamagaling na Ambassador of Goodwill kaya naaliw mag-invest ang mga taga-Saudi sa ating bansa dahil nakita na nila ang advertisement na binibigay ninyo — sa inyong lahat, maraming maraming salamat sa inyong pagmamahal sa ating bansa at mabuhay kayong lahat!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Luncheon Meeting with the Jeddah Chamber of Commerce and Industry

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Luncheon Meeting with the Jeddah Chamber of Commerce and Industry

[Delivered at the Jeddah Chamber of Commerce Bldg. Jeddah, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, May 9, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Peter Favila, our Minister of Trade and Industry.

Mr. Chairman, members of the Philippine delegation, members of the Jeddah Business Community, ladies and gentlemen.

Assalaamu allaikum!

I'm deeply honored to be here today, and to be here in Saudi Arabia to begin with, making this state visit. We are here in Saudi Arabia and now in Jeddah in the name of peace and common prosperity and security of our respective nations and peoples.

I've come here to acknowledge and reminisce the years that Saudi Arabia and the Philippines have spent in a lasting partnership for peace and development.

Saudi Arabia has stood by the Philippines, the side of the Philippines for peace and development. And as you very well know, being the movers and shakers of the Saudi business community, more than one million overseas Filipinos help build your economy. The relationship is both reciprocal and synergistic.

And we are very happy about the accession of His Majesty, the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques. And also, we would like to congratulate the business community of Saudi Arabia on your accession last December to the World Trade Organization. This is one of the reasons why it's a good time for us to be here in Saudi Arabia. With your accession to the World Trade Organization, the Philippines feels inspired and buoyed by the challenge of more fruitful participation in the continued affluence of your kingdom and its people.

The Philippines sells consumer products to Saudi Arabia and buys a lot of oil. The trade is 20:1, the trade balance is 20 to 1 in favor of Saudi Arabia. And while Mr. Chairman has said that you would like to buy industrial goods from us, we thank you for giving us the tip, and the business community will look for the industrial goods that we should be selling to you. But we would also like to bring in more garments, more fresh and processed foods, more marine products, more tropical fruits — we're already selling a lot of bananas and pineapples to you — more consumer manufactures such as furniture and furnishings, beauty products and consumer electronics as well as products catering to the over one million Filipinos in the gulf states. One million here plus half a million in other gulf states because those Filipinos by themselves already constitute a major market.

You know the Filipino workers. They had been here in the kingdom for the past 30 years. You know the quality of the great Filipino worker. Many of you remember how they first came here during the first petrodollar boom of the 1970s. And now that there is a new petrodollar boom, we hope that the ongoing expansion of the various sectors of the Saudi economy, including oil and gas and basic infrastructure will again present an opportunity for the Philippine construction companies who were once very active in Saudi Arabia to be back particularly in the fields of engineering, construction and engineering-related I.T.-enabled services.

When the Philippine construction companies came in the last 30 years, you saw the quality of the great Filipino worker and therefore the Saudi companies kept hiring more and more Filipinos. But somehow the construction companies themselves sort of faded from the Saudi scene. Now with this great new developments in oil and gas, and then the new economic zones, I hope that this Philippine construction companies will be back again in Saudi Arabia. That is as far as activities here in Saudi Arabia are concerned.

But I know that even as you're investing very heavily in Saudi Arabia, you're also investing very heavily all over the world. And it is as just as it should be because in this day and age with the current volatility of world oil prices, we know that the Saudi business community has a lot... Has billions of petrodollars, billions of profits of trade, and we hope that you can recycle these billions of petrodollars and profits from the oil trade in the form of equity investments in middle-income and low-income oil importing countries.

The Philippines is a middle-income oil importing country. And we hope to be able to benefit from the investment of Saudi petrodollars in our country particularly because we like to think that the Filipinos, our great Filipino workers are contributing to the development, to the further development of the Saudi economy and making a valuable contribution to this economy. You see how good they are. There are more of them in the Philippines. So when you bring your petrodollars to invest in the Philippines, you will also be able to benefit from the competent and hardwork of the great Filipino workers.

Chairman talked about the business ethic and the business environment in both our countries. Both our countries are extremely business-friendly. And it is a good time, as it is a good time for me to come here because of the WTO and the petrodollars, it's also a good time for you to bring your investments to the Philippines.

The Philippines is on the verge of economic take off. Our momentum is steady despite the hikes in the oil prices because we had been able to work very hard in the last few years to manage our fiscal deficit as a result of which our target for balancing the budget is about two years ahead in accomplishment, two years ahead of our medium-term Philippine development plan. And as a result of that the Philippine peso and the Philippine Stock Exchange are outperforming most Asian currencies and markets. In fact yesterday, our businessmen gave me the good news that yesterday's stock market increase in the Philippines was the biggest single day increase in the whole history of our country.

So, we are a country poised to absorb Saudi investments. Where? First of all, you are an energy power, so in our energy; second, I've seen great interest in our tourism industry; and then there is mining, information technology, agriculture, and banking and finance.

We are promoting fast-growing industries where high-value jobs are most plentiful and which can use our most competitive resource, a resource you are very familiar with, the great Filipino worker. And these resources are very competitive in industries such as information technology and tourism, and this is the reason why we are a very attractive investment site today for information technology and tourism.

Opportunities also lie in the energy sector, particularly we hope that there will be Saudi investment in an oil refinery in Mindanao in Southern Philippines, where half of our ten million Muslims live. Our government formally invited ARAMCO in December of 2005 to set up this oil refinery in Mindanao for the American west coast market as well as for the East Indonesian market. Because East Indonesia is closer to Mindanao than it is to the Indonesian oil fields of Aceh.

The mining sector is also open for business. The country's total mineral reserves are valued at one trillion dollars making us — with the fifth biggest mineral deposits in the world — number five in gold, number nine in copper, and 20 percent of the world's nickel deposits.

We also invite Saudi Arabia to explore build-operate-transfer projects, particularly those that would raise the production, processing and logistical capacities of Mindanao's agricultural industries, especially the Halal food industry. And we've talked earlier about tourism because the Philippine tourism industry is just bursting at the seams. Our tourism is booming. We don't have enough hotel rooms and resort rooms anymore. So, we hope you can come and help us put that up.

We talked about where the tourism industry should be located or the investments with eight major destinations identified for us by a study done by McKinsey and company where tourists like to go and where surely investments in tourism facilities will be very attractive. One of these areas is in Clark-Subic, the Clark-Subic economic corridor. And I see that some of you already have your brochures on the Clark-Subic area as a gateway.

Banking, I mentioned because we have in our country an Islamic bank, the Al Amanah Bank. But inasmuch as we recognize that we are not so experienced in Islamic banking, we're very realistic about it and we want to privatize our Al Amanah Bank, and we invite bankers from Saudi Arabia to take a look at that opportunity.

Indeed, with all of these various opportunities, both with Saudi investments in the Philippines, with Philippine companies coming here to participate in your construction and oil boom, with our overseas Filipinos continuing to help the Saudi economy and to help the Philippine economy through your Saudi investments, I would like to say that the Philippines is privileged to be your companion in a journey toward greater peace and prosperity for the whole world including the middle east and southeast Asia.

Today is our third day in Saudi Arabia. And I am very happy to be here in Jeddah where the heart of commerce and industry is.

And tomorrow, when we go back to the Philippines after a trip to the eastern province, I know that we will bring back memories of your hospitality and generosity. But we will bring back memories of your way of life. So many aspects of Arabic culture have found their way into Philippine culture, and that is why we who are cultural brothers or maybe I should call the Philippines your cultural grandchild, should have more economic ties with each others.

We will bring back to the Philippines your dreams and aspirations. The King Abdullah economic city is a great symbol of your dreams and aspirations for continued economic leadership well into the new millennium. And we will bring back with us those memories not only the opportunities that those memories will bring with us but also the memories of a great kingdom moving forward in the new millennium.

As we say in the Philippines, mabuhay ang Saudi Arabia! Mabuhay ang Jeddah! Long live Saudi Arabia! Long live Jeddah! Long live the ties between the Philippines and Saudi Arabia!

Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during a Meeting with the Filipino Community in Dammam

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During a Meeting with the Filipino Community in Dammam

[Delivered at the Ay-Mawad Ballroom, Le Meridien Hotel, Al-Khobar Dammam, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, May 9, 2006]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Naririnig ba ninyo ako? Okay. Oo, puwede na kayong umupo.

Hayaan ho niyo akong magsimula sa paraan na ipakilala yung aking mga kasama dito sa entablado na narito lahat para magbisita sa inyo. Unang-una yung superstar ng senado, si Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago; meron tayong limang congressman na kasama ngayong gabi: mula sa Lanao, si Congressman Tikbong Badelles, si Congressman Jun Macarambon, si Congressman Bobby Dimaporo; mula sa Mandaluyong, si Congressman Benhur Abalos; manibat qing probinsya ko in Pampanga, ing Congresswoman Anna York Bondoc.

Nandito rin ang gobernador ng Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao, Governor Zaldy Ampatuan. Ay! Wala siya. Hindi na siya sumama sa atin dito? Kasi nakikipag-meeting siya sa Organization of the Islamic Conference kaya hindi nakahabol. Ngunit meron naman tayong dalawang provincial governors: Gobernadora ng Lanao del Norte, si Angging Dimaporo; Gobernadora ng Antique, si Sally Perez.

Mula sa Cabinet: nandito ang ating Secretary of Trade and Industry, Peter Favila; nakilala na ninyo si Pat Sto. Tomas, hindi ko na papakilala; ang ating Secretary naman ng Energy, si Popo Lotilla; Press Secretary, si Toting Bunye; uy! Nasaan si Toting? Inaayos niya yung ating coverage kasi Press Secretary; ang chairman ng National Broadcasting Network, si Secretary Cerge Remonde. Wala rin? Ay! Mukhang yung mga media natin ay inaayos yung ating coverage. Okay, wala rin siya dito; ang ating Presidential Adviser for the Peace Process, Jess Dureza. Ay nagkasama yung tatlo, so siguro on the way pa sila.

Nandito rin yung ating special envoy sa ating preparedness team for the Middle East, si Ambassador Roy Cimat; we have with us yung nag-aalaga sa inyo, tumutulong kay Pat Sto. Tomas, ang namumuno ng OWWA, si Nitoy Roque; and virtually a member of the Philippine community, he has done some... Prepared some very good meetings for the members of our party, the Saudi ambassador to the Philippines, Ambassador Wali; at kanina yung kanyang maiden appearance, nagdiskurso sa inyo, kung siya ay papasa sa komite ni Senator Miriam Santiago sa Commission on Appointments, siya ang magiging susunod na ambassador dito sa Saudi Arabia, si Ambassador Tony Villamor. Bakit siya ang napiling ambassador sa Saudi Arabia? Ayon kay Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas at yung ibang DFA officials na nagnominate sa kanya, kasi ang track record niya sa Hong Kong sa pag-alaga ng overseas Filipino workers ay napakaganda. So, aalagaan niya kayo.

Sa inyong lahat, mga kaibigan, magandang gabi. Karing cabaleng kong capampangan mayap a bengi no karing... Dagiti kakailyak ti bangir ni mamang ko, naimbag nga rabii yo amin. O nagado nga ilocano idtoy. O, saan si Paeng? Ayun! Sa kabila, yung dating ambassador ninyo, ambassador to Saudi Arabia dati, undersecretary ngayon ng foreign affairs, si Paeng Seguis. At kahit na wala na siya noon sa Saudi Arabia kapag may problema tayong OFW dito sa Middle East, kahit na pasko, valentine's day, kahit na walong buwan, nandito si Paeng Seguis sa Middle East para mag-alaga at magsagip sa inyo.

Nabanggit ko ang aking pagbabati sa inyo at... Oh, sabi ni Pat Sto. Tomas — sa aton mga kaigsuonan gikan sa Bisayas ug Mindanao, maayong gabii kaninyong tanan. Sa mga kasimanwa ni Senator Santiago, maayong gab-i sa inyo nga tanan. Meron bang mga bicolano dito? Dios marhay nga bangi sa indo gabos. To our muslim brothers, assalaamu alaikum pagariya — ang sarap naman ng inyong pagtanggap sa amin, maraming salamat. So warm.

Itong araw na ito nagising kami sa Riyadh, nananghalian sa Jeddah, naghapunan sa Shieba, at ngayon ang nightcap ang Filipino community dito sa Al-Khobar. Ang saya-saya.

When we arrived in Riyadh two days ago, we were welcomed with warmth and generous hospitality by no less than his majesty, the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques. A mark of the deep importance given by Saudi Arabia to the Philippines and you, the Filipinos in his kingdom.

The kingdom has a clout in the world that shall stretch forward to the millennium at ang higit na isang milyong Pilipinong narito sa kaharian ay may kontribusyon sa impluwensiyang ito. Kasi naman papano sila naging napakalaking oil power kung wala naman yung mga Pilipinong kagaya ng mga Pilipino sa eastern province na nagtratrabao sa kanilang oil and gas fields and related businesses.

Kaya naman sa aking pagkekuwento sa dakilang hari at ibang mataas na opisyal ng pamahalaan ng Saudi lagi kong ipinagmamalaki ang dakilang manggagawang Pilipino. Pero siguro aasahan naman niyo sa akin yon. Ang mas magandang balita ko sa inyo yung mga taga-Saudi pang opisyaales sila rin laging pinagmamalaki kayo. Kinikilala nila ang malaking papel ninyo sa pag-unlad ng ekonomiya at imprastruktura ng kaharian. Sa bawat importanteng gawain maging sa center sa Riyadh, sa west sa Jeddah, sa east dito sa Shieba at Al-Khobar, sa lahat ng gawaing importante dito, sino nagpro-produce ng oil? Mga manggagawang Pilipino. Doon sa Jumail City... Juvail, alam niyo kasi sino ang nagtayo? Pilipino rin. Yung paglatag ng mga kalsada, mga linya ng kuryente, sino nagtayo? Pilipino. Yung mga nag-aalaga ng kalusugan, yung nag medical mission diyaan kanina, sino ang pinaka well and demanded na mga nurses dito sa Saudi Arabia? Mga Pilipino.

Sino ang general manager ng Meridien Hotel sa Al-Khobar? Pilipino. Oh, Mr. Sandoval, please stand up and be recognized. Okey. Batang-bata pa si Mr. Sandoval hindi pa niya siguro... Hindi pa siguro siya panganak nung nagsimula itong phenomenon ng OFW dito. Pero ako panganak na ako noon kaya maikekuwento ko sa ilan sa inyo. Panahon noon nung unang petrodollar boom, 1974, dahil tinatayo yung mga oil fields — thank you, thank you. Uy! Salamat kaya tuloy nanalo ako dito sa Saudi nung nakaraang halalan, thank you. Wala pa kayo nung 1974, ano? Wala pa.

Noong 1974, yung unang mga pumunta dito mga company, construction company dahil may construction boom sa oil and gas fields sa mga bagong city. Pero siyempre Filipino construction company, dala ang mga Filipino construction workers. Nakita ng mga taga-Saudi ang galing-galing pala kaya sila na mismong mga company ng Saudi, sila na mismo ang nag-hire ng Pilipino. Mga ahensya ng pamahalaan, sila na mismo ang kumuha ng mga manggagawang Pilipino hanggang sa ngayon isang milyong mahigit na ang Pilipino dito sa bansang Saudi Arabia.

Itong grupo ninyo, itong isang milyong Pilipino mahigit sa Saudi Arabia ang pinakamalaking overseas contract worker community ng Pilipinas sa buong mundo. Ang dami-dami, padami nang padami ang Pilipino, at sa aking paglibot sa Riyadh, sa Jeddah, sa Shieba at dito nakikita ko ang dami pa nilang hinahanap na Filipino workers.

Kaya naman napakaimportante ang Saudi Arabia sa foreign policy ng ating pamahalaan. Ang foreign policy natin sa aking administrasyon ay may walong punto — hindi ko na ikekuwento yung walong punto dahil mahaba yon — ngunit babanggitin ko ang tatlong bagay nitong foreign policy na ito na malaki ang kinalaman dito sa Saudi Arabia:

Una sa lahat, ang halaga ng bansang O.I.C. — na ang headquarters nga ay nandito sa Saudi — sa matatag na determinasyon ng ating pamahalaan na mahubog na makatarungan at pangmatagalang kapayapaan sa Mindanao. Kaya nga si Zaldy Ampatuan, ang governor ng Autonomous Region, ang kanyang pakay talaga doon sa Jeddah ay makipag-usap sa O.I.C.; pangalawa, ang economic diplomacy. At napakaimportante ang economic diplomacy natin ngayon dito sa Saudi. Malaki ang kinalaman sa paghanap ng ginhawa sa krisis ng langis na may masamang epekto sa buong mundo kasama na ang Pilipinas; at pangatlo, siyempre ang kapakanan ng dakilang manggagawang Pilipino.

Ako'y nasisiyahan na makapunta rito ngayon. Ilang beses na akong nagpunta sa Saudi. The first time, turista, Jeddah. The second time, senador, Jeddah and Riyadh. Ngayon bilang pangulo kailangan pumunta ako lalo na sa panahong ito, kailangang pumunta ako sa sentro ng industriya ng oil and gas dito sa buong mundo walang iba kung hindi ang Al-Khobar. Napakaimportante ito.

At kanina nung ako ay sumasakay sa eroplano ng Saudi Aramco mula sa Jeddah patungo sa Shieba, si Secretary Lotilla at saka si Secretary Sto. Tomas pinakita nila sa akin ang mensahe mula sa Minister of Oil, at ano ang sabi ng oil minister? He conveyed his assurances that in an unlikely event of a destruction in the Philippine oil supply from other sources, Saudi Arabia is prepared to make up for shortfalls.

Una sa lahat, dahil may investment sila sa Pilipinas, yung Petron. At pangalawa, alang-alang naman sa — Al-Khobar at doon lamang sa Saudi Aramco tatlong libo na ang nagtratrabaho sa payroll sa mga kontratista nila sa alam nila 50,000 at sa buong multiplier effect dito sa eastern province 400,000 — siyempre naman alang-alang sa inyo, sa kanilang investments sa Pilipinas, at ang ating pagbisita at pakikipag-ugnay dito sa dakilang hari ng Saudi Arabia, siyempre naman ay hindi nila papabayaan ang Pilipinas.

Isa kayo sa apat na pinakamalaking grupo ng overseas workers dito sa Saudi. Yung tatlo: India, Pakistan, Ehipto. Ang nagsabi sa akin ng mga statistics na ito ay yung kanilang Minister of Social Welfare dahil siya yung aking Cabinet-in-attendance, yung escort ko kung saan-saan ako pumunta doon sa Riyadh. Ang dagdag naman ng minister na yon, ang kaibahan ng Pilipino sa ibang mga overseas workers community ay halos lahat ng Pilipino, mga walumpung porsiyento ay nasa managerial at technical positions. Yon ang kuwento sa akin sa Riyadh. Pagpunta ko sa Jeddah may dinagdag yung mga negosyanteng arabo na kasama sa tanghalian, sabi nila, number one ang Pilipino sa kagalingan at kabaitan.

Doon sa malapit sa Jeddah meron ding bagong petrodollar boom, mas malaki pa kaysa sa petrodollar boom nung 1974. Ano ito? Yung pagtayo ng King Abdullah Economic City na ilang beses mas malaki pa kaysa sa Juvail at mas malaki pa kaysa doon sa mga bansang nakapaligid dito. At isa lang yon, meron pang apat na economic zone na gagawin sila, bawat isa mas malaki kaysa sa ibang bansa na nakapaligid sa kanila. At ito ay kung meron sa inyong — kaya lang ang babata ninyo lahat —kung may nakakaalala sa inyo yung boom nung 1974, ito ay many times bigger than that boom. At ayon sa pinuno ng Saudi Arabia General Investment Authority na kausap ko sa briefing kahapon dito sa boom na ito, ang Pilipino ang kanilang preferred human resource.

Matataas ang kita ng mga Pilipino dito sa Saudi Arabia, kaya nagpapasalamat ako sa pinapadala niyong remittances sa ating bansa. Dahil sa inyo, ang lakas-lakas ng ating piso ngayon. Dahil sa inyo, ang lakas-lakas ng ating real estate. Bumibili kayo ng mga bahay para sa inyong mga kamag-anak kaya lumalakas ang ating real estate. At ito ay talagang binibigyan ng pag-iisip ang mga official ng mga pinunong bansa papano kayo matulungan dito.

Sa aking pagpulong sa mga leader ng kaharian, laging pinag-uusapan namin kung gaano ka importante ang makatarungang pagtrato, makatarungang pagtrato sa inyo lalo na yung ilang mga humaharap sa mga kaso sa korte sa Saudi. Ang magagawa lamang namin ay isigurado sa kanila at mga pamilya nila ang buong suporta, full legal support. Kaya inatasan ko si Nitoy Roque ng OWWA na kumuha ng abogadong Arabo para ipagtanggol ang mga Pilipinong may kaso.

Nagpapasalamat ako sa mga official ng Saudi kasi nung unang pupunta ako dito sana, di ba Pat? Kasi pupunta sana ako dito nung earlier. Actually, ilang beses na kasi na-postpone ito. At meron silang mga pinatawad na mga nasa preso, mga isang daan. Eh na-postpone yung biyahe, sabi ko, huwag naman nating i-postpone yung kanilang release. So, ri-nelease na sila over the last four months. Pagpunta ko doon sa... Pagbisita sa dakilang hari, nagpasalamat ako. Tapos sabi ko, kung pwede humingi ako... Humingi ako na kung pwede dagdagan pa ng limampu.

Kagabi naman sa dinner na binigay ng Crown Prince dumating yung sagot. Sabi nila hindi sila magpapalaya ng limampu, magpapalaya sila ng 138. At itong mga 138 hindi mga minor offenses lamang, mga major offenses, yung may dalang blood money, pero pati yung blood money ay hindi na raw kailangang bayaran. Pagdating ko sa Jeddah kwenento ko yon, pagkatapos ng aking diskurso linapitan ako ni Ambassador Wali, sabi niya hindi magpapalaya ng 138, magpapalaya ng mahigit 200. Kasi pala mula nung pagpupulong two nights ago, overtime nagtrabaho yung mga official ng kanilang pamahalaan, hinahanap kung nasaan-saan sa ibat-ibang preso yung mga Pilipino kaya hinahabol para kung matapos ang papeles nila, bukas pag-uwi ko uuwi na rin sila.

Ako ay nasisiyahan sa regalong ito dahil sa aking pagpunta dito sa Saudi isang pakay ang nangingibabaw sa lahat at yan ay pagseguro sa inyong kaligtasan at mabuting kalagayan dito sa kaharian ng Saudi Arabia.

Maasahan ninyo ang aking administrasyon. Maasahan niyo si Pat Sto. Tomas. Maasahan ninyo si Nitoy Roque. Maasahan ninyo ang embahada na patuloy na pangangalagaan ang inyong kapakanan. Anumang plano ang ating binabalak sa kinagiginhawa ng bansang Pilipinas o para sa kinabubuti ng ating foreign affairs, ang pangangailangan ninyo na ating mga overseas filipino workers ay laging bibigyan ng pansin at halaga.

Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan sa pagkakataon na makapagbisita dito nga sa sentro ng oil and gas industry sa buong mundo para makilala ko yung mga manggagawa, dakilang manggagawang Pilipino na nagpapatakbo, gumagawa ng mahihirap na technical work, at nagbibigay ng iba't-ibang mga serbisyo dito sa oil and gas industry and related services including health services, hotel services na Pilipino. Pagpunta ko rito nung nakilala ko yung general manager, tapos nakita ko kayo lahat, sabi ko, ang galing-galing ng Pilipino. Kaya naman sa pagbisita namin sa Council of Chambers of Commerce doon sa Riyadh, sa pagbisita namin sa Jeddah Chamber of Commerce, sa pagpupulong sa ilang mga indibidwal na malalaking mga negosyante talagang handang-handa sila mag-invest sa Pilipinas. Bakit? Kasi kinikilala nila kung ganun kagaling ang Pilipino na nandito sa Saudi Arabia, there must be more where you came from.

Kaya narito kami para ipaalam sa kanila kung saan sila dapat mag-invest — tourism, oil refinery, agriculture, information technology, mining, banking — pero ang pinaka come on doon kung bakit sila sumasagot ng oo sa aming pag-alok ay kayo. Kaya sa ibabaw ng remittance ninyo, sa ibabaw ng magandang reputasyon na binibigay ninyo, siguro dapat magpasalamat din kayo kasi kayo ang pinakamagaling na investment promoters at embahador ng Pilipinas sa Saudi Arabia.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines

During a Meeting with the Filipino Community in Jeddah

[Delivered at the Al Fayrouz Ballroom, Le Meridien Hotel Jeddah, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, May 9, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Gusto kong batiin kayong lahat — puwede na kayong umupo — gusto kong batiin ang ating mga opisyal ng konsulado dito sa Jeddah sa pamumuno ni Consul General Lomondot. At gusto kong ipakilala sa inyo bagama't may ilang kilala na kayo, ang mga kasapi ng aking delegasyon. Unang-una, nakita ko ang dami niyang tagahanga sa pagpasok niya dito, si Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago; nakita ko kanina — 'Lanao loves GMA — eh, meron tayong mga taga-Lanao dito sa entablado: si Congressman Jun Macarambon, si Congressman Abdullah Dimaporo, si Congressman Tikbong Badelles, at saka si Gobernadora Angging Dimaporo; siyempre, meron din tayong mga taga-labas ng Lanao, ang ating congressman mula sa Mandaluyong, si Benhur Abalos; qing canakong Cabalen manibat Pampanga, Congresswoman Anna York Bondoc; at galing doon sa Antique, si Gobernador Sally Perez.

Panahon na rin siguro ipakilala ko sa inyo yung palagay kong susunod na ambahador natin dito sa Saudi kung papasa siya sa komite ni Senator Santiago sa Commission on Appointments. Si Ambassador Tony Villamor. Marami rin tayong mga opisyal na narito mula sa Pilipinas, sa aking Cabinet at ibang mga senior officials maliban pa kay Secretary Sto. Tomas. Nandito ang ating pinuno ng Trade and Industry, si Peter Favila; ang ating namumuno naman sa Energy, si Secretary Popo Lotilla; ang Press Secretary natin, si Toting Bunye. Marami yatang taga-Muntinlupa dito, ah; at ang nagbukas ng NBN Saudi — kasama ba ang Jeddah? — si... Ang ating chairman ng NBN, si Secretary Cerge Remonde; ang ating isa pang taga-Lanao, Secretary ng Agrarian Reform, si Secretary Nasser Pangandaman; nandito ba sa ating entablado ang ating special envoy na nag-aalaga sa inyo kapag may panganib dito sa rehiyong ito? Si Special Envoy Ambassador Roy Cimat. Mukhang kilalang-kilala niyo si Roy, ano? Panahon ng panganib magkasama ngayon, so far. Hope to God, panahon ng peacetime .

At sa inyong lahat, mga kababayan ko dito sa Jeddah, magandang umaga sa inyong lahat. Adda ilocano idtoy? Naimbag a bigat yo amin; cabalen kong capampangan, mayap aba quecongan; sa mga taga-Visayas ug Mindanao, maayong buntag kaninyong tanan; sa mga kasimanwa ni Senator Santiago, maayong aga sa inyo nga tanan; our Muslim brothers assalamu alaikom; kung merong Bicolano, marhay nga aga sa indo gabos; at sa lahat sa inyo, good morning and thank you for coming here to meet with me today.

Salamat sa inyong mainit na pagtanggap sa aking delegasyon at sa inyong lingkod. Sabi nga ng mga congressmen dito sa harap, ang init-init ng inyong pagtanggap sa amin. Salamat sa pagpapakita niyong pagmamahal. Gusto ko ring ipaabot sa inyo ang magandang balita na ganun din kainit ang pagtanggap ng mga opisyal ng Saudi Arabia nung kami ay pumunta sa Riyadh.

Indeed, I was welcomed with warmth and generous hospitality, and they only show how deeply important, what deep importance Saudi Arabia gives to the Philippines and the Filipinos. Napakalaking karangalan para sa akin, para sa ating delegasyon yung ganung klaseng pagtanggap mula sa mga opisyal ng Saudi Arabia mula sa kanilang kadakilaang hari, the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques. The kingdom has a clout in the world that shall stretch forward through the millennium at ang higit na isang milyong Pilipino na kinakatawan ninyo ngayon dito sa kaharian ay may kontribusyon sa impluwensiya ng Saudi Arabia dahil malaki kayong ginagawa sa kanilang kaunlaran.

Sa aking pakikipagkwentuhan sa dakilang hari, His Majesty at sa ibang mga matataas na opisyal at kasapi ng royal family, lagi kong pinagmamalaki ang dakilang manggagawang Pilipino. Ngunit ang mas masaya doon, sila rin, lagi nilang pinagmamalaki ang manggagawang Pilipino. Talagang malaki ang papel ng manggagawang Pilipino sa pag-unlad ng ekonomiya at imprastruktura ng kaharian. Sa bawat importanteng gawain sa bansang ito — producing oil, pagtayo ng mga lungsod, paglatag ng mga kalsada at linya ng kuryente, pag-alaga sa kalusugan — nariyan ang mga Pilipino.

Naalala ko pa kung papano nagsimula itong ofw phenomenon sa Saudi. Yung unang petrodollar boom nong 1974. Siguro, marami sa inyo hindi pa pinanganak noon, noong unang petrodollar boom. Maraming Pilipinong construction company ay nakakuha ng mga kontrata nung panahong yon, dala ang kanilang mga manggagawa. Sa construction. Sa kagalingang pinakita ng manggagawang Pilipino pagkatapos noon, parami nang parami ang dumating dahil mismong mga kompanya at ahensiya ng Saudi na ay nag-arkila ng maraming manggagawang Pilipino sa iba't-ibang larangan ng hanapbuhay at ngayon mahigit isang milyon na kayo rito, pinakamalaking grupo ng overseas filipino worker sa buong mundo.

Kaya naman napaka-importante ang Saudi Arabia sa foreign policy ng ating pamahalaan. Ang aking foreign policy ay may walong punto. Kaya lang masyadong mahaba kung ikukwento ko sa inyo lahat ng walong punto. Babanggitin ko na lamang ang tatlo na may malaking kinalaman dito sa Saudi:

Una, ang halaga ng mga bansang O.I.C. gaya ng Saudi sa matatag na determinasyon ng ating pamahalaang maghubog ng makatarungan at pangmatagalang kapayapaan sa Mindanao. Malaki ang tulong nila sa atin dito.

Pangawala, ang economic diplomacy na malaki ang kinalaman sa mga araw na ito sa paghanap ng ginhawa sa krisis ng langis na may masamang epekto sa buong mundo, kasama na rin ang Pilipinas.

At pangatlo, ang kapakanan siyempre ng manggagawang Pilipino.

At tungkol sa problema ng langis — oh, I'd like to acknowledge Ambassador Wali, the Saudi Arabian Ambassador to the Philippines — tungkol sa langis, i'm very happy to announce that the oil minister of Saudi Arabia has conveyed his assurances to me that in an unlikely event of a disruption in the Philippines' oil supply from other sources, Saudi Arabia is prepared to make up for the shortfalls.

Yon namang tungkol sa inyo mga manggagawang Pilipino, kuwento sa akin ng social welfare minister kahapon, social welfare minister ng Saudi Arabia, na isa kayo sa pinakamalaking grupong overseas workers, na apat na pinakamalaking grupong overseas workers dito sa Saudi, kasama yung mga taga-India, taga-Pakistan, taga- Ehipto. Ngunit ayon din sa kanya, yung social welfare minister ng Saudi, dagdag niya na ang kaibahan ng Pilipino sa Saudi doon sa tatlo ay halos lahat ng Pilipino dito, mga walumpung porsiyento ay nasa managerial at technical positions. Dagdag pa ng mga negosyanteng arabo na kasama namin sa tanghalian kahapon, para sa kanila, sa kagalingan at kabaitan, number one ang Pilipino.

Kaya naman tuloy sa bagong petrodollar boom na nangyayari ngayon, na mas malaki pa kaysa sa boom noong 1974, sabi ko nga, sa pagtayo ng mga bagong lungsod, nandiyan ang Pilipino, ngayon may limang bagong lungsod itatayo ang gobyerno ng Saudi Arabia. Unang-una doon yung King Abdullah Economic City. Mga siguro — gaano katagal, forty miles lang mula dito — malapit sa Jeddah, apat na iba pang economic zone. Bawat isa sa mga lungsod na ito ay mas malaki kaysa sa buong bansa ng mga karatig-bansa ng Saudi, ganun kalaki ang mga oportunidad muli. At ayon sa pinuno ng Saudi Arabia general investment authority na siyang namamahala dito, ang kanilang preferred human resource dito sa trillion dollar investments ay walang iba kungdi ang mga Pilipino.

Salamat sa magandang pangalan na nabibigay niyo sa Pilipinas sa inyong magandang trabaho. Salamat din sa pinapadala ninyong remittances sa ating bansa. Dahil sa inyo, record ang remittances itong nakaraang taon. Lumakas ng husto ang ating piso at mayroon pa tayong real estate boom dahil bumibili kayo ng mga bahay at apartment para sa inyong mga kamag-anak.

Sa aking pagpupulong sa mga lider ng kaharian, laging pinag-uusapan namin kung gaano kaimportante na magkaroon ng makatarungang pagtrato sa inyo, lalo na yung ilang mga humaharap sa mga kaso sa mga korte ng Saudi. And we want to assure those who are facing cases in Saudi courts, we want to assure them and their families of full legal support. Kaya inatasan ko ang DOLE at OWWA, inatasan ko ang OWWA na kumuha ng abogado, abogadong arabo para ipagtanggol ang mga Pilipinong may kaso.

Kanina, binanggit ni Consul General Lomondot yung pahayag sa kanya ng mga pinalayang mga preso dito, walo sa Jeddah at saka yung mga ipapauwi na nandoon sa OWWA center, yung mga runaway. Nagpapasalamat ako sa mga opisyal ng Saudi sa kanilang pagpatawad. Itong walong ito ay sumunod pa doon sa isangdaan na na pinatawaran nila over the past four months. At nung ako ay nakipagpulong sa kanilang dakilang hari, ang Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, humingi ako ng pagpalaya ng limampu pa.

Kagabi, dumating ang sagot doon sa aking dinner doon sa bahay ng kanilang Crown Prince. Hindi sila magpapalaya ng limampu, magpapalaya sila ng 138 at kasama yung walo dito sa Jeddah. Hindi pa kasama yung 79 na ire-patriate na nandoon sa welfare house. At isa pa, itong 138 na ito, hindi ito mga minor offenses lamang, marami dito mga major offenses din, at doon sa mga may major offenses, pati blood money ay hindi na kailangang bayaran. Ito ang pinakamagandang regalo na maiuwi natin sa Pilipinas dahil sinisikap... Ginagawa ngayon ng paper work para sinisikap na makasabay silang makauwi pag-uwi namin bukas.

Sa aking pagpunta dito sa Saudi Arabia, isang pakay ang nangingibabaw sa lahat, at yan ay pagsiguro ng inyong kaligtasan at mabuting kalagayan dito sa bansang Saudi Arabia. Maaasahan ninyo ang ating administrasyon, si Secretary Pat Santo Tomas at kaniyang mga kasama sa labor department na patuloy na pangangalagaan ang inyong kapakanan. Anumang plano ang ating binabalak para sa ginhawa ng bansang Pilipinas o para sa kinabubuti ng ating foreign policy or foreign affairs, ang pangangalaga ninyo bilang overseas Filipino workers, bilang Pilipino ay laging bibigyan ng pansin at halaga.

That's the least we can do, not only because you are Filipinos and that's reason enough to serve you, but because you are such a good representative of the Philippines, you are such good citizens. You help us so much not only by helping the country in which you are staying but by sending your remittances. Kayo ang pinakamagaling na ambassador ng Pilipinas sa buong mundo.

Maraming salamat sa inyong malasakit sa ating bansa. Mabuhay ang dakilang manggagawang Pilipino sa Saudi Arabia!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Grand Opening of the Largest Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) Center of Teletech Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Grand Opening of the Largest Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) Center of Teletech

[Delivered at the Level 2, Robinson's Place, Ortigas Ave. Ext. cor. Imelda Ave. Cainta, Rizal, May 12, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Favila.

Mr. Craig Reines and the other officers and his co-workers here in Teletech. I'd like to introduce to all of you also our new chairman of the ICT commission, Secretary Mon Sales; our local officials headed by Governor Ynares and Mayor Ilagan; Lilia de Lima, Director General of the Economic Zone, which this is now an economic zone.

To all of you, congratulations! To everyone involved in this opening of Teletech here in Cainta. Congratulations! To Teletech for being the largest BPO center in our country. Congratulations!

One of the brightest spots in our economy is the development of call centers and outsourcing because it uses our greatest resource in the Philippines — our people. Our people are our greatest resource whether they are our one million workers in Saudi Arabia or our 100,000 workers in our Business Process Outsourcing industry. The Philippines has developed a strong track record in BPO because we have demonstrated the ability to move up the value chain. And this very very efficient and very nice looking center really shows how high in the value chain Teletech is. Congratulations!

The country will continue to support the growth of call centers and BPO with policies that encourage the location of right infrastructure. For instance, the infrastructure we've spent on in order to reduce the cost of connectivity. And on policies that upgrade the technical skills of our human resources, particularly at the high school and grade school levels where we have made English as the medium of instruction and the technical levels.

We have released 500 million pesos for high school vouchers so that our young people can study in private high schools. We have released 500 million pesos for scholarships to what we call the call center finishing schools to make your job easier when you're looking for customer care agents. And I'm very happy that Teletech has a very high... a hiring rate of 21 percent of your applicants. Congratulations! For that very very much higher than the national average.

That our call centers and business process outsourcing centers are the symbol of our new competitiveness. The growth of Philippine competitiveness is evident in the strong growth of our BPO industry and incidentally in our 26 percent export growth rate. Congratulations! Peter for that great news of 26 percent as your growth rate.

They are our 26 percent export growth rate for year to year is part of our strong macroeconomic indicators that have caught the attention of the world. We're making headway as far as the various facets of competitiveness are concerned, whether this be in the area of good governance and liberal and consistent investment policy, and fiscal discipline. Our economy is on a winning streak driven by many tough decisions we have had to make. The payback to the people is starting to flow down in terms of more jobs like the jobs that Teletech is making available. Craig says that in... maybe in 18 months they may romp up from the 6,000 you have today to 25,000 in 18 months.

Infrastructure like the cost of the telecoms infrastructure which drastically reduced the cost of connectivity. I remember in 2001 when I first came in and I said we have to reduce the cost of connectivity. We have to spend in infrastructure connectivity to the U.S. was 38,000 dollars, now it's 4,000 or less. So with that drastic reduction, I think that one was the key to spurring the BPO business. And of course part of the payback is basic social services for the segment of the population that cannot expect to be hired in such high-paying jobs as what the BPOs offer.

All of this also on the back of an expanding e-governance platform that's cutting graft and enabling greater efficiency and social impact for every peso spent. I enjoyed talking to your chairman and CEO over VOIP because I want the whole national government to be VOIP and that's going to be part of the work of Mon Sales.

And just like the BPO centers, the cabinet is working 24 by 7 on the areas that need improvement in governance and the economy. We know there are no quick fixes but the opening of centers like Teletech Cainta makes us confident that the competitiveness and enterprising drive of the Filipino will carry us through.

To Craig and all the great Filipino workers that are making up Teletech Cainta, congratulations to all of you!

Mabuhay! And may you be many many more. Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during a State Dinner in honor of the President Teodoro Obiang Nguema Mbasogo and Doña Constanacia Mangué de Obiang

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a State Dinner in honor of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea President Teodoro Obiang Nguema Mbasogo and Doña Constanacia Mangué de Obiang

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, May 19, 2006]

His Excellency President Teodoro Obiang, President of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea, Vice President de Castro, Speaker De Venecia, Senator Manuel Villar and Congresswoman Cynthia Villar and the other elective officials of the Philippine Government, excellencies of the diplomatic corps, members of the Cabinet, Los Miembros Delegacion de Equatorial Guinea, members of the Philippine business community, ladies and gentlemen.

Esta noche celebramos el encuentro de dos países que tienen un patrimonio común, pero por muchos años no han podido acercarse como hubieran debido, a causa de la distancia geográfica que les separa.

The Philippines and Equatorial Guinea both have extensive aquatic resources and rich agricultural lands. Both of our countries and our peoples come from aboriginal ancestors. Both were under the Spaniards for many centuries and thus are Christians in majority.

The Philippines recognized Equatorial Guinea in 1968 when it became an independent country. Sin embargo, casi cuarenta años después, las relaciones entre nuestros dos países no han prosperado por mucho que nosotros hubiéramos deseado.

Hoy día cambiaremos todo aquello. We are honored your Excellency that you have brought so many of your Cabinet members, your distinguished cabinet here with you, so that we could explore cooperation in all possible fields.

De acuerdo con nuestra fructífera reunión de hoy, espero que nuestros oficiales harán el seguimiento debido de las áreas de nuestra significativa colaboración, from energy and human resources to agriculture, education, fisheries and culture and finance.

Fuimos asimismo testigos de la firma de varios memoranda de entendimiento entre los oficiales del gobierno de ustedes y el sector privado de nosotros proyectos que por ejemplo incluyen la banca y las finanzas. And also I'm very happy about the agreement that was signed earlier on the development of the insurance industry in your country by Filipino companies.

In recent years, the discovery of oil resources drastically changed the nature of Equatorial Guinea's economy as it had previously consisted chiefly of agriculture. Now, with the blessings of oil and with the leadership of your Excellency, Equatorial Guinea has achieved a tremendous improvement in its economy. And I wish to congratulate your leadership for this, your Excellency.

We are also proud at the same time of the contribution of some of our great Filipino workers to the development of Equatorial Guinea. The Philippines depends on oil imports for energy, but as you have seen, we are blessed with the best knowledge workers in the world.

Our two countries must have a chance to discover each other and deepen a friendship ordained by a common history and culture and complementary resources.

Por tanto y siera ofrecer un brindis a su excelencia, and I ask everyone to join me in a toast to His Excellency President Obiang Nguema Mbasogo, for his continued good health and success and to a dynamic and energetic partnership between our two countries.

Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Inauguration of the Hinduja Technology, Media and Telecommunications (HTMT) Ltd. Customer Contact Facility

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Inauguration of the Hinduja Technology, Media and Telecommunications (HTMT) Ltd.
Customer Contact Facility

[Delivered at the CyberPark, E. Rodriguez Ave., C-5 Libis, QC, May 20, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Syjuco.

Mayor Belmonte and Mr. Hinduja, our bigtime entrepreneur, global entrepreneur who is putting up this call center here in the Philippines; Mr. Sarkar; our Cabinet members who are here today: chairman of MMDA, Bayani Fernando and our new chairman of the ICT commission, who nobody seems to know because he's brand new, but I decided to introduce him to you, Mon Sales; management and staff of HTMT Philippines; guests; ladies and gentlemen.

We've already heard what Mr. Hinduja said, that this facility expects to generate 2,500 seats, out of their 7,500 everywhere. And we thank you for making the Philippines right now one-third of your BPO force and soon to be a bipolar member of your two important seats of operation. This is a prime example of Philippine excellence in good paying jobs.

And I'm happy to hear the growth of this company of 70 percent over the last two years in the Philippines. The company came about two years ago and maybe it's good to just recount that five years ago there were less than 2,000 BPO agent on our country. Now, as he has said earlier, there are a hundred thousand or more BPO agents in the country. That means that we've grown 50 times in the last five years.

The industry is very large. India has a million workers in this industry and the way we're growing, we also expect to reach a million by 2010, as long as we have the readily available manpower. That's why we've made English the medium of instruction once again. That's also why we have released 500 million pesos for what we call the call center finishing schools to increase the hiring rate of call centers and BPOs.

And I would like to congratulate our seven young people who received their finishing school certificates. And I hope that with your additional training you will be one of the next 100,000 new call center and BPO agents in our country.

This morning, I was speaking with the President of the Development Bank of the Philippines and I repeated my instruction to him to earmark one billion pesos to lend out for company shuttle buses that use clean air fuel. This is part of the 40-billion peso non-wage benefits for workers that I unveiled last Labor Day, the same day that we unveiled this 500-billion peso program for call center finishing schools. I mentioned this lending facility for shuttle buses for companies because many of the call centers have been telling me that because they work on the night economy their staff would like to have some special transport facilities.

I was thinking first that I should ask the MRT to operate 24 hours a day but that would be very difficult for the MRT. So we've tried that before and there weren't that many customers during that dead hours to make the operations worthwhile during those hours. So the next best thing is to make available this facility to lend to buses that use either CNG or coco bio-diesel or LPG or any of our more economical and clean air fuels. And I hope that the call center companies will avail of this loan package especially for the convenience of those on the night shift in this 24/7 business.

I'm indeed happy that we are inaugurating this call center here in Sonny Belmonte's jurisdiction. And this is an inauguration happening again as an encouraging backdrop of Bangko Sentral polls showing that companies expect better times ahead.

Our tough fiscal reforms and revenue generating measures are reaping a tide of confidence and investments and the social payback is starting to flow down to the people. The Philippines faces the largest budget surplus in the last nine years on the back of a hefty additional 16 billion pesos of revenue in the first quarter because of the value-added tax. Analysts affirm that we are on track in the economy, aside from the positive outlook of business surveys. Pump priming is stepping up better infrastructures, broader education and basic social services.

We're on C-5, but Bayani we're working on C-6 already, aren't we? So that's part of our infrastructure expansion to make the heartland or the urban beltway of the Philippines from Clark-Subic through Metro Manila to Calabarzon very convenient in terms of infrastructure. Our blueprint for economic take off is on the move on the back of growing global confidence in the Philippines.

And speaking of global confidence, to HTMT Global, my sincere appreciation for your confidence, for your continued faith and confidence in our administration and in our people. For those who may not know, HTMT or Hinduja Technology, Media and Telecommunications is a transnational conglomerate founded even before the birth of our young tycoon here and it spans 50 countries in five continents in many different fields of endeavor.

And so to you, Remi and to the rest of your team, what we can say is we will continue doing our best to meet your expectations in the Philippines.

Salamat. Thank you and have a good day.

Congratulations!

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines

During a Dinner Reception for the UNESCO Director General Koichiro Matsuura and delegates to the 31st UNESCO International Theater Institute World Congress and the Theater Olympics of the Nations

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, May 22, 2006]

Thank you very much, Cecille.

His Excellency UNESCO Director General Koichiro Matsuura, distinguished delegates to the International Theater Institute Congress and the Theater Olympics of Nations, His Excellency ASEAN Secretary General Ong Keng Yong, Speaker de Venecia and the other elective officials, Secretary Romulo and the other members of the Cabinet, Ambassador Soliven and the other excellencies of the diplomatic corps, other officials of the Philippine government, theater artists, theater lovers all over the world, guests, ladies and gentlemen.

In behalf of the Filipino people, I extend our warmest welcome to you, director general and to all the participants, all the eminent participants and all the ordinary people participating in the forum of the 31st UNESCO International Theater Institute World Congress.

This Congress is an important contribution to intercultural, intercivilizational and interfaith dialogue to which the Philippines under our administration is fully committed. Dialogue is an attribute of democracy which is one of the hallowed traditions of Philippine society. Dialogue through theater is an opportunity not only to exercise democracy but also to focus on the global stage the creativity of the Filipino. Our creativity is among the qualities that it endeared the great Filipino worker in 140 countries all over the world.

On the other hand, we the Filipinos also learn from this Congress. Our Filipino faculty and students around the country benefit from the great cultural boon provided by the encounters and exchanges of the Congress. And I commend the Congress of the I.T.I. for revolving its theme around the millennium development goals, which shape Philippine policy in our Medium- term Philippine Development Plan. And very closely allied with this, I would like to thank your excellency because you have so heartily endorsed the Philippine proposal in the United Nations for a debt for culture, debt for environment, debt for civilization swap.

The Medium-term Philippine Development Plan seeks to cut our poverty in half together with the rest of the world. In our case, through a ten-point pro-poor, pro-growth and pro-peace program.

Culture is not in addition to this program; culture is a part of this program. Indeed, culture has its own separate chapter in our medium-term plan. Our plan recognizes that arts is a dynamic instrument for values formation.

And so, therefore, I thank you and I thank everyone participating in this Congress for coming to the Philippines to celebrate the greatness of culture, the greatness of art, the greatness of theater.

To all of you, mabuhay! Welcome! And thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 27th National Conference of Employers

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 27th National Conference of Employers

[Delivered at the Centennial Ballroom, Manila Hotel, May 23, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas.

And may I take this opportunity to congratulate you and the employers and the laborers because now we have the lowest number of strikes in Philippine history. Congratulations!

Rene Soriano, president; Mike Varela, chairman; Francis Chua, thank you for your very kind statements; Donald; Cesar, congratulations on organizing this event. When we say “survive, compete, succeed,” as Francis said, we’ve shown we can survive. Now we must compete and then succeed. Then we will be in the Enchanted Kingdom.

Other officials of the Philippine government. And may I just let you know that I asked CHED Chairman Carlito Puno to join me today because I saw that following the news about your meetings, I saw that you were going to recommend an advisory board in the colleges and universities. And at least Carlito has a strong say especially in the state universities and colleges. And we’ve got to do that before school opens because we don’t want students again entering the wrong courses. We don’t want to find out four years later that the course in which they enrolled will not find them a job even if there are so many jobs available in the jobs fair. So, I asked Carlito if he could join us today so that during or after this meeting, he can already sit down with ECOP to work out the business advisory groups in the state universities and colleges.

Officers and members of ECOP; participants in this conference of employers; honored guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Indeed, as Francis said and Rene chose and Mario as the theme of this convention, in this age of globalization and high technology, and in these days of oil price surges your response is logical: survive, compete with the rest of the world, and succeed.

The polls recently conducted by the Bangko Sentral showing that economies are expecting better times along with the favorable economic indicators mentioned by Francis. For instance for April, the double digit increase in foreign portfolio investment over the previous month are all-time high of 21 billion dollars in foreign reserves. Our nine-year record budget surplus of 17 billion as well as the favorable report from Calpers and the Bank of America this may should project the country’s economic resiliency amidst the continuing threat of spiraling world oil prices. Survive — that’s what we’ve been able to do.

Philippine employers of course play an important role in making all this happen. Now to compete and succeed there is nothing like a strong government-private sector partnership bolstered by tough decisions and robust market-driven policies to empower the economy to survive, compete and succeed.

In the last meeting of the export development council that I called and chaired, I had it held in Amkor Technologies because I wanted to congratulate the export sector for your 27 percent increase in exports for the first quarter. And especially the electronics companies because you make up two-thirds of our exports. During that export development council meeting, the subject matter that I put in the agenda was competitiveness and exactly it fits with our theme. We’ve shown we can survive; now we have to succeed before we enter the enchanted kingdom.

To compete. One of the things I learned in my trip to Saudi Arabia where Donald, Mike were with me and Francis — Rene, you weren’t with me, ‘no? — was that many years ago Saudi Arabia, and they produce oil already, but many years ago they looked at the different parameters and variables for competitiveness and they tested themselves and they worked on each one of them, until now they have succeeded in becoming the tenth most competitive economy in the world.

We did the same exercise now with the export development council. We looked at the various indicators of competitiveness and how we ranked in judgments of the analysts. We're not doing that bad in government efficiency especially because we've achieved the budget debt surplus, the reduction of the budget deficit, the customs, the revenues being overshot, the tax reforms. But two areas that the exporters and the government identified together with the labor representatives are on the part of business, your business efficiency; and on the part of government, our infrastructure. Those are the areas in which we need to catch up. For infrastructure, it is only now that we can start catching up because it is only now that we have the revenues to finance all the infrastructure that you need for competitiveness.

You are witness to the north expressway, the south expressway now being constructed, the Clark airport, the Subic port being constructed, the Batangas port now operating for many of the Calabarzon firms, the Lipa airport will soon have night lights, so that the electronics firms in Calabarzon can ship out of there and so on and so forth.

We've also agreed that the most important infrastructure now we will concentrate on because our roads and airport projects are underway is the power infrastructure to make power competitive in our country.

Aside from infrastructure your main partner — and I'm speaking to the employers — your main partner in government is the Department of Labor. And I started by congratulating Pat but I'd like to tell you more about the Department of Labor and what they're doing. The DOLE is a professional organization of 7,000 people. It has a budget of 4.5 billion pesos, of the 4.5, 2.5 goes to TESDA and I have asked TESDA to allocate 500 million pesos for scholarships in call centers because that is where the largest single job opportunities are located.

We have good and competent people in their senior positions so that even with the limited budget — I mean, 4.5 compared to over a hundred billion for Department of Education, 60 billion for Public Works, 60 billion for defense — 4.5 billion, yet they're able to give you the employers a good measure of support.

I want to congratulate therefore — and I ask you to help me congratulate the DOLE — but I want also to congratulate the employers and your partners in the labor sector because as I said strikes are now at an all-time low but not only that because of the way that our workers have shown themselves to be so competitive and world class. We have well-paying overseas employment also at an all-time high and unemployment is at single digit levels.

I reiterate the support I expressed on labor day for a reasonable wage hike hammered out by the tripartite regional wage boards in such a way that there will be no surprises insofar as business costs are concerned. We are also pushing conciliation and mediation as an alternative to arbitration.

Pat tells me that DOLE has signed a memorandum of agreement with the Archdiocese of Manila so that for Catholics schools and hospitals among others they will attempt to settle labor disputes first before cases are filed. This will lessen the number of disputes going to arbitration. It will help clean our case dockets. It will minimize the hardening of labor management conflicts. And I hope and I would like to propose in this ECOP conference that we do similar agreements between DOLE and ECOP and also with the local government units. Our goal is to have zero reason to have strikes by the end of my term in 2010.

There are new markets for overseas employment with legal frameworks that are similar or familiar to our workers in the Philippines. Spain's labor market — this is what we are trying to negotiate, for when I go to Spain the end of June — Spain's labor market will hopefully open for 100,000 of our workers in the next two years. But I also hope to be able to get Spain's tourism investors to the Philippines to give jobs in tourism which is highly labor and skills intensive.

Canada's provinces of Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan are seeking labor agreements with the Philippines and that may possibly include temporary migration with an option for permanent settlement. Alberta's oilfields are said to be at least as big as Saudi Arabia. Wow! That's mind boggling because Saudi Aramco who was our host on the last day of our trip to Saudi Arabia has one-fourth of the world's reserves and ten percent of the world's production of oil. And if they say that Canada has about the same amount, that's a very very big source of opportunity again for our overseas skilled Filipino workers.

In Saudi Arabia, we have 1.2 million Filipinos, of which more than a million are managers and highly technical workers. Eighty nine thousand (89,000) are domestic workers, a very very small percentage, and we concentrate our protection efforts on them because the managers and the technical workers are naturally protected by the market. In eastern Saudi Arabia where oil is the economy, there are 400,000 Filipinos. Imagine if indeed it's true that Canada has the same reserves as Saudi Arabia, that means another job opportunity for 400,000 Filipinos. Not because they are jobless here, because we want to create jobs here as well, but because the Filipinos are great Filipino workers and they can help us with their skills to achieve energy independence for our country and the whole world.

Canada expects to start exploring — just exploring, because they're still reserves — those fields and they want Filipino labor because Filipino workers are the greatest workers in the world. And we hope that we will benefit by the ensuing boom in economic activity because wherever Filipinos go, they are still Filipinos. They care for their families, they care for our country, and they build up our housing industry and so many other industries in our country.

Australia is in a similar mode. Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas opened a skills expo with their authorities just the other day. Taiwan has just doubled our quota. And speaking of skills, we've been having skills expo, we've been having a lot of job fairs. But in the job fairs, we have many job fairs with 70,000 jobs available, sometimes we have only 18,000 applicants, sometimes only 5,000 are hired or 1,000. Not because of the lack of jobs, because there are more jobs being offered than applicants, but because of what you have shown me in your report— the lack of matching between the demand and the supply for labor.

That's the reason for the 500 million pesos for call center scholarships. That's the reason for the business advisory board for the state universities and colleges to start with. And I hope also today Carlito, please meet with chairman of TESDA Boboy Syjuco today so that you can work out the ladderized system of instruction when the people take up technical courses their courses will be credited for a college education.

We are now in sync with the rest of the world insofar as the definition of employment and unemployment is concerned. We use to suffer by comparison partly because of the stringent parameters we impose on ourselves outside of the international definition.

In the rest of the world, when the survey comes and they ask you, 'if a job is offered to you today, will you be available?' These are for the people who are not working. If their answer is 'no,' in other countries, they are not part of the labor force. In our country prior to our adjustment, they are part of the labor force, they are part of the unemployed, so therefore we tend to have a bigger unemployment percentage than would appear than would really be using international standards. But even by changing the new definition, we did not decrease unemployment only by changing the definition. Even with the new definition, we have in fact improved on the employment situation due to our pump priming interventions.

One of the beneficiaries of our pump priming interventions has been agriculture. In the past, we would be happy if agriculture will grow at three percent. In the first quarter, agriculture grew at five percent. And this is one of the reasons why Bank of America and others have upgraded their forecast for GDP growth in our country.

Facilitation assistance has also made our job creation efforts more visible among the job seekers with the trade fairs that I was telling you about. We continue with the trade fairs. I asked Pat together with Artee Yap, who is my Presidential Management Staff head, to keep having trade fairs this summer for the recent graduates. Next month however when the students go back to school, we will open a jobs fair for soldiers and officers wounded in battle to express our support for them for serving our country faithfully and well. This will be the first of a series for persons with disabilities that I committed during the persons with disability's week that we celebrated a few weeks ago.

We are trying to cover the informal sector with social security because more than those who are in your factories and offices they are vulnerable to all kinds of occupational risks. We have covered almost 22,000 but the campaign continues as a poverty alleviation measure. In our country, the majority of the workers are not salaried employees, the majority are self-employed and family workers. Workers in the informal sector, and we have to give them the benefits of social security.

There are many other things we're trying to do, and I thank you for your recommendations here. I was just glancing over your resolutions about what employers can do together through ECOP. And I'm very glad that you're working on what to do together, because as I said in the competitiveness survey, there are some low points on business efficiency. And Rene told me that you're working with the ILO in order to improve on internal business efficiency. Improving the match between demands for jobs and supply of skills — in fact, we've seen that in the trade fairs. That's why Carlito is important, Boboy is important, and you are important — what the employers can do together with government. And for countries who benefit from our human capital, we also work with them. And I'm very glad that you have very very specific missions to carry out your part of our determination to compete.

We are trying to carry out our pro-poor policies as well as to create more investments and jobs through a more business-friendly operating environment. And if we work on all of this together, in fact, that will be a more business-friendly environment and a more competitive business sector. Because in the end, it is you who will meet our target of at least a million jobs a year. It is you the employers who will create six to ten million jobs between 2004 and 2010. And that's why I congratulate you and I laud you and I applaud you in this hall. You are exemplars of the will and capacity to survive, to compete, and to succeed.

Let's stay together. Let's dream together. And what do I mean by being in the enchanted kingdom, we can operationalize that. Let's be among the countries of the first world in 20 years.

Mabuhay ang ating mga employer!

We are trying to cover the informal sector with social security because more than those who are in your factories and offices they are vulnerable to all kinds of occupational risks. We have covered almost 22,000 but the campaign continues as a poverty alleviation measure. In our country, the majority of the workers are not salaried employees; the majority is self-employed and family workers. Workers in the informal sector, and we have to give them the benefits of social security.

There are many other things we're trying to do, and I thank you for your recommendations here. I was just glancing over your resolutions about what employers can do together through ECOP. And I'm very glad that you're working on what to do together, because as I said in the competitiveness survey, there are some low points on business efficiency. And Rene told me that you're working with the ILO in order to improve on internal business efficiency. Improving the match between demands for jobs and supply of skills — in fact, we've seen that in the trade fairs. That's why Carlito is important, Boboy is important, and you are important — what the employers can do together with government. And for countries who benefit from our human capital, we also work with them. And I'm very glad that you have very very specific missions to carry out your part of our determination to compete.

We are trying to carry out our pro-poor policies as well as to create more investments and jobs through a more business-friendly operating environment. And if we work on all of this together, in fact, that will be a more business-friendly environment and a more competitive business sector. Because in the end, it is you who will meet our target of at least a million jobs a year. It is you the employers who will create six to ten million jobs between 2004 and 2010. And that's why I congratulate you and I laud you and I applaud you in this hall. You are exemplars of the will and capacity to survive, to compete, and to succeed.

Let's stay together. Let's dream together. And what do I mean by being in the enchanted kingdom, we can operationalize that. Let's be among the countries of the First World in 20 years.

Speech of President Arroyo during the 6th Luzon Island Congress of the Philippine Councilors' League

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 6th Luzon Island Congress of the Philippine Councilors' League

[Delivered at the Ocean Deck, Camayan Wharf, Ocean Adventure Subic Bay, Zambales, May 25, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Ronnie Puno sa iyong pagpapakilala sa akin. And please convey my congratulations! To the police who arrested P.O.1 Aron Golifardo, the alleged gunman in the killing of Fernando Batul in Puerto Princesa. Ipinapakita na hindi natin inaatorga ang mga krimen kontra sa mga peryodista, kontra sa mga aktibista at kontra sa kahit na sinong mamamayan ng Pilipinas.

Sa inyong lahat naman gusto ko rin batiin kayo, nandito si Governor Magsaysay, magandang tanghali; nandito si Mayor Gordon, magandang tanghali; nandito si Congresswoman Magsaysay, magandang tanghali; kanina nakita ko si Congressman Nantes, ewan ko kung sumama dito; at saka siyempre ang ating mga konsehal, si Chairman Datuin, si President Fortuna, si Councilor Fernandez, si Vice President Apacible. Gusto ko rin batiin yung iba't-ibang mga opisyal, both appointed and elected, and to all the delegates to the 6th Philippine Councilors' League Luzon Island Congress, magandang tanghali sa inyong lahat.

Ang ganda-ganda naman ng setting natin. I hope you are having a nice time here in Subic, which we want to be the best hub in the region before we reach 2010. At una sa lahat, gusto kong magpasalamat sa inyo, kayo ang frontline sa pamamahala. At sa inyong level nakikita ninyo ang mga problema ng inyong mga pamayanan. At siyempre hindi naman lahat maso-solve ninyo sa inyong level. Ngunit habang hindi ninyo nagagawa ito napaparating ninyo ang mga solusyon at ang mga problema sa atensiyon ng mga kinauukulang awtoridad kasama na nga ang inyong lingkod, ang pangulo. At dahil dito lalung-lalo na sa pamamagitan ng inyong mga konbensiya ay nakakahanap tayo sabay-sabay ng mga solusyon sa problema ng inyong pamayanan. At alam kong parati kong maaasahan kayo sa paghabol ng kapakanan ng taong-bayan. Kaya salamat sa inyong lahat at siguro puwede nating sabihin sa ating mga kababayan sa inyong pamayanan na panahon na para umani ang taong-bayan sa mga repormang ginagawa natin sa kaban ng bayan.

At sana ipaabot niyo sa ating mga mamamayan sa inyong pamayanan na sisiguraduhin natin magkasama tayo na ang taong-bayan ang makakakuha ng nakararami sa mga programang pangkaunlaran. Halimbawa, kanina, nanggaling kami sa Casecnan Dam at binuksan yung mga pintuan ng dam para dumaloy na yung patubig mula sa Nueva Ecija hanggang sa Bulacan, hanggang sa Pampanga. At ngayon puwede na ring... Sabi ko sa NIA simulan na rin pag-aralan yung sa kabila naman yung patungong North Western Nueva Ecija hanggang sa Pangasinan. Dahil gusto natin na magbukas ng maraming hektarya ng lupa sa agrikultura. Kaya kayo mga konsehal ay magtulungan tayo para makalagay kayo ng mga budget sa inyong konseho ng counterpart para mag-irrigate tayo ng mga bagong lupain ng agrikultura. Maglagay kayo ng counterpart, may counterpart rin ang national government.

Bakit ako nakakaalok ng ganito sa ating Councilors' League sa Luzon? Because our economic fundamentals are steady and strong. Nakikita natin humina ang peso lately. That recent set back of the peso is a result of transient developments in the economy that posed no direct long-term threat to our own economy. It is coming from temporary events in the world economy. Hindi na ako mag-e-elaborate, our economic managers can take care of that, but I want to let you know — siguro alam ng ating mga Subic officials — investor confidence is strong, di ba dito Chairman, Administrator? Yung Hanjin, about a billion dollars ang investment dito in the next ten years pero starting with 100 million dollars now. At hindi ba yung Chinese Communist Party of Heibe where Beijing is located, we're negotiating with them for a 300 million-dollar investment. Ang importante lang yung upa pinagtatalunan.

Pero yon ang nagpapakita ng magagandang halimbawa ng kumpiyansa ng mga investors. Their confidence in the vigorous efforts of the government to balance the budget, improve the overall security situation. Kaya binabati ko si Ronnie, sabi nga niya — di ba nag-meeting kayo noong makalawa? — sabi niya, "give me two days," sabi niya sa mga kasama ko... Ah na kasama niya, hindi ako kasama sa meeting sa national security cluster, "give me two days, I will solve the mystery," sabi niya. Today, they arrested the guy. Actually, yesterday, ngayon lang linabas.

And that's what we should all work on, the security situation, and we should all work together so that the investors will continue to have confidence in our capacity to push growth and pursue political renewal. We expect the peso to maintain its trend and resiliency through time as the global financial market settle down.

Habang naman itinutulak natin ang reporma ng pangkabuhayan, our final hurdle is our outdated, outmoded and out of touch political system. And so honorable councilors' of Luzon, your support for charter change is indispensable and I'm grateful for it sa ating mga official ng Councilors' League.

Aside from energy, I also ask your group to lead in an honest-to-goodness energy conservation program in view of the rising cost of oil pushed by events beyond us. Hindi naman nanggagaling sa atin ang pagtaas ng presyo ng langis sa mundo. Una sa lahat yung demand, yung China saka yung India, the two biggest countries in the world have very rapid economic growth rate so ang laki ng demand. Tapos noon may problema sa Iran, may problema sa Nigeria, among the biggest producers of oil. Pero sinasabi naman sa akin ng Saudi Aramco hindi naman kulang ang supply, they can always come up with the supply. Ang problema dahil sa demand ng China at India sa supply ng Iran at saka ng Nigeria nagkakaroon tuloy ng speculation, nagho-hoarding tuloy sa mundo. So, those are not things of our doing. We are price takers in oil kaya kailangan magtrabaho tayong lahat para sa energy independence.

I want to ask our councilors' from all over Luzon to help us promote the use of oil substitutes like ethanol. Puwedeng manggaling sa cassava ang ethanol. Natural gas and coco-diesel, ang dami-daming mga coconut plantations dito sa Luzon. Dito yata sa Zambales wala ano? Pampanga and Zambales are among the only eight provinces that don't have coconut but everywhere else in the country may coconut.

The government is undertaking a strategic program to cut down on our oil-based power plants and to shift to those that run on hydro-geothermal and natural gas. Alam ba ninyo, mga konsehal ng Luzon, na dito sa Luzon isang porsiyento na lamang ang ating kuryente na nanggagaling sa krudo. We've been relying on coal and other sources but because somehow their price is also indirectly tied up to the price of oil, kaya dapat lakihan natin ang ating independence from oil.

Kaya inatasan ko ang PNOC na maglabas ng 500 million pesos para pairalin ang Jatropha, ang pagbili ng jatropha dahil yung mga buto ng Jatropha ay maaaring magpalit sa diesel-fuel. Alam niyo ang kabutihan ng Jatropha, yung ethanol kung mag-blend tayo ng 10, 5, 10, 20 percent ethanol sa ating gasolina ay magiging mas mura at malinis. Yung coco bio-diesel naman kung maglalagay tayo ng one percent blend ay sabi nila apat na percent ang distance na mas hahaba. Pero ang diesel, coco bio-diesel... Ah hindi, yung Jatropha hindi kailangang i-blend, puwedeng 100 percent substitute, we can completely do away with oil-based diesel kung yon ang ating gagamitin. Kaya magtanim na kayo ng Jatropha sa inyong mga lupang hindi napagtataniman ng ibang klaseng mga halaman, because it grows very well on marginal land. Sa ibang mga lugar lumalaki ang Jatropha sa mga sandy soil. Eh dito sa Pampanga, Zambales panay lahar tayo so Jatropha can grow very well in these areas. We need massive planting of Jatropha dahil ang Petron ay handang magtayo ng planta to convert Jatropha into diesel, ang kailangan ay yung production ng raw materials.

Maaaring isama ito sa inyong mga lokal na programang pangkabuhayan na inaasahan ng ating administrasyon. At ang kabutihan nito ay yung Jatrophan tanim nito ay lilikha ng higit pang trabaho at tataas ang kita ng taong-bayan. Kaya makipag-ugnay kayo sa PNOC sa inyong counterparting din sa Jatropha.

Samantala, energy, the charter change, peace and order, please work closely with your police officers. Ito isa sa mga pinakamagaling na police officers, si Raffy Rafanan, ay inapoint ko na dito sa Region III. so, please work closely with him and his other officers. Ayan si Oca Calderon naman ang deputy director general ng administration. Please work together with them and stand guard to keep the jobs and livelihood of your constituencies unsullied against crime and terror. At sa paglaban dito pati si General Tolentino — na kinuha ko doon, mula doon sa Mindanao, lumalaban ng terorista doon — dinala ko siya dito sa Luzon para tulungan din kayong labanan ang mga terorista.

Join us also in our spirited fight against graft by keeping an eye on various government projects and undertakings. Bantayan ninyo para nakikita niyo, halimbawa, yung mga farm-to-market roads naglalagay tayo ng pera pero national government naman halos hindi naman makakapunta doon para mag-inspect. So, sana kayo ang tumingin kung ginagawa nga ba talaga o yung irrigation projects kung ginagawa nga ba talaga?

Yung ating napakagandang Clark-Subic road. Mike Defensor and I were flying over it kasi di ba galing kami sa Clark going to Subic, we were really flying over the road. Ang laki-laki na ang kanilang naitayo. Watch over that to make sure na walang mga slippages and especially of course in your areas of responsibility. You are leaders of this nation as you are leaders of your communities. And its our moral obligation to bring our people together to build a strong, secure and enduring nation well-respected in the international community.

Tamang-tama ginawa ninyo itong meeting ninyo sa Subic, dahil very international ang Subic. And so I hope because you are having a nice time in this beautiful park-resort, I hope also that the world will see that the councilors of Luzon and the councilors of the Philippines are one with all levels of government in making lives better for our people and whoever comes to create jobs for these people.

Sa inyong lahat, congratulations!

Maraming salamat. Good day!

Speech of President Arroyo during the 45th Association Cambiste Internationale (ACI) Financial Markets Association World Congress Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 45th Association Cambiste Internationale (ACI) Financial Markets Association World Congress Philippines

[Delivered at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC), Pasay City, May 26, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Teves.

Officials of ACI International and ACI Philippines, other officials of the Philippine government, participants to this very important world congress, ladies and gentlemen.

Welcome to the Philippines.

We are honored to host this congress of world financial market practitioners. You are very important to the growth and the future of our nation.

I come here today bullish on our prospects as a nation. We've created over five million jobs in the last five years, inflation is easing, exports are up — they had a growth of 26 percent last march — and our budget surplus in April was the highest in nine years.

The world has taken notice of our growing reputation in the call center and BPO space. We take pride in our high-tech manufacturing which leads our export growth. We're enjoying a boom in our tourism and we welcome you to the Philippines as part of those tourists. And prime sites like Clark and Subic are being developed.

For the first time in a generation, we're collecting the revenue we need to make investments and infrastructure, health care, education and job creation. Our fiscal discipline is paying off with better credit outlook — which I hope you've noted — which saves us billions of pesos a year that can be better spent in investing in our people and our economy.

My government has exerted various efforts, vigorous efforts to balance the budget, keep the overall security situation safe from terrorists, push growth and pursue political renewal.

Indeed, as Mr. Hilado says: “in the world of the financial markets, all of these variables come into play. And there is an interplay between financial variables, economic variables, security variables, political variables.” for instance, all of these come together in the money laundering issue.

The enforcement of the anti-money laundering law in the Philippines is moving forward and a first conviction has been gained on the back of effective prosecution by the government even as the case may be appealed. It stands as clear proof of our determination to clean up the potential money trails of crime syndicates and terrorists. The enforcement of this law is part and parcel of our fight against organized crime and corruption and of our role as a stronger player in regional and global security, and of course, also in financial security.

I've invested a lot of my time and effort to engage the Philippines in global affairs — and that's why I'm here before you today — and to help modernize our nation from bilateral to multilateral relations with nations to direct promotion in behalf of our nation and business. I am and will continue to be a proud and ardent saleswoman for our country.

But you the financial markets, you the financial market players study the different countries in which you can possibly invest. And I assure you I'm not a Polyanna, I'm a realist. I know that we still suffer from huge gaps in our social inequities, but we can't attain the rank of first world nation when many Filipinos live in hunger and progress is held back by corruption and lack of investments in world class infrastructure.

That is why my agenda of moving forward is built on raising revenue, running a tight fiscal ship, investing in key social infrastructure like a good education, english skills, proper health care, and better roads, bridges and ports and airports. And you know even better than me how the oil crisis looms in the whole world and in the financial markets.

And so in the Philippines, our nation gathers around the need to come together and search for new alternatives and develop existing ones. We are pushing constructive solutions to beef up our sources of fuel such as renewable energy, indigenous energy and vigorous oil and gas exploration. For instance, on renewable energy, we're pushing the planting of Jatropha trees and even the smallest of landowners can participate. On indigenous energy, my energy secretary reported to me yesterday that the Malampaya natural gas consortium and first gas corporation have agreed to settle issues between them which have remained outstanding for the past four years. With this agreement we can look forward to an improved and stable operating environment for the production of indigenous natural gas.

The other day I had a meeting with our exporters and we discussed the need for competitive infrastructure. A lot of infrastructure is under construction in what we call our urban corridor from Clark-Subic in the north through Metro Manila to Ccalabarzon and Batangas port in the south. But we must have investments in power. Soon, we will launch the wholesale electricity spot market and I have noticed that it is attracting major investors to our electric power sector.

And so I come before you today, ever conscious of your theme of meeting the challenge. It reminds me of what Tom Friedman says: "the world is flat; we must compete." and the Philippines recognizes the need to compete– and we are working to make ourselves competitive, more competitive and more worthy of the financial markets.

And so today, full of hope, tempered by realism, we come to welcome you. And we welcome you to a nation that we hope indeed is worth your attention and that's why you have come here for your world congress and even more your investments in the financial markets.

Once again, welcome to the Philippines!

Mabuhay! Thank you.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Groundbreaking Ceremonies of the Diosdado Macapagal Cruise Passenger Terminal
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Groundbreaking Ceremonies of the Diosdado Macapagal Cruise Passenger Terminal

[Delivered at the Port of Orion, Brgy. Puting Buhangin Orion, Bataan, May 29, 2006]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Governor Tet Garcia sa iyong napakagandang pagpakilala sa akin.

Maraming salamat din Congressman Abet Garcia sa iyong magandang sinabi tungkol sa programa ng ating pambansang pamahalaan; salamat din Mayor Raymundo sa iyong welcoming remarks; salamat sa ibat-ibang mga official ng lalawigan ng Batangas at mga bayan-bayan ng Bataan na narito ngayon. At gusto ko rin batiin si Bishop Soc Villegas. At kasama ko rito gaya nang sabi ni Abet yung mga official na may kinalaman, may pangunahing kinalaman sa pagpapatayo nitong ating terminal: si General Manager ng Philippine Ports Authority Oca Sevilla at saka ang Presidential Assistance for Central Luzon, si Rene Diaz; batiin ko rin si General Romy Tolentino ng Northern Luzon command at yung ibat-ibang mga official ng Region III sa pambansang pamahalaan.

Masayang-masayang ang araw na ito at ako ay nasisiyahan at sana masiyahan din ang mga taga-Orion at lahat ng mga taga-Bataan dahil sa sinisimulan natin na inyong passenger terminal ay isa na namang hakbang para kayo manatili sa number one sa human development index.

Nagpapasalamat si Abet sa aking mga kasamahan, si Oca at saka si Rene, pero dapat magpasalamat tayo kay Governor Tet at kay Congressman Abet kasi sila walang tigil na magkulit sa PPA hanggang hindi naaprubahan itong passenger terminal na ito. At anong klaseng passenger terminal? Napakaganda. Nakita niyo ang design, world class. Si Jun Palafox naman pala ang nag-design nito. si Jun Palafox ay isa sa top 150 architects in the world, the only Southeast Asian. Wala nga siya ngayon sa ating pagdiriwang dahil nanduon siya sa Dubai, meron siyang mga multi-million dollar projects doon. At nandito naman kayong mga kasamahan, meron akong mensahe para kay Jun Palafox. Mula sa namumuno ng Saudi Arabia General Investment Authority dahil sila ay magtatayo ng isang bagong lungsod mas malaki pa kaysa doon sa mga karatig bansa ng Saudi, yung King Abdullah Economic City, balak nilang itayo ang pinakamataas na gusali sa buong mundo. Gusto nila na mag-bid si Jun Palafox sa design ng King Abdullah Economic City.

Mabalik tayo dito. Itong proyektong ito naman kaya naman napapagbigyan ni GM si Abet ay meron tayong panggagalingan ng panggastos, yung mga naitipid natin mula sa pagtitipid ng mga repormang pang-ekonomiya, reporma sa kaban ng bayan na ginawa ng kongreso. Kaya salamat naman Congressman Abet Garcia sa iyong malaking tulong doon. Ang mga proyektong ito ay balik-kabayaran para sa inyo dahil kasama naman kayong mga nagsakripisyo sa ating mga reporma.

Maraming salamat din Governor Garcia, Congressman Garcia, Mayor Raymundo dahil pinangalanan ninyo itong terminal para sa aking ama, si President Diosdado Macapagal. Kami ng tatay ko ay kapitbayan ninyo kasi yung aming bayan ng Lubao, Pampanga ay katabi lamang ng Bataan. Kaya nga naalala ko nung panahon ng lahar napuno ang mga Ospital ng Bataan ng mga Kapampangan noong kalamidad ng Pinatubo. In fact, yung mental hospital dito ay nung ako ay naging senador hiniling ko na gawing national muli... Regional dahil ang daming nagkaroon doon ng mga psychological problems dahil sa trauma ng Pinatubo dito sila pinadala at hindi sa ibang mga hospital. Kaya malaki ang pagkaka soul mate ng Pampanga at Bataan. Malaki ang tinulong ng Bataan sa mga biktima ng kalamidad nung panahon ng Pinatubo.

Ngayon merong kalamidad sa ating rehiyon, not necessarily here in the Philippines yet pero doon sa ating kalapit-bansa na Indonesia. Even as we pray for the victims amid the mounting toll of the java quake and dispatch the Philippine medical and humanitarian mission to the center of tragedy where the survivors are most in need, I have directed the NDCC to coordinate with Phivolcs and the other concerned agencies in conducting earthquake-preparedness drills in schools, business districts and public places nationwide as part of our massive disaster awareness campaign. Our preparedness at all times, the continuous updating of our disaster monitoring and mitigation plans, and the solidarity of all sectors are important to minimize loss of lives and properties.

Let's not be unduly alarmed, but by all means let every vulnerable community be prepared to meet any contingencies whether brought about by earthquakes, landslides, floods and other natural calamities. Kanina nga dahil si General Rafanan, ang ating bagong regional director ng Region III ay ang Chairman ng Regional Disaster Coordinating Council, sabi ko nga magsimula tayo ng ating earthquake drill dito mismo sa lalawigan ng Bataan.

Sana'y suportahan din ng mga taga-Orion at mga taga-Bataan ang iba pa nating mga reporma. Thank you. Isa sa ating 10-point program na tinatawag nating BEAT-THE-ODDS ay magpaunlad ng network ng imprastrukturang nagko-connect sa buong bansa. Halimbawa ito, although ito ay para sa labas ng bansa ang Orion-Manila ay napaka-importanteng route para konektahin ang buong bansa. Ang importante ang Bataan din, gaya nang sabi ni Abet, ay kasama doon sa ating Clark-Subic Development Corridor. At itong Clark-Subic Development Corridor, ito ay ang Northern portion ng tinatawag nating urban beltway. Ang urban beltway ay sumasakop sa ang Clark-Subic Corridor kasama ang Bataan hanggang Metro Manila, hanggang Calabarzon na nagtatapos sa Batangas Port. At dito sa corridor na ito, the urban beltway na ito nanggagaling ang singkwenta'y porsiyento ng ating gross domestic product.

Kaya importanteng-importante ang imprastruktura dito para mas mabilis galaw ang mga produkto natin. Kaya dito sa lugar na ito, yung urban beltway ang ating pangunahing imprastruktura ay mga expressway at saka mga pantalan kagaya nitong pantalan ng Orion. Yung expressway naman kasama ang Bataan doon sa Subic-Clark Expressway. At ito naman ay itong ferry mula sa Bataan hanggang Maynila yon ay kasama sa nautical highway, pero hindi pa kumpleto. Kasi ang tinatawag nating nautical highway ay yung network ng highway at roll-on/roll-off ferry sakop sana ang ruta ng Manila-Bataan. Kasi kung yung ating mga produkto sa mga industriya dito ay magpupunta pa sa Manila Port. Biro niyo dadaan sila ng Olongapo-Gapan road, North Expressway, tatawid ng Edsa hanggang pupunta sa south harbor o kung saan ba. Pero kung merong roll-on/roll-off ferry, diretso na mula sa Orion yung truck, sasakay na lamang sa ferry, diretso na sa south harbor or kung saan bang pupunta doon sa kung saang bansa o sa buong bahagi na ng Metro Manila.

Ngayon ang kwento nga ni governor at saka ni Abet merong nagsikap na magtayo dito ng roll-on/roll-off ferry, pero nakita niya na mas malaki ang kita ng ro-ro papunta sa Caticlan sa Boracay kaya doon siya lumipat. Hindi naman natin mapipigil ang mga private sector decisions, pero kanina dahil sumakay kami doon sa Sun Cruises, na ang pag-aari ng Magsaysay-Ho family, kinausap ko yung kanilang kinatawan. Alam niyo si Doris Ho ay kahenerasyon ko at ngayon ay nasa Tokyo siya dahil si Doris Ho is an international businesswoman. Pero yung kanyang kinatawan, sabi ko, pwede bang kausapin si Doris tatal meron naman kayong ferry service pampasahero, pwede bang magtayo rin ng ferry service pangsasakyan roll-on/roll-off. At ayon sa kanyang kinatawan talagang pinaplano ng Magsaysay lines na magtatag ng roll-on/roll-off ferry dito.

Sa buong bansa ngayon ay nagpapatuloy ang mga kinakailangang proyekto, gaya nang sabi ko, mga expressway at pantalan sa urban beltway — kasama doon ang Bataan; yung roll-on/roll-off nautical highway — kasama rin doon ang Bataan-Manila. Doon naman sa Central Philippines na ang sakop ay Visayas, Bicol, mga maliliit na isla ng Northern Mindanao, Romblon at Palawan, ang turismo naman ang ating investment doon. At doon naman sa mainland Mindanao at saka sa Northern Luzon ay ang agri-business. Kaya kailangan ang produkto ng Mindanao pumunta rito sa pamamagitan ng ro-ro. Kailangan rin ang produkto ng Northern Luzon pumunta sa Maynila sa pamamagitan ng ro-ro, naiwasan yung malaking traffic doon sa EDSA at saka sa Macart... Kaya yon din ang malaking tulong kung magkaron tayo ng ro-ro dito sa Orion hanggang Maynila.

Dito rin sa Bataan, gaya nang binanggit ni Governor Tet, ang sentro ng ating mga reporma sa kasarinlan sa enerhiya dahil narito ang planta ng Petron na siya ay partnership ng Philippine government at ang Saudi Aramco. At nung ako ay nagpunta sa Saudi Arabia, hinihiling ko sa Saudi Arabia — dahil Saudi Aramco ay pag-aari ng Saudi Arabia — na maglagay sana sila ng refinery doon sa Mindanao. Ang sagot nila, pwede silang maglagay ng refinery sa Pilipinas pero gusto nila ilagay dito sa Bataan, dahil sa economics. Pero para makatulong na magbigay ng trabaho sa

Mindanao, ang ilalagay nila doon ay mga ethanol distillery at saka pwede rin maglalagay ng Jatropha processing plant para hindi naman malulugi or hindi naman maiiwan yung Mindanao sa development.

Kasi naman kung trabaho ang pag-uusapan natin, actually ang oil refinery ay capital intensive, so hindi ganun karami ang trabaho for a given peso of investment. Kaya kung gusto natin ng sabi nila trabaho sa Mindanao, gawa ng di hamak mas mababa ang human development index sa Mindanao haming sa Bataan, eh mas mabuti nga yung maglagay ng ilang ethanol distillery at saka Jatropha plantation, mas makakapagbigay ng maraming trabaho. Ang importante sa refinery ay efficient cost of production para mababa ang benta ng refined oil product at para sa kanila ang sagot doon sa layuning yon ay yung planta dito sa Bataan. Kaya congratulations sa inyo!

We deeply appreciate the move of our oil firms to hold off upward price adjustments for diesel. The transport sector and the commuters are truly grateful for this break at a time when they need it most. The government shall continue to work with the petroleum industry to temper the impact of oil price increases in the world market. We also appeal to our legislators to pass immediately the biofuel act to encourage more investments in alternative fuel sources. Tapos na ito sa kongreso.

We could muster the vast agricultural prowess of the Philippines to our advantage and ease the woes of our people. Yung Jatropha pwede kayong bumili ng mga binhi doon sa Northern Luzon command dahil si General Romy Tolentino ay malapit nang mag-ani ng kanyang mga buto ng Jatropha doon sa Fort Magsaysay. At yang Jatrophan yan ay matatanim kahit na sa marginal lands at pag marami nang nagtanim at nagha-harvest ng buto ay yung Petron din ay handang magtayo ng Jatropha plant na magpro-process naman ito sa diesel.

Energy self-sufficiency is the imperative of our time and we must exhaust all avenues and all means of institutional solidarity towards the long-term achievement of this goal.

Kaya mga kababayan, mga karatig kalalawigan, ituloy natin ang mga gawaing magpapabilis sa kaunlaran.

Muli, binabati ko kayo mga taga-Orion, mga taga-Bataan, sa simula ng inyong bagong pag-unlad. Napakagandang simbolo itong sinisimulan nating Diosdado Macapagal Cruise Terminal. Sana'y magiging tuloy-tuloy ito.

Maraming salamat sa patuloy ninyong suporta sa akin.

Speech of President Arroyo during the Philippines-China Economic Partnership Forum

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Philippines-China Economic Partnership Forum

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, June 5, 2006]

Thank you very much.

Thank you very much, Secretary Peter Favila.

His Excellency President Ramos, chairman of the BOA forum, His Excellency Minister Bo Xilai, His Excellency Chinese Ambassador Lee, Assistant Minister, Speaker De Venecia, Secretary Romulo, Secretary Nery, delegates and participants in this very, very important Philippines-China Economic Partnership Forum, ladies and gentlemen.

In behalf of the Filipino people, welcome to the business and government delegations of the People's Republic of China. I am so happy that this very important forum is headed by the Honorable Minister of Commerce of China, Minister Bo Xilai. Aside from the fact that they have been saying here on stage that he looks like a movie star, it's always a pleasure for me to see Minister Bo Xilai, because I have known him since he was mayor of Dahlian and I was vice president of the Philippines.

And I am so happy to see such a big and important delegation on the occasion of friendship between our two countries and especially because I consider this forum as a fitting sequel to the historic visit of President Hu Jintao to the Philippines last year on the occasion of the thirtieth anniversary of our diplomatic relations with each other. It was a great honor for me to host that jubilee celebration after myself having made two state visits to China, but it was a very personal honor for me to host President Hu because more than thirty years ago, as co-chair of the association of our Philippines-China understanding, I was one of those civilians who worked for the establishment of our diplomatic relations.

Today, thirty years later, thirty-one years later from that time, China is at the center of world attention not only as the largest country in the world but also as the fastest growing economy and a leading player in the global regime. And we in the Philippines feel honored to be able to benefit from China's participation in world trade and the world economy.

We are neighbors. We have a long relationship that dates back to the ancient Chinese dynasties, and we have Francis Chua and the other leaders of the Filipino-Chinese community in the Philippines who are the leading players in our Philippine economy. All these factors are the basic determinants of our vibrant relations not only in trade but in every sphere that we can think of when two neighbors, two relatives, two old friends should have a relationship with each other.

When we met at the APEC Summit in Chile in 2004, that was the time when President Hu described our present relationship as having reached the "golden age." and there are so many manifestations of that golden age. Ever since China entered the WTO, China has become one of the biggest trading partners of the Philippines I understand that China trade with the Philippines is one of the fastest growing bilateral relationships of China. We have a satisfactory free trade agreement early harvest that was signed during the state visit of President Hu. And I am very grateful that we have in fact surpassed the levels of bilateral trade that we have set for ourselves.

Aside from trade, China has given meaningful support to the Philippines' development agenda with your assistance first in agriculture and then later on in the railroad to the north. And now we are forging strategic, long-term partnerships in mining and other sectors.

We have also charted a path-breaking and peace-building course for regional diplomacy in the South China Sea with the trilateral marine seismic undertaking of the Philippines, China and Vietnam.

Today, as you are back here honorable minister, as you are here honorable businessmen of China, I invite you to continue to invest in the Philippines. I would like to let you know that we are working to reform our regulating environment so that things can move faster in our bureaucracy. I would like to let you know that we are investing in modern infrastructure, not only the railroad to the north, but roads, ports, airports, expressways so that travel will be much faster among our key economic hubs. And we are investing to train our young people so that we have a business environment that is as competitive as any in the region.

I believe that we have already had many conversations about Chinese investments and where we would want them to go. Of course, we want you to go everywhere but we have some special invitations for you for some special areas. We have a number of priorities where we feel we could have a mutually beneficial relationship.

For instance, in agriculture where you have already been helping us for so many years. We are developing two million new hectares of land for agri-business, and we invite the Chinese business community to participate there.

And then there is tourism. China is our fastest growing market. The tourists from China who came last year were more than three times as many as the tourists who came the year before. And we hope that the business investments, the companies from China will invest in tourism facilities and projects that provide access like roads and airports.

There is also the area of infrastructure where we want to build roads and railroads and roll-on/roll-off ferries to make travel much faster in this second largest archipelago in the world.

And then there is mining. We have a reserve worth a trillion dollars. We are among the largest reserves in gold, in copper and in nickel. Our people are world class. Their skills are known in 140 countries and there is more of them right here in the Philippines. And so we believe that investments from China will also be very productive and profitable in skills-intensive industries like electronics, energy, shipbuilding and shipping, health and wellness, and jewelry.

Friends from the People's Republic of China, with your participation in these Philippine investment areas and other investments where you may wish to do your business supported by the skilled Filipino worker, I am very sure we should be able to drive up an even more mutually rewarding relationship between our two nations in this golden age of friendship between China and the Philippines.

Mabuhay!

Speech of President Arroyo during the Joint Dinner of Foreign Chambers of Commerce (International Network of Business Organizations)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Joint Dinner of Foreign Chambers of Commerce (International Network of Business Organizations)

[Delivered at the Luzon-Visayas Ballroom, Hotel Philippine Plaza, CCP Complex, Pasay City, June 6, 2006]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Secretary Favila.

Secretary Romulo, Secretary Teves, the other members of the Philippine government, presidents and officers of the 11 chambers that got together for this International Network of Business Organizations, Donald Dee, representing the Filipino businessmen, ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you for being here tonight. Thank you for putting together this very important aggrupation and thank you for inviting me to be with you. And I am here tonight to assure you that we will listen to you, we listen to you, we hear you and we are acting on your recommendations everyday to improve our performance to make the Philippines a better place in which to live and work.

As an economist, I have been praying to believe that government should play a role as a facilitator of growth, not a barrier to entry for domestic and foreign capital and investment. And you all here Filipinos and foreigners are central to our success, as you mentioned earlier, in attracting new levels of foreign investment and expanded trade which in turn creates jobs for Filipinos. I'm a firm believer in the adage that "trade is better than aid." and my economic team has been directed to work with the domestic and international private sectors to ensure that you have the support needed to promote expanded trade for our commodities, products and services.

We have a world that is now flat, as Thomas Friedman said. And in a flatter world, as Friedman describes the world today, a more well-rounded government is vital to ensure that growth is consistent and that as a nation we build a just and equitable society. And in building a just and equitable society, I'd like to take this occasion to reiterate once again my support for a reasonable wage hike hammered out by the Tripartite Regional Wage Boards.

Through Undersecretary Danny Cruz here, undersecretary, I would like you to take care of fast-tracking the deliberations on ten pending petitions at the regional wage boards. And we must package a minimum wage increase with the bill on increases in income tax exemptions of minimum wage earners which is pending in Congress. Difficult? Well, you have witnessed my administration's willingness to take the tough and often unpopular decisions to reform our economy and support sustainable economic development. And I thank you, most of you, for having supported me during these difficult times.

Our economy is growing, notwithstanding the political noise that captures so many news headlines. But as Fer Peña said, we've grown 5.5 percent GDP, 5.8 percent GNP. The 400,000 growth in jobs is only in call centers, BPOs and mining. If you talk about the growth in all jobs we're talking about an average of one million a year in the past 5 years of my administration.

Going back to difficult and unpopular things one needs to do, in order to give you a good business climate, no leader anywhere in the world likes or wants to raise taxes. But that is what I had to do. We needed vital money for infrastructure projects, to give a boost to education and English language instruction, and to improve the health and security of our young and growing work force. I know that infrastructure development is high on your list of requirements. And our tax reform measures are finally giving us the capital we need to invest in that critical area and we're also opening up new areas for private sector infrastructure investment. We will deliver the new transportation and energy projects that business needs to expand trade. We know that certainty of supply of accessible and affordable energy is required to drive your business throughout our country. And we are working to meet this need through such measures as public and private sector investment as well as regulatory and other reforms that will further develop this critical part of our economy.

The backlog of investments that are required to turn the nation around is sometimes daunting. And earlier your President Ram Sitaldas asked me how can you help me? Well, I said most important are your investments to create jobs. But I wanted to expound on that but I left it for talking to all of you and pointing out some of the areas in which I think you can help me. First of all, as far as investment is concerned, we do have a backlog of investments. The enactment of the BOT law, which I authored when I was still senator — Gary, were you the author in the House at that time? Yeah, because Gary and I were always partners in authoring economic measures then — the enactment of the BOT law is recognition of the lack of sufficient capital for the government to undertake all the necessary infrastructure projects in the country. And that's one way where you the private sector can help.

Under a streamlined private sector partnership program, private-public sector partnership program, the former build-operate-transfer programs have been expanded to cover not only the BOT variants but also other modalities, such as joint venture agreements, concession arrangements and other programs tailored to improve public-private sector development.

Another place where you can help us is with regard to business process outsourcing which has been a particularly exciting growth sector. And this is an area that has the potential to create a hundred thousand new jobs every time I make a speech. It's not even every year or every two years, every time I have to make speech I had to get myself updated: 2001 it was less than 2,000; a year later it was 4,000; then 8,000; then 16,000; then it just went on and on and on. And every time I make a speech there is a whole number of new entrants into this industry, and even more indirect jobs for our young and highly-productive work force. How can you help us here? I welcome your recommendations on how best to bring more sophisticated value-added BPO investments to the Philippines.

I also call on the international business community and our domestic business partners, business sector, to partner with the government in our efforts to ensure that our young people enter the work force fully prepared for the demands of today's economy. As I said at the beginning, a flat world requires a well-rounded government to help smooth the rough edges of global competition. And part of that obligation by government is to make sure we measure in more ways than just the economic indicators — GDP, GNP growth, jobs created — other indicators outside economics, the measure of the health and vitality of our nation. And I'm here referring specifically to such issues as corruption, political extremism and security. Let me touch on each of these this evening.

On corruption, we must and we will break the back of corruption in the Philippines. Francis Chua gave you two examples: the 168 operation and the immigration card. And I believe aside from those anecdotes that Francis gave, and I thank him for being very concrete in what we've done, we've made great strides in government to break the cycle of corruption.

In the SWS surveys of enterprises on corruption, the percentage of enterprises who were asked for a bribe in transacting local and national government permits and licenses, and also in the payment of income taxes went down significantly between the year 2000 and the year 2005. And those who were not asked for any bribes in this and other transactions with the government almost doubled during that period, those who were not asked for any bribes.

And I have issued an A.O. 141 mandating periodic reporting on the use of the e-vat. This is part of the government's efforts to promote greater accountability and increase the confidence of the general public that the taxes that you pay are used wisely, efficiently and transparently. As many of you who have been dealing with us know, I have enlisted the help of Hong Kong's top corruption buster, Tony Kwok, who feels that we are making progress. In fact, Tony, would say we are not getting the credit we deserve for the strides we have made.

And of course, there is another more insidious form of corruption, and that is the corruption of our democratic form of government through the use of violence, intimidation and murder. The apparent murder of journalists and political activists is an affront to the fabric of our nation. And I would like to tell you that I am determined to bring to justice those who perpetrate these crimes and will not rest until justice is served even as I am determined to defeat the communist insurgency with the military and social weapons available in our democratic institutions. Are these empty words? I'm glad Francis reminded you about what we were able to do about kidnapping. So with the same fervor that we brought down kidnapping to historic lows, that is the fervor we will use to solve these killings of journalists and leftist activists.

We must turn our swords into plowshares and reap the benefits of working together in harmony and not tearing our nation apart in anger. And speaking of working together in harmony, I believe peace in Mindanao will happen, and when it does it will open up a floodgate of goodwill and investments that will turn that region around. Another place in which you, the ladies and gentlemen of the foreign and Philippine business community, will find many opportunities for investment.

In conclusion then let me say that we must build a strong foundation from the stones of many quarries, fiscal discipline — as mentioned by the speakers earlier — targeted investments — for instance, the private-public sector partnerships that I talked to you about today, the higher value BPO and others that I have been mentioning in previous messages to the business community — job creation, poverty elimination, peace and order, social justice, and press and political freedom.

And I thank each of you here this evening as well as you as a group who have come together, 11 foreign business associations. For also being our rock of granite in the foundation of a stronger, more prosperous, more democratic Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo before the Forum for Sustainable Development Strategy for Manila Bay

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the Forum for Sustainable Development Strategy for Manila Bay

[Delivered at the Hotel Philippine Plaza, CCP Complex, Pasay City, June 7, 2006]

TOWARDS A SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT STRATEGY FOR MANILA BAY

Thank you all for coming to this forum. This is one of the biggest gatherings of Filipino decision-makers who have the will and the heart to protect our coasts and marine resources. And we also thank our partners, the UNDP, represented by Madame Noble; the global environmental facility and USAID; and of course our Regional Program Director of the Partnership for Environmental Management in the Seas of East Asia, for being at our side to protect the seas and marine life not only of the Philippines but of the whole of East Asia. Not only are we here to comply with our commitments to sustainable development strategy for the seas of East Asia, we are also here as responsible citizens complying with our own medium-term Philippine development plan to manage our natural resources and protect the environment to improve our quality of life and that of future generations.

Speaking of protecting the quality of life, allow me to have a little digression. On this occasion celebrating the quality of life, we celebrate the victory of life as I thank congress for its immediate action in abolishing the death penalty law. But make no mistake about it, the abolition of the death penalty will be complemented by a stricter and sterner enforcement of the law in all fronts.

This is not a victory for criminals as some would claim, but rather clear proof that Filipinos respect life and uphold the virtue and religious doctrines that are expected of us as a dominant Christian nation. We are also glad that the Philippines has been taken off the watch list for human trafficking, which demonstrates our solid and effective programs to protect the welfare of women and children.

We urge our religious leaders to help the government in the moral and spiritual transformation of convicted offenders, particularly those serving maximum jail terms, even if they are not allowed parole. For our part, we assure the public that we will implement all available means of improving our jail facilities in order to render them more conducive to our prisoner rehabilitation and reform programs. We praise God for this event, and we pray for a society of peace, harmony and solidarity under the rule of law.

Our administration is preparing for the future and doing everything in our power to spend value-added tax moneys on health, education and infrastructure; engaging foreign travel to promote investments and protect OFWs; and creating energy independence and promoting environmental quality

Our medium-term plan embodies our Ten-Point Pro-Poor Agenda which provides that by 2010, we shall have brought clean water to the entire country. And to do that, we must take care of environmental quality. We can only ensure clean water by implementing the Solid Waste Management act of 2001 and the Clean Water Act of 2004 which both became law during my administration. And also by rationalizing and prioritizing reforestation in watersheds to preserve rivers, like the Pasig River, and other fresh water systems and also for flood control.

Our medium-term plan also considers that we are the second largest archipelago in the world with a fragile island ecosystem. We have—according to the notes given to me by Angie Reyes—842 coastal cities and municipalities, so Bais and Puerto Galera are only two of those more than 800, and 62 percent of our population makes use of the nation’s coasts for fishing, transport, settlement and other activities.

To protect our coasts and marine waters, however, we must protect the entire environment—our forests, our lands, our waters, our air—for almost everything that ensues from environmental degradation flows down and impacts negatively on the quality of our seas as we have seen happening to Manila Bay.

And the poor are the first ones to suffer the effects of environmental degradation. Makeshift shanties are the first to be carried away by the floods and small-scale fishermen are the first to lose their livelihood due to coastal destruction. Once upon a time when we were very young, Manila Bay gave us the biggest amount of fish. Now, Manila Bay gives us a tiny fraction of the entire marine production of our country.

This forum—following the style of Secretary Reyes since he was in the armed forces and through the Department of National Defense and through the Department of Interior and Local Government—must focus on a holistic approach. In the cabinet they call Angie Mr. Holistic, remember Bebet? A holistic approach that emphasizes fighting poverty and enabling every man and woman and child in the Philippines to participate in sustainable development practices.

The Manila Bay Environmental Management Project is a good test case to demonstrate that the country’s most important bay can meet the needs of all sectors relying on it for food, livelihood, commerce and transportation while protecting it from further degradation.

When Angie invited me to open this forum, as I am opening it today, and he said it’s going to be in a hotel, “Angie, let’s do it in front of the problem. Let’s physically face the problem. Let’s do it facing Manila Bay.” and that’s why we have this opening session here today.

And today, I would like to let you know that I have signed or I am signing—actually, I have signed but if they have it here I can ceremonially sign it again—I signed yesterday an executive order adopting integrated coastal management. I learned from Dr. Chua another acronym—ICM. As a national—but I know it as Integrated Coastal Management—as a national strategy for the sustainable development of our country’s coastal and marine habitats and resources, I’m further directing Secretary Reyes to be the lead to formulate jointly with the Department of Agriculture, the local governments involved, the NEDA, the Department of Foreign Affairs, the Department of Tourism, the Department of Transportation and Communications and National Integrated Coastal Management Plan in accordance with the agreements that will be forged in this forum and in other consultations with various sectors.

We must act together, and we must act now. And on this note, I open this very important forum on Sustainable Development Strategy for Manila Bay.

Vin d' Honneur Speech of President Arroyo during the celebration of the 108th anniversary of Philippine Independence

Vin d' Honneur Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the celebration of the 108th anniversary of Philippine Independence

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, June 12, 2006]

His Excellency Archbishop Filoni; Excellencies of the diplomatic corps; Vice President de Castro; other officials of the Philippine government; Secretary Romulo and Mrs. Romulo; other members of the Cabinet and their ladies; Chief Justice Panganiban and the other members of the judiciary; officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the Philippine National Police; elected members of the Philippine government; ladies and gentlemen.

Today, we again honor our forefathers whose sacrifices over 108 years ago brought us independence. We also honor our countrymen and countrywomen whose sacrifices over a period of our independence have protected our freedoms and preserved our democracy. We shall continue to protect our heritage and we shall never take our independence for granted.

We know that with independence comes responsibility. Responsibility to preserve peace and order. Responsibility to preserve democratic principles. Responsibility to ensure that all Filipinos have access to the opportunities to feed their families and educate their children. And responsibility to protect our Constitution.

Democracies can be lively but they must not be divisive.

The fight for independence was not a fight amongst ourselves. It was a fight against foreign power that still could not recognize that we were more than a people. We were a nation united in shared values and shared pride.

There are those who dishonor the memory of those who fought for independence through misguided initiatives that threaten to tear our nation apart. But we shall work without distraction to build a better life for all Filipinos, and we shall continue to seek unity in achieving that paramount goal.

We have upheld the sturdy pillars of democracy and no harangues or political noise can overcome the truth that we have achieved economic progress under an umbrella of free enterprise and human freedom. Many of those who shout in the streets have done nothing for this nation except foment strife and stagnation. But time will eventually expose them as false prophets whose primary platform is self-interest and national division.

Our nation is at a crossroads. We've achieved much including the graduation of 1.6 million Filipinos from poverty. Greater things stand before us but we must put an end to politics as usual and work to shape a Philippine Republic that truly offers opportunity for all. We owe it to our forefathers to unite in the struggle to bring greater levels of peace, equality and opportunity to all corners of our nation.

We have created a nation that is truly outward-looking. And our relations with those countries such as Spain and the United States who have been a part of our history have never been better. They are our partners in commerce as well as our partners in peace, as well as in the fight against terror. And to this we'll add our thanks to the American business community for recognizing our efforts to reduce corruption.

Our nation has withstood many challenges during the years of our independence and none has been greater in the fight to preserve our democracy. We have a unique opportunity to bring peace to a region of our country that has seen too much bloodshed in a fight to tear our country apart. With the graduation of three of the Muslim provinces from the list of the 10 poorest provinces in our country, I am excited by the prospects for peace in Mindanao and I commend all parties — members of the diplomatic world, the countries you represent — I commend all of you for your recognition that we now our country can achieve more good for the Filipino people if we put down our guns and work together in harmony.

Our people will soon be called upon to make a decision that can bring an end to the political deadlocks that have stalled our efforts to take our nation to the next level. The choice is for us to make whether we continue to live up to the vision of our national heroes or continue to watch helplessly while our political system degenerates and our economy is trapped on the mire of uncertainty.

Our forefathers did not sacrifice to create an independent nation where politics take precedence over progress. I hope the memory of our struggle for independence will drive international solidarity, represented by the excellencies of the diplomatic corps here today present, will drive international solidarity behind the direction we want to take our country in the years ahead.

On this note, I ask your excellencies, the diplomatic corps and our fellow Filipinos in this hall to join me in a toast to international solidarity and to the future of the Philippines.

Mabuhay!
